On the motion of Comp. R. Wylie, P.P.G.D.C., seconded by Comp. J. R. Goepel, P.P.G. 1st. A.S., the sum of forty guineas was voted from the P.G. Chapter funds (in addition to ten voted last year) to constitute the P.G. Superintendent (Comp. Lord Skelmersdale) a Vice-President of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

His Lordship, in acknowledging this vote, which was carried by acclamation, said he had great pleasure in stating that it was fully expected the London Charities would in no way suffer by certain untoward circumstances, but that the money would be fully made up. He also announced his intention of considering whether or not it would be for the convenience of the companions to hold the annual Prov. Grand Chapter meeting on the same day as, and immediately preceding, the business of the Prov. Grand Lodge. The experiment, at all events, he thought was worth a trial. (Hear, hear.)

The Prov. Grand Chapter was then closed, and the companions subsequently banqueted at the Bull Hotel.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This purifying and regulating Medicine should occasionally be had recourse to during foggy, cold, and wet weather. These Pills are the best preventive of hoarseness, sore throat, diphtheria, pleurisy, and asthma, and are sure remedies for congestion, bronchitis, and inflammation. A moderate attention to the directions folded round each box will enable every invalid to take the Pills in the most advantageous manner; they will then be taught the proper doses, and the circumstances under which they must be increased or diminished. Holloway's Pills act as alteratives, aperients, and tonics. Whenever these Pills have been taken as the last resource, the result has always been gratifying. Even when they fail to cure, they always assuage the severity of the symptoms and diminish the danger.—ADVT.

SPECIAL EDITION.

A Special Edition of the Freemason, will be ready early on Saturday Morning, containing a detailed report of the proceedings at the Annual Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls with the List of the Stewards, and the amounts brought up by each.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The quarterly meeting of the Liverpool Masonic Hall Committee was held a few evenings ago at the Hall in Hope-street, Liverpool, and as there were two very important motions affecting the constitution of the House Committee on the agenda paper, there was an unusually large and influential gathering, in anticipation of a long and animated discussion on each of the propositions. Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., occupied the chair, Bro. W. J. Lant, P.M. 823, the vice-chair, and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read by Bro. J. T. Callow, P.M. 637, Secretary, the Chairman called on the brother who had given notice of the first motion to bring it forward. He was, however, conspicuous by his absence, and the motion ungloriously fell to the ground. Thereupon the brother whose name was identified with the second motion then got up, and, amidst considerable merriment, intimated that he desired to withdraw it. This request was granted, and thus a meeting which was expected to last a considerable time came to a close most suddenly, the whole of the proceedings not lasting more than two minutes.

The members of the lodges in the Province of Middlesex are to wear Masonic mourning for three months in consequence of the lamented death of their Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Robert Wentworth Little.

At the Court of Bankruptcy, on Tuesday, the Case of Willis, Percival & Co. was heard before Mr. Registrar Pepsys.—Henry Willis, Samuel Tomkins, and Samuel Leith Tomkins, bankers, carrying on business at Lombard-street, under the firm of Willis, Percival, & Co., had petitioned for the liquidation of their affairs. A scheme of arrangement agreed to at a meeting of creditors on April 30th was submitted to the Court. The creditors resolved that an agreement made between Mr. Turquand, trustee of the estate on the one part, and the Hampshire and North Wilts Banking Company on the other, should be adopted. This agreement provided, inter alia, for the sale of the whole of the joint or separate assets of the debtors, and the goodwill of their banking business to the Hampshire and North Wilts Banking Company at the sum of £165,000, and such further sum as should be required to pay the creditors a dividend of 9s. in the pound; the debts due by the firm under the late partnership with Henry Willis, deceased, and the separate debts of each partner to be paid in full, and also all the costs of the proceedings; in the event of £165,000 being more than is required for the purposes aforesaid, the surplus to be refunded to the Hampshire and North Wilts Bank. The statement of affairs showed assets at £295,662 as against liabilities £563,517, or equal to a dividend of 10s. 5d. in the pound. After the trustee had investigated the accounts, he found that the figures were liable to certain deductions—the liabilities to £529,908 and the assets to £262,053, which latter item he finally reduced by £10,000 put down for costs, thus placing the net assets at £252,053. Under these circumstances, Mr. Penn, the chief clerk, reported that the arrangements, taking into consideration the delay and risk consequent upon realization in the ordinary mode, appeared to be for the benefit of the creditors. The resolutions were confirmed by the Court.

The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon opened the new municipal buildings at Newbury, Berkshire, on Tuesday last. Upon his arrival an address was read by Mr. H. B. Godwin, town clerk, in which his lordship was thanked for the great interest he had always manifested in the welfare of the ancient borough, the address concluding as follows: "We would express our sincere hope that your lordship may be granted many years of health and happiness, and to see your children's children perpetuate the virtues and accomplishments of the House of Herbert."

Her Majesty the Queen, accompanied by the Crown Princess of Germany and Princess Beatrice, left Windsor Castle at eleven o'clock on Tuesday morning for the metropolis. As they passed from the Royal waiting room at Windsor to the carriage her Majesty and the Princesses graciously acknowledged the salutations of the bystanders; and the Crown Princess of Germany (Princess Royal) and the Princess Beatrice remained standing as the train quitted the station. At Paddington there was a large concourse of persons, who gave the Royal party a most hearty welcome as they drove under escort to Buckingham Palace.

The Saddlers' Company has voted 25 guineas to the China Famiae Fund, and five guineas to the National Dental Hospital.

SLAMMING OF RAILWAY CARRIAGE DOORS.—Several correspondents have addressed letters to a contemporary on this subject, and one, signing himself "Quietas," asks "can nothing be done to stop the intolerable nuisance of slamming railway carriage doors? If the doors must be closed quickly and firmly," he remarks, "surely the thunderclap which results may be obviated by the insertion of a little indiarubber lining, such as serves a similar purpose to the doors of numerous public buildings."

At the Croza sale in Paris, works of Laret Delacroix and Messonier were sold at high prices. "Le Liseur," by the last great artist, fetched £1080. £12,000 were realized.

The consecration of the Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744, will take place at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Tuesday, May 14th, at four o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by Bro. James Terry, G.D.C. Herts., assisted by Bro. H. G. Buss, A.G.S., Bro. J. Willing, I.P.M. 177, P.M. 1507, is the W.M. designate; Bro. John Douglas, (Standard Theatre), W.M. elect 1507, the S.W. designate; and Bro. F. H. Clemow, 1507, the J.W. designate. The musical arrangements will be under the direction of Bro. Carter, assisted by Bro. Theodore Distin, &c., &c. The ceremony will be in ample form. The lodge already consists of thirty Masters, P. Masters, and brethren of old lodges.

The Pope's Apartments at the Vatican have been re-decorated since the death of Pius IX., and are now furnished somewhat scantily, the name and arms of Leo XIII. being emblazoned on all the furniture. The Pope has converted the room in which his predecessor died into a dining-room, hung with red damask, and containing a table in centre, at which His Holiness sits on a throne. The former dining-room is now Leo XIII.'s bedroom, which is hung with yellow damask, and has a brass bedstead in an alcove formed by columns, while it communicates with the library. The audience room is ornamented with red and yellow satin, and contains seats covered with red, two handsome cabinets, and a writing-table. Lastly comes the Salle du Trône, where the Pope hears a sermon each Friday in Lent, the preacher standing at the foot of the throne, while Leo XIII. occupies unseen a species of wooden confessional, and the Cardinals are seated round the hall on benches. Anent Papal matters, His Holiness has been slightly scandalised by his new Secretary, Cardinal Franchi, having a billiard-table put up in his apartments, as the Cardinal has been recommended to play billiards for an hour daily for the sake of his health.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Holman Hunt is returning to this country with a new and powerful picture.

The Minister of Public Instruction and Chancellor of the University of France, has conferred on Bro. the Rev. Dr. Brette, one of the highest honours the University can bestow, viz., the rank and title of "Officier d'Académie," in recognition of the services he has rendered to Public Instruction by his educational works.

Among the most important inventions of the age is Bro. Charles Brothers's Safety Sash Window. Every one will admit the ordinary sash window is open to many objections. If the sash line breaks or the window wants cleaning, &c., the sashes have to be partially taken out by removing the beads, or the servant has to do the work from the outside, often at imminent peril. Now the invention of Mr. Brothers obviates these inconveniences, and possesses special points of merit that will commend themselves to all architects, builders, and householders. The model sash window we examined at the Museum of Building Appliances, 23, Maddox street, W., is to all appearance an ordinary window, including frame and weights, but is hung on centres, and is made to open like a casement, which purpose, in fact, it answers. A frame or lining is introduced in the usual rebate or opening of the brickwork, in which the ordinary window case is wedged; gun metal or other centres are fixed at the top and bottom of frame one side, and the whole sash and its frame is hung at its inner edge, and made to open en bloc into the room. In examining the model we find the parting beads are fixed, and never require to be touched—a point of particular moment, avoiding repairs, the loose fitting of the sashes, and the consequent liability to become dirty. The hanging of the sash frame obviates the necessity of taking off the beads, and the removal of sashes, to repair, clean, or paint, for by unlocking the opening stile of frame the whole window, with its weights and sashes, opens into the room, and is completely under control. But to facilitate repair of lines, the back linings, thin pieces of stuff hinged, are made to open as flaps, thus enabling any one to replace new lines or weights, as the sash lines are fitted to a certain length with hooks and eyes. When the window-frame is open the limit to which the sashes can subsequently be raised or depressed can be determined by the locking arrangement, effected by a master-key provided for the owner or tenant of the house. Say an opening of four or five inches is permitted, this will be too small a space for any one to get access through from the outside, and thus no collusion with inmates would serve the purposes of the burglar. At top an excellent adjustable ventilator is fitted, and on closing the sashes they fasten themselves, thus superseding the ordinary catches and introducing the better principle of unfastening instead of fastening the window. When the sash-frame is shut on the outer frame it is locked in place by the master-key and becomes proof against tampering.

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.—The Imperial Grand Council of Illinois have appointed Bro. Charles Fitzgerald Matier as their Grand Representative at the Imperial Grand Council of England.

Among others the following deaths have been announced in April: Lawrence Macdonald, sculptor, at Rome; Alexander Jean Antiguis, "genre" painter, in Paris; Alexander Viollet-le-Duc, art critic, brother of the great architect; and Sir Gilbert Scott, architect.

An official communication was received at Aldershot on Wednesday evening stating that her Majesty the Queen will visit the camp on Monday next, and will inspect the whole of the troops at the North Camp parade ground, returning afterwards to Windsor.

Public Amusements.

GLOBE THEATRE.—A grand special morning performance (we quote from the bills) was given at this Theatre on Wednesday April 24th. The occasion was the debut of Miss Agnes Leonard, and the piece chosen for representation was "Love's Sacrifice" a drama produced nearly half a century ago at Covent Garden, but seldom seen of late years on the London Stage. Although of considerable literary merit, and admirable in many respects, "Love's Sacrifice" is hardly likely to become a favourite with audiences of the present day, who prefer quicker development of plot, and are apt to grow impatient over long speeches in blank verse. We do not say taste has improved in these matters, but only state a fact.

The heroine Margaret Elmore was, of course, played by the young debutante. Gifted with a graceful figure, a charming young face, and the most bewitching manners, Miss Leonard looked the part to perfection, and in the first act where these qualities were the chief requisites, she made a very favourable impression on the audience; as the play proceeded, however, it was clear that she lacked power, her voice at times being almost inaudible, and in the scene with Lafont in the fourth act, it became evident that she has not, as yet, mastered even the elements of her art, she never once rose in the situation and throughout the rest of the play her inexperience both in elocution and acting were painfully apparent. The only praise we can give is that she was perfect in her words, and more than once acted as prompter to some of the others. The audience was a friendly one, and there were repeated calls before the curtain, but it would be mistaken kindness to persuade Miss Leonard that her impersonation was a success. "There is no royal road to learning" and success on the stage can only be attained by long and careful study. To appear before a London audience for the first time, in a part which would try the powers of the most experienced actress, is to say the least ambitious. The other parts were most of them well filled. Mr. John Maclean played Matthew Elmore with much feeling, and in the third act won loud and well deserved applause. Mr. James Fernandez was admirably "made up" as Lafont, and played the part in a thoroughly artistic manner. Mr. Barnes as Eugene de Lorme made a fairly good lover, but we have seen him to better advantage in other parts. Mr. Billington made a dashing St. Lo and was particularly good in his scene with the lively Hermione, admirably played by Miss Ellen Meyrick. Mr. H. Paulton was funny as the clerk Jean Ruse, and was well supported by Miss Cicely Nott as Manau. Mr. Huntley as the Friar was too melodramatic, and would have been more appreciated by a "transpontine" audience.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpotts, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, price 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s 2d.—ADVT.

In addition to the numerous gifts of works of art to the Liverpool Gallery of Art, Mr. George Arkell, banker, has presented to the Town Council seven valuable works in oil from his collection at Anfield House. They include "Ruins of a Temple and Amphitheatre," by G. D. Roberts, R.A.; "King Richard III. of England," by S. A. Hart, R.A.; "The Trial of the Earl of Strafford," by William Fisk; and "The Parable of Forgiveness," by J. Eckford Lander.

MASONIC PROGRAMME.

We have been requested by a correspondent to publish the following translation from the Spanish, which we do with pleasure:—

This is submitted to persons wishing to become Masons, before they are proposed in open lodge, for their complete knowledge of the aspirations of Masonry, and to proceed after their agreement to them to the other usual formalities, of which this present document shall be the heading.

Masonry desiring that any person likely to become one of its members may not fall into a delusion, and wishing in good time to offer a proof of his good faith, it is but fair to give to that person exact ideas of the object of the Institution, and to enable him to repudiate those vulgarities which engender absurd and erroneous conceptions, ridiculing only him who conceives them.

When a candidate offers himself for Masonry, this feels it his duty to examine his conduct and customs, and for that purpose appoints a special commission of enquiry, independently of the voice and advice of other members.

If the information acquired are unfavourable the Society goes into a minute examination of the particulars, to prove them as clear as the midday light, after that proof, if the information are definitely unfavourable, the name of the candidate is no longer heard amongst Masons.* If on the contrary, the information are favourable, a secret ballot takes place by white and black, this last excluding. In this case the rejection is not an offence, it is sufficient if a member believes that the candidate will not find in Masonry what he is aiming at, to refuse him his vote. Masonry does not purport satisfying any egotistical aims nor private interests: its object is highly noble, its mission entirely humane. Its views are, the moral progress, charity and philanthropy amongst all men of right conscience and good customs. To pretend to penetrate in the Society with the idea of making of it a step to private interests or unavowable aspirations, would be ridiculous and absurd; to enter it without finding in oneself all the abnegation which Masonry demands would be a deception.

Masonry has secrets founded on morality and justice which cannot be penetrated, and obligations which cannot be forfeited; but neither one nor the other are in the least opposed to the laws, to religion, nor to morality. The candidate who is guided by curiosity does not reach his purpose; the mysteries and secrets are communicated by degrees conferred only to worthy men alone. He who ties himself with a solemn obligation and breaks it, does not hurt the Society in the least; the evil falls only on him who had not constancy and honour to fulfil a duty which he voluntarily imposed on himself.

Masonry does not interfere with the religious creed of its members nor tries to penetrate their peculiar dogmas; it is sufficient to know that the candidate has a religion and that he believes in God and in his works. We never open our doors to receive an atheist, who denies the existence of the Supreme Creator.

Masonry does not want wealthy men, but it cannot admit persons not having a profession or material means to keep themselves and families, and, without detriment to these first duties, having a small surplus to contribute to the expenses of the Society and to help the needful.

Masonry would fail in its object by tolerating disputes and variances amongst its members; all differences must be settled between themselves, avoiding, as far as possible, an appeal to strangers. Thus, a candidate when admitted, if he meets a member with whom he is at variance, he is obliged to depose all resentment and treat him as a friend, but if the difference should be of such nature not to be settled amicably, he must expose his reasons to the Master of the lodge, previous to appeal to strange judges, and justice shall be afforded to his demand.

Masonry requires a small part of the time of its members to attend the duties of their lodge when summoned, this not being avoidable, unless by legitimate or provable causes.

Finally, the candidate is expected to exercise temperance, be industrious and steady to his profession, faithful to his master or employer, to practise virtue, to share his bread, with the needful, and not to eat the other's without paying for it, to show the true way to the strayed traveller, to discountenance all vices condemned by morality, and finally to help his brothers, with all means in his power and as far as his own circumstances permit.

The candidate who, imbued with these principles, finds himself capable of following them, will please to sign the following declaration:—

I, A, B, C, of my own free and spontaneous will and accord, and under my word of honour, being well acquainted with the Masonic Programme, and the duties described thereon, offer myself as a candidate for Masonry, desiring to become useful to human kind.

In testimony thereof, I sign the present with my guarantee

CAPPER LODGE (No. 1076).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Thursday, the 9th inst., at Brother Hillier's house, the Marine Hotel, Tidal Basin, Victoria Docks, and the attendance of both the brethren of the lodge and visitors must have been very gratifying to the esteemed W.M., Bro. John White, who has as much by his excellent working, as by his genial and hospitable demeanour gained for himself and the lodge a prestige second to none in the district. He has with excellent taste done away with the "Summer Banquet" and substituted in place of it a slight extension of refreshments in the shape of a plain collation after labour, thereby saving the funds of the lodge materially, affording greater facilities for carrying out the charities of it in their legitimate course, an innovation which has given great satisfaction to a large majority of its members, and promises well as an institution. He has as well met the wants of many of the members, by procuring at his own expense a handsome portfolio suitable for the reception of the Freemason, with the name of the lodge upon it in gold letters, which, containing the weekly copies of that journal, lies on the table in the ante-room of the lodge open for the perusal of the brethren during the evening, and we were pleased on the occasion under notice to see it so much appreciated by them. The only work before the lodge was the passing of Bro. Still to the Second Degree, which was happily effected. The officers present assisting the W.M. were Bros. J. Dorton, I.P.M.; J. Gaskill, P.M.; H. B. Holliday, P.M.; T. G. Day, P.M., and P.G.S. of Yorks Essex; F. Brian, S.W.; P. McCarthy, J.W.; B. Brayshaw, P.M. and Treas., an I.P.S.B., Essex; Jas. Mitchell, Sec.; J. T. K. Jobb, J.D.; W. Dorton, I.G.; W. Nevins, W.S.; A. W. Mason, A.W.S.; M. Sherwin, Org.; and B. Norman, O.G. Resolutions affecting the Henderson Testimonial were then passed, and it was resolved that it should be kept open for some time yet. The meeting was then adjourned to the second Thursday in September next, lodges of emergencies excepted, and the lodge was closed in due form. Among the visitors present were Bros. W. Gamble, W.M. 706; S. Etheridge, W.M. 829; H. Bickerstaff, P.M. 1329; G. Davies, P.M. 131; H. Ball, 77; T. H. Goodman, 87; T. Carey, 1472; C. Jolly, 913, (Freemason), &c. After supper the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. Sherwin singing a verse of the "National Anthem" and "God bless the Prince of Wales" after the two first. Bro. Dorton, I.P.M., then rose to propose the toast of the W.M., and in so doing expressed the pleasure it gave him to have that honour, more especially as it was a toast they could all join in heartily, and without reserve. (Cheers.) The members of the Capper Lodge were proud to have such a Master as they had that year. It was not only inside the lodge and in his chair that his excellence was manifested, but outside in his private capacity, there were qualifications evinced by him, that made them esteem and respect him. His genial and hearty manner to all who came within the sphere of his influence, his capacity for work, more particularly if there were wanted any good done for a brother, and last, but not least, his earnest endeavours to promote their welfare and comfort, made them look up to and admire him. (Loud cheers.) He should not have the opportunity of again proposing that toast for the next three months, and he should like this one to be taken advantage of to show their W.M. how much they respected him. He asked them to give him "good fire." (Applause.) Bro. White in reply thanked them for the warmth with which they had received the toast, and especially were his thanks due to Bro. Dorton for the kind and graceful expressions made use of by him in proposing it. He always had and should do all he could to compass their good and perfect enjoyment, commensurate with the benefit and constitution of the lodge. So long as he had the hearty support and suffrages of the brethren, he should not cease to strive to carry out those principles to the end. (Cheers.) In proposing the toast of "The Visitors" the W.M. said they had among their visitors three distinguished ones, he referred to Bros. Gamble, Etheridge, and Davies, who had attended as representatives of their several lodges for the Henderson Testimonial. Bro. Davis, who was a P.M. of their deceased brother's mother lodge, had brought them the sum of ten guineas, and all were welcome to the Capper Lodge. (Cheers.) Bro. Gamble thanked them for their kind and hospitable reception of the visitors. He esteemed it an honour to come among them, and see the splendid working of the lodge. It was the first time he had had the pleasure, and with the permission of the W.M. it should not be the last. Bro. Etheridge briefly responded on behalf of the Sydney Lodge. Bro. Davies said he came as the representative of the W.M. of the Union Waterloo Lodge, No. 13, and so anxious was Bro. Reed that he had sent a special messenger to his (Bro. Davis's) house asking him to come in his (Bro. Reed's) stead and bring £10 10s. to the fund. The desire of Mrs. Henderson was, if possible, to be placed upon the annuity fund, and many distinguished Masons, both in the district and in the Province of Kent, had kindly promised their assistance, so that they had every reason to hope for its success. (Hear, hear.) The toast of the "Past Masters" followed, and it was matter of congratulation for the W.M. to have five present, two of whom were Provincial Grand Officers. Bro. Dorton briefly replied. Bro. Gaskill in the course of a fervid address referred to his 14 years' connection with the lodge, and of the efforts he had made for its welfare. Bro. Braytham, Holliday, and Day as well replied. "The Officers" were next toasted, and Bro. Bryan responded to a flattering reception of the toast. "The Health of Bro. Hillier," as the host, was then drank most cordially, and the W.M. complimented him upon his efforts for the comfort of the brethren, and after a short reply from that brother, the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1298).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 7th inst., at the Wellington Club, Islington, when there were present Bros. W. H. Cohen, W.M.; Gladwell, S.W.; Hunter, J.W.; Allison, Treasurer; Bigley, Secretary; and the rest of the officers, supported by the members. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the ballot was taken for Mr. Charles Bogler, and proving unanimous that gentleman was duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, the ceremony being performed in that careful and impressive manner for which this lodge is celebrated, and which we believe is a great deal due to the lodge of instruction attached to this lodge. After some further business the lodge adjourned for the recess, emergencies excepted.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Wednesday, the 8th inst., at the F.M. Hall, William-street, Bro. G. W. Reed, W.M., in the chair, supported by the following officers: J. P. Moore, S.W.; T. Hutton, J.W.; G. Davies, P.M., and Treas. pro tem.; H. Syer, Sec.; N. Brown, S.D.; G. H. Masters, J.D.; T. Hosgood, I.G.; T. E. Hassell, W.S.; and B. Norman, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. H. J. Wetherhill, P.M. 166; R. Hodgkinson, P.M. 358; G. H. Hill, 700; W. B. Marsh, 1437; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason), and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and after the minutes of the last meeting had been passed, Bro. Hodgkinson was unanimously elected a joining member of the lodge, and took his place on the left of the chair. Bro. Duffin was then passed to the Second Degree. That being the only work before the lodge, it was closed, and the brethren partook of refreshment. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been honoured, Bro. Past Master Davies briefly proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in response Bro. Reed, after thanking them, advocated, in the course of an eloquent speech, unity and forbearance among the brethren. The Book of the Sacred Law told them to forgive a brother seven times, and seven times seven, and the only way to show that they had the fundamental principles of Freemasonry in their hearts was to carry out the beautiful teachings of its ritual. He trusted that during the remainder of his year of office nothing between the brethren would occur to mar the excellent feeling that had hitherto existed between them, and concluded by thanking them for their support of him under the many arduous duties appertaining to the position of W.M. (applause). On account of their last meeting being one of mourning for the loss of the late Bro. J. Henderson, the W.M. proposed "The Health of Bro. Duffin" as the Initiative upon that occasion, and that brother in a most appropriate speech returned thanks. To the toast of the Past Masters of and belonging to the lodge Bros. Davies and Hodgkinson returned thanks, and Bros. Wetherhill, Hill, Marsh, and Jolly severally returned thanks for the visitors. The officers were then toasted, and Bro. Moore suitably replied, and the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings.

WHITEHAVEN.—Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge (No. 119).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, 6th inst., Bro. J. L. Paitson, W.M., in the chair. After the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed the lodge proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year. No fewer than four candidates submitted their claims to the ballot, namely, Bros. Edward Tyson, J. S. Wilson, Geo. Ryrie, and J. W. Montgomery, S.W. The first time round 30 votes were recorded in favour of Bro. Tyson, 16 for Bro. Ryrie, 11 for Bro. Montgomery, and 4 for Bro. Wilson. The second ballot showed 34 in favour of Bro. Tyson, 17 for Bro. Ryrie, and 10 for Bro. Montgomery. Bro. Tyson was thereupon declared elected to the chair, and well he deserves the honour, having for some years past been one of the most indefatigable workers in the several degrees existing in Cumberland and Westmorland; indeed, he has faced the ballot for W.M. on three successive occasions, the last time being elected by a sweeping majority. After the lodge was closed, the brethren, of whom a strong number were present, as will be perceived by the voting, adjourned to the banquetting hall, when "The Health of the W.M. elect" was proposed by Bro. W. B. Gibson P.M. 119, P.G. Sec., and drank with every mark of approval. Bro. Tyson, having replied, he fittingly gave "The Unsuccessful Candidates for the Master's Chair," which was acknowledged by Bro. Montgomery, the other two aspirants having left after lodge business. The festival of St. John the Baptist will be observed next month, when Bro. Tyson will be installed.

NORTHAMPTON.—Pomfret Lodge (No. 360).—The brethren of this lodge had a very successful meeting on Thursday, the 9th inst. There was a good attendance, and the working of the lodge was excellent. Bro. Butler Wilkins, D.P.G.M. Norths and Hunts (in the absence of the W.M.), raised Bros. E. Haynes and Sadler to the Sublime Degree, and Bros. J. T. Green, P.M., passed Bro. T. Chapman to the Second Degree. Bros. Wilkins, Green, F. Gadsby, S.W.; H. W. Parker, J.W.; and T. R. Wood, Deacon, performed their various duties in a manner that gained the commendations of the brethren present. Amongst the visitors were Bro. Wykes, W.M. of the John O'Gaunt Lodge, and Bros. Johnstone and Morris, and others.

WISBEACH.—Lodge of United Good Fellowship (No. 809).—A meeting of this lodge was held last week, when Bro. Carrick, I.P.M., was again installed W.M. for the ensuing year. Additional interest was given to the occasion by the holding of a Provincial Grand Lodge at the same time. The use of the Town Hall was kindly granted by the Mayor, and the Council chamber metamorphosed into an imposing lodge-room. At four o'clock the Craft Lodge was opened and various Masonic business transacted, after which the R.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. J. Deighton, and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cambridgeshire were received in ancient form and saluted in the customary manner. The Provincial Grand Lodge was duly opened with prayer, the roll of lodges called over, and other business transacted. The D.P.G.M. (in the unavoidable absence of the P.G.M., the Earl of Hardwicke, who is still suffering from the effects of his late accident), then appointed and invested his officers. The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the Craft Lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Carrick was regularly installed as W.M. The W.M. next appointed and invested his officers, and a hearty vote of thanks having been accorded to the Installing Master, and a handsome Past Master's jewel having been presented to Bro. Carrick, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Rose and Crown Hotel, where a first-class banquet was provided.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at Bro. Tucker's house, the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, the W.M., Bro. H. W. Butter, presiding, supported by the following officers: Past Masters W. T. Vincent, C. Coupland, P.P.G.J.W. Kent; C. A. Ellis, J. McDougall, and A. Penfold; T. D. Hayes, S.W.; W. B. Lloyd, J.W.; E. Denton, P.M. and Secretary; C. Cooke, Organist; and R. Lester, Tyler. Among the visitors and company were E. West, P.M. 1076, 1327, 1472, and P.P.G. Officer of Herts.; T. H. Field, W.M. 588 and 1436; C. J. Munroe, 1331; Jas. Ellis, 700; J. Holland, 1585; A. Weiss, 1076; C. Jolly (Freemason), and others. The lodge having been opened and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed, Bro. W. Agate and Bro. R. Turrell were, after the usual observances, raised to the Sublime Degree. The ceremony was worked most impressively. The resolutions passed at Grand Lodge respecting the Grand Orient of France were then read, and the lodge was duly closed. After supper the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were loyally accepted, and in proposing the provincial ones, the W.M. paid a tribute of respect to Lord Holmesdale, G.M., Bro. Eastes, and the rest of the G. Officers, of whom there were three present, Bros. Coupland, Denton, and Hastings. The former they esteemed as being of the brightest ornaments of their lodge, and with his name the toast was coupled. Bro. Coupland in reply said, while he thanked them heartily for their kindly reception of the toast, and the honour paid him in having his name coupled with it, he begged to draw the W.M.'s attention to the fact that while he was only a Past, there was a Present Provincial Officer present, namely, their good Bro. Hastings, and it was only right that name should be coupled with the toast, instead of his own. He, however, thanked them, and was pleased to think the time was coming when they all would have the opportunity of seeing the Grand Officers face to face, and then they would find that they were not "miths." The Provincial Grand Meeting this year would be held in the Grand Chapter room of the magnificent cathedral of Canterbury, and he trusted many of them would be present to see both the beautiful building and the Grand Master and his officers. After a graceful apology from the W.M. for not coupling Bro. Hastings' name with the toast, that brother returned thanks, and said as far as he was concerned he felt it a great personal honour to hold rank in the province, and trusted to see more of the honours come to this part of the province than had hitherto done so. He regretted that he could not visit the lodges so often as he should have liked to have done that year, but should have greater opportunities in the next. As Bro. Coupland had so well said, Lord Holmesdale was the right man in the right place, and he trusted their G.M. might long be spared to rule and direct them in Masonry. Bro. Denton said it was many years since he had anything to do with P.G. Lodge, yet he felt sure Bro. Eastes would be pleased to hear that his name, as well as that of their G.M., was respected and honoured in the Pattison Lodge. He had seen Bro. Eastes once in that lodge, and Lord Holmesdale had been twice with them, and he hoped the time would soon come when they would see them here again. Bro. Vincent then rose to propose "The Health of the W.M.," and said he wanted to wake a little of their enthusiasm, the object of which was that they might drink the health of their W.M. in a way that would be worthy of themselves and him. He was not going to praise him more that night than he had done before, nothing he could say would add to the honour and esteem they held him in, or one item to the lustre that his abilities had shed upon the lodge. As they knew, Bro. Butters had faithfully and zealously worked his way from the lowest to the highest office of it. He was an example for those who were following in his path, not only to the officer following him, but to those desirous of office. If they worked as faithfully, as earnestly, and were as courteous in their demeanour as Bro. Butters had done and been, he felt sure they would receive in their turn the same honour and distinction they now felt pleased to accord him. The toast was drank with the true Pattison "fire." Brother Butters in reply said he had responded to that toast several times, and each time with increased pleasure. It seemed to him that now they were getting towards the close of their year, they were getting to understand one another better, there was growing up among them an institution of such forbearance and brotherly love that made the position he occupied doubly pleasant and endeared to him, but that tie would soon be broken. He meant that it would be broken in this respect, that he should have to leave it and pass to the left, but even there the remembrance of their many kindnesses would be among the happiest of his life. There was a peculiarity in Freemasonry, a something that knitted them together in one bond of brotherly love, truth, and charity. It taught them and strengthened their belief in the immortality of the soul, and in the existence of a God, a Father, and a Ruler and Architect of the Universe. It had been brought before them prominently that night in the resolutions passed at Grand Lodge, and read to them by their Secretary. Those resolutions were the feelings and faith of every true Mason, and were the expressions of some thousands who made their faith in God the standpoint and foundation of their Masonry, and it was this peculiar bond of belief and faith that knitted them together in one bond of love and trust. He could not exist with Masons who expunged the name of T.G.A.O.T.U. from their ritual; if they did that they must expunge from it all love, truth, and charity, for they were the beneficent attributes of God, and implanted by him in their hearts so that they might live together in peace and unity. Nor could they forget that they were accountable to him. It was by this they made themselves happy in this world, and hopeful for the next. These were the fundamental principles of Freemasonry, without which they could not exist as a body. He then spoke of the good feeling existing in the lodge, saying it was by that good feeling alone the lodge could prosper, and likened it to a father who wanted to send his son to a good school, but first he enquired what was the feeling existing in it. Was there a union between master and scholars? Did there exist a spirit of accord and forbearance among them? Because if they did not, the education of that son would be a failure in its most important points, and so it was with a lodge—let them so work together that when enquiries were made about their school, the lodge, the reply might be that the Pattison Lodge worked together on the purest and firmest principles of brotherly love, truth, and charity with one another and with all men. The W.M. then, in an eloquent manner, proposed "The Past Masters," coupled with the names of Bros. Vincent and Ellis. Bro. Vincent said it was his privilege to respond for the Past Masters, and he did not want to resign any of his privileges at present. He was, however, only a baby in the Past Masters' school at present, and he must leave the toast in the hands of those who were older scholars than himself. In reference to a remark of the W.M., that many Past Masters left the lodge to itself as soon as they had passed the chair, he trusted he should not do so. Bro. Ellis, of whose eloquent and excellent reply we can only afford space for the outlines, said there were duties to perform in the position of a P.M. which he, at present, did not feel inclined to shake off. To him it was always a great pleasure to be present and see the W.M. do the work of the lodge in the same manner that it had been done for many years. As he looked at the book he now held in his hand, it showed his name upon its list for the last twenty years, and during that time, almost a lifetime, and life was sadly chequered, there had been many a chequered year in the life of the Pattison Lodge, but as in life there were many battles to be fought and many fields to be won, and those battles could only be fought and won by a strict and impartial course of duty, so had the Pattison Lodge fought and conquered by the strict, impartial, earnest, and honourable manner with which it had grappled with its difficulties and surmounted its danger. Man he knew was mortal and liable to err, "it was mortal to err, to forgive divine," and it was only by forgiving and forgetting injuries they could make life pleasant and worth having. There had been a speech from the chair that he had heard with pleasure, because the subject was one that gave expression to the great principles of "Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth." It struck him at the time that those principles had their emblems in the three positions taken up by the three principal officers of the lodge, the J.W., the S.W., and the chair itself. When they went into the J.W. chair they had in front of them the Rough Ashlar, which grew into perfect form at the next step. The S.W. chair there, along-side that stone, was a very important emblem; it showed them that Masonry was an advancing position. The advancement went on step by step and inch by inch to the altitude of progression. That height was only to be obtained by going into it with a good and earnest spirit. They there found a ladder, and a ladder was an emblem of climbing up, and the highest position any one could take was the position of W.M., with the unanimous consent of the whole of the lodge. There were three things that bound them together, the first was Faith, which was the first ring of the ladder; Hope was the centre; the last was Charity, and that was represented by the Master of the lodge. He then concluded by thanking the W.M. and brethren for their reception of the toast, and resumed his seat amid applause. "The Visitors" followed, and Bros. Holland, Field, and Munroe responded. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and Bro. Penfold, whose name has been especially coupled with it, and Bro. Hayes, in response, said he was at a loss to understand why his name was associated with it. However it was a great pleasure to do anything, however slight, in the service of the lodge. It was a great pleasure to be present and hear the W.M. work the ritual, more especially that which had been done that night—to him it was one of the most beautiful things in the English language. Their W.M. did not take enough credit to himself for the success of the lodge. Bro. Col. Hughes would tell them that with a good leader the men would go anywhere, whether it was to take a Redan or face the enemies' columns, and so in this lodge under the happy auspices of their W.M. the officers were, like the rest of the brethren, only too happy to follow him. Bro. Hayes was afraid they did not do so well as they ought to do. He regretted the absence of Bro. Chapman, who through ill health was unable to attend. He hoped the whole of them would work together to keep the lodge in its present efficient state. A special toast—that of "Our Absent Members," coupled with the name of Bro. Colonel Hughes, gave that brother an opportunity of expressing his regret at having so few opportunities of visiting it, and of the pleasure it gave him now and then to pass an hour with them at their social board. The host was then complimented upon his catering, and then the Tyler's toast concluded an unusually brilliant and successful gathering.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, 7th inst. There were present Bros. Jas. Black, W.M.; W. Shilton, F.M.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M., and Org.; W. F. Lamond, P.M. (Freemason); Capt. Sewell, S.W.; T. Bird, J.W.; T. C. Robinson, Sec.; H. Peacock, I.G.; T. Armstrong, R. Harrison, J. Evening, J. Fearon, J. Towers, R. Bailey, S. Ferguson, J. Borrowscale, and J. Hewson. There was also an excellent attendance of visiting brethren from two lodges in the province, namely, Bros. T. Carey, W.M.; J. W. Robinson, S.W.; E. G. Mitchell, Sec.; John Elliot, S.D.; W. Stoddart, J.D.; and T. Weatherston, all from Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371; together with Bros. Jas. Cook, P.M. and Sec., and A. Taylor, P.M., Bective Lodge, 1532. The minutes of the preceding meeting being read and confirmed, and Bros. Borrowscale and Hewson having proved their proficiency, they were entrusted and retired, when the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. On re-admission of the brothers named, they were passed to the degree of F.C. by Bro. Black, W.M. Subsequently Bro. R. Robinson, P.M., delivered the introduction to the second lecture, which was followed by the charge of the degree by Bro. Capt. Sewell, S.W. The lodge was then reduced to the First Degree, when Bro. Lamond, P.M., in accordance with notice of motion, moved that the lodge proceed to the election of a Tyler for the remainder of the current year, in the place of Bro. Potts, deceased. He proposed Bro. Hewson to fill the office, which was seconded by Bro. Bailey, and agreed to unanimously. Bro. Hewson was then invested as Tyler of the lodge. On the proclamations being submitted, Bro. Bailey proposed, and Bro. Lamond seconded, Bro. C. H. McCall as an affiliating member, from Fidelity Lodge, No. 289, Leeds. Bro. Lamond next proposed, Bro. Capt. Sewell seconded, and it was agreed, that the permanent committee be appointed to revise the lodge bye-laws, many of them having become obsolete, and others, though in black and white, never having had any existence in point of fact. After hearty good wishes had been tendered from the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed in form. An emergency meeting was held on Thursday following, when most of the members before mentioned were present, in addition being Bro. Rev. Canon, Hoskins, M.A., Chaplain. After the W.M. had opened the lodge in form, Mr. Edward Lamb Waugh, who had been previously balloted for, was admitted, and initiated into Masonry. On re-admission, the S.W. delivered the E.A.'s charge, which was followed by the explanation of the First Tracing Board by Bro. R. Robinson, P.M. The lodge was then closed in form.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—This lodge held an emergency meeting on the 7th inst. There were present Bros. John Hammond, P.M., Jordan, W.M.; Fox, W.M. Lebanon, S.W. and W.M. elect; Jessett, J.W.; Hopwood, Treas.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, &c., Secretary; Ockenden, S.D.; Wall, P.G.O. Middlesex, J.D. (Freemason); Kent, I.G.; Hunt, D.C.; J. Hurst, I.P.M., J.D. 1856. The ballot was taken for Mr. T. Cox as a candidate for initiation, and declared to be unanimous. The W.M. then with the assistance of his officers initiated Mr. J. Patey into Craft mysteries, passed Bros. J. Cole, R. Bray, and W. Beauchamp, and raised Bro. R. H. Crunden; the whole of the three arduous and impressive ceremonies being carried out by the W.M. with that care and attention to detail which has characterised his performance of the "working" responsibilities of his position throughout his year of office. In compliance with the notice on the agenda, a vote of condolence to the widow of the late deeply lamented Brother Robert Wentworth Little, P.M., Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, and honorary member of the lodge, was unanimously passed, and ordered to be drawn up by the S-Secretary and forwarded to Mrs. Little. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation, served by the caterer, Bro. Murphy, and assistants. The only toasts honoured were "The Queen" and "The Initiate." The remainder of the evening having been agreeably spent, the brethren separated until the third Thursday in October next.

HALLIFORD.—The Thames Valley Lodge (No. 1640).—A regular meeting of this popular lodge was held on Saturday, the 4th inst., at the Ship Hotel, Halliford, Middlesex, under the Mastership of Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P., and P.P.G.P., W.M. The remaining officers present were Bros. T. Burdett Yeoman, S.W.; W. Sweetland, J.W.; W. Paas, P.M., Treas.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; J. H. R. Gowan, S.D.; W. Alcock, J.D.; E. C. Hislop, I.G.; Major the Hon. O. G. Lambert, D.C. The lodge having been duly opened, the W.M., Bro. Howe, proceeded with the ceremony of the installation of Bro. T. B. Yeoman, S.W., and Master elect, which was unavoidably adjourned at the last meeting in March, in consequence of Bro. Yeoman's inability to attend through indisposition. We are glad to say the Master elect was enabled to attend the adjourned meeting, although far from being restored to his usual good health, and was duly installed in the chair of K.S., the ceremony of installation being most impressively rendered by the retiring Master. Bro. Yeoman received the most hearty congratulations of all present, with the expression of sincere hope that he might be restored to better health and enjoy a happy and prosperous year of office. The newly installed Master invested his predecessor, Bro. Howe, as his I.P.M., and appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. Sweetland, S.W.; J. H. R. Gowan, J.W.; the Rev. W. W. Martin, P.M., P.G.C. Somerset, Rector of Shepperton, Chaplain; W. Paas, P.M., Treas.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; W. Alcock, S.D.; E. C. Hislop, J.D.; Major the Hon. O. G. Lambert, I.G.; J. S. Tylers, D.C.; J. Woodstock, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. the Right Worshipful Colonel Francis Burdett, P.G. Warden, and Provincial Grand Master; Colonel James Peters, P.M., P.G.D.; J. L. Jones, P.M.; the Rev. Dr. E. H. Brette, P.M., P.G. Chaplain; Geo. Townsend, P.M.; P. Dunn; Mark N. Davis; R. Stone; S. A. Beaumont; H. Barrowes; J. R. Boon, P.M., P.G.S.B. Surrey; and E. F. Thomas. The following distinguished visitors were present:—Bros. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary of England and P.G. Treas.; J. H. Southwood, W.M. 1260; A. J. Altman, P.M. 159, and J.W. 1657; J. Seaton, P.M. 157; E. F. Barlow, P.M. 15; C. L. Anderson, 654; F. Calrow, 197. Bros. Southwood and Altman were proposed as joining members. The business agenda of the lodge having been disposed of, and the lodge duly closed, the brethren repaired to a well served banquet, under the able catering of Bro. Stone, for which the Ship is in good repute. Bro. Yeoman, the new W.M., presided over the lodge, at the banquet table, in the most able manner, and to the satisfaction of all the brethren present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were most amply proposed and responded to. In consequence of the lamented decease of Bro. R. W. Little, D.G.M. of the province, the lodge summonses appeared in mourning, and nearly all present appeared in Masonic mourning. The Tyler's toast concluded a most agreeable meeting.

RHYL.—Caradoc Lodge (No. 1674).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, at the Town Hall, Rhyl. Bro. J. Salmon, W.M., P.M. 425 and 1477, P.Z. 771, and P.P.J.G.W. of North Wales and Shropshire, presided, and there was a numerous attendance of members of the lodge and visiting brethren. Mr. S. W. Croston was initiated, and Bros. W. Williams, J. R. Jones, and J. Guest were passed to the Second Degree. On the motion of the Worshipful Master, a vote of condolence was passed to the family of the late esteemed Senior Warden of the lodge, Bro. Gilbank, whose death took place a short time back. The W.M. appointed Bro. W. H. Foulkes to the vacant chair, which gave satisfaction to all the members, Bro. Foulkes having performed the duties of Secretary with efficiency and zeal. Bro. W. H. Keating was appointed Secretary.

Royal Arch.

LEICESTER.—Chapter of Fortitude (No. 279).—The annual festival and installation meeting of this chapter was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, the 9th of May, 1878, at which a large number of members and visitors were present, amongst whom may be mentioned Comps. William Kelly, P.G. Supt.; S. S. Partridge, Z.; Robert Waite, Z. elect; George Toller, P.Z.; Clement Stretton, P.Z.; George Hodges, P.Z.; John T. Thorp, H.; R. Boughton-Smith, H. 1130; J. M. Kew, J. 1130; Clement E. Stretton, E.; T. Worthington, N.; T. A. Wykes, as P.S.; Thomas, Colman, Treas.; H. Meadows, D.C.; also Dr. Hunt, C. S. Preston, W. B. Smith, E. Newton, T. Macaulay, R. A. Barber, J. E. Hodges, Dr. Clifton, J. C. Clarke, R. S. Toller, T. R. Pickering, T. Dunn, Jan., and others. The chapter was opened in ancient form by Comp. Partridge, Z. A dispensation having been read and ordered to be entered upon the minutes, the Prov. G. Supt., Comp. Kelly, installed Comp. R. Waite in the Second and First Chairs, also Comp. J. M. Kew as H., and Comp. R. Boughton-Smith as Z. of the De Mowbray Chapter, No. 1130. The other companions having been admitted, Bro. R. J. Clarke was exalted to this degree, the ceremony being most impressively performed by Comp. Partridge, P.Z., assisted by the Prov. G. Supt. The ordinary routine business having been concluded, the chapter was closed in due form. The annual banquet was then served, after which the loyal and Masonic toasts followed in their usual order. The toast of the evening, "The M. E. Z.," was proposed and received in the most hearty manner. The Masonic zeal of Comp. Waite is so well known that the brethren have no doubt that the present prosperous state of the chapter will be maintained. In proposing the next toast a well-merited eulogium was passed by Comp. Stretton, P.Z., upon Comp. Partridge for his valuable services as First Principal during the past year; his working of all the ceremonies has been characterised by great exactness and dignity; to which Comp. Partridge suitably responded, and at the same time took the opportunity to advocate the claims of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, for which he was representing the province as Steward at the anniversary festival, to take place the following day, the result of his appeal being to raise the amount of that brother's already large list of subscriptions to the handsome sum of £223 6s.

Mark Masonry.

CHESTER.—Earl of Chester Lodge (No. 196).—A meeting of the above lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Eastgate-row, on Monday, the 6th inst., under the presidency of Bro. W. Matthews, W.M.M., and Prov. J.G.W. of Cheshire and North Wales. Bro. C. W. Duncan, 426, was advanced to the Degree of a Mark Master Mason. At the close of the business the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. HENRY MUGGERIDGE.

The Testimonial which during the last few months has been in progress for presentation to Bro. Henry Muggeridge was presented on Wednesday evening, at the Guildhall Tavern. It consisted of a purse and £300, and the following record of the fact, splendidly inscribed in illuminated character on vellum, and framed and glazed.

"This address together with a purse containing three hundred sovereigns was presented to Bro. Henry Muggeridge, P.M., P.Z., etc., at a dinner held in his honour at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, on Wednesday, the 15th of May, 1878, by a large number of the Fraternity as a token of their esteem and regard for his great services to Freemasonry as a Preceptor, and in testimony of their high appreciation of his great zeal and ability on behalf of Masonic charity and Freemasonry in general.—Chairman, S. G. Myers; Treasurer, E. M. Hubbard; Secretary, F. Fellows."

The following is the list of subscribers to the testimonial with the amount contributed by each:—

The presentation was preceded by a supper, at which Bro. S. G. Myers, W.M.; 715, presided, the other brethren present being Bros. Benj. Head, Hyde Pullen, J. Bagot Scriven, A. H. Diaper, J. Jonas, W. J. Crossfield, W.

Birdseye, E. Phillips, J. H. Hewett, J. H. Weedon, F. Fellows, (Hon. Sec.); E. F. Storr, J. H. Townend, W. F. Kibble, A. Sack, Walter Hopekirk, C. W. Gray, John Canham, J. R. Jones, G. H. Hoyle, Algernon Austen, Alan C. Wylie, J. Forsyth, C. J. Hogg, H. Birdseye, E. H. Hubbard (Treasurer), H. Watts, T. R. Eames, Geo. Darnell, Geo. Phythian, and H. Massey (Freemason).

After supper the business of the evening was commenced.

The toasts of "The Queen" and "The Prince and Princess of Wales" and the other members of the Royal Family," having been duly honoured, the Chairman proposed that of "The Pro. and Deputy G. Master, and the Grand Officers," remarking, that he did not know before that evening, that he should have the opportunity of proposing the toast in the presence of any of the Grand Officers. Two of them however, have had the goodness to honour the Muggeridge Testimonial meeting, with their company.

Bro. Benj. Head, P.G.D., responded, and after acknowledging the toast on behalf of the Grand Officers, said that the greatest part of his and Bro. Pullen's pleasure that day was not their being considered Grand Officers, but their having the opportunity to do honour to their worthy friend, Bro. Muggeridge. This was a meeting of love and kindness, to a dear old friend, and it was one that he should recollect with pleasure as long as he lived.

The Chairman then rose to propose the toast of the evening, "Bro. H. Muggeridge" and was received with loud and long continued applause. He said:—Brethren,—We have met on the present occasion to perform a most interesting and pleasant duty—viz., to present to our revered and esteemed Bro. Muggeridge the testimonial which has been collected from some of his many friends and admirers. It has fallen to my happy lot to have been selected by the committee of that Testimonial Fund to have the honour, on behalf of yourselves and the other subscribers, to carry out that task, and I know of no other circumstance which could have afforded me greater gratification. My dear Bro. Muggeridge, I trust you will believe that I have a feeling far stronger even than that of pleasure in presenting to you the testimonial which, as a tribute of respect and esteem, has been collected for you, and which I am proud and happy to say has assumed the form of a purse containing £300—a sum comparatively large in amount but too small for your great deserving, and if I venture at the same time to address a few words to you, believe me I do so with all respect, and I hope with a due regard to your feelings. I wish to be permitted to say that if ever a man deserved well of his fellow men—more especially his fellow Masons—you are that man. Your life has been devoted to the good of Masonry and the welfare of your brethren, and you stand out as a bright example of disinterestedness and self-sacrifice for the glorious cause of our brotherhood. With your great talents and high attainments you might well have achieved a position bringing greater worldly profit and advantage to yourself, but you gave up all, that Masonry might be benefited and its true lights disseminated and made clear to all who know you or came within your beneficial influence. In the cause of charity you justly occupy a high pre-eminence. You are Vice-Patron of each of our three great and noble charities. You have worked hard for many many years as Preceptor of, and have kept up, your most excellent lodge of instruction—not alone that Masons might be instructed, but that you might accumulate large funds—and you have so accumulated them, not one shilling for yourself, although you might well have so used them, but have applied all to the holy cause of charity—have devoted them to the noblest objects which the human mind can conceive—namely, the education and relief of your fellow creatures. You have been, and still are, as a fountain pure and undefiled, at which all who come for Masonic lore and knowledge were welcome, and were supplied with and received all the benefits to be derived from your great knowledge and able tuition. You have greatly aided in rescuing numberless orphans of both sexes from a state of penury and ignorance—perhaps degradation—and many widows left destitute at the time of their bereavement, and in their trouble and tribulation, have come to you, have found help and consolation, and been lifted out of their misery. These are matters, amongst others, of which you might justly be proud, if you could be so; these and your general amenity and courtesy to all are matters which have endeared you to your brethren, and all who have been so fortunate as to know you, and to all you have always readily dispensed Masonic knowledge and help to enable them to fulfil their important duties in the Craft. I am sure the brethren will agree with me when I say that these observations are not mere mouth praise but are solemn truths, and you may well look back to your past life with feelings of gratified pride. You have justly earned a world-wide fame, and your name and good reputation have travelled to and been known in every part of the globe where English Masonry is practised. Bro. Muggeridge, I ask you on behalf of the subscribers to accept this testimonial as a small token of the love and regard of your brethren, and may it help to cheer you in that partial retirement you have chosen, happy, and still creating happiness in the bosom of your family, still respected by all who know you. May the Great Architect of the Universe shower down his blessings on you, and may you be spared for many years to continue your career of usefulness and beneficence, but still to enjoy the repose you have so hardly and so justly entitled yourself to. I may mention that this handsome purse and also this beautiful inscription on vellum, commemorating the occasion, have both been most kindly presented by our excellent Bro. George Kenning. Brethren, I greatly fear that I have trespassed too long upon your time and patience; the theme, however, was one, to my mind, that might well excuse me. I will conclude by adapting a quotation, with which I am sure you will agree, and say with me that Bro. Muggeridge is a man, take him for all and all, we ne'er shall look upon his like again. I now call upon you, brethren, to be upstanding, and sincerely and heartily drink to the health, long life, and prosperity of our dear Bro. Muggeridge, Mrs. Muggeridge, and family.

Bro. Henry Muggeridge, who, on rising to reply, was greeted with several rounds of cheering, said:—Bro. Chairman and brethren,—Ah! now comes the difficulty. Yes, it is all very pleasant for me to listen to the excellent speech our Worshipful Chairman made, and, Worshipful Chairman, if I possessed the power of speech that you do, and of which you have given such a proof in the address you have just delivered, I should be able to get out of my difficulty in acknowledging the kind manner in which my health has been proposed and received very easily indeed, but as I know I do not possess that power (and I am not fool enough to rush in where an angel would fear to tread) I shall not attempt to make a speech at all, but shall merely talk to you in my usual style. That is all I shall attempt to do, and I think you will all agree with me that I act with some degree of wisdom in pursuing that course. Let me say, Brother Chairman and brethren, that I am delighted with the very kind things that you have said, and also at seeing such an excellent meeting as this is. I know the only motives that have prompted the brethren to come are wishes and desires to do honour to me, and I assure you I highly appreciate their kindness. There are some very old friends here, and I particularly allude to our Bros. Head and Hyde Pullen. There are some more recent, but equally staunch friends of mine, I know, and I assure you, that in the first place I do thank the promoters of this testimonial, and the committee they have formed, and also the officers that committee have appointed to carry out their views; and, as I know, the whole of those officers and the committee have done their self-imposed duty in an admirable manner. I shall not mention a single individual's name; as all have done well it would be wrong to mention one name unless I mentioned the rest. I do say, however, and I say it most emphatically, that from what I have heard (and I could not help hearing of it, because the proceedings of that committee have been published in the Freemason, which has kept me pretty well posted up in everything the committee has been doing) all the brethren have done well what they have done and have to the utmost of their power contributed to the success of this testimonial. They have made it a success and I heartily thank them for what they have done. I also not only thank those brethren who are present who have responded to the appeal of the Committee, but I thank those who are absent who have likewise responded. I wish the brethren also to know that I most sincerely and emphatically own as much pleasure with the smaller amounts given by some of the brethren as with the larger amounts so kindly and generously given by others. I trust that those who have given the large amounts will not think that I do not fully appreciate their kindness, I do, fully and to the greatest extent; but we all know, I am sure, that the widow's mite was highly appreciated in a certain quarter. Therefore, I hope and trust that those who have given the large amounts will not feel displeased with me for making an allusion to those who have given smaller amounts. There is one thing that Bro. Hubbuck who sits next to me, reminds me of, which is, that we are deeply indebted to one brother present, and that is our brother whose initials are the same as my own, Bro. Henry Massey, who has kindly attended here for the purpose of reporting our proceedings. I am sure I am very pleased to see him here, and I am also very pleased with and grateful to the proprietor of the Freemason paper for what he has done in the columns of that journal, which is sent all over the world. And here, perhaps, I may make a little digression, and inform you that the beautiful testimonial on vellum, with its handsome frame, as well as the elegant purse in which your subscriptions are contained, are the gift of and have been presented by the proprietor of the Freemason. (Cheers.) Brethren, I scarcely know, as I mentioned before, what to say. I told you I do not possess the eloquence of Bro. Myers, but at the same time I think I have told you that I fully appreciate what you have done. Without indulging in any fulsome language I say I am pleased with the promoters of the testimonial. I am grateful to the committee, the officers, to all who are here present, and to those who are absent, who had responded to the appeal of the Committee. Well now, brethren, I want to tell you something else. This is a very beautiful purse. I have not seen it before to-day; but what do you think I am going to do with it? I am going to give Mrs. Muggeridge the purse, and I am going to keep the money myself (Laughter.) I know it is the practice of the profession of which our Worshipful Chairman is so distinguished an ornament to pursue that course; they keep the oyster themselves and give the shells to their clients. And a very proper way too, isn't it. To prove to you that I am quite right, I may tell you that by keeping the money myself and giving Mrs. Muggeridge the purse, the testimonial will be more lasting, as I have no doubt, the purse will be existence when the contents have vanished into thin air. Now, this splendid testimonial took its origin in the Stability Lodge of Instruction, at which many of you know I have been a constant attendant for 39 years. We recently had our anniversary festival at the Cannon Street Hotel, and a very great success it was. I was delighted with it. Our Brother Philbrick, Q.C., Recorder of Colchester, was our chairman, and everything went off nicely, and I was very much pleased with my staff who worked on that occasion. They worked well; and I think all the brethren who were then present must have been pleased with the whole affair, with the working, with the banquet, with the music—there was not a single hitch; and I was very much pleased indeed. I was rather disappointed with the numbers who attended—not for my own sake (that did not matter at all), but as an act of justice to the management to the Cannon Street Hotel. I must express my regret that there were not more present. I do assure you, and I do it most truthfully, that I am deeply indebted to the Cannon Street Hotel, on many occasions. They have always behaved to me in the most liberal manner. On that occasion I had 260 names on my list. I ordered supper for 120. I did not have more than 100; and although I had ordered for 120 they only charged me 103. I merely mention that as an act of justice. No doubt the thinness in numbers there occurred from different causes. In the first place, it was Easter week. Easter is a moveable feast; ours is a settled feast always; it takes place on the last Friday in April. It might not only be Easter week, but it might be other causes which prevented a larger number being present. Perhaps it was my falling off—my prestige might be somewhat on the wane; and perhaps some of the brethren might have told me so, only they had the example of Gil Blas and the Archbishop of Toledo before their eyes; and therefore they were afraid to mention it to me. But at the same time I must tell you, getting up that meeting certainly does give me a great deal of trouble; and as the responsibility is somewhat considerable, and brethren live out of town so much now, I do not think in the future I shall get up another. I am not going to desert the Stability Lodge of Instruction. I intend to carry that on (God willing) in the future as I have done in the past; and probably at the close of the session some of my good friends, Bro. Henry Birdseye among the rest, may exert themselves to get up a small meeting. I say "small" in comparison; but I may say I do not think I shall attempt another in future. You know, brethren, all things must come to a close. Everything which is grand in nature and beautiful in art must perish—

The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve;
And, like the baseless fabric of a vision,
Leave not a rack behind.

Brethren, I do not mean to tell you that this mortal frame is getting "small by degrees and beautifully less;" I do not mean to tell you that I am particularly feeble—especially at the banquet table (laughter); but I do say this, that I am getting dreadfully lazy, and I have unmistakable signs of a desire to enjoy the otium cum dignitate, and do nothing at all. That is really my feeling; and although I shall endeavour to promote the prosperity and good working of the Stability Lodge of Instruction at its ordinary meetings I do not think I shall attempt to get up another of those big meetings at the Cannon Street Hotel again. There is one thing I should like to say before I sit down. I know I am trespassing on your time (No, no); but I do want to say what I think on this occasion. I told you, I do not want to mention any individual's name in praise, because all of them have done well; but I do want to mention the name of one lodge, and that is my mother lodge, the Lion and Lamb Lodge, 192. I am the father of that lodge, only, owing to circumstances, I have not had the pleasure of being at that lodge for the last three or four years, but yet during my absence they have had the goodness and the kindness to vote unanimously ten guineas towards this fund. You will excuse me making an exception to the rule I have laid down in mentioning that lodge. I do so because I think it is a very kind action, and I do feel that their having done that, it becomes a duty of mine to endeavour by all possible means to attend at their next regular meeting, which I believe is in October, to return them my thanks for what they have done, although from circumstances I cannot go there regularly. I am afraid I have tired you very much indeed. I have told you what I am going to do—to give Mrs. Muggeridge the purse, and keep the money myself. That is an equal distribution, and I am sure our Bro. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, if he had been here, would have said I was quite right. Excuse me for having trespassed so long on your time, and accept my sincere thanks for what you have done. As I said before, I not only thank you who are present, but I wish it to go forth that I also thank those who are absent. (Great cheering.)

Bro. Hubbuck (Treasurer of the Testimonial Fund) proposed "The Health of the Chairman." The brethren, he said, had spent a very pleasant evening, and the Chairman had done his duty most efficiently. He had explained to the brethren the beauties of Bro. Muggeridge's character in a way which they must all endorse. Although the brethren could not all explain their ideas with the same fluency as the Chairman, they were able to express their thanks to him for the trouble he had taken in coming to preside over them, and for the constancy with which he attended the meetings of the Committee. The success of the testimonial was very much, owing to the Chairman's exertions, and for that, and for his presidency over the present meeting, the brethren would express their thanks by drinking his health most heartily.

The Chairman, in reply, said: I kept you too long in the speech I delivered to you just now to trouble you much again, but still I may be allowed to say that I am very highly flattered at the manner in which Bro. Hubbuck has thought proper to speak of me. I may tell you what you probably all know that Bro. Hubbuck is not the man to say that which he does not mean, and although he seemed to deplore his want of eloquence, as he called it, I think he was very eloquent; certainly he spoke in a very flowery kind of way about me. I assure you that what I have done upon this occasion, which has been enlarged upon by Bro. Hubbuck, has been simply my duty in so worthy a cause. I have done no more than, and certainly not so much as, other members of the Committee. However, I have done that which every brother would have done at various times to further the interests of Bro. Muggeridge. I can only say again that I am pleased and grateful for the flattering way in which I have been spoken of, and I hope all of you have been satisfied to-night.

The Chairman next said the toast which I have now the honour of bringing before you is one which I know you will be glad to honour, "The Treasurer" of this Fund. It is only necessary to know Bro. Hubbuck to respect him; but as regards the business of this Fund, I may tell all those who know him, (he said something about its success being due to me) let me tell you most emphatically the success of this matter has been very largely owing to himself, because of the respectability which his name threw around it. It is due to Bro. Hubbuck that I should ask you to drink his very good health. I was saying that he had a highly respectable name. That I can assure you had a great influence upon the success of the undertaking and upon the subscriptions which came in. Bro. Hubbuck is a good Mason, and he is one of the best friends among the very numerous friends which Bro. Muggeridge possesses. Bro. Muggeridge or any other man is fortunate in possessing a friend of such sterling qualities and such downright honesty of feeling as Bro. Hubbuck. Without his highly respectable name on the list, his having been Treasurer, his having contributed in the way he did to this fund, we certainly should not have met with the success we have.

Bro. Hubbuck in reply said: You have taken me quite by surprise. I, as you very well remarked, take a great interest in having Bro. Muggeridge as one of my friends. I may say that the success of this fund was very much due to our indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Fellows, and Bro. Birdseye, and two or three more who regularly attended the meetings of the Committee. I unfortunately had a family bereavement, which prevented me continuing my attendance on the alternate Thursday. From time to time I heard of the success of the undertaking, with which I was very much pleased. We must all appreciate the kindness that our Bro. George Kenning showed to the members of the Committee in allowing us to meet at his premises whenever we chose. He attended the meetings almost invariably, and it was only other pressing engagements which prevented his being on the Committee. He has, however, afforded us most valuable assistance by a large amount of Masonic information as to the brethren of the Craft, and we ought to thank him for the services he has rendered to us. We were rather damped at first in our energy by a want of response to our appeal for assistance, but we kept on persevering, and we arrived at the happy results which our worthy chairman has announced to you to-day. I have to thank you heartily for the very flattering terms in which you, Mr. Chairman, have proposed my health, and I hope I shall always act so as to continue to receive the same good feeling that you have expressed towards me this evening.

The Chairman, in proposing "The Health of Bro. Francis Fellows, Secretary," said, the next toast is that of "The Health of our most excellent brother, and kind-hearted Secretary to this Testimonial, Bro. Francis Fellows." It is all very well for us to talk about what we have done, and what the Secretary has done, and what this man has done and that man has done; but let me tell you that all the work of this Committee has been done by Bro. Fellows. And how, although we flatter each other in our speeches about the success being due to this or to that, I believe the real and actual success of this undertaking is due to the indefatigable exertions of our good brother, the Secretary to this Testimonial. Bro. Fellows is a man largely engaged in business, and I know that his time is nearly all occupied, and that he has scarcely any time for his own personal matters. Notwithstanding that he used every exertion, and he managed so as to leave no stone unturned, and to make this Testimonial a successful one. The number of letters he must have written, the trouble he must have taken to correspond with people about their subscriptions, entitle him to our respect and gratitude. I may tell you, above all, that what Bro. Fellows did he did for love, and the expenses which he was compelled to be out of his own pocket were so large in comparison with those taken out of the subscriptions that the amount contributed to the testimonial was scarcely lessened. If it had not been for Bro. Fellows what has been done would not have been done half so well, and it would have entailed an expense on the funds which would very much have deteriorated it and rendered it much less in the amount our dear Bro. Muggeridge would have had to receive. I, therefore, say that the substantial part of this work is due to Bro. Fellows, and I do hope the Committee will all agree with me. They must do so; but I think although I have feebly explained it, I have done so sufficiently to show the great services and the great value of the services of Bro. Fellows in the interest of Bro. Muggeridge. Bro. Fellows, I personally thank you, for the great services you have rendered to the Committee by taking this in hand, and I hope all the brethren will cordially agree with me.

Bro. Francis Fellows, (Secretary) in replying said: Most worthy chairman and brethren, to you, Bro. Myers, I have a few words to say. First of all I am exceedingly obliged to you for the very kind way in which you have put my name forward to the brethren, the subscribers present to the Henry Muggeridge Testimonial; but I certainly myself consider you have flattered me too much. I certainly undertook this as one of the promoters of the Testimonial. I was the honorary Secretary, and I have looked upon the work of the office as a labour of love from its commencement to the end. It certainly was a long time in hand; but I feel that if it had lasted 6 months longer we could have doubled the amount. I must say that in the winter season, I was somewhat troubled with it because my health failed me, and I felt when I had to be absent from Committee meetings I should have been there. However, it has been no neglect of mine that the amount has not been so much as I should have liked. I beg to thank you for the way in which you have proposed my health, but I ought to say that if it had not been for the working Committee the honorary Secretary would have been no where. I have been materially assisted by them on all occasions, not only by their advice, but by their ready assistance.

The Chairman then said. Every one on the Committee had his heart in the undertaking; still, those who acted as officers, either permanently or temporarily, may be mentioned without any disrespect to the others, or without any other brother of the committee feeling he had been left out. I might go on for a length of time, but that might be disagreeable to you, but I really feel I should be doing injustice if I did not ask you to drink to the very good health of one brother. I very much regret, and I have no doubt I am doing wrong in advertising to it; but there was a time when by the will of providence our dear friend, Bro. Hubbuck, was unable to do the duties of Treasurer for a time, and at that time our Bro. Birdseye stepped forward and took upon himself the duties of Treasurer to relieve Bro. Hubbuck, who as soon as his feelings would allow him came back to his original position. Bro. Birdseye did all that was necessary, not only in receiving money, (that however was not a very difficult task), but in going to brethren to collect money. Bro. Birdseye is a great favourite of Bro. Muggeridge, and I believe helps to spoil him, but for the discharge of his duties as a man and a brother, in this matter I think I shall be justified and excused in bringing his name before you.

Bro. Birdseye said, I am rather disappointed that Bro. Myers has selected me, because all the members of the committee have worked so hard and so well in order to make this testimonial a success, that I think it is almost a pity he should have singled out me. When Bro. Hubbuck was unable to attend to his duties of Treasurer, I stepped forward; but any other member would have done the same as I did under the circumstances. We were drawing near to a close at the time, and we were very anxious that the money should be got in. I with a great deal of pleasure took the position of Assistant Treasurer on that occasion. If my services have been of any assistance to the fund, I am amply repaid, because most of you know that to our dear old friend Bro. Muggeridge, I owe all my knowledge in Masonry; and I have a large amount of esteem and love for him, for the kindness with which he has treated me in Masonry. Among the members who got up this committee were those who derived knowledge and instruction from Bro. Muggeridge, and therefore with these, as it was with me, it has been a labour of love. I am delighted that we have obtained the amount we have. I am perhaps a little disappointed we have not more, but still I am delighted we have got so much. For whatever services I may have rendered I am amply repaid by the gratification I feel in having the love of Bro. Muggeridge.

The Chairman then said, I have one more toast to propose to you, "The Health of Bro. George Kenning," and I should really be ashamed if we separated to-night without drinking it and without my telling you of the immense services which he has rendered to us committee men in the cause of our dear brother here, not only by his great kindness but by his great liberality. I may tell you that although Bro. Hubbuck has adverted to it in his excellent reply, this committee was greatly helped in what it had to do by having most excellent accommodation at Bro. Kenning's rooms for the purpose of the meeting, and for the purpose of having everything at hand ready to transact the business of this committee. And I may tell you more. It is not a very serious matter, that there always was a full box of cigars at every meeting, which was not so full when we left. But when I tell you that the handsome purse, and that most beautiful testimonial on vellum, elegantly framed, were the free gifts of Bro. Kenning, that Bro. Kenning also gave a most liberal subscription, that Bro. Kenning's name was also a great recommendation and threw around the subject of the testimonial a bona fides and air of its respectability which encouraged many brethren, and perhaps many lodges in the knowledge that the whole thing was right and proper, and that if it had not been, Bro. Kenning would have had nothing to do with it, you will perceive that though he is absent he ought not to be forgotten to-night. On the contrary we ought to think well of him, and to let him see that we appreciate what he has done. Although he is not here, I hope his representative will convey to him our expressions of thanks.

Bro. H. Massey promised to represent to Bro. Kenning what the worthy Chairman had said, and the brethren then separated.

The marriage of the Earl of Lonsdale and the Lady Gladys Herbert, daughter of Lady Herbert of Lea, and sister of the Earl of Pembroke, which was originally fixed for the 18th inst., is postponed, owing to Lord Lonsdale's indisposition.

ZEBRAS FOR AFRICA.—The manager of the Jardin d'Acclimatation at Paris has directed the attention of African explorers to the zebra, as a beast of burden, better suited to the climate than any of our domesticated animals, not even excepting the ass. Several zebras, now under his charge, have been successfully broken in, and M. de Semellé, whose project of crossing Africa from the mouth of the Niger to the east coast has been referred to by us, may possibly make use of this novel beast of burden.—Athenaeum

MANSION HOUSE.—The Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress will entertain at the Mansion House, her Majesty's Judges, on Friday, June 28, and the Archbishops and Bishops on Wednesday, July 3. The date of the banquet to her Majesty's Ministers has not yet been fixed. A ball in honour of the Mayors and Mayoresses of the United Kingdom will be given on Tuesday, June 25.

Reviews.

MY HOLIDAY—WHERE SHALL I SPEND IT? Sampson Low and Maaston, 188, Fleet-street.

This is a very useful and instructive publication, as it places before us those various seaside resorts of the British public which in July and August have such attractions for all ages and all conditions. The book also tells us of the mineral waters, (not Seltzer, Appollinaris, or Taunus), and the other resorts of our country, and is very pleasant reading, and gives a great deal of valuable information. No one can invest a shilling more to the purpose who patronises this useful handbook. We fancy that it will be much studied this year.

BYE-LAWS OF THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY CHAPTER OF SOV. PRINCES ROSE CROIX. Edited by Bro. HUGH H. RIACH.

This little volume, which has been kindly sent to us, is one of the most neatly printed books we have seen for some time. It is most admirably "got up," and we are greatly pleased with its most opportune appearance. It is printed in red, and is quite pleasurable to read. No one can fail to be struck and gratified with it.

BYE-LAWS OF THE ALDERSGATE LODGE, No. 1657.

This little collection of bye-laws of a young but distinguished lodge is also a most neat production, being admirably printed in blue. We are glad to see so much pains bestowed on bye-law printing, though we confess we think that the very small size is a mistake, and that the bye-laws had better be printed in a larger form. The printing of these last bye-laws, like the former collection, cannot be surpassed.

SAINT NICHOLAS. Scribner, U.S. Sampson Low and Marston, London.

This is a most charming magazine for our young people, which we heartily commend to the notice of all who cater for the youthful mind. It is full of interest, and is undoubtedly unequalled as a specimen of literature adapted to the taste and amusement of youth.

NOTES ON THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION. By Bro. JOHN JOSEPH LAKE. S. Tinsley, 10, Southampton-street, Strand.

The Freemason being purely a non-controversial paper cannot enter into subjects which may fairly impinge on denominational views.

PLANT CATALOGUE for 1878. Dick Radclyffe and Co., 129, High Holborn.

This taking little work is before us once more, and we hail it with pleasure and peruse it with satisfaction. To those who have the happiness of possessing a garden the help of Messrs. Dick Radclyffe is most important and invaluable, as their offers are bona fide, and their supply of garden requirements is most genuine and satisfactory. We call our readers' attention to this admirable catalogue.

THE PANTILE PAPERS. Stiddulph and Bellamy, Tunbridge Wells.

This is a new magazine and candidate for public favour, which has reached its third number, is well printed, and very readable. It seems to have met with success so far, and we wish it all prosperity. It is, like all our modern serials, a mixture of fiction and information, and will no doubt enlist many readers.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION AND THE FRENCH FREEMASONS.

We are requested to publish the following:—
GRAND ORIENT DE FRANCE.

O. de Paris, le 10th Mai, 1878. (s. v.)

A Monsieur le Directeur du Journal The Freemason, à Londres.

Monsieur et Très Cher Frère,

Permettez-moi d'avoir recours à votre extrême obligeance pour porter à la connaissance des francs-maçons étrangers que, pendant toute la durée de l'Exposition Universelle, le Grand Orient de France mettra à leur disposition, les salons du 1er étage de son Hotel, 16, rue Cadet. Les Maçons de tous les pays y trouveront, avec l'accueil le plus empressé et le plus fraternel, tous les renseignements dont ils pourraient avoir besoin et toutes les facilités pour faire leur correspondance.

Je vous serai très reconnaissant, Monsieur et Très Cher Frère, de vouloir bien donner la publicité de votre estimable journal à cette information, et je vous prie d'agréer, avec mes remerciements anticipés, l'assurance de mes sentiments les plus distingués.

Le Chef du Secrétariat du Grand Orient de France.

THEVENOT.

COMMUNIQUE.

(From a Correspondent.)

Bro. Hedge's Committee met on Wednesday, when new names were given in for the Committee and fresh promises of support received. The next meeting takes place next Wednesday.—See Advertisement.

At the annual meeting of the London and Lancashire Life Assurance Company on Tuesday, the new assurances for the year 1877 were reported as £427,095, in sums assured under 1275 policies, and producing a new premium income of £13,130 7s. 10d. The net premium income amounted to £55,846 9s. 5d. and the total funds to £151,786 6s. 5d.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

It has been definitely arranged that their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales will visit Nottingham on Wednesday, July 3, for the purpose of opening the Castle as an Industrial and Art Museum.

Paintings of the Franco-Prussian War are excluded from the Paris Salon, as well as from the Exhibition, so careful are the Gallic Fine Art authorities not to wound the feelings of their German visitors. French military painters are highly indignant at the prohibition, as the notice comes too late for them to send in other subjects, and many noted artists will thus not be represented either at the Champ de Mars or at the Palais de l'Industrie. They have accordingly organised a special Exhibition of the prohibited war scenes. The Salon, by the way, will not close until August 19.

The Restoration or Destruction of the Paris Tuileries has been referred to a special Commission, and it has been decided to restore the wing of the palace connecting the Pavillons de Flore and de Marsan, and use it as a museum of metropolitan art, at the cost of £16,000. Ancient Parisian art, the five pictures left to the State by the Comtesse Duchatel have been placed in a special room at the Paris Louvre, ornamented by a bust of the Count. The pictures are Ingres' "Sphinx" and "Source," a Virgin by Memline, and two portraits by Antonio Moro.

Mr. Ruskin has entirely recovered from his illness, and is now busy revising and enlarging the Notes by which he has illustrated the Exhibition of his Turner Drawings. Regarding Turner, his two paintings, "Going to the Ball" and "Returning from the Ball, San Martino, Venice," which were exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1846, were sold on Saturday for £1260 apiece. Six years ago, at the Gillott sale, the former picture brought £1785, and the latter £1575.

MUSICAL EDUCATION OF WOMEN.—A further experiment in this direction has been made by the Council of Trinity College, London, since that body first opened to women its higher examinations in musical theory and practice. Courses of lectures on harmony and composition have been commenced by the lecturer, Mr. Humphrey Stark, Mus.B., New College, Oxford, at the College-house in Weymouth-street, and are being continued with encouraging success. The lecturer reports that the progress of the ladies attending these lectures has been more than satisfactory, and in every respect equal to that of the male students of the college.

An improved Telephone has been constructed by a German postal official, which is declared by the Berliner Tageblatt to be a great advance on that of Dr. Bell. Galvanic electricity is employed in the new apparatus instead of induced currents, and the loudness of the sound can be so regulated as to make it audible, not only to the ear placed close to the reproducing disc, but throughout a large room.

The School Board of London have, on the application of the National Lifeboat Institution, decided to instruct all their scholars, now numbering 111,000, boys and girls, in its important directions for the restoration of the apparently drowned.

According to the British Medical Journal, Professor Gubler has discovered that a vegetable diet is a principal cause of the cretaceous degeneration of the arteries. This, he thinks, is proved by the frequency of cretaceous arteries amongst the French peasants at the early age of forty, and also amongst Trappist Monks.

Mr. J. J. Mechi writes to the Times that harvest prospects continue for all crops most promising. An ample supply of sunshine preceding and following sufficient moisture has, especially on land drained naturally or artificially, so warmed the soil that its heat has both stimulated vegetable growth and protected it from night frosts, which last year, during early May, so ruined our fruits and damaged other crops. Clover, tares, and permanent pasture promise abundant hay crops, while peas, beans, barley, oats, and wheat are in full plant and growth. Mangel-wurzel come up quickly, and seed growers look for a favourable crop. Taken as a whole, he never saw our crops look more promising and early. Many corn crops, especially where highly farmed and too thickly sown, are likely to be prematurely laid, unless flagged in good time.

A few days ago some children who were playing near the Old Commodore Tavern, Poplar, on ground formerly occupied by two houses, disturbed part of an old shed which had been left standing, and brought to light a number of packages. These contained what appeared to be dirty metal discs, and the children scattered them about on the ground. A boy, however, soon discovered that they were gold, and filled his pockets with them. The news got abroad, and a crowd of persons assembled to collect as much of the treasure as remained. It is said that several hundred pieces of gold, corresponding in size to six-pences, shillings, and half-crowns, were taken away. They are believed to be coins of various reigns, and the dates upon them are stated to range from 1060 to 1680.

Numerous telegrams have been received from different parts of the world of satisfactory observations having been made of the transit of Mercury on Monday week. At the Meudon Observatory M. Janssen was able to perceive Mercury before its entrance on to the solar disc—a phenomenon also observed in Japan in 1874—proving, it is said, the existence of a vast gaseous atmosphere round the sun, a discovery made M. Janssen in 1871, and styled by him "a coronal atmosphere." He also obtained a spectrum analysis of Mercury's atmosphere, the composition of which is still unknown, and succeeded in getting a photograph of the planet a quarter of an hour after the transit commenced. Its real diameter may, therefore, be ascertained.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS to ensure insertion in current week's issue should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

Answers to Correspondents.

Bro. Burger's letter is too personal for our pages. He has quite misunderstood the drift of the words he quotes, which did not and could not refer to himself.

We do not think it well to publish "Querist's" letter, as the Freemason is officially neutral in the contest.

J. D.—In our next.

An interesting note by Comp. Hughan on the Royal Arch will appear in next Freemason; and also a communication from "Masonic Student," about a "Cole's List of Lodges," of 1770.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

The last anniversary of this excellent Institution, under the able presidency of Lord Carnarvon, has resulted in the return of £8600, in round numbers. After the large sums we have been accustomed to, there may seem to some, at first sight, a slight retrogression, a partial falling off, in our charitable efforts and receipts. But we are inclined to believe that such a view is altogether an erroneous one. We fancy that the diminution, such as it is, is easily accounted for. Firstly, the slackness of trade; secondly, the fact that the Girls' School has a large amount of funded property, which indisposes many to make exertions for so prosperous a charity, the more so as they think that the Institution has a large amount of property on which to fall back in case of emergency. But, as Lord Carnarvon well pointed out, such is not a generous or a Masonic appreciation of the real state of the case. True it is that the Girls' School has about £40,000 in funded property, but then the interest arising from the capital makes up part of its necessary income. It has £150 per annum from Grand Lodge, it has the income of the capital, and donations and subscriptions; but it has a normal expenditure of something like £10,000 to meet, and it is therefore entirely dependent, like the other Charities, on its Annual Festival for the great bulk of its absolutely required income. It has lately made some needful increase of its buildings, and some judicious purchases of adjacent property, under the skilful direction and prevision of Bro. Colonel Creaton, and it has 200 girls to educate. It therefore claims, as we feel sure that it will receive, the liberal and loyal support of our most benevolent Craft. Indeed, we may be permitted to say, that the amount of Friday last, which some deem small, would, a few years ago, have been considered impossible, and when we compare the results of the last few years, (a development of the Provincial movement which commenced about 1859), we may well be astonished and proud at the contrast. And yet some reflections force themselves upon us, when we consider carefully the last return of the Stewards, for the Girls' School which we think it well to communicate in all frankness and fairness to our many readers. On the last occasion the metropolis beat the provinces by about £900 the former collecting £4784, the latter £3852. It is very remarkable that this large amount has been sent up by 85 London lodges and chapters, and 73 provincial lodges and chapters, though many lodges send up more than one Steward, and one lodge sends up 19, (74), 139 sends up 8; 276, 3; 750, 2; and No. 4, 2; and others might be named. The metropolitan lodge which remits the largest amount is 1642, which is credited with £276 5s. 8d. Bro. W. Stephens, Steward. The next is 1628, Bro. Geo. Everett, Steward, £176 8s.; and the next is No. 1388, Bro. Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, Steward, £115; and the next is No. 4, our worthy Grand Registrar and Captain Bennett being Stewards, £105. In the provinces, West Yorkshire, ever zealous, comes up with the goodly amount of £900 and twenty-four Stewards. Somersetshire follows with £318 3s., and Wiltshire succeeds with £267 5s. South Wales (Eastern Division) closely presses upon Wiltshire with £236 5s., and Leicestershire is not far behind with £233 16s. Gloucestershire is to the "fore" with £229 16s. 6d., and Berks and Bucks appear with £217 5s.; while Warwickshire, represented by one good Lodge No. 74, (let us note this), gallantly advances with £207 18s. Middlesex next appears with £177 8s. 6d., Hampshire and the Isle of Wight produce £117 12s., South Wales, East Division, £117, while Dorsetshire sends up £116 14s. from the Royal Arch Masons; and Cheshire ends the list, which we think it needful to mention, with £104 8s. There are many provinces which send up less than £100, which serve to swell the list meritoriously, but we always think that when the amount exceeds £100, it displays alike praiseworthy and valuable exertions, and deserves remembrance accordingly, but under that amount there seems to us, though we may be quite wrong, nothing that requires at any rate special note or commendation. Two provinces are conspicuous by their absence, Cornwall and Yorkshire, North and East—our good Bro. HUGHAN can perhaps best tell us why Cornwall, ever zealous in a worthy cause, is not represented on the present list. We cannot fail to be struck with this one fact, and we beg to press it on the attention of all whom it may concern, that not one new lodge below 1732 is represented at all, and only five lodges from 1700 to 1732. This cannot be right, and points to a state of things easily understood by experts, and which is much to be regretted by all Freemasons, and requires to be rectified at once by the brethren of these new lodges. We have authority to state that there is every reason to believe that before the close of 1878 the returns of the Girls' School Festival will reach £9000. With these remarks we bid farewell to the recent Anniversary of 1878.

THE EMPEROR OF GERMANY.

All English Freemasons will be deeply shocked to hear of the despicable and detestable attempt recently made to assassinate their august brother the Emperor of Germany, by a fanatic Socialist of the name of Hödel Lehmann. All will equally rejoice to hear and to know that in the good Providence of God this desperate effort of a senseless miscreant utterly failed, and a life so valuable to Germany and the world, so worthy and so honoured, has been happily preserved, let us hope, for many good years to come. The Emperor, who was returning from a drive with his only daughter, the Grand Duchess of Baden, was perfectly unmoved by the double attack of the would-be assassin. His daughter was greatly and naturally overcome with distress and agitation at so cruel and so terrible an outrage, but the good old soldier displayed the greatest "sang froid," and even transacted official business immediately after the occurrence. The Emperor was received with enthusiasm at the opera, and the innate loyalty of Berlin and Germany has since then been thoroughly roused, and countless telegraphic congratulations from all sources and countries have been received by the patriotic monarch. As Freemasons, knowing well the friendly patronage offered to our Masonic Order by the House of Brandenburg, ever since the days of Frederick the Great, and remembering that the Emperor is Grand Patron of the Order in Germany, and an honoured ruler of our Craft, while we shall grieve for the intense wickedness of such desperate high treason, we gladly hasten to express our heartfelt happiness that the protecting hand of Providence has hindered the accomplishment of so fell and so foul an act. Our Grand Lodge will no doubt send a vote of congratulation to our illustrious and Imperial brother at an early date, and we feel sure that we express the unanimous feeling of our ever loyal Order, when we repeat to-day that while we have been shocked to hear of such a reckless deed of infamy on the part of some crazy Communist, we do offer our heartfelt congratulation at the Emperor's entire and providential escape from the grave peril with which he was menaced. It is most humiliating to realize to what lengths of devilish wickedness or insane malevolence the dangerous teachings and perversion of Communism seem to be leading many just now, alike in Europe and America. All loyal Englishmen and Freemasons will say with us, "May God preserve the Emperor."

HOW IS FREEMASONRY FREE?

We are asked this question, as our readers will note, in a letter printed elsewhere, and we venture to seek to give a reasonable answer to so simple a question. But we request our readers before running through this leader to peruse the letter in question, as they will thereby gain a better idea of the gist of the question itself and the relevancy of the reply. Freemasonry is free, not in any hackneyed technical explanation of the word, but that it is made up of free men, their own masters, owning no interference with their individual liberty of action, admitting no serfdom or servitude. Originally the operative Mason was free of his guild, and probably we have in the word a remembrance of emancipation through honest labour in towns of those who were originally "villani, adscripti glebæ." For it is quite clear that no serf could be admitted into the guilds, and though emancipated serfs could be, that is those free by service, or free by manumission, no one could be admitted to the freedom of the guild whom the lord could reclaim from the borough under the provisions of more than one special Act of Parliament. But all that English Freemasonry now requires of a candidate is that he should be actually a free man. Again, Freemasonry is free, in that it never endeavours to force or bias any one even to enter into the Order. It requires a "perfect freedom of inclination" in all who aspire to penetrate lawfully into its mysteries, and long may we studiously guard that distinguishing badge and token of our "profession," discountenancing any attempt to "tout" for candidates, or to press the claims of Masonry on any. Its own intrinsic merits are ever sufficient to entitle it to the regard of the serious, and the admiration of the intelligent. Freemasonry is free also in that it lays down no absolute law of convivial habits, but leaves a perfect freedom of choice and procedure to the individual taste and temperament. In the case mentioned by our correspondent, the W.M., in our opinion, showed the very worst possible "form," and transgressed grievously against the great Masonic law of undoubted and perfect freedom in the social circle. It is very remarkable to note the change which has come over all social existence, no less than over the Masonic banquet, even within our own memory. The views of the W.M. complained of have long been obsolete, and would be no longer tolerated in any circle of Masonic gentlemen. To notice what a brother eats or drinks, or does not eat and drink, is a grave offence against Masonic good manners, against that courtesy, and decorum, and consideration which so entirely characterize our Masonic "symposia," and we are only sorry that any one can have so forgotten his responsibility as a Master, and his duty as a host. We meet every day some of the most distinguished brethren of our Order, among whom the greatest forbearance, friendly feeling, and gentlemanly toleration exist on all such sumptuary regulations, and we consider it one of the most charming characteristics of the Masonic inner social life that our lodge aggregation is "Liberty Hall," where all in these respects follow their own bent, and are regulated by their own sense of duty, or necessity, or health without being exposed to importunate solicitation, or brow-beaten by impertinent dictation. We trust that we have in some sort answered our correspondent, and that our reply will give him satisfaction. If there be any one point in which we fail, we shall be happy to supplement these explanations, imperfect as we feel them to be, on some future occasion.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY FOR 1878.

Bro. Binckes announced at the Girls' Festival that the Anniversary of the Boys' School would take place in June or July, under the exalted presidency of Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, P.G.W. We need hardly add that Bro. Binckes in his arduous labours and his zealous efforts has our "hearty good wishes," as well as our sincere aspirations for the onward progress and efficiency of the Boys' School, which, under Bro. Morris, seem to be both most striking and most commendable to the satisfaction of us all alike.

THE NEW GRAND OFFICERS.

SENIOR GRAND WARDEN.

Lord Henniker was made a Mason in January, 1869, in the Lodge Fidelity, No. 505, at Framlingham, Suffolk. He served the office of Senior Warden, and afterwards became W.M. of that lodge. Lord Henniker has served the office of Senior Provincial Grand Warden for Suffolk (1871-72), is a member of Lodges Westminster and Keystone, No. 10, and United, No. 1629, of which he was W.M. and is now P.M. He is now W.M. of the Hartismere Lodge at Eye, Suffolk, for the second time. He is a member of the Royal Arch Degree, a Mark Mason, and also of the Royal Order of Scotland. Lord Henniker is greatly in favour of the better organisation of Masonic Charities in the provinces. Lord Henniker was M.P. for Suffolk from 1866 to 1870, when he was called to the House of Lords. He is a Lord in Waiting to Her Majesty the Queen.

JUNIOR GRAND WARDEN.

Sir Harcourt Johnstone, Bart., J.G.W., has been W.M. and is P.M. of the Globe Lodge, 200, Scarborough.

PROGRESS OF FREEMASONRY IN THE PROVINCES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your impression of Saturday, May 4th., your correspondent "Statist" "much doubts the rapid progress of the Craft, except in London and perhaps Lancashire."

I am happy to say progress in the province of West Yorkshire is not rapid, but steady and satisfactory. It is quite true that the addition to our numbers is only 88, but this is after deducting from the total of 310 new members, losses by death, 58, and resignations, &c., 164, leaving still on the roll of this province on 31st December last, 3153 members.

I should not have ventured to ask you to insert this explanation had I not observed the words, "there must be something special in the case of West Yorkshire." This paragraph may leave an impression upon the minds of readers, unacquainted with our very satisfactory condition, that there is something wrong amongst us.

It would perhaps be better for writers such as "Statist" to obtain fuller information before drawing unfavourable conclusions as to the state of West Yorkshire, or any other Province.

Yours faithfully,

HENRY SMITH, P.M. 387.

THE ROYAL ARCH DEGREE AND ITS TRACING BOARD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having read a letter in to-day's issue of the Freemason by our estimable and worthy Bro. K. R. H. MacKenzie, I was very much struck by a description he gave of a print in his possession relating to the above degree that I thought I must have seen the picture (or one like it), and if so, I must have in my possession a photographic copy of it. I, therefore, looked it up and compared it with the description given by him, and find that it accurately agrees with the description he gives of his picture or Tracing Board, with the exception of the parallelogram and equilateral triangle, which do not appear in the picture which my photo is taken from, but which I believe must have originally belonged to it and since been broken or torn away.

All the rest is exactly as he describes it. The original of the photograph is and has been in my brother's possession for many years. I recollect his telling me that it was presented to him by a Mason who was dying, whose great grandfather was the first possessor of it.

At the bottom of my brother's picture is printed the name and address of the publisher, as follows:—"Printed and sold by Companion Cole, No. 78, Fore-street, Cripplegate, London."

My brother had a dozen photographs taken of the picture, six of which I kept to distribute among my brother R. A. companions. I enclose you a copy, and beg you will do me the honour of accepting it. I have no doubt the date when Bro. and Comp. Cole kept a printer's shop in Cripplegate could with some little difficulty be ascertained.

I am dear Sir and Brother, yours very sincerely,

JOHN GAMBLE, P.M., R.A.,

May 11.

Prov.G. Purs. Gloucestershire.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your number for this week will doubtless contain a report of the General Committee meeting on Saturday last, at which, in accordance with the rules of the Institution, the subscribers were to nominate candidates for the House Committee for the ensuing year; and I shall be obliged if you will afford me space to call attention to—what must surely be—a contravention of the spirit (if not on the letter) of these rules.

It was already known that two of the twelve members for this year did not seek re-election; yet, when the time arrived for nominating the new candidates, one brother (acting, it may fairly be supposed, with the knowledge of the present Committee) handed in a list of names comprising the ten old members and two new candidates, thus by a single nomination disposing of the whole of the vacancies.

If this mode of proceeding is permitted by the regulations, then it would appear that the members of the House Committee are elected for life, with power to appoint their own colleagues in cases of vacancy; and that consequently the supposed right of election by the General Committee of Subscribers is simply a farce or delusion.

This, however, it is proposed to test by the ballot on the 1st June. Bro. Alfred Durrant, a duly qualified Governor, has been also nominated as a member of the Committee, and the subscribers will be invited to protest by their votes against the assumed principle that no candidate may be elected unless he happens to be a protégé of the present members.

Yours fraternally, H. T. THOMPSON, P.M.,
Lower Clapton, 8th May, 1878. Life Governor.

HOW MASONRY IS FREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As you are the only brother to whom we may direct such a question as this, with any hope of the reply being full and conclusive, I desire to have your opinion as to how Masonry is free? also whether it extends to freedom at the banquet table; whether a Mason there is as free to choose or reject edibles and drinkables as he usually does at home, or in any hotel, or at any friend's house in the kingdom?

A brother at a banquet not long since, for private reasons of his own, did not drink a single glass of wine or anything else, but as he acted like the rest of his brethren no one noticed it but the W.M., who made some remarks which must have been hurtful to the feelings of the unfortunate Mason. It will be gratifying to know what is Free Masonry, and whether the freedom extends to the banquet table.

I am, yours fraternally,

A FREE MAN.

[See leader.]

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I read in your issue of the 27th ult., No. 477, a very long letter from Ill. Bro. Shadwell H. Clerke, in his capacity of G.S. Gen. to the Supreme Council of England, in answer to some statements contained in another publication, that a 33° wrote on behalf of the Supreme Council of New Zealand and against that of Scotland.

I am unwilling to enter for the moment upon the merit of that question or the particulars thereof, but I cannot forbear presenting the following correction to the erroneous statement that Ill. Bro. Shadwell H. Clerke made as to the Supreme Council for Egypt and its dependencies.

It is very far from the truth that this Grand Body is, as Bro. Clerke pretends to believe, an irregular or unrecognised one. It is very true that originally it has been constituted by the Supreme Council of Palermo, but in after time the Supreme Council of Italy, having its seat at Turin, has healed and reconstituted the Egyptian Body, recognising and sanctioning all its previous acts and emanations.

As to its recognitions, the Supreme Council for Egypt may boast of possessing by far more and worthier than Ill. Bro. Clerke can fancy.

Hoping that, for the sake of truth and a Masonic fair behaviour, you will have the kindness of inserting this in your earliest issue, I have the honour to be, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

F. F. ODDY, 33°,
Grand Secretary, G.C.S.C. 33° for Egypt and its Dependencies.

FREEMASONRY AND CIVILISATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to your notice of the painting bearing the above title, and which appeared in your columns of Saturday last, I beg to correct an error which I consider of some consequence. It was not "at a Masonic dinner that the idea of the painting was first suggested to Bro. Haigh." The conception of the painting had occupied my mind for some two or three years before I first mentioned the matter to any artist; and the original rough sketch was drawn by me at Bro. Haigh's studio only in September last. It has, of course, been elaborated by myself and other brethren in various points of detail during production, and the result is the work which you so favourably criticise. Masonic dinners, though good in their way, and not to be by any means despised, are not generally conducive to the advantageous communication of artistic conceptions, and for Bro. Haigh's sake, he having been at considerable expense in producing the painting, I think it right to correct the statement which in many minds might be prejudicial.

Yours truly and fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS,
P.M., P.Z.

Clapham, May 6th, 1878.

PROXY VOTING FOR THE CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hear of all sorts of wild proposals as to proxy voting &c., but it is sufficient to say that it is illegal by the rules of all our Charitable Institutions. Whether it might be right to concede such a privilege in the future under proper safeguards, and after due legislation, is another thing. Its use at present is simply impossible. I always think it is a great pity that redressers of grievances and proposers of reform will not in the first place study the laws of the Institution which they propose to alter or set aside.

Yours fraternally,

A LIFE GOVERNOR OF ALL THE CHARITIES.

THE ELECTION OF SECRETARY TO THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir, and Brother,

Will you allow me through your columns to suggest to the Committee of the Girls' School that the approaching election of Secretary should be decided by show of hands, continued until one of the candidates have a majority of those present; otherwise the successful candidate might be elected by a very small proportion of the Committee.

Yours fraternally,

ONE OF THE CANDIDATES.

THE PRIMITIVE ILLUMINATI.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Let us now endeavour to follow our ideal candidate through the next stage of his suppositious progress. He has to be received. Hitherto he has given all and taken nothing. Now the patres conscripti have to signify their satisfaction with his profession, and to evince their recognition of him as a fellow. Any expression, however brief, of their readiness to admit him to a share of their privileges will suffice. The reader may imagine for himself any form in which this acquiescence in the propriety of his desires would probably have been communicated. An enumeration in some detail of the duties, the performance of which is expected from him in his new life, would presumably be an essential part of the ceremony. So much for Reception. But it is now the turn of the contractees to render quid pro quo. They must give him something in return for his recently pledged allegiance. There must be Communication. What shall it be? We may reasonably assume that they must, for their own security, instruct him in those technical tricks by which they would be able to recognize one another and be distinguished from the rest of the world. What then would probably be the desiderated essentials of those tricks? What would be indispensably required for recognition? A common language? But spoken language might be overheard by the exoteric—remembered—repeated. Gestures? Gestures might be seen and imitated. I take it that the devised mode would be a combination of the two—the one complementary to the other, but even that would not be all that would be necessary. No precaution could ever ensure that such gestures should not be made in presence of the uninstructed, as would not attract attention. No skill could prevent words being spoken that would not arouse the curiosity of the overhearing stranger. The occult system would be obviously faulty that did not supply a means of mutual recognition, to serve not only when choice or prudence dictated that the communication should be rendered artificially occult, but for use also when natural causes imposed latency; to be resorted to, alike when labouring in the midst of the world, in the broad light of day, and when in casual companionship, shrouded by the darkness of night. In the latter case accident, if one poor means of communication were alone relied upon, might betray the incautious brother into an involuntary and inadvertent violation of his trust, but the complementary precaution would furnish a means of protection. Whatever was done then required to be supplemented by something else, for the communication was not only to be made, but satisfactorily responded to. May we assume that the mode devised satisfied this primary requirement? Verb. sap. And to what would this occult recognition—to be employed presumably every day—every hour—in every one of the changing circumstances and vicissitudes of ordinary life be made most naturally to allude?

Again Verb. sap. sat. We must not however forget when speculating upon the aporreta of the primitive illuminati, and suggesting that spoken language supplemented communication by outward and visible tokens or gestures, that, at the period I am assuming as that of the possible origin of the system, there existed no such thing as language in the sense in which we now employ the term. Language formulated in grammar—its use and expression defined in moods and cases and tenses, its precision regulated by scientifically devised inflections and terminations—was yet to be. Its then prototype or germ was that oral sign or mode of expression, now commonly illustrated by allusion to an occurrence, narrated in holy writ, and the traditionary of which is not unfamiliar to us in our modern Craft ceremonies—a Shibboleth. This parenthetical observation is not unimportant, inasmuch as we have, for the proper consideration of the proposition under discussion, to divest our minds not only of the notion of a lingual mode of communication "understanded of the vulgar," and therefore commonly acquiesced in, but we have mentally to place ourselves in the position when the idea that such a medium could ever be visually communicated by delineated characters had not yet even dawned upon the mind of man. The primitive illuminatus could not have had even so clear a prescience of the possibility of a future mode of ocularly demonstrated intelligence as the skilled decypherer in the days of our grandfathers of an old semaphore post with its waving arms would have conceived of the Morse system of code signals in the then yet to be discovered electric telegraph.

I pause here for a moment to consider the hypothetical initiatory ceremony as a whole. In what light would it be regarded by the postulate and his newly acquired brethren?

I have already, albeit somewhat remotely, adverted* to the analogy, common to speculative Freemasonry and to all systems of religion, between reception and birth: "to be born again" is the expression ordinarily employed in all mythologies to express the resurrection from the darkness of the tomb or womb of ignorance to the world of light and life and labour; and let us, as Masons, never lose sight of the principle that labour is, as knowledge is, but another term for light and life. See how exquisitely the idea is put by way of antithesis in the words of our great Master, Solomon. Eccles. chap. ix. v. 10. To the end of his days the filius regards himself as having been born again at the moment the new light was admitted to his dazzled eyes. But it must be borne in mind how naturally the rude nomad would endeavour to enforce his meaning, for lack of ability to convey more abstract instruction by material imagery and types. Even in the present day a circumstance—a detail—of our initiatory ceremony to which I dare do no more than allude, emblematises one of the physical incidents of the phenomena of material birth which must have been, nay, which is, as familiar to the savage as to the savant. You, my brother, know what I mean. If you do not readily apprehend it, hark back upon your experience, forget the lodge room and its brilliant accessories, and recall the moment—but I must forbear. Ponder, ponder and pray. Pray for enlightenment, and, as my poor contribution to that end, I commend you again to the teachings of our Great Master in that wonderful epitome of all human wisdom to which I have just, I hope very reverently, drawn your attention. [Eccles.]

Well! then the neophyte has been "born again." Born to what? To labour? Is that all? To wait, to learn to rule and subdue our passions, a not unimportant exercise of mental discipline, whether inculcated by the primitive illuminati or insisted upon by the modern Craftsmen. Is that the whole of the curriculum? No! There is one supreme lesson the alumnus must learn in addition thereto. From the moment he has been received, nay, before he has been received into the confraternity, the possibility of being called upon at any moment, at any unexpected moment, to perform that duty, has been forced upon his attention. He has been born. He has been instructed how to live. But the trinity of humanity must be completed. Fill up for yourself, oh! beloved brother, the third factor in this awful sum. Eyes may scan these pages, I devoutly hope they will, which have not yet, as Milton sublimely says, "been unsealed at the foundation of heavenly radiance." Shall I shrink, do my obligations as a Mason demand that I shall flinch, from proclaiming what we as Masons assume to teach? To describe our modus operandi, to define our curriculum, would be, I hold it as sincerely as any Mason can, an act of treason so vile that no expression of animadversion I, or any man of honour, could employ, would fitly characterise it, but when I have intimated, as I have so frequently, that the motto I have supposed to be that of the early illuminati, "all for one and one for all" is still the vinculus of the Craft, I have sufficiently indicated a corollary the enunciation of which, let weak-kneed brethren shudder as they will, conscientious teachers of the tenets of the Craft cannot ignore. The illuminatus, according to my theory, had constantly before him the inculcation of the necessary duty of martyrdom and the contemplation of this ever possible, nay, not improbable, contingency, necessarily instructed him how to die!

And now I come to the consideration of that essential, and, as I believe, supreme communication, which I assume would be made to the illuminatus in the very earliest ages of an intelligent belief in an abstract, in contradistinction to a superstitious reliance upon the attributed powers of a concrete, god.

A very able lecturer in an address quoted by me in the course of these papers* has pointed out that the tradition of death and restoration to life is common to Freemasonry and to all the ancient systems of mythology. I will give his very words, "It may be, and is, a matter for dispute, and a most interesting field for investigation it affords, as to the far remote origin of our ceremonies, but wherever we seek them, whether amongst the ancient Egyptians, the Babylonians, the Greeks, the Assyrians, the Romans, the Druids, the Essenes, the Druses, even the early Christians themselves." [I do not know why he should have limited his proposition to the "early" Christians.] "we still find the germ of the whole thing to be the death and resurrection of the founder. Had I time even to glance at the ceremonies of the various secret societies which existed amongst all nations even in the most remote antiquity, you would be surprised if you were not already aware of the facts, with the very close resemblance existing between ourselves and all of them; in point of fact we might say that the difference is in little more than nomenclature and detail." These words, as the talented author asserts, suggest a vast field for thought to depasture in. I will venture to add to the similarity to other systems in the instances adduced by him another common point of resemblance between Freemasonry and all other ancient systems of religion or mythology—the notion of a trinity. Perhaps this idea is less apparent in the Hebraic theism than in others, but some trace of a triune deity is found even there, as many of my readers will acknowledge when their minds recur to certain ceremonies, familiar to some of us, and said to be immediately derived from the ritualistic traditions and usages of the Jewish Church.

But I have arrived at the concluding considerations of my subject, and they are much too important to be introduced at the end of a letter. In my next, and I trust last epistle, I propose to discuss the connection between Masonic marks of recognition and the peculiarity referred to in the above quotation. I purpose briefly to touch upon how far our system has been affected by the early belief in a triune deity. I desire to attempt an answer to the enquiry I started at an early period of the investigation, namely, how traditions, not infrequently changed, can account for distinctive marks that presumably have never varied. If I can reply to that query satisfactorily, I hope to conclude my dissertation by modestly summarising the argument, the thread of which I have endeavoured to preserve running on throughout the whole of this series, that the ancient mysteries and the more modern guild system presumably owe something to an Order which has hitherto been erroneously supposed to be indebted to them. Let me conclude this letter with an illustration. An ancient oak in the forest is seen overgrown with ivy, mistletoe, lichens—what not? but no man mistakes the excrescences for the tree. The core of Freemasonry may have—mind, I do not say it has—existed from the remotest ages, and we are not bound to infer the contrary because our eyes can but dimly perceive, cannot with absolute certainty identify, the simple base amid the luxuriance of its parasitic covering.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, very faithfully and fraternally yours,

CURIOSITIES OF MASONIC LITERATURE.

The following letter having fallen into our hands, it matters not how, we think it well to submit it to the intelligent appreciation and critical consideration of the Masonic body.

That it is a purely Masonic document, written by one brother Mason to another, is a striking fact, and renders the letter a little gem in its way, worth perusal and worth preservation. We feel sure that all the readers of the Freemason will agree with our view of this remarkable composition. We have taken out the names and any clue to the writer.

We may observe that the letter refers to an application for support for the Secretaryship of the Girls' School, and is addressed to one of the candidates.

4th May, 1878.

"Dear Sir and Brother,

"I know none of the applicants. The mismanagement of financial affairs through the late Grand Treasurer of the funds of two of the Institutions is such a reflection on the Managing Committees that I decline to support a candidate. I have not the honour of your acquaintance.

"Yours faithfully,

"London.

The only apparent clue is the word London, which might seem to intimate that the letter was provincial, and that the writer meant to say Mr. "So-and-so, London," though in his haste forgot it. As the learned Smelfungus would remark, "That is not, however, a certain criterion as to the 'locus in quo' whence the epistle emanates. It may be so or it may not be so, though in truth it matters little."

The reasons for not voting are certainly very original, and press hardly, we think, on our late worthy Grand Treasurer and the zealous Committees of two of the Institutions, and, to say the truth, we do not understand them. We do not, however, wish to prolong our observations, but leave the letter in its "naked simplicity" to the appreciation of our intelligent Craft.

Should any of our brethren possess similar striking and original compositions, we shall be glad to publish them, as an amusing commentary on Masonic good manners and Masonic ornate sentiment.

CONSECRATION OF THE MONTGOMERIE LODGE, NO. 1741.

A new lodge was opened at Diss on Thursday, 9th inst., it being determined by Bros. H. M. Vyall, F. W. Doubleday, and a few others of their stamp that this town should, if possible, be equal in Masonic importance to the neighbouring borough of Eye. The start has now been made, and if the same spirit manifested on Thursday is continued, there can be no doubt of the success of the movement.

The new lodge is named the Montgomerie, No. 1741, and the King's Head was the scene of the consecration.

The absence of the R.W. Grand Master (Lord Suffield) was regretted, and the ceremonies of consecration and installation were performed—and ably too—by Major Penrice, D.P.G.M. of Norfolk, assisted by several other distinguished Masons. Bro J. C. Chittock, P.P.G.S.D., P.M. 943, was appointed W.M.; Bros. Cecil M. Montgomerie, 52, S.W.; Henry O. Lyus, 85, J.W.; J. Evans, S.D.; John Flatman, J.D.; Henry Bond, I.G.; H. Vyall, Sec.; B. J. Read, Treasurer. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Col. Boileau, W.M. 52; W. A. Tyssen-Amhurst, H. G. Barwell, Prov. G.S.; Rev. C. Howes, P.G. Chaplain; Rev. E. J. Alvis, P.G. Chaplain; Rev. C. J. Martyn, E. Orams, Dr. Adams, (W.M. Waveney, Bungay), H. J. Dunsford, P.P.G.D.C.; J. H. Ladyman, H. C. Riches, W.M. Sincerity; C. Havers, P.M.; Page (W.M. Philanthropic, Lynn), R. Thorns, P.M.; Bardell, P.P.G.S.W. Yorks, J. A. Gooch, (W.M. Perseverance), A. J. Berry (W.M. Cabell), and about 70 others.

The proceedings were commenced about half-past one o'clock, the W.D.P.G.M., Major Penrice, presiding. Bro. the Rev. C. Howes, who acted as Chaplain, said prayers in a very solemn and impressive manner; the musical arrangements, which were very efficiently carried out, being under the direction of Bro. Brittain, P.G.O., assisted by Bros. Thoulless, Reeve, Alvis, and Smith. An oration was eloquently given by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., and D.P.G.M. (Suffolk), who exhorted the brethren never to forget the important and solemn ceremonies they had each in their time gone through, and to be ever mindful of the grand principles on which the Order is founded, and to carry those principles out in their lives, so that by showing the world the pure life of a true Mason they might thus silence the calumnies of their enemies and the sneers of those who asserted that Masonry had nothing but mysticism in it.

At the banquet which followed the impressive ceremony of the consecration Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn responded to the toast of "The Grand Officers Past and Present" in a humorous and telling speech.

"The Health of the newly-installed W.M." was enthusiastically received with all the honours of the Craft, and in the course of his reply he read some interesting extracts from the minute-book of a lodge formed in Diss so long ago as 1771.

It seems that a lodge, "The Royal Alfred," formerly held its meetings at Diss, and that the old warrant and minute book are in the possession of a gentleman in the neighbourhood (probably a descendant of one of the members), who is not however a Mason himself. There are several interesting entries in the minute book, which dates from Feb. 21, 1871. We find that this lodge soon found occasion to exercise that truly Masonic ornament, charity, for on March 21st (apparently only a month after its first meeting) we read as follows:—"Since the last lodge, at a convened meeting, a distressed brother, one George D'Sherinb, a native of La Lippe, Buckenbourg, in Westphalia, having been, with his nephew, shipwrecked in the Bay of Bi-cay, and lost all he had on board, and travelling through this town, on his way to London, was relieved with a donation of 10s. 6d., having produced his certificate of being a member of the Lodge of 'Good Faith,' Paris." "June 20th.—Bro. J. Worth was re-elected W.M., and three guineas was given to sufferers by fire at Palgrave," a parish adjoining, but in the county of Suffolk. We see by this latter entry that our ancient brethren did not confine their charity exclusively to themselves, but could, when occasion offered, spare some of their lodge funds for their distressed neighbours. In August, 1771, the following minute occurs:—"Resolved that one guinea be given to the gamekeeper of Rowland Holt, Esq., for the present of one buck for our banquet." At a time when the Grand Orient of France has just expunged from its first principles that of the belief in the immortality of the soul, it is refreshing to see that such novel and objectionable ideas did not form any part of a Freemason's creed in those days, for in a list of members, at the end of the minute book, and the quarterages due and payable, we find that opposite to the name of Alex. Stutt is the date of his death, and the very hopeful and significant sentence, "Mors Janua Vitæ." It also appears from this minute book that one of the early Masters of the Royal Alfred Lodge was the owner of the estate now the property of Bro. Cecil Molyneux Montgomerie, S.W. of this new lodge, which is named "Montgomerie" after him, while an ancestor of the Secretary, Bro. Vyall (to whose energy the getting up of this new lodge is due) was Deputy Master.

The toast of "The Officers" was next drank, coupled with the health of Bro. Montgomerie, whose name the lodge bears, and who on rising to respond was received with acclamation.

The sum of twelve guineas was subscribed during the evening for the purpose of obtaining a vote for the Boys' Masonic Institution.

CONSECRATION OF THE ROYAL SAVOY LODGE, No. 1744.

On Tuesday afternoon the Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744, was consecrated at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, by Bro. James Terry, Grand Director of Ceremonies for the Province of Herts, who was assisted by Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, who acted as S.W., Bro. W. Clifton Crick as J.W., Bro. Clarke, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies Suffolk, as Director of Ceremonies, Bro. W. M. Stiles, as Secretary, and Bro. Killick as I.G. The full list of brethren who were present was as follows, W. Clarke, P.M. 114, P.G.D.C. Suffolk; J. C. Dwarber, P.M. 55 and 1589; Jas. Willing, jun., I.P.M. 177, P.M. 1507; J. Terry, P.M. 228, P.G.D.C. Herts., Consecrating Officer; C. Kelso, P.M. 957; A. Treadwell, P.M. 170; John Greenfield, 1602; F. Johnson, 177; James Bateman, P.M. 820; A. J. Ireton, W.M. 1348; Chas. K. Killick, W.M. 1693; John Douglass, S.W., W.M. elect, 1507; J. Stock, S.W. 1178 and 1500; J. Gibbs, 1178 and 1580; John Wm. Smith, 177; George H. Deller, 177; William Barham, 177; Wm. Hicklin, 1298; Harry Hunt, 1471; F. W. Lilley, 177; T. Gilbert, jun., 1507; H. G. Buss, Ass. G. Sec.; W. Cook, 177; W. Clifton Crick, 657, P.M.; Isaac Buscall, W.M. 177; Wm. Read, M.M. 177; J. R. Stacey, P.M. 180; S. E. Hayes, 795; K. Clemow; H. Webb, P.M. 72, 193, 890; T. Lawler; F. H. Clemow, 1507; Wm. Armstrong, G.O. of Madrid, No. 8; Thos. H. Cox, 1441; William Jaques, 1441; W. H. Harwar, 1351; F. H. Tomkins, 201; P. Pearce, J.W. 228; R. C. Read, W.M. 201; C. S. Foy, 201; Chas. Hudson, S.W. 315 and J.W. 1540; W. W. Stiles, S.W. 1732, Secretary 1507; H. Stiles, S.D. 1732; C. H. Stephenson, 1319; P. F. Canaghan, 177; F. H. Cozens, Org. 907; Augustus Holt, 177; C. Pierce, 65; W. Payne, 1744 and 1602; E. Payne, 1744 and 1602; C. W. Holt, 874; Morgan, 211; A. Allworth, P.M. 1261, W.M. elect 1621; W. J. Hunter, 228, W.M. elect 1677; W. Doherty, J. S. Jones, 177; F. J. Hyland, 201; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). Bro. Dolan, was also present, and acted as Tyler.

The ceremony of consecration, frequently as we have seen it, was never better performed than on this occasion. The lodge room was commodious, and there was no hesitation or delay in any of the performances. Bro. Terry, as Consecrating Officer, delivered his oration with his customary fluency and impressiveness; Bros. Buss and Crick performed the Wardens' duties to perfection, Bro. Clarke, acting as D.C., admirably led the brethren, and Bro. Killick, as I.G., kept the entrance to the lodge well guarded. The musical portions of the ceremony were charmingly rendered by Bros. Carter, Lawler, and Cozens, and every point of detail was as rigidly observed as any member of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement could desire.

After the lodge had been formally consecrated and dedicated to Freemasonry, Bro. James Willing, P.M. 1507 and 177, was installed as W.M., who thereupon invested his I.P.M., and the following brethren were then invested as officers for the year: Bros. John Douglass, S.W.; F. H. Clemow, J.W.; Treadwell, Treas.; W. M. Stiles, Sec.; Jones, S.D.; Hyland, J.D.; W. Cock, I.G.; George Deller, D.C.; Holt, Steward; John William Smith, W.S. and Dolan, Tyler. Bro. Terry then delivered the addresses, after which a vote of thanks was accorded to Bros. Terry, Buss, Crick, Clarke, and Killick, for consecrating the lodge. Bro. Terry returned thanks, and said that each of those brethren had endeavoured to do their best, and if their services had given gratification to the lodge and the visitors they were amply repaid. These brethren were then elected honorary members of the lodge. Bro. Buss acknowledged the compliment. A vote of thanks was also accorded to Bro. J. Douglass, S.W., for the presentation of the handsome velvet cushion, and to Bro. Cook, I.G., for the magnificent bible placed upon it, both for the use of the lodge. Bro. Douglass said he thought that the present he had made was hardly worthy of the vote of thanks, but he hoped before long to make the lodge a much more valuable present. Bro. Cook said he was very much pleased that the brethren were gratified with his present, and he trusted that in his connection with the lodge he would see it prosper. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet in the Piscatorial Society's room, overlooking Maiden Lane. Their was but one drawback to the comfort of the brethren, the crowding of the apartment, which, although capacious enough for ordinary meetings, would not conveniently accommodate the extraordinary number of brethren who assembled to do honour to the consecration of the Royal Savoy Lodge, consequently, shortly after the brethren had sat down, the heat of the room became almost overpowering.

The banquet, however, was very much enjoyed, and the W.M. and his officers were untiring in their endeavours to make their guests happy and comfortable. When the banquet was finished, the toasts were proposed, and the W.M. in giving the toast of "The Grand Officers" reminded the brethren of the courtesy which was always extended to the Craft by the officials in Grand Secretary's office, who did their best to remove any difficulty that might arise, and offered every facility to those who sought information. Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, replied, and said that though it was not for him, so much as for the other brethren who were present, to speak of the qualifications of the Grand Officers, he could, from his own personal knowledge, assure the brethren that Grand Lodge of England was never better officered than it was at the present time, from the Prov. G.M. and D.G.M. to the Grand Tyler. It was a very happy coincidence that the M.W.G.M. had always been able to select those brethren for Grand Office who were approved of by the Craft at large. What the W.M. had said of him (Bro. Buss) was certainly very flattering, and he was very sensible of the kindness which the W.M. had exhibited in mentioning to the brethren the way in which he performed his duties. If ever he found that there was a way in which he could be of service to the Craft, if he could smooth over any roughnesses or show the brethren how to surmount any difficulties, he was only too glad to do so. Bro. Terry proposed "The Health of the W.M. and Prosperity to the Royal Savoy Lodge." The W.M. having replied, and expressed his thanks to Bro. Terry, hoped that the new lodge would be the means of doing some more good to Masonry. He afterwards proposed "The Health of Bro. Terry, the Consecrating Officer," and again drew to the brethren's attention the skilful manner in which the ceremonies had been performed. Bros. Buscall and Dwarber responded for "The Visitors." Bro. Douglass replied to the toast of "The Officers," and was followed by Bros. Clemow, Jones, and Cook. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Masonic Charities" said that charity was the great motive in Freemasonry, and the Lodge of Benevolence had large sums in hand which it distributed to cases of distress. Besides that, Freemasons had the three charitable Institutions, the Girls' School, the Boys' School, and the Benevolent Institution. Bro. Terry, the Consecrating Officer that evening, was the Secretary of this latter Institution, and he was indefatigable in his exertions on its behalf. Bro. Terry replied, and stated that for the past four or five years this toast had been conspicuous by its absence at the Grand Festivals. He hoped, however, that it was only by inadvertence, and that in future it might resume its old position. Bro. Terry then informed the brethren of what the charities did, and after narrating the benefits conferred by the Boys' and Girls' Schools, said with regard to the Benevolent Institution, that whereas a few years ago it was paying £3200 in annuities, after Friday next [it would be giving] £10,600 in sums of £40 a year to men and £32 a year to widows. After that day there would be 285 annuitants on the books. As this was a new lodge, it was not for him to ask now for a Steward, but he hoped when they thought of sending one they would bear in mind what they had been graciously pleased already to acknowledge—his services that evening—and send a Steward for the Benevolent Institution. He did not wish to dictate in any way, for all the Institutions were worthy of support. The future of the Girls' School was at the present time in abeyance. It depended entirely on the selection of the future Secretary, and he hoped and trusted that the Life Governors would weigh well every consideration, and having made up their minds, poll for the best man, and let the future of the Institution rest in his hands. Bro. Dolan then gave the Tyler's toast and the brethren shortly afterwards separated.

CONSECRATION OF THE FARRINGTON WITHOUT LODGE No. 1745.

On Thursday, the 9th inst., the representative lodges of the City of London received an addition to their roll by the consecration of this lodge by the W. Bro. J. Terry, P.G. D.C. of Hertfordshire, and Secretary to the R.M.B.I., the officer appointed by the M.W.G.M. for that purpose. The ceremony took place at the Holborn Viaduct Hotel, in the suite of rooms specially constructed and furnished by Messrs. Spiers and Pond for Masonic purposes. The brethren assembled in the ante-room, at 5 o'clock, and shortly afterwards a procession was formed, by the D.C., Bro. Clarke, P.P.G.D. of C. Suffolk, and duly conducted into the lodge room.

Amongst those present, in addition to those already mentioned were Bros. J. B. Monckton, President Board of General Purposes; Brockbank, P.P.G.D. of East Lancashire; G. King, P.M. Old Concord; Dwarber, P.M. 551, 1589, Crick, P.M., 657; Payne, P.M.; Mallett, W.M.; 141; Worrell, P.M. 766; Butt, S.D. 907; Collier, 193; Jones, 205; Ackland, 205; W. Martin, 475; Kift, 749; Treemere, 1309; Anstey, 1158; Parkinson, Tyler. The founders present were Bro. H. Jackson, jun., W.M. designate; C. Jacques, S.W., designate; T. C. Walls, P. G.O. Middlesex, J.W. designate (Freemason); Ramsey, P.M.; Dubois, P.M.; Lardner, West Smithfield; Giscard, 1589.

Bro. Terry having appointed Bros. Monckton, as S.W.; Dwarber, as J.W.; P. Clarke, as D.C.; Brockbank, as I. G.; and Walls, as Secretary, commenced the beautiful and arduous ceremony of consecration. As it was Bro. Terry's 104th appearance in the character of Consecrating Officer, it is only necessary to state that it was in every way equal to his former efforts. The proceedings were greatly enhanced by the appropriate music, which was under the management of Bros. Kift and Treemere. The consecrating vessels were kindly lent by Grand Lodge. The installation of Bro. Jackson, jun., immediately followed, and was carried out in the same able manner as had characterized the previous ceremonial. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. Jacques, S.W.; Walls, J.W.; Lardner, S.D.; Giscard, I.G. The elections of Treasurer and Tyler were unanimously in favour of Bros. Ramsey and Parkinson, and those brethren were subsequently invested by the W.M. Votes of thanks were unanimously passed to the Consecrating Officer and the four distinguished brethren who had assisted him in the ceremony, and they were all unanimously elected honorary members.

Some propositions having been given, Bro. Walls, the acting Secretary, read the communications he had received from the brethren who had been invited to be present, but who were prevented from attending through prior engagements.

Amongst those who answered, and, who, in their respective replies wished the founders and the lodge every prosperity, were Bros. Col. Burdett, P.G.S.W., &c.; J. Hervey, G.S.; Allcroft, M.P. for Worcester, I.P.M. Aldersgate Lodge; Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain; Buss, P.P.G.W. of Middlesex, Assistant G.S.; Rev. Dr. Brette, P.P.G.C. of Middlesex; George Kenning, P.P.G.D.C. of Middlesex; Levander, P.G. Secretary of Middlesex; and others.

The lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was elegantly served by the manager, Bro. Acland, and assistants. In due course the preliminary toasts were done full justice to.

The name of Bro. Monckton being coupled with "The P.G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present,"

"The Health of the W.M." was proposed in felicitous terms by Bro. Terry, and having been most warmly received, Bro. Jackson replied. In the course of his response he stated that he was fully alive to the responsibilities of the position which he had undertaken, and that he hoped to be able to discharge its duties satisfactorily. Bro. Terry had told them to be very careful as to whom they admitted. He quite endorsed that recommendation, as he had seen most lamentable results produced by the indiscriminate admission of candidates into the Order. The lodge commenced its career under good auspices. Those who had signed the petition were well known in Masonic circles, and the majority of them held official positions in the ward. With regard to their headquarters they were especially happy, as nothing could be better than the arrangements of the lodge and banquet rooms. In conclusion, he remarked that they were also honoured in possessing upon their warrant the sign manual of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and he hoped that that warrant would be handed down unsullied from generation to generation.

The W.M. then gave "The Consecrating Officers." Bro. Terry, in reply, made one of those interesting speeches for which he is famed. He stated that Masonry taught nothing but what was good, notwithstanding what its many detractors had said to the contrary. If the teachings and principles of Freemasonry were properly carried out no institution could be more holy, just, or benevolent. In speaking of the progress of the Order, Bro. Terry took occasion to allude to the increase in the number of the recipients of the various charities. Five years ago they found accommodation in the School for 120 girls, they had now 200; at that time there were but 115 boys receiving the benefit of the School, and there were now 200; and the recipients of the funds of the Benevolent Institution had increased from 198 to 285. The annual payments to the old men and women were then £26 and £25 per annum but now those had been respectively increased to £40 and £32. (Hear, hear.) These gratifying results were due, no doubt, to the impetus given to Freemasonry by the acceptance of the Grand Mastership of England by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Last year was a memorable one for the Craft, inasmuch as three princes of the Blood Royal occupied the three chairs of Grand Lodge, which circumstance recalled the glorious days of the early part of the present century, when four Royal Princes held distinguished and active positions in the Craft. The practical results, after all, of Grand Lodge influence were the Charities. Some five years ago the three Institutions received in round numbers, in one year, £18,000, but last year they were fortunate in obtaining £44,000. (Applause.) In conclusion he expressed himself highly pleased with the manner in which he had been received that day, and from his knowledge of the capabilities of several of the prominent brethren belonging to the lodge, he believed that the Farrington Without had a very bright career before it.

Bro. Dwarber, in his reply, stated that although his career in the Craft did not commence so early as their Bro. Brockbank, who stated in the lodge that he had been initiated in 1846, yet he was astonished at the great strides made since he first saw the light, namely, in 1863. It had been his privilege to have seen many consecrations, but he felt bound to say that Bro. Terry's efforts that day had been a positive treat to him. He had been personally pleased to have assisted, although in a very humble degree, in the ceremony that day, and for the honour they had conferred upon him in electing him an honorary member, he returned them his most sincere thanks. In conclusion, he hoped that the members would remember the note of warning given by the Consecrating Officer that day, and be exceedingly careful in investigating the characters of those they admitted into their ranks. Any negligence in that vital point might not only prove an injury to the lodge but might damage the interests of the Craft in general.

Bro. Clarke having also responded, the W.M. gave "The Visitors," which toast was acknowledged at length by Bro. Crick. In proposing "The Health of the Officers," the W.M. said that he believed no Master entered upon his career with a better staff than he did. Without good officers no lodge could hope to succeed, especially a new lodge, which required everything to work with machine-like regularity and order. As it would under the circumstances be invidious to make comparisons, he should not particularise the capabilities of any individual brother, nor would he couple the toast with any one name, but would request that each brother, according to seniority, should respond. The toast having been warmly received, the officers made a brief reply. During the proceedings Bros. Kift, Treemere, Jacques, Mallett, Walls, and others instrumentally and vocally entertained the brethren. Bro. Martin also gave in a very spirited manner Tennyson's poem "Godiva." The first regular meeting of the lodge will be held on the last Monday in the present month.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

After the dinner, which was admirably supplied by Bro. Alfred Best, the proprietor of Freemasons' Tavern, grace was sung by the musical artistes, and the usual toasts were proposed.

The Chairman, in proposing the first toast, said: Brethren, our assembly to-night, I see, is graced by many ladies in the gallery (applause), I rejoice that they take an interest in our proceedings; for I am sure of this, that the Craft in all its work of charity can find no better auxiliaries. (Applause.) But their presence to-night makes it incumbent on us to avoid all those special Masonic forms on which, if this were a close tyled lodge, we might indulge. And, therefore, I content myself in giving this toast, by simply asking you to drink "The Health of the Queen." (Loud cheers.)

The Chairman: Brethren, there are many here present. I doubt not, who only a fortnight since were assembled in this great hall, if so, they will remember that we had then the satisfaction of dining with, and under the presidency of His Royal Highness, our M.W.G.M. (Cheers.) It was, I am satisfied, an unfeigned pleasure to the Craft at large to see him accepting the chair. (Loud Cheers.) Brethren, I now ask you to drink his health in two capacities: first, as Grand Master; second, as the patron of this charity. (Cheers.) And let me join with his name the name of one who by her grace, her kindness, and the manner in which she fulfils all the duties of her high station, has endeared herself to the hearts of every single man in this country. (Cheers.) I give you the health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales. The Princess of Wales, the gracious Patroness of this Charity. (Cheers.)

The Chairman: The next toast on the list is "The Deputy Grand Master and other Grand Officers." I am sorry that my noble friend Lord Skelmersdale is not here to answer for himself, but I am rejoiced to see around us some representatives of Grand Officers. (Cheers.) And amongst those there are now—as there are always some who hold the double rank of Grand Officers in London and officers holding high position in the provinces. (Hear, hear.) We are always glad to see them. (Cheers.) We are particularly glad to see any who come from the provinces on an occasion like this, because the Charity is quite as much indebted to the contributions and the support of the provinces as it is to our London brethren. (Hear, hear.) I hold in my hand a document which has been furnished me within the last half-hour, which shows in a very remarkable way that the contributions to this Charity are, speaking generally, about equally divided between London and the provinces. And that is the sort of grace of fraternal emulation in this good work of charity which we desire to see. (Cheers.) Whenever, therefore, there are in this hall any of our country brethren, we bid them hearty welcome, and to any of their representatives amongst them. Meanwhile I will give you The Health of the Grand Officers," coupling with it the name of one who like myself, I am sorry to say ranks his acquaintance with Masonry now by a very long tale of years, and one whom I remember in my early days of Masonry, and who has since been well-known amongst us—I mean Brother Pickard. (Cheers.) Brethren, "The Health of the Grand Officers and Bro. Pickard." (Cheers.)

Rev. H. A. Pickard, G. Chap.: Being called upon unexpectedly to reply to this toast, I thank you on behalf of Lord Skelmersdale and the other Grand Officers for drinking our healths, and for the kind and flattering way in which you have alluded to me. I can never forget that I had the privilege of initiating Lord Skelmersdale into Freemasonry, and that in the succeeding year he became my Inner Guard. At a speech which the Chancellor of the Exchequer made at Oxford lately he recommended three points to which a speaker should particularly pay attention; first that he should prepare his speech before hand, secondly, that he should avoid prolixity, and, thirdly, that his speech should be to the point. Of the first of these recommendations it has been impossible for me to avail myself. Secondly, while I have studied brevity I hope I have not fallen into obscurity, and, thirdly, as for the Grand Officers I think that they have well performed their duty. I miss the face of Bro. Martyn on this occasion; he is not present to-night, I can mention him as one who has done his duty; and of the others I can state that they all do their duty with regard to this charity, and I have confidence that they will do their duty as characteristic of Freemasonry at heart.

Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. G.M. for Hants and Isle of Wight: Brethren, I am sure that you will be right glad to drink the toast which I now have the honour to propose to you, and it is with peculiar satisfaction that I offer to your notice "The Health of the Pro Grand Master," our chairman of to-day, because I was the means many years ago of initiating him into Freemasonry, and I have had the pleasure of introducing him into nearly every grade in Freemasonry which he has attained; I have therefore every reason to congratulate myself and you on the good work which he has performed. Brethren, we may indeed congratulate ourselves that our Pro Grand Master, from the moment he was initiated into Freemasonry, became impressed with the work which he was doing. He took a most active interest in the prosperity and welfare of our Order, and he has given his high position, his eloquence, and his ability to the promotion of our ancient and honourable Society. (Cheers.) Brethren, he has in every position in Freemasonry taken a most active interest, and to our Masonic Charities he has been no backward adherent; he has given his support to all our Masonic Charities, and we must congratulate ourselves that we have the benefit of his advocacy and his assistance this day. Let us then drink his health with all enthusiasm, and thank him most heartily, not only for the services which he has rendered to Freemasonry, but for the kindness with which he has presided over us this day.

The toast having been drunk with great enthusiasm, The Earl of Carnarvon said: Brethren, if, indeed, there were any special discomforts attendant upon the high office which it is, my brethren, a honour to hold in this great, ancient, and illustrious body, they should be always much more than compensated by the kindness which I experience at every occurrence and under every circumstance at your hands. I have often to meet you in Grand Lodge and elsewhere—sometimes in the transaction of difficult, and sometimes even of irritating business; but I may safely say this, that I have never found my Masonic brethren anything but most reasonable and most cordial; and I never desire to be thrown in the course of business amongst any with whom it is a greater pleasure to transact business. Brethren, I am very grateful to you, and to my honourable friend Bro. Beach, for the kind way in which he has proposed my health. His friendship and mine date back. I am sorry to say, for a great many years, but nothing has ever disturbed the friendship. I have often been indebted to him for his good offices, but as he truly said, perhaps the best office that he ever rendered me was when he put me through the Three Degrees with which you are all familiar. He has reminded me in that speech that I have a duty now to discharge to you, and to the charity on behalf of which we are assembled. He has spoken of the advocacy, I think he said, we needed on these occasions. Brethren, I wish he had not so ably put me in mind of how much is expected from a chairman in circumstances such as these; having, I know, had much, too much experience of your liberality, to doubt for a moment, that advocacy, however feeble, will secure the great object we all have in view. Brethren, I have to ask you to drink "Prosperity to the Girls' School" (great applause); and in so doing, I cannot avoid in the first instance, mentioning the great loss which this charity has sustained in the person of one, who for five years, was identified closely with all its proceedings, and to whom, from all I have heard, I believe this charity has been greatly indebted. I believe the singular attention which Bro. Little gave to business, the clearness, the energy, even at the sacrifice of personal comfort and convenience have gone a long way towards keeping this Institution financially and materially in the right word. Brethren, when I had often had to preside at the public dinners, held on behalf of many of the great charities which exist in this city, I have often wondered to myself how those charities can go on. Many of them do indeed a large work; they spend a great deal of money; but they have large debts; they have no funded property; and when the accounts come to be balanced at the end of the 12 months, it too often appears that there is a very heavy deficit. Well, now, it is my pleasing duty, as chairman here this evening, to say that though that is the condition of so many great Societies, which are many of them doing very good and useful work in London, it cannot be described in any degree or in any way as the character of this Institution. (Hear hear.) Brethren, it is quite time that if you look at the last year's accounts you will see a very awkward statement of something like an apparent deficit of £3,000; but brethren I venture to say that there is seeming deficit and that really, as I shall show you in two minutes, the finances of the Institution are in a very satisfactory, and I may say of very creditable order. Now, I am not going to burden you with any long statement of finance; I shall only give you sets of figures. But I think they will be sufficient proof of the case. In the first place, this Institution has not less than 739,000 in founded property; I believe, indeed that I am within the mark, and that it is now £40,000; but a few months ago it was £39,000. It has a fixed income derived from a grant of the Grand Lodge of £150 a year, and the proceeds of its funded property added to that make up a fixed income to the amount of £1,300 a year. From donations and subscriptions added it has a total income (taking last year's as a fair test) of £11,850 (Cheers.) Well, brethren, it is quite true that the expenditure last year was £14,690; and if you balance that against £11,850 you will see that there is a deficit of £2,840 to be made good. But what is the reason of this; how has this come to pass? Why, simply in this way. The Institution has been obliged and has wisely I think elected to add a new wing to the building and the Institution has done that which hardly any other Charitable Institution that I have ever become acquainted with does, or has done; it has out of current income paid its way, I am told, as it went. Now I think it is impossible to overrate the credit and the honour of the managers who have succeeded in doing this. In addition to this, they have bought a piece of land, which if it was not very large in point of area was, I am bound to say, valuable in point of price. (Laughter.) I believe that that was necessary. From what I am told, the advantage to the Institution of that small piece of land will be very great indeed, and I beg you again to understand that the cost of the land, just as that of the building, has to be defrayed from the current income of the year; there is no permanent burden placed upon you by it. There has not been one sixpence sold out of your funded property. You are as rich to-day, when the building is approaching completion, as you were before the first foundation stone was laid, and the addition of that wing enables you to increase largely the benefits of the Institution, and I shall hope not only to increase it materially, but also to increase it educationally in a proportionate degree. Brethren, I call that on the whole a very satisfactory statement for a chairman to have to make. It has never been as far as I can remember in any charitable Institution over which I have had the honour to preside of an analogous nature, it has never been my fortune on the whole to announce that so old an Institution was on the whole so prosperous, was doing such a large work, and was doing it without laying a burden on the permanent resources of the society. Now, brethren, that I consider to be a great claim upon the further liberality of this meeting. There are other claims, indeed, which might be urged. I would urge you to remember that it is the oldest Masonic Charity in existence, that this is now the ninetieth year in which this Charity has been existing; that it started from very small beginnings and that it has steadily developed and enlarged, increasing its work of utility and charity sensibly and by degrees, as it found the means to do so; that the education which it gives is of a sound, healthy character; that it is economically managed, because the cost of the education of every one of these girls does not exceed £35 a year, and that consequently the money which you and the rest of the Craft subscribe is laid out safely and well, and to the very utmost of our power. And I might lastly remind you, as the practical results of it all, that you have no less t this moment than 200 girls that every year receive the benefit of this great Charity. Brethren, these 200 girls are the daughters of Freemasons. You are giving them that which is the greatest boon that can be given—a good wholesome education, fitting them for the discharge of their duties in life—a greater boon than money—a greater boon than any fugitive and transitory places or situations that might be found; because, in fact, you are creating in them habits of mind and character that fit them to discharge the great moral duties of life. Brethren there are two classes of charitable institutions, as I have endeavoured to point out to you; the one class are those who are constantly in debt and in difficulty—well I do not say that they must not be helped; it is very often our duty to come to the assistance, whether in the Craft or out of the Craft, as the case may be, of those who are in debt and difficulty. We are enjoined to do this to our poor brethren; and it is a duty that I am sure is always remembered by Freemasons, and ought steadily to be kept before them, but there are other societies, and unfortunately they are very few which are in the position of this Institution, solvent, and solvent through care and good management; and I maintain that where you find any society or charity of that sort it entitles them at least to the highest respect and consideration at your hands. Brethren, I have only one other statement which, perhaps, I ought to make, and I know it will give great satisfaction to all in this room—it is this, that in spite of the unfortunate failure which took place some months ago in the financial disposition of our money, I believe that this Institution has not lost one single halfpenny. (Great Cheers.) How it has come to pass can only be known by an examination of the accounts, but it will not be the less satisfactory to all in this room to know that this old and valued Charity will certainly not be a loser in any degree. Brethren, from year to year that appeal has been renewed on behalf of this as on behalf of the other great charities of which we are proud. From year to year that appeal has been renewed, and it has never been renewed in vain. This year I am aware is a year of great commercial depression and difficulty; but yet with entire confidence I make my appeal to you to-night on behalf of this Institution, feeling well-assured that the response, as it proceeds from willing hearts, so it will be found to be no inconsiderable, no unworthy sum, no sum disproportionate to that which has been collected in former times. I beg to join with this toast the name of one who is worthily connected with the affairs of the Institution, and to whom that Institution owes so much—I need not say, Colonel Craton, the Treasurer.

Col. Craton said: Brethren, I feel very great pleasure and pride in being called upon to return thanks for the Girls' School of which I have had recently the high honour of being elected Treasurer. Owing to special circumstances the present position of the school is one of some anxiety necessarily to all connected with its administration. We have recently lost the very valuable services of Bro. Little, in whom the subscribers and the Committee had equal confidence, and it is not possible for any one except those connected with the management of the school to express fully how greatly the future (humanly speaking) depends on the right man being put in the right place. But for this circumstance I should have been prepared to point out the hopeful position of the Girls' School. It never stood higher in the estimation of our Craft than it does now, and I have therefore no fear for the future; and I believe that in years to come as in the years that are gone by the Girls' School will continue to merit and receive the hearty and liberal support of our benevolent Order. One disappointment occurred to the Committee during the last three months, namely, the sickness in the school, and the retardation of the visit of the Princess of Wales, and of our Royal Grand Master. I am happy to repeat now that the sanitary condition of the school to-day is decidedly better, and I therefore sincerely trust that the auspicious visit, though it has not yet taken place, is only deferred for a short time, and that it will take place within a very brief period. I am sure that in the sickness that has taken place we have had that heartfelt sympathy of the Craft which has always been extended to us; and I hope that it will always be one of the characteristics of the Order towards our Institution. I thank you, my Lord, on behalf of myself and the Girls' School. (Applause)

Making a total of £8,551 3s. 9d.

The list of Bro. G. A. Berkeley, of Lodge 108, has since come to hand, £19 19s.

Bro. Richard Giddy: The toast which I am about to offer to you I am happy in having had placed in my hands, because I am sure it will be heartily responded to by you. You have already been prepared for it by the speeches which have preceded mine. After the manner in which the Pro Grand Master spoke of the management of the Charity I shall confine myself to announcing the toast which has been placed in my hands. I give you "The Health of the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, various Committees, and Medical Officers," coupling it with the name of Bro. Rucker.

Bro. Rucker: My Lord and brethren, I hardly think that I can visit upon the noble chairman of this evening the infliction that is put upon me so unexpectedly. His lordship called our attention to a few evenings ago, when the Prince of Wales presided over the Grand Festival of the year, and I think my memory does not fail me when I say that our present chairman expressed the opinion that the Senior Grand Provincial Officer was revolving in his mind what he should respond to the toast. Now such an opportunity has not been given to me, or I might have been able possibly to offer some remarks, in a measure, worthy of your acceptance. I have to thank you for the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, various Committees, and Medical Officers. As regards the performance of their duties by the Medical Officers, the highest praise is due to them, and as regards the remainder, the Vice-Patrons, the Vice-Presidents, the Trustees, and the various Committees, they all do their duty to the very utmost of their ability, and are indebted to you, my lord, and to this great meeting, for the compliment they have received at your hands.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, there are still two or three toasts on this list which deserve all your attention before we bring our proceedings to an end. And the next that I have to give you is one which will recommend itself, I am sure, to every Mason, it is "The Health of our Masonic Charities." Brethren, Freemasonry combines particularly two things—it combines profession and practice. The profession we reserve for the more secret uses of this Craft; they are not to be divulged to the profane, but our practice is open and popular, and upon no part of the practice can we look with greater satisfaction, and even pride, than upon our Masonic charities. We have this evening been toasting and praising, and doing honour in every way, both in word and pecuniarily, to the great Charity which has called us together, but we must not forget that there are three charities, and that the others are second to this to-night only because this is specially the Festival of the Girls' School. I shall couple with this toast the name of a brother whom I have long had the pleasure of knowing; who has long been connected with the charities, and to whom I do not think I am wrong in saying that the charities owe much of their prosperity.

Bro. Binckes: My Lord and brethren, the march of events has once again brought us to the celebration of the nineteenth anniversary of this Institution. It is just possible that, large as the subscriptions and donations have been this evening, they may not have quite come up to the expectations of the supporters and friends of the charity. It is not, however, a matter of very great surprise, I think, when we consider the large sum collected in February for the Benevolent Institution, and considering also the depressed condition of trade at the present time we must conclude that the Festival of the Girls' School has been a decided success. It is a usual arrangement in returning thanks for this toast, as separate speeches by the representatives of the other charities would necessarily involve a great deal of repetition, for the officer of one charity to return thanks for both. I have, therefore, to thank you on behalf of the Boys' School, and on behalf of the Benevolent Institution for the kind manner in which this toast has been proposed and responded to. And I cannot but look forward with pleasure and hope to the coming Festival of the Boys' School, which will be held either in June or July next, when I trust that many of those present this evening will come forward again, and that we shall see them as Stewards on that occasion. I had hoped to have been in a position to inform you that I was in possession of the commands of the Duke of Connaught as to the precise date for the Boys' School Festival. I am sorry that I am not yet in possession of his Royal Highness's definite views in this respect, but it will be either in June or July, and I trust that when it occurs we shall be amply supported by the brethren whom I see present to night.

Earl of Carnarvon: Let me remind you that none of these great meetings can be got together, and none of them can be made to pass off successfully, unless there are a good deal of care and attention upon the part of those who have the management; and it is to the Stewards that we look for this. If this has been a successful meeting it is due to those gentlemen who have discharged the duties of Stewards. One of those you know well fulfils many more duties than that of Steward—our Brother McIntyre. There is no great Masonic question in which his sympathies are not enlisted, and I can readily say that there is no Masonic difficulty occurs in Grand Lodge that he does not come to the rescue of the Presiding Master, with his ability, his learning, and Masonic experience. Brethren, let me, therefore, give you with the health of the Stewards that of our Bro. Æneas J. McIntyre.

Bro. McIntyre: I beg to tender our most sincere thanks for the manner in which you have been pleased to propose our health. The Stewards have endeavoured to do their duty, and to provide a proper entertainment for you on this occasion. It is the part of every Mason to discharge those duties which come within his province on every occasion. I trust we have done ours to your satisfaction, and I thank you for your appreciation of our efforts.

The Earl of Carnarvon: There is one toast in my list I am bound to respect, but the fair objects of that toast are conspicuous by their absence, and inasmuch as they have fled from this room, I think that we cannot do better than join them.

During the banquet a choice selection of vocal and instrumental music was performed, and after the banquet a grand concert took place in the Temple, where the brethren joined the ladies. The concert was under the direction of Bro. Lehmeyer, assisted by the following artistes:—Madame Tellefesen, Miss Elene Webster, Madame Thaddeus Wells, Madame Marie Belval, Miss Adele Vernon, and Madlle. Victoria Bunsen; Mr. William Shakespeare, Mr. Stanislaus, Bro. Faulkner Leigh, Signor Menari Rocca, and Bro. Fredk. Penna. The piano accompaniments, &c., were performed by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, P.G.O. The Concertina Quartette Association were also present.

The banquet was admirably served by Bro. Best, the proprietor of Freemasons' Tavern, and well superintended by him, and Bro. E Dawkins, manager.

Bro. Harker was, as usual, an efficient Toastmaster.

Masonic and General Tidings.

A Grand Masonic Recital will take place in the Masonic Hall, Leicester, on Friday next, (Her Majesty's birthday) under the auspices of the lodge of St. John, No. 279, by Bro. T. H. Scott. Ladies and friends may be introduced by the brethren.

The Hull Packet states, that the sum of £80 15s. has been handed over to Bro. C. L. Mason, the treasurer of the Leeds Masonic Educational and Benevolent Fund, by Mr. Stockdale, being the result of the two entertainments given a short time since.

Hospital Saturday will this year be celebrated on September 7th.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, price 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s 2d.—ADVT.

The twin steamer, the "Calais-Douvres," has arrived at Dover, having made the trip from Shields in twenty-three hours, with the occasional stopping of her engines for the oiling of her machinery. Her speed is said to have exceeded that of the "Castalia" by as much as four or five knots an hour.

Rossini's remains are to be removed to Florence, and finally placed in the Church of Santa Croce, where Cherubini is buried.

TESTIMONIAL TO MR. LETHBRIDGE.—In accordance with a resolution, which was agreed to unanimously, at the last annual meeting of the supporters of the News-vendors' Benevolent and Provident Institution, an illuminated album will shortly be presented to Mr. William Lethbridge, the well-known managing partner of the firm of Messrs. W. H. Smith and Son, in recognition of his very successful efforts to increase the funds of the institution on the occasion of the anniversary dinner over which he presided on March 2.

We are asked to state that the Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction No. 898, is held every Wednesday evening (excepting the last in the month) at the "George the Fourth," Ida-street, Poplar, at 7 30.

Bro. W. D. Finney, P.M., &c.; has been elected W.M. of the Gilbert Greenall Lodge, 1250, Warrington. Bro. Dr. John Bowes, P.M., P.P.J.G.W.; Cumberland and Westmorland, will probably take part in his installation on the 11th inst., next.

The testimonial to Bro. King, Preceptor of the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, held at the Prince's Head, York rd., Battersea, will be presented to that worthy brother on Tuesday next, the 21st inst. The testimonial has been subscribed to by the whole of the members of the lodge.

Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart., M.P., R.W. G. Master for North Wales and Shropshire, is the "Celebrity at Home" in this week's "World."

In the report of the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution which appeared in the Special Edition of the Freemason last week, the amount credited to Bro. M. Tennant, of the Province of South Wales, Eastern Division, was, by the falling out of one figure, £11. It should have been as it is in this day's issue, £117. Bro. John Faulkner's name (of the Era Lodge, No. 1423), was printed in error Thos. Faulkener.

Bro. Samuel Tisley, late vestry clerk and father of Bro. A. Tisley, the present vestry clerk, of St. Dunstan's in the West, died at his residence at Twickenham on Thursday, the 9th inst. The funeral took place on Wednesday, at which many brethren were present.

KENNING'S CYCLOPEDIA.—Freemasons in every part of the world will be highly pleased with this volume, which is very tastefully got up. Based on Mackey's invaluable work, it does not profess to be a thoroughly exhaustive and completely accurate cyclopædia, but it is one of which the author may well be proud, and well deserves the support of every member of the Craft. The author expresses his indebtedness to Bro. W. J. Hughan, who not only contributed several valuable items, but who revised all the proof sheets. Several other members are thanked for their help and important suggestions. The handbook is in every respect satisfactory, and no lodge should be without a copy. Price 10s. 6d.—The European Mail.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Outward Infirmities.—Before the discovery of these remedies many cases of sores, ulcers, &c., were pronounced to be hopelessly incurable, because the treatment pursued tended to destroy the strength it was incompetent to preserve, and to exasperate the symptoms it was inadequate to remove. Holloway's Pills exert the most wholesome powers over the unhealthy flesh or skin, without debaring the patient from fresh air and exercise, and thus the constitutional vigour is husbanded while the most malignant ulcers, abscesses and skin diseases are in process of cure. Both Ointment and Pills make the blood richer and purer, instead of permitting it to fall into that poor and watery state so fatal to many labouring under chronic ulcerations.—[ADVT.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LEWIS LODGE (No. 1185).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday last, at the King's Arms Hotel, Wood Green, and was numerously attended. Amongst the Visitors present were Bro. Brown, W.M. Prosperity Lodge; Bro. Daniel, I.P.M. Prosperity Lodge; Bro. Bush, S.W. Temple Bar Lodge, and Bro. Corner, P.M. Peckham Lodge. The ceremonies were worked by W.M. Sayer in his usual efficient manner. Bro. Harris was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason; Bros. Black and Hearson were passed; Bro. Neave elected a joining member; and Mr. Edward Best initiated. A communication was read from Grand Lodge respecting the recent decision of the French Grand Lodge, and after other business had been transacted the lodge was closed with prayer in due form, and adjourned till the third Saturday in June. The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet. "The Healths of the Visitors" were duly given and responded to, as well as that of the brother initiate.

LOSTWITHIEL.—Lodge St. Matthew (No. 56).—On the invitation of the courteous W.M. of the above lodge, Bro. Walter Smith, C.E., we visited with great pleasure the pleasant little Cornish town of Lostwithiel, and attended the opening of the Lodge St. Matthew on the first occasion after its completion on Wednesday, the 1st inst. The building is very ancient, forming part of the Palace of the Earls and Dukes of Cornwall, and from its quasi-ecclesiastical appearance seems admirably adapted for Masonic purposes. The property purchased is a very interesting one. There were it appears some engravings published by Samuel and Nathaniel Buck, in 1734, and dedicated to the Hon. Richard Edgcombe, Esq., and they there describe the building as follows: "This was the principal Palace and exchequer of the Earls and Dukes of Cornwall after removal from Restormel Castle on ye adjacent Hill, where it first was. Mayoralty Markets, Faires, and nomination of Burgesses for the Parliament it hath in common with the most Coynage of Tin only with 3 others, but ye gave for ye whole Stannary and keep, ing of ye County Courts itself alone." Describing Restormel Castle, an engraving of which was published at the same time, it is said: "Lestormel or Restormel, or as otherwise Lestmel Castle, was one of ye most ancient and principal seats of ye British Dukes of Cornwall and others long before ye Conquest. The Town of Lestwithiel* was anciently on this Hill till ye people and their Prince for convenience of ye river Foy† moved lower down. The Dukes of Cornwall had a park here till it was disparked by King Henry VIII." Bro. Walter Smith, the W.M., our informant, says he cannot ascertain the date of removal from Restormel Castle to the building now occupied—but he thinks it was probably about the middle of the 13th century. All records, he believes, were destroyed in Cromwell's time. Adjoining the new lodge is the ancient Prison where offenders against the old Stannary laws were confined, and tradition says that the prisoners used to beg from passers by, lowering a piece of string from the windows of their cells, (about 20 ft. above the road), to which they attached their shoes, and by this means drew up alms from the benevolent. Our genial correspondent adds "I trust that the present occupier of the adjoining palace and their successors will never have occasion to solicit alms from passers by, but, on the contrary, will be always both able and ready to help and assist every needy brother who requires assistance." The building has doubtless undergone many alterations at various periods, the greatest appears to have been made early in the present century, when the upper floor was taken away, making the two storeys into one the dormers which lighted the upper rooms were removed, all the small windows which had given light to the lower storey were blocked up and two large Gothic windows substituted. The old entrance which had been on the east side was also built up and a new one formed at the south end by taking out a large window and substituting doors, and building steps on the outside. As the land could not be purchased to improve the entrance, which was decidedly bad, Bro. Smith determined to revert to the original doorway, and finding a fine old pointed arch of Pentuan stone in the south wall, which had originally formed the interior arch of the south window, he had the arch taken out, and carefully rebuilt on the eastern side as an exterior arch to the main entrance. As there was not sufficient light, one of the old windows has been opened out, and a brother has kindly and generously presented the lodge with new lights in cathedral-tinted glass for this and the other windows of the lodge. The lodge room is 30 ft. a d 20 ft. by 14 ft. high, and the modern ceiling has been allowed to remain, which somewhat spoils the effect. It was the intention of Bro. Smith, who has been the honorary and very able architect of the work, had the roof been in good condition, to remove the ceiling and show the open timber roof, but on examination the oak principals were found so decayed that it was necessary to put new principals close to the old ones, and the funds would not allow of a new roof altogether. We hope, however, that with so energetic a Master, and brethren so willing to support him as the W.M. has found, the open timber roof may yet be completed, when St. Matthew's Lodge will be the prettiest and most perfect little Gothic chamber in Cornwall. We should add that there is an ante-room, where banquets may be held, 20 ft. long, 14 ft. wide, and 14 ft. high; a Tyler's room, a candidate's preparation room, lavatory and offices, all completed in very good style. The building was sold by our beloved Grand Master the Prince of Wales, as Duke of Cornwall, to Mr. Mark Thomas two or three years ago, and purchased from him by the Lostwithiel Masons. It is freehold, and the ultimate trust is vested in the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall. Bro. Smith was appointed by the lodge honorary architect to carry out the alterations, and Bros. J. Hugill, P.M. and Sec.; Henry De Legh, P.M. and Treasurer; Frank Parkyn, P.M.; W. Machean and H. H. Kidd, S.W., have formed an excellent Building Committee, and have worked most energetically. Bro. Bassett, J.W., was the contractor for the masonry, and Bro. Burt, P.M., contractor for the carpenters' work. The whole of the new furniture, which is handsome and appropriate, was presented by the brethren of the lodge. We congratulate St. Matthew's Lodge in being possessed of a building which, in its restoration and the manner in which it is fitted up, reflects credit on the brethren, who have generously assisted in making it one of the best and most appropriate edifices for the pursuit of knowledge in our ancient mysteries, and the science of Masonry. Bro. Smith informs us that they purpose decorating the walls before the formal opening and dedication of the lodge by the popular P.G.M., the Earl of Mount Edgcombe, who has been a generous donor towards the expenses, and he gives us the gratifying intelligence that the purchasing of the building has somewhat reduced, instead of as might have been expected increased, the annual expenses at the lodge, which was held by dispensation, pending the consecration. On the 1st inst., there were present Bros. W.P. Smith, W.M.; H. H. Kidd, S.W.; J. Bassett, J.W.; Rev. A. H. Ferris, P.P.G.C., S.D. and Chaplain; Henry De Legh, P.M., Treasurer; J. Hugill, P.M., Sec.; E. Scantlebury P.M., J.W.; J. Burt, I.P.M.; and others. Visiting brethren: H. W. Durant, W.M. 977; F. B. Williams, P.M. 977; J. Polkinghorne, P.M. 1151; W. Tonkin, P.M. and Sec. 977; Rev. Dr. Treffry, P.P.G.R.; Emra Holmes, P.P.G.R. and P.P.G.D.C. Suffolk; J. R. Collins, P.P.G.S.B.; Col. Peard, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Sadler, P.P.G.S.B. Devon; Rev. E. K. Kendall, of the Westminster and Keystone Lodge, and others. The lodge having been opened Mr. Wm. Boxhall was initiated into the mysteries of Masonry by the W.M., who afterwards raised Bro. John Brewer to the Third Degree, performing both ceremonies in a very efficient and most impressive manner. At the close of the lodge the hearty good wishes of the visitors were cordially received and reciprocated, and it was proposed to invite the Prov. Grand Master to open the Provincial Grand Lodge here in 1879, when the building would be formally dedicated.

FAVERSHAM.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 133).—The annual installation meeting was held on Monday, 6th inst. when a large number of brethren from the various lodges in the province, including Bros. W. A. Hill, Grand Chaplain, P.G.C.; and Fred Binckes, Grand Steward, P.M., Secretary of the Masonic Boys' School. Brethren from Lodge 1273, Sittingbourne; F. F. Seale, W.M.; H. Tuff, S.W.; H. G. Suther, J.W.; Thos. Newman, Sec.; Geo. Payne, P.M.; B. Taylor, P.M.; H. Black, A. Tucker, P. G. Kennett, Jas. Owens, P.M.; W. Wood, P. M. Brethren from Sheerness lodges, 1089 and 158; E. J. Penny, W.M.; J. Hancock, P.M.; A. Spears, P.M.; James Watts, W.M.; E. Studely, Joseph Harnden, W. M. 184; John R. Hall, P.M. 31; H. J. Naylor, W.M. 1449; Edward Terry, W.M. 1206; H. Miskin, S.D. 1449; G. Broach, 114; E. J. Acworth, 1612; R. B. Newsome, W.M. 1693, P.P.G.S.B. Kent; John Overly Eve, W.M. 1209; Geo. Page, P.P.G.J.D., P.M., 1209; J. Kent, W. M. 116; Alfred Aubrey, 127. The brethren of the entertaining Lodge of Harmony 133, were represented by Bros. J.W. Penton, W.M.; Jas. M. Longhurst, S.W. and W.M. elect; F. A. Whiting, J.W.; W. H. Drake, S.D.; F. Jackson, Sec., P.M.; R. Griggs, P.M.; C. A. Fawn, I. G.; F. F. Giraud, P.M., P.P.G.J.D.; E. K. Nutting, E. Hogben, S. Payne, F. W. Underdown, Geo. French, and John E. Cook. The retiring W.M. performed the ceremony of installation in a manner which elicited high praise from several old Past Masters. The present W.M., Bro. J. M. Longhurst, of Dodington, near Faversham, was unanimously elected to this chair, and it is anticipated a most successful year of office is in store for him. The way in which he had entered into his Masonic duties, and the energy he at all times displayed, not only reflects credit on himself, but on the lodge, which is now in a most flourishing and prosperous condition. The following are the officers for the present year; Bro. Hill, G.C., P.G.C., Chaplain; F. Whiting, S.W.; W. H. Drake, J.W.; F. W. Underdown, S.D.; S. Payne, J.D.; E. K. Nutting, I. G.; J. G. Corke, Tyler. A banquet was held at the Ship Hotel, after the ceremony, when close upon 50 brethren sat down. The usual toasts were proposed and responded to.

TORQUAY.—St. John's Lodge (No. 328).—A meeting of this ancient and progressive lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday evening, May 6th, Bro. B. Fullwood, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. S. Burton, I.P.M.; J. Piggott, P.M., D.C.; T. Oliver, P.M.; D. Watson, P.M., P.G.J.D., Secretary; J. C. Harland, P.P.G.J.D., Treasurer; Hesketh Lawrence Palk, S.W.; T. S. Bailey, (acting) J.W.; T. Salter, (acting) S.D.; W. Wakeham, J.D.; J. G. Mortimer, I.G.; H. Day, Steward; T. Brookes, Organist; Grant, Edoles, and others. The lodge having been opened in due form with solemn prayer, the Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, in which were contained the communication from Grand Lodge regarding the Grand Orient of France. These being confirmed, Mr. C. Chambers, was then balloted for, and being accepted unanimously, was duly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft according to the ancient rite, the work being performed by the W.M. with his accustomed ability. The charge was ably rendered by Bro. J. C. Harland, P.M., P.P.G.J.D. Bro. Battinson having proved satisfactory on examination, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when the ceremony of passing by the W.M. was equally satisfactory as that of initiation in the First Degree. The new musical ritual, compiled by the combined efforts of the esteemed W.M. and the Organist, and lately introduced into the lodge, has done much to render the ceremonies more effective, combining a religious force which adds greatly to the effect, the lodge being particularly happy in having such a zealous Organist. One very pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation to the lodge, through a handsome donation of Bro. Piggott, P.M., D.C., of a copy of Bro. Harty's "Grand Installation Picture." The receipt of the present being suitably acknowledged by the W.M. and others, the unanimous thanks of the lodge were tendered to the giver. The brethren afterwards sat down to a substantial repast, presided over by the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly acknowledged, being interspersed by songs and glees rendered by the choir of the lodge, Bro. Brooks ably presiding at the piano.

MARYPORT.—Lodge of Perseverance (No. 371).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., it being election night, there was a large muster of members, amongst whom were Bros. T. Mandle, I.P.M., in the chair, Bro. Carey, W.M., being from home; Jos. Nicholson, P.M., Treasurer; W. Armstrong, P.M.; Jas. Gardiner, P.M.; J. W. Robinson, S.W.; J. Fulton, J.W.; E. G. Mitchell, Secretary; J. Elliot, S.D.; J. Stoddart, J.D.; T. Waite, I.G.; J. Smith, Organist; T. Harris, Tyler; Dr. Crerar, J. R. Banks, J. H. Banks, T. Moore, T. Weatherston, J. H. Raven, P. Wedgwood, J. Fletcher, J. W. Thompson, and others. Visitor: Bro. W. T. Lamony, P.M. 1002 (Freemason). The lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes read and confirmed, Bro. John Kendal proved his proficiency as a F.C., and subsequently was raised to the Sublime Degree by Bro. Nicholson, P.M., in the old veteran's incomparable style. The lodge was then severally reduced to the First Degree, when the election of W.M. was proceeded with. After a close contest amongst three, Bro. J. W. Robinson, S.W., was elected by a narrow majority over Bro. Dr. Crerar. Bro. Nicholson was next unanimously re-elected Treasurer for the thirty-third time an attempt, by the old man, to propose another candidate having originally failed, and very properly, as everyone present seemed to think. After some other matters had been disposed of, the lodge was closed in form. The festival of St. John will be observed next month.

LIVERPOOL.—Alliance Lodge (No. 677).—Bro. John Ellis, W.M., presided at the last monthly meeting of this lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, and amongst those present were Bros. G. S. Willings, I. P.M.; J. E. Jackson, P.M., P.G.S., West Lancashire; E. Bolton, P.M.; John Devaynes, P.M.; W. C. Bulman, P.M.; H. Firth, S.W.; J. H. Gregory, J.W.; T. Ockleshaw, P.M., Treasurer; T. Peake, Secretary; D. Lloyd, S.D.; A. Bucknall, J.D.; J. Foulds, I.G.; J. Bailey, S.S.; Craghill, J.S.; and Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., who presided at the organ. There was a good attendance of members, and the visitors included Bros. H. Pearson, P.M. 249, P.G.S.; J. S. Dixon, P.M. 1264; T. Clark, P. M. and Treas. 673; J. R. Bottomley, S.W. 1675; J. Thompson, S.W. 1013; J. Jackson, 424; and S. P. Gore, 1356. More than usual interest attached to the meeting from the fact that the sons of two of the most esteemed P.M.'s of the lodge—Bro. J. Jackson and Bro. G. S. Willings—were on the circular for initiation. The lodge was opened in the First Degree by Bro. J. Ellis, W. M., and the minutes were afterwards read and confirmed. The chair was then taken by Bro. John E. Jackson, P. M., P.G.S., who initiated into Freemasonry Mr. George Jackson, Thomas Radley Willings, J. W. Broadbent, and

* Now spelt "Lostwithiel." † Now spelt "Fowey."

J. Barker, the two first named being the sons of the worthy P.M.'s referred to. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Bick and Stewart were passed to the degree of F.C. After some other business the proceedings were brought to a close. It is understood and arranged that Bro. Willings, I.P.M., will raise his son and Bro. Jackson, jun., in due course, to the Sublime Degree of M.M.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at the M.H., William-street, Bro. S. Waters, W.M., presiding, supported by the following officers: Bros. T. Butt, I.P.M.; Past Masters E. Bowles, G. Crawford, and T. Ward; A. Woodley, S.W.; J. Warren, J.W.; C. Noeman, P.M. and Sec. pro. tem.; C. Cooke, Organist; E. B. Hobson, J.D.; W. McCoy, I.G.; G. Beaver, D.C.; and B. Norman, Tyler. The visitors included Bros. W. B. Lloyd, J.W. 913; W. Rees, 913; J. S. Mutch, J.W. 706; Watkins, 1536; H. J. Ritchings, 1151; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The business before the lodge consisted of the balloting for Mr. Jas. Maling, and the result being unanimous, the W.M. initiated him into Freemasonry in excellent style. Bro. Carty was then raised to the Sublime Degree, and the lodge was closed in due form. At the refreshment table the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, and then Bro. Butt rose to propose "The Health of the W.M.," and in so doing said when he looked back upon the year they had so nearly passed, during which time their W.M. had sat in the chair, he felt it was only his duty to thank him for his efforts for their happiness and comfort, as well as for the manner in which he had carried out the duties attached to the office. He need not dwell longer upon the many good qualities of their W.M. upon the present occasion, but should perhaps at their next meeting have something to say that would show their W.M. the feeling of the lodge towards him. He asked them to do justice to the toast. Bro. Waters, in reply, said it was with a feeling of great satisfaction that he contemplated the end of his year of office, and of the time so near when he should have to hand it over to his successor. The past year had been one of perfect harmony, and although they had not the satisfaction of seeing so many new faces come among them as had attended the official year of many of his predecessors, yet the old ones still came among them as plentifully as ever. They were a strong and united lodge, and quite numerous enough for all practical purposes; in fact, when he had told some of his friends at London lodges that the Nelson Lodge had 120 good and true members, they said that they were enough for four lodges (hear, hear), but so long as they continued as they were, firm and united, whoever came after him would find it, as he had, a pleasure and an honour to preside over them. "The Visitors" was the next toast, and Bro. Jolly responded, thanking the W.M. and brethren of the lodge for their courteous reception of the visitors, and care for their comfort. Their W.M. had referred to the few candidates for initiation who during his year of office had applied for admission into the Nelson Lodge, but Bro. Jolly had noticed a great falling off in that respect in most of the lodges in the district. For himself he did not regret it, for they were unusually strong there, and number was not the best claim to Masonic success for any lodge. He congratulated the Nelson Lodge upon having soon another addition to its large and honoured array of Past Masters, and felt sure that whoever filled the chair would carry out the splendid traditions of the lodge for good working, courteous hospitality, and last, but not least, perfect charity. The next toast was that of "The Initiate," and in proposing it the W.M. said it would be a source of lasting satisfaction to him to know that he had had the privilege of initiating Bro. Maling into Freemasonry. He and Bro. Maling were old acquaintances, and from what he knew of that brother's character, he felt sure they would never regret his admission among them. Bro. Maling, who occupies some important positions in the local parliaments of the town, and is universally respected for his charity and goodness of heart, suitably replied, and felt sure from what he had seen that night that he should never regret joining their noble Order. The toast of "The Past Masters" was responded to by Bro. Butt, who, trusted the day was far distant when the Nelson Lodge would be without a good array of Past Masters. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and Bro. Woodley responded. "The Masonic Press," coupled with the name of our representative, followed, and was acknowledged, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the labour and pleasures of the evening.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Lodge (No. 823).—The monthly meeting of this highly prosperous lodge was held on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, where there was a large attendance of officers, brethren, and visitors. Bro. John Houlding, W.M., was in his place of honour, supported by a full complement of officers and P.M.'s including Bros. W. Wilson, I.P.M.; T. Shaw, P.M.; W. Cottrell, P.M.; J. Holland, P.M.; W. J. Lunt, P.M., Treasurer; H. Ashmore, S.W.; J. S. Cuthbert, J.W., and others. The First and Second Degrees were given by Bro. Houlding, W.M., in a manner which elicited universal commendation from the visitors, and his officers ably seconded him in his masterly efforts. At the repast which followed labour, there was quite an agreeable variety of toasts and songs, "The P.G. M. and his Officers," being responded to by Bro. W. Vines, P.G.D.C., and Bro. H. Jackson, P.G.A.D.C. "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. R. Bennett, P.M. 1209, T. Sammons, P.M. 1393; Davies (hailing from a Canadian Lodge), and others.

LIVERPOOL.—Neptune Lodge (No. 1264).—The numerous brethren attached to this lodge were summoned to attend their Masonic duties on Monday evening, the 6th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope street, Liverpool. Bro. Joseph Healing, W.M., was in his place in the E., supported by a very full attendance of officers, members, and visitors, and after the lodge had been duly opened, and the minutes of previous meeting read, Mr. Alexander Dinsmore, who was unanimously elected, was initiated into Freemasonry by the W.M. in his usually effective manner. Bro. Joseph Korn, the S.W., was afterwards cordially elected W.M. for the coming year, and Bro. Peter Berriman Gee, I.P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. After several notices of motion as to granting various sums of money had been given, and other important business transacted, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony. The brethren subsequently adjourned to banquet, and after spending a very pleasant evening they separated at an early hour.

ECCLES.—Bridgwater Lodge (No. 1213).—The annual meeting of the members of the above lodge was held on Thursday afternoon week, in the lodge rooms, Cross Keys Hotel. There was a good attendance of members and visitors. The ordinary business of the lodge having been got through, the installation ceremony was performed by the retiring W.M. (Bro. E. D. Wills). The W.M. elect invested as his officers, Bros. Jas. Andrew, S.W.; H. E. N. Puenjer, J.W.; Rev. J. Cater, Chaplain; W. Bowden, P.P.G.S.B., P.M., Treasurer; Isaac Sim, Secretary; Thos. Hassall, S.D.; John Willis, J.D.; D. A. Murray, I.G.; Thomas B. Cavanah, P.M., D.C.; R. Winstanley and A. Hassall, Stewards. The banquet, which was of a recherche character, was served in a manner that did credit to Mr. Morton's efforts. The toast of the evening "The Worshipful Master, Brother Harry Lynill," was proposed in eulogistic terms by the I.P.M., Bro. E. D. Wills, and was ably and feelingly responded to by Bro. Lynill, who characterised the event of that day as one of great pride to himself. Although he had some misgivings on account of the feeble state of his health, he had confidence that with the able assistance he was sure to receive from his officers he should be able to sustain the lodge in the good working order it was left by his predecessor. "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. E. D. Wills," was proposed by P.M. Bro. Williams, who presented Bro. Wills with the P.M.'s jewel. The recipient having suitably replied, the Rev. J. Cater (Chaplain) proposed "The Visiting Brethren," which was responded to by Bro. P. Taylor, P.M. "The Newly-invested Officers" having been duly honoured, Bro. Jas. Andrew S.W., responded. Some other toasts were given, and the business of the evening, which was rendered doubly interesting by the efforts of an efficient glee party, was brought to a close.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—The installation meeting of this successful lodge, established in April, 1868, at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, in Camberwell, has during the past ten years had a career of almost unexampled prosperity, and has taken high rank in the Craft for its admirable working and for its liberality to the Institutions of the Order. From its formation to the present time its presiding and subordinate officers have all been found equal to their duty, and it would appear to be useless on the part of any member of the lodge to aspire to office unless he gave assurance that in due time he would not only discharge his duties in each respective appointment, but also fit himself for the position of W.M., and leave that dignified situation as Installing Master. This being generally acknowledged in the Masonic world, it was no surprise to us to find a large gathering at the lodge rooms on the 9th inst., to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the lodge and welcome the incoming W.M. Amongst those present were Bros. Henry Hammond, W.M.; T. Woodbridge Carnell, S.W.; Charles Fountain, J.W.; C. C. Domville, Chaplain; Arthur Styan, Treasurer; D. A. Ross, S.D.; T. A. Harper, D.C.; F. J. Cozens, Organist; W. C. Hale, I.G.; E. Eldridge, Steward; and Past Masters A. L. Irvine (Major 1st Surrey Rifles), James Stevens (originator of the lodge), S. H. Wagstaff, George Waterfall, G. H. Newington Bridges, W. J. Messenger, Secretary; and Mark S. Larham; also Clay, Rossignol, Captain Wire, Cranch, Bradley, Fitzer, Woodcock, Goggs, Rugg, Turner, Harvey, Hutchins, Price, Goldring, Henry Bridges, Foster, J. J. Curtis (late Secretary), Yonge, Carpenter, Style, Henton, Youngman, Besley, Stacey, Jarman, Mann, Danford, Hildreth, and many others; and visitors, Bros. G. Potter, 177; Bruntton, W.M. 1060; Fisher, 1185; Dunbar, 1538; Taylor, 586; Strachan, Middlemass, W.M. 1641; Herbert Puckle, 176; Eastwood, P.M. 317; Simons, 1185; Theodore Distin, Cowan, W.M. 1572; Jarvis, 14, and others. The lodge was opened promptly at the hour appointed, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Rossignol to the degree of F.C. He then proceeded to the installation of his successor, and in most able manner completed the duties of his year of office by inducting Bro. T. Woodbridge Carnell into the chair of K.S. The first act of the newly-installed W.M. was a graceful acknowledgment of the excellent working of his predecessor in all the ceremonies of the Craft Degrees whilst in office, and this was cordially received by the entire lodge. The officers for the ensuing year were appointed and invested in the following order, viz.: Bros. C. Fountain, S.W.; D. A. Ross, J.W.; the Rev. C. C. Domville, Chaplain; A. Styan, Treasurer; W. J. Messenger, P.M., Secretary; T. A. Harper, S.D.; W. C. Hale, J.D.; E. Eldridge, I.G.; Bradley, Steward; Steed, Tyler. A ballot was taken for Mr. Herbert Cuff as a candidate for initiation, and Bro. Carnell at once gave evidence of his ability by initiating that gentleman into the Order in a most perfect manner. The report of the Audit Committee was received, and told a flattering tale, exhibiting moderate expenditure in house bills, large charitable donations, honourable testimonial gifts, and a balance in hand of above one hundred pounds, with furniture and good subscriptions due to swell the sum total of general prosperity. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Major A. L. Irvine, P.M., then called the late Secretary, Bro. J. J. Curtis, "to the front," and in a most brilliant speech recited the many invaluable services rendered by him to the lodge during ten years' Secretaryship, a post which he had surrendered only to enable him to attend to the numerous duties connected with his late appointment as quartermaster to the corps. Referring incidentally to a former presentation after the first three years of lodge working, Major Irvine now asked the acceptance by Bro. Curtis of a Life Governorship of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and of an illuminated address, setting forth the acknowledgments of the members of the lodge and an expression of their high esteem and great regard for him. The address of Bro. Irvine was listened to with marked attention, and at its conclusion prolonged applause testified the appreciation of the members therewith, and the popularity of the recipient of the address, whose familiar cognomen is a household word, as well in the lodge as in the corps. Bro. Curtis briefly but very effectively acknowledged the honourable testimony of brotherly feeling and regard. Propositions for initiation having been received, and some further detail business disposed of, the brethren adjourned to the spacious mess-room of the corps for banquet. A large number of members and visitors, principally in uniform, and more or less decorated with Masonic orders, graced the elegantly furnished tables, which glittered with massive trophies from Wimbledon and elsewhere won by the "shooting members." Amongst these were conspicuous the "Macdonald Challenge Cup," a handsome shield presented by Major Irvine, lofty candelabra, and numerous smaller but valuable prizes, the whole giving the banquet table a most attractive appearance. On the cloth being cleared grace was sung by Bros. T. W. Simons, F. H. Cozens, H. Taylor, and Theodore Distin, and these brethren, with Bros. Cranch and Hildreth, under the direction of Bro. Cozens, admirably entertained the company throughout the evening. The W.M. gave the loyal toasts in well chosen terms, and these were, as usual in the "Macdonald," honoured with more than customary enthusiasm. The toasts connected with "Grand Lodge" were, of course, as well received. "The Health of the W.M." was cordially drunk, and in response Bro. Carnell expressed the hope that his intentions to equal his predecessors in office might be successful. He had a high standard of work to follow, but having kept well in school as a pupil, he now trusted he would be able to hold his own as a Master. He concluded by proposing "The Health of the Past Masters," extolling their several performances, and decorating the I.P.M., Bro. Hammond, with the handsome P.M.'s jewel of the lodge. Bro. Major Irvine responded on behalf of the numerous P.M.'s, the whole of whom, with but one exception, were present. Bro. Middlemas, W.M. 1641, responded for the visitors in very complimentary terms. The newly-initiated brother was received with "Macdonald fire," and by his response thereto proved that the lodge had enlisted a good recruit. "The Officers of the Lodge" was the penultimate toast, and after much excellent harmony, which included admirable glees and solos by the professional brethren, a most successful and enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the Tyler's toast.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place at Bro. West's, the Three Crowns, on Tuesday, the 7th inst., Bro. A. J. Manning in the chair, supported by the following officers: Bros. W. Steele, I.P.M.; Past Masters E. West, J. Ives; W. T. Turner, S.W.; F. Geller, Sec.; Dr. W. Vance, S.D.; E. J. Lloyd, J.D.; J. A. Elder, I.G.; R. Hawkes, D.C.; Page, P.M. 1076, Tyler. Among the visitors were G. Mayes, 51; J. Foster, 51; C. S. Boardman, 299; B. Goodall, 1327; W. Chambers, 700; and C. Jolly, 910 (Freemason). The business before the lodge consisted of the approval and initiation of Messrs. J. C. Rudd and J. Gower, which was happily effected. The next was the presentation to Bro. Steele, I.P.M., of a handsomely framed testimonial, for his services during the past year as W.M., and more especially for the splendid manner in which he had installed his successor in the chair. In presenting it the W.M., Bro. Manning, bore testimony to the many services rendered by Bro. Steele to the lodge, and wished him health for many years to enjoy the recognition of his services, so unanimously accorded him by the brethren. Bro. Steele suitably replied. Bro. P. M. Brayshaw was then invested with the collar and jewel of Secretary of the lodge, and returned thanks for the honour. A committee, comprising the W.M., the P. Master; S. and J. Wardens of the lodge, with three of the brethren, was then formed to carry out the summer banquet, and then the lodge was closed in due form. After partaking of an excellent supper, served by the respected Bro. West in excellent style, the brethren reassembled, and drank the usual loyal and Masonic toasts with "éclat." We have not space at our disposal this time to give a full report of the exalted sentiments delivered by the W.M. and the responses to the various toasts, suffice it to say that they were most excellent, and breathed throughout the true spirit of Masonry, Bro. J. Ives, in replying to the toast of the Past Masters, giving an eloquent and fervid expression to his ideas upon the subject. Bros. Jolly, Foster, Mayes, and Goodall responded for the visitors.

BLACKPOOL.—Blackpool Lodge (No. 1476).—The annual festival of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 7th of May, at the Clifton Arms Hotel, when Bro. H. Gardner, S.W., was regularly installed W.M. for the ensuing year. The following members were present; Past Masters Braithwaite, Johns, Ashworth, and Bidder, Bros. E. Gregson, W.M.; H. Gardner, S.W.; Thos. Blane, Treasurer; Frederick Pattison, Secretary;

T. Watson, J.D.; J. Waddington, Organist; E. G. Stead, Steward; W. Lister, I.G.; A. Wade, Tyler; A. B. Hodgson, J. L. Smith, T. Gregory, A. Moore, and A. J. Holloway. The ceremony was worked by Bro. Bidder, in a very able and impressive manner, which gave great pleasure to all present. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of last meeting were read, and being approved confirmed, including a minute to the effect that this lodge approve of the course taken by the Grand Lodge, concerning the Grand Orient of France; the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when the Installing Master took the chair. Bro. Gardner was duly presented (by Bro. Gregson, retiring W.M.) for installation, and having been obligated the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and he was placed in the chair of K.S. Having been saluted according to ancient custom in the Three Degrees, he, assisted by Bro. Bidder, invested his officers as follows: E. G. Stead, S.W.; J. Waddington, J.W.; Hy. Johns, P.M., Deputy Treasurer; F. Pattison, Secretary; T. Watson, S.D.; W. Lister, J.D.; T. Gregory, Organist; Hy. Johns, P.M., D.C.; J. L. Smith, and A. Moore, Stewards; T. Blanc, I.G.; and A. Wade, Tyler. Bro. Bidder, in choice and suitable terms, addressed the officers of the lodge on their respective duties; after which Bro. Johns, P.M., ably and eloquently, separately addressed the W.M. and Wardens on the great responsibility which had that day fallen on them, for the future harmonious working of the lodge, and strictly charging them to adhere to the ancient tenets of Freemasonry. The visitors present were Bros. Capt. A. W. Whitehead, P.M. 113; Jas. Batchelder, P.M. 1458; Wm. Riding, W.M. 1256; T. F. Perkins, S.D. 1061; R. Wright, S.D. 993; and J. Grime. The W.M. closed the lodge in perfect harmony and brotherly love, when an adjournment was made to the banquet room, where a sumptuous repast was prepared by Bro. Holloway, upwards of twenty-five being present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and received with great enthusiasm, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music. The brethren separated after witnessing a splendid ceremony and enjoying a pleasant evening.

HEBBURN-ON-TYNE — Perseverance Lodge (No. 1643).—A meeting was held on the 8th inst. at the Masonic Hall, Hebburn-on-Tyne. Present: Bros. J. McCulloch, W.M.; Geo. Hardy, S.W.; J. Mitchell, J.W.; A. Campbell, Sec.; P. J. Jackson, Treas., and W.M. 424; W. Eckford, S.D.; A. Brodie, J.D.; J. Marchant, P.M., D.C.; W. Bewick, Steward; J. Stark, I.G.; R. Connell, Tyler; Past Master: Bro. T. S. Wraith, I.P.M.; visitors: Bros. Middlemiss, Bolland, and others. Mr. J. R. Frazer was successfully balloted for and initiated. Bro. J. F. Forster was passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft. After the lodge had been reduced and several motions disposed of, the new clothing, which was much admired, was handed to the officers, thereby making a splendid finish to this new but very beautiful lodge. Business being over, the brethren adjourned to their banqueting hall, and passed a very happy evening.

TUNBRIDGE. — Tunbridge Lodge (No. 1678).—The installation meeting of this young and rapidly rising lodge was held on Tuesday, the 14th inst., at the Public Hall, Bro. G. Langridge, P.P.G.R., W.M., presiding. There was a good attendance both of the brethren and visitors; amongst the latter we noticed Bros. A. Spencer, P.G. Sec.; C. Grillon, P.M. 26, P.P.G. Stwd.; H. H. Riach, P.M. 874, P.P.G. Sec. Oxon.; W. J. Elers, P.P.G. Stwd.; J. Nichols, P.M. 1050, P.P.G.O.; Nettlingham, P.P.G. Stwd.; T. G. Seale, 1273; R. A. Beeching, 874; C. Graham, 1540; and M. Baines, W.M. 1050. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the report of Grand Lodge was read and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The sum of £5 being voted to Bro. Hill's testimonial, the lodge was raised to the Second Degree, and Bro. Hodgkin, S.W., W.M. elect, was presented, and the ceremony of installation was proceeded with, the beautiful ritual being performed by Bro. Langridge. The W.M. invested his officers as follows: Bros. G. Langridge, I.P.M.; S. P. Potter, S.W.; J. J. Pattison, J.W.; G. Monckton, S.D.; C. Peake, J.D.; J. Charlton, I.G.; W. Allison, Tyler; and G. A. Angier, Sec. The brethren of the lodge present were Bros. W. B. Bacon, H. Bishop, J. Abrey, J. Court, F. Spencer, T. Westbrook, Siphon, and Fitch Kemp. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree, and the Rev. Howard Monypenny was regularly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, the W.M. doing his work in such an able manner that the brethren are quite sure the right man is in the right place. On the W.M. rising to invest the I.P.M. with a jewel, he said: Bro. Langridge, it gives me much pleasure to place this jewel on your breast, as an expression of the esteem in which you are held by the lodge, and an acknowledgment of the very valuable and eminent services you have rendered as the first Master of this lodge; to which Bro. Langridge returned thanks in a graceful manner. Three candidates for initiation having been proposed, and "Hearty good wishes" having been given by the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the Angel Hotel to banquet, which was served up by Mrs. Hallet in an admirable manner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the brethren then separated.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — Priory Chapter (No. 1000).—The annual festival and installation meeting of this chapter was held at the Middleton Hall, Southend-on-Sea, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Amongst those present were Comps. A. Lucking, M.E.Z.; J. A. Wardell, H.; J. Willing, jun., J.; S. J. Weston, Treas.; J. C. Johnstone, P.Z. 20 (I.C.), Scribe E.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, Scribe N.; W. Pissey, P. Soj.; E. Judd, 1st Assist. Soj.; E. E. Phillips, P.Z.; H. Briggs, S. W. Fisher, F. Bernard, H. Luker, G. F. Jones, F. G. Jillings. Visitors: Comps. J. Terry, P.Z. 228, P.G.D.C. Herts.; W. Belcham. The chapter having been opened in ancient form and the companions admitted, the minutes of the last convocation were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Rev. H. Hayes, Priory Lodge, 1000, and Rev. — Heaton, Trinity Lodge, 1734, as candidates for exaltation, and Comp. W. Belcham as a joining member, which being unanimous in their favour, and Bro. J. Girling (elected at a previous meeting) and Rev. — Heaton being present, they were duly exalted by the M.E.Z., who also gave the lectures of the First and Second Chairs. A Board of Installed Principals having been formed, E. Comp. J. Terry, in a very able manner, installed Comps. J. A. Wardell, M.E.Z.; J. Willing, jun., H.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, J.; after which Comps. S. J. Weston was re-invested Treas.; J. C. Johnstone, re-invested Scribe E.; W. Pissey, Scribe N.; F. Judd, P. Soj.; J. R. Hermann, 1st Assist. Soj.; F. G. Jillings, 2nd Assist. Soj.; A. Lucking, P.Z. D.C.; H. Briggs and H. Luker, Stewards. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to E. Comp. J. Terry for his valuable services in installing the Principals, and he was also made an honorary member of the chapter. After some other routine business the chapter was closed in due form, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet. The loyal and Masonic toasts followed in the usual order. A handsome P.Z. jewel was presented to Comp. A. Lucking for his services as M.E.Z. during the past year. The Janitor's toast concluded a most agreeable evening.

HAMPTON. — Era Chapter (No. 1423).—The last meeting of this provincial chapter was held on the 11th instant, at Companion Tagg's picturesque "Island Hotel." There were present amongst others Comps. Sabine, P.P.G.S. of Middlesex, M.E.Z.; Thielay, P.P.G. D.C. Middlesex; H. Smeed, P.Z. Strawberry Hill, &c., acting J., Baldwin, P.Z. Mount Lebanon, acting S.E.; Wilkins, P.S.; Walls, P.G.O. of Middlesex, 1st Assistant S. (Freemason); Faulkner, 2nd Assistant S.W.; Hammond, P.Z. Lebanon, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, D.C.; T. W. Ockenden. Comp. Simmonds, of the Star Chapter, was a visitor. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the bye-laws were read by the acting S.E. The election of officers then took place, and resulted unanimously in favour of Comps. Thielay, as M.E.Z.; F. Walters, H.; Mason J.; Wilkins, S.E.; Walls, S.N.; Sabine, Treasurer; Faulkner, P.S.; Gilbert, Janitor. There were several candidates down for exaltation, but through unavoidable circumstances they were prevented from attending. Some important matters having been brought forward by the M.E.Z., and satisfactorily disposed of, the chapter was duly closed, and the convocation adjourned until the second Saturday in July next, when Comps. Thielay, F. Walters, and Mason, will be duly installed as First, Second, and Third Principals for the ensuing year. The companions having partaken of a cold collation, well served by Comp. Tagg, shortly afterwards separated. There were no toasts.

MARYPORT. — Whitwell Lodge (No. 151).—The monthly meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 16th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Maryport, when there were present Bros. T. Mandle, W.M., P.G. Reg. M.; Jos. Nicholson, P.M. and Treasurer, P.P.G.S.W.; Jas. Gardiner, P.M., P.G.M.O.; P. de E. Collin, P.M., P.G. Secretary; J. R. Banks, S.W.; J. H. Banks, J.W., P.G.I.G.; P. Dodgson, M.O., P.G. Steward; E. G. Mitchell, S.D., as S.O.; J. W. Robinson, R.M., as J.O.; J. D. Thompson, J.D.; R. Hetherington, I.G.; J. Smith, Organist, P.P.G. Organist; J. Melmore, J. Stoddart, W. Armstrong, T. Weatherston, T. Moore, T. Carey, J. Fulton, J. Adair, W. H. Lewthwaite, H. Peacock, W. T. Lamony, P.G.A.D.C. (Freemason). The following visiting brethren were also present: Bros. J. S. Cumberland, S.D. Old Yorkshire Lodge (T.I.), Bradford; Geo. Dalrymple, W.M.; and Jas. Winter, Henry Lodge, 216, Frizington. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bro. Captain T. R. Sewell, S.W. Skiddaw Lodge, 1002 (Craft), which, proving favourable, Bro. Gardiner, P.M., advanced the said brother to the honourable degree in the most perfect style. The next business was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, there being three candidates, Bros. J. R. Banks, S.W.; J. H. Banks, and W. T. Lamony. Bro. J. H. Banks was elected by a large majority. Bro. Jos. Nicholson was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Harris, Tyler, after which the proclamations were made, and one of the visiting brethren in conveying "Hearty good wishes," warmly complimented the officers on the excellent working of the degree, which he characterised as equal to any he had ever seen in England. The lodge was formally closed.

The half-yearly communication of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England, Wales and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown, will be held on Tuesday week, June 4th, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. Grand Lodge will be opened at 5 o'clock p.m.

Knights Templar.

LIVERPOOL. — Alpass Encampment.—The knights of this encampment met on the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, for the purpose of assisting in the transaction of the important business on the programme. The encampment was opened at five o'clock by Sir Knight Richard Brown, E.C., and the officers present were Sir Knights H. S. Alpass, P.E.C.; J. E. Jackson, P.E.C.; Thos. Clark, P.E.C.; Thos. Chesworth, Prelate; John Gallagher, Registrar; H. Firth, Treasurer; J. Capell, Exp-rt; H. Burrows, 1st Standard Bearer; and W. Fletcher, Captain of the Lines. The members included Sir Knights Fred Cooper, John Lloyd, Thos. Evans, Samuel Hinks, J. B. Widdows, J. Skeaf, J. W. Bulmer, and A. Bucknall; and the visitors, Sir Knights T. Berry, P.E.C., Past G. Std. B. England; Dr. Spratley, P.E.C. and E.C. Jacques de Molay; and Joseph Wood, Treas. William de la More (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and two candidates were balloted for. The Sir Knts. then retired, and Eminent Sir Knight Horace Seymour Alpass was (for the second time) installed as E.C. of the encampment which bears his name, the ceremony being most admirably performed by Sir Knt. Richard Brown. Sir Knight Alpass, E.C., then appointed the following as his officers:—Sir Knights Richard Brown, P.E.C., Prelate; J. Gallagher, 1st Capt.; J. Cassell, 2nd Capt.; J. Chesworth, Registrar; Thos. Evans, Expert; S. Hinks, Capt. of the Lines; J. B. Widdows, Almoner; H. Burrows, 1st Stand. Bearer; John Lloyd, 2nd Stand. Bearer; F. Cooper, 1st Herald; Joseph Bell, 2nd Herald; and Joseph Skeaf, Organist. The subject of the purchase of an harmonium for the special use of the encampment having been brought forward by Emt. Sir Knt. Jackson, P.E.P., the Sir Knights at once most liberally responded, and the result was that in a few minutes the necessary funds were forthcoming. Other divers and important business having been transacted, and three gentlemen having been proposed for installation, the Sir Knts. adjourned to the refectory where an elegant repast had been provided by Sir Knt. Vines. Sir Knight Richard Brown, P.E.C., in proposing the toast of "The Health of the newly installed E.C., Sir Knight Horace Seymour Alpass," said I might perhaps do the most fitting justice to this toast, the toast of the evening, if I said nothing whatever about it, beyond placing it before you in its simple integrity, so certain I am that the subject of it has your hearty goodwill and esteem. But the present occasion does seem to me to be one when I may venture a little out of the ordinary course to remind you of one or two facts worthy of consideration. For the second time we have had the pleasure to see Sir Knight Alpass installed in the chair he occupies with so much satisfaction to us, and let us hope with equal pleasure to himself. He will probably tell us that he feels himself honoured that the Sir Knights of this encampment have a second time invited him to take the reins of government in hand, but the fact bears another, and to ourselves a very much to be appreciated aspect. This encampment, which bears the honoured name of our Provincial Grand Secretary, has now been in existence several years; his re-acceptance of the highest position is, to my mind, some proof that he is satisfied with its progress and the conduct of its members during that period, and that his good wishes for its continued success are not diminished, but have rather increased, for we must not forget that the multifarious duties he has to perform, as the guiding spirit of Freemasonry in this province of West Lancashire, render the acceptance of additional responsibilities, matter for his careful consideration. We are proud of our Eminent Commander, we are glad to have him as our ruler in this encampment, a gentleman who, notwithstanding the fact that he has so frequently to perform the seeming miracle of satisfying an expectant multitude with the few loaves and fewer fishes at his command, yet retains the goodwill, the love, and the esteem of every Mason in this province. The toast was received with much enthusiasm, the honours being given in "right Royal style" by P.E.C. Sir Knight Dr. Spratley. Sir Knight Alpass, E.P., responded in very feeling terms, thanking the Sir Knights for the honour conferred upon him for the second time, which he considered a great compliment, and promising to do everything in his power for the advantage of the encampment. He warned the Sir Knights not to introduce any one into the encampment unless they felt confident he would reflect honour upon their choice, and such as they could invite to their own tables. "The Visitors" was responded to by Sir Knight Dr. Spratley, after which love and harmony prevailed, and the Sir Knights separated at an early hour.

COCKERMOUTH. — Dyke's Conclave (No. 26).—The quarterly assembly of this conclave was held on Wednesday afternoon, the 15th inst., in the Masonic rooms, Station-street, Cocker-mouth. The following was the muster roll:—Em. Sir Knights Edward Tyson, M.P.S., on the Throne of C.; Thos. Mandle, V.E.; W. F. Lamony, P.S. and Prelate (Freemason); W. Shilton, P.S.; Sir Knights R. Bailey, S.G.; T. Bird, J.G.; W. H. Leuthwaite, Treasurer and Organist; J. Gardiner, Pref.; William Lamony, Std. Br.; H. Moncrieff, Steward; H. Peacock, Jas. Black, and J. R. Banks. The conclave having been opened, the minutes of the assembly, held in January last, at Workington, were read and confirmed, after which Bro. John Melmore, Lodge of Perseverance, 371, Maryport, who had previously been balloted for, was admitted, and regularly installed, proclaimed, and invested a Knight of the Order. The historical oration was also delivered.

by the High Prelate. The election of officers for the ensuing year was next in order, when Em. Sir Knight T. Mandle, V.W., was unanimously elected M.P.S., whilst Sir Knight R. Bailey was unanimously voted to the Viceroy's chair. Sir Knight W. H. Leuthwaite was re-elected Treasurer, and a committee of four Sir Knights from the permanent council having been appointed to audit the accounts, the conclave was closed. The annual assembly for the enthronement of Sovereign and consecration of Viceroy, will be held in July.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF STAFFORDSHIRE.

The annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Shire Hall, Stafford, on Friday, the 17th inst. The Staffordshire Knot Lodge, 726, was opened in due form by Bro. T. Chalmers, the W.M. The W.D.P.G.M., Bro. F. James, and the other Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present, were then admitted, and the D.P.G.M. having taken the chair, was fraternally greeted. The following brethren signed the Tyler's book:—G. S. Tudor, P.D.P.G.M.; S. J. Walker, P.G.S.W.; Chas. Hickson, 460, P.G.J.W.; Chas. Lee, 526, P.G. Chaplain; John Steen, 526, P.G. Registrar; J. Bodenham, 726, P.G. Treasurer; T. Cooke, jun., 1060, P.G.S.D.; T. Bedmore, 1039, P.G.O.; T. M. Humphries, 519, P.G. Supt. of Works; Jos. Rowlands, 482, P.G.P.; T. E. Fowke, T. H. Grylls, J. Mottram, S. Scott, and H. B. Livingston, 726, P. G. Stewards; W. H. Hales, 418, P.P.G.S.W.; A. G. Prince, 546, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Webberley, 546, P.P.G.P.; T. Hall, 253, P.G.J.W. (Derbyshire); G. Spilsbury, 726, P.P.G.S.W.; C. Newnham, 419, P.P.S.G.W.; T. Taylor, 418, P.P.S.G.W.; J. Jacobs, 482, P.P.G. Reg.; J. Watkin, 419, P.P.G.D.; W. J. Whittaker, 482, P.P.G.R.; F. Derry, 482, P.P.G.W.; S. T. Tozer, 347, P.P.G.C.; C. Matthews, 526, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Swinford, 503, P.P.G.J.D.; G. Higham, 526, P.P.G. Supt. Works; F. N. Seyde, 419, P.P.G.A.D.C.; J. Rodgers, 418, P.P.G.J.D.; W. Randall, 482, P.P.G.C.; J. Newman, 539, P.P.G.J.W.; W. J. Gothard, 624, P.P.G.S.W.; J. P. Hall, 546, P.P.G.A.D.C.; B. Lowe, 539, P.P.A.D.C.; A. Cardick, 662, P.P.G. Supt. Works; J. L. Gibbons, P.P.G. Supt. Works; and a large number of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and officers of the lodges in the province.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened shortly before one o'clock, Bro. Cartwright, P.G.S., read the minutes of the last annual meeting held at Stafford in October, 1876, and of the Lodge of Emergency held at Newcastle in January, 1877, which were confirmed.

The W.D.P.G.M. observed that about twelve months ago, as they were aware, a quarterly meeting of the P.G. Lodge was to have been held at Burton-on-Trent, but the unfortunate death of the R.W.P.G.M. a few days before necessitated the abandonment of that meeting, the P.G. Lodge, in point of fact, ceasing to exist when their lamented P.G.M. died. It would be remembered that in the end of the month of May a meeting of the brethren of the province was held at Stafford, and a resolution was passed that a letter should be addressed to the Countess of Shrewsbury expressing their condolence with her ladyship on her sad bereavement. That not having been a meeting as a Provincial Grand Lodge, no entry had been made on the minutes; but he thought some record should be made of their expression of feeling on the subject, and he therefore proposed that the letter forwarded last May to the Countess and the reply thereto be entered on the minutes of the present proceedings. Freemasonry in Staffordshire had before now passed under clouds which had been dissipated, but as time passed on the cloud in this instance seemed to get darker. The memory of their late P.G.M. would for a long time be vividly before them, and they would long feel the severe loss which they had sustained. Bro. Tudor seconded the resolution, which was passed unanimously.

Bro. Bodenham read the Auditor's report and the Treasurer's statement of accounts, showing that at the end of 1877 the available funds amounted to £129 11s. 8d. The subject of the purchase of the right to send a scholar to the Masonic School for Boys was introduced. It was stated that the sum required (£525) had been raised within a few pounds, and the life of the Duke of Connaught had been insured as a means of rendering the right permanent. It was proposed by the W.D.P.G.M. that the Shrewsbury fund should be closed, and the balance (£31 3s. 9d.) handed over to the general fund of the P. G. Lodge, and this was seconded by Bro. Bodenham. Bro. Jacobs suggested that it should be allowed to remain as the nucleus of a fund which would probably be raised for providing some permanent memorial of the late Earl of Shrewsbury. After a short conversation, the further consideration of the subject was deferred.

The D.P.G.M. rose and expressed a hope that the motion he was about to make would meet with the unanimous consent of P.G. Lodge, inasmuch as the appointment was one which rested entirely with the brethren. He hoped that not only would it be accepted unanimously, but that it might take the form of a vote of thanks to their esteemed P.G. Treasurer, Bro. Bodenham.

This was seconded by Bro. Tudor, P.P.D.G.M., and carried with applause.

Bro. Bodenham briefly expressed his thanks, after which the P.G. Sec. was called upon to read the warrant from the acting P.G.M., Bro. McIntyre (Grand Registrar of England), appointing W. Bro. G. Singleton Tudor, D.P.G.M. for the province. The seat of the D.P.G.M. was then occupied by Bro. Tudor, who expressed the hope that he might meet with the hearty support accorded to him when he was first appointed ten years ago.

The following appointments were then made:—

C. Graham Prov. S.G.W.
George H. Hawley, 546 Prov. J.G.W.

Revs. W. Randall and H. Von Straubenzee, 526 Prov. G. Chaplains
G. S. Guy, 696 Prov. G. Registrar
J. Bodenham, 726 Prov. G. Treasurer
W. Cartwright, 460 Prov. G. Secretary
T. Standford, 347 Prov. G.S.D.
J. Ingamells, 460 Prov. G.J.D.
W. Needham, 966 Prov. G. S. of W.
A. Ellis, 451 Prov. G.D.C.
J. Smith Prov. G.A.D.C.
W. Vernon, 1587 Prov. G.S.B.
Bedmore, 1039 Prov. G. Organist
F. Hutt, 418 Prov. G.P.
J. L. Gibbons, 1520 Prov. G. Std. B.
Fowke, Wood, Scott, Livingstone, Mottram, and Grylls, all of 726 ... Prov. G. Stewards

The brethren adjourned from Grand Lodge to attend Divine service at St. Mary's Church, walking in procession and wearing the Craft clothing and the insignia of the respective offices held by the members. The sermon was full choral, the Rector intoning the prayers, and the Rev. C. Lee, P.P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. A. J. V. Straubenzee and the Rev. W. Randall, P.G. Chaplains, taking part. Bro. the Rev. C. Lee, vicar of St. Leonard's, Bilston, preached a most able, learned, and eloquent sermon from Matthew xxiii. 8: "For one is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren." The preacher sketched in a masterly manner the early history of Freemasonry, and showed strong reasons for believing that its principles were derived from Egypt by Pythagoras, and by him introduced into Italy when he retired to Cretona, and thence was conveyed by the Romans to this country. He eloquently recalled its leading principles, and enforced on the brethren the duties which those principles involve, strengthening the appeal by a touching reference to the late Provincial Grand Master the Earl of Shrewsbury, whose devotion to Masonry, and especially to its charitable institutions, he invited all the brethren to emulate. At the close of the sermon £16 2s. 8d. was collected.

When business was resumed in the P.G. Lodge, Bro. James proposed a vote of thanks to the P.G. Chaplain (Bro. Lee) for his eloquent, historical, and Masonic sermon. This was seconded by Bro. Rowlands, who added to the resolution that the sermon be printed; and a suggestion was made by one of the brethren that the sermon should be published by subscription, sold at a reasonable price, and the profits devoted to the funds of one of the Masonic charities. The proposition of Bro. James was carried unanimously; and Bro. Lee, in acknowledging the compliment, intimated that he should be glad to add, in the form of notes, facts which would be instructive and might be interesting to many of the brethren. Of the amount which had been collected at the church, £3 3s. was voted to the rector of St. Mary's towards the funds of his schools, £5 gs. to the Chaplain for his schools at Bilston, and the remainder to the sum required for making up the £525 for the purchase of the right to send a boy to the Masonic School for Boys. The discussion on the subject of the disposal of the balance in hand on account of the Shrewsbury fund was resumed, and eventually it was decided to add it to the Benevolent Fund of the Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Institution. A committee was appointed to consider and report as to the best means of providing a memorial of the late Earl of Shrewsbury.

Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Assembly-room, where a sumptuous banquet was provided by the Misses Pontin, of the Vine Hotel. The gallery at either end of the room was occupied by ladies. During and after dinner the band of the 2nd Regiment of Staffordshire Militia played merrily. At the conclusion of the repast the W.D.P.G.M. (Bro. Tudor) gave the toasts of "The Queen," "The M.W., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "The M.W. the Pro. Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the V.W., the D.G.M., the Earl of Skelmersdale, and the Officers of Grand Lodge Present and Past."

Bro. Lee, in an eloquent speech, which was heartily applauded, proposed "The Health of the R.W. Bro. Aeneas J. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, P.G.M. Staffordshire, and the W.D.P.G.M., Bro. Tudor." The W.D.P.G.M. in responding, alluded to his long absence from office in the province, the kindness he received from the brethren when he formerly held the position he again occupied, and said now that he had undertaken important duties at the urgent request of many brethren, he should strive to perform those duties without fear or favour, relying upon receiving in the future as he had done in the past the support and assistance of officers of the P.G. Lodge and the brethren generally. (Applause.)

Bro. Randall, P.P.G.C., proposed "The W.D.P.D.G.M. and the Officers of P.G. Lodge, Past and Present." He was especially complimentary to Bro. James, who, he said, was really master of the duties which he discharged as Deputy, and always manifested a kindly feeling and the courtesy of a gentleman.—Bro. James made a long speech in response to the toast. He observed that there was no one present who had occasion to regret the death of their late P. G.M. more than he (Bro. James). He had for years enjoyed the confidence of the late Earl, and he could honestly say that a more honest-minded, generous man never existed in Staffordshire than his lordship. (Applause.) By his death the P.G. Lodge also ceased to exist as a lodge, and it was a long time before the authorities in high places resuscitated it and placed the Grand Registrar in the position of Acting Grand Master of the Province. The reason P.G. Lodge had not been convened earlier was that it was necessary to apply to the Quarter Sessions (which they were unable to do till April) for permission to meet in that hall. He hoped Bro. Tudor would make up for lost time by calling another P.G. Lodge in the autumn of this year. (Hear, hear.) He went on to explain why he had retired from the position of D.P.G.M., and said although he had not done all that he intended while in that office, he hoped to visit the three lodges in the province which he had not yet attended. Though he was no longer an officer of P.G. Lodge, he should retain a fraternal feeling towards all the brethren, and should continue to render to the Craft such support as he was able to give. (Hear, hear.) Freemasonry was no doubt progressive, and he supposed there never was a period in the history of Freemasonry in this country when it progressed so rapidly as during the last quarter of a century. Though he was not an old man, he was old enough to remember the consecration of more than one-half of the lodges in the province. But it was not only numerically that they were increasing. There was an increasing manifestation of that truly Masonic life and spirit which was abundantly brought to their attention in their Masonic ceremonies. If charity was the landmark of Freemasonry, he would venture to say it had two aspects. It did not consist in almsgiving alone, though if they were as Masons to be judged by that test, they could say that last year Masons contributed £42,000 to support their four great central Charities. (Applause.) In supporting those Charities no one was more hearty than the late P.G.M., whose loss they all so much lamented. The late Earl of Shrewsbury presided at the anniversary of each of the Masonic Charities in its turn, and on one occasion he presided in the absence of the Prince of Wales. There was then a larger amount of contributions than at any previous festival. (Hear, hear.) But that was not the side of Freemasonry by which they should alone wish to be judged. They would rather be judged by the grand principle which they endeavoured to inculcate in their lodges of doing to others as they would be done by, and which taught them to guide their actions so that when anyone was said to be a Freemason the world might know that he was "one to whom the burthened heart may pour forth its sorrows, to whom the distressed may prefer their suit, whose hand is guided by justice, and whose heart is expanded by benevolence." (Applause.) That was what they taught each other to exhibit to the world, and when that principle was acted on they need not care for the scoffs of those outside their boundaries, and who, if they were upright, free, and true men, they would gladly embrace within their ranks. The longer he lived the more heartily did he approve the principles of Freemasonry, and the more strenuous should be his endeavours to promote the interests of the Craft. (Applause.) He then pointed out the difficulty of selecting the Provincial Grand Officers when there were 21 lodges and only 11 appointments to be made every year, and there were thus so many Past Masters not only qualified but ambitious to take provincial honours. He expressed a hope that the appointments which had been made that day would give satisfaction to the brethren.

Bro. James, after a brief interval, proposed in a neat speech "The W. Masters of the Lodges in the Province;" for whom Bro. Turner, W.M. 460, responded in suitable terms.

Bro. Rodgers, P.P.G.J.D., gave the toast of "The Visitors," on whose behalf Bro. T. Hall, 259, P.G.J.W. (Derbyshire), responded. He observed that Masonry was flourishing in the province to which he belonged, as well as in Staffordshire and other provinces. Though Staffordshire possessed 21 lodges, the population of Staffordshire was much greater than that of Derby, and it would take two Derbyshires to make one Staffordshire. Yet he had the pleasure of taking part a fortnight ago in the consecration of the nineteenth Craft lodge in the province of Derby, and in that province there were nearly 800 members. (Hear, hear.) Masonry was progressing in numbers, wealth, and generosity, and he thought the time appeared to be coming when they should consider the question of decentralizing their charitable institutions; and if they established such institutions in different centres it would create a new interest and a new incentive to the generosity of the Craft. And, he asked, why they should not have a Boys' School in Staffordshire and a Girls' School in Derbyshire? If that could be accomplished a great amount of additional zeal and liberality would be evoked. (Applause.)

Bro. Derby, P.P.G.W., proposed the toast of "The Masonic Charities."

Bro. Bodenham, P.G. Treasurer, in responding, expressed his unabated interest in those Charities. He alluded to the fact that they had secured the right to always have one boy in the Masonic School, and he thought that if they could establish such a right to send a scholar to the Girls' School it would be a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Earl of Shrewsbury. He also pointed out that great benefits were conferred upon the children of Masons by the Staffordshire Charitable Masonic Institution.

The remaining toasts were "The Ladies," proposed by Bro. Bodenham, and responded to by Bro. Owens, of Wolverhampton; "The P.G. Stewards," proposed by Bro. Cartwright, and acknowledged by Bro. Fowke, and the Tyler's toast.

The Installation meeting of the Wm. Preston Chapter No. 776, will be held at the Cannon Street Hotel, on Thursday next, at half-past 4, precisely. A report of the proceedings will appear in the Freemason of June 8th. The principals elect are Comps. A. Braun, M.E.Z., Dr. W. H. Kempster, H. and J. T. Gibson, as J.

The family of our late Bro. Superintendent Mott will according to the Whitehall Review, benefit by the Concert at Albert Hall to the extent of about £550.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Safely and Securely.—When the severities of winter have yielded to the genial spring, invalids should make a determined effort to regain their lost health; when through confinement indoors, want of appetite, and disturbed sleep, the entire system has been weakened and the spirits have been broken down, Holloway's remedies are equal to the occasion. The Ointment rubbed over the regions of the stomach and liver, aided by the internal administration of his Pills, will rectify the digestion, regulate the bile, and purify the blood—three sanatory actions, which will speedily confer renewed vigour, brace up the failing nerves, confirm the flaccid muscles, and restore to the ailing, cheerfulness, that great charm of existence.—[ADVT.]

Reviews.

THE LITERARY WORLD. James Clarke and Co., 13 and 14, Fleet-street.

A reviewer in the above publication, under the title of the "Romance of Freemasonry," gives a most interesting essay on the History of Freemasonry, while he passes in review two of Bro. Chalmers I. Paton's recent books. We leave out now the line of argument he ably follows in regard to Bro. Paton's books, which, however well written, are only the "deliverances," be it remembered, of our esteemed Bro. Paton himself, and are not the expression of Masonic opinion generally, and we confine ourselves to what he says as regards Freemasonry. The writer very properly inveighs against the recent theory propounded by Roman Catholic writers with such "gusto" and vehemence that Freemasonry is political in any sense, a revolutionary compound of Carbonari, or Illuminati, or Heaven knows what. As he well puts it, "the connection between Masonry and Carbonarism seems to us in this island as absurd as the suspicions harboured against the members of the Pickwick Club, on account of the immortal Mr. P's mishaps and misunderstandings with the fair sex. We are tempted to consider the whole thing as a joke. But it is not so. Freemasonry is a word of rather elastic meaning, and it may be something or nothing, a mere social and antiquarian club in the Pickwickian sense of the word, or a grand arcanum for silently revolutionising the religious beliefs of mankind. It is thus something or nothing, according as we draw it in this direction or that; and it creates a smile that while Bro. Paton would include among the essentials of Masonry not only a belief in the Architect of the Universe, but also the definite truths of revealed religion, there are Masons, like the Grand Orient of France, who actually reject the common truths of Deism, which the Illuminati of last century regarded as essential to Masonry."

What the Illuminati really were may be a matter of question, but any theory that Freemasonry properly is a revolutionary body is essentially absurd. If ever it be so it is through the disloyalty and treachery of those who make the peaceful and loyal principles of Freemasonry a cover for nihilistic views and hateful conspiracies.

The reviewer thus sums up his view of the history of Freemasonry:—"A writer in Brockhaus' Conversations-Lexicon has given us a sketch of the mythical history of Freemasonry. Passing by the attempt to connect this and the other sacred societies of the age of the Illuminati of 1st century with the Thracian and Orphic mysteries and the symbolism of the Pythagorean philosophy, and other secret and esoteric systems of the pre-Christian age of the world's history, the writer boldly mounts to the fountain head of all history. Some, he tells us, connect Masonry with the Noahidae, or descendants of Noah, though, considering the structure of Noah's Ark, we should have been inclined to see a guild of carpenters and shipwrights, rather than of masons, coming out of the ark, and settling on the highlands of Armenia. Passing on to the building of Solomon's temple, the legendary history of Freemasonry fastens on this incident as the second foundation of the Order. It tells us exactly how many Freemasons were engaged in King Solomon's service. Their number was 113,000, their courses were monthly, and they had captains of thousands and masters of lodges, the details of which are as curious as the parallel legends of the Arabs about the Genii, who were exercised by Solomon to build his temple, and who were kept at their work long after the King's death, until the stuffed figure of Solomon, leaning on his ivory sceptre, rolled away, when the Jins knew that their king was dead, and so succeeded to work. We are not told whether the Masons in the same way dissolved as a society on the death of their Grand Master, Solomon. On this subject legend is silent. But the next we hear of the Masons is in Italy, among the Collegia of Rome. Founded by Numa, the mythical author of the laws and religious institutions of Rome, the Masons were assigned free quarters beside the temples in Rome which they were engaged to build and keep in repair. From Rome Masonry moved on to Britain, and we hear of it next among the Culdees, of whose pure and primitive faith they are supposed to be the animating spirit. In fact, this legendary history of Masonry is so ingenious, and betrays such a childish acceptance of any loose scraps of history which it may connect in some way with a secret society, that it would be to break a butterfly on the wheel to expose these idle tales to the tests of modern criticism. Of these legends we must say, as the Swiss do of their Tell legend, that we must approach it with a stock of patriotic presumption in its favour—in fact we must say, like the old dogmatist, credo ut intelligam. After these tales of the genii in connection with the building of Solomon's temple, and that of Numa by the Masons, it seems like a descent into plain prose to read of Athelstan, the brother of Alfred the Great, as the second founder in Britain of the Order of Masons. The first lodge was accordingly founded in York, in 926, and the constitution of Masonry was drawn up under sixteen rules, the principal of which may be summed up under the sentiment 'Fear God,' 'Honour the King,' 'Love the Brotherhood.'

We are not much concerned with these remarks, which constitute a sort of critical commentary on the "Legends of the Guilds," but we are with what follows, in which we cannot agree, and which certainly is not an English view of the matter.

"Thus the spirit of Masonry is described, by those who make the common mistake of discovering in antiquity the spirit of modern times, as anti-hierarchical, and inclining to a pure and simple form of Deism. This is the interpretation of Masonry given in the eighteenth century. We must pass lightly over the intervening centuries, when the Masons probably were, what their name implies, a guild of craftsmen, who regarded their art as a mystery, to be surrounded with all the pomp of symbolism; and protected from free traders and interlopers by the magic of mystery. As time went on, and the age of guilds and close corporations silently passed away, Masonry underwent a silent change. The name remained; but the thing was altered. From a craft with a utilitarian purpose as the basis of its association, it became a guild for the promotion of enlightenment, and the favouring of an inner religion. Unlike Pietism, which aims at effecting this by using the existing forms of worship, and energising them with its own inner spirit, Freemasonry, in Germany and France especially, became saturated with the spirit of the new Deism."

Now the truth is that, whatever has happened abroad, English Masonry never has been Deistic in any sense. It is Theistic now, (a very great difference), and during the last century was to a great extent Christian in its prayers and symbolism. In France and Germany, the High Grades, which seem at last to have developed into a sort of semi-Jesuitic and Roman Catholic dogmatism, a limited sect led to that other movement, which mistaking the shadow for the substance, has seemed for sometime to favour a sort of intellectual Deism, a tolerant Pantheism. But such is not English teaching, nor is it American, nor does it at all accord with the doctrine and sympathies of Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry. We are what we always have been for good or evil, a loyal, a religious, a beneficent, a fraternal, a God-fearing man-honouring sodality, carefully avoiding sectarian disputes, the "odium theologicum," and the logomachies of heated disputants, and intent on proclaiming reverence for God and love to our brethren. Freemasonry may not, indeed, come up to this or that denominational standard. It may not harmonise with this or that individual view of truth or of religion, but it is nevertheless a very useful and friendly fraternity, certainly in Great Britain, the United States, the Canadas, and other parts of the world, doing an immense amount of good in a very quiet and unostentatious way, and calculated to obtain and retain the admiration of the patriot, the sympathy of the loyal, the love of the religious, and the hearty adhesion of the humanitarian. If its origin be lost in the mist of ages, it appeals to our modern application and feelings to-day, on grounds which are certainly commendable and commensurate alike with its own high claims, its lofty principles, and its beneficent mission.

LE MONDE MACONNIQUE.—CAUBET, Paris.

The Monde Maconnique for May is full of interesting Masonic matters and papers. We regret, however, to note the animus which prevades it, especially as regards the fresh alteration in the French Constitution, which will give the G. Orient the power of granting a charter to lodges in countries where the Grand Lodge is not in fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of France. We need not point out the extreme revolutionary and injurious tendency of such a new and reckless proposition, or the utter breach of international Masonic law which it constitutes. It is not difficult to see that it must lead to reprisals by chartering lodges in French territory by the English, Scotch, and Irish, as well as American Grand Lodges. If the French position be correct, that they have a right to charter a lodge in the Mauritius, because once upon a time a French charter was granted to a lodge there, and they have the right of prior occupation, we need hardly point out that the English Grand Lodge has the "right of prior occupation," in every country in Europe. It is not likely that English and American Masons will stand the bullying tone and even the threatened bullying acts which characterise the present condition of French Freemasonry and are a disgrace to the Order.

DIE BAUHUTTE.—J. G. FINDL, Leipsig.

We have often alluded to this ably edited German man Masonic paper before in terms of commendation, but we regret to observe a falling off both in the tact and the temper of its editorial words. For some time past Bro. Findel has been advocating an extreme view of Masonry, and now goes the "entire animal," as we say, in support of the Grand Orient of France. We are struck with the tone, which we deem altogether unmasonic, and mistakes, which we consider ludicrous if unintentional, serious if intentional, both in respect of the Bauhutte itself and its alma mater, Cosmopolitan Freemasonry.

In his issue of May 11th, Bro. Findel says that Bro. Hubert, on whom the English brethren had placed their reliance, remained in the Grand Orient of France, as well as Bro. Marechal, and to this he adds "Bravo!" Bro. Findel could not have read Bro. Hubert's explanation. He says very properly that he was bound to accept the assurance of Bro. St. Jean and the Conseil de l'Ordre, and that so long as they did not alter the ritual and adhered to their declaration of absolute toleration he should not leave the French Grand Orient, but if things turned out differently from what he hoped, he should then know his duty, just as he believed Bro. St. Jean himself would. This, our readers will see, is an entirely different position of affairs, and statement. He remains conditionally in the Grand Orient (as he is bound to do) for the best, but like us, he cannot shut his eyes to the future. When Bro. Findel writes such a statement as this, he should read first what Bro. Hubert himself says.

In his paper of the 18th inst. he says that in the midst of its "fulminating protest" (fine words, my masters), against perverse France, the English Grand Lodge has suffered a great blow, in that Bro. Tomkins' Bank has failed, and the Grand Lodge will lose nearly £10,000. We hasten to inform him that the Masonic Charitable Institutions will lose nothing, and Grand Lodge and Chapter will lose, we believe, not a penny. The loss is nothing. Never were our funds so prosperous, and our benevolence will continue as active as ever. Despite Bro. Findel's sneer at our "benevolence," we wish other Masonic bodies would do as much, for no one who studies the question can doubt for a moment that the last movement in France, despite its loud professions, is purely political and communistic; such, at least, is our distinct opinion, and we see no use in concealing it.

We are sorry to see an able brother like Bro. Findel lose himself, as Sterne would put it, in the "sty" of communistic and unbelieving dirt.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

Princess Christian, who is President, attended a meeting of the Managing Committee of the Royal School of Art Needlework last week, and afterwards made a careful inspection of the exhibition of ancient needlework. H.R.H. the President and the Managing Committee of the Royal School of Art Needlework have arranged to hold an Exhibition of Ancient Needlework, at their Show Rooms, in Exhibition-road, South Kensington, from the 8th to the 22d of May inclusive.

M. Gounod's new Opera, "Polyeucte," will be produced at the Paris Opera in July.

Nottingham Castle, whose annals begin with the failure of an attempt of Alfred the Great to wrest it from the Danes in 868, and which has since figured in most of the great crises of our national history; which was dismantled under the Commonwealth; was rebuilt as an Italian palazzo by the first and second Dukes of Newcastle and was burnt in the Reform riots of October, 1831, has, thanks chiefly to the exertions of the Mayor, Mr. W. G. Ward, commenced a new career. It has been leased by the Town Council of the trustees of the Duke of Newcastle, for a term of 500 years, and has been restored as an Art Museum for the Midland Counties. The Prince of Wales, at great personal inconvenience, has promised to attend the opening on the 3rd of July next. His Royal Highness, who will be accompanied by the Princess, will be the guest of the Duke of St. Albans, at Bestwood Hall. The Mayor will entertain a large company.

The ancient Isle of Avalon, in Brittany, famed in the legends of King Arthur, has been discovered by Mr. J. S. Phene in his rambles on the Breton coast, and was described by him in a lecture at the Fine Arts Society on Thursday week. All traces of the Island of Apples seemed to have been lost, as the spot was ignored by all handbooks; but after several years' search Mr. Phene found on the Arthurian coast an island on which stood a curious dolmen surrounded by a court, and an adjoining island was subsequently discovered to be the traditional Avalon. The two islands had formerly been one until separated by the encroachments of the sea, and this dolmen accordingly once stood in Avalon, but neither trees nor apples were visible, although numerous evidences of cider manufacture were unearthed, while a rude old "benitier" was dug up near the dolmen. Close by, on the mainland, stand a menhir and two large dolmens, and the name of the town of the district, Tregastel—three castles—seems indicative of the monuments.

Mommsen, whose History of Rome is prized by scholarly Italians, and whose recent archaeological tour in Southern and Central Italy was marked by municipal hospitalities similar to those extended by the Dutch burgo-masters to Erasmus, has been invested by King Humbert with the Cross of Grand Officer of the Order of Saint Maurice and Lazarus.

The "Frigorifique," the vessel fitted up for the bringing of fresh meat from America, has come up the Seine from Rouen, and will be on view during the Exhibition.

Holland numbers among its numerous charities "A Protestant Old Paper Society." The Roman Catholics of the Netherlands (1,200,000 in number) send annually to the Pope the proceeds of the sale of old magazines, journals, pamphlets, and books. During the past year the society has acknowledged 412,000 lbs. of waste paper; this was sold for 10,000 florins, and the amount has been forwarded to Rome.

The Old "Green Dragon Inn" in Bishopsgate-street, one of the historical cluster of ancient hostleries, has been pulled down. The inn had a curious quadrangular yard surrounded by wooden balconies leading to the upper floors, and a quaint dining-room divided into separate boxes by high partitions. It is supposed that Shakespeare's plays were often performed in the yards of the Bishopsgate inns before Queen Elizabeth granted permission for a regular theatre to be built.

DUTCH ARCTIC EXPEDITION.—Commander de Bruine, of the schooner of the Dutch Arctic Expedition, Willem Barents, has telegraphed the safe arrival of the vessel at Bergen (Norway). The little schooner "behaves admirably."

The Paris Figaro is to appear in a new form on August 1st. M. de Villemessant intending to model his paper more after the English journals. As readers have long grumbled at two out of the four pages being filled by advertisements, the size of the Figaro will be doubled, while the special feature will be the reproduction of the most important articles of the English press and British news in general, so as to make the journal noticeable as an Anglo-French paper, styled by M. de Villemessant the Figaro-Times.

The Education Committee have issued some modifications of the regulations respecting the child's school-book, certificates of honour, time-tables, and the conditions under which grants are made to schools. The most important change is that the local authorities are to be content with reasonable evidence of the age of a child, tendered by managers, or to pay the expense of the certificate of birth themselves.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

Several P.O.O.'s are now in hand, but having received no advice we cannot credit them.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS to ensure insertion in current week's issue should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, by 12 o'clock on Wednesday.

Answers to Correspondents.

A letter to Bro. Hubert on some further proposed changes in the Constitutions of the French Grand Orient will appear in our next.

By an error, the name of Bro. F. D. R. Copestick was omitted from the list of those present to offer a testimonial to Bro. Muggeridge.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1878.

THE NEXT QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

We hope that among the other business for Grand Lodge will be a vote of congratulation to our illustrious Brother the Emperor of Germany. Our august Bro. H.I.H. the Crown Prince is now in England, and a vote thus carried in his presence with the enthusiastic loyalty of English Masons, and under the presidency of our Royal Grand Master, would in our opinion be alike impressive and opportune. We feel sure that such an obvious duty in this respect has not been overlooked.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

Our brethren will be pleased, one and all, to hear Bro. Terry's lucid and satisfactory account of the flourishing state of this most needed and well managed Institution. There are now 145 men receiving £40 each, amounting to £5800, and 135 widows receiving £32 each, amounting to £4320. There are also eleven widows receiving half their late husbands' annuities, amounting to £220; so that the Institution will after this election stand committed to an annual payment of £10,342 to annuitants. The working expenses will be slightly over £2000. There will therefore have to be raised nearly £12,500 to maintain the Institution in its present state of usefulness. We are happy to note Bro. Terry's assurance that though through the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., the bankers, there has been a loss of £990 19s. 10d., yet there is every reasonable hope that in the end this loss will be made good. As the account of the two funds are kept separate, we will also follow this convenient arrangement. The receipts of the Male Fund are as follows:

This is a most satisfactory return, reflecting the highest credit on the management and managers of this excellent Institution, and we feel sure, that in answer to Bro. Terry's appeal, the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will continue to receive the warm support of our generous and philanthropic Craft.

THE CONTEST FOR THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

As it is quite clear from letters which we receive from time to time, that the position of the Freemason is not understood on the present occasion, we wish to repeat that officially it is neutral altogether in the actual contest, and that while it is favourable to all the candidates it specially patronizes none. We publish all statements of facts as to meetings in favour of the candidates, and reasonable suggestions emanating from them, but we do not think it needful to print letters in favour of this or that candidate, carefully remembering always Mrs. Malaprop's favourite dictum, that "comparisons are odorous." We should not even allow laudations of one candidate at the expense of another, though we are willing to advertize as a mere matter of business, all circulars. Our contemporary, the Philadelphia Keystone, finds fault with our mode of procedure in the following words, in its impression of May 4. "Candidates are already seeking the Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, London, lately vacated through the death of Bro. Little. One candidate publicly advertises himself as such, and promises to send out a circular, in a few days, soliciting votes in his own behalf! We are probably not any better or wiser than our English brethren, but we do not manage a matter of that kind precisely in that way." Our able and distinguished confrère forgets, that the electors with us are not a committee, but the whole body of Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors, and that candidates have no other possible course open to them. And we are of opinion Masonically, that it is by far the best course in every respect. It is, so we venture to assert, in the interests of Masonic fair play, and above all the humbler candidates, that is those who have no connections among the upper ten thousand of Masonry. We do not believe in select committees, knowing the private and personal influences which are brought to bear upon them. It has been said, indeed, and perhaps truly, that men naturally like a job, and we fear that, owing to an ingrained selfishness jobbery is more or less a normal condition of humanity. The remedy for it is not to be found, in our opinion, in select committees, even of Freemasons, but in public opinion and in enlarged constituencies. In this way the highest and humblest have humanly speaking equal chances.

THE MUGGERIDGE TESTIMONIAL.

Few brethren there are who have not heard of 'Old Mug,' fewer still who will not wish all health and happiness to a good old working Mason—a very skilful Preceptor of our old Masonic lore. In our last impression we gave the faithful report of a very interesting meeting, at which a purse of £300 was presented to our good old friend and brother. No one who reads that account but will join in the fervent wish that Bro.

Muggeridge may have many years of health and happiness before him, while all will agree that no testimonial has been better deserved. We wish him, in his family circle and in his declining years, all the good and all the happiness which, in the kindly Providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., are permitted to gild the evening hours of mortality.

THE CENTENARY OF VOLTAIRE.

We cannot affect to have much sympathy with the centenary of Voltaire, and as Freemasons we utterly object to have his name associated with that of our honoured and honourable, our loyal and religiously-minded Fraternity. It is true that Voltaire, quite in his old age, we believe even the actual year of his decease, was admitted a Mason in "Les Neuf Sœurs," at Paris, and there was a subsequent ceremony, we believe, equally profane and foolish, termed the "Apotheose de Voltaire." And though we do not ourselves hold that Voltaire was inadmissible to Freemasonry, in that he certainly was not an Atheist, yet we are not among those who, admitting his great powers, admire either the principles he avowed, or the teaching he elaborated. Voltaire was in all probability a sentimental Deist, with a touch of the "Morale Indépendante," but what strikes us most in Voltaire is his hardness, his unsympathetic views,—his contempt of all, which as men we most regard, and his morbid opinions as regards religion in general, and the people in particular. His is a state of mind not uncommon, and which makes many who reject all distinctive views in everything that relates to the authority of Revelation, or the sympathies of human nature, yet profess cold and callous opinions on all that relates to the progress of civilization, and the welfare of the great mass of human kind! No one can peruse his writings without wishing him to possess, despite his high intellectual gifts, more of the "milk of human kindness" and the "flow of natural sympathy." Monsignor Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans, ever ready to "improve the occasion," (we do not blame him for this), has made the centenary the subject of one of his philippics. The correspondent for the Times at Paris gives us a good précis of it, and we think it well to reproduce it for the benefit of our readers. Bishop Dupanloup having objected to the centenary from a purely Roman Catholic point of view, with which we have nothing to do, then goes on to say:—"we are no longer, thank God, in the 18th century, and its deplorable levity is not ours. Whatever the reproaches merited by our time, one justice must be paid it, the moral sense has grown up, the public conscience has manifested itself." He next shows how Voltaire and Rousseau treated each other; but as the latter is, after all, to be excluded from the celebration, these literary amenities may be passed over. Monsignor Dupanloup then cites the criticisms on Voltaire of "unimpeachable judges," beginning with Marat and Mirabeau, including Madame de Staël, Beranger, Renan, Taine, Ste. Beuve, Louis Blanc, and Lamartine, and winding up with Victor Hugo's poem in "Les Rayons et les Ombres." Of this work, of the date of 1840, Monsignor Dupanloup, does not mention which two lines may be quoted as a sample—

"Voltaire alors regnaît, ce singe de génie
"Chez l'homme en mission par le diable envoyé."

The pamphlet lastly shows by ample citations that Voltaire was the very opposite of a Democrat; that he toadied nobles, princes, kings, and kings' mistresses; and that he poured unmeasured scorn on the working class, declaring them unworthy of education, but requiring, like cattle, a goad and a yoke. Were a living writer, urges Monsignor Dupanloup, "to express such sentiments, he would be stigmatized as he deserved; and the contemplated festival in honour of this scorner and insulter of the people is an outrageous offence to the people whom the municipality represents." And the correspondent adds, "while the Centenary Committee propose to issue a popular selection from Voltaire's writings, believing that 'when there is a 'Voltaire' in every house the churches will be emptied, their opponents have published a collection of passages from his correspondence with Frederick the Great, in which he ridicules and denounces his fellow-countrymen." As we before observed, we do not profess to take any interest in the Voltaire Centenary, either as Freemasons or citizens of the world, but we think it well to remind our readers here, that Voltaire's views, however objectionable in many respects as they undoubtedly are, (and do not let us be blinded by his intellectual powers to say or think differently), are yet the "outcome" of an intellectual reaction against the dogmata of an infallible Roman Catholic regime. Voltaire and the Encyclopædists, Mirabeau and Robespierre, were Roman Catholics before they were Revolutionists against man, and sceptics against God, and many of them were brought up by the Jesuits. We must therefore be just while we criticize, and truthful while we condemn. The really destructive principles which Ultramontanism avows, proclaims noisily everywhere to-day with unceasing zeal, and unsparing vehemence, are a stumbling-block to many minds, and constitute in our humble opinion the "raison d'être" of much of the rationalism and infidelity of the present hour. We do not affect in any measure to chime in with the morbid and mournful spirit which characterizes Voltaire's writing, we, "au contraire," reject "ex imo cordo" his lachrymose and degraded Deism; but yet, on the other hand, we cannot be insensible to the true explanation, probably, of the matter, for it still is the fact, let them gainsay it who will, that the assumptions and excesses of Ultramontane dogmatism and infallible authority constitute a perpetual antagonism to all intellectual development, to all the efforts of reverent criticism, to the claims of scientific induction and logical consequence, and to the progress of peaceful, tolerant, and reasonable religion among all the nations of the world.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. MONCKTON.

As will be seen elsewhere, a very handsome coloured photograph of Mrs. Monckton, the amiable and talented wife of our esteemed brother the President of the Board of General Purposes, was presented last week, by Bros. Col. Creaton, Head, and P. de L. Long, on behalf of the united Committees of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. Some time back, as will be remembered by our readers, Mrs. Monckton, with a distinguished company of amateurs, gave some very animated and admirable performances, and presented kindly to the Girls and Boys' Schools as the result of such agreeable histrionic efforts, 100 guineas to each of those Institutions. The brethren generally will approve the action of the United Committee, as represented by three such well known and excellent brethren of our Order.

THE "BAUHUTTE" AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a reader of the Bauhutte, I for one deeply deplore the attitude and animus displayed by Bro. Findel as regards English Masonry. It is clearly, to use a common expression, a "twist," that he has taken, alike perverse and unreasonable, and must render his words henceforth if persevered in, (for which I am very sorry), utterly valueless to Anglo-Saxon Masons. The present "craze" is so unlike my old friend, the Bauhutte, that I can only say "Oh what a change is here."

For some time past it has been clear to me, that Bro. Findel is representing his own idiosyncrasies, rather than the calmer views of German Masons generally.

Yours truly,

ALT-MAURER.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Let me congratulate the governing body and Bro. Hedges, the zealous acting Secretary, on the success of their last Festival. £8500 is a good return, and if, as you say, it will be increased to £9000 before the year is out, Bro. Hedges deserves much credit for his labour and exertions. I hope that the Stewards will be able to hand over a little "douceur" to him for his untiring labours.

Yours fraternally,

AN OLD STEWARD.

PROGRESS OF FREEMASONRY IN THE PROVINCES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very glad that my communication has elicited the very able and satisfactory reply from Bro. Henry Smith, the zealous Prov. G.S. of West Yorkshire.

Our difference is a minimum. My estimate of 88 represents the actual increase at the close of 1877 as compared with 1876, while his statistics undoubtedly prove that that estimate is actually correct, though based upon an erroneous appreciation of the figures. The true state of the case then is, that while there has been an increase of 310, there have been 58 deaths and 164 resignations, leaving the net increase on the twelve months of 88, there being on December 31st, 1877, 3153 members of the Yorkshire lodges.

There is one question I would ask the worthy Prov. G. Secretary, are the 310 new members initiates, or all joining members from West Yorkshire or other provinces?

I am, yours fraternally,

STATIST.

THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Considerable interest naturally attaches to the approaching election of Secretary for the Girls' School, and several of your readers and friends of the noble Institution in West Lancashire and Cheshire, unlike "Blank," who blundered in the epistle quoted by you last Saturday, are extremely desirous of seeing the best man win. This must be the heartfelt desire of every well-wisher of the Charity, and those of whom I now speak are naturally desirous of knowing the parties who have the power to vote in connection with the appointment. Can you, with your usual courtesy, kindly furnish the information? In common with others, I have read the addresses, appeals, and committees of the different candidates, each of the lists having a peculiarity of its own. One candidate seems to rest his hope of success on the W.M.'s and P.M.'s, another on P.G. Officers, while a third, proudly and justly boasts of a very long list of Life Governors of the Institution.

While replying to the above query, would you also kindly give a number of brethren and myself an idea when the election will take place?

Yours fraternally,

M. B. J.

PRECEDENCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly in your next number enlighten me on the following points?

1. Is the Treasurer of a lodge who is a P.M. entitled to any particular seat at the banquet, and if so, where?
2. Are the P.M.'s of a lodge who are Present or Past Grand Officers entitled to sit above the other P.M.'s at the banquet.

Yours fraternally,

M. C.

AN OLD MASONIC BOOK.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to "I.P.M. (533)," in your issue of 27th April, allow me to state that the J.W. of our lodge has a mutilated copy (as I believe) of the book in question—mutilated, as the title page and first five chapters are missing, the book commencing at chapter six, which has the following heading: "The state of Masonry from Seleucus Nicator to the death of Herod the Great."

As the book concludes with a notice of meeting of Grand Lodge on December 4th, 1755—the date 1763 or 1764, given by "I.P.M.," as the supposed publication is probably correct.

On referring to date given by "I.P.M." I extract the following: "Assembly and Feast at Mercers' Hall, on Saturday, 30th March, 1734, when the D.G.M. proclaimed John Lindsay, Earl of Crauford, G.M. of Masons, who appointed Sir Cecil Wray D.G.M."

"On February 24th, 1735, at a meeting of Grand Lodge the Earl of Crauford proposed as his successor the Lord Viscount Weymouth, who was forthwith saluted as G.M. elect."

"Assembly and Feast at Mercers' Hall, on April 17th 1735: Bro. Crauford proclaimed aloud our noble Bro. Thomas Thynne, Lord Viscount Weymouth, Grand Master of Masons, who appointed John Ward D.G.M."

If this is a copy of the book in question, "I.P.M." must be in error as to the re-election of the Earl of Crauford, who only served one year.

I should have replied earlier, but the Freemason of date April 27th has only just fallen into my hands.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

J.D. 168.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I possess an old volume described as Northwick's Freemasonry, but dedicated to the Duke of Cumberland by the Hall Committee in 1784, and contains a History of Freemasonry from the Flood until 1714. From that date it gives a circumstantial account of the proceedings of G.L. until 1783, and a list of G.M.'s from A.D. 597, adding from 1717 the Grand Officers. It publishes the full Constitutions and General Regulations of the fraternity as authorised by G.L., the simplicity of which contrasts very forcibly with those of the present time. A description of nearly every City church existing at that period, many of which are now demolished, follows.

I should like to know if this is a well-known work.
Yours faithfully,

A. S.

[Bro. Hughan will probably reply to this.—Ed.]

A CHAPLAIN'S SURPLICE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to G. C., I beg to say that such a use is not customary, though there is nothing positively illegal in it.

A CHAPLAIN.

FREEMASONRY AND CIVILIZATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The information respecting the picture thus named came in the usual course to, and there was no reason for its accuracy being doubted by,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

THE WRITER OF THE NOTICE IN QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir,—

As a former newspaper editor, both here and in America, although no Mason, will you allow me to reply in your columns to a letter from Mr. James Stevens, published by you on May 18th last?

Mr. Stevens has not considered it necessary even to mention my name, although the picture of Masonry and Civilization was painted by me.

In the first place, Mr. Haigh has two separate compositions of mine—one in wash and one in line—of the subject in his hands, founded on letter-press in his possession. Both these sketches were made by me under Mr. Haigh's supervision.

In the second place, Mr. Stevens was only in Mr. Rowe's studio, 157A, Buckingham Palace-road, where the picture was painted, twice during the three months I was engaged upon it, and I may honestly say that to Mr. Hyde Pullen, with the two reverend gentlemen Messrs. Simpson and Tebbs, I feel decidedly more indebted for suggestions than I do to Mr. Stevens.

In the last place I cannot but consider it extremely cool for any one to talk about "elaborating" a picture, in speaking of which he does not even mention the artist's name, who must, it would necessarily be supposed, have allowed him to "elaborate" it.

I can also bring undeniable proof, if required, that in March, 1877 (not September, as Mr. Stevens states), the idea was first suggested, and an artist was engaged to compose the subject, although ill-health prevented his being able to do so.

I have the honour to sign myself, dear Sir, yours very obediently,

CHARLES ROSENBERG.

Mr. Rowe's Studio,

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

I quite agree with your correspondent of last week, that the nomination of a whole committee of twelve members by one subscriber is a most irregular proceeding, and ought to meet with a very strong protest from the General Committee on the first of June; but I am not sure that the writer's assumption, that the nomination was approved by the present House Committee, is quite correct, one member of which has positively denied having had any previous knowledge of such a proposition, and it may be inferred that others were equally ignorant of the intended slight to the General Committee.

By all means let the Governors at their next meeting, on the 1st of June, protest against such proceedings, but let them also take care that in doing so they "put the saddle on the right horse."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours very truly,
FAIR PLAY.

BROTHER BURGER'S LETTER.

Dear Brother Kenning,—

As it is by my advice that Bro. Burger's letter does not appear in the Freemason, I think it right to allude to it to-day. I am very sorry to stop any "Jupiter Tonans" or "Pluvialis" holding forth "ore rotundo," but I could not, for the life of me, see what possible good could accrue to the Freemason in particular, or to Masonic manners in general, by the appearance of Bro. Burger's letter, which is written in "hot haste," with much asperity, and is, in my opinion, what the French would term "bete." No one who has read Bro. Burger's lecture, our leader, and my letter, as well as Bro. Burger's, but must be struck with two things; 1st. Bro. Burger's very high opinion of his own theory, by no means novel, and 2nd, his extremely low opinion of every opponent. Indeed, the sublimity of Bro. Burger's style and line of argument is most affecting, not to say "knock-me-down." One is quite affected by the grandeur of the "new philosophy," and of the line of attempted support of it. It puts one in mind of a good story in Walpole's letters to Mason, where, when a lady asked Bishop Dawes had he "seen the eclipse of the moon." That prelate gravely replied, with ineffable dignity, "No, Ma'am. I saw the eclipse of the sun, my Chaplain saw the eclipse of the moon." Had Bro.

Burger not responded, in his haste, his grandeur, and his anger, he would have seen that the remarks in the "leader" (not my letter,) did not and could not apply to him "person-aliter." In that leader, the writer simply laid down a "canon" as regards all "fautors," of change in all things human, the Masonic ritual included, and, dividing all such reformers into three classes, placed Bro. Burger in the first, or "honest class." What more could he do? His remarks about "greater rascals" is surely a common-place assertion, that among all reformers such individuals are to be found, such a view giving point to old Johnson's witty apothegm that "patriotism" was the "refuge of a scoundrel." Before then, Bro. Burger writes again, or lectures you or me, or indulges in such excessive eloquence or bathos, as you like to consider it, let him read the context of any leader he criticises, and above all, let him remember that other people besides himself have an opinion on the matter, and that there are two sides to every question.

Yours fraternally,

THE EDITOR.

ROYAL ARCH DEGREE AND TRACING BOARD.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a R.A.M. I feel greatly indebted to Bro. K. Mackenzie for his valuable discovery. His graphic and interesting description conveys at once the importance, historically considered, of this ancient document. May I ask him, through the medium of your excellent paper, if he will state the reason which induced him to fix the age at 120 years? I am sure he will be delighted to do so, in order to dispose of any criticism which may be indulged in when this document is quoted as a visible testimony, and as a refutation of the fallacies indulged in by those who assert the very modern origin of this Sublime Degree.

I am, Mr. Editor, faithfully and fraternally yours,
E. S. MAIN, P.Z.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The leading article in your last week's number on this subject mentions that only five lodges from 1700 to 1732 were represented, also that lists under £100 seem to require no special note or commendation, although you somewhat qualify this remark.

As the Steward representing No. 1716, and in justice to that lodge, I think it should be known that it was consecrated on the 21st September, 1877, and notwithstanding the heavy expenses attending the formation of a new lodge, we sent a Steward to the Benevolent Festival with nearly £40 on his list, and at the Girls' Anniversary, I am proud to say, I handed in a list of £50 8s., since which I have obtained £10 10s. to add thereto, so you will see from the consecration to the present time nearly £100 has been contributed to the Charities from Lodge 1716. This, to my mind, clearly shows that we have the experts of whom you speak amongst us, and it also forms one of the exceptions deserving remembrance, if not special note or commendation.

Would it not have been well to have published the result of the efforts of the five new lodges, as an incentive to others to "go and do likewise?"

With these remarks I will follow you, and say—Farewell Anniversary 1878.

Yours fraternally,

J. KEMP COLEMAN.
Steward 1716.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your leader of Saturday last, respecting the Girls' School Anniversary, you speak of my having taken up the second largest amount as Steward of 1628. It should have been 1608 (the Kilburn Lodge). Kindly repair the error in your next issue, and oblige

Yours very fraternally,

GEO. EVERETT, P.M., Treasurer.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The following circular has been issued, which we publish in the Freemason—

Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, May 14, 1878.

R. W. Sir and dear Brother,—

The recommendation of Grand Committee regarding the Grand Orient of France, as shown on page eight of No. 6 of "Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Scotland," already in the hands of lodges, was unanimously adopted at the Grand Quarterly Communication held in Freemasons' Hall on Monday, the 6th May current.

Lodges holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland are therefore required to exercise the utmost caution in admitting, as visitors or otherwise, brethren hailing from lodges under the French Constitution. The Grand Lodge of Scotland cannot recognise as true and genuine brethren any who have been initiated in lodges which either deny, or ignore a belief in, the existence of T.G.A.O.T.U.

I am, R.W. Sir and dear Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

D. MURRAY LYON,
Secretary to the Grand Lodge.

PORTSMOUTH GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—Mr. Sergeant Gaseler, who formerly represented Portsmouth, has announced his intention of giving £1000 for the founding of a scholarship in connection with the local Grammar School.

Mr. P. F. Poole, R.A., has been elected a member, and Mr. J. Fulleylove and Mr. Harry Hine have been elected Associates, of the Institute of Painters in Water Colours.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

[The following appeared in our SPECIAL EDITION last week.]

The annual meeting of the Subscribers and Governors of this Institution was held on Friday week at Freemasons' Tavern. Bro. Colonel Creaton, P.G.D., presided, and there were also present, among others, Bros. S. Rawson, Benj. Head, Raynham W. Stewart, Rev. C. J. Martyn, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Henry Smith (West Yorkshire), E. Cox, J. L. Hine, John Mason, H. Hacker, Conrad C. Dumas, Peter de Lande Long, Thos. W. White, Thomas Cubitt, G. Finch, Joseph Smith, T. R. Eames, George Kenning, R. B. Webster, A. H. Tattershall, John Bellerby, G. Ward Verry, J. Newton, Charles Lacey, A. Middlemas, J. A. Farnfield, W. H. Farnfield, Capt. J. Wordsworth (Leeds), E. J. Harty, J. G. Stevens, Alfred Best, E. Dawkins, George M. E. Snow, T. J. Sabine, F. Binckes, H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury, W. Dodd, Walter Hopekirk, W. J. Crutch, James Willing, jun., W. J. Murlis, A. D. Loewenstark, L. Stean, James Robins, W. H. Watts, Geo. Bolton, C. J. Percival, H. Potter, W. Hilton, W. H. Masterman, James Terry, Secretary, and H. Massey (Freemason).

The minutes of the last annual meeting having been confirmed, the Auditors' report (in a condensed form, but the full details of which are given below) was ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

Bro. James Terry then read the report of the committee of management as follows:—

"In presenting to the Governors and Subscribers a report of the proceedings, the committee of management desire to express their thanks for the support which has been extended to the Institution during the past year, resulting in the largest sum having been contributed to it since its formation.

The annual festival was held on the 13th February last, under the presidency of His Grace the Duke of Manchester, V.P., R.W. Prov. Grand Master for Norths and Hunts, supported by a board of Stewards, 225 in number. The amount announced was £11,136 13s. 6d., with a few lists to come in, the total sum brought in being £11,333 1s. The Committee earnestly appreciate the kindness of His Grace in presiding, and the services so willingly rendered by the Stewards, and tender them their sincere thanks.

As candidates for election to-day there are 30 men and 41 widows. Two candidates (one male and one female) have died since the voting papers were issued.

The deaths during the past year have been 15 men and 11 widows. The committee considering the large increase made last year in the number placed as annuitants did not feel themselves justified in materially augmenting the number this year, more especially as there was a diminution in the amount announced at the festival. They have, therefore, determined to fill up the vacancies thus created, and make an addition to the number of widows already on the fund by electing five extra. There will then be on the fund 145 men receiving £40 each, amounting to £5800, and 135 widows receiving £32 each, amounting to £4320. There are also 11 widows receiving half their late husbands' annuities, amounting to £220; so that the Institution will after this election stand committed to an annual payment of £10,340 to annuitants. The working expenses will be slightly over £2,000. There will therefore have to be raised nearly £12,500 to maintain the Institution in its present state of usefulness.

The committee are confident that this has but to be made known, and the Craft will in the future, as it has in the past, render to the Institution their kind and generous support.

They regret that during the past year they have to report that through the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., the bankers, there has been incurred a loss of £990 19s. 10d. They entertain, however, the hope that in the end this will be entirely made good.

To the Grand Lodge the committee tender their thanks for the renewed donation of £70, voted to supply the residents of the Institution at Croydon, with coals during the winter months, a gift which is highly appreciated by the recipients.

To the Supreme Grand Chapter they also tender their thanks for the vote of £1,000 stock, viz., £500 to the Male Fund, and £500 to the Female Fund.

The Institution having during the past year been thoroughly repaired, the committee have much pleasure in stating it will require for some time to come very little outlay to maintain it in its present condition.

To Henry J. Strong, Esq., M.D., the Honorary Surgeon, they tender their warmest thanks for his unremitting care and attention to the residents, which he has continued to give for nearly 17 years.

Subjoined is a statement of the receipts and expenditure during the past year, ending the 31st March, 1878, together with the particulars of the permanent income of the Institution.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.
 8th May, 1878.

This report was then ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

Bros. Adlard, Bellerby, and Dilley were elected on the Committee of Management for the ensuing year.

Bros. H. G. Warren, A. H. Tattershall, and R. B. Webster were elected Auditors, the Chairman announcing at the same time that he much regretted that Bro. John Symonds had resigned his position of Auditor on account of ill-health.

The scrutineers of votes were afterwards appointed, and the brethren proceeded to elect nineteen aged brethren and eighteen widows. At the close of the poll the following was found to be the result:—

FREEMASONRY IN JAMAICA.

We have been requested to publish the following:—
 District Grand Lodge, East Jamaica,
 March 6, 1878.

To the Right Worshipful J. W. Whitbourne, Past Deputy District Grand Master of East Jamaica.

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,—
 Having heard at the last meeting of the District Grand Lodge of your resignation as Deputy District Grand Master, an office which, for many years, you have so worthily and satisfactorily filled, the District Grand Lodge feels that it would not be performing its duty did it not convey to you its sentiments of regret, more especially when that retirement has been brought about by ill health.

The District Grand Lodge feels that this is the most opportune time for recording its appreciation of your valuable services, extending over a lengthened period, and which were freely rendered while acting during the absence of the Right Worshipful District Grand Master as head of English Masonry in East Jamaica, and it must be a source of much pride to you, as it is of satisfaction to this District Grand Lodge, to be able to refer with pleasurable recollections to the able, courteous, yet dignified manner in which those duties were performed.

We tender for your acceptance the accompanying token in testimony of the high regard and esteem in which, as a Mason, you are so highly held, and we would ask you not to value this tribute for its intrinsic worth, but to receive it as a mark of our brotherly love and respect for you.

We cannot conclude this expression of our sentiments without the prayer that ere long you will be restored to good health, and that T.G.A.O.T.U. will grant you long life, accompanied with all earthly blessing, as a reward for that unostentatiousness and usefulness which have characterized your past career.

On behalf of the officers and members of the District Grand Lodge of East Jamaica.

ROBERT HAMILTON, D.G. Master.
 G. C. H. Lewis, District Grand Secretary,

March 6, 1878.

Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren,—

I crave your acceptance of my sincere thanks for the very kind and fraternal address you have been pleased to present me, expressive of your regret at my resignation of the office of Deputy District Grand Master, an office I have had the honour to hold for many years, and which, during the absence of our highly esteemed and talented Grand Master (who has been doing the Craft and us honour elsewhere) you so kindly say has been satisfactorily filled.

It is indeed a source of pride and gratification to me to learn that, in administering the very onerous duties of my office, I have been so fortunate as to give satisfaction; and, as you further kindly intimate, I have gained the esteem and regard of the members of the District Grand Lodge.

Words can hardly express how consolatory this acknowledgement is to me, for the duties of my office were not at all times of a pleasant nature, nor were my intentions for the good of the Craft always rightly understood, in my desire to uphold one of the grand principles of our brotherhood, without which Masonry would be nothing more than a huge sham and a snare; nay, as bad as a system of Masonry devoid of the grandest of all our grand principles "our belief in and reverence for God." The purity of those intentions, and your approbation, which I truly appreciate, is however, my solace.

But, in all this, I should be selfish and ungrateful if I took all the credit to myself, and failed to recognise how much my success was dependent on your kind co-operation; nor can I refrain from bearing willing testimony to the zeal of our late Dist. Grand Secretary, "the Very Worshipful J. J. G. Lewis," to whom I am grateful for past services; and I have no hesitation in stating that the present satisfactory state of the District Grand Lodge is the result of the members working together in harmony, which I hope will always be characteristic of our Masonic labours.

The testimonial which accompanies the address which you have so generously presented to me I accept with grateful thanks.

Permit me to express my gratitude for this token of your brotherly love and esteem, and let me assure you that it will be treasured up in my household as a "souvenir" of your kindness, and keep alive the recollection of the many happy occasions we have met together for Masonic work.

Allow me to thank you sincerely for your prayers and good wishes for the restoration of my health, the imperfect state of which (being the primary cause of my resignation) has often prevented my visits to the lodges on occasions when it was my duty to be in my place. Even in this, your kindness has been evinced, in making allowances for my shortcomings.

I shall ever remember your kindness and sincerely trust, that T.G.A.O.T.U. may have you in His keeping, and that every blessing may attend your families will ever be the earnest prayer of

Yours sincerely and fraternally,
J. W. WHITBOURNE,
Past Deputy D.G. Master East Jamaica.
DULWICH COLLEGE.

Our readers will have more than once heard of the case of Hume v. Marshall. As is well-known, judgment has been given in Bro. Hume's favour, he has been awarded his costs, and the Charity Commissioners have expressed their full satisfaction with the emphatic vindication of Bro. Hume's character by the special jury. After all this, Mr. Marshall, the defendant, being heavily mulcted in costs, has, in vulgar parlance, "sent round the hat." Bro. Hume's friends, in turn, wished to raise a fund to pay his expenses, which even for the winner are always considerable in a case of such length, but their intended tribute of respect and goodwill was stopped by the following manly, and to those who know Bro. Hume, characteristic letter to a contemporary, which had advocated a testimonial to him:—

"Sir,—I cannot too much thank you for the kind feeling you express concerning a subscription to pay the costs I have incurred in publicly defeating a slander, but I cannot consent to accept any money on that score. I was forced to fight for my character, well knowing that even as a winner it would cost me pounds where I could ill afford shillings. That responsibility I accepted willingly, and I accept it now. My character having been vindicated by a special jury in open court, I am content. Besides, if an adverse verdict is a ground for an appeal to the public pocket, I can plead no such claim. Mr. Marshall seeks an indemnity for having thought it his "clear duty" to collect scandalous gossip about me, and to exaggerate it in the reporting. Neither judge nor jury would give it to him; the Charity Commissioners would not allow it to him, and so he appeals to a confiding and charitable public at large as a martyr.

"I cannot find it in me to figure as a martyr. Before appealing to a jury I knew that law was expensive, and that I had no trustees of a wealthy charity at my back. I knew that after my victory I could not expect anything but vindictiveness from the Governors of Dulwich College, whose schemes of demolition I had helped to upset; but I did know that I could earn my living, and that people would trust their sons with me to educate. They have done so, and I ask no more. So long as I can dig, to beg I am ashamed.

"In conclusion, allow me to add to the long list of those to whom my best and warmest thanks are due for support and sympathy, that small band of Dulwich Governors who have all along made a bold stand on behalf of truth and justice against an autocratic and overbearing majority, whose object has been to crush, not only me, but every one who stands in their way.

"Yours, &c.,

"ANDREW WILLIAM HUME.

"Allison Tower, Dulwich Common, S.E.,
"March 28, 1878."

Those who sympathise with Bro. Hume, among them many Freemasons, will learn with satisfaction that all the success which might have been anticipated from his high character as a gentleman and a scholar has attended his new start in life as a tutor for the army, civil service, and other examinations. Among many others, Bro. Horatio Lloyd, P.P.G.S.W. Cheshire, and Bro. Henry Parsons, P.P.G.S.W. Surrey, have withdrawn their sons from the more pretentious Dulwich College, to place them with Bro. Hume.

Bro. Hume is a P.M. 619, Scribe E. of No. 7 Chapter, S.W. No. 5, Mark Lodge, P.G.S. Middlesex, Mark and Surrey, is a Life Governor and was a Steward for R.M.I.B. last year.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The first meeting of the Stewards for the approaching Festival of this Institution, which will be held on the 8th of July, under the presidency of Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, P.G.S.W., took place on Thursday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. S. Rosenthal was called upon to preside.

Among the brethren present were Bros. R. W. Wylie, Geo. Page, W. Yardley, G. Allen, Leopold Ruf, J. G. Vohmann, F. Aclard, R. B. Webster, Charles Cobb, Henry Smith, Geo. Cooper, G. E. Wainwright, Alf. J. Bristow, Frederick Wood, W. G. Dickens, Robert W. Sprague, Thos. Cubitt, C. A. Cottebrune, H. M. Levy, Thomas Cochrane, John Wm. Garrod, James Winter, John A. Scott, E. C. Mather, Joyce Murray, C. Harrison, Edwin Villiers, S. B. Wilson, J. Laud, W. Morris, Don M. Dewar, Thos. Bull, Israel Abrahams, W. S. Whitaker, E. Taylor, and Massey, (Freemason).

Lord Suffield, Prov. G.M. for Norfolk, was elected President of the Board.

Bro. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P., was elected Treasurer of the Board. Bro. Binckes was elected Honorary Secretary. It was arranged that as His Royal Highness had approved of the Alexandra Palace for the banquet and that ladies should sit down with the brethren, the same course should be followed this year.

Bro. Binckes said that anticipating this resolution he had seen Bros. Bertram and Roberts on Tuesday, and they had promised to do everything to make the festival a great success. They would place the large concert hall at the disposal of the Institution for the banquet, the picture gallery, and the conservatory, and Italian garden for coffee-room and concert. The large concert hall was a very much larger apartment than the hall used for the last three or four years.

It was decided that gentlemen, not Masons, should not be admitted to the banquet.

The Stewards' fee was settled at two guineas. The brethren's tickets to be one guinea; ladies', 15s.

Bros. Raphael Costa, H. M. Levy, Joyce Murray, Rosenthal, R. B. Webster, and Israel Abrahams were appointed the Musical Committee, and other arrangements as to tickets were made in accordance with the usual custom.

Ladies' Stewards were also appointed.

The meeting was then adjourned.

ANCIENT AND MODERN MASONRY.

(From the Daily Telegraph.)

An eventful period in the nation's history has intervened between the meeting of Masons at the Apple Tree Tavern, Charles-street, Covent-garden, a century and a half since, when one Mr. Anthony Sayer, carpenter, was elected the first Grand Master of Masons in England, and that other meeting held a few days ago, when his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales attended the Grand Lodge in the Freemasons' Hall, introducing as a "visiting brother" the Crown Prince of Denmark, Grand Master of Danish Freemasonry, and taking his seat on the mystic throne, with Peers of the Realm on either hand. It will suffice to give retrospect a thoughtful impulse if, recurring to Masonic annals, we recall the fact that exactly one hundred years ago some Englishmen established in St. Petersburg the first regular lodge opened in Russia, and that many of Czar Peter's nobles joined the brotherhood. The Lodge was named "The Lodge of Perfect Unity." At the recent meeting, his Royal Highness, going out of his way to give the toast, called upon the brethren to drink to the health of lodges abroad. "The toast is not," he said, "one usually given at these annual festivals, but it is one which I feel convinced all of you will receive most heartily. The Foreign Grand Lodges." Thus, while all Europe is anxiously awaiting an issue which may result in war, and a renewal of those terrible scenes of bloodshed and horror which have been witnessed in the East during the past year, there is placidly flowing under the surface of events the old current of goodwill amongst men.

Had the Royal Grand Master taken the opportunity to glance historically at either the remote or the immediate past of English Masonry, he might easily from his own large personal knowledge of Craft-lore and Craft-legend have given us a sketch of the rise of the great Order worthy of the important festival at which he was presiding. The throne he then filled had never before been honoured by Royalty; but now that Princes of the blood have in so many countries undertaken the supreme charge of Masonry it is only fitting that England, claiming to be universally supreme in "the universal Order," should be represented by the highest in the land. In 1737 a special lodge was held in the Palace of Kew for the initiation of Prince Frederick of Wales, and it was hoped that he would in time fill the Grand Master's throne, but his death in 1751—the very year for which he had proposed to take office—balked the Craft of the intended honour. Many very distinguished names, however, appear on the roll of the Kings of the Order, and half the peerage has at one time or another filled the highest office of the English Lodge. The post has always been a coveted one. Thus, in 1772, the Duke of Montague being re-elected Grand Master, the Duke of Wharton, who had aimed at the dignity, gathered his adherents together, and convoking a meeting of Masons on his own responsibility, caused himself to be proclaimed Grand Master. This preposterous schism, so serious to Masonic interests, so absurd to the uninitiated world, was healed by the Duke of Montague, loyal to the religion of the Craft, resigning his honours in favour of his ambitious and turbulent "brother." But the Duke of Wharton had seized on the crown merely for a whim, and soon after, feeling in ill-health, renounced his religion and Masonry with it, and, entering a Spanish monastery, died at the age of thirty-two. His successor, the Duke of Richmond, reigned long and peacefully, and it was under him that the Committee of Charity, so splendid in its modern development and so Christian in its objects, was inaugurated. Another innovation—less useful perhaps, but not less important as a feature of modern Masonry—was introduced under the next ducal incumbent. The Duke of Norfolk presented the fraternity with the sword of Gustavus Adolphus and of the brave Duke Bernhard of Weimar, and thus was laid the foundation of what Masons call "the furniture" of their lodge. Since then the pageantry and appointments of Masonry have increased vastly in splendour but in due proportion only as the ancient brotherhood has itself increased. To the present Grand Master, the ritual of the Craft owes much of its stately circumstance, but to him also it owes something of its dignity and material well-being. Just as in 1731 Masonry everywhere received an impetus by the initiation of Francis, Duke of Lorraine, afterwards Emperor of Germany, so in 1875, when it was known that the Prince of Wales had consented to fill the throne, a very beneficial impulse was given to Masonry both at home and abroad. In India, for instance, the fact occasioned much curious interest, and nearly every lodge in the country had to answer the inquiries of our Eastern fellow-subjects as to the nature and object of the hitherto dreaded Order, and their own fitness for initiation. Unfortunately for them, religion bars Masonry against the orthodox Hindu, but from the other creeds of India neophytes are annually enrolled. Nor, though small in its beginning, is this welding influence of Masonry to be despised. It is only twenty years ago that no native of India would cross the threshold of a lodge—"the witchcraft house," as they call it—and a soldier who, in the Mutiny of 1857, flung his spear through an open window at the portrait of the Master as it hung upon the wall of the Masonic building at Allahabad, is still spoken of by his countrymen as a most daring man. But to-day the natives of India are everywhere seeking admission to the Order, and when, a year or two ago, the Prince of Wales visited the great Oriental dependency, there were native signatures to the Masonic deputation which, in the name of the Craft, welcomed the Grand Master to the East. The movement will undoubtedly become before long a national one, at any rate in Bengal; and of its future utility, both practical and political, in bringing together in social intercourse Europeans and native gentlemen, there can be no doubt. For the Eastern mind the mysticism and symbolism of Masonry has a peculiar and intense fascination, and in the history of most Eastern nations secret associations have been conspicuous. Their influence has seldom operated for good, it is true; but with the present Order evil cannot associate itself, for disloyalty unknits its bonds and irreligion can find no place in it. While, therefore, so harmless, with all its glamour, for the secret-loving Oriental, the main object of Masonry, its catholic charity, especially recommends itself to the most charitable nation in the world; for to this title the people of India have surely a claim. Their religion and society centre in and turn upon the great virtue of charity; and an Anglo-Indian statesman, recently leaving India, left it on record that if the machinery to work a great system of public charity could, without official interference, be organised, the Government of the country would never have cause to vex itself about methods of meeting famine deficits. Perhaps in Masonry the required machinery may before long be found; and, indeed, it requires nothing more than that genial interest taken by the present Grand Master of English Masonry in the Craft abroad to bring about the desired result.

Thus the great stream of Masonic brotherhood continues in its beneficent course. The terrible schism that has so recently rent the great fraternity, and has for its cause of disagreement no less a point than the absolute freedom of the conscience, bids fair, if not to heal, at any rate to contract to far smaller proportions than had at first been feared. The vast majority of lodges have leagued together in defence of the ancient watchwords of their Order, and before long the latest "schism" will have dwindled into the insignificance of those that have preceded it. On this point the history of the Craft affords another coincidence, lending itself opportunely to our purpose by providing a happy parallel. About a hundred years ago, English Masonry was threatened by a serious, perhaps fatal, secession on points of the ancient constitution; but the Grand Master of that time, by his energy and the judicious exercise of his large powers, prevented the disruption from attaining the dimensions originally portended, and the schism of the "ancients" is now hardly known even by name outside the small circle of scholars in Masonic lore. The Grand Master then was Lord Carnarvon. It is the same peerage that now gives English Masonry its practical, working-day chief, for it is Lord Carnarvon who represents the Prince of Wales during his Royal Highness's absence from the lodge. With him, therefore, lies, in a large degree, the responsibility of checking the rupture which is now threatened, and making again universal among the "guild of Masons" that loyalty to their traditions which, no less than charity to others, has distinguished the Craft from all times.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has promised to preside at the anniversary festival of the Infant Orphan Asylum, to be held at the Asylum, Wanstead, on June 28th. H.R.H. the Princess of Wales has graciously consented to distribute the prizes to the children.

The quarterly meeting of the Chapter of Harmony took place at Farnham on Thursday week. A report is in type and will appear in our next.

Bro. Alfred Durrant, P.M. 1185, and M. E. Z. elect, 1185, is gazetted Captain in the Honourable Artillery Company of London.

The Malay Peninsula, from Wellesley Province by Singapore, contains, according to a Straits paper, millions of acres of low, undulating, thickly-wooded hills, which are well suited for the growth of tea, as the soil of which they are composed is similar to the best soils of India. The variety to be planted must, however, it would seem, be that indigenous in Assam. The land referred to is, indeed, only suited to the cultivation of tea or coffee, and with cheap land, plentiful labour, regular seasons, and easy transport, the Malay Peninsula would certainly appear to possess unequalled advantages for the production of tea. The soil of Singapore has been, until recently, much underrated, but it has been shown conclusively that pepper, tapioca, and sugar can be successfully grown upon it, and it is probable that the tea-shrub, which is a hardy plant, can be grown on the island as on the peninsula.—Nature.

The tax imposed upon the managers of the Paris opera-houses and theatres, by which they are compelled to pay 10 per cent. of their gross receipts for the benefit of the poor, has always been a grievance with managers, for it has frequently happened that the poor-tax has to be paid although the house had been kept open at a loss. It is now, however, proposed to tax the net instead of the gross receipts. The plan to be adopted is a simple one. The places of amusement are divided into five classes, and from £20 to £100 per night, according to the class of the house, is allowed for expenses. This sum will be deducted from the gross receipts, and on the balance 12 per cent. is to be paid. The proposal has, however, not been received with unmixed satisfaction by the Paris managers, who declare that the sum to be allowed for expenses is insufficient.—Theatre.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. The three chairs were occupied by Bros. J. M. Clabon, President; Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President; and James Brett, Junior Vice-President. The other brethren present were Bros. Lord Henniker, S.G.W.; John Hervey, G. Secretary; H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary; A. A. Pendlebury, S. Rawson, P. District G.M. China; James Glaisher, P.G.D.; Col. Shadwell H. Clerk, G.D.; J. M. Case, P.G.D.; Capt. N. G. Philips, P.G.D.; James Lewis Thomas, Assistant G.D.C.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; Rev. Wm. Alfred Hill, G.C.; W. T. Howe, G.P.; A. L. Cole, G.S.W.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; H. Bartlett, C. F. Hogard, Henry Smith, C. P. Cobham, Griffiths Smith, P.G.S.; Charles Godschalk, P.M. 1205; T. J. Maicwell, G. Mallett, Rev. Dr. Brette, Christ's Hospital; E. C. Massey, W.M. 1297; W. Stephens; W. Bulkeley Hughes; E. J. Godby; Edward Cor; H. P. Bennett, W.M. 4; A. M. Cohen, W.M. 205; E. H. Hewett; James Mason, P.G.S.B.; W. H. Perryman; Charles Atkins, P.M. 27; G. W. Hollington; A. Middlemas, W.M. 1641; G. Fisher; H. Garrod, P.M. 749; Hugh Cotter; W. Mann, P.M. 186; J. Nicholson, E. H. Thielley, A.M. Isaac Bristow; J. W. Collier, Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, Ralph Gooding, Edward Terry, W.M. 1319; John Walmisley, G. P. Britten, Alfd. Brookson, Geo. Sparks, W. Beattie, Phos. Cochrane, E. Kidman, H. Martyn, James Cox, John White, R. D. Still, L. Cornelissen, H. Payne, Jas. Kew, and C. B. Payne, G.T.; and Massey, (Freemason).

The Board of Masters was first held, and the agenda paper of next Quarterly Communication settled.

After the Lodge of Benevolence had been opened, grants to the amount of £240, recommended at last lodge, were confirmed. The new list comprised twenty-four cases. Five of these were deferred. The remaining nineteen were relieved with £440, which sum was made up of one £75 (£75), four £40 (£160), one £30 (£30), one £25 (£25), three £20 (£60), one £15 (£15), and seven £10 (£70), and one £5 (£5).

FREEMASONRY IN NORTH AFRICA.

A meeting of the Ancient Carthage Lodge (No. 1717), Tunis (under warrant from the Grand Lodge of England), was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Strada Si-Aly-Azuz, in Tunis, North Africa, on the evening of the 21st of April, 1878, under the presidency of its zealous and learned founder, and first Worshipful Master, Bro. A. M. Broadley, barrister-at-law, who was ably supported by his S.W., Bro. the Rev. E. B. Frankel, D.G. Chaplain of District Grand Lodge, Malta, and Chaplain to H. B. M.'s Consulate General, Regency of Tunis. The Junior Warden's chair was filled by Bro. A. Perrini, M.D., whilst the duties of Secretary were very ably performed by Bro. J. H. Stevens, H.M.'s Vice-Consul to the Regency of Tunis. Bro. George Pentecost occupied the J.D.'s chair, and Bro. Henry Haylock (the W.M.'s zealous and worthy Outer Guard and Steward) catered for the brethren after they were called off from labour to refreshment. Amongst the other active members Ancient Carthage Lodge may be mentioned Bros. Tulin de la Tunisie, Consul General of the German Empire, Eugene Cases, Vice-Consul of France; Gardner, Resident Agent of the Tunis Railway Company; Angelo Bianchi; N. Lenghi, LL.D.; J. E. L. Barker, Engineer in Chief to the Arsenal of his Highness Muhammad Es-Sadak Pascia-Bey, the reigning Sovereign of Tunis; Legali, the worthy station master at Tunis, and others. The Ancient Carthage Lodge was dedicated on October 3, A.L. 5877, on the petition of nine worthy resident brethren, hailing from English Grand Lodge. Although so very recently inscribed upon our muster roll, her Worshipful Master, Bro. Broadley, has already initiated, passed, and raised no less than twenty-eight candidates, and at the present moment (including joining brethren) the lodge musters more than fifty strong. Amongst her members are representatives of divers nationalities and almost every creed. English and French, Spanish and German, Greek, Italian, Maltese, and Arab, muster on the square, in brotherly unity; whilst Hebrew and Mussulman, Roman Catholic, Protestant, and Greek, united by the mystic tie, meet in the name of the Great Architect of the Universe, under the all-embracing banner of brotherly love, relief, and truth. May the Lodge of Ancient Carthage prosper! may her brethren unite heart and hand to leaven Tunisian society with the beneficent attributes of Freemasonry! If true to the great principles of our Order their influence must be great, and must tend to bring together under her banner the more thoughtful members of the native community. Let our brethren by precept and example show the outward world around them that with our Order "evil cannot associate itself—for disloyalty unknits its bonds, and irreligion can find no place in it." Although the religion of the Prophet, alike with the craftier creed of Rome, has been long supposed to be absolutely inimical to Freemasonry, there are signs that this blind antipathy to our Order is fast passing away. The religion of Mahomet centres in charity, and thus English Freemasonry (at all events) has a special claim to the respect and goodwill of Mahomedan gentlemen. The time is not far distant when even the most credulous Mussulman, or Romanist, will cease to believe that the whole rite of Masonry is simply witchcraft in its most unmitigated form, and that the brethren when once within the portals of a Masonic lodge cease to be human and "fly about" enveloped in sulphurous fumes! The Masonic Hall at Tunis, situated in the Sidi-Aly-Aznz (the street of the Son of God), is commodious, and nicely furnished: the funds of the Ancient Carthage Lodge are entirely devoted to charity. The fees for initiation, passing, and raising are £5 ss. The annual dues from each resident member are equal to 15s. per annum, and from each non-resident brother 5s. per annum. Brethren visiting Tunis may become honorary members, by ballot, for a period not exceeding three months, at the usual rate of subscription, but without the right of voting, but at the expiration of three months, if they wish to continue their membership, they will have to pay the usual entrance fee of 12s. 6d.

The ceremonies are worked by the learned W.M., Bro. Broadley, either in Italian, French, Arabic, or English, according to the nationality of the candidate; as a rule the opening and closing ceremonies are gone through in English.

On the evening of April 21 a Maltese gentleman was initiated, and a candidate for the First Degree was duly balloted for and accepted. After the labours of the evening had been brought to a close, the brethren adjourned to the supper-room, where refreshment is provided on the occasion of each regular meeting. The usual Masonic toasts were given and heartily received, including that to "The Visiting Brethren," which was responded to by Bro. Ecroyd, P.M., who wished the Lodge of Ancient Carthage every success, and complimented the Worshipful Master, Bro. Broadley, upon the efficiency of his officers, and on the admirable way in which the First Degree was given in French. During supper it was incidentally mentioned that several of the brethren (who are Royal Arch Masons, and Mark Master Masons, respectively) have petitioned the Grand Royal Arch Chapter, and the Grand Mark Masters' Lodge in London, for permission to form a Royal Arch Chapter, and a Mark Masons' Lodge, in Tunis. It is to be hoped that both these petitions will be favourably received, and in due time granted, for the admirable working order into which the W.M. of the Craft Lodge has already got his brethren augurs well for the future efficient working of Royal Arch and other Masonic degrees amongst the brethren resident within the Regency of Tunis.

MEETINGS OF LEARNED AND OTHER SOCIETIES

At the monthly general meeting of the Zoological Society, held last week at the Society's house in Hanover-square, Professor Newton, F.R.S., V.P., in the chair, Prince Ibrahim Hilmy, Lord Claud Hamilton, Colonel J. T. Norgate, Major W. Hanmer, Mrs. Pollock, and Messrs. A. Bündenbänder, F. Bennoch, C. B. Barber, G. Bach, G. Chater, jun., G. A. Columba, H. Doetsch, F. H. Crace, C. Forbes, H. Gwinner, M. J. Joyce, T. L. M. Llewellyn, J. McConnell, A. D. C. Nicholls, G. C. Raphael, C. Robertson, R. H. Tidswell, and W. Thompson were elected fellows, and Dr. Franz Steindachner a foreign member of the society. Among the additions to the society's menagerie during the month of April were especially noticed a squirrel from Ecuador (Sciurus stramineus), of a species new to the society's collection, and a male Beisa antelope (Oryx beisa) presented by the Sultan of Zanzibar, and kindly brought home for the society by Captain Pasley, of Her Majesty's ship Simoom.

A meeting was held last week, under the presidency of the Duke of Westminster, at Grosvenor House, for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to Sir Henry Cole, K.C.B., in recognition of his eminent public services in connection with the establishment and successful organisation of the South Kensington Museum. The testimonial took the form of a tablet bearing a mosaic portrait in Della Robbia ware, designed and executed under the direction of Mr. Mooly, and a marble bust by Mr. Boehm, in addition to a sum of money. The honorary secretary to the Committee of the Testimonial Fund, Mr. J. G. Crace, stated that £2924 had been subscribed; of this £323 had been expended on the tablet, £160 on the bust, and about £213 in advertising and other incidental expenses. This left a sum over of £2200 at the disposition of Sir Henry Cole. The Duke of Westminster, in formally presenting the testimonial, referred to the important educational results which had been achieved by Sir Henry Cole's exertions to improve and promote the study of science and art in this country. Sir Henry Cole, after briefly recounting the history of the origin and growth of the Museum at South Kensington, said, with much emotion, that after 50 years of public life, with his health declining from the constant strain of official work, he had felt it right to resign his duties. He was not idle in his leisure; his health had improved, and he hoped still to do some useful public work on his own responsibility. He was trying to obtain a national recognition for music, the first and most popular of all fine arts, to make elementary education the work of the people rather than of the State, and to promote means for improving the health of the people throughout the country. Resolutions were passed with a view to carrying out the wishes of Sir Henry Cole in regard to the disposition of the portrait-tablet and the bust, to the effect that the former be offered to the South Kensington Museum, and the latter, together with a bust of General Grey, copied by permission of the Queen, to the Prince of Wales, as president of Royal Albert Hall, to be suitably placed in that institution. Among those who addressed the meeting, and who all bore testimony to the energy Sir Henry Cole had displayed in promoting the study of science and art, were Lord Elcho, Lord Clarence Paget, Mr. C. Minton Campbell, Mr. George Godwin, F.R.S., Sir Morton Peto, Mr. Warren de La Rue, and Mr. N. MacLeod.

We learn from the Wednesday edition of the City Press that the recent success of Bro. J. D. Allcroft, the Conservative member for Worcester, has led to arrangements for forming a City Conservative Association. Bro. Allcroft attended the preliminary meeting.

"The Primitive Illuminati," By Bro. S.P.; unavoidably stands over till next week.

Reports of the following also stand over:—Lodges, 962, 977, 1073, 1326, 1503; Chapter 720; Kemys Tynte Encampment.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY.

I have been much interested in reading the oration by E. Comp. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., P.G.C., delivered at the consecration of the Eclectic Chapter, No. 1201, at which E. Comp. Thomas Fenn, P.G.S.B., so ably presided.

1. The oration is much more worthy of the name than those generally delivered on such occasions, as few orators appear to consider the history of Royal Arch Masonry worthy of notice, and fewer still know much with respect to its eventful past, 1740-1813. I do not think myself it had any existence as a separate degree before (say) 1735-8. However, time will not permit me to dwell on this point, but whenever pressing business duties and better health enable me to devote more time to subjects additional to and yet illustrative of the Three Degrees, I shall gladly publish many important facts collected during several years of Masonic studies, for the information especially of my English companions.

2. That the possession of the Arch Degree by the "Ancients" (or "Athol Masons") from the constitution of their Grand Lodge 1750-3 gave them a great advantage over the regular Grand Lodge (or "Moderns," so called) there cannot be a doubt, and that their success induced the members of the "Modern" Grand Lodge to have a Royal Arch of their own is equally clear. True, as late even as 1792, the Grand Lodge officially refused to countenance the "Modern" Royal Arch Grand Chapter, but it was but a nominal objection to the degree, as the Grand Master of the one body was generally the Grand Patron or chief of the other. As early as 1769, Lord Blaney's name (Grand Master 1764-6) occurs on a "modern" Grand Chapter warrant (No. 2), and their first printed regulations of 1778 ("A.L. 1782") contain the name of H.R.H. the Duke of Cumberland, as Patron, and many well-known members of the Grand Lodge as officers, including Dunckerley, Smith, Heseltine, Allen, and Ruspini. The "Union" of the two Grand Lodges in 1813, and of the Grand Chapters in 1817, healed the split, and since then, thanks be, we have proved that "union is strength" in Masonry, as in all else.

3. The curious document mentioned by our learned Bro. K. H. Mackenzie agrees in the main with a banner which is preserved at Canterbury, and once belonged to an old chapter, numbered 21. The "Modern" Grand Chapter numbered its chapters consecutively from one, but since the "Union" each chapter assumed the number of the lodge under whose wing it worked, so it is not easy to trace old chapters now, especially also as we fancy the old warrants were exchanged in many cases for new ones. The banner is doubtless of the latter part of the last century, and apparently is quite the same in character as the document in question, minus the triangle. Even that may be on the banner, but the photograph of it procured by my erudite friend and Bro. the Rev. Thomas Robinson, M.A. (P. Prov. G.H. Jamaica, Prov. G.J. Kent, &c.), is not very distinct, above the "All-Seeing Eye."

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

COLE'S LIST FROM 1770.

In looking over Cole's List I note that its last number is "406, Hare and Hounds, Barnard Castle, Durham." I see that in 1770 Cole makes Henry Price Prov. G.M. of North America, he being of Boston. The earliest American lodge is "54, Royal Exchange, Boston, in New England," the next is "62, Solomon's Lodge, Charles Town, South Carolina." Perhaps, Bro. Hughan, who knows all our Masonic histories, can tell us what became of Royal Exchange, 54, and Solomon's Lodge, 62.

The Monde Maconique has put forward lately some wonderful arguments about the right of granting warrants on the ground of original or earlier location of lodges. What will it say to the fact that the English Grand Lodge warranted the earliest lodge in France and the Netherlands? Inter alia, we note in 1770, No. 55 at Valenciennes in French Flanders in 1773; 123 at Chardenagroe; 298 English lodge at Bordeaux in 1732; La Loge de Sagesse at Havre, 1760; Grenoble, 1767; 394, Perfect Harmony, Mons?

Indeed, it is difficult to see where the argument in favour of the English Grand Lodge granting warrants as regards France and Belgium can fall short if the French Grand Orient is justified on any grounds in granting a warrant for the Mauritius.

I am only now writing on archaeological and historical grounds.

MASONIC STUDENT.

We congratulate Bro. George Burt on his nomination by the Lord Mayor as a candidate for the Shrievalty of London and Middlesex. We are informed that Bro. Burt is a lively man of 32 years standing besides being a member of the Shipwrights and Glass-sellers Companies.

The Earl of Carnarvon presided on Wednesday at the presentation of the prizes to the successful students in the medical department of King's College, and delivered an interesting speech, in which he enlarged upon the growing importance of the medical profession, and the many more opportunities for usefulness which modern legislation is opening to it.

The Prince of Wales having intimated his willingness to accept the presidency of the Royal Agricultural Society, his Royal Highness on Wednesday, at the annual meeting of the society, invited to undertake the office. It was stated that the agricultural exhibition, to be held in London next year, is intended to go far beyond anything which has preceded it.

Masonic and General Tidings.

H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Past Grand Senior Warden, has graciously consented to preside at the 80th Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and has appointed Monday, the 8th of July, as the date of celebration.

The Lord Mayor has received the following telegram in reply to one sent by his lordship congratulating the Emperor of Germany upon his recent escape: "Accept, Sir, for yourself and the Corporation of the City of London, the expression of my most sincere thanks for your kind and friendly congratulations on my escape, with the assurance of my unchangeable good wishes for the increasing prosperity of your great and mighty Corporation.—William, Emperor-King."

A statement of the accounts of the Mansion House Indian Famine Fund has been issued, and shows that a total of £515,200 had been received, of which £506,063 had been remitted to the Madras Executive Relief Committee, the expenses amounting to £9114, or about $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. A vote of thanks to the late Lord Mayor for having initiated the fund was unanimously accorded.

The Prince of Wales will hold a levee at St. James's Palace on behalf of Her Majesty on Monday, the 3rd of June.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Princesses Victoria and Maud of Wales, left Windsor Castle shortly before eight on Monday evening for Balmoral, where Her Majesty arrived at 2.15 on Tuesday afternoon.

The ship which carries the Cleopatra Needle, and which for some weeks has been lying off the Houses of Parliament, has been dismantled, and towed to the Adelphi Stairs, where a site has been prepared for the obelisk. It is expected that about seven or eight weeks will elapse before the Needle will be fixed in its resting place.

It is announced that Mrs. George Cruikshank is to enjoy a continuation of her late husband's pension of £95 a year, the Earl of Beaconsfield having notified her to that effect on Saturday last.

The Princess Louise will open the Workmen's Exhibition, to be held at the Crystal Palace, under the auspices of the Worshipful Company of Tinplate Workers, on June 29.

Mr. Shakespeare announces a grand morning concert to take place at 43, York-terrace, Regent's Park (by kind permission of Mrs. W. W. De la Rue), on Tuesday, June 11.

Canada will join the International Postal Union on the 1st of July.

A meeting of the Victoria (Philosophical) Institute was held on Monday last, at its house, 7, Adelphi-terrace. Among the members elected several were resident in the United States and in the Colonies. A paper on Physical Geography was read by Mr. J. Thornhill Harrison, M. Inst. C.E., in which he gave a description of the various changes which had taken place in the position of the earth which had tended to produce its present state. A discussion ensued, in which several took part.

The Globe is requested to say that the paragraph in Truth stating that the accomplished amateur actress, Mrs. Monckton, has accepted an engagement at the Olympic Theatre is entirely without foundation.

ROYAL PARK THEATRE.—"Hawk's Nest" is the title of Mr. Joseph Mackay's new drama, to be produced at this popular little Theatre, on Saturday evening, the first of June. Mr. George L. Gordon's new piece "Auld Lang Syne" will be played for the first time on the previous Monday. Mr. Lin Rayne, Mr. George Temple, Mr. Desmond, and Miss Emmerson, are among the artistes engaged.

RYE HOUSE.—On and after May 30th, the business at this very popular house and grounds, will be carried on by Mrs. Jane Teale, under the name of J. Teale and Company. We are confident that a large number of our readers will be glad to learn that Mrs. Teale is still in charge of the ever popular Rye House.

THE PRIMITIVE ILLUMINATI.—ERRATUM.—The quotation from Milton's "Aeropagitica," employed as an illustration in the last communication, in magnificent language, supposes an eagle "kindling her undazzled eyes at the full mid-day beam; purging and unscaling her long abused sight at the fountain itself of heavenly radiance." By an obvious misprint the word "fountain" appeared in the text as "foundation."

The annual moveable meeting of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England is appointed to be held at Keswick, on Friday, the 14th of June, under the banner of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland. The Grand Lodge will be opened in the Court Buildings, and the banquet will take place at the Keswick Hotel. Two new Mark Lodges in Cumberland, viz., Fletcher (Whitehaven) and Henry (Frizington), will, it is expected, be formally consecrated the same day.

SIR HUGH MYDDELTON LODGE, No. 1602.—The installation meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Friday, at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. Bro. Thomas J. Coombs being installed W.M. for the ensuing year. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Lord E. W. P. Clinton, and the officers of the 1st Battalion Rifle Brigade were entertained at the Royal Artillery mess on Tuesday evening, on joining the garrison at Woolwich.

A meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Province of East Lancashire took place at Bury on Thursday, a report of the proceedings at which will appear in our next.

An English journal for Paris is announced under the title of Le Journal Anglais de Paris. Bro. E. J. Fairman, the founder and editor of the first English newspaper published in Florence (Italy), is the promoter.

A large and attractive exhibition of paintings and articles of "virtu" was opened on Thursday week by the Mayor of Manchester, at the Royal Institution in that city. The receipts for admission are to be applied in aid of a new building for the Manchester School of Art, an institution founded forty years ago through the influence of the celebrated painter Haydon. After a somewhat languishing existence in its earlier years, the school has attained to a growing prosperity under its present head-master, Mr. Muckley, who was appointed in 1862. An increase of accommodation is required, and a site for a new building has been obtained in Cavendish-street, Chorlton, where it is proposed to combine with the school a public art gallery and museum for the city of Manchester. Assistance has been given in the projects by Lord Huntly, Mr. G. D. Leslie, Mr. G. Wallis, Sir H. Cole, and Lord Derby, from whom a donation of £500 was announced last year. The building fund amounted to £15,000 some time ago. The present exhibition is much larger than the collections annually made in the Royal Institution, additional room being obtained by covering over the spacious entrance-hall. The contents are almost entirely lent from the private galleries of residents in Manchester, and they include an important display of the British artists, besides a few relics of Fra Angelico, Andrea del Sarto, Van Orley, Guido Reni, and Albert Durer. Mr. Rossetti, Mr. Burne Jones, Mr. Millais, Mr. Holman Hunt, Mr. Leighton, and many other contemporary artists are represented, along with older names, among which Turner, Constable, and Ary Scheffer are conspicuous. A fine collection of china, oriental porcelain, embroidery, and antiquities, helps to make this the richest exhibition of "art treasures" that has been held in Manchester since the unique effort of 1857. The Mayor stated that the exhibition would remain open for two months, and that the sum still required was £20,000. The visitors at the opening included the Bishop of Manchester, Cardinal Manning, and the Roman Catholic Bishop of Salford.

Continental nations are rapidly taking advantage of the new sea route to Siberia. Six expeditions will leave Europe for Tobolsk and Yenesei during the current month, one being German, one Dutch, one Swedish, one Danish, and two Russian, from St Petersburg. But for the probability of war, several expeditions would have also left this country for the Siberian rivers, the idea of establishing direct relations with the commercial centres of the great Asiatic dependency of Russia being favourably regarded by several leading London merchants.—Whitehall Review.

Two live birds of paradise (paradisæa papuana) have just been added to the Zoological Society's collection in Regent's Park. The only other specimens brought to this country were two of the same species which were purchased for the society at Singapore by the celebrated naturalist, Mr. A. R. Wallace, and brought home by him when he returned from his Eastern travels in 1862.

The names of Bro. Henry Lovegrove, 1507, and Bro. Geo. Clark, 1507, were omitted from our report of the consecration of the Farringdon Without Lodge, No. 1745, last week.

PORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NUMERE LODGE (No. 730).—A meeting of the lodge was held at the Balham Hotel, Balham, on May the 32nd. This being the installation meeting was well attended. The lodge was opened in due order, the minutes of the previous lodge meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Daniel Russell, W.M., in the chair, and Bro. Palmer MacKay (the W.M. elect) was presented as stalling Master, Bro. Thomas Poore, P.M., to receive it of installation. On the retirement of the brethren a chair, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Master Thomas Poore occupying the chair, and an impressive Masonic order, Bro. Charles MacKay was installed into the chair of K.S. The having been readmitted to the lodge the customary rights were carried out, the salutation of the different degrees performed under the direction of the installing assisted by Bro. James Stevens, P.M., as Director of Ceremonies. The following brethren were then invested in the degrees, and we must say with great credit to the W.M.'s of officers, inasmuch that for some years this lodge has been sadly in want of good officers, caused by the misjudgment in not selecting the men in the score of merit, although we feel confident the pleasure was sadly marred by the duties imposed on them, but we feel sure that he having done his duty will favour of the brethren and enhance the welfare of the lodge—Bros. William Robert Sheadd, S.W.; Edward J.W.; Thomas Poore, Treas. and Secretary (by desire of the brethren); Maurice Spigall, S.D.; Gunner, J.D.; Edward Lambert, I.G.; Charles D. C.; Mulley, Wine Steward; Blogg, Steedman, Tyler. The W.M. was well up in the matter and surprised his many friends, who look on a pleasant year of office under his jurisdiction. The stalling Master's address to the officers was given with great firmness; he impressed on them the need of strict attention to their duties if they wished to, and closing the ceremony with eloquence, style, and wit, which elicited the warm approval of the brethren. The ceremony was duly raised to the Sublime Degree in a very impressive manner by the W.M., the attention to detail which have characterised his degrees of instruction are well founded, and reward with pleasure to his performance of the responsibilities of his position as a ruler of the lodge throughout his year of office. The agenda of the lodge having been disposed of, the lodge duly closed, the brethren repaired to a banquet, under the able catering of Bro. MacKay, which the Panmure Lodge, held at the Balham Hotel, always been in good repute. On this occasion the banquet was peculiarly decorated with a menu of the Great Cleopatra's Needle. Bro. MacKay, W.M., presided over the lodge and at the banquet in the most able manner, and to the satisfaction of all present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts proposed and responded to. The W.M. expressed his delight at having had the pleasure of being present at a quarterly meeting of Grand Lodge, and in the night as to the ease and fluent manner with which the Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Prince of Wales, invested the officers of the lodge on that occasion. The Tyler's toast concluded an agreeable meeting.

BYNE LODGE.—(No. 903).—The last of his popular lodge, before the annual recess, was held at the Hotel on Monday last, under the able direction of the esteemed W. Master, Bro. Simson Joo.

Byng, who was supported by his officers—Bros. Pocock, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Wale, S.D.; Gabb, J.D.; Wilkins, S.D.; and Turner, I.G. There was also, as is usual in this lodge, a goodly number of P.M.'s to support the chair. The senior, Bro. Brinjes, with Bro. Jeffreys as I.P.M., and Bro. Poynter (Treasurer), H. Smith, Harvey, Field, and Iron, attended in this capacity. A numerous assemblage of the brethren of the lodge was increased by the presence of the following visitors—viz., Bros. Packington, 619; Thain, 1627; Stickling 511; and Bonn, 1396. The W.M. having opened his lodge, proceeded to appoint as Secretary, in the room of Bro. Rogers, P.M., who had resigned membership, the I.P.M., Bro. Jefferys, whose appointment, judging from the cheering with which it was received, appeared to give great gratification to the members of the lodge. The W.M. then proceeded to initiate in a most able and impressive manner Mr. Edward George Cox, and, having closed, the brethren proceeded to a substantial meal, under the rule of their legitimate head, supported by his officers. The usual loyal and other toasts, alternated with some very enjoyable singing by the brethren, were heartily responded to, and the brethren, after a very happy and perfectly harmonious evening, at length separated, with many a warmly expressed wish that a plausible excuse for a lodge of emergency might enable them to come together again at an earlier date than of the long interval which must otherwise elapse between the end of May and the end of October.

BAYARD LODGE (No. 1615).—The installation meeting of this eminently successful lodge was held on Monday, at the hall of the Supreme Council, 33, Golden-square. Capt. R. P. Leeson, W.M., presided, and there were also present Bros. A. E. T. Watson, S.W.; Robert Fyers, J.W.; Rev. C. J. Ridgway, Chaplain; Frank Richardson, P.M., Treasurer; Edmund B. Bernard, Sec.; Major F. C. Wemyss, S.D.; Francis C. Compton, J.D.; Capt. Charles F. Compton, D.C.; Edward Sauerbrey, Org.; W. Bezley Thorne, I.G.; Capt. S. J. Dyer, Steward; Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, P.M.; Capt. T. Morris, P.M.; Hugh H. Riach, P.M.; Major Henry Lumsden; James Keen, P.M.; Lieut. A. G. Walker, R.A.; Rev. Geo. Sutton Flacke; S. H. d'Avigdor; A. G. Bagot; Capt. N. G. Philips, P.G.D.; Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, S.G.D.; Francis G. Faithful; Rev. Hugh Pearson; Lieut. G. L. Egerton, R.N.; Walter B. Lethbridge, Capt. Murray Robertson, Frederic Calrow, Edward Birkett, J. E. Mortimer, Raymond H. Thrupp, P.M. 255 and 1361; L. H. Hamilton, Henry Savile Clarke, H. R. Cooper Smith, P.P.G.W. Oxon, W.M. 1731; F. H. McCalmont, P.P.G. Reg. Oxon; W. F. Nettleship, P.G.S.B., P.M. 14; Sir W. Wiseman, R.N.; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). After the lodge had been opened, the W.M. informed the brethren that since the lodge last met Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, a member of the lodge, who was present, had been honoured by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master, appointing him as Senior Grand Deacon, and he called upon the brethren to salute him accordingly.

This was thereupon done, and Col. Shadwell Clerke, in acknowledging the compliment, said he begged to thank the brethren for the very hearty and fraternal, and to him wholly unexpected greeting, which they had given him. Bro. Bernard, the Secretary, then read the minutes, which were put and confirmed, and the Treas., Bro. Frank Richardson, read the balance sheet, showing a balance in hand of £139 12s. 10d., besides which the lodge had in the first year of its existence voted and paid £150 to the three Masonic Charitable Institutions. Bro. Frank Richardson proposed that as there was so large a balance in hand, £100 should be invested, and as he had a firm faith in "the sweet simplicity of the Three per Cents," he suggested that they should be the security on which the money should be placed. He also suggested that it should be invested in his own name, conjoined with the names of Capt. Leeson, W.M., and Bro. Watson, W.M. elect. On motion duly made and seconded this was agreed to; and the W.M. then said that as this was the last time that he would have the opportunity of addressing the brethren and officers in the position in which they now stood, he would take advantage of it to thank them for the very great assistance they had been to him during his year of office. He had received assistance from every one of them. From the officers in the chair of course he was entitled to expect it; but he must especially mention the great help he had been afforded by Bro. Richardson, the Treasurer, and Bro. Bernard, the Secretary. Bro. Bernard had come to his duties quite as a novice, but the way in which he had discharged the duties of his office had taken him (the W.M.) by surprise. The duties had been very onerous, but they had been discharged so perfectly and with such energy and zeal that the W.M. had been relieved of a great amount of anxiety and labour. To these brethren therefore he begged to offer his special thanks. Bros. Frank Richardson and Edmund B. Bernard replied to the expression of thanks, and the W.M. having noticed the great prosperity of the lodge, Col. Burney stated that it was a very great feature in the lodge's history that having been only two years before the Craft, the lodge should have such a large balance in hand. Col. Burney then presented to the W.M. Bro. A. E. T. Watson, S.W. and W.M. elect, to receive the benefit of installation. The W.M. thereupon installed Bro. Watson as W.M. of the Bayard Lodge, and the following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. Robert Fyers, S.W.; Major Wemyss, J.W.; Frank Richardson, P.M., Treasurer; Edmund B. Bernard, Secretary; Francis C. Compton, S.D.; W. Bezley Thorne, J.D.; Walter B. Lethbridge, I.G.; Rev. C. J. Ridgway, Chaplain; Captain Charles F. Compton, D.C.; Edward Sauerbrey, Organist; Captain S. J. Dyer, Steward; and Austin, Tyler. The ceremony was afterwards completed, and Col. Burney moved "That a P.M. jewel be presented to Bro. Captain Leeson." For the way in which he had performed the duties of W.M. as well as installing Master, he deserved the best thanks of the brethren. The lodge had certainly prospered in a most gratifying way under the rule of Bro. Captain Leeson, and this was best proved by the accounts which the brethren had heard read that evening. Under very distressing circumstances Bro. Capt. Leeson had performed his task that evening, and he (Col. Burney) little thought he would have been able to do it. However, he had done so, and he heartily congratulated him on what he had accomplished. Bro. Frank Richardson seconded the proposition. The W.M. having presented the jewel, Captain Leeson thanked the brethren, and said he felt very proud to wear it and to be associated with those whose reputation and experience in the Craft so much exceeded his own. As to the prosperity of the Bayard Lodge he would take no credit to himself for bringing it about, but he could conscientiously say he had had the will to do it if he had not the ability. It was a great satisfaction to him that Bro. Watson should be installed as his successor, because he had advantages which he (Captain Leeson) did not possess. Under Bro. Watson he felt certain that its prosperity, usefulness, honour, and reputation would be materially increased. He again thanked the brethren for the kindness they had shown him, and he regretted exceedingly that he could not be present at the banquet table. If he were to consult merely his own feelings he should; but under the circumstances alluded to he could not. Propositions for initiation and joining were then read by the Secretary, as well as letters from Lord Limerick and Grand Secretary regretting their inability to attend, the latter on account of ill-health. The alms-bag was circulated, and the W.M. announced that the amount collected was £8s. 6d. Lodge was thereupon closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Grosvenor Gallery Restaurant, where they partook of a choice banquet under the presidency of the W.M. The usual toasts followed. In giving "The Queen" the W.M. said she was the mother of Masons, who were very high in the Craft, she had the welfare of the people at heart, and, as we had reason lately to see, she was jealous of their honour. In proposing "The M.W.G.M." he said there was no more worthy brother than the G.M. One time he was in Portsmouth, and another at Liverpool. Then he thought he could be useful in Paris, and thereupon he went to Paris. Perhaps no one worked harder than H.R.H. In Paris he won the hearts of the French people, and he so accommodated himself to their ways that the French people said he must be a Frenchman who had lived in England. In giving "The Pro G.M., the Dep. G.M., &c.," the W.M., after complimenting the Earl of Carnarvon, said that with respect to the other Grand Officers the brethren owed them a great debt of gratitude. The brethren of this lodge considered themselves a very healthy branch of the Order, but the branches would be nothing if the root were not sound and vigorous. The appointments in Grand Lodge were made with the greatest wisdom, and the results justified the selection. They had present that night Col. Shadwell Clerke, G.D., Capt. Philips, P.G.D., and Bro. Nettleship, P.G.S.B., and the lodge felt it a very great honour to have so many Grand Officers among them. Col. Shadwell Clerke in acknowledging the toast said he felt very great diffidence in returning thanks for such a distinguished toast, because it comprehended such a numerous and illustrious body that he was as a young member too humble a one to return thanks in proper words. The Grand Officers must feel very grateful to the Order in general for the kind and fraternal way in which this toast was always proposed and received. If some of the more distinguished members of Grand Lodge were present they would express their acknowledgments in suitable terms. He had always felt that the toast of the Grand Officers was one about which a great deal might be said, but now he had become a member of that body he felt his mouth closed somewhat, because there were some of the Grand Officers to whom a great deal was owing, and it was not for them to say anything about it. If he were speaking to some lodges he might say that the Grand Officers, who had great experience, were happy to place their services at the disposal of those lodges; but when he was speaking in the Bayard Lodge, such an allusion would be out of place, because it had been governed so efficiently and well that they did not require assistance. He must congratulate the Bayard Lodge most heartily on its success ever since it was consecrated. He had the pleasure of being present at that ceremony, and he had been present at it since. He was able to say that under Col. Burney, Capt. Leeson, and its present W.M. it would acquire a reputation second to none in the Craft, and he offered his sincere congratulations on its past and present prosperity. Col. Burney proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said it was with great regret that he found himself placed in this position, for it was only from circumstances of peculiar domestic distress that the I.P.M. was not present to do what would have afforded him the very greatest pleasure and gratification. If his own feelings merely, as Capt. Leeson had told them in lodge, had been consulted, he would have joined the brethren at the festive board; but there were many circumstances in which he (Col. Burney) agreed with Capt. Leeson, it would be quite impossible for him to be present. He (Col. Burney) knew Capt. Leeson's feelings so well that he was sure he was only expressing them when he said he was privileged to propose the health of the W.M., and he was also privileged to present him to the then W.M. for the benefit of installation. The I.P.M. as well as himself (Col. Burney) knew there was no one in the lodge more worthy or more deserving of the office to which they had unanimously voted him. Bro. Watson, as the W.M. of the Bayard Lodge, had, as the brethren might easily suppose, great gratification in seeing the continued prosperity of this lodge; and in seeing Bro. Watson placed in the chair he (Col. Burney) could see the still further progress of the lodge, for with his peculiar qualifications for governing, his genial manner and his fraternal disposition, all his friends, and all the brethren that had the pleasure of his acquaintance, would gather round him and secure the success of his year of office. In acknowledging the services of so good a brother, he congratulated him on the high office to which he had attained, and all the brethren would join in giving him their hearty wishes, both for his health and for his success in his new position. The W.M. replied, and said he had often thought that if the wild beasts in the menageries, whose portraits were painted in such brilliant colours outside, were to see their own portraits they would be rather ashamed of their real appearance. He felt rather as one of those wild beasts, for Col. Burney had presented him to the brethren in such fair colours that he felt it was more as he would be than as he was. However, he was extremely pleased to be Master of such a lodge as the Bayard Lodge. Having been Senior Warden of course he might reasonably have hoped to attain to the Master's chair; still he could only accept the brethren's unanimous election of him as a proof of their confidence. He accepted it as such. He could only say that if during his year of office the lodge deteriorated in any way it would be his misfortune, and not his fault. But trusting to the brethren's co-operation, which he knew he should have, his most earnest efforts should be used on behalf of the lodge. He asked the officers and brethren to assist him as far as they could, and nothing should be wanting on his part to justify the confidence the brethren had exhibited in electing him as their W.M. "The Visitors" was the next toast, which the W.M. introduced to the brethren by saying that outsiders who had not been enlightened in Masonry imagined that Masonry was only an association of men whose object was to dine together and entertain visitors from different lodges, to encourage conviviality, geniality, hospitality, and all the other "alities." Masons, however, knew how wrong such an idea of Masonry was, but still dining together was an important part of Masonic duties. Masons adjourned from labour to refreshment, and labour and refreshment joined together were of considerable importance, and one of the most agreeable features of Masonic dinners consisted in the presence of visitors. Visitors often had something interesting to say, and frequently paid their hosts compliments which they did not at all deserve; still that was all their fault. There were several distinguished visitors present—a gallant Commander in the Navy, Sir W. Wiseman, a P.M., of many lodges; Bro. Cooper Smith, who was serving his fourth year of office in the short space of 5 years, which shewed how popular he was in all lodges; and there were also Bro. Thrupp, a brother who was very well known; besides Bros. Hamilton, Savile Clarke, McCalmont, and Nettleship. He would call on Sir W. Wiseman, and Bro. Thrupp to respond. Sir W. Wiseman, in answer to the call, said he was afraid the W.M. had not picked out a very eloquent visitor to return thanks for the guests when he called upon him. He was not accustomed to speaking in public at dinner, though he was when on board ship; and then the speeches were always brief and to the point, as he was afraid a speech from him after dinner would not be. He could only thank the W.M. and the brethren on behalf of himself and the other distinguished visitors for the kind way in which this toast had been submitted and honoured. The dinner, as the W.M. had said, was one of the important points in Masonry. Though not to be included in the working of the Craft, he thought on this occasion they might say it was a very successful part of the working. He hoped he should be privileged to attend again during the present W.M.'s year and see the working of this excellent lodge. He had not been inside a lodge for more than six years. He was made a Mason in a very out-of-the-way place on the West Coast of Africa, and he was afraid he was an ignorant Mason at all times, but he was a hearty Mason, and was very glad to help in a humble way in the workings of the Craft. In this he thought the service to which he had the honour to belong rather came forward, for there were very few naval officers that he knew who were not Masons. Naval officers saw Masonry in all parts of the world, and they were always kindly and hospitably received by all Masons. He was sure they at any rate saw the working of the good fellowship of Masonry in the cordial greeting they experienced in all quarters of the globe by their brother Masons. In that branch at least Masonry carried out the duties that Masons were instructed in in lodges. Bro. Raymond Thrupp said this was the first time he had visited the Bayard Lodge, and he was very glad to find several old brethren and friends amongst the members. He hoped to have other opportunities of coming and seeing the working of the lodge. He was exceedingly sorry that the I.P.M. was prevented by domestic affliction from being at the banquet table, but he could not but compliment him on the way in which, under the distressing circumstances, he had performed the ceremony of installation. From the way in which he carried the ceremony through he showed that he had the welfare and prosperity of the Craft at heart. The W.M. in proposing "The P.M.s," said the new W.M. who just succeeded to the chair of a lodge had, no doubt, to a certain extent to submit to the kind advice of his immediate predecessor. At present he was not submitting to that advice, for the P.M.'s wanted him to do one thing, and he wanted to do another. But he thought the other brethren of the lodge would agree that he was right. He was about to propose "The Health of the P.M.'s," of whom there were two in the Bayard Lodge. Those P.M.'s had done so much for the lodge that the health of each ought to be proposed by itself. It was unnecessary to say now that Colonel Burney had seen perhaps more of Col. Burney's enthusiasm for this lodge than any other brother present; and he (the W.M.) could assure the brethren that if Col. Burney's whole livelihood and welfare had depended on the success of this lodge, he could not have worked more heartily and enthusiastically than he had done on its behalf. The letters he had written, the journeys he had made, he could not recapitulate; and there certainly could not have been by any possibility a better founder of a lodge. They ought therefore to be proud of him and propose his health by itself. They must not, however, forget their Bro. Leeson, the I.P.M. Bro. Leeson had been suffering from very bad health, all the year he had not been really in a condition to perform his duties, but his desire to do all he could in regard to the Craft, his good feeling, and his brotherly love to the brethren, had induced him to come and do the work of the lodge when he really ought to have been staying at home. He had not spared himself at all, and he deserved the best thanks of the brethren and their hearty acceptance of this toast. Col. Burney replied. He could answer for himself, and he was sure he could answer for Capt. Leeson as for himself. Capt. Leeson had carried out his work in a manner satisfactory to all the brethren, especially suffering as he did from ill-health, and latterly from domestic affliction as well. The proof of his having done his work well was to be found in the prosperity of the lodge for the last twelve months. Speaking for himself (Col. Burney) he might say he was not deserving of all the kind things the W.M. had said of him. As the founder of the lodge he certainly took very great interest in it, and there was no amount of trouble, no amount of work (imperfect though it might be) that he would not take to forward the prosperity and good of the lodge. As to what he had done for it, that was nothing; it was only by the assistance and co-operation of so many kind brethren who rallied round him that enabled him to do what he had done. That assistance was kept up to the present day, and in the successive officers he found the same good feeling. So long as that feeling existed so long would the prosperity of the Bayard Lodge progress. Whatever little service he might be able to render to the lodge (and he was quite aware how slight it must be) it would ever be at the disposal of the Bayard Lodge. The W.M. proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary." While waiting that afternoon, before coming to lodge, in the office of Treasurer, he was told to sit down at the table and look at the book. On doing so he was really staggered to find the tremendous amount of care with which the proceedings of this lodge were notified. The ledgers and day books and all the appliances usually regarded as peculiar to a bank were made the subject matter of the attention of the Treasurer of the Bayard Lodge. He could not help thinking what great amount of trouble the worthy Treasurer and Secretary took in looking after the interests of the brethren. When the officers of a lodge were spoken of, it was generally with the feeling that while they did their duty it was with a certain amount of pleasure to themselves; but they must not forget those two officers, the Treasurer and Secretary, who spent many hours in adding up accounts and writing letters, very often long into the night, as he knew the Secretary had done. These brethren worked for the lodge in the kindest way, and they had no reward beyond the knowledge that they were doing the best they could for the Craft in carrying out their duties efficiently. Bro. Frank Richardson, Treasurer, replied. If he said that the civil officers of the lodge had no work to do they would not believe him, and therefore he would not do it. Most undoubtedly, the civil officers, if they did their duty, had a considerable amount to do; but in a lodge like the Bayard, of so young a standing, but which had taken a prominent position in the Craft, the labour became a labour of love, for it was an honour to have one's name connected with it as Treasurer or Secretary. In saying this he was sure he was speaking the sentiments of Bro. Bernard, the Secretary. With regard to the accounts he must congratulate the lodge on the prosperous position in which it stood, and he fancied there were very few lodges which in the second year of their existence had been enabled to make themselves Vice-Presidents of all the Charities, and put by £100 in the sweet simplicity of the Three per Cents. But now that this lodge had attained that high standing, and had what he might call a reserve fund as well as a fund in hand, he confessed he should like to see the lodge go a little further. It was a custom—he might say a good custom—for most of the lodges taking any position in the Craft, to send a Steward each year either to one or all the Masonic Charities, and not to send that Steward empty-handed, but to give him something to take with him to head his list and induce others to subscribe. He hoped next year this lodge would do likewise. In fact that night they had too much work to do, or he would have given notice of motion, so that the matter might be considered and discussed, but at next meeting he would give notice that the following year the lodge subscribe ten guineas to each of the Masonic Charities, and that they endeavour to prevail on some brother to represent the lodge as Steward. His esteemed friend, Col. Burney, had intimated to him that he was inclined to serve the Stewardship himself next year. Col. Burney took the office last year, and it was rather too soon to serve again perhaps; but in order to set a good example to the brethren of the lodge, which he hoped would be followed, he (Bro. Richardson) would be delighted, if Col. Burney did not serve, to represent the lodge at each of the Charities. "The Health of the Officers of the Bayard Lodge" followed, and the W.M. in proposing it said, that his appointment of those brethren had met with general approval. He was sure the admirable way in which they had filled their offices hitherto would be continued in their new positions. Without good working the business dragged, got careless, ineffectual, sluggish and dull; but if the officers worked well together the beautiful services of the Craft were most impressive. He was sure the working officers would do all they could during the present year, for their own sakes, and for the sake of the other brethren, to maintain the character of the lodge for good working and to merit the high position which had been so kindly accorded to it by the presence of the Grand Officers that evening. He knew the kind feeling which the officers had to the lodge, and he was sure they would give a proof of it during the present year. Bro. Myers, S.W., replied. He was very proud to be placed in the position to return thanks for this toast. If he might judge of the other officers by himself he could confidently assure the W.M. that they would all discharge their duties in such a manner as would continue the Bayard Lodge on that high pinnacle which it had already reached through the able and unremitting exertions of Past Master Col. Burney and Immediate Past Master Captain Leeson. He hoped no officers present would omit or neglect any opportunity of making themselves thoroughly conversant with their duties; and if he might judge from their presence that evening he thought he could see a determination on their part to rally round the W.M. and do their work in a style that would leave no occasion for regret or disappointment by the W.M., but would on the contrary cause him to be thoroughly satisfied with, and proud of the choice he had made. Col. Burney, before the Tyler's toast was given, begged to propose a toast which was not usual at Masonic gatherings. He said he had been rather impatient for this moment to arrive, because it gave him an opportunity to make an announcement which he was sure all the brethren would receive with the greatest pleasure, and which would cause them to offer their heartiest felicitations to the W.M. He was going to propose "The Health of the Ladies." On this occasion it was particularly called for, for he had the authority of the W.M. for saying that before the next regular meeting of the lodge he would become a married man. Therefore, the brethren would drink the toast of the ladies and health, happiness, long life, and prosperity to the W.M. in the new state in which he was about to enter. The toast having been most cordially received, the W.M. in reply, said that from what he knew of Masonry a brother would carry out the principles of the Craft more thoroughly if he was married. He would not say it was entirely for the sake of his lodge that he was going to be married; that would be saying too much, but still it was pleasant to know that on entering on a novel condition of life he had the kind feelings and good wishes of the brethren. The Tyler's toast was then given, and another of the very pleasant meetings of the brethren of the Bayard Lodge was brought to a close.

HENRY MUGGERIDGE LODGE (No. 1679).—The installation meeting was held on Saturday, May 25th, at the Prince George Hotel, Dalston, and Bro. Francis Fellows installed as W.M. The installation ceremony was finely rendered by Bro. Henry Muggeridge, I.P.M. The W.M. appointed the following officers, Bros. E. F. Storr, S.W.; J. Lorkin, J.W.; H. Johns, S.D.; J. H. Wilkin, J.D.; W. F. Darnell, I.G.; A. Sack, D.C.; and the office of Secretary to Bro. Henry Muggeridge. Amongst the members present were Bros. John Bagot Scrivener, P.M. No. 5, Treasurer; E. B. Crichton, Henry S. Leah, E. C. Dyer, C. F. Brown, A. H. Diaper, G. Clark, S. Stampfer, C. A. Haines, C. Arnold, A. K. Foster, E. H. Hewett, and H. Edmonds. The following were the visitors: Bros. J. Tanner, W.M. Eleanor, 1707; T. White, P.M. Neptune, 22; H. Birdseye, P.M. Panmure, 715; J. E. Beckett, Golden Rule, 1261; G. Phythian, W.M. Neptune, 22; T. W. Clarke, S.D. Elliott, 1567; T. R. Eames, P.M. Neptune, 23; G. Carter, Carnarvon, 804. A Past Master's jewel, which was much admired, was presented by the W.M. in the name of the lodge to the I.P.M., and after other ordinary business the lodge was closed. The brethren then repaired to a banquet, which gave general satisfaction, in fact great praise is due to Mr. Newell, of Hackney, for its excellence.

EVENING STAR LODGE (No. 1719).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. A. J. Duff Filer, P.G.S.B., W.M., presiding. The other brethren who attended were Bros. W. Sugg, P.M., as S.W.; T. H. Kirkham, J.W.; James Glaisher, P.M., Treas.; Magnus Ohren, P.M., Sec.; T. A. Greene, J.D.; J. W. Sugg, D.C.; F. W. Hartley, John Johnson, Edward Hide, Alfred Williams, Joseph Mainwaring, G. C. Trewby, Arthur Meads, H. Greene, J. S. Tamburini, W. Liddall, Sam Cutler, W. C. Young, J. H. Martin, and C. T. Speight, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. John E. Dawson, W.M. 404; F. J. Sweet, 87; John L. Anderson, 554; S. H. Pearson, 1423; J. T. Charles, 22; E. Coste, P.M. 9; E. T. Henman, 1423; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). The W.M. raised Bros. Lass, West, and Tiuy, and Bro. Magnus Ohren, P.M. and Secretary, initiated Mr. Basil Pym Ellis. Bro. W. C. Young, of Lodge 1716, was elected a joining member. Bro. Kirkham was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. James Glaisher, P.G.D., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. The Treasurer's report was presented, by which it appeared that the lodge had £63 in hand, and all accounts were paid. Notice was given of a motion "That a P.M. jewel of the value of £10 be presented to the retiring W.M." Lodge was then closed, and the meeting was adjourned till the fourth Tuesday in June. The brethren afterwards banqueted together at Freemasons' Tavern, when the toasts were proposed, Bro. Glaisher replied to that of "The Pro Grand Master, &c.," and in doing so said that although the toast was a formal one, there was always the feeling that brethren who were in the position of Past or Present Grand Officers were brethren who had worked well in lodge. He then proposed "The Health of the W.M." The brethren were all pleased to see that distinguished brother appearing again amongst them with the tinge of health upon his face, which he temporarily lost some months ago. They were also happy to see that that tinge was now brighter than it was on the last occasion when he presided over them. The brethren had always an interest in the W.M.'s health, because if he was not well he could not perform his duties properly. He might, therefore, say there was somewhat of a selfish feeling in their wishing the W.M. good health. The W.M. responded. There were few men, he said, in this world who were insensible to praise. If he was to tell them that he did not at all feel the very kind expressions Bro. Glaisher had made use of, and the very hearty way in which the brethren had endorsed them, he was sure the brethren would not believe him. It was inherent in human nature to feel flattered by kind expressions, and he was exceedingly grateful to the brethren for the kind support and kind feeling he had received at their hands from the moment he commenced to be the W.M. of the lodge. He appreciated it very highly, and he hoped that as long as he had the opportunity and his health was good, he should continue to promote the interests of the Evening Star Lodge. It was a great pleasure to him to find that the lodge had prospered, and that it had, through the excellent management of the Treasurer, so good a balance in hand. The brethren might congratulate themselves on the lodge being in a prosperous condition, and looking ahead as far as they could into futurity, he thought they might lay the flattering unction to their souls that it would be a great success. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," and coupled with the toast the names of Bro. Dawson, W.M. 404, and Bro. E. Coste, P.M. 9. Bro. Dawson in reply, said that all the visitors were delighted with their reception. At all times it was a great satisfaction to him to have the opportunity of visiting lodges, and he felt much indebted to his friend, Bro. Ohren, for having afforded him the opportunity of visiting the Evening Star Lodge. He had seen the working performed in an admirable way. When brethren came from the country to lodges in town, they could always pick up something which they could take back and improve their ceremonies as performed in their own lodges. Bro. E. Coste said he had enjoyed himself immensely. It was a great treat to him to hear the Third Degree worked by the W.M., and the initiation by Bro. Ohren. It must be very gratifying to all who had Freemasonry at heart, and he was sure that all the visitors would endorse what he said. Of course with respect to the banquet, every one admitted that it could not be better. The W.M. then said that it gave him great pleasure to propose the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary." How very helpful they would all be if they had not a brother like the Treasurer to husband their resources. It was by his care of the funds that they were able to enjoy themselves as they were then doing, and bring their lodge in a proper state before Grand Lodge. The brethren would cordially accept Bro. Glaisher's re-election. As to the Secretary, it was wonderful how he found time to attend to the lodge. He (the W.M.) knew what a Secretary's duties were, for in his own lodge he was Secretary for a long time. It was not every one who had the aptitude for he work that Bro. Ohren had; he found time to perform the duties efficiently, and the brethren were all greatly obliged to him for what he did. He (the W.M.) could not pay a more graceful tribute to both these officers than by wishing them long life to continue to perform their duties. Bro. James Glaisher, Treasurer, replying for himself, said that his duty was very simple—collect as soon as possible all fees, and then to husband them as best he could. The W.M. wished both him and Bro. Ohren to say a few words. In speaking of Bro. Ohren the W.M. had certainly not spoken of him too long, for the duties of Secretary had been performed by him at all times with clear method and strict attention to all details. There was no one so capable of judging that as he (Bro. Glaisher), for there were a number of instances in which his work and Bro. Ohren's work related into each other; and he had never found Bro. Ohren doing his work in other than that business-like way that had been described by the W.M. It was done in a way as to demand all the brethren's thanks. It mattered not what other work Bro. Ohren had to do, all work was done. During his (Bro. Glaisher's) life he found that the more a man had to do the more he did, by never allowing one hour to steal upon another. Bro. Ohren acted on this principle. If he did not, he (Bro. Glaisher) would soon find him out. He (Bro. Glaisher) was auditor of a company of which Bro. Ohren was Secretary, and if he ever allowed one hour to steal another he should soon find him out. He had found him out, and he was sure more work they put upon him the more he was to do. Bro. Ohren also replied, and expressed the pleasure he had in finding Bro. Glaisher again elected as Treasurer. When he (Bro. Ohren) was first asked to join the lodge, he said his duties were so onerous he could not take the office; but the W.M. had urged him to do so, and he became Secretary. Bro. Glaisher had said of him that his official duties he had plenty to do, and he had had other Masonic duties to attend to; but if he at any time undertook any duties he endeavoured to perform them, and he always did it to the best of his ability. He accepted the office of Secretary to this lodge when it was first formed, and he endeavoured ever since to discharge the functions of the post. So soon as he was not able to do so the lodge might depend upon it that he would place his services in the W.M.'s hands. As far as his official duties were concerned, Bro. Glaisher saw his accounts and they were produced; but however much he might be sorry, he never neglected his official duties for either private or public matters. He should always be ready to his assistance to the Evening Star Lodge. The next proposed "The W.M. elect." He said he thought it was the custom in the Eastern countries to elect the rising sun, and he thought he should not be long when he said that the same custom prevailed in other countries. The brethren would regard him (the W.M.) as the setting sun on the present occasion, and the W.M. elect as the rising sun. He was very much pleased to find Bro. Kirkham elected as W.M. He had known him a great number of years. He was almost ashamed for both their sakes to say he had known him for 47 years; and he had known his father before him. Bro. Kirkham had grown up under his (the W.M.'s) observation, and had made for himself a mark. He had made himself a successful man, which was not the lot of every one. He could assure the brethren that they could not have chosen for their W.M. a more warm-hearted man, or a man more imbued with the principles of Masonry. He was a man of peace, quiet and amiable in his position. He had said that evening that he would work up for the performance of the ceremonies; but if he had not time, he (Bro. Filer) would be happy indeed to assist him, and there were others in the lodge who would do the same. It was not given to every man to acquire the ceremonies of Masonry. Some could not do it on account of the multiplicity of their affairs, and some from other causes. He remembered once the Duke of Sussex (he was old enough for that) saying, when somebody had asked him the question whether a man should be chosen for W.M. who could not perform all the duties, the ceremonies of initiation, passing, and raising, that he must answer that question in this way, that if the brethren found a man of amiable temper, a good man who could keep his lodge together and infuse into the members that kind Masonic spirit which would make them happy and comfortable, he was a man to elect W.M., even though he could not perform the ceremonies; it was not every man who could learn the ceremonies; and that was his answer. He (Bro. Filer) believed that was the way to view the matter. He knew a great many brethren who had passed the chair who had many virtues, were so kind and liberal that they acquired the good feelings of the brethren of the lodge. Bro. Kirkham responded, and said that it was true the W.M. had known him many years, and there had always been the greatest friendship between them. He would do his best to fill the chair properly, and if he was not able to do it as well as Bro. Filer and other brethren had, he would nevertheless do his best. He was a Mason at heart, although he might not have the gift to go through the technicalities of the ceremonies. Still he hoped he would prove to the brethren that he was worthy of the confidence they had placed in him. He could do no more than this, and at their hands he hoped to receive consideration. Bro. W. Sugg replied to the toast of "The Officers." He said it was the pleasure of the officers to perform those duties with which they were entrusted by the W.M., and they would endeavour to do them to the best of their ability, following the steps of the W.M., who had set them so good an example that they must work hard to imitate him at all. They had started in this lodge with working in a very excellent manner. They had as one of their officers a Past Master of the Lodge of Unions. In that lodge room they had met that evening, and their working they imitated. From the instruction they received in that lodge they hoped to make their working approximate that of the Lodge of Emulation. Bro. C. F. Spright then gave the Tyler's toast, and the brethren separated.

WORKINGTON.—Sun and Sector Lodge (No. 962).—The ordinary monthly meeting of this lodge took place on Wednesday evening, the 15th ult., in the lodge room, Portland-square. Bro. J. Wood, W.M., was in the chair, supported by most of his officers, and there was a good attendance of the members, it being election night. After the minutes were read and confirmed, the names of those qualified for the chair were read over, and Bro. John Albert Salkeld, S.W., in whose favour the whole of the others retired, was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. G. Brooker, P.M., was then re-elected Treasurer. Bro. Philip Wedgwood was also re-elected to represent the lodge on the Charity Committee of the Province. After the transaction of some other business, the lodge was closed in form. The installation festival will be held in June.

FOWEY.—Fowey Lodge (No. 977).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held May 6th, at the Masonic Rooms. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. H. W. W. Durant, assisted by Bros. Lamb, I.P.M.; Abbott, P.M.; Williams, P.M.; Tonkin, P.M.; Couch, S.W.; Gould, J.W.; H. W. Durant, Treasurer, and others. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Two candidates having put in an appearance, the one for the honours of the Third Degree, the other for initiation, both received due attention from the W.M., one being raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., the other being initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. On the lodge being closed down to and resumed in the First Degree, the W.M. thanked the brethren for their kind attention to his wishes in appearing in mourning, as an affectionate token of respect to the memory of their deceased Bro. John Greer, P.S.W. of the lodge, and he then directed the Secretary to prepare a petition to Grand Lodge, and also to Prov. G. Lodge, on behalf of the widow, praying for pecuniary assistance for her. Bro. Greer was drowned by an accident in the active discharge of his duties, as a master mariner, leaving a wife and child to deplore his loss, and without adequate provision. The W.M. then alluded to the position of Lodge Fowey, with respect to Prov. Grand Lodge, which had promised to take into consideration the claims of this lodge as a suitable place to hold the next Provincial gathering for 1879. The W.M. stated he had received a request from Lodge St. Matthew, Lostwithiel, asking the brethren kindly to forego their prior claim to this honour in their favour, so that they might have Prov. Lodge there, and have their new temple consecrated at the same time, which has recently been completed, furnished and decorated in a very superior manner. The W.M. further stated he must decline giving them advice in the matter, but leave it in the hands of the brethren, for them to exercise deliberately their judgment and discretion, whether they would forego their privilege should it be granted them, or would press it so as to secure the intended honour. It was thought by the majority present that they had no right to make an application to the P.G. Master, and then countermand it in favour of another lodge, and that the application should stand, and on no account be revoked. The brethren then partook of a slight refreshment, and cheered the few and very pertinent remarks made by the W.M., Bros. Abbott, P.M.; Lamb, I.P.M.; Williams, P.M.; W. H. Lake, and others. The brethren then dispersed, having spent a very instructive and profitable evening. Owing to the munificence of some distinguished and influential brethren, the Master and Wardens are provided with their splendid jewels, the gift of our late Bro. W. Rashleigh, of Point Neptune, P.G. J.D. of Scotland; the W.M.'s chair from Bro. Rev. Geo. Ross, P.P.G.C. of Cornwall; the S. and J. Warden's chairs, the gift of Bro. Rev. Dr. Treffrey, P.P.G.C. of Cornwall.

KESWICK.—Greta Lodge (No. 1073).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the 20th ult., in the Court Buildings, when there were present Bros. W. Lamsonby, W.M., P.P.G. Treas.; J. D. Wivell, I.P.M.; D. Pape, S.W.; R. P. Hunter, J.W.; J. Barron, Treas.; W. Wilson, Sec.; T. Usher, as S.D.; W. Hodgson, J.D.; J. Crowden, as I.G.; W. Gaspey, M.C.; J. Martin, Steward; C. Thompson, Tyler; A. Pettitt, and others. The lodge was opened in form by Bro. Wivell, P.M., in the temporary absence of the W.M., and the minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Francis Jackson, who had previously been balloted for, being in attendance, Bro. W. F. Lamsonby, P.M. 1002, P.G. Reg. (Freemason), on the invitation of the W.M., took the chair, initiated the candidate, and also delivered the E.A.'s charge. A brother having been proposed as an affiliating member, it was announced that Mrs. Tremble, the widow of a Whitehaven brother, and the candidate of the province, had been elected an annuitant of the Benevolent Institution. After hearty good wishes from Bro. T. Carey, W.M. Lodge 371, Maryport, the lodge was closed in form.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1316).—The first regular meeting since the recess was held on Saturday, May 18th, at the Red Lion Hotel. The W.M., Bro. C. W. Fox, opened the lodge, assisted by his officers, who showed up in good force. The minutes of the last regular meeting, held on August 18th, 1877, and an emergency held on Thursday, May 9th, 1878, were read, unanimously confirmed, and signed by the W.M. All the business having been disposed of on May 9th, attention was given to other matters. On motion duly made, seconded, and unanimously resolved, that Bro. John Hammond, P.M. 201, and J.W., be recommended to the R.W.P.G.M. Middx. for a Provincial Grand Lodge Stewardship, he being one of the founders and the oldest member who had not received Grand Lodge honours in Middlesex. The veteran Secretary, Bro. F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M., gave a notice of motion, "That a seven guinea Past Master's jewel be given to the W.M., Bro. C. W. Fox, from the lodge funds for his efficient services during the year of his office." The W.M., Bro. C. W. Fox, made an earnest appeal on behalf of the Boys' School, he being the Steward representing the lodge at the forthcoming festival. The important letter from Grand Lodge about Grand Orient of France was re-read it having been previously read at an emergency meeting held on 9th ult. Business over, the lodge was closed, and adjourned, to meet again on Saturday, June 15th, at half past three. Banquet followed. There were present besides those named Bros. Col. F. Burdett, R.W.P.G.M. Middx.; R. W. Williams, P.P.G. Org. Middx., W.M. 1275, S.W.; J. Hammond, P.M., J.W.; J. B. Skackleton, P.M., S.D.; J. W. Baldwin, P.G.P. Middx., P.M., I.D.; H. Gloster, I.G.; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; J. C. Woodrow, P.M.; E. Gilbert, P.M.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M.; C. Graham, C. W. Baker, W. Vassild, C. Lucup, W. Butler, and many others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Rev. G. R. P. Colles, LL.D., P.P.G. Chap. Oxon; G. J. Gibson, 1531; W. J. Millanny, 1445; and others.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 150).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Albany Hotel on the 14th ult., when there were present Bros. W. Wigginton, P.M., P.P.G.S. of Works, &c., Middlesex, acting W.M. in the absence through indisposition of Bro. S. H. Knaggs; Court, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Vaughan, S.D.; Ashley, J.D.; Palmer, I.G.; Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, D.C.; Court, jun., Assistant Organist; Tomlinson, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, Treas.; C. Horsley, P.P.G.R. of Middlesex, and others. It was reported that an emergency meeting had been held on the 8th ult., when there were present amongst others Bros. S. Knaggs, W.M.; Court, S.W.; Tomlinson, acting J.W.; Wigginton, Secretary; Walls, D.C.; Richnoll, A.W.S.; Court, Assistant Organist; Kennedy, P.M., Lily, and others. That meeting had been specially convened for the purpose of forwarding votes of condolence to the widow of the late W. Bro. Little, D.P.G.M. of Middlesex, in her affliction, and to the R.W.P.G.M. for the loss he, as well as the province, had sustained by Bro. Little's decease. The proceedings of the meeting of the 14th inst. consisted of the initiation of Mr. L. Newton, and the passing of Bro. Skinner to the degree of a F.C. Both ceremonies were well and impressively performed by the acting W.M. The only visitor present was Bro. Butter, 1260. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and adjourned until the second Wednesday in July next. The brethren then partook of a well served collation. It being an "off night," the toasts were few and but briefly given. "The Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," was acknowledged by Bro. Charles Horsley. "The Initiative" followed, and Bro. Newton made a neat and modest reply. "The Health of the W.M." followed, and was responded to by Bro. Wiggington, P.M., upon behalf of Bro. Knaggs, whose absence, he said, from the duties of his position through illness was greatly to be regretted. He, however, hoped that at the next regular meeting of the lodge their W.M. would be in his accustomed place and in the enjoyment of perfect health. "The Visitor" gave Bro. Butler an opportunity of congratulating the lodge upon the efficiency of its working. The other toasts having been duly honoured, the brethren separated.

GREAT STANMORE.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 1549).—This new lodge commenced its fourth summer season at the Abercorn Hotel on April 3rd, and brought together most of the old familiar faces, viz.: Bros. Osman Vincent, W.M.; Lidcombe, S.W.; Eblus, J.W.; Dr. Rogers, Treasurer; Veal, P.P.G.S.D. Surrey, Secretary; Hunt, W.S.; Ray, I.G.; Garrod, I.P.M.; Helsdon, P.M., P.P.G.P. Middlesex; Middleton, Hall, Buck, Darby, Squire, Hancock, and others. Visitor, Bro. Foot, 1260. The lodge was opened in the First Degree by the W.M. at 3.35, when the minutes of the last previous meeting in October were read and confirmed, and after various small matters had been disposed of, the W.M. called strict attention from the brethren whilst the Secretary read the report of Grand Lodge respecting the recent action of the Grand Orient of France, which was read and received with satisfaction and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The W.M. having opened to the Second Degree, two brethren were called upon to show their proficiency prior to being raised to the Third Degree, one only (Bro. Squire) being present, and proving satisfactory was sent forward for preparation whilst the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. On being duly presented he was raised to the Sublime Third Degree, and entrusted with the customary secrets of M.M. by the W.M., who proved himself as usual quite equal to the occasion. The W.M. then made the usual fraternal inquiries, when two candidates were announced for initiation at the next meeting. Letters of resignation were also read from Bros. H. T. and E. G. Swatton, through unavoidable circumstances, which were accepted and confirmed with regret. "Hearty good wishes" from No. 1260 concluded the business, and the lodge closed in peace and harmony at 6 p.m. After a short adjournment amongst the spring flowers, the brethren met at banquet, and the evening passed off with the usual satisfaction.

The second regular meeting was held also at the same ancient hostelry, the Abercorn Hotel, on the 1st ult., and was similarly attended, with the addition as visitors of Bros. Mickelburgh, 1425, and Faulkner Leigh, 404. The lodge may be congratulated in having secured the last named brother as Organist to the lodge, he having so recently proved his interest in the Craft by devoting the talents of himself and other superior artists towards a grand evening concert at St. James's Hall, on behalf of the losses sustained by the Masonic Charities. Many Royal and Grand Officers and brethren of importance were present, and no doubt a handsome sum will reward the exertions for so good a cause. The lodge on this occasion was opened at 3.45. The previous minutes were duly confirmed, and the lodge bye-laws read by the Secretary in open lodge. Various small matters of detail were then arranged, and the Audit Committee appointed to meet and balance the finances prior to the installation meeting in July. As neither the candidate for initiation nor Bro. Hancock was present to be raised, the election of W.M. for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and proved unanimous in favour of the much esteemed Bro. G. Tidcombe, the present S.W., as also in favour of Bro. Dr. Rogers' re-election as Treasurer. Bro. J. Middleton also received the re-appointment of Tyler, and the usual P.M.'s jewel was unanimously voted to the retiring W.M. The usual fraternal greeting from Lodges 1425 and 404 were received, and the Secretary announced three important circulars from the R.W.P.G.M. On the first being read, Bro. J. W. Garrod, P.M., was ordered to be recommended as Prov. G. Steward should a vacancy arise. On the second request of the R.W.P.G.M. that candidates in the several degrees should be taken separately to the end of the O.B., such was ordered to be entered on the minutes only, it having been the custom of the lodge from its commencement to adhere strictly to this principle. The third request of the R.W.P.G.M. called upon the brethren to appear in Masonic mourning for three months, in memory of the lamented Bro. R. Wentworth Little, which was duly observed at this meeting; a vote of condolence was also recorded and ordered to be sent to the widow. The W.M. feelingly remarked how short a time it seemed since the worthy deceased brother consecrated so ably this, their new lodge, and the sympathies of the brethren were very conspicuously expressed. The W.M. having alluded to the unfortunate absence of both of the Deacons, with the hope that such would not continue, the lodge was duly closed at 5.15 p.m. The usual customary banquet passed off satisfactorily, alike creditable to the host (Bro. C. Veal) as to the musical brethren, amongst whom Bro. Faulkner Leigh proved himself so great an acquisition, and was fully appreciated. The W.M. ably fulfilled his duties with the customary toasts and happy compliments. Bro. Mickelburgh returned thanks for "The Visitors," saying that they always received here such a hearty welcome that they willingly came again, and the brethren dispersed with the Tyler's blessing at 10 p.m. The installation meeting on July 3rd promises to be a highly complimentary gathering to the new W.M., many distinguished Grand Lodge and Prov. Grand Lodge Officers having signified their intention to be present.

HAMPTON WICK—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the White Hart Hotel on Monday, the 13th ult., when there were present amongst others Bros. W. Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, 1512, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, W.M.; J. Hammond, P.M. 201, W.M. 1512, acting S.W.; J. Hurst, P.M. 1512, acting J.W.; Nuthall, Treas.; T. W. Ockenden, S.D. 1512, Secretary; T. C. Walls, P.G.O. of Middlesex, I.G.; Marion, D.C.; Gilbert, P.G.T. of Middlesex, Tyler. The W.M., with the assistance of his officers, raised Bros. Humphris and Burchill, passed Bros. Chandler, Abbott, Jobbins, Turner and White, and initiated Mr. Alfred John Emms, the ceremonies being well performed. The report adopted by Grand Lodge, and dated March 6th, 1878, with reference to the Grand Orient of France, having been read, Bro. John Hurst, P.M. 1512, J.D., was recommended for a Provincial Grand Stewardship. A vote of condolence to the widow of the late Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the W. Bro. R. W. Little, having been unanimously passed, and directed to be entered on the minutes, and a copy ordered to be forwarded by the Secretary to Mrs. Little, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren separated. The next regular meeting of the lodge will be held on the first Monday in November next.

CHAPTER OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—We are taught that all things mortal come to an end, and an instance of the truth of the teaching was seen on the 21st ult., when the first year of this chapter was brought to a conclusion at its birthplace, the Guildhall Tavern and Coffee House, Gresham-street. Comps. James Terry was M.E.Z.; Winsland, H.; Robert Griggs, J.; J. Hillhouse, Scribe E.; While, (Freemason) Scribe N.; Halford, P.S.; with Comps. Killick, and Davies, as assistants. Comps. Hazelgrove, Crump, Gooch, Percy, Fenner and many others were present. The ballot was taken for two brothers to be exalted, Bro. Walter Rowley, of the Cosmopolitan Lodge, and Bro. Joseph Gibbs, of the Perfect Ashlar Lodge, who were well and worthily recommended, and were unanimously accepted. They were then in due form exalted, the work being exceedingly smooth, and without hitch. The election of officers for the ensuing year was then held, and Comp. Winsland stated that, having informed several companions that he did not intend to seek election to the position of Z., he had been prevailed upon to withdraw his objections to taking upon himself the duties, if the companions thought fit to elect him. The ballot was unanimous in his favour, as it was for the election of Comps. Griggs to H., Hillhouse to J., While to Scribe E., Halford to Scribe N. Comp. Snare, who was P.S. at the foundation of the chapter, having by illness and other causes been absent during the year, had what would have been his position thus filled by Comp. Halford, with extreme reluctance by the companions, with the hope that at some future time circumstances will permit the companion to resume his Masonic work, which, up to a certain period, he carried out with great zeal and ability. The election of P.S. fell upon Comp. Killick. The M.E.Z. elect was also elected Treasurer, and he stated that the year had been a very successful one, for not only had all the costs of the foundation of the chapter been paid off, the bills for furniture and robes settled, and all the tavern bills paid, but the chapter had a balance of £24 in hand. The chapter then closed, and the brethren sat down to an excellently served supper, fish, fowl, and joint, and the style must have been pleasing in every way, the character of the "entertainment" being without any pretensions to rigid economy on the one hand or to extravagance on the other, but was a middle course which gave the highest satisfaction to every one. After the usual loyal toasts, those highest in the State being warmly toasted, the M.E. proposed the toast of the M.E. elect and Treasurer, and dwelt upon the eminent services Comp. Winsland had rendered to the chapter. In the old lodge, to which the chapter belonged, he had been found to be as true-hearted a man as ever God had put breath into, and by all he had been regarded as a sincere friend, by all he was loved and revered. They all trusted, the M.E. proceeded to say, that their M.E. elect would long have his health to share in the labours of his companions, whose words of love and reverence were sincere and heartfelt. In reply the M.E. elect thanked the companions for having unanimously elected him, and assured them that he should do the chapter no discredit. As to his election to Treasurer, having filled the same position in the mother lodge for very many years, some 24 or 25, he could be safely entrusted with the duties. The exaltees were duly toasted, and responding, thanked the chapter for having elected them. They also expressed themselves as delighted with the ceremony. Comp. Griggs then proposed the toast of the M.E., whose work had so very materially aided the success which had attended the chapter in its past year, and the M.E. in reply thanked the companion founders for having placed him in that position. It would always be, he added, his earnest work to promote in the chapter the harmony which ever characterised the mother lodge, and he then proceeded to propose "The Healths of the H. and J. elect." congratulating the chapter upon the work in the last year of Comps. Griggs and Hillhouse, and stated with regard to the latter that so well had he carried out his duties of Scribe that not a single payment of any sort was outstanding, for visitors, fees or anything else. The toast was of course heartily given and responded to, and then the M.E. proposed the toast of the visitor, Comp. Davis, who in reply stated that, it was always usual on the part of visitors to declare the work well done. On one occasion, in a lodge which should be nameless, he had got over the difficulty by saying that he had "never seen work done like it before," and one of the chief officers had the candour to admit that no one else had. The Chapter of United Strength could stand, with regard to work, upon its own merits. Of course every one expected Comp. Terry to work well, but it was a proud thing for a chapter to have all the officers working in perfect harmony, without the slightest prompting or hesitation, each knowing his work and doing it, and all having the ability to discharge the duties which fell upon them. The M.E. then proposed "The Officers," and spoke at length upon the merits of each, expressing himself as being personally under an obligation to them for the perfect manner in which they had discharged their offices. In the course of the evening Comps. Stock, Killick, Percy, and Davis delighted the companions with songs and recitations.

P N M U R E CHAPTER (No. 720).—The fourth annual installation meeting of this chapter was held at the Horns Tavern, Kennington, on Monday the 13th ult. The officers present were the M.E.Z., Comp. G. H.N. Bridges; Ex. Comps. George Waterall, H.; Mark S. Larham, J.; James Stevens, P.Z. and Scribe E.; H. C. Levander, P.Z. and Treasurer; and Comps. Thos. Poore, N.; R. N. Field, P.S.; A. C. Burrell, 1st A.S.; S. Poynter, 2nd A.S.; F. W. Levander, D.C.; and Thos. Meggy, Steward; Ex. Comps. Henry Smith, P.Z.; and R. H. Harvey, P.Z.; Gibbs, Harrison, and other members, and visitors, Comps. Arthur Styan Macdonald, 1216; and Louis Hirsch, Mount Zion, 22. The chapter having been duly opened, the Principals elected for the ensuing year were presented to Ex Comp. James Stevens, P.Z.; and were severally installed, Ex. Comps. George Waterall, M.E.Z.; Mark S. Larham, H.; and Thomas Poore, J. The thanks of the chapter were voted to Comp. Stevens, for his services as Installing Principal, and he was invested for the tenth occasion as Scribe E.; Comp. Field, was invested as Scribe N.; and Comp. Burrell, as P.S.; who appointed Comps. Poynter and F. W. Levander his assistants. In consequence of the severe illness of Comp. W. B. Church (who has since died) his election as Treasurer was, at his earnest request, set aside, and Ex. Comp. Henry Smith, P.Z., having been nominated, was duly balloted for, declared unanimously elected, and was invested as Treasurer accordingly. Comp. Thomas Meggy, was invested D.C.; and Comp. Edward Mitchell was appointed Steward. A letter of regret and sympathy was ordered to be addressed to Ex. Comp. Church, P.Z. The sanction of the chapter was given to Ex. Comps. James Stevens, P.Z., and Thomas Poore, J., for the formation of a chapter of instruction, at Brixton, to work under the title of "Panmure, 720." A P.Z. jewel was presented to the retiring M.E.Z., Ex. Comp. Bridges. The audit report and balance sheet were read and disclosed a satisfactory result. After notice of motion for alteration of one of the bye-laws, the chapter was closed in ancient form, and the companions dined together.

FAREHAM.—Chapter of Harmony No. 309.—The quarterly meeting of this chapter was held on Thursday, the 16th ult. The Principals and officers for the ensuing year having been elected, they were severally installed and invested in their respective offices. The Second Principal, the Rev. Dr. White, being unavoidably absent, his installation will take place at a subsequent meeting. The officers for the ensuing year are Comps. G. L. Green, Z.; Rev. Dr. White, H.; J. Whale, J.; E. Holbrook, P.Z., E.; J. Andrews, N.; A. Nance, P.S.; W. Taylor, P.Z., Treas. The ceremony of installation was performed by Comp. E. S. Main, P.Z. The candidate for exaltation being detained on official duties, this portion of the agenda paper was adjourned for a future meeting. After the usual business the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet, when the newly-installed Principal, Comp. G. Green, presided in the most efficient manner, giving an earnest of what may be expected from him during the term of his office. The toasts incidental to a gathering of loyal Royal Arch Masons were duly honoured, and the Principals and officers in responding to the toasts were unanimous in their determination to resuscitate and restore this old chapter to its former prestige and lustre. We wish them every success in their laudable work, and hope the members of the chapter will rally round them, so as to secure the efficient working of the most Sublime Degree in Freemasonry. This chapter is mainly supported by enthusiastic companions belonging to the neighbouring town of Portsmouth, and it is not too much to ask that the Fareham Masons should bestow at least as much energy and support on this chapter as these enthusiastic Masons; it will then really supply the means for their obtaining the completion of their Masonic education, as authorised by the Supreme Grand Chapter and the United Grand Lodge of England.

Knights Templar.

KEMEYS TYNTE PRECEPTORY.—The members of this preceptory met on Friday the 17th ult., at 33, Golden-square, for the purpose of receiving three companions into the Order, and installing the Em. Preceptor elect. There was a numerous assembly of Knights, and Sir Knight Colonel Charles Wilson Randolph, the Eminent Preceptor, performed the ceremony in an admirable manner, which elicited unqualified praise. The installation of Sir Knight James Lewis Thomas, Em. Preceptor, was performed by Col. Somerville Burney, with his usual accuracy and impressiveness of manner. A Past Preceptor's jewel was presented to Colonel Randolph. Amongst the visitors we noticed Sir Knight the Revd. J. C. Martyn, Capt. N. G. Philips, Gen. Clerk, R.A., J. W. Ellison Macartney, M.P., W. Ellison Macartney, jr., M.A., Col. Jas. Peters, Colonel Shadwell Clerke, Frank Richardson, and H. C. Levander. The Knights adjourned to the Grosvenor Gallery Restaurant, where a well served banquet awaited them, under the genial presidency of their new Preceptor Sir Knight J. Lewis Thomas.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The following is the agenda for Wednesday, 5th June, 1878:—

1. The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 6th March for confirmation.
 2. The minutes of Grand Festival of the 24th April for confirmation.
 3. The M.W. Grand Master will move "That this Grand Lodge agree in a vote of congratulation to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, Grand Protector of Prussian Freemasons, on his happy and providential escape from the recent attempt on his life."
 4. The M.W. Grand Master will move "That this Grand Lodge do grant the sum of one hundred pounds, to be paid out of the Fund of General Purposes, for the assistance of the members of the Igualdad Lodge, No. 653, in the Island of Curaçao, West Indies, who have suffered from the hurricane which occurred there on the 23rd September, 1877."
 5. The M.W. Grand Master will present the report of the Committee appointed at the last Grand Lodge, on the 6th March, 1878, to enquire into and report upon the whole of the financial and banking arrangements of Grand Lodge—and will move thereon.
 6. Election of members of the Board of General Purposes.
 7. Election of members of the Colonial Board.
 8. Election of members for the Committee of Management of the "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons."
 9. Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz.:—
The widow of a brother of the South Saxon Lodge, No. 311, Lewes ... £75 0 0
A brother of the St. Paul's Lodge, No. 194, London ... 125 0 0
The widow of a brother of the South Norwood Lodge, No. 1139, South Norwood ... 50 0 0
The widow of a brother of the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, London ... 75 0 0
A brother of the Lodge of Three Grand Principles, No. 208, Dunsbury ... 75 0 0
 10. Report of the Board of General Purposes.
- On the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes beg to report as follows:—
1. Several matters of Masonic complaint have been brought before the Board since the last Quarterly Communication. These have, however, either been withdrawn so disposed of as not to necessitate a specific report to and Lodge.

2. An application from Mr. Thomas Bacon, the lessee of Bacon's Hotel, for a new lease on the expiration of the existing one, at the end of the present year, was referred to the Premises Committee for consideration and report; and Board of General Purposes unanimously agreeing with recommendation of that Committee now advise Grand Lodge that a new lease for seven years from the expiration of the lease be granted to Mr. Thomas Bacon at the same rental, subject to the proviso that such lease be alienable on death or otherwise.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON,
Masons' Hall, London, President.

At the meeting of the Board, held on Tuesday, the 21st after the ordinary business had been disposed of, it was unanimously resolved:—

That the thanks of the Board are due, and are hereby rendered, to the V.W. Bro. John B. Monckton, the President, for attention to all matters of business that have been brought forward during the past year, for the ability with which he has conducted the proceedings, and for his good bearing to all the members of the Board."

(Signed) HENRY C. LEVANDER,
Vice-President.

The report is subjoined a statement of the Grand accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee held on Friday, the 17th day of May instant, shewing balance in the hands of the late Grand Treasurer of 13s. 9d.; in the London and Westminster Bank, 7s.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

The annual report of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freedom, dated the 17th of May, 1878, will be laid before Lodge.

Proposed motion by W. Bro. Benjamin Head, "That the sum of £70 be given from the Fund of General Purposes; that the money be placed in the hands of the Secretary of the "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freedom" to supply the residents of the Institution at Croydon during the winter season."

CONSTITUTIONS OF GRAND LODGE, 1784.

The editor has asked me to reply to "A. S." as to an old Masonic work, and whether it is "well-known." The book he refers to was edited by Bro. Noorthouck, and was the regular Book of Constitutions of the Grand Lodge of England from the year 1784 to the "Union." Its ancestry was as follows:—1784 was preceded by that of 1767 (and appendix 1776), which was the offspring of 1756, an improvised and much extended edition of 1738 (re-issued also in 1746, but new title page only), which in turn was the lineal descendant of the premier Book of Constitutions of 1723.

An illegitimate offspring appeared in 1769, but without issue, according to the Masonic Cyclopædia, edited by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., but little is known of Bro. Noorthouck, who edited the 1784 Constitutions.

Certainly the 1784 edition is well-known to all Masonic students, but beyond that small circle it is not likely to have been much studied or appreciated, for it will take some time yet before the Craft generally, as members, incline to a perusal of their own history. I have, however, great confidence in the spread of Masonic intelligence through the medium of our literature, and especially in the formation of Masonic libraries like those at Sheffield, Leicester, Hull, and especially after the style of the Grand Library of the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, London, one of the finest of the kind in the world.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

COLE'S LIST OF 1770.

I hasten to correct one or two typographical errors in the last Freemason.

No. 55 at Valenciennes was founded in 1733. Le Loge de la Sagesse, Havre, 1766, and was No. 310.

The Lodge of Grenoble was 322; and No. 394, Perfect Harmony, at Havre, was founded in 1770.

It may be well to remind my readers, that No. 27 was a Spanish lodge, founded at Madrid 1727, and that a French lodge, originally No. 90, was said to have been founded in 1732.

Besuchet tells us that a Lodge "Au Louis d'Argent," was constituted in 1729, and some think these were two lodges, (some say they were one and the same).

In 1768 two lodges were struck off the roll of the Grand Lodge of England, according to Noorthouck.

I will endeavour to verify this fact by a search in the old records, and write again to the Freemason.

If, as I said last week, the original chartering of lodges is to give a right of perpetual jurisdiction despite differing nationalities, it seems difficult to say where the right of the English Grand Lodge ends, or how it can be limited.

MASONIC STUDENT.

MARK MASONRY IN PLUMSTEAD.

An influential meeting of Mark Masters and Craft Masons was held at the New Masonic Hall, Plumstead, on the 3rd ult., to take into consideration the advisability of establishing a Mark Lodge under the Province of Kent in this district. Bro. James Ritchie, Royal Artillery, Grosvenor Lodge, No. 144, P.G.J.M.W. Middlesex and Surrey, was unanimously elected to the chair, and was supported by the undermentioned distinguished Masons of the district, viz.: Bro. C. Coupland, W. Weston, Geo. Spinks, Jas. Smyth, Abel Penfold, Henry Shaw, E. Palmer, Henry Pryce, and others. Bro. Ritchie explained to the brethren that a very general desire had been expressed by the brethren in Woolwich and Plumstead that a Mark Lodge under the Province of Kent should be established in Plumstead, and for this purpose he proposed that circulars be issued to the Masters, Past Masters, &c., of the lodges in Woolwich and Plumstead, inviting them to attend a meeting for the purpose of discussing the matter. This meeting was accordingly held at the Masonic Hall Plumstead, on the 8th ult., at which it was unanimously resolved that it was desirable to form a Mark Lodge for this influential district, and the undermentioned brethren were duly nominated, and elected as the officers for the ensuing year: Bros. J. Ritchie, R.A., Grosvenor Lodge, 144, P. G.J.M.W. Middlesex and Surrey, W.M.; Wm. A. Weston, S.W. (who however declined the office in favour of Bro. Coupland); James Smyth, J.W.; W. A. Weston, First Master Overseer; Abel Penfold and H. Shaw, Overseers; Henry Pryce, Treasurer. The lodge is to be designated the "Excelsior," and the meetings will be held at the Masonic Hall, Plumstead, on the second Tuesday in the months of March, June, November, and December. A committee was appointed to draw up the bye-laws, and take the necessary steps for obtaining the warrant, furniture, regalia, &c., and the names of upwards of 30 candidates were recorded for advancement on the first night of meeting. The consecration will take place on the second Tuesday in June.

Mr. Mackenzie Wallace's "Russia" has been awarded the Prix Langlois by the French Académie, the work, which has been translated into French, having attracted great attention in Paris.

Madame Trebelli, assisted by other eminent artistes, will give a morning concert in aid of the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, Golden-square, on Thursday, June 27th, at St. James's Hall.

Since the latest discoveries at Olympia, the whole northern half of the Altis has been excavated and is now open to view. The last important building found is the Motron, or the Temple of the Mother of Gods.

A large serpent from Java—Python molurus—has arrived at the Paris Jardin des Plantes. The reptile has a girth of some twenty inches, and weighs 66 pounds, while it is considered a most rare event for so large a specimen to reach Europe alive.

An anthropological society has just been founded at Gratz by a large number of Austrian antiquaries, for the purpose of studying the pre-historical condition of Styria, as well as that which arose beneath the Roman influence.

The catalogue of Blue and White Nankin Porcelain which is now being exhibited at the establishment of Mr. Emanuel Marks, 395, Oxford-street, and which is published at two guineas, is a remarkable work. The fac-simile reproductions of the drawings by Sir Henry Thompson and Mr. Whistler give the character and texture of the ornamentation and the shapes of the objects in the most artistic manner.

Messrs. Ransomes and Rapier have received an order for the full equipment of a railway for the Sandwich Islands, as a beginning of railway work there.

The phylloxera vastatrix has made its appearance in an area of about 2000 acres of vineyards in Portugal.

The Paris Salon opened on Saturday last. The collection of military paintings relating to the Franco-Prussian War which has been excluded from the Salon and the Exhibition, for political reasons, is now being exhibited, and includes some twenty pictures, in addition to a few water-colours and etchings, MM. Detaille, Neuville, Protais, Dupray, and Berne-Bellecour being the principal exhibitors.

The report of the Copyright Commission, which has been adopted and is in type, is now ready for presentation to the Home Secretary. Minority Reports have been written by Sir Louis Mallet, Sir John Rose, Mr. E. Jenkins, Mr. A. Trollope, and other members of the Commission. Sir L. Mallet, we learn, almost calls in question the principle of a copyright law.—Athenæum.

The Royal Agricultural Society of England have received the consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to the occupation by the society for the purposes of the agricultural exhibition next year of the piece of land—100 acres in extent—at Brondesbury or Kilburn, belonging to the Commissioners, and the necessary agreement is now being prepared.

The Tablet's own correspondent at Rome says rumours have been industriously circulated to the effect that the health of Leo XIII. is seriously impaired, and that before long a termination of his Pontificate may be expected. For these rumours, he says, there is not the slightest foundation in fact:—"Leo XIII. is not of a robust constitution, nor does he enjoy what may be termed rude health, but he is not suffering from any particular disorder, nor has he any infirmities other than such as are incident to his age. He rises early and transacts his business regularly, and without betraying much fatigue. He eats and drinks very sparingly, and his table is supplied only with the simplest viands. He goes to bed somewhat late. He takes exercise from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. every evening in the Vatican gardens, and sometimes says his Mass as early as 6 a.m. in a small chapel in the gardens."

The funeral of William Campbell, the Scotch giant, who died in Newcastle on Sunday, took place on Tuesday afternoon. The coffin was 7 ft. long, 3 ft. 8 in. wide, and 2 ft. 10 in. deep. The window of the room in which deceased lay, and the brickwork down to the level of the floor had to be taken out, and the coffin was lowered by means of block and tackle to a waggon from the third storey of the Duke of Wellington Inn, Highbridge.

A popular clergyman recently delivered a lecture to his parishioners assembled upon the interesting subject of "Fools." There was naturally a very large audience, and the rush for seats was much augmented by the form in which the admission tickets were printed. The inscription ran thus: "Lecture on Fools. OFFICIAL APPOINTMENTS.

We are enabled to state that the Duke of St. Albans has resigned Lincolnshire, and been appointed by the Grand Master Prov. G.M. for Nottinghamshire; and William Henry Smyth, Esq., M.A., Deputy Lieut. and Justice of the Peace of the North Riding of Yorkshire, High Steward of the Borough of Louth, &c., of Elkington Hall, Louth, has been appointed by H.R.H. to be Provincial Grand Master for Lincolnshire.

THE NEXT QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

The approaching gathering of Grand Lodge will be a most interesting one, alike on general and special Masonic grounds. It will deal with the seasonable vote of congratulation to our illustrious Bro. the Emperor of Germany, about which there is but one opinion among English Masons. It will also take up the financial question, of much importance to English Masonry. With regard to the former question English Freemasons, ever loyal, have been shocked by an act, alike desperately wicked, and frantically insane. It is mournful to realize, on what an act of cruel wickedness, humanly speaking, a life dear to Germany and valuable to the world, depended for a few moments, though at the same time as Masons, we shall devoutly recognize the preserving and over-ruling hand of T.G.A.O.T.U. in thus mercifully delivering our Illustrious Brother, a great and sagacious ruler, from the murderous hands of a cowardly assassin. The congratulation of our English Grand Lodge will be alike heartfelt, unanimous, and enthusiastic. The financial question deserves grave consideration. We have not departed from the views we originally ventured to express upon the subject. Any settlement which does not proceed on purely business principles, which does not recognize the functions and the responsibility of the Grand Treasurer, distinctly, or which renders the Grand Treasurership merely an ornamental post, and above all, which ignores the advisability and need of Security, can in our humble opinion, be only temporary, and will eventually have to be altered and amended. We think that now is the time to consider carefully all our official procedure, alike as regards the Grand Treasurer and the Grand Secretary's office, and that it is our bounden duty, as men of sense and business habits, to try and place the whole of our Secretarial and financial arrangements on a safe, a satisfactory, and a permanent footing. The English Grand Lodge is a most important body, with an increasing income, and an enlarged constituency, and in our humble opinion, any proposals which serve to perpetuate the present state of affairs, which are indefensible on every ground, may last perhaps for a few years, but must one day be hastily changed, when, perhaps, a ruder shock and more serious contingencies, awaken us at last to a keen sense of the overwhelming need of a thorough recognition of the great principle of actual responsibility on the one hand, and available security on the other. We say all this most deferentially to higher authorities and wiser heads, but holding these opinions honestly, we see no reason to suppress them, the more so as we believe equally strongly, that in Freemasonry and everything else, the doctrine of "reserve" is very questionable teaching, and that plain speaking and manly openness are best for us all alike. We shall touch upon the other and ordinary matters of our Masonic business at the Quarterly Communication, in our next impression.

GRAND LODGE FINANCES.

We are in possession of the Receipts and Expenditure of Grand Lodge for 1877, and we are struck, as all will be, with their very satisfactory appearance, indeed we will add, that we hardly ever remember any more promising or more suggestive. As regards the Fund of Benevolence it is credited during 1877 with £10,154 11s. 6d. which sum is made up as follows:—

Thus it will be seen, that we have been able at the close of 1877, to invest £3000 Consols for the Fund of Benevolence, £2000 for the Fund of General Purposes and, that the financial prosperity appears to accompany the onward movements of the Craft, as might perhaps have been reasonably expected. We congratulate the Craft on the financial good management, which to the close of 1877, had spent £5829 in charity, £5760 in donations and pensions, and yet, in addition to the current expenditure, which may be rightly estimated at £4000 per annum, can put by £5000, leaving an available balance in each fund. Let us hear no more from any quarter of "financial mismanagement," it is alike untrue as a statement, and most unjust to our excellent and hard worked officials.

THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Without venturing to dictate to the electors as to this or that favourite candidate, without seeking to anticipate the verdict of the Masonic jury, to whom nine brethren are now confidently appealing on the "merits" of their "case," we wish to put before our readers a few thoughts and considerations which have suggested themselves to our mind, and may not be distasteful or unseasonable even to them just now. We would say, in the first place, that whosoever be successful in the contest, and we do not attempt to forecast the issue of the struggle, we trust that in any case a better system will at once be inaugurated by the new Secretary as regards the canvassing for subscriptions and Stewardships. It is well known that Bro. Little suffered in his health, somewhat delicate naturally, by late hours and reiterated visits to lodges. We feel sure whatever may be alleged to the contrary, that this "personal solicitation" of support is distasteful to the great majority of our brethren. In fact it resolves itself into this, practically, that the Secretary who can best go through the visitation of Lodges is the most successful in advancing the interests of his particular institution. This should not be! It is a parody on our professions of Masonic charity; it is in open antagonism with the principles of active beneficence we often and loudly proclaim. Admitted, if you like, that human nature is ever the same, in Masonry and out of it; concede, if you will, that persons and Masons require to be sought out and appealed to in order to be induced to give, yet we feel sure that our present system of asking for support by visiting lodges, is alike detrimental to the charity, to the Secretary, and to Freemasonry. It gives a sort of varnish to an outside avowal of charity, which is, nevertheless, hollow within; it weakens the very principle of giving for duty's sake; it discolours the noble appearance of benevolence with too much of outside show and popular applause, and it serves to conceal a very unsatisfactory state of things. We wish, therefore, in the first place, to see the principle of Masonic charity placed upon a surer basis, on more real and enduring principles. In the next place, the present arrangement tends to the exaltation of the individual, and the oblivion by the aggregate of their duty and their responsibility. Our charitable returns are the product of the warm-hearted zeal and disposition of the few, as contrasted with the many, of the liberally minded individual brethren, instead of the great bulk of our Fraternity and our lodges and chapters. These are they who fill up our goodly returns year by year, who gladden the hearts of Bros. Terry and Binckes, and Hedges, as in 1878 for the Girls' School, who make the profane world to marvel at Masonic charity and Masonic sacrifices. But all the while a large proportion of our Order, of our lodges and chapters, never have done and do nothing now for the great, the valuable, the much needed charities of English Freemasonry. This one fact serves to convince the thoughtful and the experienced Mason that, as the old saying runs, "all is not gold that glitters," and despite our apparent success we have counterbalancing drawbacks to admit and contend with. We are quite willing to confess, for we speak in no accents of blame or even fault finding, that the efforts of the Secretaries of our great charities have been alike most earnest, most meritorious, and most successful. But we should wish to see that every lodge and chapter should recognise the primary duty of supporting our Masonic Charities, and then the great mass of our brethren will no doubt "follow suit." Unfortunately the low subscriptions of some provincial lodges and chapters, (a very great blunder on every ground), and the heavy expenses of many of our metropolitan lodges and chapters, render the recognition of charitable effort a subject of some difficulty, except by individual liberality. We recommend, then, many of our provincial lodges and chapters to raise their subscriptions and fees at once, and we urge upon many of our metropolitan lodges and chapters a diminution, if possible, of their ordinary expenditure, for the purpose of shewing to the Craft and the world, that "charity," true charity, is still the "distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart." The one fact to which we called attention a fortnight ago, namely, that of our new lodges from 1700, only five had sent any Steward or support to the Girls' School, is a striking commentary on the general justice of our remarks, and a fitting corollary to the special arguments we have sought to commend to the notice of our readers.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

As patriotic Englishmen and Freemasons, we must ever rejoice in all that concerns the greatness and the happiness, the progress and the honour, of that wonderful country of which it is our pride and privilege to be citizens. How life has passed on with us all, since many of us cheered the Queen in the crowded streets, as she wended on her way, surrounded by all the pomp of state and all the insignia of royalty, and all the prestige of empire, to Westminster Abbey, to be crowned, in her youth and her grace, the mighty monarch of a loyal, and understanding and rejoicing people. Time has since brought to her many joys, and vivid sorrows, lovingly shared in by a sympathetic people, and her last birthday, (Her Majesty having been born in 1819) reminds us forcibly how the hurrying years are fleeting by with her and with ourselves. As we look back confidently and gratefully to-day, we note since her accession under what a constitutional regime we have happily lived, how truly she has understood, how nobly she has discharged her onerous and sacred duties, and how the virtues of the woman have exalted even the diadem of the Queen, and how at home and abroad, in Europe and in the far East, amid old monarchies and new republics, in polished Paris, in intellectual Germany, in fervid Australia, in loyal Canadas, in and among the great American people, her name is a very household word. To us as Freemasons, loyalty is a lesson we learn from our first admission into our friendly and excellent fraternity, and as Freemasons, while we pay obedience to the laws of any state where we sojourn for a season, and recognise loyally all forms of government, we do not conceal and we need not deny our preference for that unrivalled constitution of ours which under a limited monarchy is the best and surest guarantee for the sacredness of the throne and the liberties of the people. In other days our country has preserved its Constitution amidst convulsions which destroyed foreign Governments, convulsed Republics, and shattered Empires. If there be yet before us an "upheaving of the nations" if there be threatenings of internal commotion and insane violence in other lands, we, in England, feel sure that, resting on the firm basis of legal enactment, and covered by the Ægis of a free Constitutional Monarchy, we shall outlive the gale and the whirlwind, and preserve inviolate for our descendants the honoured framework of our priceless form of Government and administration. Like the pyramid of old, the apex of our social state, great and venerated, and solemn, rests upon successive layers of sound and good ashlar work, until it reaches that goodly plateau, so artistically designed and adjusted, the intelligence, the loyalty, the sympathy, the affection of a great and generous people. To-day, then, remembering the past, realizing the present, and looking on to the future calmly and confidently, ours will be a loyal recognition of, a grateful admiration for, the domestic virtues and the exalted merits of our Sovereign Lady the Queen in her long and happy and constitutional reign, and our prayer will be that it may please the G.A.O.T.U. to give her many years of personal happiness and public prosperity, if such be His gracious Providence, and that our "children's children may see her children's children, and that peace may be upon Israel."

THE SUPREME COUNCIL OF SCOTLAND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The Constitutions of the Supreme Council of Scotland are prefaced by the following statement:—"The Supreme Council, which is the chief tribunal of Masonry for the Rite to which it belongs, was established in the year 1846 by Illus. Bro. Charles Morison, of Greenfield, M.D., Physician to Her Majesty's Forces, Grand Inspector-General 33° of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, who held his patent from the Supreme Council of France, dated 15th November, 1814."

In making this statement, its author shows gross inaccuracy and ignorance of historical facts. The Supreme Council of France was not instituted until 7th May, 1831. Consequently Dr. Morison did not hold his patent from that body. He held, however, a patent, of the date mentioned, from a spurious body, then existing at Paris, designating itself "The Supreme Council of the 33° for the French West Indies Islands." Dr. Morison's patent is signed by its "Grand Commander ad vitam," a Count de Grasse.

This brother, who was an officer in a French cavalry regiment, and some time aide-de-camp to the Prince Eugene, represented himself as having been created a 33° by the Supreme Council at Charleston, in America, in 1797; but strangely, that Council had no existence until 31st May 1801. The Count's patent too, which is dated, not as one would have expected, in 1797, but on 21st Feb., 1802, does not bear the signature of any of the brethren who were said to have received him into the Order, and who, of their own knowledge, could certify that fact. No reason has ever been assigned for the delay of five years in his obtaining it, nor for the disappearance in the interval from Masonic circles, in that then limited community, of the six brethren who were said to have conferred the degree upon him. In their places the Count's patent bears the signatures of six unknown Masons, but one of whom it has been ascertained was his own brother-in-law. Thus, apart from the invalidity of the Supreme Council of the "French West Indies Islands," it is more than doubtful whether the Count de Grasse was a 33rd at all. If he was not, he had no title to create a Supreme Council anywhere.

Count de Grasse returned to France in 1804, and between that year and 1818 he instituted no fewer than four Supreme Councils at Paris, and but for his detention as a prisoner of war for several years during that period in England, he would probably have created as many more. Ultimately, he was deposed from his office of "Commander ad vitam," by one of his own spurious councils for trafficking in degrees. I presume it was through such traffic that Dr. Morison received from him his patent. It is manifestly spurious, for by the Constitutions of the Order not more than one Supreme Council can exist at one time in one State, and one did exist in France prior to and at the time the Count's was instituted. The device of designating Count de Grasse's Council at Paris as for the "French West Indies Islands" did not overcome the provision of the Constitutions against it.

It is thus seen that Dr. Morison had no lawful title whatever to institute a Supreme Council in Scotland, but even assuming that his patent was a genuine one, it, such as it was, expressly debarred him from doing so, for it authorised him "to create and constitute Masons to the 30°" only. It follows from this that the Supreme Council of Scotland, instituted by him, as set forth in its own Constitutions is a spurious body, besides, at the date of its institution, a body named the "Scottish Council of Rites" existed in Scotland, and had done so for many years, which worked the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, under warrant from the Grand Orient of France. The ground was thus pre-occupied, and no other Supreme Council could during its existence be created in Scotland.

The Supreme Council of the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of America claims to be "the Mother Council of the world." How can this be? It was only instituted in May, 1801. According to history, Frederick the Great, King of Prussia, was in 1765 acknowledged as head of the Scottish Rite, and in 1786 he was proclaimed its chief, with the title of Sovereign Grand Inspector General and Commander. He, it is said, created the Thirty-third Degree, and out of the possessors of it a Supreme Council was formed. He died in August, 1786. If this historical account be correct, it is clear that the Supreme Council of the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States is not the "Mother Council of the World." Perhaps, its distinguished Sovereign Grand Commander will kindly enlighten your readers on this knotty point of Masonic history. To me, the claim appears irreconcilable with fact, for all those degrees, as is well known, were practised by the Grand Lodge and Grand Orient of France, many years before the commencement of the present century.

Yours fraternally,

A 33°.

ROYAL ARCH DEGREE AND TRACING BOARD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very pleased to find by the letter of Bro. John Gamble, that another of those curious prints in relation to the Royal Arch has been preserved, although in a somewhat mutilated condition. I have carefully examined my own specimen again, but cannot anywhere find the words "Printed and sold by Companion Cole, 78, Fore-street, Cripplegate," nor have the words ever existed on the face of the engraving. In the production of the document two brass or steel plates have been used, one for the parallelogram and triangle at the top, and the other for the emblematical design.

With reference to Bro. Main's letter, I may observe that I founded my opinion as to the age from the style in which it is framed. The frame is of black wood and is gilt round the outer edge, and also round the inner edge, which is beaded. I possess several such frames. This one is much worm-eaten—in itself a proof of age. Another frame in my possession, very similar to it, and of about the same size, contains an engraved portrait of King George III. when a very young man. George III. ascended the throne 25th October, 1760—nearly 118 years ago. Hence, from the general style of both these frames, I thought myself justified in assigning the age, in round numbers, to be 120 years. Of course the engraving would be contemporaneous with the frame, or nearly so. Add to this the fact that Dr. Fifield D'Assigny mentions the Royal Arch Degree in a pamphlet published in 1744, and we get by these several facts at an approximative age. It might turn out that the Companion Cole mentioned by Bro. Gamble is identical with the publisher of Cole's List of Lodges, 1735, which would make the engraving still older. I have also an engraved portrait of John Hampden in a similar frame, which bears the date of 1740.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours sincerely and fraternally,

KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE, IX°.

Supreme Grand Secretary Swedenborgian Rite.

P.S.—I have just read Bro. Hughan's remarks on p. 267. I had not opened that part of the number. I am glad to find that this document will rise in importance, through the aid of my esteemed friend Bro. Hughan. Perhaps it now becomes more desirable to trace its history than ever, for if it agrees with the Canterbury banner it is clearly authentic. Might I ask Bro. Hughan through your pages whether he thinks it at all connected with Bro. Dermott? It is interesting to get at everything we can about it, as Swedenborgian Masons will readily understand. Certain points in the degree of Perfect Freemason, or Red Brother, are materially illustrated by this curious engraving.

BRO. BURGER'S LETTER.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hardly think it necessary to say more in reply to Bro. Burger's remarks. I trust that he will read my leader, text and context, not the letter signed by you as Editor,—He will then perceive that the remarks do not and cannot apply to him, and cannot and never were intended to apply to him. They are a mere general statement, without the slightest personal bearing, and had not our good brother written in haste and anger he must have seen this, and rendered his fiery epistle needless.

I am dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

THE WRITER OF THE LEADER.

THE NEW THEORY.

[In consequence of certain matters which have occurred, we have thought it well, despite our natural hesitation on the ground of personality, to publish this letter, which was alluded to in answers to correspondents last week.]

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

Your Editor having laid aside his impersonal character and stepped into the arena to confront me with an anonymous epistle, I may therefore be permitted to address you in as direct a manner as he has himself adopted. (Vide page 134, Freemason of 9th March last.)

I have no desire, however, to contend with him, for it is a matter of supreme indifference to me whether our Ritual be case hardened into an in elastic liturgy, or permitted the expansive faculty, which our rapidly advancing age accords to all things mundane. But I desire to call your attention to the language employed by him in his attempts to scare the Fraternity from every possible improvement of our Ritual.

Under the head "Our Ritual," on page 132, of 9th March last, he divides the causes of change into three classes.

"1. Those who wish honestly to improve." Then he names the other two classes. But listen now to his words: "It is only with the first class that we need concern ourselves to-day, though we may remark that, honest themselves, they are often made the unconscious dupes of longer heads, of greater rascals than themselves." (14th line from bottom).

Do you sanction the use of such language in the Freemason? I cannot think that your Editor meant to apply such epithets to me, as I am personally unknown to you both; nevertheless, I care not for whom he meant them, while it is clear that he meant them for certain brethren whom he would stigmatise as rascally dupes of greater rascals. And this is the fraternal language of the Editor of the great English Masonic newspaper par excellence! I had no idea that English Freemasonry had so choice a vocabulary. O tempora O mores!

Your Editor closed his anonymous epistle with the words, "I stick to my text, quieta non moveo."

Well done, Brother Editor! but don't hereafter ridicule that other old fossilized specimen of humanity at the Vatican, when he too cries out "Non possumus, non possumus," for both your aims are alike—to stop the express train of progress with your empty egg-shells.

I remain, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,

H. J. BURGER.

A LETTER TO BRO. HUBERT.

Dear Bro. Hubert,—

Though I am not known to you under my "pseudonym," I yet make bold to write to you to-day to ask your opinion as to the present position assumed in the Monde Maçonnique about international Masonic relations, and the course recommended to the Grand Orient for adoption.

1. You will observe that it is proposed to give the French Grand Orient the power to open lodges in other jurisdictions, inasmuch as henceforth the French Grand Orient will only be forbidden to grant warrants in jurisdictions "in fraternal relations with it." If not in "fraternal relations," it follows that it will be legal henceforth to grant warrants, and we are told that this is to be done by way of reprisal for objecting to the alteration of 1877. This is fraternal comity and Masonic internationality with a vengeance!

Long before the famous "Couvent" of 1877, the Monde Maçonnique openly recognised a spurious lodge in London, called "Les Philadelphes et la Concorde Reunis," and even allowed it to call itself Grand Lodge in its columns.

Indeed, Bro. Grimaux said it was not "clandestine," because it announced its existence, and that it was not "irregular," because "it could not get a warrant from the Grand Lodge of England." Surely, you and the educated Masons in France do not approve of such unmasonic and extraordinary propositions, which, if accepted and acted upon, must lead to complete Masonic revolution and anarchy everywhere.

2. But it is said that, as the English Grand Lodge and others have disapproved formally of the acts of the French Grand Orient, henceforth it will be justifiable to grant warrants in such jurisdictions, and that there is no doubt of such an amendment of the Constitutions being passed in the Grand Orient of France.

I hope there is some mistake in this assumption, as I cannot conceive of any act more likely to lead to serious and lamentable consequences.

3. You will observe that the French Grand Orient claims to grant warrants even now in the Mauritius, on the ground of earlier occupation of the territory. You are too well read in Masonic history not to know, that, if that argument be valid, if that position be sound, the English Grand Lodge positively can claim to earlier occupation of every country in Europe. If the French Grand Orient has a right to grant a warrant for the Mauritius, why may not the English Grand Lodge grant a warrant for France and Belgium? Surely, on such grounds, such a right is incontestable, the more so as the Master of your new French lodge at the Mauritius declared, in answer to the protest of the Master of the English Lodge, that it was the "inalienable right of Masons to choose their own jurisdiction."

4. Is there no possible hope of a better state of things? of truer Masonic feelings and teaching and acts in France? You will, I think, not find fault with my appeal to you, to ask your opinion as to the present condition of affairs, than which, to my mind, none can be more deplorable.

I am, dear Bro. Hubert, yours fraternally,

MASKELYNE.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow me through your valuable paper to ask the following questions:—

1. At a regular meeting of a country lodge, the W.M., without previous notice, proposes that a committee to revise the bye-laws be appointed and a day fixed for that purpose. The committee is elected by the lodge the same evening, and a day named for them to meet.

The committee meet and make alterations, which appear on the summonses for an emergency meeting during the recess, to initiate a candidate and to consider the revised draft of the bye-laws. The emergency meeting sanctions the alterations, and the minutes are confirmed at the next regular meeting.

Were those proceedings regular, and are the alterations so made legal?

2. The above alterations included the raising of the initiation and joining fees, but before the alterations are submitted to the Grand and Provincial Grand Lodges for approval a regular meeting takes place, at which two candidates are initiated and a brother joins from another lodge.

Which of the fees would be legal to charge, the original or the altered ones?

3. Would raising the initiation and joining fees be considered a material alteration of the bye-laws?—Page 63, clause 5, Book of Constitutions.

Your opinion on the above would much oblige,

Yours fraternally,

A CONSTANT READER.

[1. It must depend upon the bye-laws of the lodge whether the W.M.'s action was regular or no. As a general rule notices of alteration of bye-laws are given at one lodge, appear on summonses for next lodge, are then debated, and confirmed, if altered, at the subsequent lodge, or a lodge of emergency is convened to consider them. If the bye-laws specify that notice of proposed alterations must be given, then the proceedings are bad, "ab initio," and can be set aside.

2. Until approved of by the lawful authority these alterations are invalid, and the old scale of fees is the lawful one.

3. Certainly.—Ed.]

PROGRESS OF FREEMASONRY IN THE PROVINCES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I can fully support our esteemed Bro. Henry Smith's report as to the progress socially, numerically, and financially of our Provincial Grand Lodges, and having lately completed my examination of the annual returns for the Province of Cornwall I append the result. The number of initiations for the years mentioned have been as follows:—

166	177	173	155	148

The actual membership being for these years—

1141	1240	1433	1467	1567
------	------	------	------	------

There were 24 lodges in 1873, and now there are 27. In 1863 there were only about one-third of the members that there are now, added to which we have now sufficient money funded to pay four annuitants for life £20 each, and annually to devote a goodly sum for the relief of necessitous widows and the education of children of deceased brethren out of the ordinary income. With two or three exceptions, the lodges meet either in private rooms, or Masonic halls of their own, and never has the Craft been so flourishing in the province as now.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN,
P.G.D. of England.

FREEMASONRY AND CIVILIZATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have no desire to enter into a controversy about this painting, possessing, as I do, sufficient written evidence of the absolute correctness of my statements in letters from both the artist, Mr. Rosenberg, and the publisher, Bro. Haigh, and which any member of the Craft may inspect if so pleased. I am sorry to give Mr. Rosenberg's letter in your impression of the 25th ult., a distinct denial, but, in justice to myself, I can do no otherwise, and I must continue to assert my claim to the primary conception of the work, its introduction to Bro. Haigh, and subsequent elaboration, of course in conjunction with the artist. If a claim of this description is of importance to any one I cannot see why I should be deprived of it; and if not—and probably it is not—there is no occasion to trouble your readers with a difference which certainly might place the parties to it in a very undignified and unfaternal position.

Yours faithfully,

JAMES STEVENS.

THE REVIEW OF THE BAUHUTTE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice at the end of this review a paragraph which ought not to have appeared, as it was "deleted" in proof as being too severe. The blunder about "Sterne," instead of "Heine," is really quite provoking.

Yours fraternally,

YOUR REVIEWER.

[The mistakes ought not to have occurred.—Ed.]

A QUAIN'T REPLY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think the following quaint and humorous answer to an invitation to the Cyrus Chapter, on Tuesday last, is worthy of a place in your columns.

Yours fraternally,

Z.

My dear S.,—

The Chapter of Cyrus
I'm very desirous
To visit on Tuesday;
And three exaltations
(Like ladies' saltations)
I know would amuse—nay,
Would offer delights
To the lover of Rites
And Knowledge mysterious.
But I'm booked, Oh! sad fate!
As I see by the date,
For a soiree less serious.

Yours ever,

J. M.

BRO. BURGER'S COMPLAINT.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Though you properly, in the first instance, refused Bro. Burger's letter, as your proprietor and yourself are much to be commended for keeping the Freemason clear of personality, I think that, after what has occurred, you are quite right, despite your natural objection, as I said before, to publish the letter, as you tell me you do to-day.

I do not quite understand how Bro. Burger can have sent another copy of his letter to any other quarter, nor how your resolution not to publish the letter on Friday on the ground of personality could be known in Jamaica in time. All we can suppose is, that foreseeing that the tone of his letter might be objectionable, Bro. Burger sent a duplicate of his letter to you to someone else. Otherwise the matter is a mystery.

As regards any possible objection to the remarks of your original leader from Bro. Burger or any one else, on the grounds of personality or bad English, they can only proceed from inadvertence, from haste, from neglect to read the leader, from want of appreciation of our Anglo-Saxon vernacular. As a rule such objections might be passed over by you "sub silentio," as the Freemason is clearly intended for fair men, understandable men, and for cultivated Masons. Your original proposition in your leader was perfectly good sense and good grammar, and was simply this, that in all movements for change we might fairly divide the promoters into three classes, and among them those who, though honest were weak, and dupes, often, of greater rascals than themselves. It is a perfect misunderstanding of the use of English or the use of language to object to such an expression, and if jocosely made it is childish and ridiculous, if seriously put forward it demonstrates only too conclusively that the writer does not understand English, and that criticism on his part is alike foolish and positively beneath notice.

I am, yours fraternally,

GRAMMAR.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am pleased to see that gentlemen being non-Masons will not be admitted to the Festival of the Boys' School in July, and feel sure that it is a mistake to admit outsiders to summer and other festivals. A friend of mine, not a Mason, when at my house recently, told me that he had been in the habit of attending a summer festival, and, to my surprise, showed me the sign in a sufficiently correct manner to throw thoughtless brethren off their guard.

Yours fraternally,

OBSERVER.

AN OLD MASONIC BOOK.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Neither "J.D. 168" nor "A.S." throws any light on "The Complete Freemason," the books referred to by them being evidently merely copies of the Constitutions.

1756 and 1784 respectively. I stated that the chief characteristic of the work was a statement of the re-election of the Earl of Crawford, Lord Weymouth's name being omitted. I hope Bro. Hughan may be able to give some information.

Yours fraternally,

I.P.M. 533.

THE PRIMITIVE ILLUMINATI.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

We have all of us heard of the notorious criminal whose reluctance to consummate his apotheosis is recorded by the poet in the lines

"—oft fitted the halter, oft traversed the cart,"

And often took leave, but was loath to depart."

I am constrained to imitate that frequently adduced malfactor, and, at the risk of the reflection occurring in the minds of my readers, that

"Superfluous lags the veteran on the stage," to ask their indulgence for yet another letter to succeed this, which I trust will take the form of a summary.

For the present week, I cannot undertake to deal with more than the two first of the subjects which I enumerated for enquiry in the concluding sentence of my last communication. I proceed now to perform this task.

It would be a very interesting enquiry to investigate the extent of the prevalence of a belief in the resurrection from the dead in the ancient world. That the comparatively modern sect of the Sadducees did not believe in this article of faith alluded to in the New Testament as being rather an exceptional state of mind among the Jews. Ancient literature also evinces that this form of unbelief was by no means general. We may indeed, assert from an acquaintance with early writings, that a belief in the doctrine of the resurrection, even more intelligent than that now generally entertained, was widely diffused in the golden days of learning in all the ancient States of the world. The creed that Professor Longfellow has beautifully epitomised;

"There is no Death! What seems so is transition

This life of mortal breath,

Is but a suburb of the life elysian

Whose portal we call death." †

has been more or less familiar to the mind of man in all ages. Among the Grecian sages, Plato, whom I have already quoted, may be again instanced. Conspicuous hereafter in the Latin writers shines Seneca, and I have somewhere read, but I cannot, this moment, remember where, and it is not worth while to search for the authority, for perhaps the idea is but fantastical, that this writer was himself a Mason, or rather, to continue my neutral term, one of the Primitive Illuminati, and based his idea upon the teachings he had, as such imbibed. I have, too, some floating indistinct remembrance that the same authority, when found, can be cited for the theory that St. Paul was a Mason, initiated by the above named great Roman author, whose was the house in which the Apostle lodged while sojourning in Rome. Classical readers will readily recall the well-known, half confident, half dubious epigram of the Emperor Hadrian.‡ Reflective minds too will ponder over the many allusions, express and implied scattered throughout all the philosophical writings of antiquity, to a notion of corruption producing incorruptibility: a something deposited in a tomb or womb undergoing a change "into something new and strange;" the wondrous analogy between death and life, apparent destruction and real birth. Familiar to us all is the exquisite illustration of St. Paul, so appropriately employed in the Burial Service of the Church of England, "that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die," 1 Cor. xv. v. 36; and numerous other passages of Holy Writ might be cited to show how widely spread in the ancient world was the notion of the inexorable necessity of decay as invariably productive of vitality.

Howsoever then this belief originated we must admit that it was extensively entertained. As germane to our present subject, what we have now to examine is as to how far it was applied to an expectation of the material resurrection of the martyred founder of a sect. Volumes have been written upon the myths of Osiris and Isis, of Venus and Adonis, of Saturn and many others, analogous to these, that will recur to minds versed in classical mythology. It is curious to observe that the martyred

Osiris is said to have enlightened mankind "by introducing among them the worship of the gods and a reverence for the wisdom of a Supreme Being."* The peculiar mutilation of this confessor, after his legendary murder by his brother Typhon, doubtlessly gave rise to the notorious Phallic worship—in itself and in its pure practice; but the expression of a simple reverence for the phenomena of reproduction—a superstition which I cannot but think has been treated a little too summarily and therefore too severely, by the learned and reverend editor of the "Masonic Encyclopedia," where the incidence rather than the essence, the abuse rather than the professed use, of the peculiar rite seems alone to be considered, and, from that point of view, justifiably aninadverted upon.†

And this would seem to be a convenient opportunity for introducing Dr. Lempriere's expression of opinion that the notion of Phallic worship among the ancients never conveyed any impure thought or lascivious reflection. In this too he is supported by the high authority of Dr. Smith in his "Grecian and Roman Antiquities." On the other hand, Lingam worship, the Hindoo form of the Phallic superstition, has been denounced by the equally eminent authority of Lord Macaulay, who denounces Lingamism as "not merely idolatry, but idolatry in its most pernicious form;" it must be remembered, however, that it was but consistent with the other elements of the Hindoo mythology. In the same speech this able statesman has asserted that "through the whole Hindoo Pantheon you will look in vain for anything resembling those beautiful and mystic forms which stood in the shrines of ancient Greece. All is hideous and grotesque and ignoble."‡

The probability is, as Mr. Franks, the profoundly learned curator of the Hindoo antiquities in the national collection, recently remarked to me, that the cult took various forms, more or less refined, or gross, according to the climate of the country and temperament of its followers, and that the study has been rendered difficult and revolting by the importation of materials, not necessarily accessory to the worship, not even necessarily antique, but the miscellaneous gatherings of which, include among genuine amulets and reputed charms many obscene toys and representations, the productions of those who in all ages have been found only too ready to pander to depraved and profligate tastes. It is very curious, by the bye, to observe that remains of this peculiar superstition are not only found, and found prodigally, distributed in the remote East, and in the far West—for there are Peruvian monuments having distinctly a Phallic reference—but also midway, so to speak, for there are Runic stones discovered in Ireland, with figures sculptured thereon, leaving no doubt of their allusions. Also it is not generally known to how late a period the traditions of the myth descended. Perhaps even now the continental peasantry, notwithstanding the strenuous exertions of the Roman Catholic Church, are not entirely emancipated from this idolatrous bondage; nay, the vulgar of our own country apparently retain, unwittingly, some traces of it, and so lately as 1799, the worship of Priapus essentially, though not in terms, practised, was found prevalent in the Island of Sicily.§

It must not be rashly assumed that the apparently revolting study of the Phallic idolatry is irrelevant to the consideration of our subject. It pertains to it thus. In the first place, the theory of a Primitive Illuminati preserving, amongst the grossnesses of early mankind, the pure cult of refined spiritual worship, cannot be adequately discussed without some notion of the kind of creed, if creed it can be called, against which their lives were a constant protest. The material sacrifices made by the early professors of a life of intellectual—of spiritual—purity can only be adequately appreciated by contemplating the temptations by which they were surrounded, the vicious allurements to which their kinsfolk, their friends, their pupils, their dependents, were, probably, day by day succumbing around them. The study of this peculiar form of heathenism is useful to the pure-minded enquirer as illustrating that peculiar polluting influence of paganism—made attractive to the young by the bait of physical enjoyment—against which the Jewish lawgivers, under Divine inspiration, so sedulously strove to guard the chosen people. Secondly, considering how the theory of the resurrection of the body is bound up with our modern system of speculative Freemasonry, a superstition which continues almost to our own time the tradition, if not the practice, of the worship of one of the earliest myths in which the doctrine appears, i.e., that of Osiris and Isis, cannot but be a subject of absorbing interest to the speculator in the antiquity of the Craft.

Returning to the charge, I again submit that the inculcation of the duty of personal physical sacrifice to purchase the reward of a glorious future life, was one of the most powerful influences the emeriti could bring to bear upon their proselytes as a prophylactic against debasing temptation.

All kinds of theories have been propounded as the origin of this tenet: a something—a feature—an element—devouring something else, seems to be the broad foundation. There is the legend of Thetis—and the earliest savage on the sea shore has beheld the day god suddenly sink into the broad bosom of the deep, westward—has seen him a few hours afterwards arise in the east in renewed glory. The Runic monuments, the wonderful circles of Stonehenge and Albury, although out of sight of the ocean, have all been apparently constructed with a view to the contemplation of this daily re-occurring phenomenon of nature.

There is the myth of Saturn devouring his children, and the rudest nomad was familiar with the daily repetition of the spectacle of the darkness of night apparently swallowing up the light of day. Extending the time of duration of the phenomenon, we have the exquisite apologue of Adonis restored to life by Proserpine on condition that he (the risen) should spend one half of each year with Venus, the other half with his fair restorer a clear allusion to the alternation of the seasons; and it is remarkable, anent our present subject, to observe that anciently Adonis was frequently taken for Osiris, "because the festivals of both were often begun with mournful lamentations, and finished with a revival of joy as if they were returning to life again."* Till a very late period the Chinese attributed the natural phenomenon of an eclipse to a great dragon seeking to entomb the sun or moon, as the case might be, in his maw, and the vulgar actually went out, making a hideous din with gongs and rattles, to frighten the presumed devourer away. All mankind from the remotest period of the existence of the race upon the earth, have observed the alternate victory of darkness over light and of light over darkness, and it is not to be wondered at if some dim notion of the great truth of the doctrine of the resurrection dawned upon the mind from the constant recurrence of this material manifestation. In Holy Writ we have repeated instances of that which is there presented to us as a miracle, and it is a singular feature that the figure three repeatedly recurs. Either the dead remains inert for three days†—the Shun-

* Dr. Lempriere.

† There is a curious lingering in the minds of the lower classes, of the habit of believing in the possibility of an actual resurrection from the dead of a favourite leader. In our grandfathers' time numbers believed, or professed to believe, that the notorious Johanna Southcott would "rise again;" the period fixed upon was the traditional three days. With a strange inconsistency her devotees adduced the fact of the absence of the usual rigor mortis as a sound foundation for their expectations, not seeing that the admission of the existence of the condition of trance would necessarily displace the fulfilment of her prediction of a miracle. When I was a very small schoolboy there was a marine-store shop on Tower-hill, which, whenever my friends gave me the treat of a visit to that fortress, irresistibly attracted my attention, for its window displayed the battered leopard skin bedizened casques of Napoleon's cuirassiers, and the horse-hair plumed and comb-adorned helmets of our own life-guards, with bullet-bruised and perforated cuirasses and breast-plates of the heavy cavalry of both nations, the relics of the then comparatively recent Battle of Waterloo. One day a number of cutlasses, of pretty much the pattern now regulation in the navy, was exposed in the window, and to my enquiries anent them the reply was given—"Oh, they are the swords Sir William Honeywood Courtenay Thom bought to arm his followers with." Many years afterwards a hang-dog-looking individual was pointed out to me as Thom's agent for procuring these lethal weapons, just returned from seven years' transportation for his share in the outbreak. Heaven knows if it were true that he was the man. He might have been adduced to satisfy my curiosity, (for I was discussing Thom's affair at the time), as the reader will remember John Westlock improvised a member of the swell-mob out of a respectable and innocent passer by, to satisfy Tom Pinch's provincial curiosity to gaze upon a pickpocket in the flesh. But this emule of the impostor Thom is by no means irrelevant to the consideration of the deeply-rooted belief in the minds of the vulgar of the possibility of an actual material resurrection, inasmuch as it proves the existence of the faith so late as the year 1838; but this, I believe, is the last instance of it. The school-master abroad has, probably, since then, effectually laid this long lingering ghost of superstition. This fellow Thom was an awful scamp. He had been punished for arson, for obtaining goods under false pretences, for defrauding his creditors, for Heaven knows what not. He had no more to do with the eminently aristocratic county family of the Kentish Honeywood Courtenays than St. John Long, his contemporary impostor, had. It is very awful to recall this scoundrel's pretensions. He was not content with dubbing himself chevalier and taking the name of one of the best families in the county: beside calling himself Knight of Malta, he assumed to be, and seemed to be able to persuade his ignorant followers that he was, the Messiah, appearing in another avatar upon earth. He constantly told them that, like Him, he should apparently give his life for the cause, but that they need not despair, for—again like Him—he should rise again in three days to establish his kingdom upon earth. His trumpety insurrection seemed, in a period of great national suffering among the poor and lowly, to have a kind of socialistic communistic object. The peasantry of Mid-Kent flocked to this new and fanatic combination of John of Leyden, Wat Tyler, and Jack Cade. On the constabulary attempting to disperse the mob Thom shot a constable dead, and afterwards spurned the body with his foot and out-raged it with his sword. The aid of the military was then invoked, when the miscreant coolly pistolled a young ensign advancing to parley and, in token of his desire, displaying the usual pacific emblem of a white handkerchief. This was too much for the troops, who gave fire, and Thom and some of his followers fell. His body was buried in—I am not sure whether it was Harbledown (near Canterbury), or Boughton Churchyard—but at all events, on the third day after his death, the cemetery was crowded by thousands of the Kentish peasantry, many of whom recalled the prediction they had heard from their dead leader's own lips. Of course the turf above the prone carcase of the riotous assassin remained undisturbed, but it is curious to reflect that such an instance of superstition occurred so late a period as the first year of the reign of Her beloved present Majesty.

*ERRATUM—The quotation from Milton's "Aeropagitica," employed as an illustration in the last communication, in magnificent language, supposes an eagle "kindling her undazzled eyes at the full mid-day beam; purging and unscaling her long abused sight at the fountain itself of heavenly radiance." By an obvious misprint the word "fountain" appeared in the text as "foundation."

† By the Fireside—Resignation. Longfellow's poems.

‡ "Animula! vagula, blandula,
Hospes, comesque corporis,
Quæ nunc abibis in loca?

Which I, many, many years ago, with youthful temerity, had the presumption thus to paraphrase ("The Wild Garland," Vol. 2, Epigrams page 225. Edited by I. J. Reeve. London: Pitman, 1866.)

"Gentle spirit, playful shade,
When this pallid clay is laid
Rigid in the cheerless tomb
Soul, where wilt thou find a home?

amite's child and Lazarus, for instance—or the Redeemer, the Expiator, is entombed three days, as in the case of Jonah and the One Illustrious Example the Christian Church affords, or the martyrs are triune, as in the story of the three holy children, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, or, to use their Hebrew names, Azarias, Ananias and Misael. In all recorded episodes of this character the mystic number three appears in some connection, and thus this doctrine of the Trinity, the distinguishing symbol of the Christian Church, would appear to have been a dogma readily received and at once appreciated, by that body from a pre-existing reverence for its sanctity. Not to mention the triune character of the Hindoo deity and the various other mythological trinities, I appeal to the speculative Freemason of the present day, and more especially to the brother whose curiosity has led him to extend his researches beyond the limits of mere Craft Masonry, how strangely the triad reappears at his every step. But to confine ourselves to the latter we recall our Three Great Lights, our Three Great Patrons, the Three Degrees, the Three Orders, the Three Epochs, and enough has been said, for numerous other illustrations of the mystic interest attached to this number will occur to the reader.

It is not my intention to weary my brethren with any further dissertation upon the connection of a doctrine of trinity with either the Primitive Illuminati or their possible heirs and successors, the modern speculative Freemasons. It is a subject upon which so many volumes have been written that the reader has copious materials for enquiring on his own individual account elsewhere. The sum of the whole matter is—Are we possibly these heirs? Are we probably these successors? The remainder of the enquiry must be directed to a summarising of the reasons—deduced from the premises—we have for our justification in entertaining the hypothesis.

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has just been called to a statement in your issue of 11th May, which rather surprises me, if true. Of course I am unaware from whom you obtained your information, but should like to know. I mean as to the appointment of Bro. Matier to the position of representative to the Grand Council of England of Red Cross from the State of Illinois. I beg to inform you that as acting Grand Recorder I have had no official notification of the same from the State of Illinois, and therefore cannot recognise him as such. I cannot think the Council of Illinois would so far break the laws of etiquette as to displace our eminent and distinguished Sir Knight Dr. Woodman, who has been their representative so long, without giving him, and us, as the Grand Council, notice of such intention.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully,

J. MASON,
Assistant Grand Recorder.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to the letter of your correspondent "Fair Play" in the Freemason of the 25th ult., I should be sorry to impute blame where none was due. My assumption that the objectionable nomination had the approval of the present House Committee was based on the facts, that one of their number was appointed Chairman of the General Committee, at which the House Committee was to be nominated; that the first nomination (Bro. Durrant) was withheld from the Committee by the Chairman until after a list, containing the names of himself and his colleagues desiring re-election, together with the names of two candidates for the vacancies occasioned by retirement, had been presented and read; and that no member of the present Committee was otherwise nominated than as one of this prepared list of twelve candidates. No one would imagine that this was individual action, and unless explanation is offered at the General Committee on Saturday next, I shall retain the opinion that I have "put the saddle on the right horse."

Yours fraternally,
Lower Clapton,
28th May, 1878.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have not heard what method it is proposed to adopt at the forthcoming election to fill the vacancy caused by the lamented decease of Bro. Little, but it does appear to me that the voting should not be confined to the comparatively small number who may be present at any meeting.

The support awarded to the Institution by country subscribers is such as in my opinion entitles them to a voice in the election without the necessity of a journey to London, and for this purpose it is only necessary that proxies in the usual form on a penny stamp should be allowed.

Fraternally yours,

A COUNTRY GOVERNOR.

BALANCE-SHEET OF THE PROVINCE OF KENT.

We shortly reviewed some time back the Directory for the Province of Kent, and we have since had the balance sheet of that province kindly placed before us. It appears therefrom that the returns from the lodges amount to £223 18s. 6d. for the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund, the balance of the previous year £263 9s. 4d.; fees on appointment and dispensations £24 17s.; arrears £6 4s.; in all £518 18s. 10d. The expenditure, including £52 10s. to the Boys' School, and £15 carried to the Charity Fund, is £285 10s. leaving a balance of £232 18s. 10d. on this account. There is also a charity fund, which amounts to £459 18s., and which is made up as follows:—Balance of previous year £214 7s. 6d.; dues from lodges £223 18s. 6d.; Grand Lodge vote £15; and arrears £6 4s.; total £459 10s. There was expended £229, which appear to have been voted as grants to various lodges (if we understand the items) to qualify themselves as Vice-Presidents of the three Institutions. We think the balance-sheet a very good one, and highly creditable to the good province of Kent.

SCIENCE FOR ALL. Part II. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.

This is one of the many well and admirably illustrated magazines of that enterprising firm, which we think most commendable, and likely to be very useful and instructive. We note depreciatory remarks here and there upon this and similar productions, but we do not pretend to understand why such meritorious efforts in a good cause, the spread of cultivated information, should be disparaged or discouraged. Are they the last splutterings of the storm which darkened the atmosphere and seemed to antagonise all efforts of national intellectual advance? Or are they merely the result of callous indifference or hurtful cynicism? Let us look on all these effective serials of Messrs. Cassell as really and truly "auspicious melioris ævi."

BRIEF: A Weekly Epitome of the Press. Wyman and Sons, Great Queen-street.

This is a new weekly paper, which has reached its 30th number. It seems, in brief, to commend itself to the taste of those for whom "brevity is the soul of wit." It is ably edited, and will, we think, retain its position amid a crowd of jostling competitors. The result of cheap newspapers, admirably got up and ably edited, is a problem, the effect and conclusion of which "quod est demonstrandum."

THE ECCLESIASTICAL ART REVIEW for April. John Bury, 185, Fleet-street.

Though, as Freemasons, we cannot affect this or that denomination, and can only individually "for" the personal conscience and cherish this or that subjective or even objective dogma, yet we may admire all efforts, by whomsoever put forth, which have above all an æsthetic end, and are distinguished by artistic merit. We live at a time when "æsthetics" have a great influence on us all, and we should not, it appears to us, doubt or deny their influence, as on Masonry, so equally on religion. Every age has its characteristics, and ours certainly is an æsthetic age, and within due limits æstheticism is both good and admirable, and to be highly commended and properly patronised.

The "Ecclesiastical Art Review" is admirably printed, and, for those whose tastes lie that way, is very good reading.

MASONIC MUSIC.

MASONS' VOWS. Words by Bro. JAMES STEVENS. Music by Bro. J. R. FLETCHER, P.G.O. East Lancashire.

However well-intentioned this morceau of Masonic music may be, or however skilfully arranged and sprightly in tune, we cannot say that we heartily approve of the idea, much less of the development. It is one of those little experiments in Masonic sensationalism which we cannot afford to admire or applaud, and we think it well to say so, in all fraternal good feeling to those worthy brethren of ours who have composed it and favoured us with a copy of it. In our humble opinion it is a great mistake.

A report of the meeting of the Provincial Grand Preceptory of Knights Templar for Lancashire and the Inauguration of the De Lacy Preceptory at Southport, will appear in our next issue.

The following errata occurred in the List of Stewards at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls: Herefordshire, Bro. O. Shellard, should have been £42 instead of £10 10s. Middlesex, Lodge 1512, Bro. Hurst's name should not have been bracketed with that of Bro. Wright.

The explosiveness of flour-dust when diffused through the air, says the American Architect, of which we made mention at the time of the explosion of the Greenfield Candy Factory, in New York, has apparently received a startling illustration in the destruction of the flouring mills at Minneapolis. The manner in which the accident occurred can never be made clear, for every man perished who was in the great Washburn Mill where the first explosion occurred. But no other cause than the flour-dust has been seriously argued, so far as is known. The material, which could, by its detonation, throw down in an instant all four solid stone walls of the great mill, more than 100 ft. square, and lift the roof bodily some hundreds of feet into the air, must have been pretty thoroughly diffused throughout the building.—Builder.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

The annual meeting of the above Prov. G. Lodge was held in the Town Hall, Bury, on Thursday, May 23rd, and was numerously attended by the Prov. G. Officers and brethren of the Province, the total number present being upwards of 400, amongst whom were Bros. Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Prov. G.M.; Geo. Mellor, Dep. Prov. G.M.; Edmund Ashworth, jun., Prov. S.G.W.; Albert Dickens, Prov. J.G.W.; J. L. Hine, P. Prov. G.W.; S. D. Lees, M.D., P. Prov. G.W.; Thos. G. Parker, P. Prov. G.W.; C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, P. Prov. Tyler; and representatives from 85 of the 86 lodges in the Province, there being only one lodge not represented. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C., Herts, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and Widows; Geo. Burrows, P. Prov. G. Deacon, Cheshire; and John Vertegans, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., Derbyshire.

The R.W. Prov. G. Master appointed and invested the following brethren as Prov. G. Officers, viz:—

Bro. Edward Ashworth	Prov. S.G. Warden
" W. O. Walker	Prov. J.G. Warden
" Rev. E. H. Aldridge; Rev. W. Chaytor	Prov. G. Chaps.

The Craft lodge opened about half-past twelve o'clock, and the Provincial Grand Lodge at one o'clock. The accounts of Bro. James Hall, the Prov. G. Treasurer, were then submitted. The Auditors testified to the manner in which the accounts had been laid before them. The balance at the commencement of the year last April was £750 7s. 3d., which had since been increased to £1420. There had been given £100 to the male, £100 to the widows' fund, and £200 to the East Lancashire Provincial Systematic Benevolent Institution, leaving a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of £367 15s. 3d., and there was about £300 to be received yet. The election of Provincial Grand Treasurer, then took place, when Bro. George A. O'Neil, of St. John's Lodge, 121, was proposed by Bro. Lawrence Booth, P.P.G.S., seconded by Bro. W. O. Walker, P.P.S.G.D. Bro. T. B. Ashworth, P.M., of Rochdale, proposed, and Bro. Jones, P.P.D.C., seconded Bro. Hadfield, of St. Chad's Lodge, Rochdale. The result of the contest was that Bro. O'Neil was elected by a substantial majority. After business had concluded at the Town Hall the brethren adjourned to the Athenæum where the large room had been very prettily decorated for the occasion, and where a sumptuous dinner was provided by Bro. T. Smith of the Knowsley Hotel.

The chair was occupied by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, and there was a capital attendance of members of the Craft, about 350 being present. At the conclusion of dinner ladies were admitted, and the gallery was well filled with the fair sex, the majority remaining till the programme had been gone through. In addition to the usual toasts, a capital selection of appropriate Masonic and other songs were given at intervals, several artists having been engaged. Several of the songs had been composed by Bro. J. Randle Fletcher, P.M., Provincial Grand Organist, and were of a thoroughly appropriate character. The following vocalists were present, and contributed greatly to the harmony of the evening:—Miss Topliffe, Mrs. Murray, Bro. Kershaw Bro. Stafford, Bro. Dumville, Bro. Bailey, Sec. 191; Bro. Wroe, Bro. W. H. Bailey, and Bro. Peers. Bro. J. Randle Fletcher, P.M., P.G.O., presided at the pianoforte.

The first toast was "The Queen," which was received in a thoroughly loyal manner, after which Miss Topliffe gave "God save the Queen," with capital effect.

The second toast on the list was "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master." The Provincial Grand Master referred to the very great interest which His Royal Highness took in connection with the Craft, and he (the speaker) regarded it as a great honour that in the midst of his numerous and varied engagements he consented to rule over the Craft. He hoped he might long be spared to rule over them, and when in the order of Providence he should be placed at the head of this realm he had no doubt he would be an honour to the country, and he hoped to the world at large.

After "God bless the Prince of Wales" had been sung, the Chairman proposed "H.R.H. the Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family." He remarked that the Princess lived in the affections of the people, and, with the exception of the Queen, she was the most popular woman in the realm of Great Britain. He was quite satisfied that no other Royal Family could compare with the Royal Family of England. They looked upon the State and upon the army and navy with pride, and with pride he would say that they would back their Royal Family against any other. They were the ornaments of the constitution, and as Freemasons they would stick to them as long as they lived.

Bro. the Rev. Thomas Radley (of Ashton), Past Provincial Grand Chaplain, then proposed "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M. W. Pro Grand Master; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R. W. Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers, Present and Past." The rev. gentleman said he proposed the toast with considerable pleasure, remembering as he did that upon the ability, industry, and care displayed by those who managed the business depended the welfare of the Craft. As it was with the Grand Lodge, so it was with every Craft lodge, ability and care would render their operations successful. A lodge might have a good Master, but it would be impossible for him to do everything for his lodge unless he had good officers as Senior and Junior Wardens. When they found so many amongst them so efficiently performing the duties devolving upon them in the shape of the charges and lectures connected with Masonry, and when he recollected that these men could work a lodge as well as the best Master in the room, their greatest thanks were due to the Grand Master for having appointed them. If all the officers of every lodge and the Wardens of every lodge were as efficient as those named in the toast, every lodge would be as efficient as it would be possible for a lodge to be. High though they be in social rank, he urged those present to take them as an example and carry out the work in the same way.

Bro. George Mellor, Mayor of Ashton, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, then proposed "The Health of Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Provincial Grand Master." He said he scarcely needed to speak of the good qualities of the gentleman named, as they were well known to all present. If they were to search the whole of the Eastern Division they could not find a gentleman more suitable for the position he occupied. He was kind, courteous, and liberal; in fact, he could scarcely find words to express his and their appreciation of his good qualities. (Cheers.) Take him for all and all they would never see his like again, as they could not find a brighter ornament in Freemasonry.

The toast was received with the greatest enthusiasm.

The Provincial Grand Master, in rising to respond, was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers. He thanked the brethren for the way in which the toast had been received, but without any egotistical meaning being attached to it, he felt that he was placed in the proud position of being over the largest number of lodges of any province in the kingdom. (Cheers.) Each lodge was like an industrious hive, and was doing its best to benefit mankind. Naturally they had many and varied duties to perform, but so much good having been done came from their combined efforts, without which they would be nothing better than a rotten rope, or as sand from the sea shore. It was the brethren present, not himself, who had made Freemasonry what it was. It was they who filled that large hall, and so ably conducted the business of Masons. It was a grand and ennobling spirit which was found in the bosom of every Mason in Lancashire. They would leave a heritage which would not be dispersed by the winds. He felt that he could not sufficiently thank them for the able manner in which they carried on their business. They had intricate business to be managed, but they had a natural appreciation of business especially noticeable in Lancashire men. Brethren (continued the speaker) I am proud of you. I wouldn't change for any province in the world. When we go into anything unitedly there's no province can beat us, and never will do. We have done it before, and are doing it now, and will do it again, and let the whole world see what Lancashire can do. The county has produced the best people and the most charming ladies in the world. I have been born on the sod, have been made a Mason on the sod, and I'll stick to the sod as long as I live. The times may not be so prosperous for Masonry as they have been, but let us keep up our charities, of which we are proud. I thank you for the success you have hitherto achieved with regard to Masonic charities, and I hope you will do your best to maintain them, and if your funds increase you will have something to draw from. Masonry differs from every benefit society, where a man puts his money in to draw it out again for his own benefit. You put your money in and then vote for the most deserving case of universal charity. Before I sit down let me thank you for the very great exertions you have made. I see these tables most beautifully adorned, we have had most excellent music, and we shall have more. Let us continue to have confidence in each other, and when we are called away may we leave a name behind us that we lived for the benefit of God's greatest creatures, mankind.

Bro. Dr. Royle proposed "The Health of George Mellor, Esq., Worshipful Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and the Prov. Grand Officers, Present and Past." He said in their Deputy Provincial Grand Master they had a brother who possessed the kindly feeling which they so much loved. The longer they had known him the longer they had appreciated and admired his truly Masonic qualities. With regard to their meeting that day, he could only say it had been a great day for Bury. A great responsibility had that day been imposed upon Bury. They had showered honours and distinctions that day upon Bury, and they looked upon it with the greatest satisfaction, and highly esteemed those brethren who had had honours and distinctions conferred upon them.

The Deputy Grand Master (the Mayor of Ashton) responded. He thanked the brethren on behalf of the Principal Officers, Past and Present, for the way in which the toast had been received, and remarked that nothing gave him greater pleasure than being surrounded by his Masonic brethren. (Hear, hear.) It gave him great pleasure to be connected with the lodge, and he hoped it would be the desire of every one to attain the position he occupied. They must remember that it was a long time since he became a Mason, 36 years—(Cheers)—and they could not expect everything at once. He hoped, however, they would attain the position he then held, if it was possible.

The Chairman then proposed "The Worshipful Masters of the Bury Lodges." He considered this the toast of the evening, and when he called their attention to the five Bury lodges, he could assure the Masters of those lodges, that the impression upon his mind, as well as upon the mind of every Mason present, was that they had not laboured in vain. He hoped they would accept the thanks of himself and other brethren and visitors for the admirable manner in which they had arranged for the present meeting. Bury had for a long time held a high position in Masonry in the provinces. It had one of the oldest lodges in this province, and it was the nucleus of Masonry for much larger towns. He felt a great attachment to Bury, as it was in this town where he was first made a Provincial Grand Officer of West Lancashire, and early impressions lasted longer than those gained in old age. He felt certain that when he came there everything would be done that possibly could be done, but his most sanguine hopes had been far surpassed. He hoped that the true Masonic spirit which the five Worshipful Masters manifested might be honoured by those who succeeded them. He took this opportunity of thanking the five Masters for the kindness and courtesy which they had displayed.

Bro. Carter, W.M. of the oldest lodge in Bury, responded to the toast. He was very pleased that he had given satisfaction, especially when they did their best in what provision they made.

Bro. J. L. Hine, P.P.S.W. (Manchester), proposed "The Masonic Charities," to which Bro. Jas. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, ably responded.

Bro. W. O. Walker, J.P., Bury, then proposed "The Visiting Brethren," to all of whom he wished health, wealth, and long life. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Evans, of Liverpool, one of the Past Masters, to which that gentleman briefly replied.

Bro. Chorlton (Manchester) proposed "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," to which the Chairman and Bro. G. A. O'Neil, Lieutenant of the 8th L.R.V., responded.

Bro. Smethurst proposed "The Ladies," to which Bro. W. Barritt responded, the latter hoping that the next time the Grand Lodge was held in Bury he would not be in the position of having to respond to the same toast.

A vote of thanks to the singers was proposed by Bro. Hargreaves, of Haslingden, and responded to by Bro. S. Bailey.

At this stage of the proceedings the Provincial Grand Master was compelled to retire, and in doing so he was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

Bro. Neil having taken the chair, Bro. W. O. Walker, Prov. G.J.W., proposed "The Health of the Committee," to which Bros. Halliwell and Probert responded in appropriate speeches, the latter, who had been Hon. Secretary to the Committee, remarking that if what he had done had given satisfaction, he was amply repaid, and he hoped they would not allow twelve years to elapse before the Provincial Grand Lodge paid another visit to Bury.

The meeting after a few more toasts was brought to a close.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF CHESHIRE AND NORTH WALES.

By command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Cheshire and North Wales, the Hon. W. Graham Egerton, M.P., a Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Masonic Chambers, Argyle-street, Birkenhead, on Monday afternoon, the 20th May, for the transaction of the annual business of the province. The officers of the Provincial Lodge present were Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., R.W.P. G.M.M.; Bros. George Higgins, P.G.S.W.; W. Matthews, P.G.J.W.; F. K. Stevenson, P.M.M.O.; C. H. Hinde, P.G.S.O.; J. W. Newell Tanner, P.G.C.; Charles H. Coates, P.G.T.; Richard Newhouse, P.G.Sec.; James Salmon, P.G.R.; F. T. Motherwill, P.G.S. of Works; R. Baker, P.G.D. of C.; Thomas Coxhead, P.G.A.D.C.; John Corbett, P.G.S.B.; M. Townshend, P.G.S.B.; Dainty Hollins, P.G.J.D.; J. W. Burgess, P.G.P.; John R. Ross, Silvester Mattison, and Arthur Harrison, P.G. Stewards; J. P. Platt, R.W.P.G.M.M. and P.G.D. England; J. R. Goepel, P.G.S.O. England; John Dunning, P.P.G.M.C.; R. J. Vanderkiste, P.P.G.R. 165, W. S. Stanton, 165, John Worthington, P.G.T. 48, and others.

The members of the Joppa Lodge present were Bros. R. Gracie, W.M.M.; Geo. Morgan, I.P.M.M.; S. Mattison

P.M.M.; Thomas Ambler, P.M.M.; John Pemberton, P.P. G.J.D.; F. K. Stevenson, P.M.M.; P. J. Parson, Sec.; J. W. Burgess, M.O.; John Dutton, J.O.; R. Thomas, J.D.; John Jones, I.G.; Thomas Gray, R.; J. H. Holtaway, T.; Thos. J. Thorburn, W. Bennett, J. Sillitoe, L. Ellis, and others. Also the following visiting brethren: Bros. James Salmon, P.M. 196; John Corbett, 196; D. Hollins, St. David; Edward Kind, P.P.G.D. of C.; Wm. Warren, St. David; Donald Fraser, S.W. 196; R. C. Griffiths, 196; J. R. Goepel, P.M. 65, P.G.S.O.; J. F. Rounthwaite, 196; J. R. Ross, 165; S. Jones, 11; R. Preece, 165; W. Gibson, Stainfor, 148; E. S. Stanton, 165; F. L. Bolton, P.P.J.G.D.; H. J. Lloyd, 196; A. H. Gilbody, 148; John Wilson Paten, W.M. 165; Joseph Wood, 65, P.P.G.S.B. West Lancashire (Freemason).

The Mark Masters' Lodge was opened at 2.15 by the brethren of the Joppa (No. 11), under whose auspices the Prov. G. Lodge met, Bro. George Morgan, P.M., in the chair, Bro. Pemberton S.W., and Bro. Sillitoe J.W.

The Provincial Grand Officers having entered the lodge and been received in the usual manner, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form.

On the roll being called, all the lodges answered, and letters of apology were received from several brethren. The minutes of last lodge were then read and confirmed, and the usual business transacted in Grand Lodge proceeded with after which the Provincial Grand Master appointed the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year:—

Rev. Spencer Stanhope,	D. Prov. G.M.
George Higgins,	Prov. G.S.W.
F. K. Stephenson,	Prov. G.J.W.
R. Banks,	Prov. G.M.O.
S. Mattison,	Prov. G.S.O.
R. W. Townshend,	Prov. G.J.O.
G. H. Coates,	Prov. G. Treas.
R. Newhouse,	Prov. G. Sec.
D. Fraser,	Prov. G. Reg.
F. Motherhill,	Prov. G.S.D.
J. R. Ross,	Prov. G.J.D.
R. Baker,	Prov. G.D.C.
H. Williams,	Prov. G.A.D.C.
A. Gillbody,	Prov. G.S.B.
H. Griffiths,	Prov. G. Std. Br.
J. Harrison,	Prov. G.S. of W.
J. Dutton,	Prov. G.S.
A. Cattinach,	Prov. G.S.
G. Warren,	Prov. G.I.G.
J. Worthington,	Prov. G. Tyler. ¶

The sum of ten guineas was voted to the Mark fund of benevolence; and the other business of the Prov. G. Lodge being finished, the P.G.M.M. congratulated the brethren present on the success which had attended the introduction of Mark Masonry into Cheshire and the Principality. He intimated that before the next provincial meeting he hoped to be called upon to consecrate one or more new lodges in the province, and that, owing to the increase of his public duties, he was unable to visit the different lodges so often as he could wish; still he hoped he should find time to be with them when his presence was necessary, and he hoped that the brethren would always bear in mind that the fundamental principle of the Order was charity.

The Provincial and Mark lodges being closed, the brethren sat down to dinner in the building, the Hon. W. Egerton, P.G.M.M., in the chair, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly responded to. Several appropriate songs were sung during the evening by a number of the brethren. The next Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was fixed for Llandudno, under the auspices of the St. David's M.L.

Obituary.

BRO. WM. BRASIER.

It is with the most profound regret that we announce the sudden death of one of the most highly respected tradesmen of Margate, which melancholy event occurred on Thursday morning the 23rd inst. Bro. Brasier was suddenly struck down with apoplexy, at a Masonic banquet on Monday, and although Dr. Treves was present and rendered immediate assistance, and remained in almost constant attendance, doing all that medical skill could suggest to relieve the sufferer, Bro. Brasier never regained consciousness. He was an amiable and kind-hearted man, loved by all who knew him, and looked up to with the greatest respect by all his Masonic brethren in the town (to whom his sudden death has been a great shock), as well as in the whole province. His whole life has been one of continued useful and active benevolence. He was Secretary of the Alexandra Homes and of the Penny Savings' Banks, the duties of which offices he discharged with conspicuous ability. As a Mason, his benevolence knew no bounds, his ear was never deaf to the cry of distress, and he was ever exerting himself to help brethren in misfortune, and to obtain succour for the widows and orphans of those who had passed away. His was in truth a loveable, noble nature, and the writer of this article always looked up to him with the most profound respect, as his father in Masonry, and as in every sense of the word a model Mason. Bro. Brasier had attained to high distinction in the Craft, he was a Past Master of the Union Lodge of Margate, of which for many years previous to his death, he was Treasurer. He was also Provincial Grand Sword Bearer, and a P.Z. His death can hardly be regarded as other than premature, for he had only attained the fifty-ninth year of his age, and those who loved and looked up to him, fondly hoped he had many years of usefulness and benevolence in store for him. That he may rest in peace will be the heartfelt prayer of all who had the privilege of knowing him. He leaves a large family, for whom the deepest sympathy is felt in their sudden and irreparable loss.

SERVICES OF THE FREEMASONS' "ALBERT EDWARD" LIFEBOAT.

It will be remembered that at a special meeting of Grand Lodge, held more than a year ago, it was decided that the sum of £4000 should be voted to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution for the purpose of founding two lifeboat stations to commemorate the thankfulness of the Freemasons of England for the safe return from India of the Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. On this decision being communicated to the Lifeboat Institution it at once submitted to the officers of Grand Lodge two places needing lifeboats—namely, Clacton-on-Sea, on the Essex coast, and Hope Cove, near Salcombe, on the Devonshire coast. The Earl of Carnarvon, the Earl of Donoughmore, Lord Skelmersdale, and other members of the Craft fully approved of the selection of these two places for the memorial lifeboats. Three or four months ago both stations were reported officially by the Institution to be in working order and ready to be publicly inaugurated, but considering the season of the year it was suggested that that ceremony might advantageously be postponed till the first or second week in July next. Meanwhile, both lifeboats being on their stations, were ready to render at a moment's notice any service that might be required of them by a shipwrecked crew. Thus the Clacton lifeboat, the "Albert Edward," has had an early opportunity of saving nine persons from a watery grave. The event clearly shows the wisdom of placing her on that important station previous to the public demonstration in July, and, we may add, the wisdom also of selecting such appropriate and active memorials to commemorate an event that will ever be dear to His Royal Highness the Grand Master and the Craft at large. Through the courtesy of Bro. Richard Lewis, barrister, and the well-known Secretary of the National Lifeboat Institution, we are enabled to place the following particulars of the service before our readers, particulars which shew in this way alone how admirably and systematically the work of our great National Lifeboat Institution is carried on:—

On the 23rd May, the brig "Garland," of South Shields George Gibson, master, bound from South Shields to the Port of London, laden with 500 tons of coal, went ashore on the Gunfleet Sands, about S.S.W. of Clacton-on-Sea Pier, in the early part of the morning. The wind was blowing hard, and although no signals of distress were hoisted by that brig (owing to her having none on board) the representatives of the local committee considered it necessary for the lifeboat to put off to her, feeling almost sure that she would not come off the sands again, and that the crew must leave her. The "Albert Edward" was launched about 10 a.m., and reached the brig about 1 p.m. Found her fast filling with water and breaking up. About 3 p.m. the crew, six men and three boys, abandoned her, and were safely landed at Clacton-on-Sea Pier at 5 p.m. A large number of persons were on the pier to welcome the return of the lifeboat. The coxswain is a thorough master of his boat, and the crew speak in high terms of him and the "Albert Edward." Names of crew, Robert Legerton, William Willis, Robert Osborne, John Tye, James Cross, John Green, Harry Kill, Benjamin Addiss, Isaac Root, Maurice Nicholls, Robert Seaman, Joseph Pearce. The expenses incurred on the occasion are as follows:—10s. each to the crew, £6; 20 persons assisting to launch and haul-up the lifeboat, at 2s. each, £2; hire of six horses and three men in charge of horses, £1 4s.; total £9 4s., which sum has been forwarded to the local honorary secretary, who reports that the crew behaved well, and had some rough work to encounter.

A NOVELTY IN THE PHOTOGRAPHIC ART.

Bro. Fradelle, the eminent Art Photographer, of 246, Regent-street, has in connection with Dr. Buzzard introduced a really ingenious novelty, which practically amounts to a revolution in photography, the use of which entirely removes the fatigue and unpleasant strain on the eyes, which hitherto has been an almost insuperable difficulty in sitting for a photograph. Dr. Buzzard in the Lancet has thus described the invention:—"Discomfort, amounting in many persons to actual distress, is experienced in sitting for a photographic portrait. The eye is fixed on a certain spot, and, whilst staring at this, vision becomes indistinct, surrounding objects especially being lost in a thickening mist. A feeling of giddiness, and even of faintness, is apt to follow if the sitting is at all prolonged. Whilst undergoing an ordeal of this kind a few days ago, in Mr. Fradelle's studio, the idea came across me that this strain was unnecessary, and could be avoided by a simple contrivance. Having begged a piece of paper, and drawn upon it a circle of about four inches in diameter, I converted this into a sort of clock face by adding the usual Roman figures in their accustomed places. The paper was then nailed to a post about eight feet distant, and when the sitting began I first fixed my eyes upon the figure XII., then upon I., II., III., and so on, "all round the clock," the gaze shifting leisurely from one figure to another. As I had anticipated, the sitting ended without any sense of strain, mist, or giddiness having been felt; and in place of the eager longing for release usually experienced, it seemed to me that I could have sat on without effort."

Some of our friends being a little curious, tried the effect in Bro. Fradelle's studio, and their testimony fully confirms Dr. Buzzard's statement. Instead of a painful stare they found no difficulty in looking at the different figures on the clock face, and the "operation" was concluded without the slightest sense of fatigue. Bro. Fradelle assures us the use of this little novelty produces effects which are clearly marked in his pictures, the result being eminently satisfactory to both subject and artist.

We may mention in this connection that in Bro. Fradelle's rooms can be seen, artistically displayed, a great variety of his well-known and justly celebrated "photo-mezzotint portraits," with which his name has been so long associated. A personal inspection of a collection, which may fairly be described as a National Portrait Gallery, will repay all who have the leisure to admire a series of superb portraits of the most distinguished persons in Politics, Army, Navy, Church, Society, and the Arts and Sciences. These pictures for their general excellence may be said to be among the finest productions of the photographic art.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday at Freemasons' Hall. Col. Creaton, V.P., presided, and there were also present among others, Bros. James Lewis Thomas, S. Rawson, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Rev. Ambrose Hall, W. Paas, J. A. Farnfield, J. Royd, Peter de L. Long, J. G. Marsh, A. H. Diaper, Benj. Head, H. A. Dubois, Dr. Hogg, Herbert Dickett, J. M. Clabon, F. Binckes, F. Walters, J. T. Moss, A. D. Loewenstark, L. Ruf, Griffiths Smith, A. Partridge, Joshua Nunn, R. B. Webster, G. Spooner, Joseph Smith, A. H. Tattershall, E. S. Snell, John Mason, Col. Burney, Capt. N. G. Philips, Charles Atkins, T. Kingston, G. Faulkner, Thomas Massa, W. Platt, Frederick Davison, Joseph Fern, W. Noak, Thomas Taylor, W. B. Blackman, W. Blackman, T. S. Mason, J. J. Berry, J. W. Gears, Charles Jardine, Montague Gosset, Charles Marsh, J. W. Baldwin, J. M. Klench, Geo. Hackford, E. W. Davis, E. Letchworth, N. J. Fenner, W. West Smith, Raynham W. Stewart, E. C. Mather, Erasmus Wilson, John Coutts, A. J. Irton, Capt. Wordsworth, Henry Venn, W. H. Farnfield, F. Bennoch, John B. Monckton, W. T. Howe, C. E. Habicht, Col. Peters, Col. Shadwell Clarke, W. Roebuck, Walter Wellsman, Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, J. A. Rucker, H. C. Levander, Dr. Ramsay, W. Bailey, Jas. Horwood, J. B. Wilson, George Kenning, Thos. Cubitt, Geo. Bolton, Edw. Cox, J. B. Scriven, T. R. Eames, Frank Richardson, Rev. Dr. Brette, Rev. P. M. Holden, W. F. C. Moutrie, F. A. Robinson, Rev. J. E. Cox, J. Chynoweth, Sir Albert Woods, (Garter), Locock Webb, Thos. Jas. Cusworth, F. A. Pemberton, Dr. John Dixon, P.M. 73, and H. Massey (Freemason). There were altogether 216 brethren who attended.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the following report of the Sub-Committee on the office and emoluments of Secretary of the Institution was read by Bro. Hedges:—

Qualifications. Duties and Emoluments of the Secretary.

That all Candidates, for the office of Secretary be Master Masons of three years standing.

That no brother shall be eligible to become a Candidate whose age exceeds forty (40) years.

That the office hours be from 10 o'clock a.m. to 5 o'clock p.m. daily, except Saturday, and on that day, from 10 o'clock a.m., to 2 o'clock p.m.

That the Secretary shall give the whole of his time and attention to the duties of his office, and hold no other appointment, with or without pecuniary consideration.

That he shall keep the accounts of the institution in a methodical manner, and file all bills, receipts, certificates, and other papers in regular order at the office, that the same may be inspected at any time by the respective Committees.

That he shall in all respects conform to the Rules, Laws and regulations of the Institution and follow the instructions of the House Committee.

That he shall prepare the quarterly accounts and lay the same before the House Committee at their meeting immediately preceding the quarterly Audit Committee.

That he shall strictly conform to the Laws of the Institution.

That the Salary be £350 per annum.

The report was then adopted.

The whole matter was then referred to the House Committee to report to the next General Committee, and, in the meantime, to advertise for candidates to fill the vacancy in the office of Secretary, and to receive and examine testimonials of candidates. It was also arranged that the meeting of the General Committee of the 27th instant should receive the report of the House Committee, and then adjourn for the election of Secretary till the 11th July at 2 p.m., when the poll should be kept open till 5 p.m.

Bro. Tattershall moved, and Bro. William Stephens seconded, "That the salary of the late Secretary be paid up to Michaelmas next, to his widow, as a mark of the great esteem in which he was held by the Committee."

Eight petitions for children to be placed on the list of candidates to be admitted to the School were received, and one petition deferred.

Bro. Benjamin Head, V.P., reported the presentation to Mrs. Monckton as announced in the Freemason last week.

The brethren then proceeded to elect the House and Audit Committees for the ensuing year, and at the declaration of the poll the following brethren were found to have been elected:—

THE STAR AND GARTER, KEW BRIDGE.

The new hall built by Bro. S. Lambie for Bro. Stanbury, the proprietor of the Star and Garter, Kew Bridge, was opened on the 24th ult., the Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 780, being its first occupants. The popularity of the Star and Garter, and its excellent provisioning, have long since rendered the old house an inadequate hostelry for its numerous patrons, and Bro. Stanbury being fully alive to the necessities of the times, resolved a few weeks ago to provide still further accommodation. In the space of seven weeks, with the aid of Bro. Lambie, he has begun and completed a hall which is in every way suited to afford comfort and convenience for large assemblages. The banquetting room measures 36 feet by 34 feet and is in height fifteen feet. It is well lighted, and is adorned with some handsome mirrors, and fitted with an elegant carpet. The brethren of the Royal Alfred Lodge expressed their hearty approval, and congratulated Bro. Stanbury and Bro. Lambie on their success. The lodge met early in the afternoon, and was opened by Bro. Walter Goss, W.M., who was supported by Bros. Charles May, S.W.; W. Gomm, J.W.; W. Hilton, P.M., Sec.; J. Smith, P.G.P. Treas.; B. Blasby, S.D.; Erwin, J.D.; C. Costelow, I.G.; and Gilbert, Tyler. There were also present Past Masters J. Chambers Roe, Lloyd, Littlewood, Brown, Gardiner, and Putter, a goodly array of members and a large number of visitors. The business comprised the raising of Bro. William Eydmann, the passing of Bro. Botley, and the initiation of Messrs. Robert Crawford, A. T. Secker, and John Sharp. On the completion of the ceremonies the W.M. invested Bro. Tarling, P.M., with the collar of Wine Steward, this office being at his disposal in consequence of the resignation of Bro. Hale, P.M. Bros. Akhurst and Franckel were also invested with the collars of D.C. and A.D.C. respectively. The brethren then closed the lodge and repaired to the banquet, which was admirably served under the personal superintendence of Bro. Stanbury. The usual toasts followed, and in the course of his reply to the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. Goss remarked that Bro. Stanbury had worthily fulfilled the promise he had made on the occasion when last they met. The foundation stone of the building they were at present assembled in had been laid only seven weeks ago, and they now had a structure perfect in all its parts. The W.M. in the course of the evening proposed the health of Bro. Stanbury, who had exerted himself so successfully to promote the comfort of the brethren that evening. Bro. Stanbury in reply said the way in which the toast had been given and received was to him extremely gratifying. As a business man, he had only done what any business man should have done under the circumstances. He appreciated the support of those who were around him, and he made them certain promises, which he had striven might and main, he hoped he might say successfully, to fulfil. He thanked the W.M. and members of the Royal Alfred Lodge for their kind expressions of approval, and personally he took the opportunity of publicly acknowledging the obligations he felt under to Bro. Lambie for the energy he had displayed in carrying out the work. He then assured all present that if they felt he had done well in the past, they might take it as an earnest of his desire to exert himself in the future, and to do all in his power to make them comfortable. In response to a special call, Bro. Lambie remarked he hardly knew how to add anything to what Bro. Stanbury had said. However, he could look with feelings of pride on what they had jointly accomplished. He would merely add, that he trusted it would not be long ere the new hall would have to be enlarged, and that he might be favoured with the contract. The remaining toasts were then honoured.

The following reports unavoidably stand over:—Lodges 78, 667, 1507, 1602, 1744. Chapter 249.

As was partly expected, the directors of the Bank of England on Thursday reduced their rate of discount from 3 per cent., to which it was raised on the 28th of March, to 2½ per cent.

The Whitehall Review states that the Prince of Wales will, in all probability, accompany the Commander-in-Chief when he proceeds to Malta to review the Indian troops who have arrived there.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Diseases of the skin.—No case of disease of the skin, be its nature what it may, has failed to be benefited when these potent remedies have been properly applied. In scrofulous and scorbutic affections they are especially serviceable. Scurvy and eruptions, which have resisted all other modes of treatment and gradually, from year to year, have been completely cured by Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills, which root out the disease from the blood itself and leave the constitution free from every morbid taint. In the nursery Holloway's Ointment should be ever at hand; it will give ease in sprains, contusions, burns, scalds, and infantile eruptions, and may always safely be applied by any ordinary attendant.—[ADVT.]

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The June Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. The M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, presided, and the other Grand Officers present were Lord Henniker, S.G.W.; Sir Harcourt Johnstone, M.P., J.G.W.; John Fawcett, a D.G.M.; Sir Albert Woods (Garter); John Havers, P.G.W.; Montagu Guest, P.G.M. Thompson, Walter Hopekirk, E. H. Thielley, J. W. Baldwin, F. Barnes, A. A. Pendlebury, W. H. Lee, W. Dodd, E. D. Ewins, C. F. Hogard, H. A. Dubois, H. Massey (Freemason); the Grand Stewards, Past Grand Stewards, and the Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of private lodges, numbered between 400 and 500.

Grand Secretary having read the minutes of the last Quarterly Communication and of Grand Festival, the same were respectively put to Grand Lodge and confirmed. The balloting papers for the election of the members of the Board of General Purposes, of the Colonial Board, and of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons were then distributed.

Lord Carnarvon then rose and said: Brethren, I shall proceed now to the first motion that stands on this paper. On Saturday, the 11th of May, we were all startled in this country by the sudden and frightful news that an outrage had been attempted—that an outrageous attempt had been made upon the life of the Emperor of Germany. (Hear, hear.) In consequence of that I gave notice of a resolution to the following effect:—“That this Grand Lodge agree in a vote of congratulation to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, Grand Protector of Prussian Freemasons, on his happy and providential escape from the recent attempt on his life.” Brethren, only a few days since, I think on Monday, the 3rd of June, we heard to our great sorrow that that foul attempt had been once more renewed, and at this time had been renewed with far graver results. As the Emperor was driving through the town, beloved by his people, with confidence in their loyalty—reposing, I should say, on their loyalty—he was wounded by the murderous aim of an assassin, and at this moment a life very valuable in the councils of Europe stands, it may be said, in great danger. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, this crime is unhappily not the first which many of this generation have witnessed; but there has been generally a singular fortune, I might almost say a singular providence, which has turned aside the bullet and the dagger of the assassin. (Hear, hear.) During the lives of the present generation it would, perhaps, be not too much to say that there has hardly been a single crowned head in Europe who has not at some time or other been exposed to this terrible risk; but the number of those who have fallen for many generations past might easily be counted on our fingers. If, indeed (which God forbid), this attempt should end disastrously to the life of the Emperor of Germany, we can only say that one more life, certainly not less illustrious than those which have been so taken, will have been most murderously carried off; and if not less illustrious, certainly no Sovereign that I know in Europe has so little deserved such a fate as this. (Hear, hear.) His venerable age, his high character, his great public services to his country—for if he was not the sole author, he yet was the distinct embodiment and impersonation of German unity—all these considerations might have pleaded for him; and it may be truly said, that at this most critical juncture in the affairs of Europe there is no life, perhaps, which could be so ill spared. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, apart from some few miscreants, I believe that every feeling in Germany is absorbed in the one common sense of horror and indignation at this act (hear, hear); and the feeling in Germany simply reflects the feeling in Europe and in this country also. (Hear, hear.) It is not our habit, as you well know, for Grand Lodge to mingle in the political concerns of the day (hear, hear); but this tragedy is one which rises almost above the ordinary political level, and there is this special reason why we may express our sentiments on this occasion, that the Emperor of Germany, unlike many Sovereigns in Europe, has never been afraid of Freemasonry. (Hear, hear.) He has identified himself with it, and he has had the affections of the Freemasons of this country as much as of his own loyal subjects. (Hear, hear.) It is therefore in connection with him as the head of the Prussian Freemasons that I now invite you to agree to this resolution. The disastrous circumstances of the last few days have compelled me to alter the terms which I should have originally submitted to you, and now, without further preface, I desire to propose to this Grand Lodge, perfectly secure as I am of their hearty acquiescence in it:—“That this Grand Lodge desires to express its sorrow and indignation at the late foul attempt to assassinate his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, Grand Protector of Prussian Freemasons, and its trust that the G.A.O.T.U. may be pleased to spare a life so valuable in the councils of Europe.” (Hear, hear, and loud applause.)

Bro. J. Fawcett, Prov. G.M. for Durham: M.W. Pro G.M. and brethren, I beg to second the proposition that has just been made to you. In doing so it would ill become me to attempt to make any observations supplementary to the forcible way in which the proposition has been brought before Grand Lodge, nor would I attempt to express sentiments which must be in the breast of every brother present. I beg to second the adoption of the amended motion which has been made.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, is it your pleasure to agree to the resolution which has been moved and seconded? (General cries of “All, all.”) I have the satisfaction of declaring that it is unanimously agreed to. I will request the Grand Secretary to forward to me the record of this resolution, that I may transmit it in the first instance to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the M.W.G.M., that as a formal and solemn document it may receive his signature also. (Hear, hear.)

The Earl of Carnarvon then moved:—

“That this Grand Lodge do grant the sum of one hundred pounds, to be paid out of the Fund of General Purposes, for the assistance of the members of the Igualdad Lodge, No. 653, in the Island of Curacao, West Indies, who have suffered from the hurricane which occurred there on the 23rd September, 1877.”

He said: Brethren, it was necessary to defer this on the last occasion in consequence of some enquiries having to be made. Those enquiries have been made, and are perfectly satisfactory. We are simply following in this instance a precedent which has been repeated on more than one occasion. The hurricane referred to in this resolution was a very violent one, the damage done very great, the distress equally great; and I doubt not Grand Lodge will agree to this motion. I think I may, perhaps, mention incidentally that His Royal Highness the Grand Master took some interest personally in the vote.

Bro. Fawcett: M.W.G.M., I beg leave to second it.

The motion was then carried unanimously.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, I come now to a matter of considerable importance. Grand Lodge will remember that on the failure of the house in which for so long a time the funds of Grand Lodge had been placed, a temporary arrangement became necessary. That arrangement was practically to open an account at the London and Westminster Bank, giving power to the Grand Secretary and to the President of the Board of General Purposes to draw cheques upon that account. At the last meeting of Grand Lodge I explained, as far as it was possible the state of the case and our general prospects; and I believe that what I then stated with regard to the future is in a very fair way to be verified. I hope that Grand Lodge will not be a loser to any very large amount. (Hear, hear.) Meanwhile it was necessary to arrange somewhat more permanently for the disposition of our moneys, and also to look into the whole system under which we had hitherto been acting; and on my advice Grand Lodge appointed a Committee for that purpose. I was a member of that Committee. I took the chair at its meetings; I think that the Committee, if I may say so, entered very carefully into the business before them; and I for one am perfectly satisfied with the results at which they arrived. I may also mention to Grand Lodge that the opinion of that Committee was unanimous. Grand Lodge will remember that at the last meeting I advised that the election of the Grand Treasurer should for the present be postponed; and I think it is desirable that that election should for a short time still stand over. (Hear, hear.) I apprehend that there will be no practical inconvenience whatever arising to G and L, and on the other hand there will be fuller time allowed to Grand Lodge to satisfy itself by full inquiries as to the person who should occupy that important post. Brethren, I hold in my hand the report of the Committee, but I must frankly admit to Grand Lodge that unfortunately, by some inadvertence in giving the notice to night a mistake has occurred, and that full notice, which the Book of Constitutions requires when an alteration or a repeal of the existing law takes place, has not been complied with, and, therefore, we are in this position—I cannot ask Grand Lodge, as I had intended and contemplated, to pronounce an opinion upon the clauses or provisions contained in that report, and, I think, it must stand over till the next Grand Lodge. At the same time I think Grand Lodge will be glad to hear what that report is (hear, hear), and therefore I propose to read it to you in extenso, though, owing to the mistake, the error which has been committed, it is impossible for us technically to take any decision upon the report this evening. I do not think in this case that there will be any practical inconvenience. There is a resolution which I shall ask Grand Lodge to agree to which regards the actual money arrangements for the immediate present. That, I am of opinion, they can agree to at once; but the main body of the report must stand over. Grand Lodge, on the other hand, will have the advantage during the next three months of considering that report very carefully, and they will be all the better prepared when we meet again to express an opinion on any particular part of it. I therefore will read at once this report. I shall read it only for the information of the Grand Lodge. “The Committee appointed at the last Grand Lodge to enquire into a report upon the whole of our financial and banking arrangements beg to report that they have carefully considered the matters referred to them, and with a view to averting in the future a similar catastrophe to that which has recently occurred, they are of the unanimous opinion that no single individual should be entrusted henceforth with the funds of the Grand Lodge, and they recommend that the current accounts be kept at the Bank of England, and that such accounts be in the names of the Grand or the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Treasurer, who shall give the requisite authority to the Bank to pay all cheques signed as heretofore, and in all cases countersigned by the Grand Secretary.” I may just mention for the information of Grand Lodge that the power now given is to the Grand Secretary, the President of the Board of General Purposes, and the President of the Board of Benevolence, and when those officers are absent, the locum tenens of each is authorised to sign. “The Committee have made the necessary enquiries and have ascertained that the Bank of England will be quite willing to carry out this arrangement. Certain alterations in the Book of Constitutions will in consequence be necessary, and the Committee therefore beg to recommend the following resolution to the consideration of Grand Lodge” (which of course I cannot put) “First, to repeal the words of Clause 3 on page 35 of the Book of Constitutions, and to substitute for them the following—All moneys belonging to the Grand Lodge shall be deposited in the Bank of England in the names of the Grand Master, or Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Treasurer. The duties of the Grand Treasurer shall be to keep a general supervision of the accounts, to sign the cheques, which must be countersigned by the Grand Secretary, for all moneys duly voted by the Grand Lodge, and generally to assist and advise the Trustees and Executive Officers in the due and faithful administration of the funds of the Fraternity. The accounts shall be annually audited by the professional auditor, to be appointed by the Grand Lodge pursuant to a resolution passed in Grand Lodge on the 23rd June, 1859.” Brethren, that is the report. It will now be practically in the hands of Grand Lodge for the next three months, and at the following Quarterly Communication I hope that we shall be prepared to take formal action upon it. The only resolution which I should now wish to put to you is to this effect—because that seems to be necessary in order to carry on, I may say, our current business—“That henceforth all moneys belonging to the Grand Lodge be deposited in the Bank of England in the names of the Grand Master or the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Treasurer, they giving authority to the Bank to honour the cheques drawn as now by the Presidents of the various Boards, in all cases countersigned by the Grand Secretary.” Grand Lodge will perceive that all those questions relating to the functions, the authority, and the position of the Grand Treasurer are reserved for the next Quarterly Communication, and the only power which is now asked is that this money should be deposited in the Bank, and that power should be given to certain individuals to draw cheques upon it. (After a communication from Bro. Havers.) I am reminded very properly that inasmuch as the appointment of the Grand Treasurer is postponed, the words

"Grand Treasurer" must be omitted from this resolution. Bro. Fawcett: M.W. Pro G.M. and brethren, I beg leave to second the resolution which has just been proposed to you by the M.W. Grand Master in the chair.

Bro. C. W. Hutton, P.G.D.: M.W.G.M., may I be allowed to ask if the President of the Board of General Purposes proposes putting his signature to the cheques?

Bro. McIntyre, G.R.: M.W.G.M., I think I can answer the question which has been put by our Bro. Hutton. In all cases the real signature is the counter-signature of the Grand Secretary; but in all cases where the cheque is from the Board of General Purposes, the President of the Board affixes his signature, and that is part of the resolution to-night.

Lord Carnarvon: Brethren, you have heard this resolution read, and it has been moved and seconded. Is it your pleasure to agree to it?

The resolution was then unanimously adopted.

Bros. Cotterburne, James Terry, H. Bartlett, H. Garrard, W. H. Lee, Joseph Smith, John Newton, Edwin Bare, W. J. Murlis, W. Hilton, James Willing, and Walter Hopkirk were then entrusted as scrutineers of votes for the election, and withdrew, the voting papers being collected.

Lord Carnarvon then said: Brethren, I regret that in consequence of business which it has been absolutely impossible for me to put aside, I am compelled at this moment to leave the chair. It was with considerable difficulty I came here this evening, but I felt so much anxiety as to the important work which we have just disposed of that I came here even though knowing I should be obliged to leave at eight o'clock. I shall, therefore, request Bro. Fawcett to take my place.

Lord Carnarvon was then conducted out of Grand Lodge, accompanied by Sir Harcourt Johnstone, G.J.W., whose place was occupied by Capt. Platt, Past G.J.W. Col. Burdett took the chair of Deputy Grand Master.

Grand Secretary read the report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which were recommendations for the following grants:—

The widow of a brother of the South Saxon Lodge, No. 311, Lewes ...	£75 0 0
A brother of the St. Paul's Lodge, No. 194, London ...	125 0 0
The widow of a brother of the South Norwood Lodge, No. 1139, South Norwood ...	50 0 0
The widow of a brother of the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, London ...	75 0 0
A brother of the Lodge of Three Grand Principles, No. 208, Dewsbury ...	75 0 0

Bro. Nunn moved and Bro. C. S. Burdett seconded the first of these grants; and Bro. Nunn moved and Bro. A. D. Loewenstark seconded the second.

Bro. J. M. Clabon, in moving the last three grants, said: M.W.G.M. in the chair, it becomes my duty to move the confirmation of the next three recommendations, and Grand Lodge has indulged me now and then as President of the Board in making of such observations as occurred to me, and which I have thought it my duty to communicate to Grand Lodge. It must not be supposed for a moment that I object to any one of the recommendations I am going to propose, but I cannot help saying that there is a disposition on the part of the Lodge of Benevolence to give rather large grants. I may remind Grand Lodge that on two former occasions I have asked them to apply a certain portion of the annual surplus every year for particular objects, that is, to help our young boys and girls when they leave the schools, before they can become bread-winners for themselves. When I first did that nine years ago we had accumulated a fund of £27,000, and our annual surplus was then as now over £1500. Grand Lodge then thought the time had not come, that the funds were not sufficient for us to begin to apply any surplus. Four years ago I repeated my motion, and our funds had then amounted to £35,000 with the same annual surplus. Although our expenses had increased, our funds had increased in the same proportion. The accumulated funds now amount to £42,000. Grand Lodge thinks it again too soon to do anything; but I think it right to remind them that they have that fund, and that there is an annual surplus. I think last year it was nearly £1700; and I must say that, entertaining the opinion that the Lodge of Benevolence sometimes are moved to make larger grants than the occasion requires, I cannot blame them for it, because when there is this large fund and this annual surplus, and Grand Lodge does not apply that surplus, you can hardly be surprised at the Lodge of Benevolence desiring to be very liberal indeed with that fund behind them. With those few remarks, I beg to move the third grant on the paper.

Bro. Joshua Nunn seconded the motion, which, with the other two, also moved by Bro. Clabon, and seconded by Bro. Nunn, were carried.

Bro. McIntyre said: M.W.G.M., I am sorry to have to state to yourself and to Grand Lodge that the President of the Board of General Purposes, in consequence of a severe domestic affliction, is not able to be present at Grand Lodge on this occasion, and I, acting on his behalf, beg to move that the report be taken as read.

Bro. H. C. Levander, V.P. of the Board of General Purposes: I beg to second it.

The following report of the Board of General Purposes was then taken as read:—

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes beg to report as follows:—1. Several matters of Masonic complaint have been brought before the Board since the last Quarterly Communication. There have, however, either been withdrawn or so disposed of as not to necessitate a specific report to Grand Lodge.

2. An application from Mr. Thomas Bacon, the lessee of Bacon's Hotel, for a new lease on the expiration of the existing one, at the end of the present year, was referred to the Premises Committee for consideration and report; and the Board of General Purposes unanimously agreeing with the recommendation of that Committee now advise Grand Lodge that a new lease for seven years from the expiration of the lease be granted to Mr. Thomas Bacon at the present rental, subject to the proviso that such lease be not alienable on death or otherwise.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON,
Freemasons' Hall, London, President.

21st May, 1878.

At the meeting of the Board, held on Tuesday, the 21st ult., after the ordinary business had been disposed of, it was unanimously resolved:—

"That the thanks of the Board are due, and are hereby tendered, to the V.W. Bro. John B. Monckton, the President, for his attention to all matters of business that have been brought forward during the past year, for the ability with which he has conducted the proceedings, and for his courteous bearing to all the members of the Board."

(Signed) HENRY C. LEVANDER,
Vice-President.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 17th day of May instant, shewing a balance in the hands of the late Grand Treasurer of £3543 13s. 9d.; in the London and Westminster Bank, £2145 7s.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

11. The annual report of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, dated the 17th of May, 1878, will be laid before Grand Lodge.

The report was then ordered to be received and entered on the minutes, on the motion of Grand Registrar, seconded by Bro. Levander; after which the report was adopted.

Grand Secretary then laid before Grand Lodge the Report of the proceedings of the Governors and Subscribers for the past year of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which was adopted on the motion of Bro. S. Rawson, seconded by Col. Burdett.

On the motion of Bro. Head, seconded by Bro. Nunn, the following resolution was adopted:—

"That the sum of £70 be given from the Fund of General Purposes; that the money be placed in the hands of the Secretary of the 'Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons,' to supply the residents of the Institution at Croydon with coals during the winter season."

Bro. Fawcett: Brethren, I have now to communicate to you that the M.W.G.M. has been pleased to appoint Bro. John B. Monckton, P.G.D., as President of the Board of General Purposes, and Bro. John A. Rucker as President of the Colonial Board.

Grand Lodge was then closed.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The Half-yearly Communication of Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England and Wales and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown was held on Tuesday evening at Freemasons' Tavern. The Earl of Limerick, G.M.M.M., presided. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and G.M.M.M. elect, was on the right of the Grand Master, the Rev. G. R. Portal, Past G.M.M.M., on his left; Gen. Brownrigg, G.S.W.; Bros. W. E. Gumbleton, G.J.W.; Mellor, G.M.O.; Gospel, G.S.O.; and S. Rosenthal, G.J.O.

Surrey; J. L. Thomas, W.M. 8; George Smith, P.M. 75; Rev. H. J. Hatch, S.O. 22; O. H. Pearson, W.M. 7; G. J. Robinson, York T.I.; R. G. Smith, 12; C. L. Mason, W.M. 111; S. H. Knaggs, S.W. 181; J. N. Rogers, Reg. 181; Wm. Barfoot, P.M., 104; H. R. Cooper Smith, P.M. 55; M. Kemp, P.M. 182; Capt. G. Watson, P.M. 69; Capt. A. T. Perkins, W.M. 109; T. W. Murley, W.M. 144; H. W. Charrington, S.W. 114; W. R. Marsh, W.M. 173; Col. H. S. Burney, 197; Lieut. Col. S. H. Clerke, P.M. 197; H. E. Batcher, 43; and E. Greenway, 54, and others.

After the formal opening of Grand Lodge the G.M. and D.P. G.M. were saluted, Bro. Berridge acting as D.C. Bro. Binckes, G.S., then read the minutes, which were put and confirmed.

The next business being the reception and adoption of the report of the General Board, it was taken as read, and on the motion of General Brownrigg, seconded by Bro. Gumbleton, was received, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The report was as follows:—

During the six months ending 31st March, 1878, there were issued 612 certificates, bringing the number of brethren registered as having been advanced, under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge, to a total of 11,078.

In the same period there were granted warrants for 12 new lodges, viz.:—

- T. I. "The Howe," Birmingham.
- No. 211 "Hammersmith," London.
- "212 "Albion," Barbados.
- "213 "Fletcher," Whitehaven, Cumb., and West.
- "214 "St. John's," Abberystwyth, Mon.
- "215 "Devon," Newton Abbot, Devon.
- "216 "Henry," Frizzington, Cumb. and West. (Confirmation, formerly Scotch Constitution).
- "217 "Cornerstone," Kimberley, South Africa.
- "218 "Lyngrove," Chipping Sodbury, Gloucestershire.
- "219 "Ardvorlich," Rawul Pindee, Bengal.
- "220 "Sandeman Stat Veritas," Dum Dum, Bengal.
- "221 "St. John's," Meer Meer, Punjab.

(Memo.—Since the date named, six warrants have been granted in addition to those named.)

The certificates exceed the largest number ever issued in a corresponding period (556) by 56, and the gratification derived from this fact will be further increased when it is stated that the amount received for fees, dues, &c., is largely in excess of any previous corresponding receipts—£487 to March, 1876, and £491 to March, 1877—the total in the past six months having been £596.

For several years past the expenditure at the festivals held in aid of the Benevolent Fund has exceeded the amount provided for by the sale of dinner tickets and the fees paid by the Stewards. This has been partly owing to the want of efficient supervision on the part of the Stewards, arising from the circumstance of the residences of the majority being in the provinces, and partly to the non-payment of their fees by some of those officers. The total liability in connection with these festivals is £39 17s. 11d., and the Board recommend that this amount be paid out of the Benevolent Fund.

Regulations for the conduct of future festivals have been made by the Board which will effectually prevent the recurrence of similar liabilities.

There is a balance at the bankers on account of the General Fund of £359 3s. 7d., and the Board recommends the investment of £200, making the total invested property on this account £800.

There is to the credit of the Benevolent Fund a current balance of £69 4s. 8d. The investments on account of this fund amount to £800.

With a view to extend the usefulness of the fund established for purposes of benevolence, the Board recommends:—

"That so soon as the invested property of the Fund of Benevolence amounts to £1000, a separate account be opened, to be called the Education Fund.

"That one-half of all contributions hereafter received for the benevolent purposes of the Order be paid to the Education Fund, and one-half to the Benevolent Fund.

"That the income accruing from whatever source to the two funds be kept entirely distinct.

"That the Education Fund be administered in such manner as shall be from time to time directed by Grand Lodge."

It is with the greatest satisfaction that the Board is enabled to submit to Grand Lodge the two following communications, embodying the formal recognition of this Grand Lodge by the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States of America. With reference to this most important event, resolutions will be formally submitted for the approval of, and adoption by, Grand Lodge.

"General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons for the United States of America.

"Office of General Grand Secretary, Buffalo, N.Y., March 1st, 1878.

"F. Binckes, Esq., Grand Secretary, Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, &c.

"Dear Sir and R. W. Brother,—I take occasion to forward to you by the hands of Bro. A. G. Goodall, who is about to visit England, a copy of the resolution adopted by the General Grand Chapter of the United States in August of last year, recognising the Grand Mark Lodge of England and Wales as the rightful governing body of the degree of Mark Master Mason in the colonies and dependencies of the British Crown, in which no Grand Body of that degree claims jurisdiction, and by means of which it seeks to establish with the Grand Lodge a more intimate and perfect relation than has hitherto existed between the two bodies.

"The printed proceedings of the General Grand Chapter will soon be forwarded to your address.

"Permit me to express the hope that the future relations of the Grand Lodge and the General Grand Chapter may be productive of peace and harmony, and fruitful of good results in the intercourse of their constituencies.

"Office of General Grand Secretary, Buffalo, N.Y.,
"March 1st, 1878.

"Be it Known: That at the twenty-third triennial convocation of the General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the United States of America, held at Buffalo, in the State of New York, on Friday, August 24, 1877, the following resolution was adopted, viz.:—

"Resolved, That the General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the United States of America hereby recognises the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown, as the rightful and supreme authority over the degree of Mark Master Mason in England and Wales and those colonies and dependencies of the British Crown in which no existing Grand Body claims jurisdiction over that degree.

"In witness whereof the seal of the General Grand Chapter is this day impressed.

"General Grand Secretary."

Communications have been received from the U.S. of America on the subject of the formation of a Grand Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, which Grand Lodge is recommended to refer back to the General Board for further consideration.

It is with great regret that the Board announces the loss of the services, by death, of R. W. Bro. John Sutcliffe, Provincial Grand Mark Master of Lincolnshire, and of R. W. Bro. James Mackay Cunningham, Provincial Grand Mark Master of Sussex.

Of the eminent services rendered to the Order by the former, it is impossible to speak too highly; while with reference to the latter it may be truly said that he proved himself in every respect a worthy successor to the late R. W. Bro. Sir J. Cordy Burrows.

The zeal and energy of these distinguished brethren cannot be too warmly appreciated, nor can their loss be too deeply deplored.

In order more clearly to define the power of District Grand Masters in connection with their granting authority to brethren to open lodges, waiting the approval of the M. W. Grand Master, the Board recommends:—

"That the following words be added to the Constitutions:—

"Clause 56: 'District Grand Masters having the additional power to give a dispensation authorising brethren to meet as a lodge, until a Warrant of Constitution shall be signed by the M. W. G. M.'

"And also, with a view to diminish the expenses of the Grand Festival, that in Clause 44, with reference to Grand Stewards, the word 'Twelve' be substituted for 'Eight.'"

The Board has considered a petition for relief on behalf of Mrs. J. H., widow of the late Bro. J. H., of Devizes, whose services in behalf of the Order were exceedingly valuable, and only interrupted by his premature decease, and recommends a grant of £15.

The Grand Treasurer's accounts for the six months to 31st March, 1878, are subjoined, which show:—

President.

Examined and found correct.

(Signed) THOMAS MEGGY, Auditor.

14th May, 1878.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, P.G.M., in moving the first of the recommendations of this report, said he thought it would not be unbecoming before doing so if he congratulated G.L. on the wonderful increase that had taken place in the number of lodges and certificates, as stated in the report. No less than 12 new lodges, and six other warrants issued since, during the last half-year, had been granted. He would particularly draw attention to the fact of the Time Immemorial Lodge, the "Howe," at Birmingham, having now come under the banner of this Grand Lodge. It was one of the most important to get under this banner; one that this Grand Lodge had been trying to get for the last fifteen years, ever since this Grand Lodge was started; and this Grand Lodge would most likely have failed in their object if it had not been for the Grand Master of the Province of Warwick, the Rev. W. K. Ryland Bedford. It was entirely owing to that brother's endeavours that the Howe Lodge had given in its adhesion to Grand Lodge. He would now move "That £200 be invested in New Zealand or other colonial bonds on account of General Fund." If the brethren would be good enough to turn to the end of the report they would see that there was a considerable balance to the account of the General Fund—no less than £359 3s. 7d. Therefore the Board recommended that £200 of that sum be invested. It would be perfectly safe to do so, because funds were coming in very rapidly, and the £159 3s. 7d. would be quite enough to keep at the bankers' for any emergencies that might arise between now and the end of the next half-year.

Bro. Goepel seconded the motion, which was then put and carried.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal next moved the second recommendation.

That in Clause 44 of the Book of Constitutions, the word "eight" be erased and "twelve" substituted.

That the following words be added to Clause 36, "District Grand Masters having the additional power to give a dispensation, authorising brethren to meet as a lodge, until a Warrant of Constitution shall be signed by the M. W. G. M."

The point of that proposed alteration had reference to the Grand Stewards. It was the privilege of the provinces in this Order to recommend in turn a brother to be appointed a Grand Steward by the Grand Master. The Grand Steward's fee was fixed at two guineas, which went to pay whatever sum was not covered by the sale of dinner tickets at this half-yearly festival. Hitherto the expense of this festival over and above what the tickets would provide for had been very considerable, and that extra expense had fallen upon the general funds of Grand Lodge. The General Board had thought that this was an exceedingly undesirable state of things to be continued if it was possible to arrive at any other solution. After considering the matter the Board thought that if the Board of Grand Stewards was increased in number from eight to twelve, the extra sum paid by the fees of the additional four would leave the balance to be paid by Grand Lodge very small, if not eliminate it altogether. He could not but think it was a most useful thing that energetic brethren in the provinces should be nominated by their respective Grand Lodges for the office of Grand Steward; and he thought also it would be an advantage as regarded the funds of Grand Lodge. As it would increase the patronage of Provincial Grand Lodges if this recommendation was approved, he would move to that effect.

Bro. Col. Wigginton seconded the motion.

Bro. Hunter Little said he observed that Clause 44 went on to state that four of the Stewards should be nominated by the provinces of Middlesex and Surrey, and four by the remaining Provincial Grand Lodges. In what way was it contemplated to provide for the nomination of the addition four Stewards: was it by giving all the extra patronage to Middlesex and Surrey?

The M. W. G. M. said he believed it was understood that the intention was that as the number of the provinces had increased since the Book of Constitutions was made out, the nomination of the whole of the four additional Stewards should go to the Provincial Grand Lodges other than those of Middlesex and Surrey. Middlesex and Surrey would still nominate four, and the other eight would be nominated by the remaining provinces.

Bro. Hunter Little expressed his satisfaction at this arrangement.

Bro. Sabine asked whether Middlesex and Surrey exercised its right year by year.

Bro. Binckes replied he was not sure that it did. There was generally a difficulty in getting the requisite number of nominations, but he hoped there would not be any such difficulty in future. Five had been nominated by Middlesex and Surrey this year.

The motion for making the alteration in Clause 44 was then carried.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal next moved the alteration in Clause 56, as given above. He said that it was suggested by reason of twelve weeks elapsing between the time of sending from India the petition for a lodge and the receipt in India of the warrant. It was therefore proposed to give the District Grand Master the power of granting brethren a dispensation for holding a lodge in the interval.

Bro. Hargreaves having seconded the motion, it was put and carried.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal then moved the next recommendation—"To alter and amend the rules regulating the Fund of Benevolence."

The recommendation was "That so soon as the invested property of the Fund of Benevolence amounts to £1000, a separate account be opened, to be called the Education Fund.

"That one-half of all contributions hereafter received for the benevolent purposes of the Order be paid to the Education Fund, and one-half to the Benevolent Fund.

"That the income accruing from whatever source to the two funds be kept entirely distinct.

"That the Education Fund be administered in such manner as shall be from time to time directed by Grand Lodge."

This recommendation was the natural consequence of the suggestion made by the Board at the last Grand Lodge that they should consider what could be done for the special benefit of the children of decayed Mark Masters. The Fund of Benevolence was instituted some years ago for the assistance of Mark Masters, their widows and children; but so far as the children were concerned they had hitherto only benefited from the assistance given to Mark Masters or their widows. The Benevolent Fund had now increased so largely, consequent upon the claims upon it by Mark Masters and their widows having been so few, that the Board felt they might now extend the operations of the fund to doing something if possible for the children of decayed Mark Masters. Looking to the fact that at the last election of the Boys' School no less than 46 children were unable to be elected for want of room, he thought there could be no doubt in the mind of any of the brethren that they could not benefit a Mark Mason or his widow better than by assisting in the education of his or her children. The Board, therefore, proposed that so soon as the Fund of Benevolence amounted to £1000, anything that might afterwards be received on account of that fund should be divided into halves, and that one-half should be expended as Grand Lodge might direct from time to time—they did not bring any motion about that forward to-day, but would leave it to next Grand Lodge—one-half should be put aside for the assistance of the children by educating them, and the other half, as now, to go towards relieving the distresses of Mark Masters and their widows. Grand Lodge need not be afraid that Mark Masters or their widows would suffer from this arrangement, inasmuch as by the proposition it was provided that one-half of the fund must go to them. He believed that this new arrangement would meet with so much favour among all Mark Masters that as a result there would be a very great increase in this Benevolent Fund. He hoped the brethren would pass the recommendation unanimously, for he was sure they could not do anything more conducive to the benefit of the Order and their own fellow creatures than by helping those poor creatures whose parents were unable to give them that push in the world which was afforded by that good education which we all desired our children should have.

Bro. T. J. Sabine in seconding the motion, said as a member of the Board he expressed his personal gratification that the fund which he and a few others were the means of establishing a few years ago had grown to such proportions that they were able to deal with it in the way proposed. The system which Bro. Portal had explained must commend itself to every Mason present and to every member of the Order. With the fund in such a prosperous state as it now was they had every prospect that in the future it would attain to such an amount that they would be able to do something very handsome for the children of Mark Masters who had fallen into adversity.

The motion was then carried unanimously.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal next moved, "That the Grand Treasurer be authorised to repay from the Fund of Benevolence the sum of £39 17s. 11d. to the General Fund for sundry disbursements on account of said fund." Having explained that the sum named was an accumulation of deficits for some years past in the receipts from Stewards' fees for the Benevolent Fund Festival, which deficits had been paid by the General Fund, he said it was now proposed to repay the General Fund out of the Benevolent Fund.

Bro. H. C. Levander seconded the motion.

Bro. Strachan objected to the amount being taken from the Benevolent Fund, and thought it was the first time Grand Lodge had been asked to expend any portion of the Fund of Benevolence for eating and drinking. The donations to the Fund of Benevolence were made for benevolent purposes, and should be applied to those purposes only. He would respectfully move as an amendment that this subject be referred back to the General Board to find some other means of liquidating the amount other than by trenching on the Benevolent Fund. If they could not find such means, he for one would be ready to pay his share of the amount. (Loud cheers.)

After some discussion as to the best means of accomplishing the end proposed by Bro. Strachan, the brethren appearing to be unanimously of his opinion, the motion of Bro. Portal was rejected, and as a consequence the General Fund, which has paid the amount, has to bear it.

On the motion of Bro. the Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, seconded by Bro. James Stevens, £15 was granted to the widow of a late brother.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal next said, with reference to the recognition of this Grand Mark Lodge by the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States of America, that it was impossible to exaggerate the importance of this step, because it carried with it recognition by the other Grand Chapters of the United States. He thought this should not be allowed to pass without some notice or acknowledgment on the part of Grand Lodge. He then moved, "That this G.L. receives with the greatest satisfaction the resolution of the General G. Chapter of the United States of America to recognise this Grand Lodge as the rightful and supreme authority over the Mark Degree in England and Wales and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown."

Lord Skelmersdale, in seconding the resolution, said he had much pleasure in doing so, for it was a matter for great congratulation and rejoicing that Grand Chapter of America had recognised this Grand Lodge.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal said he was quite sure there would be but one feeling in Grand Lodge in favour of sending a fraternal answer to such an important body as the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States of America. The brethren would all feel satisfied and pleased that this Grand Lodge was now on terms of communication with that body.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Bro. T. J. Sabine, then rose and said—M. W. G. M., it falls to my duty on the present occasion, having been the nominator of the Right Hon. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale as Grand Master for the ensuing year at the last Half-yearly Communication of Grand Lodge in December last, to move his election as Grand Master of this Order. I do so now with a great deal of pleasure. The records of this Degree since the meeting of last December carry out and prove what I then stated with regard to the success of the Degree.

since the establishment of Grand Lodge some twenty years ago. I am quite sure I have only to mention the name of our Right Hon. Brother to claim from you on his behalf a unanimous election, and a welcome of him to the throne of Grand Mark Masonry. (Cheers.)

The M.W.G.M.: Brethren, it is my duty to declare that, there having been only one brother nominated to the office of Grand Mark Master at our last Communication, our brother, without any formal election, is duly elected as Grand Mark Master Mason for the ensuing year; and I will consequently proceed to the installation of our Most Worshipful Brother. (Applause.)

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, Past G.M., accompanied by Bros. Alfred Williams, G.S.; C. Pulman, G.S.; J. H. Spencer, G.S.; Captain Hunter, G.S.B.; R. Berriidge, G.D.C.; the Rev. W. K. Ryland Bedford, Prov. G.M. Warwick and Staff; and Capt. John Wordsworth, Prov. G.M. Yorkshire, presented the M.W. Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale to the M.W.G.M. for installation.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal said: M.W.G.M., it is now my very pleasing duty to present to you Lord Skelmersdale as G.M. of this Order for the ensuing year. Our brother is so well known in all the degrees of Masonry that I feel it is needless for me to dilate upon the advantages that will accrue to this Order in placing so worthy a brother upon our throne; but I may just say that it is only one more link in the chain which always has, and I trust always will unite this Order of Mark Masters with the Craft Grand Lodge of England, that the worthy brother whom we purpose to place as our ruler upon that throne to-night is also Deputy Grand Master of Craft Grand Lodge. It is also, I think, worthy of record, that so popular is our brother among the brethren of this Degree, that upon the death of our lamented brother, Bro. W. Romaine Callender, in Lancashire, Lord Skelmersdale was unanimously chosen by the province to be recommended to the Grand Master of that time for appointment in Bro. Callender's place; and I may, I think, say this also, that the unanimous choice of the brethren has been well justified in the result. I therefore, now, my Lord, without further preface, present to you Deputy Grand Master Lord Skelmersdale, to receive at your hands the benefit of installation as Grand Master of this Order for the ensuing year.

The M.W.G.M.: Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, it is not necessary for me at any length to dilate on the duties of your high office. You have held such high offices in the province, that the duties which will devolve upon you in this chair must be well known to you. I may, however, express to you with what great pleasure and satisfaction I receive the request made by our worthy brother and Past Grand Master. I shall now proceed to install in this chair one who I am convinced has laboured hard for the good of the Craft, and I am persuaded that I shall place in your hands with perfect safety the interests of the Degree, and that the progress and prosperity of the Order which has hitherto marked it will continue under your rule.

The Rev. F. W. Thoyts, G.C., then performed his duty, and, amid loud cheers, Lord Skelmersdale was installed by the Earl of Limerick.

Lord Skelmersdale thereupon said: Brethren, I beg most heartily to thank you all, especially Bro. Portal and Bro. Lord Limerick, for the kind way in which they have spoken of me, and you have received me in this chair. Bro. Portal has truly said that I at present hold a high dignity in Freemasonry, in a different degree. This, I may say, is almost the last I can possibly hope to obtain. I only hope that I shall be able to maintain this particular degree, and to advance it as much as possible, and that when I leave this chair I shall find it not only in as flourishing a state as it is now in, but even more so. I can assure you, brethren, as far as in me lies, I will do my duty. I have the honour, as Bro. Portal says, to rule over a province, the Province of Lancashire, in Mark Masonry. I think I am justified in saying that that is one of the most flourishing provinces under Grand Lodge. That it will increase and prosper I have no doubt; and I am quite sure, brethren, if anything will conduce to make me do my best and work hard in the cause it is the kind way in which you have received me among you this day. Before sitting down, brethren, it is my pleasing duty to present to the late Grand Master, Lord Limerick, a Past Grand Master's jewel. In presenting this jewel to you, Bro. Lord Limerick, I can only say I hope to be able to follow in your footsteps. That you have benefited this Order enormously, I know well. I hope I may be able to follow your example. It is with exceeding regret I find you leave this chair.

The Earl of Limerick, P.G.M.: M.W.G.M. and brethren, I thank you for this Mark jewel, which I trust proves that you are satisfied with the manner in which I have endeavoured to discharge the duties of the office which I have held during the past three years. It has been my earnest desire that Mark Masonry should prosper during my year of office, and that I might be able to hand it over to my successor in an increasingly flourishing state. I trust that the object has been attained. You have heard that during the last eight months no less than eighteen new warrants of lodges have been granted. I trust that that augurs well for an increased prosperity in the year. But, brethren, that I have been able, as I trust I have, to discharge my duty to your satisfaction, is principally, almost entirely, owing in fact to the support which I have received from all the brethren in the Degree, especially from those Grand Officers with whom I have been privileged to work during the three years I have had the honour to hold the office of Grand Master. It is to their exertions much more than to any of mine that the flourishing state of the Degree at the present day is due. I thank you most heartily for the kind way in which I have been treated by you, and for the mark of your kindness and of satisfaction at the way in which I have endeavoured to discharge the duties of my office. (Applause.)

The M.W.G.M. then announced that he appointed as Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Donoughmore, but he was sorry to say his lordship was unable to be present, as he was now in Ireland. He had a letter of apology from his lordship to that effect, and regretting very much his absence.

The salutes for these Grand Officers having been given, the following appointments were made:—

Bro. Lor. J. Henniker.....	S.G.W.
" Thomas Frederick Halsey, M.P.	J.G.W.
" Thomas J. Sabine	G.M.O.

" C. T. Speight	Grand Tyler.

The Grand Master informed the brethren that he had appointed Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, President of the General Board, and Bros. Meggy, Rosenthal, Dibdin, Matier, Stidolph, and Thos. Cubitt members. The following brethren were then elected by Grand Lodge on the Board:—Bros. Sabine, Mure, Shackleton, Pearson, and Wigginton.

Bro. Binckes drew attention to the following notice:—"Moveable Grand Lodge at Keswick, on Friday, 14th June, 1878. Arrangements have been made with the London and North-Western Railway Company to convey brethren from London to Keswick and back in first-class saloon carriages, on the following terms:—For fifty or upwards, £2 13s. 4d. each; for twenty-five and under fifty, £3 4s. each. Leaving Euston Station at 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursday, the 13th June, and returning from Keswick on Tuesday, the 18th June. Brethren who intend to avail themselves of these terms are requested to inform the Grand Secretary not later than Tuesday, the 11th of June, so that the necessary arrangements may be made."

The M.W.G.M. having informed the brethren that owing to a previous engagement he would not be able to dine with the brethren, Grand Lodge was closed in the usual form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. A. Best, in Freemasons' Tavern. The Earl of Limerick presided, having Sir E. H. Lechmere, M.P., on his right, the Rev. G. R. Portal on his left, and Bro. Thomas F. Halsey, M.P., in his chair of J.W. The usual toasts were afterwards honoured, and a beautiful selection of music was performed by Bros. Hodges, Beckett, and De Lacy, assisted by the W. Bro. W. A. Barrett, P.G.M. Organist, and Bro. W. Belcher, Mus. Doc., G.M. Organist.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 22nd ult. Bro. R. S. Kingham, W.M., in the chair, assisted by Bros. J. Willing, P.M.; J. J. Michael, P.M.; C. J. Scales, J.W.; W. Side, S.D.; W. M. Stiles, Secretary; Geo. Clark, W.S.; H. Lovegrove, Steward and Assistant Sec.; Daley, Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form at five o'clock, and Bros. W. E. Smith, A. Gemmell, and E. R. Freebody were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. Bros. C. W. Blake and F. J. Perks were passed to the Second Degree, and after ballot Messrs. W. F. Bates and W. F. Dixon were duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren adjourned for refreshment. Several visitors were present, and the proceedings were enlivened by the vocal efforts of Bros. Jacobs, Brummell, Stiles, Putland, and Brooker.

FARRINGTON WITHOUT LODGE (No. 1745).—The first regular meeting of this lodge since its consecration on the 9th ult. was held at the Viaduct Hotel, on the 27th ult., when there were present Bros. W. H. Jackson, jun., P.M. Royal Arthur, W.M.; Jacques, S.W.; Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, J.W. and Secretary pro tem. (Freemason); Ramsey, P.M., Treasurer; Lardner, S.D.; Clarke, P.G.D.C. of Herts, acting I.G.; Dwarber, P.M. 15 9, &c., honorary member; Dubois, P.G.D. of Middlesex, &c.; Parkinson, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Levander, P.G. Secretary of Middlesex, &c.; George Kenning, P.G.D. of Middlesex; Marsh, P.P.G.P. of Middlesex; Dalwood, W.M. 1589, &c.; Dewar, P.M. 1627, &c.; Newton, 749; Golstein, 3, Herve (Germany). The minutes of the consecration having been read and confirmed, the W.M. most ably initiated Messrs. M. Samuel and Quilter into Craft mysteries. The W.M. then appointed and invested Bro. Dubois, one of the founders of the lodge, as his Hon. I.P.M. Several propositions having been handed in the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet. The cloth having been withdrawn, the preliminary toasts were done full justice to. "The W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., who, in a brief but pertinent speech, congratulated the lodge upon having for its first Master a brother so admirably adapted for the position, as Bro. Jackson had by his performance of his duties that evening proved himself to be. The W.M. having replied, proposed "The Health of the Initiates." This toast was received with excellent "fire," and Bro. Marsh having contributed the song of "The Entered Apprentice," Bros. Samuel and Quilter ably responded. In giving "The Visitors," the W.M. dwelt at length upon the number of distinguished Masons who had visited the lodge since its advent in the Masonic world. He hoped that the hospitality of the Farringdon Without had been in every way agreeable to them, and that they would carry away with them kindly recollections of their visit. He, in conclusion, coupled the name of Bro. Levander with the toast. This pledge having been duly honoured, Bro. Levander in reply thanked the W.M. for the honour paid to him in coupling his name with the toast. He had been well pleased with his visit to the lodge. The working from the W.M. downwards was carried out smoothly and well. He hoped, as an old Mason, they would excuse his remarking that they should exercise every care in the admission not only of candidates for initiation, but of those brethren desirous of joining the lodge. Freemasonry at the present time was making such gigantic strides that it behoved every true lover of its principles and mysteries to exercise such a discrimination that its high character should not be lightly damaged or destroyed. It was not mere numerical strength that was required to keep the Craft flourishing, but that happy essential quality. In conclusion, he remarked that as long as the members of the Farringdon Without made "quality" the guiding principle in the admission of candidates their lodge must prosper. Bro. Dalwood said, that as one of the officers of the St. Dunstan's Lodge who had signed the petition of No. 1745, he much regretted that indisposition had prevented his being present at its consecration, and which ceremony he had heard had been highly successful. He personally returned them thanks, not only for having given him an opportunity of witnessing their admirable working, but of partaking of their splendid hospitality. He quite endorsed the remarks of the last speaker: lodges were getting not only too numerous, but the members were very often too lax in the indiscriminate admission of members. The Farringdon Without Lodge had commenced its career on a sound basis, because they desired to make it a limited representative lodge, and whilst they continued to carry that idea out it would flourish. The present members were brethren of well-known Masonic character, and of some standing in the Ward. In conclusion, he wished them every success in their new undertaking. Bro. George Kenning said that as the two previous speakers had exhausted the subject matter of the toast he should not attempt to occupy their already limited time by further expatiating upon it, but upon behalf of the other visitors he returned the members of No. 1745 their hearty thanks for the reception that they had received that day. In conclusion, he remarked that according to his idea the members of a lodge should be like a family party: the spirits of discussion and antagonism should not be generated, but every brother should endeavour to preserve the true principles of fraternity and harmony, in order that the charm of the Masonic circle should not be rudely broken. "The Officers" followed, and was responded to by each officer present. The remainder of the evening having been spent most agreeably, the brethren separated until the last Monday in July next.

LIVERPOOL.—Alliance Lodge (No. 667).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 21st ult. The lodge was opened at 6 o'clock by Bro. J. Ellis, W.M., assisted by the following officers: Bros. G. S. Willings, I.P.M.; J. E. Jackson, P.M., P.G.S.; J. Devaynes, P.M.; H. Firth, S.W.; J. H. Gregory, J.W.; T. Peake, Sec.; D. Lloyd, S.D.; A. Bucknall, J.D.; J. Bailey, S.S.; R. Foulds, I.G.; P. Bull, Tyler. The following members were also present: Bros. Luya, Jones, Hudson, D. Jones, Hall, Broadbent, T. R. Willings, G. Jackson, Formby, Lees, M. Davies, Wood, Brookes, Swan, Stewart, and Catlow. The visitors included Bros. D. Callow, 823; Foster, 573; Davies, 16 and 22 (Canada); and other brethren. Bro. Hudson presided at the organ. Bros. T. R. Willings, G. Jackson, Broadbent, and Barker were passed to the degree of F.C., according to ancient custom. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when Bros. Beck, Brooks and Stewart were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by the W.M. in a very impressive manner. The lodge was then closed down to the First Degree. Bro. Harver, 203, was proposed as a joining member, by Bro. I.P.M. Willings, seconded by Bro. P.M. Devaynes. Nothing more appearing for the good of Freemasonry in general, or this lodge in particular, it was closed in due form. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting room, and after supper the usual patriotic and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Davies, in responding on behalf of the visitors, said he was struck by the great amount of vitality existing in Masonry in this town, and thought a great deal of this arose from the great enthusiasm and unanimity existing amongst the members of the various lodges in the town. Bro. Davies next took upon himself the duty of lecturing the P.G.M. and his Deputy for not visiting the lodges in the province more frequently, which could hardly be considered in good taste, as coming from a Canadian representative. The harmony of the evening was well sustained by several well rendered songs, by Bros. I.P.M. Willings; Lloyd, S.D.; Foster, Norman, Jones, Callow, and others. After a very pleasant evening the brethren separated about half-past 10 o'clock. Great interest will attach to the next meeting, when the I.P.M. (Bro. Willings) will raise his son and Bro. G. Jackson (son of another P.M.) to the Sublime Degree of M.M.

WILLIAM PRESTON CHAPTER (No. 766).
—The companions of this chapter appeared in deep mourning at their meeting on the 30th ult. at the Cannon-street Hotel, Comp. Dr. William Alban Atwood, one of the members, having died suddenly at the Trafalgar Hotel, Ramsgate, on the 7th April, since the last meeting. Notwithstanding the bright array which is always an attendant of a R.A. chapter, a gloom was cast over it by the black crape rosettes on the badges which every companion of the chapter wore. Dr. Atwood was a highly respected companion, and the officers and companions of the chapter felt they could not meet without paying this last sad tribute to his memory. Presided over by Comps. George Newman, Z., Aug. Braun, H., and Fr. W. H. Kempster, J., they directed a letter of the condolence to be written to Dr. Atwood's widow, expressing also the regret with which every companion heard of his death. The companions who were present at the meeting of the chapter were, besides the three Principals above named, Comps. Henry Garrod, Treasurer; William Worrell, P.Z., S.E.; W. E. Newton, S.N.; John J. Gibson, 1st A.S.; J. T. Pilditch, J. T. Hiscox, Jas. J. Joseph, Jas. Sinclair, Thos. Barker, Wm. Jewett Miller, H. J. Reissmann, P. L. Steinmann, J. R. Williams, Henry Francis Partridge, K. Wickwood, J. H. Barnes, Walter W. Young, Jonathan Taylor, Z. 933; S. D. Ewins, 192; H. E. Francis, P.G.D.C. 857; H. T. Thompson, 1185; W. W. Morgan, 141; James Stevens, P.Z. 720, 771; J. M. Klench, Z. 1339; and H. Massey, P.Z. 619 (Freemason). The work of the chapter consisted of the exalting of Bro. Walter W. Young, 1420; and as it was installation night, the election of the officers having been confirmed, Comp. J. T. Garrod, H., installed Comp. Aug. Braun as Z.; Dr. Kempster, H.; J. and T. Gibson, J. Comp. H. Garrod was installed as Treasurer; Comp. W. Worrell, S.E.; Dr. Cutmore, S.N.; J. T. Hiscox, P.S.; J. J. Joseph, 1st A.S.; J. T. Pilditch, and A.S.; and Comp. Grant, Janitor. The companions afterwards closed the chapter, and adjourned to a choice banquet in one of the spacious rooms of the hotel. All the arrangements for a pleasant evening were perfect, and the companions when they had disposed of the repast, honoured the usual list of toasts. The usual loyal and formal toasts having been given, Comp. George Newman proposed "The M.E.Z." In doing so he said that Comp. Braun had been from the commencement of the chapter one of its officers, and he had worked step by step until he had attained the highest position in the chapter. He (Comp. Newman) was very proud of it, and he trusted that Comp. Braun would have a very prosperous year of office. The William Preston Chapter did not wish to be very numerous, and they did not require it; as far as his own experience went he found a small chapter was better than a large one; a small chapter was the most enjoyable chapter; and he trusted that the William Preston Chapter would always be, as it has always been, a very happy and united family. He hoped that nothing would ever occur to destroy the harmony which had existed hitherto in the chapter. It had never yet had one wry word or an angry retort in the chapter; and at the table the companions had been characterised by the same feeling. He hoped it would always be so, and that no companion would ever think it worth his while to sow discussion among them. When anything like discussion once began it was very difficult to see where it would end. In this chapter the companions had but one aim in view, to make themselves in the most extended sense happy by affording happiness to those around them. Long might they continue to be so actuated. Many of the companions had known Comp. Braun for several years. He (Comp. Newman) was one of those. In early days, before he (Comp. Newman) knew Masonry, it was a great pleasure and delight for him to meet Comp. Braun, and from that time to the present they had been, as he hoped they always would be, dear and esteemed friends. The other companions he was sure were of the same way of thinking, especially those of the Earl Spencer Lodge, who were coming into this chapter in force. Comp. Braun, in replying to the toast proposed by Comp. Newman, said he had arrived at the summit of his Masonic ambition. When he entered Masonry he made up his mind to rise to the chair in the blue, and now he had taken the chair in the R.A. He did not know how it was; certainly it was not by merit. He was exalted just four years ago, on the 28th May, 1874. Among old Masons it was considered the greatest honour that could be conferred upon them to be installed as M.E.Z. of a chapter, and he was no exception to the rule. Comp. Newman rose to say a few words with regard to the election of Secretary to the Girls' School, and said that their Comp. W. Worrell was a candidate for the office. He asked the companions to support Comp. Worrell, if they were not already pledged. Comp. Worrell knew what the duties of such an office were, and he would be able to plead the cause of the Girls' School with tact and energy. All the companions knew how essential this was, because they were aware that if Comps. Terry and Binckes were not such earnest advocates as they were, the Institutions they represented would not secure the large amount of subscriptions they received. The M.E.Z. next gave "The Health of the Exalter," Comp. W. W. Young; and Comp. Young, in replying, said he was extremely gratified at being admitted to this degree. He was going to say something about the Earl Spencer Lodge, but Comp. Kempster told him he had better not. Nevertheless, he felt there was something about the Earl Spencer Lodge that had brought forth the officers of the William Preston Chapter, and as he had been admitted to that chapter he should follow in the footsteps of the Earl Spencers. If they were good men and true, and he presumed they had proved themselves to be such by getting into the positions they now held, he hoped he should be a good man and true, and able to work in the chapter in the way the other companions had done. He would like to add that he was much gratified at being admitted into a chapter like this, where he found the working was something surpassingly smooth. Of course he had never seen any chapter working before, but he could judge of the working by the working of the lodge. He was accustomed to good working in the Earl Spencer Lodge, and he had seen working in other lodges. He had, however, found that no working surpassed that of the Earl Spencer Lodge. The working in the William Preston Chapter was beyond what he had expected to find it. It was impressive, as every ceremony in Freemasonry should be. The working very much affected a candidate on his entering into the Order, either in lodge or chapter, and he thought that the companions could not do better than get officers of a chapter to work up and perform the duties as the officers of the William Preston Chapter had performed them that evening. Comp. Jonathan Taylor, Z. 933, replying for the visitors, said there was no chapter he visited with greater pleasure than the William Preston Chapter; the companions of that chapter had always given their visitors such a hearty fraternal reception that it was an inducement for the visitors to come again and again. Comp. James Stevens also replied, but confined his remarks almost exclusively to the subject of the candidature of Comp. Worrell for the Secretaryship of the Girls' School, which he heartily supported. Comp. H. T. Thompson said he would delay his reply to the next occasion when he visited the chapter. Comp. H. E. Francis also replied. Comp. Worrell replied for the P.Z.'s, and in reference to his candidature above adverted to by Comps. Newman and Stevens, said he should continue to be a candidate, and he was happy to say that there was a perfectly friendly feeling between himself and the other candidates. He meant to work very hard; he should do all he could to succeed; and if he did not succeed it should not be his fault. The M.E.Z. gave "The Health of the Installing Principal, Comp. H. Garrod," who in reply said he had had the honour for the fourth year of installing the Principals in this chapter, and he had always performed his duties with a great deal of pleasure—on no occasion more than he had that evening, knowing that the companions installed were so well fitted for the duties that devolved upon them. He felt confident that while the William Preston Chapter elected such companions its success was secured. He wished to make one remark with respect to Comp. Worrell's candidature. Having seen some very flattering testimonials, Comp. Worrell had received from very eminent men, not only Masons but non-Masons—the Marquis of Hertford, Lord Chamberlain, Mr. William Morley, and an eminent Queen's Counsel—he might say that he was spoken of in the highest terms as the Secretary of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum. Comps. Kempster and Gibson replied to the toast of "H. and J." Comp. Hiscox for "The Officers," and the toast given by the Janitor concluded a most enjoyable evening.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks will be held at Windsor on Thursday, the 4th proximo.

The "West London Express," conducted by Miss Emily Faithful, has been enlarged by 4 pages.

A small branch railway from Andernach to Nidermendig has been opened. Rhine tourists will henceforth be able to visit the Laacher See without the discomfort with which the journey thither was hitherto attended.

Mr. R. Belt of Wilton-place, has taken a cast of the features of the late Earl Russell.

KEEPING TIME.—The annual report of the Astronomer Royal was read at the meeting of the Board of Visitors at Greenwich on Saturday. Sir George Airy gave an account of the arrangements for disseminating time signals throughout the country, and stated with regard to the Westminster clock that since it was started on October 11th, after being cleaned, the error on the greater number of days had been under one second, and it had never exceeded three seconds.

The annual installation meeting of the Neptune Lodge, No. 1264, was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, last Monday afternoon, the 3rd ult. A full report of the proceedings will appear in due course.

The formal opening of the new Printing Works of Messrs Hazel, Watson and Viney at Aylesbury, was celebrated on Saturday last by a soiree, given by the firm to their workpeople and to which a number of guests of the town and neighbourhood were invited. Amongst those present were, The Ven. Archdeacon, Lady Emma, and Miss Cust; Rev. F. and Mrs. Young, and Miss Chapman; Rev. A. T. Lloyd, Rev. W. Le Pla and Mrs. Le Pla, Rev. J. Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson, Mr. W. Hazel, sen., Mr. J. E. Viney, Mr. E. Viney, Mr. Dodds, Mr. J. Drew, and Mrs. Drew, Mr. R. Hodder and Mrs. Hodder, Mr. C. Hooper and Mrs. Hooper, Mr. H. Gunn and Miss Eustace, Mr. and Mrs. J. Turner, Mr. R. Gibbs and the Misses Gibbs, Mr. and Mrs. W. Page, Mr. T. Field, sen., Mr. and Mrs. G. T. De Fraine, Mr. and Mrs. Jowett, and others. A very pleasant evening was spent. Messrs Hazel, Watson and Viney were the printers of Kenning's Masonic Cyclopædia, and now print the "Masonic Magazine," and the Masonic Archeological Library.

The name of Bro. Col. Francis Burdett was omitted from our report of the House Committee last week.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

Martineau and Smith's Hardware Trade Circular announce that a handsome iron-work gateway has recently been erected in the churchyard at Hawarden, as a memorial to the late Lord Lyttelton. Over the main portion is a Gothic arch carrying the words, "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving."

A Reuter's telegram, dated Dover, May 31, says:—"The twinship Calais-Douvres, while coming from Calais to Dover to-day with 310 passengers, burst two cylinders of her engines in addition to the one which burst the previous day, and when within a short distance of the Admiralty Pier the steering gear gave way, causing the ship to run into the pier. She stove in two of her bow plates."

On Thursday evening, the 30th, ult., Mr. W. Simpson, F.R.G.S., artist of the Illustrated London News, whose sketches of Dr. Schliemann's excavations in Troad and at Mycenæ, and of Mr. Wood's at Ephesus, have been deservedly admired, read a paper on the subject before the Society of Arts, in its theatre, John-street, Adelphi. A general account was given of the chief objects of interest to be seen on each of the three sites. A discussion followed, in which the chairman (the Rev. Sir George Cox), Mr. Jones, the Hon. R. Cust, and Mr. Wood, the explorer of Ephesus, took part, and Mr. Simpson, having replied, was cordially thanked for his paper.

We are glad to find that needless and mischievous piece of harness, the bearing-rein, is being discarded by the best drivers. Nearly half the teams paraded by the Coaching Club at the recent meeting were free of this merciless instrument, although the Four-in-Hand Club does not evince the same amount of intelligence. It is satisfactory to find that the ascertained facts and general considerations urged in depreciation of the use of the bearing-rein are beginning to be recognised; and, whether on grounds of policy or humanity, a system which has been conclusively shown to be injurious, and to produce an ungainly, exhausting, and unsafe carriage of the head in the horse, is likely to be abandoned.—Lancet.

Tourists in the Austrian Tyrol are likely in future to meet with a considerable increase of courtesy from hotel-keepers and guides, as the Viennese Alpine Society, "Alpenberger," anxious to prevent travellers from being imposed upon, have instituted an annual money-prize to be awarded to the particular Tyroles who, during the year, may have most aided strangers by his or her information, courteousness, and counsel.

A sugar cane disease in Porto Rico, produced by a certain worm, has spread so rapidly, that a Royal Order has been issued for an investigation into its cause and character and the means of prevention. The disease thus far appears to be confined to Porto Rico.—Medical Examiner.

The better lighting of cities is attracting as much attention across the Atlantic as the utilisation of the electric light in Paris. An inhabitant of Pittsburgh now proposes to illuminate the town by means of three light-houses erected upon the surrounding hills, which would emit such a flood of light over the whole neighbourhood that a pin could be seen lying on the pavement in any of the streets in the very darkest night. The Pittsburghers, however, object to their night being so turned into day, fearing that they would lose their ordinary night's rest.

The Daily News understands that it is the intention of Dr. Hooker to retire at the close of the present year from the presidency of the Royal Society.

The Prince of Wales (says the Sheffield Telegraph) has expressed a desire that the Mayor of that town should select a number of Sheffield workmen to proceed to Paris and examine and report upon certain exhibits with which they have technical knowledge. The Mayor (Alderman F. T. Mappin) will accordingly, acting with the Master Cutler, decide upon a number of representative artisans to discharge this duty.

The chief priest of the fire-worshippers at Yezd, in Persia, the principal seat of the sect, died recently, and the priest Hormunga Mori Azmida, who is only twenty-eight years old, was elected his successor. The fire-worshippers enjoy now in Persia perfect liberty of worship.

It has been decided to establish a museum of decorative art in the Pavillon de Flore at the Tuilleries, on the model of South Kensington.

At Paris on Thursday week M. Sardou, the eminent dramatist, was received into the Academy. The Duke of Aosta and the Archdukes of Austria were among the privileged guests. Alexandre Dumas was in the chair.

On Friday week the Tay Bridge was opened in the presence of a distinguished company. A train conveying upwards of 1500 persons passed over the bridge, and when it reached the Dundee side of the Tay the bridge was declared open. Afterwards a company of 600 gentlemen lunched together in Albert Hall, Dundee, when the freedom of Dundee was conferred upon Mr. John Stirling, chairman of the North British Railway Company, and Mr. Thomas Bouch, engineer of the Tay Bridge. The proceedings were characterised by great cordiality and enthusiasm. The bridge is now open for the regular traffic of passengers and goods.

At the last meeting of the Royal Irish Academy, on the 27th ult., Cunningham Gold Medals were presented to Dr. Aquila Smith, for his inquiries into Irish numismatics; to Dr. Casey, for his mathematical discoveries; to Professor E. Dowden, for his literary works, especially in the field of Shakespearian criticism; and to Dr. G. J. Allman, for his researches into the natural history of the hydrozoa.—Academy.

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1878

MEETING OF GRAND LODGE.

The meeting of Grand Lodge was well attended, though not so largely as was expected. Lord Carnarvon presided in his usual effective and dignified manner, though unfortunately he had to leave at an early period. Bro. Fawcett, P.G.M. for Durham, an old and worthy Mason, much respected in his province and out of it, then presided over Grand Lodge, and proved to the brethren that years had not dimmed his Masonic efficiency as a most able ruler of the Craft. The motion of regret for the recent dastardly attempts to assassinate our illustrious brother the Emperor of Germany was unanimously passed, with strong marks of adhesion and approval. There was but one feeling in Grand Lodge at the desperate wickedness of the act, and of its instant and indignant reprobation by all Freemasons, as well as by all patriot citizens. But recent events have proved, (if, alas! it needed proving), that nothing can apparently check the inroads of Communistic madness or repress the outburst of Socialistic violence. It would almost seem as if some classes, and not the most uneducated amongst us were content to relapse, eager to revert, to a positive state of savage barbarism. But we quit the mournful and humiliating topic, expressing our heartfelt sympathy with the august sufferer, and our trust in which all English Masons will share, that in the good Providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., his recovery may be speedy and complete. The latest news is most reassuring, and we will fondly hope that a life so valuable to Germany and the world may be raised up once again. God's great and providential rule controlling alike the destinies of nations, and rebuking the madness and wickedness of men. The business of the Grand Lodge was next proceeded with. The report of the Committee for the consideration of the financial affairs of Grand Lodge was read. As, owing to an informal notice, its main recommendations stand over until September, we will merely add that two of its main recommendations, that the money be paid in under certain names, and that the Bank of England be the place of deposit, were heartily approved. Whether the arrangement as regards the Grand Treasurer's office is the best that can be made, may, we think, be a matter for some little consideration. Grand Lodge having voted £100 to a lodge at Curaçoa, owing to a tornado, the rest of the routine business was proceeded with, and the Boards of General Purposes and Colonial Board, &c., were then elected. Grand Lodge closed about 8.30, much earlier than had been expected.

For the information of our readers we think it well to mention here that the following was the result of the election for members of the Board of General Purposes and the Colonial Board:—

BOARD OF GENERAL PURPOSES.

NOMINATED BY THE M.W.G. MASTER:—John B. Monckton, President; Sir Albert Woods (Garter), Erasmus Wilson, Lieut.-Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, James E. Saunders, Frederick A. Philbrick, Q.C., John A. Rucker, Thos. Fenn, Peter de Lande Long, Joseph Smith.

The following were the W. Masters nominated at the General Committee on the 22nd May, as candidates for election on the Board of General Purposes. (No election, the required number alone being nominated). Bros. Thomas G. Bullen, 1150; Arthur B. Cook, 259; Ralph Gooding, M.D., 1; Robert Turtle Pigott, 11; George Pitt-Lewis, 1584; Henry R. Cooper Smith, 1731; John Knight Stead, 21.

Past Masters elected by Grand Lodge:—Daniel Betts (154 votes), Henry C. Levander (128), Charles Atkins (108), John G. Stevens (101), Henry Bishop (100), Frank Green (98), Charles F. Hogard (97).

COLONIAL BOARD.

NOMINATED BY THE M.W. GRAND MASTER:—Bros. John A. Rucker, President; Hugh D. Sandeman, Joseph Smith.

ELECTED BY GRAND LODGE:—Brackstone Baker, Daniel Betts, James Brett, John Gibson, Robert F. Gould, Griffiths Smith, John G. Stevens.

THE ELECTION FOR THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

This is, as our readers now know, fixed for the 11th July, and we beg all country voters especially to remember the date, as the voting is personal, no proxies being available by the laws of the Institution. It will be seen by a paragraph elsewhere, that an application has already been made to the authorities of the Girls' School to secure at once the great hall of Freemasons' Tavern for the election, in order to meet the convenience of the voters, and also to ensure the perfect fairness of the election. Those of us who were present on Thursday, the 30th ult., at the General Committee of the Girls' School, will have a vivid remembrance of the noise, confusion, and crowding, and the collapse of all voting arrangements. Bro. Webster, who had undertaken the management of the voting papers, and who laboured most energetically and assiduously to carry out his arduous and self-imposed duties, though assisted by all the experience and urbanity of our excellent Bro. Joseph Smith, was utterly unable to cope with the throng of eager and impetuous applicants. He was, in fact, completely overmastered by the unexpected influx of the brethren, and it is not saying too much that without better arrangements for the future, there is no one brother or many brethren but must equally fail to preserve order and superintend a satisfactory delivery of voting papers. In the inevitable confusion there was every possibility of a "duplication" of voting papers, as there was practically no check, nor could there be any, on those who applied for, and those who received their voting papers. Any unscrupulous brother might easily have filled up two papers, and all attempts to render the voting a "secret ballot" utterly failed, some brethren kindly filling up other brethren's voting papers. We hope, therefore, that on the day of election for the Secretaryship the large hall will be secured, as any proposal to limit the brethren to the "Board-room," or the "Zetland," or any other room, can only end in utter confusion and dissatisfaction, and must seriously interfere with the fairness and honesty of the election itself. It is in the interest of all the candidates that we ask to-day for a "fair field and no favour" for all alike. As Freemasons we should avoid anything like the semblance of trickery, and anything like the taint of gaining an advantage. All should be fair and above board, and we are convinced that we shall not appeal in vain to the authorities of the School, in the great interest of Masonic justice and equal rights for all, when we press upon them the necessity of securing at once the great hall, to avoid overcrowding and confusion, and to guarantee the certainty of honest and manly voting.

THE ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

The eightieth Anniversary Festival of this most valuable Institution will take place at the Alexandra Palace on the 8th July, under the exalted patronage and presidency of our Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. We shall all feel, we think, the kindness and consideration of H.R.H. in thus personally testifying to his fraternal interest in the Boys' School, and we feel sure that a long list of Stewards and a numerous gathering will evince our gratification and our gratitude. We refer our readers to a "Communiqué" elsewhere, which gives an interesting account of the attractions and arrangements of the fête. A very large number of Stewards have already sent in their names, and we append the names of the President and several of the Vice-Presidents of the Board of Stewards, which seem to augur well for the success of the gathering. They are—President: Bro. Rt. Hon. Lord Suffield, R.W. Prov. G.M. Norfolk; Vice-Presidents: R.W. Bros. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., Prov. G.M. West Yorkshire, Vice-Patron of the Institution; Major General J. S. Brownrigg, Prov. G.M. Surrey; Lieut.-Colonel Charles Lyne, Prov. G.M. Monmouth, Vice-President of the Institution; W. Bros. J. M. P. Montagu, G.J.D., Vice-Patron of the Institution; George Plucknett, G.J.D.,

We are very glad to hear that non-Masons are not to be present, while we equally approve of the attendance of our fair sisters. Bro. Binckes, far-seeing in his generation, has learnt by experience, what great help can be obtained by us poor "men" from the kindly countenance and active sympathy of "woman," and we have no doubt that his past successes will be even more successful in this year of Light and Grace 1878. Wishing the governing body goodly lists and fine weather, we anticipate with confident expectation that the approaching Festival will be an "Alba Dies" in the memorable annals of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

THE GIRLS' AND THE BOYS' SCHOOLS.

When these lines meet the eyes of our readers the elections for the House Committees and Audit Committees of these two Institutions will be over. We shall have selected those brethren for 1878, to whom we have thought well to confide the immediate and internal government of our two important Schools. It will have struck many of our brethren how much more interest has been manifested this year than is usual in elections, which have often seemed to be a mere matter of form. All of a sudden the Board-room is filled with an eager and excited crowd of voters, and the positions of the old Committeemen and the claims of new aspirants for office, are warmly upheld, or zealously opposed. The reason of all this is not far to seek. The Institutions are becoming very great and remarkable ones in every sense, and it is not unnatural that with an increased constituency there should be a larger number of applicants for office. We think it well then, as such is the case now, and such is still very likely for many reasons to be the case for the future, to call the attention of the authorities of both the Schools to some irregularities, as we deem them, which are allowed, no doubt ignorantly, so to say, to exist, but which if not corrected and removed will in time materially affect the progress and welfare of those two noble Institutions. I. First of all, there seems to be an objectionable system of the House Committee issuing a "list" of themselves, and those they think "proper and fit to be on the Committee." We are aware that in many institutions there is a "house list," and we, therefore, do not make any complaint about a common custom, though it be one, we think, for various reasons, very inadvisable in itself. And we will tell our readers why. The one great evil of all such institutions is, the assertion of quasi-vested interests, the unwillingness to improve, to reform, to progress, the objection to "new blood" on the Committee. It is not advisable, we venture to think, to have the same Committee every year, and it is perfectly natural for the Life Governors to seek to put on new members year by year. If, however, the House Committee make it a "personal question," and form a "clique" or a "caucus," and resist change, any attempt to put on new members, (except by a very strong "whip,") becomes an herculean labour. We need not go far to find an illustration of this fact in one of the recent elections. II. We also object to the practice that nominators of brethren should be scrutineers. The scrutineers should certainly be always selected from those who are not nominators, as, though we know the high character of our brethren who kindly act as scrutineers, yet as long as human nature remains human nature, under similar circumstances it will be impossible to prevent complaints as to favouritism, doubts as to "absolute purity of election." "Cæsar's wife should be above suspicion," remarks a classical friend of ours, and while we agree in the truism, we think that its moral may fairly be applied to all such voting arrangements. III. In the third place we do not think that any brethren connected with the supplies to the Schools should be on any of the Committees. It is certainly not the custom in other like Institutions. They are barred properly from the "House Committee," and they ought to be from the Audit Committee, as it is an act of great absurdity for a "Contractor" to audit his own accounts! If such be the case in either of the Institutions, the sooner it is put a stop to the better. We say all this in a most kindly spirit. We are simply anxious for the present and future welfare of our admirable institutions, and, therefore, what we say we trust will be taken in good part, and in the spirit in which it has been penned. It is the duty of the Freemason to seek in all fraternal good feeling and modesty to endeavour to lead and form our Masonic public opinion, but in this case we venture to say that we reflect the feelings of the great majority of our readers, and of many of the most zealous and cultivated friends of our admirable and useful Institutions.

THE COLLISION IN THE CHANNEL

We shall all be truly sorry to read of and hear of that mournful collision by which a great German ironclad has been sunk, and 300 of its gallant crew lost. We shall all deeply deplore so sad and unaccountable an accident, and the lamentable destruction of so many valuable lives. It does, at first sight, appear a great reflection on human skill and science that such fearful accidents, involving such awful waste of human existence, should take place before our eyes. But let us not too hastily blame or condemn. The very advance of naval architecture, under altered conditions and with new forces, seems to entail upon us also grave drawbacks and novel dangers, and the recent grievous accident will, in all probability, turn out to be, like that of our own "Vanguard," a matter almost beyond human skill to avoid, or earthly power to prevent. In the meantime, our sympathies with the poor friends and relatives of the lost will be widespread and earnest, and we rejoice to hear that a subscription list is about to be opened, under the auspices of the Lord Mayor, for those whom this awful catastrophe has left bereft of their natural protectors and support. We feel sure that alike to Germans and Englishmen, such a veritable calamity will not appeal in vain.

ELECTION OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think it but right, in the face of the forthcoming election of the Girls' School, to show the brethren who intend to vote on that occasion, and were not present at the above election on Thursday week, the mode of procedure on that day, in order that they may be present at next General Committee, and insist upon some better plan being adopted. The meeting commenced by appointing scrutineers, some of whom were actually candidates for the Audit Committee.

The poll having been declared open, voting papers were supplied, carefully arranged, printed with the names of the old Committee in different type to that of the new candidates. This was, no doubt, for the guidance of the voters, who had been previously supplied with a card issued by the Committee.

Those papers were supposed to be handed to voters after they had signed the attendance book, but I challenge those in charge to deny the possibility of unprincipled voters getting a double supply. In the fearful confusion there was in obtaining them—the noise and bustle being so great that the meeting was concluded with the greatest difficulty—the Chairman, who really deserved the sympathy of every one present, declared it impossible to proceed with the business. Now, sir, there were 216 signatures as voting power present, I counted them myself, and this is borne out by your report of Saturday last. 230 were declared to have voted. How comes this? Where did the other fourteen votes come from? And even then some had obtained two papers instead of one, by signing twice, for I saw the signature of one brother twice. In what capacity does he vote twice? Let those who had charge of this matter say if they consider this a legal election. But I go further, and say it was a dishonest election, when one of our brethren, well known, stood at the table where the papers were issued, and with a handful of papers, as though officially placed there, and when he saw brethren who were not up to these sharp practices (many of them never having been at an election before), got their papers from them, telling them it was all right, he would fill them up for them, which he did to his own liking. Many of the brethren, I am sure, will bear me out in this, and are ready to give evidence if needed, as it was a subject of general comment. This, I am informed, was an old "confidence trick," practised last year to serve this same individual's election.

Surely, such things cannot be too widely known throughout the Craft, that those intending to vote on the next occasion may frustrate these practices of packing and nursing Committees, and I think after such a scene we should endeavour to alter the constitutions of these Committees, by making it imperative that a certain number shall retire annually, and shall not be eligible for re-election during the same year.

Apologising for having taken up so much of your valuable space,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
OBSERVER.

AN OLD MASONIC BOOK.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have a book that the 6th chapter of the 1st part of it corresponds with the "mutilated copy in possession of the J.W. 168." Chap. VI.: The state of Masonry from Grand Master Seleucus Nicanor to the death of Herod the Great. (Note: in mine Nicanor not Nicator). The paragraphs quoted by Bro. J.D. 168 from it also correspond; there is at the end of it a collection of Masonic songs, a List of Grand Masters or Patrons of the Free Masons in England from the coming-in of the Anglo-Saxons to the year of our Lord 1767, a List of Provincial Grand Masters deputed by and under the protection of the Grand Master of England, which appeared in the Freemason about two years ago, copied from this book.

Also a copy of the Charter of Incorporation of Free and Accepted Masons, which appeared about the same time in the Freemason. The title of it is "The Constitutions of the Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the History of Masonry from the Creation throughout the known World, with the Charges, Regulations, &c., &c."

Will this be of any use to "Masonic Student?"

In reading Bro. Dr. Dalcho's Masonic Orations (Grand Master of the Sublime Grand Lodge of South Carolina), delivered in the Sub. G. Lodge of S.C., in Charleston, on the 21st of March, A.L. 5807, A.D. 1803, to which is added an appendix containing an historical inquiry into the origin of the difference of Antient and Modern Masons, usually so called, &c., &c.

At p. 78: "In the year 1736, a provincial deputation was made by Lord Loudon, Grand Master of England, for South Carolina."

On looking over the list of lodges, &c., as altered by order of the Grand Lodge of England, April 14th, 1792, the following appointments for South Carolina are recorded, viz.:

- "A.D. 1735, No. 45, Solomon's Lodge, Charleston, S.C., Lord Viscount Montague being Grand Master.
- "1743, No. 75, Prince George's Lodge, Winyard, S.C., Lord Viscount Dudley and Ward being Grand Master.
- "1755, No. 116, Union Lodge, Charleston, S.C., Marquis of Carnarvon being Grand Master.
- "1756, No. 125, A Master's Lodge, Charleston, S.C., Marquis of Carnarvon being Grand Master.
- "1756, No. 126, Port Royal Lodge, S.C., Marquis of Carnarvon being Grand Master.
- "1763, No. 173, St. Mark's Lodge, S.C., Earl Ferrers, Grand Master.

Three years before the existence of that body in London calling themselves Ancient York Masons, the first lodge was established in this State, under the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons."

In Cole's List from 1770, Solomon's Lodge numbered 62, while in the list above in 1792 the number is 45. According to Bro. Dalcho I find in p. 77 that he gives the date of the Earl of Crawford as Grand Master in 1738, which must be a mistake for the Marquis of Carnarvon.

ELECTION OF COMMITTEES, R.M.I. FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Perhaps few operations are more painful than having one's eyes opened against their will. As a Mason of some ten years' experience I am grieved to say I am more frequently conscious of acute pain in this direction in connection with Masonic work than is consistent with our Masonic professions. Unsophisticated Masons do believe in the vital forces of those great principles of honour, right, truth, and justice, which are so elaborately formulated in our Masonic ritual. I wish some of our very active members had those principles more deeply engraven on their hearts—then such an unseemly scandal as the disorderly proceedings at the elections on Thursday, May 30th, would have been avoided. I cannot conceive any body of men who could have paid less respect to our distinguished Chairman, and Bro. Colonel Creaton must be blessed with great forbearance, or he would have dissolved the meeting as incompetent to discharge the duties for which it had met. It reminded me of Dickens' description of the Eatanswill election mob, where sounds and fury were intended to drown every dissentient voice, when a body of Life Governors met to discharge a most important duty to one of our noblest charities. As a consequence, much of the real work, such as hearing the petitions, had to be taken as ready because the noisy partisans of certain candidates would continue to violate all decorum, after repeated appeals for "order" from the Chairman, and to the great annoyance of their fellow Life Governor. I hope I am not uncharitable, but the election appears to me a great farce. On receiving my voting paper I was astonished by the singularity that the names of the three gentlemen appeared over and over again as the nominator of twelve out of the seventeen candidates who went to the poll. The query naturally arose—who are those three indefatigable brethren who champion the reelection en bloc of ten-twelfths of the old Committee, and tail off one of their two to lend a feeble and falsely descending hand to the other two of the aspirants for office. I sought information, and was told by a veteran Mason, that the ten candidates indicated form the House List, and that Messrs. Smith, Jones, and Robinson, are their particular friends, who are only exercising their undoubted right as Life Governors to nominate as many as they please. I am going away, answered if not satisfied, until another veteran, who has overheard my query, jocosely adds that two of the three wholesale nominators are tradesmen to our Girls' School, hence their loyalty to old friends. "Alas, for the rarity of human charity." But what once looked copious disinterested philanthropy now looks, as the Yankees say, very small potatoes.

Now, I do not mean to assert that a Life Governor has no right to become a tradesman to the Institution, or that we should refuse a tradesman to the Institution becoming a donor of such a sum as gives him a vote, nor that such a relationship should disqualify him from voting for the House and Audit Committees, but I do think it a great in pertinence to the great body of supporters of the Charity for any brother, who is the tradesman to the Institution, to nominate ten-twelfths of the candidates for the House Committees, or to offer himself as a scrutineer at the election, and I question very much the propriety of any tradesman to the Institution being on the Audit Committee of the same. The administration of the affairs of our Masonic Charities should be above the suspicion of "a ring."

It appears to me, and several brethren who were so thoroughly shocked by the undignified character of the last election, that much of the touting would be avoided if the list of candidates were posted to the Life Governors before the election, with permission to return them, under cover, to the Chairman, and to him only. The Committee would then be elected by the governing body, instead of by a clique.

I pray you, in fraternal goodness, pardon my errors of judgment where you find them, but give us the valuable aid of your greater experience in advice how to avoid a repetition of the 30th May last.

Yours truly and fraternally,

L.G. AND P. STEWARD R.M.I.G.

LES PHILADELPHES.

We hear a good deal, nowadays, of Les Philadelphes. I have thought it might interest some of your readers, if I put together a few notes on the subject.

At present, Les Philadelphes are a so-called Masonic lodge, but, as has long been known, not purely Masonic, inasmuch as the taint of political and secret society complicity, has undoubtedly affected them. They have been mixed up with revolutionary movements and Communistic upheavals.

Curiously enough, when we come to look into their history, just as the "whirligig of time" always bring "strange conceits," so Les Philadelphes of to-day differ a good deal from the real and original Philadelphes in their aims, through their "modus vivendi" be more or less the same.

"Les Philadelphes" were founded at Besançon, in France, about 1796, and originally was composed of about 60 members, among whom was a General Malet. He, with several other republicans, alarmed at Buonaparte's tendency to Autocracy, gave up their Republicanism, and conceived the idea of Bourbon restoration, on the principle of legal guarantees, and a purely limited monarchy. To Oudet, however, a French officer, and Lieut.-Colonel, and a very able organizer, must be conceded the actual development of "Les Philadelphes." Oudet was a Freemason, and he gave "Les Philadelphes" a quasi-Masonic reception and union. This society spread rapidly among the French army, and at one time no less than 4000 officers of the French army are said to have belonged to it. Pichegru, and Moreau, both were members of it, and both sought to make it subservient to the restoration of the Bourbons. Pichegru, who wished to restore the Count de Provence after Louis XVIII, without conditions, and Moreau, who desired to do so, with, as in fact, a sine qua non, were greatly mixed up with it. Moreau at one time, was its actual head. So skillfully had Oudet, however, organized the society that neither Fouché nor Savary, nor Dubois could fully master its ramifications. At one time it also affiliated to itself, "Les Freres Bleus," the "Miquelets" in the Pyrenean Department, the "Barbets," in the Alps, and the "Bandaliers" in the Jura and Savoy.

To this society, though Oudet, gravely suspected, escaped discovery, is owing alike to the military insurrection of 1800, and the unjustifiable attempt to assassinate Napoleon, December 24th, the same year in which Carbon, St. Rejant, and Limolin were mainly and ostensibly concerned, and for which they were executed, and which led to the equally illegal arrest and deportation to Cayenne of 130 of the old Jacobins.

As it is known, Les Philadelphes in 1804 took the name of "Les Olympiens." Oudet, the original organizer, was killed, with several of the society, his brother officers, at the battle of Wagram, it is averred by Nodier and others, by treachery, by command of Savary, and by the military police. But this seems very doubtful.

The extraordinary attempt to seize Paris in 1812, during the absence of the Emperor, was carried out by Malet, Lahorie, and Guidal, and Les Olympiens, or Philadelphes.

After the restoration of Louis XVIII Les Olympiens seem to have resumed the name of "Les Philadelphes," and to have been mixed up with all the efforts of the secret societies, such as the reformed Carbonari and the like. They never have been anything but a secret political society, and can in no way claim the name of Freemasons, for true Freemasonry utterly detests and disavows all secret plots and conspiracies against the State, and has nothing whatever to do with those baneful secret associations, which have not hesitated to encourage plunder, and preach assassination, which have fomented civil wars and have disturbed the peace and good order of society, and which deserve the reprobation of every patriot and Freemason.

MASONIC STUDENT.

Reviews.

OURS. A Holiday Quarterly Magazine. Charing Cross Publishing Company.

This is a new candidate for public favour, which, under the skillful editorship of Miss Annie Thomas (Mrs. Pender Cudlip) comes before us with a "very strong order" indeed. It can hardly fail to be a success, as the writers have all "made their mark" in our current literature, and the list of contents is both varied and pleasant. We should like to give some extracts, but unfortunately our laws of space as are the "Laws of the Medes and Persians." Perhaps a "kind friend in the City" may find room for a further review of a most meritorious serial in the Masonic Magazine for July.

IS THE BOOK WRONG? By HELY SMITH. Bemrose and Sons, 10, Paternoster Buildings.

This pamphlet is one among many little "splintering of spears," which the loyal soldiers of reverent belief have essayed often against the "free lances" of scepticism and belief. Of course the argument in favour of the truth and right of God's word is both manifold and many-sided, and never ending. As successive attacks are made they are resisted, as changes of position take place they are met, as new lines of formation are taken up, they also are opposed by new fortifications. From the days of Celsus, of Julian the Apostate, through the baneful subtleties of Spinoza and the polished sarcasms of Shaftesbury and Bolingbroke, the sneers of Gibbon, the unbelief of Hume, the savage attacks of the older and the later Deists, until we come to the rationalism of Strauss and the German School, and the cribbed and second-hand nonentities of Essays and Reviews, until we reach the Spinozist Colenso's repetition of obsolete assaults, faithful men have laboured in many lands and many tongues to uphold the simple verity of the word of God. Hence we welcome all friendly allies in the contest, though their mode of defence be not always ours, and though we may all have different notions of what constitutes the best and safest method of repelling the insidious or acrimonious assailing of to-day. We agree with the writer of the little pamphlet before us, that the attack on the Bible is often most disingenuous, most unscientific, and most dishonest—that there is a "suppressio veri," as well as a "suggestio falsi," in many so-called learned lectures, and above all in the "oppositions of science," falsely so called. As Freemasons, reverently believing in and accepting the word of God, we have read "Is the Book Wrong?" with profit and pleasure.

KENNING'S CYCLOPÆDIA. 198, Fleet-street.

The Cyclopædia is the most comprehensive form that information can be arranged in, and gives to the purchaser the most knowledge for the least money. We have no doubt the present work will be welcomed by a large circle of readers. Indeed it had nearly one thousand subscribers prior to publication, including some thirty or more lodges. The work is issued by Bro. George Kenning in very handsome style, bound in blue cloth, with characteristic gilt stamping. It will prove ornamental and useful to any Freemason, and be handy to have about the house or lodge. We wish it the success which it merits, and will be sure to obtain. We will indicate some of its leading features. It is unusually accurate in its facts and information, is abreast with the latest discoveries of Masonic archaeologists and writers. It is conservative, not radical in tone. It has no rubbish in its pages. It espouses no Masonic heresies, but boldly exposes them. Bro. Woodford has given to the Masonic world a book of positive merit, which will, we cannot doubt, find a ready sale in all English speaking countries.—Philadelphia Keystone.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPÆDIA and Handbook of Masonic Archaeology, History, and Biography. Edited by the Rev. A. F. A. WOODFORD, M.A. 198, Fleet-street. 1878.

The institution of Freemasonry has never been more popular in this country than it is at the present moment, and the number of neophytes necessarily leads to a demand for books which afford a ready means to attain a general knowledge of its archaeology and history. Fully recognising the existence of important works, such as those of Mackey, Schlatter, and Zille, and Kloss, Mr. Kenning saw that a smaller compendious Masonic Cyclopædia of Masonry, as projected by the Rev. Mr. Woodford, might find a class of readers in those who were unwilling or unable to obtain the larger and more costly books, and the result is the present publication. Mr. Woodford is a well known and esteemed member of the Craft, highly cultured and with large stores of information, and he has made his book interesting not alone to Freemasons. Our own opinion has long been, with him, "that we have in speculative Masonry the sequence of the guild system, which seems to have had a Roman origin in the 'Collegia Fabrorum,' and to have been grafted on to Greek, Egyptian, and Hebrew teaching. We cannot shut out from our consideration the enormous amount of confirmatory or indirect evidences, and the ceaseless witness of the Masons' Marks.—Builder

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPÆDIA.

Vade-mecum d'Archéologie, d'Histoire et de Biographie Maçonnique, par le Rév. A. F. A. Woodford, docteur es-lettres. 1 vol. grand in-8° de 666 pages. (Langue anglaise.)

Un de nos amis, savant modeste et Maçon zélé, causant récemment avec nous, se plaignait amèrement de ce que, selon lui la Maçonnerie n'avait jusqu'à cette heure donné le jour à aucune œuvre importante à aucun écrivain de grand mérite. Nous ne protestâmes que faiblement contre cette objurgation, sachant que l'objection même en était la source et que, semblable à ces amants passionnés qui ne peuvent souffrir la moindre imperfection dans leur idole, notre interlocuteur rêvait pour notre Ordre des Tacite et des Homère.

Aujourd'hui, si nous reprenions ce sujet nous appellerions son attention, comme nous le faisons pour vous cher lecteur, sur une œuvre magistrale, qui fait grand honneur et à l'Institution qui l'a inspirée et aux FF. Kenning et Woodford qui l'ont menée à bonne fin.

L'Encyclopédie Maçonnique de Kenning, que nous avons en ce moment sous nos yeux, forme un beau volume richement relié en toile gaufrée représentant nos principaux attributs Maçonniques, gracieusement relacés et au milieu desquels se détachent en or les portraits des trois Grands-Maitres actuels de la Francmaçonnerie des Iles britanniques.

Nous avons souvent constaté que pour découvrir d'une façon nette et sûre la pensée vraie d'un auteur et le but poursuivi, il fallait s'en rapporter à la préface. Nous avons donc lu la préface du F. Woodford et nous n'avons pas été déçu.

Ce que les FF. Kenning et Woodford ont eu en vue, en rédigeant et publiant cette encyclopédie, a été de réunir en un volume tout ce qui, sous le rapport historique, archéologique et biographique, peut intéresser la Maçonnerie. Et ce n'est pas un piètre labeur qu'exige une telle entreprise. Aussi, comme le dit le F. Woodford lui-même, oser espérer que toutes les erreurs ou les omissions ont été évitées serait trop demander à la faiblesse humaine. Et cependant nous nous plaisons à le reconnaître hautement, elles sont bien rares les omissions que nous avons pu constater, et nous ne doutons pas que, dès la première des nombreuses éditions auxquelles nous semble appelée cette œuvre, ces légères imperfections disparaîtront.

Tel qu'il est, cet ouvrage, qui contient près de 5000 articles, nous semble appelé à orner et à enrichir la bibliothèque de tous les Maçons intelligents et désireux d'approfondir les bruits de notre Institution. Comme livre à consulter chaque Loge devrait en garnir sa bibliothèque.

Le prix de ce beau volume magnifiquement relié ad hoc est de 10 shillings 6 pence (13 francs) seulement, ce qui le met à la portée de toutes les bourses.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

We are pleased to publish the following for the information of our London readers and our country cousins:—

The 80th anniversary will be celebrated on Monday, July 8th, at the Alexandra Palace, by a Festival and Garden Fete. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G., P.G.W., has graciously consented to take the chair.

In order to do honour to the present auspicious event, Bros. Bertram and Roberts have consented to place at the disposal of the Stewards the Concert Room, the Italian Garden, the Conservatory, the Picture Gallery. The whole of this magnificent accommodation (at the western side of the building) will be reserved exclusively for those attending the Festival. The company will assemble in the Picture Gallery, the access to which is immediately adjoining the staircase leading from the Palace Railway Station.

The banquet will be served in the Concert Room, in which 1000 persons can be seated with ease and comfort. The Italian Garden will be opened for recreation. Tea and coffee will be served in the Conservatory. The Garden and Conservatory will be brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns and coloured lamps. Vocal and instrumental music will be given throughout the evening.

Ladies and Brethren will dine together at the same tables.

This day, 8th July, will be the Thirteenth Anniversary of the new building, and it is hoped, that with the fortunate combination of circumstances under which the Festival will be held, Stewards will be more than ordinarily zealous in securing a large attendance of ladies and brethren. Every information as to detailed arrangements will be furnished to Stewards as soon as determined.

The price of ladies' tickets will be 15s.; that of brethren, 21s. Morning dress; ladies with bonnets.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—These celebrated Pills are essentially useful in purifying the blood, cleansing the stomach, gently stimulating the kidneys, and acting as mild aperients. A few doses of this purifying medicine set the fouled stomach right, remove all bilious symptoms, steady the circulation, give strength to the muscles and composure to the brain and nerves. The Pills are so innocuous that they may be taken by persons in the most delicate state of health, and with marvellous effect. When the system has been enervated by over indulgence, or exhausted by mercurial preparations, these Pills are excellent restoratives, they expel the poison and enrich the blood.—[Advt.]

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

TESTIMONIAL TO DR. STRONG.

On Friday week, on the occasion of the visit of the House Committee to the Institution at Croydon, advantage was taken of the opportunity to present to Bro. Dr. H. J. Strong the testimonial voted to him by the Committee for his care and attention to the aged inmates of the Asylum at Croydon, as Honorary Surgeon of the Institution for the last seventeen years.

There were present on the occasion Col. Creaton, Vice Patron and Trustee, Chairman; Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D.; S. Rawson, Past Dist. G.M. for China; J. A. Farnfield, Dr. Strong, Mrs. Strong, James Terry (Secretary), Mrs. Terry, Bro. George Foster, Mr. Hunt, Mrs. Hunt, Dr. James Adams, H. Massey (Freemason), and Bro. Norris, Warden of the Asylum.

The testimonial consisted of a handsome silver salver, engraved as follows:—"Presented, together with a service of plate, of the value of one hundred guineas, by the Committee of Management, on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons, to Henry John Strong, Esq., M.D., Past Provincial Grand Warden Surrey, in recognition of the great attention and valuable services rendered by him to the residents of the Institution at Croydon during a period of seventeen years as the Honorary Surgeon. 31st May, 1878."

Along with this salver were half a dozen silver gilt Queen Anne spoons, a silver coffeepot, hot milk jug, teapot, cream ewer, four salts and spoons, dining forks, dessert forks (18 of each), two silver tazzis, four knife rests, and four dish covers. Prior to the presentation the brethren and ladies partook of a nice little family dinner prepared by Miss Norris, the Matron at the Institution, and after the dinner had been partaken of, the Chairman, Col. Creaton, who had Bro. Terry as Vice-Chairman, first proposed the toast of "The Institution," and called on Bro. Terry (with whom he coupled the name of Mrs. Terry) to respond.

Bro. Terry, in replying, said the Institution had done an incalculable amount of good, and that good had been seen by most of those present. He hoped and trusted that as it had arrived at its present proud position of being the first of the three Institutions, as far as regards the amount of its subscriptions, so he hoped it might go on and hold its own in the hearts and affections of the brethren of the Fraternity. It had now 280 annuitants, and the amount paid to them was £10,300 a year. When Dr. Strong first became Honorary Surgeon of the Institution its income was something like £2000 or £3000 per annum, and last year it totalled up a sum of over £16,000; so that it would be seen that in that time the Institution had made wonderful progress.

The Chairman then said—I have now to propose the health of an officer of the Institution who has done good suit and service to it for a great many years, and I am very happy to say that those services have not been forgotten by the Committee of Management, but that they fully appreciate those services, and only on the last occasion of their meeting voted a sum of one hundred guineas to present Dr. Strong with a testimonial. This feeble tribute of acknowledgment of his services I know is small, but I am quite sure he will understand it, and take it for granted that it is meant in the kindest possible spirit. The Committee, as I have said, appreciate very highly all that he has done and is continuing to do; and I go further—the inmates of this Institution are equally alive to the kindness and attention he pays them both by night and by day. I will not detain you longer. I am quite sure Dr. Strong will understand what I mean, and we, the Committee, mean, everything kind and good towards him. I will ask him to accept from me in the name of the Committee this present of plate. On the salver is the inscription. (Col. Creaton read it.) I hope and trust, Dr. Strong, that you and your good wife may live a great many years to look upon this small testimonial which we present you with to-day, and when it pleases T.G.A.O.T.U. to call you to Him I hope and trust this will be handed down to your children, and that they will emulate you and walk in the same footsteps as their father.

Bro. Dr. Strong, in reply, said—There are episodes in a man's life when speech-making becomes a necessity, and there are episodes in a man's life when it becomes almost an impossibility. I dare say to most of you who are here present, some opportunity has occurred of making a speech at some time or other—some, perhaps, as young men, when returning thanks for the ladies, perhaps when they have been married, or some other period of their lives; but I do not know any period more embarrassing, perhaps, than an occasion of this kind, when one has to return thanks for a kind offering, and to express oneself in terms of proper thanks to the chairman for that which he has so nicely expressed. It is true that I have been connected with this Institution for over seventeen years, and I trust it may be a very long time before the connection which exists between this Institution and myself may become severed. I trust also it may please T.G.A.O.T.U., who rules over us all, that the connection which exists between you, sir, as Chairman of the Institution, and those whom I see around me, who are mostly connected with the governing body of the Institution, may still go on in that career of usefulness and good which you have hitherto pursued. I can assure you that it is a labour of love with me to do anything which I have done for the good of the inmates of this Asylum. I must say that if I have a hobby and a pet subject, it is the interest and welfare of this Institution, and anything which I can do to further its interests, either in the building or abroad, I think those who know me will say I never have allowed an opportunity to pass without trying to do the best I can. I do feel that whatever claims the other Institutions may possess (and there is no doubt they have very great claims), to solace those who are aged, and who are here through affliction, and from causes over which they have no control, is the duty, and the primary duty of all Freemasons. That being my idea, I have endeavoured to carry it out. Of course, sir, time, which is always on the wing, and is always working great changes, has worked great changes in this Institution; and when we consider what Bro. Terry has told us, that the member of our annuitants has vastly increased, that where we have hitherto been spending £3000 or £4000 a year we are now spending £10,000, it shows the necessity for increased exertion. I am not going to detain you long, but this handsome present which you have kindly given to me this evening will be an incentive to me to go on in the future as I have done in the past. I think it shows the kind way in which this has been brought about, and the amount of thought which has been given to the matter, that it should have been presented to me here in the sphere of my labours, and surrounded on my right and left by those to whom I have been able to administer. I take it not only as a very great compliment, but as a very great honour, that I should have been selected for this very handsome and magnificent present, and I have to thank you, sir, and Bro. Raynham Stewart, who I believe was the proposer of the testimonial, that he should have done me the honour to propose it at the Committee of Management. I trust that the same Committee of Management who have manifested so great an interest in this Institution, and who have done so much for it—who have not only maintained its prestige, but have increased its benefits to those who are here—may long continue to go on in that career of usefulness which they have begun. There is another thing, sir, which has given me a great deal of pleasure this evening. Not only by your testimonial have you shewn me that you appreciate any little humble efforts that I have been able to make for the benefit of the inmates of this Asylum, but I am sure you will not think me egotistical—you will excuse me for saying it, it is one of the most pleasing incidents of my life—that it was in January, 1877, that the inmates of this Institution presented me with this handsome watch (producing it), which I now have the pleasure and honour of wearing; and not only with the watch, but with a handsome locket which my wife now wears, and with a miscellaneous cabinet. That tells me that not only have my efforts been gratifying to you, but also to those who are the objects of any little good I can do under the will of our Divine Master. As I am not going to inflict on you a long speech, I have only to thank you, and if you think I have not done so sufficiently you must attribute it rather to a want of eloquence on my part, and remember that there are times when the gift of language is denied us and our tongues are dumb.

Bro. Raynham Stewart proposed "The Health of the Chairman," and said that whenever Col. Creaton had an opportunity of imparting pleasure to the inmates of the Institution, or of doing anything which would advance its interests, he always had the greatest happiness and pleasure in taking advantage of it.

The Chairman in acknowledging the compliment said that it was always a pleasure to him to do anything for the Institution, but it was especially a pleasure on this occasion, when he had to present to Dr. Strong a testimonial in recognition of his services. He was afraid he had discharged his task very imperfectly, but he was glad that what had been done had given satisfaction both to Dr. and Mrs. Strong.

Bro. Terry informed the companions that the following day would be the anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Strong's wedding day, and called on the ladies and brethren to wish them many happy returns of that day.

This having been done, Dr. Strong said that during the time he had been married he had been blessed with a very good partner, a thorough good working partner, who had assisted him very materially on many occasions.

The Chairman gave "The Health of the Visitors," and called on Mr. Hunt to respond.

Mr. Hunt, in reply, said he was sorry he was not able to address the gentlemen as brethren, for he was sure if he had he should have been frequently the guest at many such agreeable meetings as this. He was present through the kind consideration of Dr. Strong, who had given him and Mrs. Hunt the opportunity of witnessing a very gratifying ceremony, the presentation of a testimonial to Dr. Strong. As a resident in Croydon he could testify to Dr. Strong's usefulness as a public man, and better than that, he was a good man, and the Croydon public looked to him as one of the rising generation—as a man who was likely to do them a great deal of good in Croydon.

The Chairman then proposed "The Health of Bro. Norris, the Warden of the Asylum," and said he hoped they would all have the pleasure of seeing him there many years. They appreciated all that he did, admired him very much, and were glad to come down there to see him.

Bro. Norris thanked the Chairman and brethren most cordially for the consideration they had kindly shown to him and his co-residents, whom he had the honour now to represent. He wished it to be thoroughly understood that the presentation of to-day was a presentation as from themselves. On a former occasion he and his co-residents did that which as far as their limited means went they were able to do, and they were now highly delighted to think that the Committee had come forward and supplemented that gift.

The toast of "Dr. Adams" (Dr. Strong's professional partner), for which Dr. Adams responded; "The Press," to which Bro. Massey replied; and "The Ladies," for whom Bro. G. Forster responded, were afterwards given; and after the proceedings were thus brought to a close the party were entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Strong at their residence.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. Henry Browne. The brethren who attended were very numerous, and among them were Bros. James Lewis Thomas, Benj. Head, Raynham W. Stewart, Joshua Nunn, George Row, W. F. C. Moutrie, S. Rosenthal, Thos. Cubitt, J. W. M. Dosell, George Kenning, W. Worrell, H. T. Thompson, Rev. Dr. Morris, D. M. Dewar, F. Walters, Thos. J. Sabine, Capt. N. J. Phillips, Alfred Durrant, Hyde Pullen, W. Roebuck, Geo. J. Palmer, F. H. Ebsworth, F. M. Haigh, T. J. Sabine, Geo. Newman, R. B. Webster, Joyce Murray, Herbert Dicketts, W. Paas, J. G. Chancellor, H. Vern, H. Cox, H. Jardine, F. B. Davagr, Peter de Lande Long, Col. James E. Peters, J. R. Gover, H. A. Dubois, D. W. Pearce, W. H. Main, Dr. Hogg, A. J. Ireton, A. D. Loewenstark, stark, Bros. Dudley Roll, Aug. Braun, S. B. Wilson, and H. Massey (Freemason).

The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bros. R. B. Webster, Thomas Cubitt, H. Jardine, H. Cox, and Willing were appointed scrutineers of votes at the election of members of the House Committee, which was then proceeded with.

The brethren then considered the petitions of candidates for election to the Institution. Of these there were five, all of whose petitions were passed, and the candidates placed on the list for October.

On the recommendation of the House Committee the salary of Mrs. Walkden, the assistant matron at the School, was increased from £40 to £50 a year.

Bro. Binckes (Secretary) said he had to report that Bro. Plucknett (Treasurer) had received from Mr. Turquand, representing the late firm of Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., the sum of £738 0s. 3d., being the amount of nine shillings in the pound agreed to be paid by the Hants and North Wilts Banking Company to the creditors of Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., on taking over the business of the firm. That amount had been paid into the London and Westminster Bank, Bloomsbury branch, to the account of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. There was yet the amount of £75 4s. 4d. to the credit of the Sustentation Fund with Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., but it had been declined to deal with that at present, the reason being that Bro. Samuel Tomkins was a Trustee of that fund, and it was believed that the amount would be paid in full out of Bro. Tomkins' private estate.

Bro. Binckes then reported that he had received a communication from the Secretary of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 298, held at Anne-street, Rochdale, transmitting to him a copy of a resolution of the lodge, congratulating the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys on the success which the boys had met with at the late Cambridge local middle-class examination.

Applications having been made by four ex-pupils of the Institution who had obtained situations for the usual outfit of £5 each, these applications were granted.

On the motion of Bro. H. A. Dubois, seconded by Bro. Benj. Head, £100 was ordered to be transferred from the General Account of the Institution to the Sustentation Account.

Bro. Benj. Head reported the presentation to Mrs. Monckton of her portrait. From an amateur performance in which she took part £100 had been presented to each of the Schools, and it was decided afterwards that a testimonial should be presented to Mrs. Monckton in whatever form she preferred. That lady preferred that it should take the form of a portrait of herself, and each of the two Institutions then resolved to spend a sum not exceeding £10 from their funds for the purpose. The portrait had been painted, and Mrs. Monckton, on its presentation to her by Col. Creaton, Bro. Peter de L. Long, and himself (Bro. Head), was much pleased with it. The whole cost of the work was £17 17s., of which the Girls' School had already handed to him £8 18s. 6d., leaving £8 18s. 6d. for the Boys' School to hand over.

The Chairman said all the brethren were very much indebted to Bro. Head for the trouble he had taken in the matter, and he begged to move a vote of thanks to him.

Bro. Hyde Pullen seconded the motion, which was then put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Head acknowledged the compliment, and said it had given him great pleasure to present the testimonial. She was a young lady he had known ever since she was a little girl, and her parents and grand parents before her.

Bro. Dr. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D., said he wished to ask the Committee to take into their kind consideration the providing of a workshop for the use of the boys, and by that means to cultivate a knowledge of the mechanical arts among them. He thought it would be found useful on days when the weather would not allow the boys to engage in outdoor exercises. There was a quantity of scientific apparatus in the Institution which could not be used for want of room; and he believed if the Institution were to take steps like this the brethren would be very happy to add to the present stock of scientific apparatus placed at the disposal of the boys, and that they would soon get a collection of mechanical appliances, a knowledge of the use of which would be of very great service to the boys in their after life. The cultivation of the use of their fingers he held to be of very great importance, and he was sure the Committee would agree with him in that opinion.

After a slight discussion it was resolved that the suggestion should be laid before the House Committee to consider, and report upon to the next Quarterly Court. Dr. Hogg to give the Committee his ideas more in full.

At the declaration of the poll the following brethren were declared duly elected on the House Committee:—

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

FINANCE AND AUDIT COMMITTEE.

The following brethren, nominated on 4th May, 1878, being the number required, became this day duly elected without ballot:—Bros. John Boyd, J. W. Dosell, E. B. Grabham, Benjamin Head, W. Mann, D. W. Pearse, Jesse Turner, Alex. Wallace, and R. B. Webster.

Votes of thanks were then passed to the Scrutineers of votes, and to Bro. Henry Browne for presiding, and the brethren thereupon separated.

THE ELECTION FOR THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

(Communique from a Correspondent.)

We understand that in consequence of the confusion and crowding which took place on Wednesday, the 30th ult., in the Board Room, an application has been made on behalf of Bro. Hedges' Committee to the authorities of the Girls' School, to obtain the great hall of the Freemasons' Tavern for the day of the election, in order that all may be properly arranged. Such a suggestion seems a very sensible one, and one which will commend itself to the parties concerned.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE.

Bro. William Kelly, F.R. Hist. Soc., Provincial Grand Mark Master, presided at the annual communication of Mark Master Masons of this province, at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 23rd ult. The Provincial Grand Lodge assembled under the auspices of the Fowke Lodge, No. 19, and the veteran Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Kelly, was warmly received and well supported.

The Mark Lodges were fully represented, and the reports from the Worshipful Masters descriptive of a prosperous year, with a marked increase in members.

Bro. Robert Waite was unanimously elected Treasurer, and a cordial vote of thanks tendered for past services.

The Provincial Grand Master appointed the following brethren as the Grand Officers, and invested those present:

S. S. Partridge	Prov. G.M.
J. T. Thorp	Prov. G.S.W.
William Sculthorpe	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. William Langley, M.A.	Prov. G. Chaplain
C. A. J. McBride	Prov. G.M.O.
R. A. Barber	Prov. G.S.O.
Dr. Henry Meadows	Prov. G.J.O.
R. Waite	Prov. G. Treas.
Clement E. Stretton	Prov. G.R.M.
J. M. McAllister	Prov. G. Sec.
R. Taylor	Prov. G.S.D.
Thomas Worthington	Prov. G.J.D.
A. H. Burgess	Prov. G.D.C.
Dr. R. B. Smith	Prov. G.A.D.C.
William Vial	Prov. G.I.W.
Dr. J. Hunt	Prov. G. Sword B.
William M. Randall	Prov. G. St. B.
T. A. Wykes	Prov. G. Org.
Samuel Knight	Prov. G.I.G.
T. R. Pickering, J. Simpkin, and Edward Newton, jun.	Prov. G.S.

At the conclusion of the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the interesting ceremony of installing Bro. R. A. Barber in the chair of the Fowke Lodge was ably performed by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Kelly, who is ever ready to use his best exertions in promoting the welfare of the province over which he has presided since it was constituted in 1858. Bro. Kelly is now the senior Prov. Grand Mark Master in England, and that he may long be spared to direct the business is the desire of every brother.

Bro. R. A. Barber, newly installed W.M., invested with the collar and jewel of their offices Bros. Wm. Sculthorpe, I.P.M.; T. A. Wykes, S.W.; G. W. Statham, J.W.; J. Young, M.O.; R. Taylor, S.O.; J. Farndale, J.O.; G. Odell, Treas.; T. Worthington, Sec.; J. O. Mc. Donald, R.M.; J. O. Law, S.D.; Dr. Thomas Macaulay, J.D.; S. Knight, D.C.; W. T. Rowlett, Org.; W. H. Chamberlin, I.G.; S. S. Partridge, P.M.; and T. R. Pickering, Stewards.

There were also present: Bros. Rev. C. H. Wood, J. H. Biggs, J. Nugent, J. C. Duncombe, J. H. Hale, J. E. Beazley, E. H. Butler, A. G. Chamberlin, Henry Eagle, Dr. Clifton, W. L. Ball, George Toller, jun.; and the Grand Lodge of England was represented by the Mayor, Bro. Clement Stretton, Past Grand Steward and Bro. William Barfoot, Grand Steward. Bros. John Harrison and Joseph Read were advanced to the degree of Mark Master, and Bro. Barber, W.M., ably presided at the banquet which followed.

Macmillan's Magazine for June contains an article "Freemasonry: its History and Aims," by Edward F. Willoughby.

SOUTHAMPTON MASONIC HALL.

The Masonic Hall here having long been felt both insufficient to accommodate the Southampton Masons, and unworthy the influence represented by that body, the site for a new lodge has been secured in a commanding and yet retired position, a few yards out of the High-street, and within a direct stone's throw of the Guildhall, close to the County Court and the Jews' Synagogue. Overlooking and washed at its base by the beautiful western bay at the head of the Southampton Water, it forms part of the site of the original Castle of Southampton, and includes a relic of its original walls, perchance forming part of the donjon, which a few years since, when the property came into the market, on the action of a few archaeologists, were purchased and handed over to the town to be preserved as a relic of the old fortifications. It is intended to build here a lodge, with a banqueting room of the same size on the ground floor, having half as much capacity again as the present lodge room, with all necessary offices, and a smaller room for chapters and the like gatherings where the numbers are fewer. A limited liability company has been formed, with a capital of £4000, in £1 shares, about one-half of which has already been subscribed by the lodges and their members without appeal. A shadow of a hope was at one time entertained that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales might be induced to lay the foundation stone in due Masonic form on his visit to this town during the summer to lay the stone of the new church of Bro. the Rev. Basil Wilberforce (Royal Gloucester Lodge), but as that would seem to involve the presence of Grand Lodge, and if both were attempted on the same day might possibly militate somewhat against the full success of both schemes, it seems to be understood that the M.W. the Grand Master will not be pressed in the matter, though if he should have no objection to undertake both ceremonies none will be more heartily glad than the Masons, not simply of Southampton, but of the province whereof from time immemorial that town has formed no unimportant part.

INAUGURATION OF THE DE LACY PRECEPTORY.

By command of Sir Knight Clement Robert Nuttall Beswicke-Royds, Grand Commander of Knights Templars in the County Palatine of Lancaster, the P.G. Officers and other Sir Knights were summoned to meet at the Cambridge Hall, Southport, on Saturday afternoon, the 18th ultimo, to assist in the inauguration of the De Lacy Preceptory and the installation of the Eminent Commander and his officers. Besides the E.G.C. of the division, there were also present Sir Knights Augustus Adam Bagshawe, P.E.C.; P.P.G. Almoner Somerset, Jerusalem, 5, Manchester; John Rains, M.D., Past E.C. St. Joseph, Manchester; Josh. Wood (Freemason), Treas. William de la More, Bootle; Geo. Campbell, Reg., and W. Byrom, C. of L., Faith, Wigan; C. M. Jones, P. Sub-Marshal P.E.C. Albert; Richd. Cancliff, P.C. of L., P.E.C. St. Michael; John Sutton, Faith and De Lacy, Wigan; H. L. Hollingsworth, Danl. Buckley, Abraham Clegg, and Josh. Clayton, St. George's; J. H. T. Cottier, De Lacy and Faith; J. H. Jenkins, P.G. and Capt., P.E.C. Jerusalem; Walker Newton, Loyal Volunteers; J. W. Lean, St. Joseph; J. L. Goodwin, Jerusalem; T. Baker Ashworth, Albert, E.P.; L. H. Coddington, and T. S. Cory, De Lacy; John Cragg, Loyal Volunteers; J. Holroyd, P.P.G.A.; John Chadwick, P.P.G.R.; Thos. Grimes; Wm. Bagnall; J. Truesdale; G. P. Brockbank, P.G. Capt.; Wm. D. Walker, E.C., and J. W. Kenyon, Edward Plantagenet, Bury; Robt. Caldwell, P.E.C., and John Gallagher, E.C., Loyal Volunteers, Ashton-under-Lyne; H. S. Alpess, E.P. Alpess, Liverpool; J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.P., and W. Vines, William de la More, Bootle; Y. W. Lean, St. Joseph, Manchester; J. Harrison, M.A., St. George, Oldham; R. W. Waterson, 2nd Capt. Plains of Mamre, Burnley; Benj. Taylor, St. Joseph, Manchester; Josh. Luch, Loyal Volunteers, Ashton-under-Lyne; S. S. Sadgrove, Hugh de Payens, Blackburn; John Barrett, De Lacy, Southport; Willm. Davis, P.E.C. Albert, Rochdale; John Bollard, C. of L. Plains of Mamre, Burnley; Hy. Thomas, E.C. St. George; Benson Baker, Faith and De Lacy; J. Compton Lees, St. George; James A. Birch, P.G. Treas.; E. Hartley, P.P.G.B.; Peter Royle, M.D., P.E.C. of Jerusalem, Sword Bearer of Lancashire, and Standard Bearer of England; C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, Gd. Comdr., C.P. Lancaster; R. Landless, Banner Bearer Plains of Mamre; Geo. Rockliffe, Equerry, James Lawton, De Lacy; S. H. Smith, 1st Capt. Lancashire P.E.C. Royal Volunteers, and S. A. Oliver, Faith, Wigan; T. S. Ainsworth, Hugh de Payens, Blackburn; J. E. Jackson, Alpess, Liverpool; Jno. Woosley, W. Wainman Cottam, and E. Barber, Prince of Peace, Preston; Geo. Turner, William de la More, Bootle; Wm. Taylor, Faith and De Lacy; and Thos. Berry, P.E.C. Jacques de Molay, Liverpool.

Shortly before three o'clock the E. Grand Commander commenced to open and inaugurate the De Lacy Preceptory, the warrant having been transferred from Burnley to Southport. After this warrant had been read and other preliminary business, Sir Knights H. S. Alpess and J. W. J. Fowler presented Sir Knight L. R. Rowbottom, the E.P. elect, to the E. Grand Commander to receive the benefit of installation. After having been duly placed on the throne, he appointed the following as his officers: Sir Knights J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.C.; G. Benson Baker, Prelate; J. H. T. Cottier, Constable; J. Sutton, Marshal; T. S. Cory, Registrar; W. Dodd, Treasurer; W. Taylor, Sub-Marshal; Dodd, Captain of the Guard; J. Barrett, Almoner; and G. Rockliffe, Equerry.

The E. Preceptor then vacated the throne in favour of the Em. Prov. Grand Commander, who commenced the installation of those candidates who had been approved and balloted for. The work was done in a very impressive manner. At the conclusion, the E.P.G.C. and Prov. G. Officers retired under the Arch of Steel. After other formal business, the V. Em. G. Commander, with a large gathering, re-entered under the Arch of Steel, and were saluted in the usual manner.

The Prov. G. Priory was then opened and the muster roll called over, when it was found all preceptories in the province were represented, except two, who were fined ten shillings and sixpence each. All the Provincial Officers were present except two, and as they had not sent any letters of apology they were each fined twenty-one shillings.

The minutes of the last Grand Priory, held at Manchester, and also of the Grand Priory of Emergency, held at Bury, were read and confirmed unanimously.

After the fees had been received and the Treasurer's accounts audited and passed, Sir Knight J. A. Birch was re-elected Treasurer for the ensuing year; Sir Knight W. Davies was also elected Equerry for the same period.

The E. Grand Commander appointed the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Sir Knights J. F. Tweedall, Sub-Prior; Rev. J. B. Phillips, Prelate; W. Ashworth, Chancellor; G. P. Brockbank, Constable; L. R. Rowbottom, Marshal; H. W. Thomas, Registrar; John Worsley, Vice-Chancellor; Jas. Hall, Sub-Marshal; J. E. Jackson, Standard Bearer; R. Landless, Warden of Regalia; H. L. Hollingsworth, Almoner; J. A. Oliver, 2nd Standard Bearer; Peter Royle, M.D., Banner Bearer; R. Cunliffe, 1st A.D.C.; A. B. Bennett, 2nd A.D.C.; J. E. Hall, Capt. of Guards; W. O. Walker, Sword Bearer; J. L. Goodwin, Organist; Jos. Leech, 1st Pursuivant; W. W. Cottam, 2nd Pursuivant; and Wm. Davies, Equerry.

The election of a General Purposes Committee was next carried out, and the alms received. After the transaction of divers other important business concerning the province, the Priory was closed in solemn form, and the E.G.C. and Provincial Officers retired with the usual honours.

The Sir Knights afterwards adjourned to the Queen's Hotel, where about 50 sat down to a most sumptuous banquet, presided over by the E.G.C. The dessert was especially of very high order, English grapes having a place on the table. The attendance was all that could be desired, and the tables were beautifully set out. Amongst the usual Masonic toasts the E.G.C. proposed one "To the Memory of our late Bro. Em. Sir Knt. Col. Birchall," which was received and honoured in solemn silence.

Sir Knight Alpess proposed "The E.G.C.," and enlarged upon the qualities of his father, the late G.S.

The proceedings closed at a very early hour on account of many having to travel by train from Southport.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

The half-yearly meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at the Assembly Rooms, Three Swans Hotel, Market Harborough, the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, Prov. Grand Master, in the chair. A very good attendance of brethren was present, amongst others being Bros. G. Toller, jun., Past G.S.B. of England; Rev. W. Langley, P.P.S.G.W.; S. S. Partridge, P.P.S.G.W.; T. Macaulay, P.P.J.G.D.; Dr. Grant, W.M. of the Harborough Lodge; J. H. Douglass, Rev. J. Halford, Beaumont Smith, P.G.S.W.; Rev. F. H. Richardson, Prov. G. Chaplain; Dr. Hunt, of Thurnby, W.M. of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1560; S. Cleaver, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies, and very many of the local lodges, and from the Leicester and Melton lodges.

The Grand Lodge was opened at three o'clock, and the routine business transacted included the reading and adoption of a lengthened report presented by the Charity Committee.

A vote of thanks for his services as Steward of the Masonic Girls' School Festival was unanimously given to Bro. Partridge, and a sum of money to a brother, who, from losses and illness, was recommended by the Charity Committee.

A fuller report will appear in our next.

The Metropolitan Fire Brigade.—On Saturday last, the 1st inst., the new head-quarters of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, in Southwark Bridge-road, were formally opened by Sir J. M'Garel Hogg, M.P., Chairman of the Board of Works. The building was formerly known as Winchester House, and it forms the largest fire-brigade station in the world. The freehold has cost £38,000, and the establishment £32,000; but the Metropolitan Board of Works will be recouped to the extent of nearly £20,000. There are spacious engine stations, stables, smithy, several fine outbuildings, a court-yard, and apartments for Capt. Shaw in the front portion of the old Winchester House. Wailing-street Station will not be closed; and it was stated by Mr. Edwards, Chairman of the Fire Brigade Committee of the Metropolitan Board of Works, that the City will be more protected than ever by the new arrangements. Both Bro. Sir J. M'Garel Hogg and Mr. Edwards alluded in high terms to the energy and ability of Capt. Shaw. At present in the new station are 28 married men, and 26 single men. The building, which is by Bros. Hook and Oldrey, of Westbourne Park, does those brethren great credit.

Pope's Villa at Twickenham was offered by auction on Tuesday, and was bought in at £14,000.

As an instance of the value of City property the Evening Standard understands that the old freehold house, No. 35, Bucklesbury, with an area of 2208 feet, has been sold by Messrs. Phillip D. Tuckett and Co. for £21,250.

The following reports stand over:—Lodges 78, 166, 304, 1219, 1502, 1609, 1744; Instruction 1288; Chapter 249.

GRAND MASONIC CONCERT.

On Friday, 30th ult., the brethren and their friends in Leicester had a great musical treat in a grand pianoforte and harmonium recital which was given in the Masonic Hall of the town by Bro. T. H. Scott, a local organist, whose admission to the Craft we recorded a short time since. Bro. Scott is the Organist of St. John's Lodge 279, and the concert was given under the auspices of the lodge as a compliment to him, and a mark of the high appreciation of his valuable services. He is also the organist of Emanuel Church, Victoria-road, Leicester, where Bro. S. Cleaver, S.W. 279, is the conductor of the choir. The concert was in every sense a very great success, and though Bro. Scott was throughout entirely unassisted, the interest in the performance, and the thorough enjoyment of the audience was most manifest. Bro. Scott is truly an enthusiast in his profession, and an artist of most rare ability and taste. The applause was both frequent and hearty, and the encomiums passed upon the performer at the close were most enthusiastic. We congratulate Bro. Scott upon the unequalled success, and we heartily congratulate Lodge 279 upon such an excellent addition to their list of members.

Liverpool is at present all alive with excitement over the coming Whit-week Bazaar, Gala and Fancy Fair, in one of the people's parks, in aid of the funds of the Stanley Hospital, an institution which occupies a proud position amongst the numerous hospitals in "the good old town." The Earl and Countess of Derby will open the Bazaar on Monday. For wealth and variety of attractions this Fête has probably never been equalled in Liverpool, and, with fine weather, it is sure to be a brilliant success. Many well-known Masonic Brethren are the chief workers in the charitable effort, amongst whom may be named, Bros. Dr. Sheldon, Dr. Smith, Dr. Cochine, J. Jones (P.M. 216), Bessley, P. Armstrong, Houlding (W.M. 823), A. C. Wylie, R. Bennett, &c. Some splendid gifts have been made to the Bazaar.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Patron, Vice Patrons, Vice Presidents, and Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

My Lords, Ladies, and Brethren,

I desire to tender my sincere thanks to the numerous brethren who have so kindly assisted me in my canvass for the personal support that will necessarily be required at the forthcoming election of a Secretary to the above Institution.

The qualifications below enumerated, will enable those desirous of assisting to form some idea as to my fitness for the appointment so recently held by our lamented brother R. W. Little.

Firstly.—I am 37 years of age, and have occupied the position of Accountant to the Thames Steam-Tug and Lighterage Company (Limited) for the past 13 years, during which period I have acquired large and varied experience, together with a personal knowledge of many of the leading men in our commercial houses.

Secondly.—Holding, as I at present do, the office of Preceptor in two Lodges of Instruction, as well as a position both in Chapter and Lodge, will, I trust, be considered some evidence of my zeal and interest in the cause of Freemasonry.

Thirdly.—The duties I formerly carried out for 9 years, as Honorary Secretary to the St. Cecilia Choral Society, will, no doubt, be also a recommendation with many brethren, and Lastly.—The training I received at Highbury College, under the Rev. C. R. Alford, the late Bishop of Victoria, and the important fact of a close association with many workers in the scholastic world, must be advantageous when the special nature of the vacant appointment is considered.

May I, therefore, beg of those Life Governors, whose votes and interest are yet unpledged, to give me their personal support at the election. A communication to this effect will be thankfully received.

I am,

My Lords, Ladies, and Brethren,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

THOS. CULL, S.D. 1446,

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life-Governors.

Having intimated my intention of presenting myself as a Candidate for the Secretaryship of this Institution, I now beg to thank the large numbers of brethren who have promised me their support, and to solicit the vote and interest of those who are still unpledged. Again promising that, if elected, my whole energy and ability shall be exerted for the further extension of the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

THE OCARINA.

THE NEW MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

CAN BE LEARNT IN HALF-AN-HOUR.

CAUTION.

Mr. Barr finds it necessary to caution the public against worthless imitations of the "Original Prize Medal Chromatic Ocarina," for which he is the sole Agent—these imitations being utterly useless as musical instruments.

OCARINA.

Is played at Drury-lane Theatre, Crystal and Alexandra Palaces, &c., &c., and has enchanted the frequenters of the Westminster and Brighton Aquariums.

OCARINA.

Can be seen and heard daily at M. Barr's Music Repository, 80, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

OCARINA.

Can be learned in half-an-hour, and forms a charming accompaniment to the Pianoforte or other instrument.

OCARINA.

The Press have been unanimous in praise of this marvellous instrument. For a few of these opinions see below:—

OCARINA.

"Mr. M. Barr, of Queen Victoria-street, has brought out a new instrument called 'Ocarina.'"—Figaro.

OCARINA.

"The tone bears a striking resemblance to the vox humana stop of a large organ."—Musical Times.

OCARINA.

"It is wonderfully sympathetic and voice-like in tone—a great boon to those desirous of cultivating the divine art."—Literary World.

OCARINA.

"Being easily learned, inexpensive, and pleasing in tone, it is likely to be in very general requisition."—City Press.

OCARINA.

"Nothing like it, either in shape, sound, material, or construction, has hitherto been seen. It is astonishing to hear such soft, sweet sounds issuing from so eccentric-looking an instrument."—Brief.

OCARINA.

"The latest thing is the 'Ocarina,' an article emitting such sweet sounds as are seldom heard."—South London Press.

OCARINA.

"Musical amateurs will be interested in hearing of a new instrument, called the 'Ocarina,' unequalled for the beauty and voice-like quality of its tone."—Greenock Telegraph.

OCARINA.

"A most remarkable and entirely novel musical instrument. In duets, and quartets also, the instrument produces excellent music. It is a small compact instrument, and its cost is trifling compared with its musical value."—Weekly Times.

THIS Original MUSICAL INSTRUMENT

is Unequalled for the Beauty and Voice-like Quality of its Tone, and the ease with which it can be acquired—a very little practice enabling the performer to play operatic or other melodies. It has a complete chromatic scale, from the lower B to the upper E, and is thus not confined to any particular key, but can be used with other instruments, notably the pianoforte, to which it forms a charming accompaniment.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF FAITH (No. 141).—An emergency meeting of this old lodge was convened on Tuesday, the 28th ult., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. The lodge was duly and formally opened at 6 p.m., when there were present amongst others: Bros. E. Mallett, W.M.; C. Dairy, S.W.; Themans, P.M., acting J.W.; W. Stuart, P.M., Sec.; M. Davis, I.P.M.; T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex; Clark, D.C.; Longstaffe, Tyler. The ceremony of raising Bro. Jannion to the degree of a M.M. was most ably performed by the W.M. Some minor business having been subsequently disposed of, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren separated until the last Tuesday in September next.

LODGE OF AMITY (No. 171).—This old lodge met on Tuesday week at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, the W.M., Bro. W. H. Batty, in the chair. There were also present Bro. Joseph William Clever, S.W.; Bro. W. K. Bateman, J.W.; Bro. C. Harcourt, Treasurer; Bro. Joseph Clever, Secretary; Bro. Edward Phillips, S.D.; Bro. W. H. Mardon, J.D.; Bro. H. J. Leslie, I.G.; Bro. Stevens, Bro. F. C. W. Fenn, Bro. J. Ashton, Bro. W. Buck, Bro. F. G. Dawson, Bro. Gooding, Bro. Straith, Bro. Dodd, Bro. Petrie, and Bro. Midence. There were also several visitors present among whom were Bro. J. Tickle, P.M. and Bro. E. G. Legge, W.M. of the Urban 1196; Bro. W. P. Wilson, Hertford, 403; Bro. Whitmarsh, Gihon 49; Bro. A. Peebles, De Grey and Ripon, 905; Bro. L. Soleaque, W.M. Albion 2; Bro. Gaston Murray, No. 66 and Bro. Massey (Freemason). The formal business of confirming the minutes of the previous meeting having been transacted, Bro. Macnee was raised to the Third Degree, and Bro. Ashton passed to the degree of F.C. both of which ceremonies he performed with his customary ease and precision, Bro. Batty then left the chair, which was assumed by Bro. Clever, P.M., the Secretary of the lodge, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect. The event was rendered more than usually interesting from the fact that the W.M. elect was the son of the Installing Master, and no doubt to this fact was due the more than usually impressive nature of the ceremony. Bro. Joseph William Clever, the W.M. elect, was then presented by Bro. Batty, and duly inducted, after which he was presented to a Board of Installed Masters, and himself installed into the chair of K.S. and duly proclaimed and saluted. It is needless to say that the ceremony was ably performed; all who know Bro. Clever well know that it could not be otherwise. The newly elected W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. H. Bateman, S.W.; Edward Phillips, J.W.; Harcourt, Treas.; Clever, Sec.; Mardon, S.D.; Gooding, J.D.; Dawson, I.G.; Leslie, Organist; Smith, Tyler. The ballot was then taken for Bro. S. P. Smith, and being declared unanimous in favour of his admission he was installed into the mysteries of the First Degree by the newly installed W.M. whose working of the ceremony showed that he is following ably in the steps of his worthy father. The next business was the presentation of a P.M. jewel to Bro. J. H. Batty, who acknowledged the compliment in a few appropriate words; and the alteration of the date of the August meeting, concluded the business on the paper. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren afterwards adjourned to a banquet, served in a style in keeping with the reputation which the Ship Tavern enjoys for such matters. On the removal of the cloth, the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and warmly received by the brethren present. The toast was responded to by Bro. Willsar from the Prov. G. Lodge of Herts, who in the course of his remarks referred to the deep interest taken in Masonry by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the Earl of Carnarvon and the rest of the Grand Officers. Bro. Batty, P.M., said brethren you may naturally suppose what toast I am going to propose when you see me with this gavel in my hand. It is the toast of the evening, and I am sure I am not saying more than the toast deserves. Our newly installed W.M. deserves all the honours you can give him. I am glad to observe that your W.M. has adopted brevity of style in speaking, not only because it is the soul of wit, but because it is highly convenient. My remarks will therefore also be few. I am proud to be, as Immediate P.M., entitled to propose our new Master's health, a privilege I suppose I shall be entitled to throughout his year of office. It gives me the greatest pleasure because I know that you have now a brother in the chair who will do honour to the Amity Lodge. He has been doing his best to make himself perfect in his work, so as to thoroughly qualify himself for the duties of his high office, and I think that there can be not the least doubt in the world that in his hands the work of the lodge will be done to your entire satisfaction, and that as a ruler in the Craft he will be found accessible and courteous in listening to the brethren, and steady and firm in principle in carrying out the constitutions of the Order. Brethren I give you "The Health of the W.M." and may he have a very prosperous year of office. Bro. J. W. Clever, W.M.: I hardly know what to say, brethren, in reply to the speech, made in such flattering terms by the I.P.M. During the time that I have been in office in this lodge, I have done my best to fill the various offices I have held to the best of my ability. You have done me the honour to elect me to this chair, and I promise you that I will do my best in it. If I fail you must put it down, not to want of will, but to want of ability. During my Masonic career, I have done my best to qualify myself for this office; and should it be my happy lot to have as prosperous a year of office as my predecessor, I trust that I shall be able to perform the ceremonies to your satisfaction and my own. I must however be in a great measure dependent on my officers in this matter, and I hope I shall gain all the support I want, and if I get that I doubt not for the success of my year of office. Brethren, I thank you very much for the hearty manner in which my health has been drunk. "The Health of the Initiate," Bro. S. P. Smith, was next proposed by the W.M., and cordially received by the brethren; and Bro. Smith returned thanks. Many other toasts were honoured, among which were "The Visitors," "The Past Masters," "The Treasurer and Secretary," and "The Officers of the Lodge." In proposing "The Health of the Installing Master" Bro. Joseph Clever, the W.M. said the next toast is that of "The Installing Master." It is impossible for me to tell you what he has done for me—my obligations as a son are too great—but as regards Freemasonry I may say that four years ago, my father was placed in the same position as that I hold to night, and I occupied the position our Bro. Smith, the Initiate, holds. I hardly know which occasion I have felt to be the prouder of the two. I had for three or four years been abroad, but as I was then paying a visit to England opportunity was taken to initiate me. In the following month I was passed to the Second Degree, and then went away, and was subsequently raised by him in another lodge. Brethren, I cannot enter into, so as to express my feelings, now that the opportunity has occurred for my father to instal me into this chair: he is now both father and brother. I cannot say anything more, but call upon you to drink "The Health of the Installing Master." Bro. J. Clever, W.M., and brethren, I assure you I hardly know how to return thanks for the honour you have done me in drinking my health in so cordial a manner. I have in the first place to thank you for the honour you have done me in appointing my son W.M. My feelings carry me back to the time when I was made a Mason. I then resolved that if the Great Architect of the Universe would spare my life that I would train my sons in Freemasonry. Our W.M. is the only one that He has spared to me, and I have had the double privilege of beginning and completing the work of making him a Mason. I had the pleasure of initiating him, I had the pleasure of passing him, and in another lodge I had the pleasure of raising him, since that I have had the further pleasure of introducing him into Royal Arch Masonry, and now I have had the added pleasure of installing him into the chair of K.S. Words cannot adequately convey my feelings on the present occasion, I can only assure you that he is determined to carry out the thorough spirit of Freemasonry in the Amity Lodge, and to discharge his duties to the utmost of his ability; and I feel satisfied that at the end of his year of office he will have given you satisfaction. I am sure he will endeavour to carry out the spirit of Freemasonry in its entirety, to extend brotherly love to all, so as to show that there is something more in Freemasonry than the outside world thinks there is. It is my desire and his desire, that in every action of life the principle of Masonry shall be his rule and guide, and at the end of life may he be called to that Grand Lodge above where the world's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever. The pleasure of the evening was greatly enhanced by the vocal music provided on the occasion. The lodge has the immense advantage of numbering among its members many brethren possessing more than usual musical taste and ability; and some really good music was the result of their combined forces. Much credit is due to Bro. Leslie, the newly appointed Organist of the lodge, in his arrangements in this branch of the evening's entertainments, the whole of the musical department having been placed under his direction. It is needless to add that the meeting was a most successful one.

HERVEY LODGE (No. 1260).—The June meeting of this lodge was held on the 12th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John H. Southwood, W.M., presided, and was supported by his officers, Bros. E. J. Goodacre, S.W.; J. T. Spalding, J.W.; Jabez Hogg, P.M., Treas;

Charles Atkins, P.M., Sec.; E. S. Foot, J.D.; Orlando L. Latreille, I.G.; H. J. Dean, Org.; and C. T. Speight, T., and the following visitors: F. Chitney, 1551; E. B. Grabham, P.M. 19; S. T. Lucas, 192; W. H. Rosenthal, 1673; J. Terry, P.M. 228, &c. &c., Prov. G.D.C. Herts.; Charles Horsley, P.M., of numerous lodges, and P. Prov. G. Reg. Middlesex; Fred H. Tate, 1563; F. R. W. Hedges, 1194; and H. Massey, (Freemason). Bro. Daniel Fildew was elected a re-joining member of the lodge; Bros. Sang and North were raised; and Mr. Shadrach Albert John, a gentleman of colour, a merchant of Lagos, on the West Coast of Africa, was initiated. The ceremonies were accompanied by an organ performance by Bro. H. J. Dean, Organist of the lodge. The W.M. gave notice of a motion to the effect that half the fees for initiation and joining should be taken from the general fund and paid over to the Benevolent Fund in order to make the latter a success. The brethren afterwards closed the lodge, and adjourned to Freemasons' Tavern, to banquet; after which they honoured the list of toasts. The W.M. in giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," drew the attention of the brethren to the facts that they had round the table representatives of numerous nationalities—English, Irish, Scotch, American, and African; by all of whom Her Majesty was loved; and he looked upon the Queen as the best loved woman in the world. Dr. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D., in reply to the toast of the G.M., the Pro G.M. &c. said that the Earl of Carnarvon by his kind and courteous manner gave great encouragement to young Masons and to all those who in the transaction of Masonic business came in contact with him. From a long experience of his Lordship he found him well skilled in the conduct of business and the experience of other brethren who attended Grand Lodge must have directed their opinion in the same direction. Referring to the other Grand Officers he would only have to mention the name of that brother whose name the lodge bore to produce a proof of the way in which the Grand Officers discharged their duties. Bro. Charles Atkins, in place of Bro. Hogg, who had to leave in consequence of a professional appointment, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who was at present in a very indifferent state. The W.M., however, showed his desire to do all he could for the Hervey Lodge by attending to his duties when he really ought to have been in bed. The W.M. having replied, proposed "The Health of the Initiate." It had been his pleasing duty to initiate several gentlemen during his year of office, and without making any comparisons he could say with all honesty and sincerity there were none he had initiated with greater pleasure to himself, with greater satisfaction, looking into the ulterior objects of Freemasonry, than Bro. John. Bro. John had come all the way from Africa, with two objects, the pursuit of his own business of a merchant, and Freemasonry. He happened to be a friend of Bro. Dr. King, who was initiated in the Egyptian Lodge two and a half years ago, and whose recollection of English Masonry was sufficiently favourable to advise Bro. John, who was anxious to become a Mason, to take his degrees in England. Bro. King, coming recommended by Bro. Atkins, was sufficient assurance that he was a good and genuine man. He (the W.M.) had had the satisfaction of entertaining at his house Bro. John, and he had found him possessed of those qualities which would enable him to be introduced fearlessly to the brethren as a gentleman of whom they might be proud. Bro. John had been looking with very curious eyes upon their proceedings, and it was to be hoped he had incepted on his first lesson in Freemasonry one of a Mason's cardinal virtues—a virtue which he (the W.M.) would only like to see in large practice—the virtue of charity. If Bro. King only used and practised it in a more extended form than some of the old ones did at home he would be a better reflex of the superb principle which the Order was intended to formulate.—Bro. John, in reply, said he could not for the moment express how satisfied he felt to be among the brethren, and how proud he felt to occupy this position. It was simply corroborative of the fact that Englishmen respected all persons of honest principle without any distinction of race or colour. He need hardly say that he felt quite elated, and to say the least he felt himself in a strange land, in a strange world, so to speak. He had made up his mind to become a Mason years ago, and it had been his pride that if ever he became a Mason at all he would be initiated in a very respectable lodge, and, under God, he was glad to say that his ambition had been realised. He felt very thankful to the brethren, and he really hoped that he should on his return to Africa be one more ray in the focus of light to the African race. His visits in England had been very short. Advantage he had had none at all of learning anything of England, but what he could gather from English newspapers and novels; but it had been his pride to associate with good people, and he was happy to say, that since his arrival here the friends he had met, and the friends those friends had introduced him to, had been true friends to the backbone and in every sense of the word. He thanked the brethren very much for the honour they had been pleased to confer upon him, and he hoped he should carry it onward and onward, and to good effect, on the West Coast of Africa. Before resuming his seat he would say, "Three Cheers for the Hervey Lodge," God spare the lives of the brethren, and might they live in charity with one another. He hoped to return to his country and to fill the chair, not by favour, but by merit. In him the brethren saw the true specimen of the negro race, and exactly the good that England had done for Africa. However, he would not say more, as he was afraid he would be occupying too much time. What he might have omitted the brethren would please supply. It was quite natural that a stranger should be timid among such a worthy assembly. Under the circumstances he would resume his seat, and he hoped ere long he might meet the brethren again. Bros. Chitney and Dr. Rosenthal responded to the toast of "The Visitors." Bro.

Charles Atkins replied for "Treasurer and Secretary." The W.M., in giving "Success to the Masonic Institutions," spoke of these institutions as a pearl that glittered more resplendent in the crown of Masonry than all the other blazing stars and stones that irradiated the brows of a Mason. Referring to the Benevolent Institution, its success since Bro. Terry had become its Secretary was most remarkable. Bro. Terry was a man of untiring energy, of very great intelligence, and a brother who was not to be beaten by any competition, however big, however loud of tongue, and however well equipped with fact and argument. He not only possessed the very happy knack of talking business, but of talking it in such a pleasant way that he found a response at the bottom of brethren's pockets before they had any knowledge of it. And he did it in such a genial, unassuming, undictatorial manner, that the brethren gave to this Institution without any feeling afterwards that they had been driven into it, that they had not even been coached into it. He placed his facts and figure in such elegant array before the brethren, that they felt that this institution was a good and worthy object to which they would subscribe their sovereigns. The W.M. then referred to the Girl's School, represented on this occasion by Bro. Hedges. It was a fact, which should commend the name of Bro. Hedges to the brethren, that while he had been in a comparatively subordinate position in the office of the institution, during the last two years, while the Secretary was ill, Bro. Hedges had been quietly plodding along, doing all the work, and gaining for himself a high reputation among the workers in the Craft. Although the depression of trade was entirely unprecedented within the history of living men, Bro. Hedges, by working day and night, had brought the late festival of the Institution to a successful issue. Bro. Hedges was now a candidate for the vacant Secretaryship, and the suffrages of the life-governors. Bro. Hedges was mainly instrumental in getting Clara Kingcombe, the Hervey Lodge candidate, into the School; and it was now in the power of the members who had votes to do him a good turn. If the brethren had in their counting-houses or warehouses a good, true, faithful man, who advanced their interests by staying after the other clerks had gone, he asked whether they would not put that man down in their memorandum books for the first vacancy? He asked them to apply the same rule in this case. Bro. Hedges replying, after thanking the W.M. and the brethren, said that if he should be successful, nothing would be wanting on his part to justify the confidence which might be reposed in him. Bro. Terry said that the Masonic Institutions occupied a very prominent position in the history of the charities of England—prominent because they had a very limited circle to which to appeal, and from that limited circle they derived greater results than any other three Institutions. Last year the Benevolent Institution, the youngest of the three, obtained at its festival £13,300; the Girls' School obtained £9000; and the Boys' School £12,800. When the year 1877 closed it was found that the three Institutions had collected amongst them over £44,000. He would contrast that with eight years ago, when the result was £20,000. When the Prince of Wales joined the Craft and took the chair at the festival of the Institution an impetus was given. In 1872 the Benevolent Institution festival brought in £3200. In 1873, when the Prince of Wales presided, £6800 was the result, and from that time until now the Benevolent Institution had gone on increasing, until last year it had the proud satisfaction of finding itself at the head of the three Masonic Institutions. Of course, this could not have been done if it had not been for the support of the Craft, nor could the success of the other Institutions have been brought about but for the same influence. He trusted that the motion of which the W.M. had given notice that evening would be beneficial to the Institutions. He was sure he had only to bring before the lodge the claims of the Institutions to enlist the brethren's cordial co-operation and sympathy and he hoped that Bro. John would carry to the west coast of Africa, a report of these Institutions, and that he would tell the Masons out there that if they were Masons under the English Constitution, or widows who were the widows of Masons under that Constitution, or the children the children of such Masons, the benefits of the Institutions would be tendered to them. If Bro. John would call on him in the morning he would give him plenty of pamphlets and papers to take back with him. From them he would see that the Masonic Institutions were three of the most magnificent Institutions that could be called charities. "The Masonic Press" was then proposed, and "The Officers" and "Tyler's Toast" concluded a most agreeable evening.

SIR HUGH MYDDELTON LODGE (No. 1602).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 24th ult., at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. The W.M., Bro. Edward G. Sim, presided, and the other brethren present were Bros. T. J. Coombs, S.W., and W.M. elect; A. F. Rowley, P.M. 917; J. W. J. Osborn, Sec.; J. Weston, S.D.; W. Norris, J.D.; W. F. Poulton, I.G.; R. G. Thomas, O. H. Field, D.C.; J. H. Oppenheim, W.S.; E. Somers, P.M.; J. Greenfield, W. H. Lund, J. G. Rimeh, R. Allison, E. J. Percy, J. Farlong, G. Tarrant, W. Francis, J. Francis, J. Gibbs. E. Abrams, T. Henri, J. Brewer, W. Dawson, C. Parslow, S. Rowley, T. Franklin, R. J. Towne. Visitors: Bros. W. H. Parker, S.D. 946; J. Kew, W.M. 179; E. J. Clauch, W.M. 462; R. Percy, J.W. 228; B. Skilton, P.M. 311; W. B. Kidder, P.M. 12; T. G. Reason, 1260; J. Gibson, P.M. 1420; F. J. Carter, 1687; J. Bateman, P.M. 820; C. J. G. Wood, 1288; T. Weaver, P.M. 820; J. G. Clare, 1507; W. Rowley, 917; W. Wiles, P.M. 173; G. Edwards, 907; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Free-mason); and others. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes the W.M. initiated Mr. George Henri, ("Mohawk Minstrels") and Mr. James Brewer. This ceremony having been completed, a handsome "Secretary's jewel," together with a testimonial in illuminated writing on vellum, executed by Bro. Oppenheim, and framed and glazed, was presented by the W.M. to Bro. John Osborn, Secretary. Both were subscribed for by the members of the lodge. The inscription on the vellum was as follows:—"This Testimonial, together with a gold jewel, is presented to Bro. John Osborn by the members of the Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge, and the lodge of instruction attached thereto, as a token of the esteem and regard in which he is held by the brethren, in acknowledgment of his indefatigable services in the formation of the lodge, and in recognition of the ability with which he has discharged the duties of Secretary. Edward G. Sim, W.M., May, 1878." Bro. Osborn having thanked the brethren for the presentation, and assured them of the great interest he took in the welfare of the lodge, Bro. Edward G. Sim proceeded to instal as W.M. for the ensuing year Bro. Thomas J. Coombs, who was unanimously elected at the former meeting. The new W.M.'s banner, this being a banner lodge, was then placed behind the W.M. chair. This banner, as well as the banner of Bro. Sim, were also the work of Bro. Oppenheim. After the W.M. had been saluted by the Board of Installed Masters, the brethren below the rank of Installed Master were admitted, and after the customary salutes the following appointments were made:—Bros. A. Rowley, P.M., S.W.; Weston, J.W.; Norris, S.D.; Payne, Treasurer; Osborn, Secretary; Poulton, J.D.; Field, I.G.; Rymill, W.S.; Paislow, Assistant W.S.; Thomas, Organist; Oppenheim, D.C.; and W. Steedman, P.M., Tyler. Bro. Sim then delivered the charges, after which the W.M. presented Bro. Sim with a massive gold P.M.'s jewel. Bro. Sim in a very few words thanked the lodge for the gift, and the balance sheet of the lodge was received and ordered to be entered on the minutes. This balance sheet showed a balance in hands of the Treasurer on general account £12 5s. 11d., the total receipts being £200 10s. 9d. The Benevolent Fund showed a balance of £10 5s. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a delightful banquet, provided, in his best style, by Bro. Grist, of Hackney. The customary toasts succeeded the banquet, and Bro. Sim in proposing the toast of "The W.M." said he knew he was only expressing the feelings of the brethren when he said he was very much pleased at seeing Bro. Coombs in the chair of W.M. He hoped that Bro. Coombs would enjoy perfect health, that he might perform the duties of his office satisfactorily, and that at the termination of his year of office he might have the approbation of the brethren and their assurance that he had done his duty. The W.M. replied, and after thanking the brethren for the heartiness with which they had received the toast, said he hoped the brethren would assist him to the utmost of their power in the performance of his duties. He would do his best to discharge them faithfully and zealously. If they discovered any shortcomings he hoped they would forgive them. Whatever he did they must take in the best form, for he would do his best for the benefit of the lodge. As one of the founders of the lodge he had hitherto done his best. The lodge had hitherto been carried on successfully under the able guidance of the P.M.'s, and he trusted he should leave the chair with as much credit as his predecessors had. He was glad to see such a goodly company present, and that there had been such a successful meeting. The W.M. next proposed "The Initiates," and in welcoming them into the Craft congratulated them on joining a lodge which would take rank with any in London. Bro. Brewer replied, and the W.M. next proposed "The Visitors," of whom there were nineteen present. Bro. W. Browne Kidder responded. He had had the honour of being invited by Bro. Rowley, and having heard the lodge frequently spoken of in the highest terms was happy to accept the invitation. The name of the lodge was sufficient to carry it forward, but the working was an extra assurance, for he had never heard better work before. The way in which the P.M. performed his duties, its solemnity and seriousness, was still impressed on his mind. He expatiated with force and eloquence on the advantages to be obtained by becoming a Mason. He (Bro. Kidder) was only a Mason of seven years' standing, but during the time he had been a Mason he felt he was a better man than he was before. Since he had been one of the Craft there was no happier man than he. He had taken care to mix himself up with Masons, and from the enjoyment he had received in lodges of instruction, and in the hospitality of lodges, he felt it behooved him to impress on others the advantages of Freemasonry. Though a young Mason he appreciated everything in Masonry. There was nothing he so prized as Masonry. It was one of the greatest boons a man could possess; one of the greatest institutions in the world; and he thought that the example Masons had in the Prince of Wales becoming the head of the Order should show them that the prosperity of Masonry was assured. The W.M. next proposed "The P.M.'s," and reminded the brethren of the great services rendered to the lodge by Bros. Elias Somers and E. G. Sim. Bro. Somers, in reply said that all he should say would be to quote words well known:—"The evil that men do lives after them: the good is oft interred with their bones." Bro. Sim said he had had much pleasure in installing his successor, and any trouble or pains he had been at had been amply repaid by the heartiness with which the brethren had received the mention of his name. As long as he should fill the position of I.P.M., in fact as long as he was a P.M. of the lodge, the brethren might rely upon him to perform every duty he might be called upon to perform, and he trusted it would be with satisfaction to the brethren and credit to himself. He then said that the W.M. had asked him to propose "The Masonic Charities." The brethren all knew that these institutions were flourishing. Every year showed an addition to the funds, a larger number of annuitants in the Benevolent Institution, and more boys and girls received into the two schools. The revenues of the Institutions were steadily and considerably augmenting. The success showed that as the Craft increased numerically the funds increased in proportion. But he hoped the funds would increase in still larger proportion. He was very sorry that none of the Secretaries were present. Bro. Terry, from whom they had a letter, was engaged in Manchester, otherwise he would have been present, and would have given the brethren the figures. Bro. Rimell was going to represent the lodge at the next festival of the Benevolent Institution, and Bro. Norris was going up for the Boys' School. Although the lodge sent two Stewards this year, it could not do all it wished in the cause of charity; still, sending up two Stewards showed the spirit that prevailed in the lodge. On every occasion hitherto the lodge had been represented at each festival, and he hoped it always would be. Bro. Rimell said, in reply, that he hoped before the next festival of the Benevolent Institution that money would pour into his list. Bro. Norris said that the festival of the Boys' School was to be a great success, and that Bros. Bertram and Roberts would place at the disposal of the brethren the concert room, the Italian garden, the conservatory, and the picture gallery. The whole of this magnificent accommodation (at the western side of the building) would be reserved exclusively for those attending the festival. The company would assemble in the picture gallery, the access to which was immediately adjoining the staircase leading from the Palace Railway Station. The banquet would be served in the concert room, in which 1000 persons could be seated with ease and comfort. The Italian garden would be open for recreation. Tea and coffee would be served in the conservatory, and the garden and conservatory would be brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns and coloured lamps. There would be vocal and instrumental music throughout the evening, and ladies and brethren would dine together at the same tables. The day would be the 8th of July, and it was hoped that, with the fortunate combination of circumstances under which the festival would be held, Stewards would be more than ordinarily zealous in securing a large attendance of ladies and brethren. The W.M. next proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary," and, referring to the latter brother, said that the testimonial that he had had presented to him that evening proved that he had conducted the affairs of the lodge satisfactorily to all the brethren. Bro. John Osborn acknowledged the toast, and again thanked the brethren for the very beautiful testimonial they had presented to him. The encomiums lavished on him he felt were more than he deserved. He was delighted to do all he could for the lodge, and he was much pleased to see the great prosperity which had attended it. Bro. Rowley replied to the toast of "The Officers," and the brethren then separated. Bro. George Henri sang some excellent songs during the evening.

ALL SAINTS' LODGE (No. 1716).—This flourishing lodge, already known to many as the lodge of the season, met on Thursday evening last at the Town Hall, Poplar, when the following were present:—Bros. W. H. Farnfield, W.M.; J. Dennis, S.W.; J. Kemp Coleman, Acting J.W.; Leonard Port, S.D.; W. C. Young, I.G.; E. Withersone, T. Bates, J. J. Abbott, H. J. Hancock, T. E. Bowkett, J. B. Finney, C. Phillips, T. Gaisford, J. House, T. L. Rennett, T. Johnson, and as a visitor, Bro. R. Mills, of Lodge 217. The business was to raise Bros. Bowkett and Finney, to pass Bro. Kennett, and to initiate Mr. George Hine. The meeting being called for 6.15, punctually to that time the W.M. rose, and the lodge was opened in due form in the First Degree, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed; the Second Degree was then reached, and Bros. Bowkett and Finney, having answered the usual questions, retired, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. Bros. Bowkett and Finney were then admitted, and regularly raised to the Sublime degree. The lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, and Bro. J. Dennis, P.M. and S.W. of the lodge took the chair, by permission of the W.M., for the purpose of passing Bro. T. L. Kennett, this brother having been initiated by Bro. Dennis. The candidate having answered the usual questions, retired, and the lodge was resumed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Kennett admitted and duly passed. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree and Mr. Hine, the initiate, not being in attendance, a call off resulted. On calling on, the lodge was resumed to the Third Degree, the W.M. now again occupied the chair, and all the brethren with the exception of the Principal Officers, and Bro. Kennett entered and worked up from the First Degree. The lodge was then closed to the First Degree, and Mr. Hine still being absent the W.M. rose for the first time, and Bro. Coleman took the opportunity of stating he had served the office of Steward at the recent Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls on behalf of the All Saints Lodge, and through the generosity of the members was enabled to hand in a list of £60 8s. which he considered a very gratifying fact. The W.M. supported the remarks of Bro. Coleman, as to the gratifying result of his endeavours, especially, when it was remembered the lodge was consecrated so recently as September last year, and that nearly £40 was sent up to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in February last. After some routine business the lodge was closed in due form and adjourned.

ROYAL SAVOY LODGE (No. 1744).—The first meeting of this lodge was held at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Tuesday, 28th May. Present: Bros. Wilking, W.M.; Douglass, S.W.; Clemow, J.W.; Treadwell, Treas.; Stiles, Sec.; Jones, S.D.; Hyland, J.D.; Smith, I.G.; Barham, Tomkins, Jaques, Sellis, Deller, Holt and many others. The lodge was opened in due form and the W.M. raised, by permission of the W.M.'s 45 and 177, Bros. Lowe and Baldry to the Sublime Third Degree. Messrs. Arthur Douglass, Mabey, Philpott, Hixon, and Lloyd were impressively initiated into Freemasonry, and 17 brethren were balloted for and admitted as joining members. The bye-laws were proposed, discussed, and agreed to, so as to be submitted to Grand Lodge for approval, and a summer festival appointed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which Bro. Mitchell served in a splendid manner, the only fault was that, all the waiters being foreigners, some little delay occurred between the various courses. The lodge will meet again on the fourth Tuesday in June.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, March 28th, at the Asheton Arms Hotel. Bro. W. Percival, W.M., presided, and was assisted by the following officers: Bros. F. Fothergill, S.W.; J. Hatton, J.W.; H. Heywood, P.M., Treas.; G. Bradbury, I.P.M.; S. Hewitt, Sec.; P. Lawton, J.D.; J. Eckersley, I.G.; J. Kent, Tyler. There was a good attendance of brethren. The lodge having been opened in due form with solemn prayer, the Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. A communication was read from Grand Lodge respecting the recent decision of the Grand Orient of France. One candidate was proposed for initiation. The usual proclamations were made, and elicited "Hearty good wishes" from lodges 317, Affability, and 103, Rising Sun, Saratoga Springs, New York. Charity was next attended to, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony. The brethren afterwards sat down to a substantial repast, presided over by the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured, and the brethren separated shortly before ten o'clock.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—In honour of Her Majesty's birthday, Bro. T. H. Scott, Organist, entertained the brethren of this lodge and their friends with a grand harmonium and pianoforte recital, at the Masonic Hall, on Friday evening, the 24th ult., when a varied selection of music from first-class authors was given. The performance of the several pieces was of the highest order, and the execution on both instruments gave evidence of careful study and incessant practice. The full-dress of the ladies, and the regalia of the brethren of various degrees, imparted to the assembly a gay and animated appearance. The necessary arrangements were most ably carried out by Bro. Clement Edwin Stretton, I.P.M., Hon. Sec., and great satisfaction was expressed by a highly appreciative audience with the evening's entertainment. Among those present were: The Mayor, Bro. C. Stretton, P.M.; the Lady Mayoress; Bro. C. E. Stretton, P.M., and Mrs. Stretton; Bros. J. M. McAllister, P.M.; G. W. Statham, W.M.; S. Cleaver, S.W.; J. Farndale, J.W.; C. Gurden, Treas.; O. Law, Sec.; T. Colman, J.D.; E. Newton, D.C.; W. M. Randall, J. Roadknight, and others.

LEEDS.—Philanthropic Lodge (No. 304).—At the regular meeting of the above lodge, on Wednesday, the 29th May, an interesting presentation took place. It had been the pleasure and privilege of the brethren of the Philanthropic Lodge to contribute to the happiness of their brethren of the 17th Lancers (which regiment is now laying at Leeds) Lodge, by granting them the use of their rooms for the purposes of their meetings. In recognition of this favour, the brethren of the military lodge have testified their regard by presenting to the Philanthropic Lodge three ebony mauls, for the use of the W.M., S.W., and J.W. Each maul or gavel is inlaid on the front with a silver plate, which bears the following inscription:—"From the 17th Lancers Lodge, 218, Irish Constitution, to the Philanthropic Lodge, 304, English Constitution, in token of their appreciation of the fraternal reception accorded to them in Leeds, May, 1878." In handing the present to the W.M. of the Philanthropic Lodge, Bro. Williams, P.M., of the 17th Lancers Lodge (who was accompanied by Bro. Brown, I.P.M., and Bro. Abbott, P.M.) said he begged to express the sentiments of his lodge, and say how highly they valued the many kindnesses that had been shewn to them by their brethren in Leeds. The reception accorded them was far greater than they, as strangers, could have expected; still it proved that in the Philanthropic Lodge, and in Leeds generally, the true spirit of Freemasonry flourished in a great degree. (Applause.) In concluding, in the name of his brethren he begged the acceptance by the Philanthropic Lodge of that small token of their esteem, and he hoped that as the mauls passed into other hands from year to year they might carry with them pleasant memories of their meetings together, one thing was certain, that in the 17th Lancers Lodge, the Philanthropic, 304, would long live in their memories. Bro. Taylor, W.M., 304, suitably acknowledged the unexpected present, and in the name of his lodge accepted it, at the same time remarking that the brethren of the 17th Lancers Lodge had endeared themselves to the Craft in Leeds by their ability in working the ceremonies (which had been done in a most efficient manner) and by their geniality and courtesy. He bid them a hearty welcome on all occasions of their meeting, and if, when they left Leeds (which he hoped would be some time hence) they ever came near that town, he hoped they would endeavour to give them a visit. In concluding, he hoped the brethren of the Philanthropic Lodge would ever be ready to extend the right hand of fellowship to all military brethren who might be staying in or passing through Leeds. He tendered to the 17th Lancers Lodge his hearty good wishes. (Applause.)

APPLEBY.—Eden Valley Lodge (No. 812).—The annual meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel, on Thursday, June 6th, at four o'clock in the afternoon. The W.M., Bro. R. Warton, was supported by Bros. Cockfield, S.W., W.M. elect; Whitehead, P.M., &c.; Fulton, P.M.; Rev. Dr. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain of England; Dr. Sayer; Arnison, P.M. (Penrith); W. Kirkbride, P.M., &c.; Cussins, W.M., Penrith Lodge; McKay, W.M., 129; John Bowes, P.M., &c., Robinson (York); Bentley; Ridge, and others. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Bentley and Ridge claimed preferment, and having sustained their claim, were entrusted. The chair was now assumed by Bro. John Bowes, and the candidates separately admitted and raised under the able deaconate of Bro. Warton, W.M. Resuming labour in the second degree, Bro. W. Kirkbride took the chair and, with the assistance of Bro. Bowes, installed Bro. Cockfield as W.M. for the ensuing year in ample form. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where an excellent dinner was tastefully served. The cloth being withdrawn the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Rev. Dr. Simpson, in proposing the toast, "The Installing Master," paid a high compliment to "the choice and master spirits" who had kindly visited them and performed the ceremonies in such a correct and impressive manner. Bro. Robinson, of York, in responding for "The Visitors," begged to add his hearty concurrence with the complimentary remarks of his friend and brother, Canon Simpson. The meeting had been an exceedingly profitable one, and he congratulated the W.M. and members of the Eden Valley Lodge that they were able to command the services of brethren competent to interpret their beautiful ceremonies. The Tyler's Toast brought the proceedings to a close at ten o'clock.

CHESHUNT.—Gresham Lodge (No. 869).—The fine old Baronial Hall of Cheshunt, was on Saturday, the 8th inst., the scene of a very pleasing ceremony, for here under the roof which had witnessed alike the joyous days of Wolsey, of James and of the first Charles, amid the labours which had been borne on many a well contested field by those whose armour now stand motionless against its walls, the brethren of the Gresham Lodge had met to do honour to our esteemed Bro. Doctor Pottle, who by his courteous and affable conduct since he first saw the light of Masonry, had won the esteem of the brethren, culminating in his being unanimously elected at the previous meeting as their W.M. The business of the day commenced by the W.M. Pro. Etherington, assisted by his officers, opening the lodge in the First and Second Degrees, when Bro. J. F. Grocott, having proved his proficiency therein, was entrusted and retired, and upon the lodge being opened in the Third Degree, was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., in a manner that gave universal satisfaction to the brethren present. The lodge was then resumed to the Second Degree, and the W.M. elect, Bro. Doctor Pottle, was duly presented to the Installing Master, Bro. W. E. Gompertz, for the benefit of Installation, and a board of Installed Masters having been formed, was installed in the chair of K.S. and saluted in ancient form, The Master Masons having been admitted a procession was arranged by the D.C., Bro. F. D. R. Copestick, and the brethren thrice made a circuit of the Hall, successively saluting the W.M. in the 3rd and 1st degrees. The Installing Master then gave the customary charges in a very impressive manner, dwelling with more than usual pathos on the great moral precepts therein contained. The Officers appointed for the ensuing year were Bros. T. C. Chapman, as S.W.; I. Perry, J.W.; C. B. Cheese, S.D.; W. E. Gompertz, Jun. J.D.; W. R. Dixon, I.G.; the Rev. Charles Erskine Mayo, (M.A.) Chaplain; F. D. R. Copestick, Treasurer; W. E. Gompertz, Secretary; J. F. Grocott, Organist, and Bros. Bernard and Holland, Stewards. The W.M. said it now became his pleasing duty to place upon the breast of his immediate predecessor, Bro. Etherington, a P.M. jewel, voted unanimously by the brethren, as a slight testimony of their appreciation of the satisfactory way in which he had performed the duties of W.M. during the past year. Bro. Etherington in a suitable speech thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Green Dragon, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured. In giving the toast of the Masonic Charities, the W.M. alluded to the fact of their Treasurer being about to represent them as Steward at the next Festival of the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and urged the brethren not only as a lodge, but individually, to support him, so as to make his list a satisfactory one. Bro. James Terry, (Sec. Masonic Benevolent) in thanking the W.M. made an exhaustive speech upon the Great Masonic Institutions, one of which he was there to represent, showing their progress, the blessings they had conferred upon those who from their tender years, were unable to help themselves, likewise upon those who in their prosperity had borne the burden and heat of the day, and were now in the decline of life, dependant upon those whom Providence had blessed with the power of exercising that truly Masonic virtue Charity. Among the visitors were Bros. James Terry, P.M. 228, P.G.D.C. Herts; J. Tydeman, P.M. 1237, W.M. 1327, P.P.G.P. Essex; E. Power, 1538; G. Micklethay, P.M. 449, P.G.D. Herts; R. Leech, P.M. 861; A. Dutteridge, W.M. 172; P. Magee, S.W. 548; and others.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 3rd inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Atheneum, Lancaster. The chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. Sheriff, the W.M., who was supported by his respective officers. There was a fair attendance of members and visitors. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then raised to the Second Degree, and Bros. Tucker and Robinson, having given proof of their proficiency as F.C., were entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bros. Tucker and Robinson having been separately admitted were severally raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M.'s, the working being carefully gone through by the W.M. The lodge was then closed down, and the usual proclamations having been given and heartily responded to by the visitors, the lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Derby, on Wednesday, June 5th. Present Bros. G. Pipes, W.M.; W. Heathcote, P.G.D. of C. I.P.M.; M. H. Bobart, P.P.S.G.W. as S.W.; W. B. Hextall, J.W.; J. O. Manton, Sec.; H. Biggs, W.M. 802, as S.D.; P. Wallis, as J.D.; W. Butterfield, I.G.; Past Masters F. Iliffe, P.P.J.G.W., and J. Worsnop, P.P.G.P.; Bros. Eaton, Pakeman, Walters, Pragnell, Lane, Baxter, Hefford, Arnold, Johnson, Popplewell, Gore, Steele, and Visitors, Bros. G. F. Smith, 163 and Johnson 731. The lodge was opened at 7.40 p.m. Bros. Hefford, Baxter, and Arnold, were passed to the second degree by the W.M. A quarterly communication from Grand Lodge was presented, and other business connected with the working of the lodge was transacted. The case of a distressed brother, suffering from illness, was submitted, and received the favourable consideration of the lodge. After the formalities the lodge was adjourned until the first Wednesday in July.

STRANGEWAYS.—Strangeways Lodge (No. 1219).—The usual monthly meeting of the members was held at the Empire Hotel, Strangeways, on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at five o'clock p.m. There was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge being opened in due form, Mr. W. B. Russell and Mr. M. Misell, were duly balloted for and initiated in the degree of Entered Apprentice, the initiatory ceremony being most ably performed by Bro. W. T. Schofield, I.P.M., in the first place, and Bro. S. H. Needham, W.M., in the second instance. Bro. Kelly having answered the questions in the Second Degree, was then raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason by Bro. B. Taylor, P.M. Lodge of Harmony, in a manner which elicited the highest praise from those present. The principal business of the evening was then brought forward by the W.M., viz., the election of the Worshipful Master for the ensuing twelve months. After some considerable discussion, Bro. Brandon, S.W. 1876-7 was elected to the coveted honour. Bro. J. Andrew, P.M., was again elected Treasurer, and Bro. J. Heydon unanimously chosen as Tyler. Two brethren were selected to audit the accounts for the past year, and a committee appointed to make arrangements for the installation of the W.M. elect and St. John's Festival. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting room, where supper was served by Bro. Banks, in a manner which well sustained the renown the "Empire" has acquired for the taste displayed by the chef-de-cuisine of that establishment. On the removal of the cloth the toasts incidental to the occasion were duly given and responded to with full Masonic honours; that of the W.M. elect being received most vociferously. Bro. Brandon responded in a very neat speech; and Bro. Leech S.W., replied on behalf of the "Officers of Strangeways Lodge," trusting that the same cordial support which had been given to the present W.M. would be shewn to his successor, and that the unanimity then existing between them would still continue. Bros. Ruddock and Dunville, P.M., contributed to the enjoyment of the evening by some excellent singing. The party broke up shortly before eleven o'clock.

LIVERPOOL.—Neptune Lodge (No. 1264).—The brethren of the "old Neptune" (which, like the representative British flag, has "braved the battle and the breeze," if not for a thousand years, at least for a considerable period), met on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, for the purpose of celebrating the annual festival of St. John, and the particular as well as general interest felt in the event was conclusively shown by a large attendance of members and visitors. Bro. Joseph Healing, the W.M. (who has twice occupied that proud position—the proudest to a Freemason's heart), occupied the post of honour, and his officers present were the following: Bros. Joseph Korn, S.W.; W. C. Webb, J.W.; P. B. Gee, P.M., Treasurer; J. H. Linaker, Secretary; A. C. Wyle, S.D.; T. H. Arden, J.D.; C. Fothergill, Steward; and C. Rigotti, Steward. The members present were Bros. John Martin, Geo. Crute, J. W. Burgess, W. H. Dawson, C. S. Daniels, J. Tickle, J. S. Warden, John Shaw, G. W. Irwin, W. Jones, R. Edwards, W. F. Jones, T. Dealy, A. Fletcher, G. Capper, J. Ashworth, J. C. C. Fish, T. Grant, J. Hughes, J. Heel, W. Fish, J. Palfreyman, J. S. Jones, Wm. Peter, Wm. Hue, Wm. Gray, L. Robertson, Josh. Griffiths, W. F. Fender, Ed. Russell, and J. Burke. The visitors included Bros. W. S. Corris, 1356; T. M. Creak, 667; J. B. Mackenzie, J.W., 1609; J. Archdeacon, 667; Joseph Wood, Treas., 1694, (Freemason); Wm. Cotter, 1299; S. M. Davis, 22, (Canada); W. J. Chapman, W.M., 1609; J. Bayley, 667; Robert Stewart, 667; J. Devaynes, P.M. 667; Thomas Wood, 673; W. Atherton, 823; J. Hallow, P.M., 673 and 1505; Ed. George, J.D., 1356; T. Shepard, P.M., 594; J. M. Tukey, 43; J. H. Bradshaw, S.W., 1325; Josh. Skeaf, P.G. Organist; T. Shaw, P.M., 823; H. Firth, S.W., 667; J. Hayes, P.M., 249; J. Frank, P.M., 203 and 1502; M. Goshan, 823; J. R. Bottomley, S.W.

1675; A. Hart, W.M., 724 and 1602; and J. Neill, 1356. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been confirmed, the W.M. initiated Mr. Charles Cavern into the Order, the work being very efficiently performed. The W.M. (Bro. J. Healing) subsequently concluded his year's office in the chair by impressively installing Bro. Joseph Korn in the chair of K.S. for the coming year.—The following were the official investments by the W.M.:—Bros. J. Healing, I.P.M.; A. Cotter, P.M., D.C.; W. Webb, S.W.; A. C. Wylie, J.W.; P. B. Gee, P.M., Treasurer (re-elected unanimously); J. H. Linaker, Secretary (re-appointed); T. H. Arden, S.D.; C. Fothergill, J.D.; J. L. Warden, I.G.; R. Battersby, S.S.; G. Crute, J.S.; John Tickle, Assistant S.; and P. Ball, Tyler. At the conclusion of the installation ceremony, Bro. A. Cotter, P.M., D.C., proposed a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Healing, I.P.M., for having performed the work in such a satisfactory manner. He had certainly gone through the ceremony to perfection, and it was therefore the duty of the lodge, he (Bro. Cotter) thought, to pass their special vote of thanks, and have it recorded on the minutes. Bro. P. P. Gee, P.M., Treas., seconded the resolution, and also bore testimony to the able and efficient manner in which the whole ceremony had been performed. The vote was carried unanimously, and Bro. Healing briefly acknowledged the compliment. He remembered that when he entered the lodge that afternoon he was determined not to fail, and the brethren by that vote of thanks had shown he had not done so. He thanked the lodge exceedingly for that special mark of honour, and it would quicken his interest in the Neptune Lodge. After some discussion, it was resolved that there should be, as usual, the picnic in connection with the lodge, Bellevue Gardens, Manchester, being selected as the scene of the day's festivities. The arrangements for the Masonic "out" were relegated to the lodge committee, who will report at next meeting. Substantial aid was voted to a distressed widow and brother, and the lodge was then closed in due form, in perfect harmony. The brethren subsequently dined in the large banqueting hall, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Joseph Korn, who, upon the removal of the cloth, proposed the usual initiatory toasts: "The Queen;" "H.R.H. Bro. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England;" "Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of England, R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire;" and "Bro. the Right Hon. Fred. Stanley, D.P.G.M. of W.L., and the Officers of the Province," the last named being responded by Bro. J. W. Burgess, W.M. 1325, in the absence of Bro. J. Pemberton, P.P.G.S.B. Bro. Healing, I.P.M., in giving the toast of "The Worshipful Master," said: W.M., P.M.'s, officers and brethren, now you have elected Bro. Korn for the ensuing year, I may say I had the honour of introducing him some eight years ago. You have selected him for this high and important office, and I trust, W.M., you may receive the same support that I have done. You have filled nearly every office in the lodge with entire satisfaction, and it gives me great pleasure in proposing your very good health. The recitation, "The Little Hero," was given by Bro. J. W. Chapman, the W.M. of the Dramatic Lodge, with great effect, which elicited fervent and general expressions of approval. The W.M., in reply to the toast, said: Bro. P.M.'s, officers and brethren, it is now eight years ago since I was put in office, and in every one I have endeavoured to fulfil my duties. I shall leave no stone unturned to give you satisfaction. The Neptune Lodge was a large one, and it will be my duty to endeavour to imitate the admirable way in which the work has been done by my predecessors, although it will require no little skill and thought to keep the ship in the same condition as to its sailing trim. The W.M. next gave "The Installing Master," and said: Brethren, it is with the utmost pleasure I propose the next toast—"The Health of Bro. Joseph Healing, our I.P. and Installing Master," and I may remind you it was he who was chiefly instrumental in getting our warrant—a service which he has further enhanced by twice occupying the position of W.M. All who know him are perfectly cognisant of the fact that whatever he undertakes he performs well. He has done a wonderful work to-day, in giving the First Degree, and then performing the work of installation in the remarkably able manner which you have witnessed. To mark the esteem felt for you, Bro. Healing, by the brethren of the Neptune Lodge, I have now the pleasure and honour to present to you in their name, this valuable set of diamond studs. Masonic honours, and a song by Bro. Linaker, Secretary. Bro. Healing, in reply, said, I thank you, W.M., for the manner in which you have pleased to speak of me, and in doing so I am sure you have not meant to use flattery. I have done my best for the lodge since its formation, and I assure you I am proud of the present position of the good ship, although we have done nothing but our duty in seeking to secure its welfare. As the mariner feels pride in the condition and position of his Craft, so do we of the "Neptune;" and I will continue to use my best efforts for her welfare. I thank you, W.M. and brethren, for the very handsome testimonial which you have presented to me this day, which will always be treasured by me throughout my life. Bro. Gee, P.M. and Treasurer, and Bro. Cotter, P.M., responded for "The Past Masters of Lodge 1264." Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O., for "The Prov. G. Organist and the Musical Brethren;" Bro. Cavern for "The Newly Initiated," and Bro. H. Firth, S.W. 667, for "The Visitors." The brethren left the banquet at an early hour.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, Morecambe, on Tuesday, the 4th inst. There was a good gathering of the Craft, and the lodge having been opened with the usual formalities, the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. Thomas Longmire, was duly installed to that office for the ensuing year. Bro. Dr. Moore (of Lancaster) P.M. and P.G.S.B. of E. officiated as Installing Master, and went through the ceremony with his well-known ability and impressiveness. On the conclusion of the ceremony the following officers were appointed by the W.M. and installed by Bro. Moore, namely, Bros. W. Duff, I.P.M.; W. Longmire, S.W.; A. K. Stansfield, J.W.; R. Hartley, Treas.; W. Stephenson, Sec.; W. W. Wilde, S.D.; R. Bannister, J.D.; A. Poole, I.G.; L. Gorton, Org.; G. Bingham, S.S.; J. Brown, J.S., and T. Wilkinson, Tyler. The brethren subsequently adjourned to the house of Bro. T. Longmire, the King's Arms hotel, where the installation banquet was held. The table was laid in a very attractive style, the edibles (which included the delicacies of the season) were of the choicest, and the serving excellent. The newly-elected W.M. presided, and was supported by Bros. Dr. Moore, W. Duff, F. G. Dale (1353), Signor Pandolfini (281), T. Atkinson (281), J. Jowett (281), R. Hartley, Croskell, Stephenson, Ellershaw, &c. The duties of croupier were ably discharged by Bro. W. Longmire, who was supported by Bros. Stansfield, Poole, Bannister, Bingham, Hall (1070), Atkinson (Freemason), and others. On the removal of the cloth, the Chairman gave the healths of "The Queen" and "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," which were received with the customary honours. The toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and Officers of Grand Lodge, and Col. the Hon. F. A. Stanley, Prov. G.M., and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge," was proposed by Bro. T. Atkinson. Bro. Moore, with whose name the last toast was coupled, responded, observing that the gentlemen occupying the offices named were all men renowned for their knowledge and skill in Masonry. In the course of his remarks he paid a passing tribute to the memory of the late Colonel Birchall, and complimented the Morecambe Lodge on the honour that had been conferred upon it by the appointment of one of its members—Bro. Capt. Garnett—as Prov. G.S.W. Bro. Duff, in rising to propose the health of their Chairman, the Worshipful Master of the lodge, said it was a toast which he was sure they would respond to with pleasure. (Applause.) He felt very proud in being called upon to propose the toast, though he could not find words to convey to them all he would say on that occasion. It was now about three years ago since they first started the Morecambe Lodge and he might say that from that time to the present they had never had the least difference of opinion, but all had gone on smoothly and pleasantly with the respective Masters and the rest of the officers. All had been ready and willing to assist in anything that was for the good and welfare of the Lodge in general, and he trusted that they would still go on enjoining the same united spirit and action. (Hear, hear.) He felt sure that they were proud in seeing their Chairman in the position in which he had been placed that day, and he hoped that during his year of office he would have good health to carry on his duties, that the prosperity of the lodge would increase under his rule. (Applause.) Bro. Duff concluded by calling upon the company to drink the health of the W.M., and the toast was honoured in a very enthusiastic manner. The Chairman briefly acknowledged the compliment, and thanked the brethren for placing him in the position he occupied on that occasion. It would always be his desire to perform the various duties connected with the office of Worshipful Master of the lodge to the best of his ability, and he would leave no stone unturned to accomplish that object—(applause)—so that when he left the chair none of them should have reason to regret that they placed him there. The Chairman next proposed "The Health of the installing Officer," complimenting Dr. Moore on the manner in which he had performed the ceremony, and also on his willingness at all times to afford them any assistance in his power on matters relating to the guidance or government of their lodge, and regretting that he was unable to speak to the toast in the way it deserved. The toast was most cordially received. Bro. Moore, in responding, thanked the company for the kind and flattering manner in which his name had been received. He fully appreciated all that the Chairman would have wished to make known to the brethren, and would take the will for the deed. He took it as a high compliment paid to himself, and thanked him for it, as well as for the many kindnesses shown to him by the lodge on that and other occasions. He hoped that unless the W.M. for the time being undertook the duties of Installing Officer—on which occasions he should be very glad to be Director of Ceremonies—it would be his pleasure, so long as he was able, to install the Masters of that lodge. (Applause.) That was about the thirtieth time he had acted in the capacity of Installing Officer, and he looked with a great deal of pride on what he had done in that respect. He had also consecrated one Craft Lodge and one Royal Arch Chapter, and constituted a province of Royal Arch Masonry. With regard to the other degrees he did not know how many he had taken part in. One conclave of the Red Cross of Constantine, which he consecrated had a daughter, and was now about to have a grand-daughter, the members in the three conclaves numbering something like 270. (Applause.) In concluding, Bro. Moore proposed "The Health of the Immediate Past Master"—Bro. Duff, who during his year of office had done well for the Morecambe Lodge, and on behalf of the lodge presented him with a Past Master's jewel, in appreciation of the zealous and assiduous manner in which he had filled the duties of his office during the year just closed. The jewel bore the words "Morecambe Lodge, 1861. W.M. 1877." On the reverse was the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. W. Duff, W.M. by the members of the Morecambe Lodge, June 4th, 1878." The toast having been cordially responded to, Bro. Duff, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had been completely taken by surprise in the matter of the presentation to him of a Past Master's jewel, but he accepted it at their hands with the greatest pleasure. It would ever be his wish to render what assistance he could to the lodge, and try to forward its interests by all means in his power. He trusted they would all work together and by perseverance place the lodge in a good financial position. He paid a high compliment to the Chairman for the energy and ability he had displayed in trying to bring about the establishment of the Morecambe Lodge, and well deserved the honour conferred upon him that day. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Dale proposed the health of "The Wardens." Bro. W. Longmire and K. A. Stansfield, briefly acknowledged the compliment. Bro. Jowett proposed "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary," which was acknowledged by Bros. Hartley and Stephenson.—The health of the "Junior Officers" was proposed by Bro. T. Atkinson, and duly responded to. Bro. Moore proposed "The Visitors," which was appropriately acknowledged by Bro. Pandolfini, with whose name the toast was coupled. The "Tyler's" toast was the last on the list, and this was given by Bro. Wilkinson, and received with the customary honours.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The monthly meeting of this excellent lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Tuesday, the 28th ult., Bro. W. J. Chapman, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. Joseph Bell, P.M.; J. B. McKenzie, acting S.W.; B. B. Marson, P.M., D.C., acting J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; J. Atkinson, Sec.; W. Sandbrook, S.D.; F. Wilkinson, J.D.; H. P. Squire, acting I.G.; J. Pyer, S.S.; W. Savage, J.S.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., and R. Burgess, Organist; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. Dr. H. D. Johnson, P.M.; J. S. Macbeth, Penny, Ray, Keet, Avann, Boyd, Shrapnell, H. Leslie, D. Saunders, I. de Frece, Treasurer 1502 (Lodge of Israel); W. Hildyard, W. M. Annaud, A. Wilkinson, P. Lowndes, Dr. Pitts, W. Coates, and others. The list of visitors included Bros. the Rev.—Leslie, F. J. Pentin, Davies (Canada), Richardson, C. Heywood, Round, R. Robinson, Oglesby, and others. After the confirmation of the minutes Mr. Conby, who was unanimously elected, was initiated in a strikingly impressive way by the W.M., and seven brethren (two being from a sister lodge) were subsequently raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M.'s. The Dramatic choir, organised under the direction of Bro. Burgess, Organist, was brought to the front in connection with the ceremonies for the first time, and added greatly to the effect of the working. Eight guineas were voted in charity—five for the widow of a member, and three for a distressed brother. "Hearty good wishes" were given from numerous visitors. Upwards of sixty brethren afterwards partook of a banquet in the large hall, and during the evening a variety of toasts and songs were given, the latter being furnished by Bros. Penny, Cook, Pyer, Richardson, C. Heywood, and "Dan" Saunders, the piano accompaniments being admirably played by Bros. Skeaf and Burgess. The brethren separated about seven o'clock.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—St. Nicholas Lodge (No. 1676).—The installation meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Grainger-street. Present: Bros. T. Cochran, P.P.A.D.C., W.M.; Jno. Thos. Taylor, S.W.; Arthur T. Taylor, J.W.; M. Catchside, Secretary; J. R. Pringle, Treasurer, and others. Visitors: Bros. E. D. Davies, P.M. 541, &c., P.G.D.C.; Thos. Cranston, P.M. 636; J. Cook, P.M. 481, &c., P.P.G.S.W.; Scott, P.M. 1132; P. J. Jackson, W.M. 424 and Treasurer 1634; B. P. Ord, S.W. 1427; J. Braithwaite, Secretary 1427; W. M. Taylor, 24; Thos. Walton, 24 and 1664; W. Harbutt, 940; R. H. Walters, 1094; G. T. Charlton, 1664; H. Wilson, 24 and 1664; W. Guthrie, 240; W. J. Haggston, 240; J. M. Marr, 1626; Robins, 101, and others. The lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. T. Cochran, P.P.A.D.C. Northumberland, was passed to the F.C. Degree, when the Installing Master, Bro. E. D. Davis, P.M. and P.G.D.C. Northumberland, assumed the chair, and Bro. J. T. Taylor, S.W., was presented to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. After the obligation had been subscribed to, the lodge was raised to the Third Degree, and those below the rank of P.M. were requested to withdraw. The Board of Installed Masters was then opened, and in a most impressive manner the new Master was placed in the chair of K.S. The brethren being readmitted, were informed that during their absence their new Master had been regularly installed, and they were requested to salute him as M.M.'s. The charge was then given, and the tools for this degree presented; the lodge then was raised to the Second Degree, when the Master being saluted, the charge for this degree being given, and the tools presented, it was reduced to the Third Degree, the saluting charge and presentation of tools were again gone through, and after the appointment of the following officers: Bros. T. Cochran, P.P.G.A.D.C., I.P.M.; J. Cook, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., D. of C.; A. T. Taylor, S.W.; W. Catchside, J.W.; F. Blencowe, Secretary; J. R. Pringle, Treasurer; Jno. Mackay, S.D.; W. Cummings, J.D.; E. Marston, I.G.; R. Ferry, Organist; J. Curry, Tyler, R. Veitch, Steward; J. P. Clark, J.S. The Treasurer's report was read and confirmed, and which was a very satisfactory one, the lodge having been opened one year only, all liabilities were discharged and a balance of £36 remained in hand; some other routine business was disposed of, and the lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to the Douglas Hotel, where a very splendid banquet was served, to which about fifty sat down. The toasts were given and responded to in a very genial manner. "The I.P.M.," proposed by the W.M., was very heartily received, as it was due to his great exertions that the lodge was inaugurated and is now in so flourishing a condition. The toast of "The W.M.," was also very cordially received by all present, he, in returning thanks, assured the brethren that he would do his best to continue the good feeling and harmony, and trusted the lodge might not lose its lustre while in his keeping. The remainder of the toasts having been given and duly responded to the brethren departed, well satisfied with the first annual meeting of their lodge.

INSTRUCTION.

PANMURE GENERAL LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—The first meeting of this new lodge of instruction, which has been formed for the purpose of affording instruction in the Craft, Mark, and Royal Arch Degrees, an ingenious arrangement, which, whilst keeping the several ceremonies distinct, will enable the brethren to associate for the general support and other advancement of each other in the respective degrees, was held at the Antelope Tavern, Lion-road, Brixton, on the 6th inst. The lodge was opened at 7.30 p.m., by Bros. James Stevens, P.M., as W.M.; Thomas Poore, P.M., S.W.; John Coe, J.W.; E. Francis, S.D.; J. Darn, J.D.; C. T. Pearce, J.G.; Thomas Dickie, P.G.P., acting Secretary. There were also present, Bros. W. Ackland, C. P. McKay, Henry Lovegrove, E. Farwig, Joseph Croker, H. Wilkinson, and others. The ceremony of initiation having been rehearsed, the brethren proceeded to discuss the several propositions placed before them by Bros. Stevens and Poore, to whom had been granted the sanction required from the Panmure Craft Lodge, the Panmure Mark Lodge, and the Panmure Royal Arch Chapter respectively. These were fully discussed, and the following resolutions were adopted, viz: "That the Panmure General Lodge of Instruction be founded on the programme set forth in the circular convening the meeting, and that the order of working shall be:

First Thursday in the Month	...Craft Ceremony and Sections, First Degree.
Second " "	...Mark Ceremony and Lecture.
Third " "	...Craft Ceremonies and Sections, Second and Third Degrees.
Fourth " "	...Royal Arch Ceremony and Sections.
First fifth Thursday in the Year	...Craft Installation and Annual Festival.
Second " "	...Mark Installation Ceremony.
Third " "	...Fifteen Sections (Craft).
Fourth " "	...Royal Arch Installation Ceremony.

The whole of the brethren present were constituted founders and to their number will be added those who may be present at the first meeting of the Mark and Royal Arch sections of the general lodge. Bros. James Stevens, P.M. and P.Z., and Thomas Poore, P.M. and J., were appointed Hon. Preceptors. Bro. Thomas Dickie, P.M., P.Z., was appointed Hon. Sec. The settlement of the by-laws was deferred until the expiration of three months, in order that the several sections may be properly represented in the general lodge when holding its meetings in the first degree. The thanks of the meeting were voted to the respective lodges and chapter for the sanctions accorded, and to Bro. Stevens and Poore for their services in the preliminary formation of the lodge. Bro. Coe was elected W.M. for the next Craft meeting (June 20th). Lodge was then closed, and the Craft meeting adjourned to that date.

FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1288).—A meeting of the above lodge was held at the Finsbury Park Tavern on Wednesday, the 29th ult., when the following brethren were present: Bros. J. N. Thompson, W.M.; Press, S.W.; Frampton, J.W.; Walker, S.D.; Dunn, J.D.; Beattie, I.G.; P. Dickinson, P.M., Preceptor; H. B. D. Dunn, Sec; Beattie, Oakeshott, P.M. Wright, and Edmonds. The lodge was opened with solemn prayer, and minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Oakeshott being candidate. Bro. Dunn being a candidate to be passed to the Second Degree was examined, entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree and the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of passing. Bro. P.M. Dickinson then assumed the chair, and Bro. Thompson being presented as W.M. elect, was installed by Bro. P.M. Dickinson into the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom. Bro. Thompson then invested the officers. Bros. Beattie, 1507, and Oakeshott, 1288, were elected members, Bro. Press was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. A vote of thanks was recorded to Bro. P.M. Dickinson for working the ceremony of installation. The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer.

LIVERPOOL—Mariners Chapter (No. 249).—The companions of this chapter were summoned to the performance of their duties at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 16th May. The chapter was opened at 5 o'clock by Comps. P. B. Gee, Z.; J. E. Jackson, H.; and T. Ockleshaw, J.; and amongst those present were Comps. Henry Pearson, P.Z.; Joseph Healing, P.Z.; John Ellis, S.E.; Henry Firth, S.N.; Joseph Wood, Treas. (Freemason); Alex. Cotter, P.S.; W. H. Ball, Janitor. The members who put in an appearance were Comps. T. H. Hall, Wm. Peter, Jas. S. Warden, J. E. Skillicorn, Thos. Prake, Geo. Cuete, Wm. Roberts, Peter Robbie, Rich. Edwards, Josh. Korn, J. T. Rogers, Robt. Carter, T. M. Creak, Josh. Croxton, Wm. Fish, J. H. Linaker, A. Bucknall, Thos. Mason, and James Lees. The visitors included Comps. Hugh Williams, P.P.G.S.B. W.L.; Thos. Shaw, Z. 833; Jas. T. Callow, P.Z. 673; W. T. May, P.Z. 673, M.E.Z. 598; W. J. Chapman, J. 1356; and Capt. Thos. Berry, late 310. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and a candidate who had been elected at a previous meeting being present, was exalted by the Z. in a superior manner. The companions retired, and Comp. Gee installed Comps. J. E. Jackson as Z.; Thos. Ockleshaw, H.; Alex. Cotter, J., the manner in which the work was done eliciting great praise from all who were present. The M.E.Z. then invested the following officers: Comps. Gee, P.Z.;

Joseph Wood, Treas. (Freemason), for the 8th time; J. Ellis, P.S.; H. Firth, S.E.; and Korn, S.N. The M.E.Z. then presented Comp. Gee with a beautiful P.Z. gold level (in the name of the companions), with the following inscription:—"Presented by the Mariners Chapter, 249, to Comp. Peter B. Gee, P.Z., as a token of their sincere regard and esteem. Liverpool, May 16th, 1878." The Treasurer's balance sheet was read and passed. After several propositions for exaltation, and hearty good wishes from visiting companions, the chapter was duly and solemnly closed. The companions then retired for refreshment, served in Comp. Ball's best style, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. The companions separated at an early hour.

BEDFORD—Stuart Chapter (No. 540).—The quarterly convocation of this chapter was held at the rooms at the Swan Hotel, on Friday evening. Chapter was opened at 7 p.m. by Comps. Cookson, M.E.Z.; Rev. W. Tebbs, N. (H. Royal Cyrus, 285, as acting) H.; and Fisher, J., when there were also present Comps. Alderman J. R. Bull, J.P., I.P.Z.; Capt. Colburne, E.; Billson, P.S.; Stafford and Combs, 1st and 2nd A.S.; Carter, Treasurer; Thody, Organist; Bevan (acting) J. (Comp. Reynolds being unfortunately too unwell to be present); as well as Comps. R. Boughton Smith, M.E.Z.; Dr. Mowbray, Chapter, Melton Mowbray, 1130, P. Prov. G.D.C. Leicestershire; Tindsell, Alderman Carter, Harris, and Kilpin. The minutes of the last communication, including the auditor's report, having been read and duly confirmed, Comps. Stafford and Combs (nominated at the last chapter as A.S.s. by the P.S.) together with Comp. Thody, Organist, who was absent on the last occasion, were invested with the collar and jewel of their office. Comp. Bull, P.Z., then proposed and Comp. Cookson, M.E.Z., seconded and it was carried unanimously that Scribe E. be instructed to forward to Mrs. Little, a letter informing her of the sorrow with which the chapter had heard of the death of her husband and assuring her of the sympathy of its members with her in her bereavement. As may be remembered Comp. on Robert Wentworth Little was an honorary member of the Stuart Chapter having been unanimously elected on the first meeting of the members as a recognition of his fraternal services in having consecrated the chapter. Comp. Little visited the chapter once more afterwards when he went down to install in the chair of Z., the I.P.Z. Comp. Bull. As elsewhere, Comp. Little had endeared himself to the Bedford Companions by his Masonic skill and knowledge, and it was with most profound regret that they heard of the fatal termination of his long illness. There being no further business the chapter was duly closed and the companions sat down to supper, spending afterwards a very pleasant evening, enlivened by the capital singing of Companions Sergeant, Cookson, Stafford, and Harris.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Chapter (No. 874).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Royal Sussex Hotel, Tunbridge Wells. The chapter was opened by Comps. B. S. Wilmot, M.E.Z.; W. Delves, H.; W. Stephens, J. The companions having been admitted and the minutes read and confirmed, the report of the Committee of General Purposes was presented, and it was recommended that the founders clear off the small debt upon the same terms as the contribution for foundation was paid, which was carried unanimously. The election of officers then took place and resulted unanimously in favor of Comps. Stevens, M.E.Z.; W. Delves, H.; W. B. Bacon, J.; B. S. Wilmot, P.Z., Treasurer; R. W. Delves, Scribe, E.; A. D. M. Williams, S.N.; J. Baas, P.S.; C. Graham, 1st A.S. Soj.; G. Langridge, and Asst. Soj.; C. W. Holt, P.C.; J. H. Spencer, Janitor. All the business having been disposed of the chapter was closed in due form until the first Monday in October, when Comps. Stevens, Delves, and Bacon will be installed as the Principals for the ensuing year. The usual banquet was partaken of and the loyal and Masonic Toasts were given and responded to, and the companions separated after spending a very enjoyable evening.

GOSPORT.—Gosport Chapter (No. 903).—The regular quarterly meeting of this very promising young chapter was held at the India Arms Hotel, on Tuesday, the 4th inst. There were present M.E. Comps. H. Sleeman, Z.; G. F. Lancaster, H.; and H. M. Emanuel, P.Z., J. pro tem (in the unavoidable absence of Comp. J. Wallingford), also the officers and a goodly number of the companions, including visiting Comp. James Willmott, P.S. 343, who again kindly attended to assist by his presence in the working of a degree in which he takes so great an interest, and infuses so much energy and enthusiasm. After the minutes of the previous regular meeting had been confirmed, Bros. T. Batchelor and Alec Wright, of the Gosport Lodge, were unanimously elected, and exalted into this Sublime Degree, in a manner which reflected the highest possible credit on Comp. Sleeman, Z., for his impressive rendering of this beautiful ceremony. The historical, symbolical, and mystical lectures, peculiar to this degree, were successively given by Comps. S. Turney, G. F. Lancaster, and E. S. Main, P.Z.; the duty of P.S. being creditably performed by Comp. Powell, A.S., in the absence of the P.S., Comp. Hillyer. After some discussion of subjects anent the well being of the chapter, it was closed, and the companions adjourned from labour to refreshment. We congratulate Gosport Chapter on its progress, although consecrated by the Prov. Grand Superintendent, Comp. W. W. B. Beach, so recently as January, 1877, it has attained a degree of proficiency in its working which must be gratifying to all who love a sincere and feeling rendering of this beautiful ritual and ceremonial. The pecuniary outlay on forming a chapter is necessarily large, and it is satisfactory to find that in the short space of eighteen months, the chapter may be considered nearly out of debt. This is in a large measure due to a few beneficent honors, who are members of the chapter, among whom we must mention Comp. Turney and Lancaster, who are entitled to the lasting thanks of the companions.

ROCHDALE.—Lodge of Faith (No. 20).—The quarterly meeting of this M.M. lodge was held on Wednesday the 5th of June, and there was a very good attendance of the brethren, the officers present were Bros. John Partington, W.M.; Richard Gorton, S.W.; James Holt, J.W.; J. H. Barnish, M.O.; Henry Chadwick, S.O.; James Schofield, J.O.; P.M., C. M. Jones, Treasurer; P.M., Robert Colling, Secretary; James Hutchinson, S.D.; William Swift, J.D.; Geo. Wilson, I.G.; P.M., William Davies, Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 7.15 p.m., and the minutes of the previous lodge were read and put for confirmation and were carried unanimously. Bro. G.O. McOwen Rodds, Lodge 816, had been previously balloted for, but business prevented him from attending. Bro. Lawrence Nuttall, of Hope Lodge, 54, has also been previously balloted for and elected. Bro. James Dearden, Hope Lodge, 54, was balloted and duly elected; he presented himself and was regularly advanced to the honourable degree of M.M. by P.M. J. B. Ashworth, who went through the ceremony in a very satisfactory manner. After reading the communications and receiving hearty good wishes, the lodge was then closed in peace and harmony at 8.30 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was amply provided by the host and hostess in their usual elegant style. After the cloth was removed the W.M. took the chair and was well supported by his officers and brethren. The W.M. the proposed "The Health of the Queen." The W.M. next gave "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the Members of the Royal Family." The W.M. next gave "The M.W. Grand Mark Master Mason." He next gave "The R.W.D. Grand M.M. and the Rest of the Grand Officers." He then gave "The Health of the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. Grand Mark Master Mason, Lancashire." The S.W. proposed The Health of Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, Deputy Prov. Grand M.M.M." The J.W. gave "The Health of the Rest of the Provincial Grand Officers." "The Health of the newly advanced Brother" was then proposed and was nicely responded to. The Tyler then followed with the usual toast to all poor and distressed, &c. and the brethren separated in peace and good fellowship towards each other after having spent a pleasant evening.

HASTINGS.—East Sussex Lodge (No. 166)—A numerously attended meeting of this lodge was held at the Castle Hotel, on Tuesday, the 21st ult., when a large number of members of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge were present, amongst whom we noticed the following: Bros. T. Trollope, M.D., Deputy Prov. G.M.; G. Smith, P. Prov. G.M.W.; Joseph Braithwaite, P. Prov. G.M.W.; W. R. Wood, Prov. G.M.W.; T. S. Byass, M.D., Prov. G.M.; O. Richard Pidcock, Prov. G.M.; Registrar; Rev. Cave Browne-Cave, M.A., Prov. G.M. Chap.; C. R. Duke, Prov. G.M., D.C.; W. T. Clarke, Prov. G.M. Assist. Sec. Bros. A. L. Ward, H. F. Crosthwaite, C. G. Nairne, and J. Atterol were admitted to the degree, on the conclusion of which ceremony the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was opened. By the unanimous wish of the lodge, a letter of condolence was directed to be sent to the family of the late Prov. G.M. Master, Bro. Cunningham, M.D., whose inestimable worth and zealous labours for the furtherance of the interests of Freemasonry in all its branches are so well known to the Masonic world, and whose genial kindness and warmth of heart will for many a long year be remembered in every lodge throughout the province. Bro. Trollope, Deputy Prov. G.M. M., was, by the unanimous voice of the lodge, chosen as best fitted to occupy the position of the late Bro. Cunningham, and it was ordered that he be recommended to the Grand M. Master of England for election to the post of Prov. G.M. Master. The Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was then closed, and the East Sussex Mark Lodge was re-opened and the W.M. elect, Bro. Croucher, M.D., was installed with the customary honours. The newly-installed W.M. then chose his officers for the year, and the lodge was closed in due form. A banquet, numerously attended by visiting brethren from Provincial Grand Mark Lodge, and by the members of the East Sussex Mark Lodge, concluded the proceedings, and proved an agreeable termination to the more serious business of the day.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LIVERPOOL.—Skelmersdale Conclave (No. 77).—The annual assembly of the Knights holding rank under the banner of this conclave, was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on the evening of the 3rd inst. Sir Knight Cottrell, P.S., opened the conclave, and there was a fair attendance, including Ill. Sir Knight Major Turner, Int. Gen. W.L. (who performed the ceremony of enthronement); Ill. Sir Knight Dr. J. Kelleth Smith, Dep. Int. General, W.L.; Sir Knights J. T. Callow, P.S.; H. Jackson, P.S.; and James Skelly. Ill. Sir Knight Joseph Skeaf, was enthroned M.P. Sov., G.M.; Sir Knight R. H. Evans was installed V.E.; and the following officers were appointed and invested:—Sir Knights W. H. Cooper, S.G.; R. Reader, J.G.; J. Webster, H.P.; Thos. Ashmore, Treasurer (re-elected); A. C. Wylie, Recorder; J. M. Russell, Prefect; T. B. Brown, Standard Bearer; W. Irwin, Orator; Hunter, Herald; and P. Ball, Sentinel. The assembled Knights subsequently adjourned to the refectory for refreshment.

PROVINCIAL FUNDS.

We like from time to time, to lay before our brethren a financial précis of the Provincial Balance-sheets, and we take up to-day that of a very distinguished province, namely, East Lancashire, and we are glad to do so for a special reason, which will be seen later on. East Lancashire begun 1878 with

Balance March, 31, 1878	750	7	3
From Lodges and Fees	568	5	6
Dividends	90	13	11
Banker's Interest	10	14	4
	£1420	1	0

There were expended

	£	s.	d.
In Donations to the R.M.B. Institution	300	0	0
" to the E. L. Sytematic M.E. and Ben. Institution	300	0	0
Local Grants for Relief	42	10	0
Prov. Grand Secretary	250	0	0
Printing and other Expenses	159	15	9
Balance	367	13	3
	£1420	1	0

Now, this Balance sheet is very remarkable for the fact that nearly one-half, or 50 per cent., of the income has been spent in Masonic charity:—£642 10s. We feel bound, therefore, to hold up the example of East Lancashire to the imitation of all our provinces, and to the admiration and recognition of all members of the Order. There is no great use, that we can see, in keeping large balances at our bankers'. Let our Masonic income be spent in the relief of local and Masonic indigence, and of general Masonic charity. We greatly admire the Masonic spirit of our good brethren in East Lancashire.

THE CONTEST FOR THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

This contest, which is just now very lively, seems to promise to assume larger proportions than has ever been known in its previous history. Probably a larger number of Life Governors will record their votes, than have ever yet been known, and it seems at this moment most difficult to predicate who will be the successful candidate. We believe that we are expressing the feeling of all true friends to the Institution when we say, that we hope that the best man, absolutely, be he who he may, will succeed, that the most thoroughly qualified candidate will obtain the majority of votes. Such appointments ought not, under any circumstances to be attained, either by the undecorous eagerness of a clique or the underhand manifestations of a job, but should be awarded to merit, to experience, and to the most competent. Unfortunately, as we all know too well, in the affairs of the world, in the transactions of this life, personal influence and private interest too often favour an antagonistic and countervailing power as against the claims of the meritorious and the efforts of the qualified. Far too many of the arrangements of our public institutions are made in a haphazard way, and depend rather on the leanings and activity of personal idiosyncrasies, than on any abstract principles of justice, right, or even common sense. Without attempting to-day to anticipate what the verdict of our Masonic jury on July 11th will be, without seeking to favour this or that special candidate, we surely cannot be doing wrong in reiterating our hope and wish, that the election will not be influenced by any private or personal considerations, but will honestly seek to put the right man in the right place, to select the candidate who, humanly speaking, is the best fitted for the important duties he has to perform. Shall we be found fault with if we either attempt to sketch out shortly our idea of what the Secretary of the Girls' School should be? Considering the peculiar nature of the Institution of which he is to be Secretary, he must in the first place be a man of unblemished character, and morally looked up to and regarded by all his brethren. He should be a religiously minded man, no bigot or fanatic, but one whose practical religiousness is best shown forth in the kindness, gentleness, affability, and consideration of all his words and ways. He must be a good man of business, conversant with the technical duties of his office, and modest in demeanour, if firm in principle, and must never forget that he is the Secretary, and as such, amenable to the superior authority of the House and General Committee. If in addition to all this, he is a good Mason, and thoroughly imbued with the kindly, fraternal, tolerant principles of our benevolent Order, he will find, not only the greatest pleasure in advancing the interests of the Girls' School, but by his genial temperament and zealous efforts, he will render himself acceptable to the many friends of the Institution and best advance the claims of the great and lasting characteristic of our fraternity—Charity! We do not think that it is absolutely necessary that the Secretary should be a man of "many words" or versatile talent, an eloquent orator, or a "buon camarado." All these things, not to be blamed in their way, are in our opinion subservient far to the higher qualifications of amability of temper, integrity of life, those pleasant traits in a man's character, which make him alike, loved, respected, and confided in by his fellow men. If some may be disposed to say we create too high an "ideal," if others may think we seek to erect too lofty a standard, let them remember, that in life we always ought to advance and to reform, and that the emphatic motto of true Freemasonry is ever "Excelsior." Let us hope that July 11th will witness the election of a Secretary to the Girls' School, who may enjoy alike the entire approval of the authorities of the School, and the warm adhesion of the Craft.

THE CHESHIRE EDUCATIONAL MASONIC INSTITUTION.

We should have alluded to this interesting report last week, but a press of other matters kept our "Leader" out. The Institution is able to boast of much material prosperity, whereat we truly rejoice, inasmuch as we consider all such provincial institutions, a step in the right direction, though the "step," in our opinion, does not go far enough. The Society has now £3000 funded property, having been 15 years in existence, and its annual income and expenditure are as follows: It ended 1876 with a balance of £476 6s. and has since received in fees, donations, and subscriptions from lodges, £328 11s. 6d.; interest of funded property £117 5s. 3d.; and Miscellaneous, (including two Masonic balls and an amateur performance) £60 1s.; in all £975 17s. 7d. It has expended in payments for "Education of sixteen children, £97 5s. 8d.; and payments for advancement of five, £24 9s. 7d. It has disbursed for printing and small expenses £34 7s. 1d. It has invested £335 5s. and had a balance of £464 8s. at the close of 1877. We note that the payments for the children vary, (mainly according to age), from £2 3s. 9d. the lowest, to £10 10s. the highest, and that the average amount is £6 per head. So in the payments for advancement, the amount varies from £6 5s. 11d. to £4 3s. 11d. and the average amount to £4 17s. 0d. and a fraction. There is no doubt a good deal to be said, especially from the economical side of it, as regards the limitation of provincial educational work, but we have always thought that the time might come when our provincial educational Institutions might become preparatory schools (conducted on one principle) for our great Metropolitan Academies. This may be a dream of the future, and our younger brethren may live to see it realized, but in the meanwhile we welcome all provincial and all local effort to ensure that the children of our deceased brethren receive the inestimable advantage of a sound and good education. One question we should like to have answered, "what steps are taken to see that the children do receive a befitting education."

ANOTHER TERRIBLE COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

The most appalling disaster that has occurred in the history of British coal mining, with the solitary exception of that which happened at the Oaks Colliery, Barnsley, in 1866, occurred at the collieries of Messrs. Richard Evans and Co., Haydock, about seven miles from Wigan. The firm employs several thousands of hands, and their chief offices are in the centre of a thickly-populated village, situated a short distance from Earlstown Junction, on the Manchester and Liverpool section of the London and North-Western Railway. The village, which, although very neat and clean for a colliery village, still possesses many of the dusky characteristics of its class, is about a quarter of a mile distant, and, in extending their operations to the Wood Pits, the colliery proprietors have mined a piece of wooded country, and the head gearing is on one or two sides hid from view by the trees among which it is situated. The principal charge of these extensive collieries is in the hands of Mr. Chadwick, a gentleman of very large experience in mining, who had among his staff several certificated managers, and who has had for many years the reputation of being one of the most accomplished mining engineers of the district. Thus speaks the Times on Saturday last, and most mournful is the account of this appalling disaster. Though 250 miners were said to be "down" at the time of the explosion, this account is not quite correct, though it is to be feared that 180 poor fellows at least have laid down their lives. The question must occur to us all, can science do nothing to mitigate the effect and avert the possibility of such terrific explosions? The account of the distress of the families is very heart-rending, the record of the gallantry of those who volunteered to go down most affecting.

THE ELECTION OF SECRETARY TO THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

We are happy in being permitted to state that we understand the Great Hall of the Freemasons' Tavern is secured for the election, a fact which will be hailed by all, and we trust that we shall not be deemed presumptuous in suggesting to the authorities of the Girls' School that arrangements should be made to simplify the process of verifying the qualified voters, and distributing the voting papers. In the Great Hall each of the Committees can have a separate table.

ELECTION OF SECRETARY, GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you allow me on behalf not only of Bro. Paul Storr, one of the candidates, but equally in the interest of those who intend to put themselves to the amiable trouble of attending at Freemasons' Hall on the 11th of July to vote, to respectfully offer a suggestion, or rather two suggestions.

The first is that, looking at the short hours of polling, 2 to 5, the alphabet should be broken into at least six divisions, with a polling place to each.

The second is, if anything, more important. We highly value our Lady Governors, and of these I am in a position to say that Bro. Storr numbers many among his supporters. Probably other candidates do the like.

Let there be a separate and easily accessible polling place for ladies only. So shall they be encouraged to come, be freed from crowding or inconvenience, and go away with a better opinion of Freemasonry than ever.

I am, fraternally yours, JOHN B. MONCKTON.

ANNUAL RETURNS TO GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Last week, happening to be in town for the Derby, I seized the opportunity to attend the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge. After the business, I had the curiosity to look over the register books in the ante-room, more particularly as regards the nineteen lodges in the province to which I belong. That inspection, I am ashamed to confess, let in daylight on serious dereliction of duty on the part of newly installed Masters and newly appointed Secretaries of at least half-a-dozen lodges of the nineteen I refer to, inasmuch as annual returns do not appear to have been made of the Masters, Wardens, and Past Masters, for periods varying from two to eighteen years. Will it be believed that one of the lodges so neglectful of its duty, or ignorant of the "Book of Constitutions," is over a century old, and has more than a hundred subscribing members? Another lodge, whose warrant dates from 1860, does not appear to have made a single return! Supposing any present officer or Past Master not returned to the Grand Secretary, were to present himself at Grand Lodge, and be refused admission, who would be to blame? May I be permitted to give the important clause bearing on the subject, viz., pp. 66 and 67, 8vo edition, "Book of Constitutions":—"25. Each lodge shall annually make a return to the Grand Secretary of the Masters, Wardens, and Past Masters, of the lodge and of all members who claim to be entitled to attend the Grand Lodge as Past Masters, having served the office of Master in some other lodge, specifying the lodge in which each of them has served the office of Master, and no brother shall be permitted to attend the Grand Lodge unless his name shall appear in such return."

I am not aware whether any other provinces are oblivious of the existence of the above rule; but, at all events, as regards my own province, I shall feel it my duty to mention the subject at our very next meeting.

Very fraternally yours,

A. P.M. AND PROVINCIAL OFFICER.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you, or any of your numerous readers, favour me, an American brother, with a reply to the following queries:—

First. Whether Dr. Birdwood's "Hand-Book to the Indian Court of the Paris Exhibition" is on sale, and if so, the price.

Second. Can some of your Correspondents give us the derivation of the word "Aryan," and what it strictly alludes to. I often see it used, but have never been able to find a clear and satisfactory definition of it.

Yours fraternally,

W. W. A.

[The following two letters, which originally appeared in and were addressed to the Times, appear to deserve preservation in the pages of the Freemason.]

THE LETTER "H."

Sir,—I am afraid that the beautiful county of Worcester, far more deserving of the title of the "Garden of England" than either Kent or Herefordshire, must be held to be the cunabula of the offences of omission and of commission against the letter "h."

I was nearly five years at Bromsgrove School, and the following lines appeared somewhere about that time in one of the Worcester papers:—

"THE COMPLAINT OF THE LETTER H TO THE INHABITANTS OF WORCESTERSHIRE.

"Whereas by you I have been driven

"From Hope, from Home, from House, from Heaven,

"And placed by your most learn'd Society

"In exile, anguish, and anxiety,

"I hereby ask full restitution,

"And beg you'll mend your elocution."

To which the following rejoinder appeared in the next week's paper:—

"Whereas we've rescued you, ingrate,

"From Hell, from Horror, and from Hate,

"From hedgebill, horsepond, and from halter,

"And consecrated you in Altar,

"We think you need no restitution,

"And shall not mend our elocution."

I rather incline to think that they have kept to their determination and have been as good as their word.

"Floreat semper Fidelis Civitas."

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

F. O. MORRIS.

Nunburnholme Rectory, Hayton, York.

EASILY CAUGHT.

Sir,—Will you kindly suffer a word of warning to those in search of cooks?

About a fortnight ago, in answer to an advertisement in The Times, a respectable, middle-aged female presented herself at our vicarage. She was, according to her own description, what we had been longing for and sighing after for many weary years—perfectly au fait at dairy work, breadmaking, and plain cooking, with an inveterate hostility to beer, spirits, and followers on the kitchen premises, a paragon of perfection, in short, for £25 a year, everything included. Somewhat inexperienced in the ways of a wicked world, she had started from Eastbourne that day, and, as they would not book her farther than Hastings, she had spent all her money and was left high and dry at our vicarage with an empty purse and no return-ticket. Being tender-hearted, compassionate people in our humble way, we obligingly gave her a good dinner, left her the superintendence of our spoons and forks while in consultation together, and, rather than that she should walk all the way back to Eastbourne, my wife made her a parting present of 14s., second-class fare, as our newly-found friend could not endure the rough company that usually travelled third. Would you believe it, Sir, this paragon of perfection, this domestic treasure, to whom the dairy work of six cows was but a trifling recreation—a pleasant interlude in the midst of life's sterner duties—turns out to have been an arrant impostor? The lady to whom she gave a reference for a seven years' character existed only in her ardent imagination. The vicar of the parish who a fortnight ago buried her mother repudiated her with scorn, and finally, to crown all, a letter addressed to Miss Evans herself

—this is the treasure's name—is returned endorsed "Not known." The next paragon that appears may walk to Jericho if she likes, but I scarcely think that her expenses en route will at the present be defrayed by

A COUNTRY VICAR.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creaton, V.P. and Trustee, presided. There were also present: Bros. Dr. Jabez Hogg, J. G. Stevens, J. Newton, Charles G. Hill, Jas. Willing, jun., S. Rawson, Erasmus Wilson, G. Bolton, Thos Cubitt, Charles John Percival L. Stean, H. Massey (Freemason), and James Terry (Sec.) Bro. Terry read the following report of the House Committee to the Committee of Management:

"The House Committee desire to report that on the 7th May some of the stewards of the late Festival visited the Institution, and, after inspecting the building, were entertained at luncheon by various members who were present to receive them. Upon the occasion they were pleased to express their high gratification at witnessing the comfort of the residents and the admirable order of the building and grounds. That on the 31st May they again visited the Institution, with the secretary, and paid the annuities. They availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by this visit of presenting to Dr. Strong, the honorary surgeon, the testimonial voted to him at the last committee meeting, which consisted of a service of plate, and was very kindly presented by Col. Creaton on behalf of the committee, and graciously acknowledged by Dr. Strong. They have also to report that D. Hazbitt, the new gardener, commenced work on the 3rd inst., and seems to be a useful man. The residents are all in a good state of health considering their advanced years. The Institution is in a thorough state of repair, and, as far as can be foreseen, will not require for some time any considerable outlay to keep it so.

(Signed) J. CREATON.

Croydon, May 3rd, 1878."

Bros. John Hervey, Benjamin Head, Col. Creaton, W. Hale, and H. G. Warren, were re-elected the Finance Committee. The election of the House Committee resulted in the return of Bros. Benjamin Head, Col. Creaton, Raynham W. Stewart, J. A. Farnfield, and C. J. Percival.

Half her late husband's annuity was presented to a widow, and Bro. Terry obtained the leave of the committee for the use of the hall at the Institute at Croydon for the summer entertainment to the inmates.

Leave of absence was granted to several of the annuitants who desire to visit their friends at this season; after which Bro. Wm. Stephens gave notice that he should move that a life-governorship of the Institution should be presented to Bro. Cutbush, in recognition of his kindness and liberality in giving the Institution in the course of the last three years about £100 worth of flowers, &c., for the garden.

Bro. Erasmus Wilson gave notice that he would move that an alteration be made in rules 22, 23, 24, 25, and 26, so as to alter the donations to the Institution to guineas instead of pounds.

A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

FREEMASONRY IN PORTSMOUTH.—We understand a few zealous and experienced Masons contemplate the founding of a new lodge of Freemasons near the Commercial-road, Landport for the convenience of brethren residing in that locality, and a desire to spread the principles of Masonry in this large and thriving borough. We hope they may be successful in their application and endeavour to emulate the successful working and practice of benevolence as is done in those lodges which are established and so well known.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX.

—A meeting of this Grand Lodge takes place at the Greyhound Hotel, Hampton Court, this (Saturday) afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Banquet at 6, with Col. Francis Burdett, P.G.S.W., R.W. Grand Master in the chair. The musical arrangement are in the hands of Bro. T. C. Walls, S.W. 1381, G. Org. Middx. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Mr. George Henry Savage, M.D. University London, L.R.C.P. London, has been appointed President physician and medical superintendent of the Royal Hospital of Bethlehem, at £700 per annum, pupils fees, furnished residence, &c., vice Williams, appointed a Commissioner in Lunacy; Mr. George Davis, L.R.C.P. London, M.R.C.S. England, has been appointed resident obstetric assistant to the Westminster Hospital, vice Horner, whose appointment has expired.

We learn from Wednesday's City Press that the funeral of the late Bro. E. S. Stillwell took place at Highgate on Saturday. The mourners were Bro. Stillwell's sons and other members of his family, and Bro. Alderman Knight; and amongst those who attended to show their respect for the deceased were many members of the Common Council, besides the managers, foremen, and workpeople from the establishments in Barbican and Little Britain.

THE ROMANCE OF HISTORY.

There are many remarkable romances in history which, though they appeal to our belief and acceptance as venerable "Sagas" of the past, yet we are unable to substantiate them by the accurate enquiries of this critical age. Without going so far as Sir Robert Walpole, and dubbing all history mendacious, we can, we think, afford to reconsider calmly to-day, (in the admirable temper, for instance, of the late lamented Sir George Cornwall Lewis,) some of the cherished traditions of ages, some well-known assertions of bygone days, some of the legends of the bards, and the averments of the chroniclers which delighted us when we were young, have accompanied us in maturer years, and to which we still cling when we are old and weary with the race. For instance, here is a question which just now interests us all as patriots and Freemasons, "was Joan of Arc really burnt at Rouen?" Monsignor Dupanloup, the able opponent of our order, has very skilfully put forward the "patriot and martyred virgin," as a set-off against the Sceptic and Freemason Voltaire!

Well, abstractedly it is a good "set-off," if we take into consideration the "essential condition" and the "eternal fitness of things" and we do not profess to be at all concerned in this resuscitation of Voltairian memory, neither are we at all prepared to express any approval of his slight connection with French Freemasonry. We cannot think, we are sorry if we displease any, that the name of Voltaire brings any credit to Freemasonry. For in our Order we do not profess to admire or to admit sarcastic scoffers or noisy sceptics. We ask—we demand from all our acolytes, on the contrary, a reverent and reasonable belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. and, making every allowance for the inevitable process of "reaction" on the mind of Voltaire and many more, arising out of Ultramontane destructiveness, we cannot admire the tone and temper of his writings, but are rather always reminded in them of the well-known line.

"And fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

But when Monsignor Dupanloup thus opposes Voltaire the "unbelieving and unpatriotic," as he asserts, to the "Martyred Virgin," criticism comes in with its sterner query at once. Is the fact, qua a fact, a fact at all? Is it positively true? Is it historically provable? Was Joan of Arc really burnt? As patriotic Englishmen and Freemasons we shall rejoice if this stain on our national history, (for stain it is if true), could be removed; and we are too practical and too religious, even, to waste our time amending over unreal occurrences and erroneous legends. If the judicial murder of Joan of Arc be a national or denominational myth, let it at once be given up by all who value historical truth and critical certainty, not even excepting the Bishop of Orleans, and let us surrender, if perhaps, with a sigh, another pleasant but unverifiable "Romance of History."

Mr. E.A. Viles, in the Times of Thursday last states that the Abbé Lenglet, in his "Histoire de Jeanne d'Arc," 1753, says that La Pucelle made her appearance at Metz some time after her supposed execution, where she was received with due honours, "was acknowledged by her two brothers, Jean and Pierre d'Arc, and was married to a gentleman of the house of Armoise, in 1436. At their solicitation her sentence was annulled in 1456.

But the truth is that so early as 1683, a letter appeared in the French "Mercure Galant," in the month of November, addressed to Monsieur de Grammont, which stated that Joan of Arc, the "Pucelle d'Orleans," did not suffer death at Rouen on the 30th May, 1431, but having escaped, married in 1436 a Sieur d'Armoises or Robert des Hermoises, and had a family. This was stated on the authority of a MS., afterwards printed, called the "Chronicle of Metz," composed by the Curate de St. Thiebault, of that city and coming down to 1445.

Father Calmet inserted it in his history of Lorraine, and it has always been looked upon as authentic and genuine. How then to explain this historical problem? Is it really a true narrative, or a taking romance? It is undoubtedly that more than one impostor personated Joan of Arc, one of whom was recognized by the King.

The King, too, whose intimacy with Joan before she fell into the hands of the English was well known, is stated to have recognised her, as her brothers had done, and received her with these words:—"Pucelle, m'amie, soyez la tres bien revenue au nom de Dieu!" She is then said to have knelt at his Majesty's feet and communicated to him the artifice by which she had escaped.

But as this story is also told of an impostor we cannot lay much stress upon it.

It is asserted that the English allowed Joan of Arc to escape and substituted a female criminal for her. Certain it is, that in the Register of Orleans, payment is made between 1435 and 1436 to a certain "Renaud Brune," on the 25th of July, for letters from "Johan la Pucelle."

A contract for sale in 1436 is said by Father Vignier, of the Oratory, who wrote the letter above mentioned in 1683, to have been read by him, as of the first part, by Robert des Hermoises, Lord of Trichemont, and Jeanne du Lis, La Pucelle de France.

There are also in the register of Orleans, various presents and refreshments on the 28th, 29th, and 30th July, 1439, to "Dame Jehanne des Armoises," and on the 1st August, 1439, after "deliberation made by the Council of the City, and for the services rendered by her to the said city during the siege," a present is given to Jehanne de Armoises of 210 livres.

Curiously enough, on the eve of the "Fête Dieu," 1439, nine pounds of wax are paid for for the "obsequies of the defunct Jehanne la Pucelle," but no similar account is found in 1440. This was previous to the re-entry in Orleans of Jehanne d'Armoises. In 1443, Charles, Duke of Orleans, in a deed to Peter du Lis, brother of La Pucelle talks of her "absence," not of her "death."

Then on the other hand, there are many works professing to give the account of her accusation, trial, and death, and there are no less than twelve MSS. in the Royal Library at Paris, which record these facts. There are also eight MSS. giving an account of her absolution by papal authority; there are also nine MSS. giving her general history.

It may be noted that the Abbé Lenglet Dufrenoy's work mentioned by Mr. Viles was founded really on a MS. history of "Edmond Richer, a Doctor of the Sorbonne, Paris." There are several printed prose and poetical histories of Joan of Arc. The earliest in MS. seems to be of date 1432, the earliest prose about 1553. Artezian, who was Secretary to the Duke of Orleans, has left a poem in MS., written about 1435; giving a full account of Jeanne, but he merely says "God at length perceiving that France could maintain herself, deprived the kingdom of the assistance of Jeanne." He gives this latin epitaph

Tanta erat pudor huic et tanta modestia ut ipsa
Esse Videretur miræ Lucretia famæ.

Lord Stanhope, in his "Historical Essays" seems to think that the lady who married the "Sire des Armoises" was an "impostor," but he adds, alluding to the facts and documents already quoted, "these documents appear of undoubted authenticity, yet we are wholly unable to explain them."

The brothers of Joan of Arc might possibly have had hopes of profit by the fraud, but how the people of Orleans, who had seen her so closely, who had fought side by side with her in the siege, could be deceived, we cannot understand, nor yet what motive they could have in deceiving."

Lord Stanhope evidently, however, accepts the historical truth of Joan of Arc's condemnation. We confess that we somewhat doubt, but still we must also bear in mind, that the tendency of the day is to doubt everything, and that this supposed re-appearance of the "Pucelle" is explainable after all, perhaps as a Roman Catholic "Fraus Pia."

After what we have stated, however, some of our readers may not think that Monsignor Dupanloup's facts are quite so certain or incontestable as he seems to think evidently that they are.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

The summer half yearly meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Market Harborough, on Wednesday, May 20th, when a large number of representatives both of the local and other lodges in the province assembled to welcome the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, on the occasion of his first visit to the St. Peter's Lodge, No. 1330, since its consecration.

The Craft lodge having been opened by the W.M., Bro. Dr. F. Grant, P.P.G.D., the Prov. Grand Master and his officers entered, and on his lordship taking the chair he was saluted with the customary honours.

Amongst those present were Bros. G. Toller, jun., P.G. S.B., as D.P.G.M.; W. B. Smith, Prov. G.S.W.; J. C. Duncombe as Prov. J.G.W.; Rev. F. Richardson, Prov. G. Chap.; S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Sec.; T. Cooke, Prov. G. S. of W.; S. Cleaver, Prov. A.G.D.C.; G. T. Willan, Prov. G.S.B.; M. H. Lewin, Prov. G. P.; E. R. Cust, Prov. A.G.P.; Webb and Gibson, Prov. G. Stwds.; Rev. W. Langley, P.P.S.G.W.; Rev. J. F. Halford, P.P.G.C.; Dr. T. Macauley, P.P.G.S.D.; C. E. Stretton, and R. Dalgleish, P.P.G. Sups. of Works; Dr. J. Hunt and R. Boughton-Smith, P.P.A.G. Dirs. of Cers.; J. R. Douglass, P.P.G. Reg.; and A. M. Duff, P.P.G.D. Visitor: Bro. E. J. Orford, P.P.G.S.W. Norths and Hunts.

The Prov. Grand Lodge having been opened, the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, and the other routine business disposed of, the report of the Provincial Charity Committee was read by Bro. Dr. Langley, the Hon. Sec. The report, after speaking of the successful result of the efforts of the Committee, in supporting the application of a local candidate for the Girls' School, and the arrangements made for promoting the case of a boy candidate, son of the lately deceased Prov. G.D.C., at the October election, concluded with a reference to the continued and increasing interest taken in this province in the central Masonic Charities, the liberality evinced by the large contributions made to the Boys' School in 1877 having being equally displayed during the present year on behalf of the Girls' School, which Institution received at its recent Festival, donations from Leicestershire and Rutland amounting to the sum £233 16s. Upon the proposition of Bro. Duncombe, seconded by Bro. Duff, the report was unanimously adopted.

Votes of thanks were passed to Bros. W. J. Hughson, P. G.D. of England, and Colonel Basevi, Secretary of the Gloucestershire Charity Committee, for valuable assistance rendered in the case of Dora Bolton, the local candidate for the Girls' School at the election in April last. Bro. Toller in proposing these votes of thanks referred to the advantageous position in which the Province was placed in consequence of the establishment of the Charity Committee, and of the arrangements entered into with other Provinces for the lending and exchanging of votes, by means of which a local candidate was successful on her first application at the recent election, and a considerable reserve of votes still remained available for a case for the Boys' School next October.

A donation from the Charity Fund was voted to a brother, who from losses and illness was in deep distress, and whose application for assistance was supported by the Charity Committee.

Bros. C. Stretton, P.P.G.W., and Dr. J. Hunt were unanimously re-elected as representatives of the Provincial Grand Lodge on the Committee of the Leicester Masonic Hall.

A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. Partridge for his services as Charity Steward for the Province at the recent festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. Partridge in acknowledging the vote expressed his great obligations to Bros. Macauley and Willan, and other members of the Provincial Charity Committee for the efficient assistance they had rendered to him in their respective lodges in canvassing for subscriptions and generally in supporting him in his appeals to the brethren on behalf of the Institutions he had represented, and alluded with feelings of pride and gratification to the fact that during the last two years, the small province of Leicester and Rutland, having a muster roll of under 400 brethren, had contributed to the funds of the Boys' and Girls' Institutions the very liberal sum of nearly £650.

Apologies for absence from the P.P.G.M., Bro. Kelly, Bro. C. Stretton, P.P.G.W., (Mayor of Leicester); Bro. W. Hardy, Prov. G.J.W., and others, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in the usual form.

An excellent banquet was afterwards served by the worthy host of the Three Swans Hotel, Bro. Armstrong, at which the Provincial Grand Master presided, and the proceedings generally were of a most satisfactory character, the admirable arrangements of the local reception Committee adding greatly to the comfort of the brethren and the general success of the meeting.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught, attended by Colonel Ellis and Sir Howard Elphinstone, left London for Paris on Friday last. Their Royal Highnesses were received at the South-Eastern Company's station at Charing-cross by Sir Edward Watkin, M.P., the chairman, and travelled by special train, which was under the charge of Mr. John Shaw, the general manager, leaving at 8 25 p.m., and arriving at Dover at 10 15 p.m. The special steamer Maid of Kent, Captain Pittcock, left the Admiralty pier a few minutes after the arrival of the train for Calais. Their Royal Highnesses proceeded to Paris by the mail train at 1 20 a.m., and travelled in the saloon carriage of the South-Eastern Company, which has been specially fitted up for the Prince of Wales's accommodation. The arrangements were under the direction of Mr. Kanne, the director of Royal journeys. In the same train there travelled the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, the Duke of Hamilton, the Marquis of Hartington, Sir Augustus Paget, Lord Calthorpe, Colonel Reilly, Colonel Kingscott, and Admiral Glyn.

THE FREEMASONS' LIFEBOATS.

The Masons' lifeboat, stationed at Hope Cove, on the coast of Devonshire, is to be publicly launched at Kingsbridge-to-morrow (Thursday), under the auspices of the Freemasons resident in the West of England. It is one of the two lifeboats presented by the English Masons to the National Institution to testify their loyal gratification at the safe return from India of their Grand Master, the Prince of Wales. Their other lifeboat is stationed at Clacton-on-Sea, and the ceremony of public naming and launching that boat is also to take place shortly under grand auspices. It may be mentioned that the lifeboats are respectively 34 feet and 35 feet long; they row 10 oars, double banked, and possess the usual characteristics of the boats of the Institution in regard to self-righting, self-ejecting, &c. It is expected that Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales, who are receiving their nautical education on board her Majesty's ship Britannia, stationed at Dartmouth, will be present to name the Hope Cove lifeboat the Alexandra, after their mother, the Princess of Wales. It may be here stated that the Institution has now 268 lifeboats under its management, 36 of which are stationed on the coasts of Devon and Cornwall. Not a winter passes without some of these boats rendering important service in saving life from shipwreck on these iron-bound coasts.—Daily News, June 12th.

THE REMEMBRANCER.—The office of Remembrancer of the City of London has become vacant by the resignation, after 14 years' service, of Mr. William Corrie, who, before his appointment, was one of the stipendiary police magistrates of the metropolis. His predecessor, Mr. Edward Tyrrell, is still living, and in receipt of a handsome allowance from the Corporation. The duties of the office are partly Parliamentary and partly ceremonial, and involve daily attendance at the House of Commons during the sitting of Parliament, and the constant watching of all measures introduced or proposed which may be likely to affect the interests or privileges of the City. The Remembrancer enjoys the privilege of a seat within the House itself. The ceremonial duties are in connection with the presentation of addresses to the Royal Family and communications with the Government. It is understood in the City that the City solicitor (Mr. Nelson) will be a candidate for the more agreeable, though slightly less remunerative office of Remembrancer, and, if so, his success is almost certain, but there are other competitors in the field, including Bros. Macrae Moir, Mr. A. Turner, Captain Pim, M.P., and others.

The Athenæum says it is understood that the Postal Congress held the other day at Paris has agreed on an amended treaty to come in force on the 1st of April next, by which the limit of weight of books to be carried by the Postal Union Mails is raised from 2lb. to 4lb. Nothing appears to have been agreed upon that will hamper free delivery by post in America of English books. This will probably lead, sooner or later, to the abolition of duty levied by the United States on books.

THE BOOK OF THE LAW OF THE GRAND COM-MANDERY OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR OF PENNSYLVANIA, 1878.

This is a well printed collection of the laws of Pennsylvanian Templary—which we are pleased to receive and glad to peruse. Perhaps, they have not much interest for any but Masonic Knights Templar, but be that as it may, we are not so bigoted (for Craft Masons are always tolerant) but that we may take an interest in somewhat analogous systems, and quasi-Masonic coteries. The "High Grades," as they are called, (though we think the word a misnomer), exist, and it is idle affectation to ignore the fact, that they are both well "thought of," and sincerely esteemed, by many most excellent Masons. We think, as we have often said, the term "High Grades" a misnomer, inasmuch, as according to our views, pure Craft Masonry is the highest and most ancient of all. For Christian Masonry, though we do not belong to it, we have, what it has a right to expect and claim, all courtesy and all consideration.

SINGING. An Essay: By Bro FREDERIC PENNA. Tinsley Brothers, 8, Catherine-street, Strand.

Bro. Penna, (we understand he is a member of our Order), well known as an artist of no mean celebrity, has put together a few hints on "The Art of Singing," which we have run through, unfortunately, owing to much work, perhaps too cursorily. Still, though not "professed musicians," or even "accomplished amateurs," we are enabled to say that the little work is both sensible and practical, is well conceived and well written, deserves perusal and demands consideration. It handles a confessedly very difficult, nay, intricate subject, with great clearness and good effect, and is, in our opinion, better worth reading than many other more ambitious works on so abstruse and yet harmonious a subject. Pleasant souvenirs crowd before us, as we write, of an animated band of would-be songsters who made melody in "days of old" with touching refrains and happy glees, and ever delighted the "sterner sense" in a good old ancient city in a classical close of an estimable professor of Divinity, who has found a few weeks back his "honoured rest." If music bath charms to soothe the savage breast," if music can lighten sorrow and mitigate care, the good advice of Professor Penna, giving us safe maxims and sound counsels on its "ups and downs," on its "quavers and its crotchets," its "bars" and its "movements," should be gratefully welcomed and warmly patronised. KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA. Edited by the Rev. A. F. A. WOODFORD, M.A. (Kenning.)

The greater part of this volume we must be content to take on trust, but there are parts which an outsider may criticise. Euclid i. 47, it may be remarked, is not a problem at all, however "striking and beautiful," and it certainly is not called the "pons asinorum." The book, however, is a laborious compilation, and includes a great variety of information which, whatever its value, is certainly curious, and often not without interest. The world may be glad to have a description of "Freemasonry" from one who may be presumed to be an authority. It is "an art founded on the principles of geometry, and directed to the service and convenience of mankind." So far, the definition would do for land surveying. "It may also be termed a science, as it teaches us alike the laws of self-government and self-restraint, and inculcates the abiding need of intellectual culture and self-improvement, forbearance and fortitude, toleration and truth. It is also the setting-forth of social harmony and personal virtue, and aims at the loving fellowship of brethren and the peaceful progress of mankind.—The Spectator

THE BERLIN PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY.—This establishment, which is situated at No. 5, Rathbone Place, Oxford Street, and which is under the direction of Mr. I. Gerson, is probably well known to many of our readers as a convenient place where they may procure photographic reproductions of all sorts and sizes for their albums; but they may not be equally aware of the importance of some of the works which have been thus reproduced under Mr. Gerson's direction, and which are, colour excepted, absolute facsimiles of celebrated originals, being the full size of the pictures from which they are taken. Among these we may mention, from the Dresden Gallery, "The Sleeping Venus," "The Reclining Venus," "The Lady with a Vase," of Titian; "The last Judgment," of Rubens; and the "Virgin and Child," of Holbein; and, from the Berlin Museum, portraits by F. Hals, &c., Vandyke's "Entombment," and Rubens' "Raising of Lazarus." These are only a few among a number of masterpieces which have been thus reproduced, and which form most appropriate ornaments for halls and other places where there is plenty of wall-space, the prices, moreover, being very reasonable compared with their intrinsic value. Among the modern works in the Company's collection we may note "The Proclamation of the German Empire at Versailles, Jan. 18th 1871," a picture by H. Von Werner, which was presented to Emperor William on his birthday last year, and a series of recently-executed photographs, by Loescher and Petsch, of Berlin, of His Majesty, the Crown Prince, Prince Bismarck, and Count Moltke. Next, we would call attention to an admirable humorous series of sketches from "The Merry Wives of Windsor," by Grützner; to "A Pic-Nic," in which the young folks are imitating the festive proceedings of their elders, by L. Knaus; and to "The Dancing Master," by Vautier, an artist highly appreciated in Germany, but not so well known here as Knaus. Riefstahl's "Pantheon of Agrippa," Bokelmann's "Pawnshop," Treidler's "Francis I. refusing to Sign the Treaty of Pavia," and Henneberg's "Pursuit of Fortune," are all, in their several styles, well deserving of notice, and numbers of others remain of equal merit, to which, for want of space, we are unable to refer.—Graphic.

Multum in Parvo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

THE PARIS LODGES.

Since last I wrote, by the courtesy of Bro. John Hervey, our esteemed and excellent Grand Secretary, whose readiness to oblige we all have so many proofs of, I have seen the Grand Lodge minutes of the last century. The lodges struck off in 1768 were the Lodge 49, a la Ville de Tonerre, Rue des Boucheries a Paris, founded April 3, 1733, and the Lodge at Aubigny, in France, No. 73, founded August 12, 1735. It is evident to me that no other lodge but the lodge warranted in 1732 was founded in Paris, or emanated from our English Grand Lodge. But if the French argument be correct, and the actions of the French Grand Orient legal in the Mauritius, then the English Grand Lodge has the right of prior occupation in France, and may grant warrants to English Masons in France, who have a right to select the jurisdiction they most affect.

What is "sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," is an old English proverb, and if such French Masonic law be good at the Mauritius, it is, in my opinion, equally good in France.

But it may be said "two blacks don't make a white." Probably not, and, therefore, as it is never right, under any circumstances, "to do evil that good may come," perhaps the most dignified course for the Grand Lodge will be to treat such revolutionary proceedings with silent contempt. I ought not, perhaps to mix up Masonic ethics with archæology, but I may, perhaps, under the circumstances, be pardoned for doing so.

MASONIC STUDENT.

MULTA PAUCIS, &c., &c.

The "Complete Freemason," or "Multa Paucis," was an unauthorised account of Freemasonry, issued, it is believed, in the year 1766. Several of the author's statements differ from those by the Rev. James Anderson, D.D., as to the early history of the Craft, and, therefore, I think we shall be obliged to set aside such assertions, and give the preference to those of Dr. Anderson, who, clearly wrote at a time when many personally knew as to the facts narrated, he, himself, being one of the chief actors in the "Revival," of 1716-7.

The author or compiler of "Multa Paucis," speaks of six lodges being present or represented at the "Revival," whereas Dr. Anderson says four. Now, the "Book of Constitutions," of 1738, by the latter, was really the official statement issued by the Grand Lodge, and consequently is superior in authority on such points to all other works, no matter by whom, having, indeed, been written by vote of the Grand Lodge, and agreed to in MS. by the same body.

The I.P.M. of 533 also notices another error on the work under consideration, viz., as to the re-election of Crawford.

"An Old Masonic Book," by R. W. O., was really a reprint of the Constitutions of 1767, only in 8vo., with the addition of the scheme of Incorporation, &c. It was not issued by the Grand Lodge. W. JAMES HUGHAN.

RE-TRACING BOARD OF THE ROYAL ARCH.

Bro. Kenneth R. H. Mackenzie is in error as to Cole being the engraver of the List of Lodges, 1735. He did not act in that capacity until much later; the engraver of that period, and in fact from 1723 until about 1750-5, being John Pine. W. J. H.

NEW MANUSCRIPTS IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

The following will doubtless interest many archæological readers of the Freemason.—Among the latest additions to the manuscripts in the British Museum are the following:—A Greek MS. of the early part of the 12th century, containing homilies on Genesis; a Latin Psalter, illuminated in Germany in the 15th century; an English MS. of the 15 century, being "The wys boke of Phylosophi and Astronomie," treating of zodiacal influences, with medical recipes, and a treatise on surgery. Of historical interest are:—Accounts of Subsidies and Taxes in Normandy in 1341-2; a Journal of the Return of the French Embassy under the Comte d' Avaux from the Northern Courts, February-August, 1636; Exchequer Accounts for the years 1543-1717; Copies of the Despatches of Sir Ralph Sadler, Ambassador, in Scotland, in 1539, 1543; and letters of the political agent Plantamour to Secretary Blathwayt, from Berlin, 1701-1702. There are also:—Poor's rate Book for Poole, April, 1697. Minute Book and Accounts of Hammersmith Charity School and the Latimer Charity, 1713-1751; the Inquisition post mortem of lands of Anne widow of John Holland, Duke of Exeter, 1458; Creditors' Accounts delivered in the executors of the Duke of Richmond and Lennox, 1672; Coats and Crests of English Families, of the seventeenth century; a History of the Mansell Family, 1754; and a Register of Noble Families of Pistoia, by the Cavaliere Franchi, in three volumes, 1701. Letters to Lady Sundon, lady-in-waiting to Queen Caroline, 1732-1737; a poem of the seventeenth century, by G. Ellis, "Adam's calamitie and misery cured by Christ's humane and mercy;" the Report of the Synod of Upsala for consideration of the Swedish Liturgy, 1593; Sermons in the Guarani dialect of Mexico, of the seventeenth century. A large number of volumes of music have also been added, chiefly containing church music by Italian composers of the eighteenth century, and also airs arranged for the organ, &c., by John Cooper, in the seventeenth century, compositions by William and Thomas Lirney and some operas by Meyerbeer and Rossini.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

Preparations are being made in Nottingham in view of the approaching visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the town to open the Nottingham Castle as an Industrial and Art Museum on the 3rd of next month. During their stay in the neighbourhood the Prince and Princess will be the guests of the Duke of St. Albans at Bestwood-lodge, where they will arrive on the 2nd of July. Among the distinguished visitors who are expected at the opening ceremony and at a luncheon afterwards in the Albert-hall are Mr. Gladstone, who is one of the trustees of the Duke of Newcastle, to whom the Castle belongs, Sir Henry Cole, K.C.B., Lord Belper (Lord Lieutenant of the county), the Bishop of Lincoln, and others.

The National Gallery has acquired a valuable picture by Paul Veronese, "St. Helena's Vision of the Invention of the Cross," which was bought at the sale of the Nevvar Collection on Saturday for 3300 guineas. The painting depicts the saint life-sized seated with her head leaning on her hand, her face turned upwards, and gazing on a cross supported by cherubs. It was formerly the altarpiece of a chapel dedicated to St. Helena at Venice, and passed through the hands of the great Duke of Marlborough, the Duke of Leeds, and the Marquis of Hertford. At Saturday's sale the two great attractions were Raphael's "Vierge aux Candelabres," and the "Vierge à la Légende." The former, which is a circular painting and only 26 in. in diameter, was bought in for 19,500 guineas, while the latter, representing the Virgin seated holding her child, and which is said to have belonged to Charles I., was sold for 3000 guineas. The remaining pictures included examples by Murillo, Titian, Vandyck, Raphael, Veronese, Cuypp, and others, and the whole sale realised £44,522 17s. 6d.

Rome proposes to hold an International Exhibition in 1881.

Mr. George Smith left in an almost complete state the "History of Sennacherib" (in the same style as the well-known "History of Assurbanipal), with the cuneiform texts transliterated and translated. All that was wanting was the last 20 pages, which have been supplied by the editor, Mr. Sayce. It is published at the expense of the Mr. Bosanquet, and will be out shortly.—Athenæum.

A Museum and Free Library for South London, on the plan of the Bethnal Green Museum, is being discussed, and an offer has been made to a committee of gentlemen interested in the movement to let the hall at the Surrey Gardens for six years at a nominal rent for this purpose.

GOLD MASKS IN TOMBS.—M. Mariette, in "Monuments of Upper Egypt," says: "We discovered (in the Tomb of Apis, at Sakkarah) a human mummy. A gold mask covered its face, and jewels of every description were arranged on its breast." (p. 92.)

The Ashbury Railway Carriage and Iron Company (Limited), of Manchester, have just completed a novel kind of railway wagon adapted for carrying meat, game, fruit, or similar perishable commodities. The wagon when loaded is hermetically closed, except where, by an automatic arrangement, air is taken in, and after undergoing a refrigerating and drying process, circulates over the whole contents of the wagon. It then discharges through an exhaust pipe. Waggon of this description will be principally used for the large traffic in meat between Scotland, Liverpool, and London. They will enable importers to store their meat for several days should they find the market overstocked. The arrangements for cooling and drying the air have been designed by Colonel W. D. Mann.

The Fathers of St. Louis, who are settled on the ruins of Carthage, have just prepared a fine map of the site, and have sent a number of copies to M. Léon Renier for the Institute, French public libraries, and individual scholars. The Fathers have conducted excavations among the ruins of Carthage at their own expense, and have purchased all the antiquities the discovery of which in the adjacent country has been reported to them. They have thus formed a large collection of Runic and Latin epigraphs, which they are about to present to the Academy of Inscriptions.—Academy.

Mr. Streeter writes to the Times:—Already a panic seems to have been created by the report in the Times of frauds in connection with imitation jewellery and diamonds known as the "Waterkloof." It may allay much misapprehension if those of your readers who have recently purchased diamonds of which they have any doubt would submit them to a very simple test—viz., the file. By drawing across the surface of any imitation diamond a small steel file, an effect is produced as highly detrimental to the spurious as it is satisfactory to the genuine article. To the uninitiated no better test presents itself.

The Question of how little food is sufficient to support life has been studied by an Indian doctor in the most practical manner, the doctor having subjected himself to a diet experiment for six weeks. In support of his theory that a man's daily food should only cost him sixpence, the doctor lived for the first seven days on bread, milk, fruit, and vegetables, costing only 3s. 1d., and having an average daily weight of a little over half a pound. His health remained perfect and his weight did not diminish, so for the second week he took prepared farinaceous food, milk, and fruit, consuming daily a little over 9½ oz., and then felt so strong that he gave up milk and lived on 3d. a day. In the fourth week he took half a pound of food daily, at a cost of 2d., and tried soup, puddings, and eggs, but this did not answer, for the fifth and sixth weeks he lived on 8½ oz. to 9oz. daily. He carefully avoided stimulants and tobacco, and finally declared that he experienced a constant increase of physical strength and power of work.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BOMBAY.

The thirty-third half-yearly communication was held at the new Freemasons' Hall in Nesbit Lane, Buyculla, on Saturday, the 30th March, 1878.

The following Dist. Grand Officers were present: Bros. Hon. J. Gibbs, D.G.M., in the chair; E. Tyrell Leith, Deputy D.G.M.; B. Robinson, as D.G.S.W.; W. C. Rowe, D.G.J.W.; Rev. C. Gilder, D.G.C.; A. McKenzie, D.G.R.; Sorabjee N. Cooper, D.G.T.; C. E. Mitchell, D.G.S.; W. H. Hussey, as D.G.S.D.; T. Counsell, D.G.J.D.; C. Tudball, D.G. Supt. of Works; H. Watson, as D.G. Sword Bearer; J. E. Treasurywalla, D.G. Pursuivant; J. W. Seager, D.G. Tyler; J. H. R. Cruickshank and M. R. Thomas, D.G. Stewards.

There were also present representatives of Lodges 415, 444, 757, 1100, 1189, 1270, and several distinguished visitors.

The District Grand Lodge was opened in ample form at 7 o'clock. After grand honours had been paid to the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of all Scottish Freemasonry in India, the District Grand Secretary read the summons convening the meeting. On the motion of Wor. Bro. A. McKenzie, seconded by Wor. Bro. Robinson, it was resolved that the minutes of the previous communication be taken as read. Wor. Bro. Barrow moved, and Wor. Bro. Mitchell seconded, that the minutes of the previous communication be confirmed.

Wor. Brother Hussey said there was a slight mistake or misstatement in the minutes of the last communication which he wished to have corrected. Worshipful Brother Balfour had stated that "Worshipful Brother Hussey was a member of the Committee of General Purposes, and although not present at the meeting when the proposed addition to the Bye Laws was approved, he was at a subsequent meeting, and saw the resolutions which had been agreed to by his colleagues, and was furnished with a copy of the summons for the present communication." As he (Wor. Bro. Hussey) did not remember being present at any subsequent meeting where the Bye-Laws were brought forward, he took the trouble, in order to refresh his memory, to call upon their worthy District Grand Secretary, who told him that he (Worshipful Brother Hussey) had not attended any of the subsequent meetings. With the permission of the Right Worshipful the District Grand Master, therefore, he (Worshipful Brother Hussey) asked that the minutes might be amended accordingly.

The Right Worshipful the District Grand Master asked whether he was not correct in stating that on a previous occasion there was a discussion as to what the confirmation of the minutes amounted to, when it was ruled that their confirmation was a mere formal act? Perhaps the Secretary could inform him?

Worshipful Brother Hussey remembered that there was a discussion on the point, but said he did not think that any rule was laid down, and referred to page 59 of the Book of Constitutions.

The Right Worshipful the District Grand Master then said that the District Grand Lodge is bound by the procedure relating to the conduct of business in the Grand Lodge, not by the regulation for a private lodge, and the question is whether we have to do anything more than confirm these minutes as a correct account of what took place. "It is not whether the Acting District Grand Master made use of certain words in connection with a particular subject referred to in the minutes, which you state were not correct, what we have to state is whether these minutes are correct so far as what actually took place. Do you contend that the minutes themselves are incorrect?"

Worshipful Brother Hussey replied in the negative; he stated that they were correct, but suggested that the passage he objected to should be corrected.

Most Worshipful Brother Balfour then rose and said: "With your permission, Right Worshipful Sir, I beg to state that I certainly appear to have made a mistake upon the last occasion, and I shall only be too happy to see it corrected."

The R.W. the District Grand Master suggested that the minutes should be confirmed, but that it be entered on this communication that W. Bro. Hussey brought to notice that the statement that "W. Bro. Hussey was a member of the Committee of General Purposes, and although not present at the meeting when the proposed addition to the bye-law was approved, he was at subsequent meetings, and saw the resolutions which had been agreed to by his colleagues," was not correct, and that M.W. Bro. Balfour had admitted this, and wished that the correction should be made accordingly."

This was recorded.

The R.W. the District Grand Master: Brethren, according to custom it now devolves upon me to make a statement to you of the working of the Craft in this district during the past half year, and I am happy to be able to tell you that the statement will be very short, for when I called upon the District Grand Secretary to prepare a brief for me for this evening, he replied that nothing of importance, with one exception, had occurred during the half year, that all the lodges in the district had been working in perfect harmony, and that he had had no trouble in getting in their returns. My speech therefore will be very short, but I much regret to have to mention to you, that just before the summons for this Communication was issued, we received intelligence that the District Grand Master of Madras had been called away to the Grand Lodge above. With reference to this intimation a special motion will hereafter be proposed. Of the few particular circumstances affecting Masonry in this District upon which I have to comment, the first I will mention is, that soon after the return to Bombay of W. Bro. Leith, W. Bro. Balfour, who was acting as my Deputy, was promoted to the high and honourable post of Grand Master of Scottish Freemasonry in India. (Applause.)

Thereupon I conferred the post of Deputy on W. Bro. Leith, who during the affliction with which I was visited undertook for me the duty of visiting the various lodges in Bombay. You all know the warm interest he takes in his duties, and I wish to thank him for the very valuable assistance he has given me. As for my absence from among the brethren, I am sure they will all understand it was solely owing to my not mixing in society for some time. There is one point I wish to place before you, and it is the very great satisfaction I have experienced at the opening of Lodge "Aryan." For some years past the idea has existed that we might have a lodge for Hindoos. Two Parsee lodges have been working here under the English banner for several years past, and two have been established under the Scottish Constitution. A Mahomedan lodge was recently established under the same Constitution, and now the opening of a lodge for Hindoos may be said to be un fait accompli. The subject was bruited, as I have observed, several years since, and a long while ago I received a letter from the District Grand Secretary for Bengal, forwarding copy of a communication which had been written by a very well-known and respected Mason, Very W. Brother White, who for very many years was Grand Secretary, and who had been asked to ascertain what the views of the then Grand Master, H. R. H. the Duke of Sussex, were. The answer was, that those who were Polytheists could not be admitted as Masons, but that if there were Hindoos who believed in, and worshipped the one True God there was no reason why they should not become Masons. There was no reason, therefore, why Hindoos who believed in one true God should not be received into the Order in the same way Parsees were, but he (the D.G. Master) believed that up to the present time no steps had been taken in Calcutta for the formation of a Hindoo lodge."

M.W. Bro. Balfour: No.

The R.W. the District Grand Master continued: This admission of Hindoos is a question which I have had at heart for a lengthened period, and I only regret that I was not able to move in the matter before. However, some brethren who were warmly interested in the question persevered, and it was chiefly due to the exertions of W. Bro. Leith that "Aryan" has come into existence. I regard the starting of this new lodge as highly satisfactory, for there is no doubt it will be to the advantage of the reforming party among our Hindoo fellow subjects. I do not refer particularly to those who belong to the Bramo Somaj, but to those who are among the more conservative, namely, those who are anxious to go back to the pure teaching of the Vedas, the worship of the one true God. There are many friends of mine among these gentlemen, who in some cases occupy high positions under Government, and in others are not in the public service, who are as far from Polytheism as I am; and I trust they will find their places in Masonry through the medium of Lodge Aryan, for I am sure of this, that when they join the Craft and know more of its civilizing effects, Masonry will have a most beneficial influence on them. I therefore look upon the establishment of Lodge Aryan as an event on which we may congratulate ourselves." (Applause.) I am happy to say there are no complaints of the non-receipt of returns from lodges; and I may congratulate the district on the opening of Lodge Excelsior, by W. Bro. Colonel Hodgson, who is District Grand Senior Warden of Madras. Returning to the subject of the minutes of the last Communication, I wish to state, that although they have been confirmed, it will be necessary to move, as a special motion, the confirmation of the Bye-laws, and it has been brought to my notice that there is one portion of the new Bye-laws, which by a slight verbal alteration might perhaps be rendered more acceptable to the brethren generally. I, therefore, move that the alterations made in the Bye-laws at the last Communication be confirmed, with the exception of the latter part of Bye-law XI., which I propose to amend thus: "Each lodge shall pay for each person who has been initiated therein the sum of five rupees to the Fund of Benevolence."

The Deputy District Grand Master seconded the motion.

The motion was then carried.

On the motion of W. Bro. Hussey, seconded by W. Bro. H. Pestonjee, W. Bro. Sorabjee Nowrojee Cooper was unanimously re-elected Dist. Grand Treasurer.

Bro. Seager was appointed Dist. Grand Tyler.

The officers of the Dist. Grand Lodge were appointed and invested as follows:

Major J. H. R. Cruickshank.....	Dist. G.S.W.
Rev. C. Gilder.....	Dist. G.J.W.
H. Watson.....	Dist. G. Chap.
Capt. S. Babington	Dist. G. Reg.
C. E. Mitchell.....	Dist. G. Sec.
C. Tudball.....	Dist. G.S.D.
D. M. Saclotwalla.....	Dist. G.J.D.
W. Easdon.....	Dist. G.D.
R. Chamberlain	Dist. G.D.
P. M. Jeejeebhoy	Dist. Supt. of W.
H. Pestonjee	Dist. Dir. of C.
J. L. Madden.....	Dist. G. Swd. B.
A. Plumpton	Dist. G. Org.
Dhunjeshaw M. Kapudia	Dist. G. Purs.

The following were appointed Dist. Grand Stewards:—Bros. E. W. Bald, 549; H. E. L. James, 944; Richard Raymond, 1100; Pestonjee Merwanjee Narellwalla, 1189; Merwanjee Bomanjee Engineer, 1359.

The following brethren were then appointed by the Right W. the District Grand Master members of the Committee of General Purposes, viz:—W. Bros. W. H. Hussey, B. Robinson, H. W. Barrow, and the following brethren were elected: W. Bros. A. McKenzie, W. C. Rowe, and H. Watson.

(W. Bro. Counsell was nominated for election, but withdrew his name.)

The Right Worshipful the District Grand Master then called W. Bro. Darashaw Chichgur, the Secretary to the Hall Committee, to the dais, and said: It affords me much pleasure, Bro. Darashaw, to be the medium of presenting to you this silver inkstand and gold pencil-case, as a slight testimonial from the Committee who were appointed to carry out the arrangements for the occupation of this hall by the two Constitutions. I also hand to you the resolution on the subject passed by the Committee. (Applause.)

W. Bro. Chichgur, in acknowledging the gift, said that, overwhelmed as he was with feelings and gratitude, he could not find words sufficient to thank the Right W. the District Grand Master and the Committee for the honour which was thus done him. He felt the honour as a great one, for the testimonial was presented to him in an English lodge, although he belonged to the Scotch Constitution, a circumstance which of itself went to prove that when Masons worked together, and met under one common roof, their sympathies made them forget the difference of constitution, and only remember their common brotherhood. (Applause.)

W. Bro. Major Cruickshank wished to draw attention to the fact, that up to the present time, the accounts of the District Grand Lodge, as published, were not given in sufficient detail; the receipts were given, but not the disbursements, so that the various lodges, although much interested in the details, were unable to get at them.

The District Grand Treasurer explained that when he took charge of the accounts, those published were simply a statement showing the gross income and gross expenditure; no return of the profit and loss account being shown. This year he had given the details for the first time, and he hoped these would meet the requirements of Bro. Major Cruickshank.

The District Grand Secretary reported that several dispensations had been granted by the R.W. District Grand Master since the last Communication.

The Right Worshipful the District Grand Master, said the accounts of the last half-year had been audited and found correct. The balance to the credit of the Hall account was Rs. 1,770-10-3, and that to the credit of the District Grand Lodge, Rs. 1,184-12-9, but a portion of the fees, had not yet been paid in.

The Right Worshipful the District Grand Master: I now beg to propose that the District Grand Lodge of Bombay offers its sincere condolence to the District Grand Lodge of Madras on the sad loss which the latter has sustained in the death of its District Grand Master, the late Right Worshipful Brother John Miller, Barrister-at-Law. Carried unanimously.

The District Grand Secretary read apologies he had received from the following brethren for non-attendance: W. Bros. W. Clarke, F. S. Llewellyn, F. J. Saville, R. Chamberlain, S. Babington, and Bros. J. R. Tinsley, T. Carrick, J. C. Elstone, Adam Smith, and M. Levi.

There being no further business, the District Grand Lodge was closed with solemn prayer at eight o'clock.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

A quarterly communication of this District Grand Lodge was held at the Masonic Lodge room, Adelaide, on Wednesday, 3rd April, 1878.

There were present Bros. H. E. Downer, W.D.D.G.M., in the chair; W. Robert Peel, W.D.G.S.W.; McIntyre, W.P.D.G.J.W., as W.D.G.J.W.; W. Ralph E. Lucy, W.D.G. Secretary; W. Frank Makin, W.D.G. Assist. Dir. of Cer.; W. T. E. F. Seabrook, W.D.G. Pursuivant; J. C. Fergusson, L. S. Burton, Stewards; and E. Saint, D.G. Tyler.

The visitors were Bros. Lionel S. Wickstead, 583; T. DeCean, 423; Geo. T. Powell, 649; and W. Wyatt, 505.

The lodge was opened with solemn prayer, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The report of the General Committee for the past half-year was read and adopted.

The following report of the General Committee was submitted to the Right Worshipful the District Grand Master and District Grand Lodge.

Your Committee lay before you the accounts for the year duly audited.

They have to report having made a donation of One Hundred and Fifty Pounds (£150) from the Lodge Funds to the Funds of the S.A. Masonic Benevolent Fund, two-thirds for the Permanent Fund and one-third for the Available Fund.

The Right Worshipful the D.G. Master has granted a Provisional Warrant for a new lodge at Laura, to be called the "Areas Lodge," which was opened in due form on February 22nd last by the Worshipful Deputy District Grand Master (Bro. H. E. Downer) assisted by several of the officers of the District Grand Lodge.

The Committee find that there are no Trustees to the S.A. Masonic Benevolent Fund, it will therefore be the duty of the District Grand Lodge to appoint five Trustees.

A circular from the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, London, was received and read.

There being no further business, the lodge was then closed with solemn prayer.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Stomach and Liver Complaints.—The source and centre of almost every ailment is impurity of the blood; dislodge this poison, and disease departs. Holloway's Pills exercise the inestimable power of thoroughly cleansing each component part of the blood, and rendering this fluid fit to perform its important functions. They cope most successfully with intestinal diseases, stomach complaints, liver disorders, and many other maladies, which were once the besetting dangers of mankind at certain seasons in town and country. The directions for use enable every one to regulate the operation of these Pills with the greatest nicety. Chronic invalids, nervous sufferers, and all whom other treatment has failed to relieve, are respectfully invited to try Holloway's celebrated medicine, which will strengthen and cure them.—ADVT.

Obituary.

BRO. ALBERT SCHMITT.

The funeral of Bro. Schmitt took place at Jersey, on the 7th inst. Prior to recording the proceedings, we will briefly refer to the solemnity of the scene at the Temple, where the body lay in state. The number of visitors on Thursday evening was large, the darkened chamber in which the body reposed in a beautiful coffin, covered with the insignia of the deceased, being filled for nearly a couple of hours by those of the public anxious to witness the mournful and impressive spectacle, made doubly mournful and impressive by the solemn strains of music, produced with great effect from an organ, at which Bro. E. Dowden, presided. The solemnity of the scene was certainly most touching, and we may be pardoned for stating that in many cases the spectators were moved to tears, such an effect did this spectacle of Death, in its most solemn form, have upon them. The last Masonic funeral in Jersey was that of Bro. E. Ainsley, which took place about eleven years ago, and this fact, coupled with the publication in the local papers of the Masonic programme for yesterday afternoon's proceedings, drew together a large crowd in Stopford-road and David-place long before the hour of three o'clock, the time appointed for leaving the Temple, from the summit of which floated at half-mast the Royal Standard and Union Jack. About half-past three the procession was formed in the order given below, and headed by Mr. W. McMeer's band, which played alternately and with good effect the Dead March in Saul and "Adeste fideles," proceeded through David-place, Bath-street, Boreford-street, Halkett-place, to the French Wesleyan Chapel, where the funeral service, which comprised the reading of a psalm, the 1st Epistle to the Corinthians, and a prayer, was conducted by the Rev. A. J. Dupuy. Bro. E. Dowden presided at the organ, and performed both on the arrival and departure of the imposing cortege some appropriate music from Beethoven, which was very impressive. The procession having been re-formed, it slowly wended its way to Almorah Cemetery, by way of Burrard-street, New-street, Val Plaisant, Midvale-road, Rouge Bouillon, and Queen's-road. The cemetery was reached at five o'clock, and from here the body was borne on the shoulders of paid bearers to its final resting place, the following Past Masters of deceased's lodge, "La Césarée," acting as pall-bearers: Bros. Viel, Renouf, Pallot, Benham, Du Jardin, and Durrell. The remainder of the funeral service having been concluded, Bro. Durrell, W.M. of "La Césarée," whose installation into that office was the last duty performed by the departed brother, gave an extempore address over the grave, in which he not unfrequently testified to the worth of the deceased, and paid a high tribute to his memory as a Mason. At the conclusion of the funeral ceremony, the members of the deceased's lodge broke their wands and shrew them into the grave; each of the brethren also threw in a sprig of acacia, and several handsome bouquets were also thrown upon the coffin. We may also add that some earth from Poland was thrown upon the bier by one of the Polish friends of the deceased. The crowd around the graveside was very great, but the utmost decorum prevailed, and the proceedings throughout were conducted most orderly. The procession re-formed and left the cemetery about a quarter to six o'clock, the band playing the Masonic quick step—"The Entered Apprentice," which it continued to perform until the brethren reached the Temple, where the proceedings were closed by "La Césarée" lodge shortly after six o'clock. The funeral cortege was composed of upwards of 200 persons, including the band and about a dozen friends, three of whom were Poles, quite 170 of that number being associated with Freemasonry. As a procession it was a most imposing sight, and but for the sad duty which had called the members of the Craft together would have been a doubly pleasing spectacle. The hearse was drawn by four horses, and the sombreness of the conveyance was greatly relieved from the fact that the coffin, containing the body of the deceased, covered with the insignia of the Order and embellished with flowers, was exposed to view. The remains of the late Albert Schmitt are deposited in a piece of ground on the right of the cemetery, belonging to "La Césarée" lodge, and repose with the remains of the late Bros. Dr. Benjamin Coquemelle and Jean Asplet. We need only remark that the funeral of the late Bro. A. Schmitt, which was most satisfactorily carried out by Bro. G. F. Baker, La Motte street, was of a most imposing and solemn character, and that the tribute of respect shown to the departed brother reflects immeasurable credit upon the Freemasons of Jersey, whose appearance in full Masonic honours, to show their appreciation of the deceased, will not soon be forgotten.

An oration was given over the grave by Bro. Durrell, W.M., La Césarée Lodge, from which our space prevents us giving more than the following extract:—

"Albert Schmitt, we bid you an eternal adieu! We cast a last sorrowing look on thy coffin; but still we hope, far beyond the grave, the dawn of eternal life sheds upon us its heavenly light, and by the grave we proclaim our firm belief in the existence of the great Architect of the Universe, and our constant hope, that when it pleaseth him to remove us from this, our temporary abode, we may accompany thee in that great Lodge upon high, where they, who have carried out the noble principles of our Order, will for ever live. Bro. Schmitt, good-bye, we will no longer hear thy voice, as of old, but thou wilt live in our hearts, and the noble example of thy life will not be lost upon us.

"Brethren, one more word, and I have done. Our brother has lived, as a mason should live; he has died, as we should wish to die; for has he not accomplished the wish of the poet—

"Qu'ils meurent pleins de jours, que leur mort soit vécue; qu'un ami leur ferme les yeux."

BRO. W. W. SQUIRES.

Died, on Sunday, 21st April, aged 37, at his residence, Hardy-street, Nelson, New Zealand, after an illness of twelve days, William Westbrook Squires, M.D., eldest son of the late William Westbrook Squires, of Liverpool. Deceased was born at St. Germain-en-Laye, near Paris, Aug. 31st, 1840, and received his professional training at Liverpool, Edinburgh, and Pisa. He was M.R.C.S., England, and graduated as M.D. Edinburgh, 1866. His health being precarious he sought to benefit it by a voyage to this country, and he arrived in Nelson by the ship "Magna Bona," in December, 1864, and was induced to settle here in the practice of his profession, in which he continued until the time of his attack. Shortly after his arrival, he was appointed Coroner, subsequently Public Health Officer, Consulting Surgeon to the Nelson Hospital, and he has filled other offices of importance in public matters.

Deceased married on the 23rd of April, 1872, Catherine J. C., daughter of Mr. John Simpson of Moutere, by whom he had one son. He was presented with an affectionate address of condolence from the Southern Star Lodge on the death of his wife, which took place on the 20th Aug., 1873. As a good Mason, a skilful physician, a useful citizen, and a warm friend, his loss will be deeply felt for a long time to come.

But five weeks ago, in apparent health, deceased followed the remains of his brother to his long home, in which he is now called to join him.

Bro. Squires, M.D., was first admitted to the light of Masonry, in St. David's Lodge, Edinburgh, (36, S.C.), in 1861, when but twenty-one years of age, and in 1863, was installed as a Companion, Royal Arch, in Edinburgh Chapter (No. 1, S.C.). On the first of June, 1874, he received the degree of Prince, Rose Croix, and previous to leaving for New Zealand, in July following, he had the honour of being admitted to the 30th Degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite.

On his arrival at Nelson, and having resolved on taking up his abode there, he formed that lasting association with our worthy and worshipful friend and brother, Dr. Scaly, which remained unbroken till his death, and on the 15th of August, 1865, affiliated to the Southern Star Lodge, (175 S.C.) at a period when that star was certainly not in the ascendant. Our brother came in at an opportune moment, as he was enabled, by his Masonic learning, and by the new enthusiasm he instilled, to stimulate the lodge in its weakness. In December, 1866, and again in December, 1867, he was installed as Worshipful Master.

On the establishment of the Trafalgar Royal Arch Chapter of Nelson, (157, S.C.) in 1874, elected Second Principal; as First Principal in 1876, and re-elected in 1877, having previously filled the chair of Worshipful Mark Master in the Nelson Mark Lodge, under the constitution of England and Wales.

In accordance with his wish his remains were brought from his residence to the Masonic Hall, where a lodge was opened up to the third degree, when the impressive ceremonies of a "Lodge of Sorrow" were gone through—and the Worshipful Master made a beautiful and feeling oration. On the coffin (on which was a beautiful cross of immortelles interwoven with acacia) being removed from the lodge, Messrs. Pitt, McDonald, Greenfield, and Blundell were pall-bearers. About fifty Masonic brethren, their appropriate emblems covered with black crape—one of the brethren bearing the Holy Bible—preceded the hearse, and a number of Oddfellows and other citizens followed to the cemetery, where Brother the Vex. Arch Deacon Thorpe read the burial service, after which Bro. W. M. Stanton, the Worshipful Master, made a valedictory address, having special reference to the Masonic career of the deceased brother, who, as it is well-known, had attained a distinguished position in the Craft. It was listened to with marked attention. Sprigs of acacia were dropped into the grave, with a lambskin, or white leather apron. A few shovelfuls of earth, and the tomb closed over the mortal remains of one highly respected in all the stations of life which he filled—as public officer, private friend, physician, husband, brother Mason—he did his duty. What more need we say. It is the one consolation to his sorrowing relatives. Most of the shops on the line of cortege were closed, and every token of respect paid to him on his last journey.—Nelson Advertiser.

BRO. S. H. WAGSTAFF.

We deeply regret having this week briefly to record the death of Bro. S. H. Wagstaff, P.M. of the Macdonald Lodge No. 1216, Z.; Macdonald Chapter, etc., which sad event took place on Thursday the 20th ult. The funeral, which took place at Highgate Cemetery on the 24th ult., was attended by the principals and employés of the firm of Wheeler and Wilson, and a large number of the brethren of the Macdonald and other lodges.

BRO. J. R. McDANIEL.

The Grand Commander of Virginia, has issued the following obituary notice of their deceased P.G.C.:—

"Alexandria 26th of May, 1878. The notes of sorrow and sadness resounded throughout our Grand Jurisdiction. Our beloved Past Grand Commander, John Robia McDaniel, was called from his earthly labour on the 14th instant, in the city of Washington, in the seventy-second year of his age. In all his relations of life he was true, true to his professions, true to every duty, true as a friend, true as a Templar. His memory merits this testimony of our affection. This circular will be promulgated to your Commandery at its first meeting, and you are requested to testify, in a fitting manner, that respect which is due to the memory of the honoured dead.

By order

"R. E. ROBERT E. WITHERS, Grand Commander."

H. R. H. the Princess of Wales accompanied by three of her children visited the horse show at the Agricultural Hall on Wednesday afternoon.

The Broad Arrow states that the desperate outrage by Dr. Nobiling constitutes the third attempt that has been made on the life of the aged Emperor of Germany. He ascended the throne on January 3, 1861, and on the 14th of the following July he was shot at by a Leipzig student named Becker. The would-be-assassin was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment, but is believed to be now at liberty. The second attempt was but a few weeks ago, and the perpetrator, Hödel, still awaits trial.

Whit Monday brought its usual shoals of visitors to the various metropolitan places of amusement. The total number present at the Crystal Palace was 54,154; at the Zoological Gardens, 31,963; at the Tower, 2,528; at Hampstead-Heath about 40,000; and at the Alexandra Palace the number may be estimated at between 30,000 and 40,000.

Dr. Burdon Sanderson will according to the Medical Examiner, deliver the Harveian Oration at the Royal College of Physicians, on Wednesday, the 26th of June, at 5 o'clock.

Dr. Huillet, late of Pondicherry, undertakes to show that vaccination was known to a certain Dahnwantori, who flourished several thousand years before Hippocrates. Dr. Huillet appears to have arrived at this conclusion from the contents of certain Hindoo manuscripts preserved at Pondicherry, in which are described the effects produced by inoculating the human subject with the matter taken from a man or a cow. The secondary disease is described as identical in appearance with its source, with this important difference, that it is quite harmless.—Medical Examiner.

We are asked to state that the lodge of instruction attached to the Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge meets every Tuesday evening at the Crown and Woolpack, St. John Street-road, at 8 o'clock. Bro. Richd. Peary, J.W. United Strength Lodge, No. 228, is the Preceptor.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.—The prizes won at the University of Cambridge Local Examination, were distributed on Thursday afternoon, at the theatre of the London University, Burlington-gardens, by Canon Farrar. Among the most distinguished boys in the first-class juniors were H. Bowler and E. T. Sage, of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

THE PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.—It should have been stated in the Freemason's report of the meeting of this Masonic division of Lancashire that Bro. Edward Diggles, of Burnley, was appointed Provincial Grand Standard Bearer by the Prov. Grand Master.

The fifteen sections will be worked at the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, held at the White Swan hotel, High-street, Deptford, on Monday next, the 17th inst. The lodge will be opened at 7 p.m., and the chair will be occupied by Bro. Pulsford, P.M.

The Boulogne Deep Sea Harbour Bill was unanimously passed in the Senate on Monday week. The own was decorated and illuminated.

The official adoption of the word "ticket" by the authorities of the Paris Exhibition has drawn attention to the numerous English words which have gradually been enrolled in the Parisian vocabulary, and a writer in the Illustration is very indignant that Frenchmen should ignore the riches of their own language and borrow from the "poor jargon of Great Britain." Thus when a boulevard dandy now speaks of his cane he terms it mon stick, his overcoat he styles a coachman or a waterproof. At the restaurant he asks for "turtle soup" or "pale ale," his fashionable amusement is the "skating rink," while his sporting vocabulary is replete with Anglicisms, from Le Turf to un steeplechase or un jockey. The latest means of conveyance is termed officially a "tramway." As regards the chief offending term, "ticket," there is something to be said in extenuation of the French adoption of the word, as it is originally derived from the French word etiquette, which etymologists tell us was embodied in our language in the time of good Queen Bess.

The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol appeals for funds to aid in the work of restoration of Tewkesbury Abbey. Information will be furnished on application by Bro. Sir Edmund Lechmere, R.W.G.M. for Worcestershire, 13, Bolton-row, Mayfair, chairman of the Restoration Committee, to whom, as also to Mr. C. W. Moore, hon. treasurer, Tewkesbury, subscriptions may be sent.

Her Majesty receives daily most favourable accounts of the Emperor of Germany's health. The Emperor and Empress are greatly touched by the universal sympathy shown in England on the occasion of the attempted assassination.

Artistic amateurs may justly pride themselves on the excellence of their work shown in the Annual Exhibition of Paintings on China, now being held at Messrs. Howell and James's Art Pottery Galleries, and their productions can well hold their own against the specimens of professional execution included in the collection. Taking a general view of the exhibition, floral subjects are as usual most numerous, and the flowers are more often treated in a natural than a conventional manner, the grouping being well managed, while some of the backgrounds are delightful bits of colour. Amongst these designs we may specially note two quaint floral chess-boards, by Miss Abbey as a very novel idea, the squares being ornamented by dainty insects and blossoms. Figure subjects are not so plentiful, nor as a rule so meritorious; but there are some charming heads, mostly of a feminine character, and several landscapes. Seascapes are few in number, and there is a remarkable dearth of the familiar Cupids and mythological subjects. Professionals are also represented on the walls, but we fancy the best of their work has been sent to Paris. China paintings find one of its warmest patronesses in the Imperial Princess of Germany, and the special gold medal presented by her for this amateur competition has been won by the Countess of Warwick for a pleasing female head surrounded by apple-blossom. The bronze medal and monetary prizes are chiefly awarded to floral paintings, amongst which are two very bold studies of the blue and yellow iris.

An examination of surgeons in the Royal Navy who are eligible and who may be desirous of qualifying for the rank of staff-surgeon will be held at the Royal Naval Hospitals at Haslar and Plymouth on the 10th of July.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS.—Invitations have been issued by the President and Fellows for a conversazione, on Wednesday, 3rd of July.

Bro. Dick Radclyffe & Co. supplied the floral decorations for the banquet of the Crystal Palace Lodge, which were greatly admired. At the Paris Exhibition Bro. Radclyffe and Co. exhibit a fernery in the Princes' Pavilion with caverns, cascades, ferns, &c., in very pretty style. A window case near the Avenue des Grands Nations is prettily decorated with rockwork, ferns, fountains and waterfalls; and also four cases of very handsome wreaths of dried natural flowers and grasses. Bro. Radclyffe and Co. have taken two medals at the last two Horticultural Shows, and their has have been spoken of by several of the papers as the most pleasing features in the show.

The River Ouse is to have a new bridge. Its foundation-stone was laid on Wednesday by the Lord Mayor. The structure is to cost £40,000 and is to span that portion of the river known at present as Sheldergate.

At the meeting of the London Joint Stock Banks it was without discussion resolved to apply to the Bankers' Clearing House to call a meeting of the private and joint-stock banks to consider what action should be taken upon the abandonment of the official minimum by the Bank of England.

Mr. H. M. Stanley, the African explorer, was present at a banquet on Wednesday evening, given at Brussels by the Belgian Geographical Society.

A new esplanade in the western part of Hastings, constructed at a cost of £10,000, was formally opened to the public on Wednesday. The occasion was to have been celebrated with an aquatic fête and a grand display of fireworks, but these portions of the programme had to be abandoned owing to the boisterous state of the weather.

The directors of the Bank of England met on Thursday, as usual, but made no alteration in the rate of discount.

MASONIC SONGS.—A Selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. Philpotts, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—ADVT.

The Registrar General reports that the duration of registered sunshine last week was only 25.3 hours, although the sun was above the horizon during 114.5 hours: the recorded duration of sunshine was therefore equal to 22 per cent. of its possible duration.

FREDERICK LODGE OF UNITY (No. 452).—This lodge held its annual meeting at the Greyhound, Croydon, on Tuesday last, when the following brethren were present: Bros. A. T. Jeffery, W.M.; C. H. Edmonds, J.W.; Jas. Robins, P.M.; Treas.; Magnus Ohren, P.M., Sec.; Charles Pawley, S.D.; Edwin Henry Sugg, J.D.; J. W. Sugg, D.C.; Manning, I.G.; J. W. Rogers, Stwd.; C. W. Dommert, P.M.; R. H. Evans, P.M.; W. S. Masterman, P.M.; William Sugg, P.M.; W. G. Batchelor, H. E. Frances, David W. Sugg, Charles R. Ohren, C. T. Speight, Tyler; and visitors: Bros. E. P. Albert, P.G.P.; W. W. Morgan, 211; J. Robbins, P.M. 231; W. H. Buswell, J.D. 1339; J. M. Collins, 1601; C. H. Woodward, 463; A. Wynn Williams, W.M. 875; Rev. C. W. Arnold, P.G. Chap.; Dr. F. H. Wilson Iles, P.M. 404, P.P.G.S.W. P.G. Sec. Herts, and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). The W.M. presided. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Magnus Ohren moved, "That the sum of ten guineas be paid from the lodge funds to the widow of a late brother of this lodge, a subscribing member at his death." The motion was seconded by the W.M., and carried unanimously, and it was arranged that the lodge should support the candidature of a son of the late brother for the Boys' School. The death of two members of the lodge was reported at the former meeting of the lodge, and letters of condolence with their widows were ordered to be written. Bro. Ohren then read a reply which had been received from one of the widows. The Special Committee's report was read and adopted; after which Bro. J. W. Sugg, P.M., installed in the W.M. chair Bro. Charles Henry Edmonds. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. Charles Pawley, S.W.; Edwin H. Sugg, J.W.; the Rev. D. J. Drakeford, Chap.; James Robins, P.M., Treas.; Magnus Ohren, P.M., Sec.; J. W. Sugg, P.M., D.C.; F. A. Manning, S.D.; J. C. F. W. Rogers, J.D.; E. H. Sugg, Org.; John Methven, I.G.; Charles M. Ohren, Steward; and C. T. Speight, Tyler. On the motion of Bro. J. W. Sugg, P.M., D.C., seconded by Bro. James Robins, P.M. and Treas., the lodge voted a P.M. jewel to Bro. A. T. Jeffery, I.P.M.; and on its presentation Bro. Jeffery, acknowledging the gift, said he had endeavoured to fill the chair of the lodge creditably and to sustain the honour and credit of the lodge. He was happy to say he had been successful, and that the brethren entertained that opinion. He added that owing to a domestic affliction he would not be able to stay to the banquet, as he had to leave town that evening; that he should have gone in the middle of the day, but having presided in lodge and performed the ceremonies during his year of office he was anxious not to be absent on his last evening. Lodge shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet under the presidency of Bro. Edmonds, W.M. When the toasts were proposed, Bro. E. P. Albert, P.G.P., responded to the toast of "The Pro Grand Master, &c." The W.M. then proposed "The Provincial G.M. for Surrey, Gen. Brownrigg, the Deputy Prov. G.M., the Rev. C. W. Arnold, and the Provincial Grand Officers." In proposing the toast he said, referring to the Rev. C. W. Arnold, that he made an impression on him (the W.M.) before that evening. This was not the first time in the province of Surrey that it had been his good fortune to meet him at the banquet table, and not only at the banquet table, but in a place far more important, the church. He (the W.M.) was not one of those who said that our religion alone was to govern the country. Whatever religion different persons might profess, that let them believe. He (the W.M.) professed one, and that was the religion of Bro. Arnold, who made such an impression on him by the sermon he preached at the Provincial Grand Lodge that it had never been effaced. At that time he never expected to be in the position he now occupied, and consequently never expected to have Bro. Arnold on his right hand as a guest. Of him he could truly say he was a Mason in every respect, true to those principles which should be impressed upon every Mason. It was a great thing to have among them a Mason who could preach in the way Bro. Arnold preached when they were assembled on a certain occasion, two years ago, and he believed that if a brother would attend to what Bro. Arnold uttered on that occasion he would become a better man. Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, Past Grand Chaplain, acknowledging the toast, said he was extremely grateful to the W.M. for what he had said, and it was a great pleasure to come and visit the lodge. He had long wished to visit it, but he had not been able to be with the brethren since the Provincial Grand Lodge at Sutton, four years ago. The town of Croydon had been associated with some of his pleasant reminiscences of Masonry. The meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge at Croydon, two years ago, was one he should never forget, for the beautiful musical performance by Bro. Woodward in the church, and the grand gathering afterwards in the room in which the brethren were now assembled. On another occasion too, when he visited Bro. Woodward's lodge, he had a most cordial reception, and in all places he had visited as Dep. Prov. Grand Master he had received the greatest kindness. It was one of his greatest pleasures to go round the province and visit the different lodges. Last year, when he was appointed Deputy Provincial Grand Master, he told the brethren he should go round and make himself acquainted if possible with all the lodges. He had done so as far as he was able, and he might say that since the beginning of this year to the present time he had visited every lodge in the province with the exception of three. Two of those he could not visit on account of a mistake which he did not find out in time, and the other he did not know where it met, and got no reply to a letter he forwarded to a quarter for the information. It was not his fault that he had not visited all the lodges in the province. He had meant to do so before the gathering of the Provincial Grand Lodge this year. The Prov. G.M. lived out of the province, but he (Bro. Arnold) lived in the province, and it was much easier for him to visit the lodges than for the Prov. G.M. He (Bro. Arnold) resolved to know the working of every lodge in the province. He congratulated the Frederick Lodge of Unity on its working. He was never more deeply impressed with the installation ceremony as given by Bro. Sugg. If there was one ceremony more than another that made an impression on a Mason it was the installation ceremony. There were certain words in it which went always to his heart, and he thought they must also go to the heart of every Mason who really was a Mason and had his heart in Masonry. He believed that the dignity and high importance of Freemasonry where what we made it to ourselves; if we made Freemasonry a thing of importance and a thing of dignity it would be so. It was a thing which he believed would grow in the heart of each Mason as he proceeded onward in his course as a Mason. He felt this, and he spoke strongly on this occasion because many years ago he took up Masonry as a young man, not thinking much of it or that it was of much importance. He did not attend lodge very regularly, but when he did, and saw the working, he took it up, and set an example in his lodge as a working Mason. From that time he was impressed with the real duties a Mason had in the Craft, and he must say he should have been very, very sorry if he had not become a Mason. He did not think he could ever look upon a better day's work he had done than he did on that day when he became a Mason. As he had gone on from year to year, as he knew the ceremonies better, as he rose higher and higher in the scale of Masonry, so these things came home to his heart, and he became more impressed with the dignity and high importance of Freemasonry. He said this to young Masons, if they would only get the working of the Craft, if they would look to the charges and exhortations, they would find they would become better Masons. Bro. Woodward replied to the toast of the "Provincial Grand Officers," and in doing so said it behoved every one who wished to be in office in the province to be well up to his work. The Prov. Grand Lodge would be held at Dorking on the 16th July, when the brethren would have the pleasure of meeting one of the best Provincial Grand Masters that had ever presided over them. He said this with all respect to the illustrious dead who had gone before, and particularly to Bro. Alex. Dobie. When he (Bro. Woodward) came into the province there were but seven lodges in it. There were now eighteen, therefore those brethren who looked for the honour of the provincial purple must look out sharp. The G.M. would only appoint those who were distinguished as good workers. The Dep. Prov. G.M. was going about to see how the work was being done, and this was the only way to bring Freemasonry to a high pitch in the province. He (Bro. Woodward) hoped the brethren would rally round the Prov. G.M. He (Bro. Woodward) was going to make a proposition at the Prov. Grand Lodge that the various provincial lodges should be invited to contribute a guinea annually towards the entertainment of the Prov. Grand Lodge. He had heard from Bro. James Robins that the Frederick Lodge of Unity would be prepared to support the proposition. Bro. J. W. Sugg, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." The W.M., in reply, said he began Masonry late in life, having taken, like many others who had gone before him, rather a prejudice against Masonry. He used to revile and scoff at Masonry; but for seven years he had become a better man by becoming a Mason. He now regretted that he had not been a Mason earlier, because, although he never put himself down as a bad man, but rather as a moderately good man, he believed he would have been if he had become a Mason earlier a better man than he had esteemed himself. After referring again to the effect produced upon him by the Rev. Bro. Arnold, he advised the younger brethren to learn the working. It was only by constant attention and perseverance that brethren could acquire it, and he was sure that if they did they would be glad that they had done so. If brethren tried to do their best, as a rule they would succeed in doing properly that which they attempted. Bro. J. W. Sugg, P.M., replied to the toast of "The Installing Master," proposed by Bro. E. P. Albert; Bros. Dr. Wilson Iles, Williams, and T. Boulton responded to that of "The Visitors;" Bros. Robins and Ohren for "Treasurer and Secretary;" and the S.W. replied for "The Officers." The brethren having enjoyed some excellent singing and music by Bros. Charles Ohren, J. W. Sugg, Edwin Sugg, and the W.M., shortly afterwards returned to town. The gathering was, as is customary with the Frederick Lodge of Unity, a highly successful one.

LEWIS LODGE (No. 1185).—A meeting was held on Saturday, June 15th, 1878, at the Kings' Arms Hotel, Wood Green. Present: Bros. W. Sayer, W.M.; Thos. W. Bone, S.W.; Jas. W. Berrie, P.M. 1293, J.W.; A. Leared, P.M., P.Z. 1185, Secretary; A. Durrant, P.M., H. 1185, Treasurer; G. D. Hooper, S.D.; C. E. Lloyd, J.D.; G. J. Row, P.M., M.E.Z. 1185, D.C.; G. H. Turner, P.M. 1185, Steward; T. Harrison, I.G.; C. T. Speight, Tyler; and Past Master J. R. Cover, 1185, with many of the members. Visitors: Bros. C. S. March, 464; W. Woodmaid, 1728; Thos. Smith, 8; and H. T. Thompson, P.M. 742. Business: Bro. John Jefferey Drake, P.M. Morning Star, 1396, was elected as a joining member. Bros. Black and Hearson, of the Lewis Lodge, and Bro. Wm. Woodmaid, of the Temple Bar Lodge, 1728, were raised to the degree of M. Masons, and Bro. Best was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. A petition was signed in favour of Emma Eliza Williams, as a candidate for the Girls' School. Her father, Bro. H. Williams, was initiated in the Lewis Lodge, and he being now in a lunatic asylum, this is a case for which the support of the Craft is earnestly solicited by the members of this lodge. Proxies will be thankfully received by the Secretary.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners Lodge (No. 249).—The usual monthly meeting of this admirably conducted lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 6th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Bro. J. C. Robinson, W.M., occupied his place of honour in the E., and he was supported by Bros. John Hayes, P.M.; H. Pearson, P.M.; Fred. Barnett, S.W.; W. P. Jennings, J.W.; Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.M., P.P.G.R., Treasurer; Robt. Collings, Sec.; W. Corbett, S.D.; John Whalley, J.D.; H. Wynne Parry, I.G.; W. H. Vernon, S.; W. Mooney, S.; W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members present were Bros. David Thorne, F. J. Porter, W. Pyc, W. Tarnbrook, J. P. Jones, T. Evans, Fred Cooper, Jos. 'Adey, J. H. Walker, David Cangle, J. Whittall, Jno. Stringfellow, John Cubbin, M. Howarth, John Mollery, N. Cohen, C. Leighton, P.M. 1325; Jas. Simpson, R. Thompson, Jas. White, John Horries, Edw. Owen, A. Barnard, Morris Davies, T. Haynes, J. N. Penlington, S. Johnson, M. W. Thornton, T. Halliburton, G. C. Brecham, R. Morrin, Walter Lothian, T. Poyser, Jos. Wood, P.M.; John Ridley, J. Sherman, J. McTrim, D. Oliphant, W. Goldstone, and J. Jenaway. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Devaynes, P.M. 667; J. W. Wright, W.M. 780; Robt. Killip, 203; H. Morris, Mount Tabor; E. Boston, A. Finger, 1182; J. Tunstall, 1035; J. P. Bryan, 1035 and 203; Thos. Gray, 1325; S. P. Goll, 1356; E. Griffiths, 1473; H. Hughes, N.S., and others. Business commenced punctually at six o'clock, and after the minutes had been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Richard Fitzgerald and Mr. James Messenger. They were both duly elected, and, being in attendance, they were regularly initiated into the Order. Afterwards two brethren were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by the W.M., the whole of the work being done in a manner which added fresh lustre to his already prosperous year. Bro. Frederick Barnett, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M., and Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.M., P.P.G. Reg., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. Bro. the Rev. Philip Pinnington, P.M., was elected honorary member. The lodge Trustees were re-elected, and three brethren were elected Auditors. The W.M. was then invited to retire, when £10 was voted for the purchase of a P.M.'s jewel for presentation to him. It was then decided to have a picnic as soon after the installation as possible. The lodge Committee with the officers of the lodge were elected for the purpose of carrying out the picnic and also the installation banquet. After other formal business the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, a pleasant evening being spent.

MARYPORT.—Lodge of Perseverance (No. 371).—The members of this flourishing lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John on Whit Tuesday. There was a full attendance of the members, including Bros. T. Casey, W.M.; J. W. Robinson, S.W., W.M. elect; J. Fulton, J. W.; Joseph Nicholson, P.M. and Treas., P.P. G.S.W.; T. Mandle, I.P.M.; A. Walter, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; W. Armstrong, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; J. Gardiner, P.M., P.P.G. Tyler; E. G. Mitchell, Sec.; J. Elliot, S.D.; W. Stoddart, J.O.; J. Smith, Org., P.P.G. Org.; W. Walk, a.s. I.G.; T. Milburn, Steward; T. Wait, Steward; R. Harris, Tyler; J. R. Banks, J. H. Banks, J. Newton, F. Harrison, J. H. Raven, T. Weatherston, and many others. The visiting brethren were:—Bros. G. W. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.P. G.J.W., Installing Master; W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119 and 962, P.G. Sec., Installing Master; Rev. E. M. Rice, M.A., P.M. 1002; G. Brooker, P.M. 962, P.P.G. Purst; W. H. Leuthwaite, P.M. and Org. 1002, P.G. Org.; Jas. Black, W.M. 1002; Joseph Wood, W.M. 962; W. F. Lamontby, P.M. 1002, P.G. Reg. (Freemason); G. Kirkwood, S.W. 962;

T. Bird, J.W. 1002; J. Towers, 1002; S. S. Briggs and P. Wedgwood, 962; E. Tyson, W.M. elect, 219; J. Miles, 119; J. Pearson, Mersey Lodge, 477, Birkenhead; E. J. Fletcher, 119, Theatre Royal, Whitehaven; J. Sheridan, St. James's Lodge, 177, Old Monkland, Scotland, Theatre Royal, Whitehaven; and others. The lodge having been opened by the W.M. and his officers, Bro. Kenworthy, as Installing Master, subsequently took the chair, and with the assistance of Bro. W. B. Gibson, Bro. J. W. Robinson, W.M. elect, was installed, proclaimed, and saluted according to ancient custom, no fewer than fourteen Installed Masters also taking part in the ceremony. The officers were appointed and invested as follows:—Bros. T. Carey, I.P.M.; E. G. Mitchell, S.W.; J. Elliot, J.W.; Joseph Nicholson, P.M., Treas. (re-elected for the thirty-third time); W. Stoddart, Sec.; F. Armstrong, S.D.; T. Milburn, J.D.; J. Waite, I.G.; J. Smith, Org.; J. Mandle, P.M., D.C.; J. Newton and F. Harrison, Stewards; R. Harris, Tyler. Hearty votes of thanks were then accorded to Bro. Kenworthy and Gibson for their able services as Installing Masters; and also to Bro. Carey, I.P.M., for his handsome present to the lodge of a rough and perfect ashlar, with winch and shears complete. After hearty good wishes from Lodges 119, 477, 962, 1002, 1400, and 177 (Scotland), the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren finally adjourned to the Golden Lion Hotel, where an excellent repast was prepared by Bro. Tucker. Bro. Robinson, W.M., presided, faced by his Wardens, and a couple of hours or so were harmoniously spent.

WARRINGTON.—Gilbert Greenall Lodge (No. 1250).—On Tuesday, the 11th inst., Freemasonry in Warrington put on her most attractive attire, the occasion being the installation of Bro. D. W. Finney, P.M., P.Z., &c., &c., as W.M. of the Gilbert Greenall Lodge. Bro. Finney was honoured with an unusually large gathering of distinguished Masons, among whom were the R.W. Bro. Sir Gilbert Greenall, Bart., M.P., P.G.W. of England; Bros. Dr. John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.W. of Cumberland and Westmorland; Armstrong, W.M.; James Jackson, P.M. 148, 1354; S. Roberts, P.M. 381; Tunstall, P.M. 148; Joseph Pitchall, W.M. 148; Thomas Jones, 241; Henry Smith, 178; B. Brierley, P.M.; William Richardson, P.M.; John Harding, P.M.; W. S. Hawkins, P.M.; W. Woods, P.M.; P. J. Edelsten, P.M. 1340; W. Pollitt, P.M.; Dr. Wood, J. Galloway, Thomas Norris, 148; T. M. Pattison, B. L. Pierpoint, E. Auckland, James Hannah, A. W. Brundritt, Henry Houlit, A. Potter, T. Auckland, J. H. Potter, J. Barlow, W. Reid, R. Heaton, T. Hutchinson, T. H. Sutton, D. Hooley, W. Dean, 178; G. Mackey, H. Houghton, J. Knight, J. Baird, J. C. Hubbert, J. Jones, F. Massey, T. Barber, F. A. Wall, W. W. Lavarack, T. Domville, J. S. Green, W. J. Tongue, J. R. Jones, Geo. Cropper, W. Kinsey, W. Skinner, John Pierpoint, T. O. Speakman, W. H. Jenkins, J. Farrington, J. O'Brien, J. Smethurst, Geo. Fairhurst, J. E. Sanby, W. Bolton, H. Hind, A. F. G. Potter, and others. The lodge was called for two o'clock, and shortly after that time the W.M., Bro. John Armstrong, assumed the chair, and the lodge was duly and solemnly opened. After the minutes of the last regular lodge had been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Alfred Hayes, and found in his favour. Mr. Hayes being in attendance was duly admitted and regularly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by Bro. Dr. Bowes, in that masterly style for which our distinguished brother is so widely celebrated. The ancient charge was delivered by the W.M. elect (Bro. Finney). At three o'clock the Installing Officer (Bro. Armstrong) took his position in the East, and Bro. Finney was presented by Bros. Hawkins, P.M., and Edelsten, P.M. The usual obligation was thereupon very solemnly administered, after which all brethren below a certain degree were requested to retire. This done, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, with Bros. Tunstall as S.W., and Richardson as J.W., and the new W.M. placed in the chair of K.S., amid the salutations and congratulations of the assembled Past Masters. The Board having been dissolved, the rest of the brethren were in due course, and according to degree, re-admitted and saluted in Ancient form, in order of rank. The following officers were afterwards invested: Bros. T. Auckland, S.W.; T. H. Sutton, J.W.; J. H. Galloway, Treas.; J. Farrington (for S. Wallhead), Sec.; J. Knight, S.D.; T. Hutchinson, J.D.; G. Cropper, Org.; John Jones and W. W. Lavarack, Stewards; H. Houlit, I.G.; and T. Domville, Tyler. Bro. Armstrong delivered the address in a very impressive manner, and was afterwards awarded a warm vote of thanks for his services. Bro. Kinsey read the report and balance sheet, both of which were exceedingly satisfactory, and were ordered to be printed and circulated among the members. One gentleman was proposed for initiation, and after some other formal and routine business, the lodge was duly and solemnly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Lion Hotel to the banquet. The W.M. presided, and was supported by most of the before-named brethren along with others. Although a much larger number of brethren attended than was anticipated, too much credit cannot be given to the excellent manager (Bro. J. O. Speakman) for the manner in which he catered and attended to the various wants and wishes of all present. After the cloth had been withdrawn, the W.M. gave the first toast, "The Queen, the Patroness of our Order." It needed no words of his to recommend that toast to a gathering of Masons. (Drank with enthusiasm, after which followed the National Anthem.) The next toast was "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," which was also most cordially received. Glee: "God bless the Prince of Wales." In introducing the toast of "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M., and the Grand Lodge," the W.M. said: Brethren, this is a toast which is always well received, and deservedly so too. We are favoured this evening with the presence of a very distinguished member of Grand Lodge, the R.W. Bro. Sir Gilbert Greenall, Bart., M.P. The lodge under whose particular banner we meet this evening bears the name of our distinguished brother, and I well remember when that name was suggested by my esteemed Bro. Bowes the founders of the lodge thought they could not adopt a better. Bro. Greenall has come among us this evening at great inconvenience to himself, but I am proud to tell him that his presence here to-day has given great and general satisfaction to the Masons of Warrington. The R.W. Bro. Greenall, in responding, thanked the W.M. and brethren for the cordial manner in which they had received the toast of the Grand Lodge. For himself he was very grateful to them for the kind way in which they had received the mention of his name. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the Right Honourable Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Prov. G.M., the Hon. F. A. Stanley, R.W.D. Prov. G.M., and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers." The toast was most enthusiastically received, and responded to by the R.W. Bro. Greenall. (Glee: "Come where my love lies dreaming.") The name of Bro. Dr. Bowes was coupled with the next toast, "The Neighbouring Provinces." Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.W. of Cumberland and Westmorland, in acknowledging the toast said, before he did so, he wished to congratulate the W.M. in having been selected to fill the office into which he had been installed that day. As regarded Masonry he was his father, and it afforded him (Bro. Bowes) extreme pleasure to see him rise to eminence by merit. It also afforded the speaker gratification to have been present and taken part in the ceremonials of the day. He could not forget his intimate connection with the Gilbert Greenall Lodge in its earlier years. He had suggested its name and conducted the business of the lodge for the first fourteen months of its history, in the unavoidable absence of its first W.M., the R.W. Sir Gilbert Greenall, M.P. The name was masonically associated with all the senior members. He had also admitted to light and in after years, installed some of its present Past Masters. Such being the case, it was natural that he should feel a deep and lively interest in No. 1250. In acknowledging the toast with which they had honoured him by associating his name, he could assure them that Lord Bective, M.P., and Colonel Whitwell, M.P., as well as the subordinate officers of the Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmorland, were all desirous for the welfare of the Craft under their rule. At one of their recent meetings the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, congratulated them on the truly Masonic spirit they evinced, and the great attention that was given to the proper management of the work. He begged to thank the brethren for the honour they had done him. Bro. Greenall now rose to propose the toast of the evening: "The Health of Bro. David W. Finney, P.M. and W.M." He would first of all assure the brethren that it gave him very great pleasure to be with them that evening. He felt grateful to them for the cordial reception they had given him, and he could not but rejoice in the appointment of Bro. Finney as W.M. of a lodge which bore his own name, because he knew Bro. Finney took a deep interest in Masonry. After some further very eulogistic words he begged the brethren to receive the toast with all the honour it merited. (Received with Masonic honours). "Song Eily Ma'ourneen." Bro. Finney in responding said: Brethren, I must first of all thank our distinguished Bro. Greenall for coming here this evening and giving us the pleasure of his presence among us. I must also thank him very sincerely for the honour he has done me personally in proposing my health. He has spoken, I fear, far too highly of my poor merits. Secondly I must thank you, brethren, for conferring upon me this great honour, the honour of ruling over your lodge for the next twelve months, should Providence spare me. I assure you, brethren, I deeply appreciate that honour; indeed if I did not I should not be worthy to fill this chair. Your kindness and favour have amply impressed me, but, brethren, it would ill become me to make a long speech on this occasion. I cannot, however, refrain from saying that greatness brings with it responsibilities as well as privileges. I trust I am sensible of that, and I trust I shall not only have the cordial support of all the officers, but also the willing help of every P.M. of the lodge, and then we may hope that your anticipations will not be disappointed. One assurance at all events I may be permitted to give the lodge, and that is that I will endeavour to do my duty to the best of my powers. At the best I am but a "poor player." I have now a very pleasant duty to perform. You all know how well our excellent Bro. Armstrong, the I.P.M., has done his duty during the past year. You have all experienced the tact and judgment with which he has managed the concerns of the lodge during his year of office. You have all heard how admirably he has rendered the ceremony of installation this day, and you all know him as a good man and Mason. Brethren, in recognition of all these and to show how deeply we have appreciated his services I have been requested to pin this very handsome jewel upon his breast, and I do so with extreme pleasure. Bro. Armstrong, may you be long spared to wear that jewel, and may you always experience the same pleasure in looking upon it in the future, that I do now in presenting it. Long life, health, and happiness to our I.P.M., Bro. John Armstrong. Bro. Armstrong in reply said one of the proudest remembrances of his life was when the members of the Gilbert Greenall Lodge elected him to fulfil the duties of their Master, and duly installed him in the chair of K.S. 12 months ago: another would be the event of that day, when it became his duty and his privilege to install Bro. Finney in the chair he now so worthily occupied, which event would ever be called to mind when he wore the very handsome and costly jewel they had thought fit to present him with. He was aware of many shortcomings in his duties, but by a careful imitation, as far as in him laid, of their good workers he was pleased to find that his efforts had met with their approval, as evidenced by their consideration on the present occasion. He had endeavoured to be courteous in manner, he trusted they had all found him easy of address, and he thought he had been steady and firm in principle, without being arbitrary. He was fully aware that his working during the past year was capable of vast improvement and not at all equal to that of some of their P.M.'s; the installation too, he would have preferred seeing done by some older and wiser member; indeed, without the assistance of Bro. Bowes it would have been impossible for him to have rendered the ceremony at all satisfactorily. He would take that opportunity of thanking Bro. Bowes for the great pains and trouble he had taken in his (Bro. Armstrong's) preparation for the ceremony of that day; he had from the time of seeing the light looked up to Bro. Bowes, as a pattern for imitation. He found him always ready and willing to assist any brother in a Masonic knowledge: without his aid he (Bro. Armstrong) would not have been numbered that day amongst the P.M.'s of the Gilbert Greenall Lodge. He had not been five years a Mason, and he considered it a great honour to have been so soon privileged to preside over so large and influential a lodge as No. 1250. The other toasts were "The Installing Master," "The P.M.'s and Officers of No. 1250," "The W.M., Wardens, and Members of the Mother Lodge, No. 148," for which Bro. Tunstall, P.M., in the absence of the W.M. (Bro. Pitchall), who had been called away at an early part of the evening, responded in eloquent terms; "The Visiting Brethren," "The Musical Brethren," "The Masonic Charities," "All Poor and Distressed Freemasons." The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Geo. Cropper, Organist, assisted by Bros. T. M. Pattison (Organist 148), Jenkins, Tunstall, Jones, and Woods, P.M.; and did those brethren infinite credit. The last toast was given about half-past ten o'clock, and the brethren separated in peace, good-will, and harmony before eleven o'clock.

FRIZINGTON.—Arlecdon Lodge (No. 1660).—The first anniversary of this young Cumberland lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Frizington, on Wednesday evening, the 5th inst. The business was the installation of the W.M. elect and investiture of officers. The members present were: Bros. Crowther, Morton, W.M., P.M. 872, 1002, 1267, P.P.G.S.W.; W. Martin, J.W., W.M. elect; E. Clark, Sec., P.M. 1267; C. Bland, S.D.; J. Nelson, J.D.; J. Harris, J. J. Lacer, R. Wilson, J. Bewley, W. Tremble, S. Nicholson, T. Swainson, Bryce Craig, &c. The visitors included Bros. R. Baxter, F. Whittle, and others, from Lodge 1267. After lodge had been opened, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. W. Martin was presented to Bro. Morton, and regularly installed in the chair of K.S. as W.M. for the ensuing year. The officers were invested as below: Bros. C. Morton, I.P.M.; C. Bland, S.W.; J. Nelson, J.W.; J. Moffatt, Treas.; J. I. Lacer, Sec.; J. Bewley, S.D.; J. Harris, J.D.; R. Wilson, I.G.; and Bryce Craig, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren subsequently partook of an excellent supper. Bro. Martin, W.M., presided, and a very pleasant evening was spent by all, the harmony of the proceedings being contributed to by Bros. Baxter, Swainson, Bewley, and Bland.

INSTRUCTION.
PANMURE GENERAL LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (Mark Masonry).—The second meeting of the above lodge was held at the Antelope Tavern, Lorn-road, Brixton, on the 13th inst., the evening being devoted to Mark Instruction. The lodge was opened by Bro. Thomas Poore, P.G.I.G., as W.M.; Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.O., as S.W.; Bro. C. P. McKay, as J.W.; and the several officers below the chairs were efficiently occupied. The full ceremony of advancement was rehearsed and explanations afforded by the presiding officers. A most instructive evening was the result, and a cordial vote of thanks to the Preceptors was carried with acclamation. The next meeting of the general lodge will be devoted to the Second and Third Degrees of Craft Masonry, and the subsequent Thursday evening to the Royal Arch Ceremony and Lectures.

Red Cross of Constantine.

The annual festival of the White Rose of York Conclave, No. 120, will be held at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, on the 28th inst., when the outgoing M.P.S., Sir Knight S. B. Ellis, will install Sir Knight J. F. Moss as M.P.S., and Sir Knight A. Scargill as V.E. There are several candidates for installation as members of the Order, so a most successful meeting is anticipated. The Grand Imperial Council of England has been pleased to accept an invitation to hold a Moveable Grand Conclave under the Banner of the "White Rose of York," and it was to have been held this month, but in consequence of the death of the late lamented Sir Knight R. Wentworth Little, G. Treas., the Grand Sovereign, Colonel Francis Burdett, 32° has expressed a desire that such visit be postponed until October next.

Official information has been received at Bristol that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales will visit that town on Friday, July 2nd, for the purpose of attending the show of the Agricultural Society.

The Consecration Meeting of the Chaucer R.A. Chapter, No. 1540, will be held at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, on Friday next, the 28th inst., at 4 o'clock p.m. E. Companions, John Hervey, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford and James Terry, will perform the Ceremonies of dedication. The Principals designate are Comps. Thos. James Sabine, Z.; James C. Mason, H.; E. S. Stidolph, J.

MILTON'S COMUS. By Dr. D. F. RANKING, M.A., and B. M. RANKING. H. West, 381, Mare-st., Hackney. This is a very well printed and convenient reprint of the well-known "Masque of Comus," with a dedication by Henry Lawes, gentleman of the King's Chapel, who undertook the part of the "Spirit," and by whom the music that first appeared with it was written.

The earliest edition of "Comus" appears to have been 1637, and "Printed for Humphrey Robinson at the sign of the Three Pidgeons, in Paul's Churchyard."

We think it a pity that the original date of Lawes's preface is not given, as in all such matters as concern the reproduction of books we never can be too particular.

"Comus" is so well known, that little here seems necessary to be said about its merits, which are many, or its grace, which is great.

The taste for ma-ques, which had died out, seems to be reviving amongst us—not unhappily—and we trust that it is just possible that they may assume a more definite and vital expression in our literature and tastes for the future.

As regards "Comus," it is well to remember that between 1627 and 1697, no less than twenty-seven editions appeared of it, and no work that we are aware of, of similar cast or calibre, has enjoyed so much popularity, or has been so appreciated by the ingenious and the intelligent. The "Masque of Comus" has many and great beauties peculiar to itself, and in the present edition we are pleased to acknowledge the usefulness and effect of the notes which Messrs. B. M. and F. Ranking have attached to it. They are both readable and very seasonable, very proper and very perspicuous, and show both good taste and knowledge of the subject, not the least important desideratum in commentators, though not always attended to. Though we are aware that the high merits and great name of Dr. Arne have long been given to the music to which "Comus" has been set, we confess that we should like to witness a revival of "Comus," with the music of honest old Lawes, as it was first conceived and first played.

The Messrs. Ranking give us a very neat and handy little companion for the railway bag or the railway journey, for students at examinations, for the lovers of John Milton, and we thank them for it, and wish them alike a large circulation and honest appreciation of a very pleasant little book.

FREEMASONRY, ITS HISTORY AND AIMS. By EDWARD F. WILLOUGHBY.

We have read this article, which appeared in "Macmillan" for June, with singular interest, inasmuch as, unlike most similar lucubrations, it is both fair and clear and based upon facts, and a true perception of the veritable, according to our view, explanation of Masonic history. We understand, moreover, that the writer is a brother of our Order, and we are glad to acknowledge him among the far too limited band of Masonic students, historians and archaeologists. Bro. Willoughby (we hope he will pardon us for saying so), does not, however, appear to be "posted up" as to our present state of Masonic evidence, and talks of a "lodge held at Canterbury 1426, under the patronage of the Archbishop (Chicheley), as we learn from a MS. of W.M. Morlat, the Prior, &c." This is the old story; "Morlat" being probably misspelt for Molart. But the truth is no lodge was held in 1426 at Canterbury under Chicheley, as an historical fact, but Preston, or Preston's authority, saw a register in the Turner MS., Bodleian Library, in which is a grant of "Livery" 1429 to the Master, Warden, and Masters of the lodge, and Chicheley's name stands at the top of the lodge, he also receiving "Livery." Voila tout! Molash is the real name, not Molart. The entry, however, proves that a lodge of Masons was attached to Christchurch, Canterbury.

Bro. Willoughby seems to have adopted Bro. Findel's patriotic view of the Germanic origin of English Craft Masonry, than which, we need hardly remind our readers, nothing could be more visionary. The evidence of the Guilds is quite fatal to any such proposition.

Whether or no the MS. Mas nle Poem is a 14th century or 15th century MS. is still to some extent an open question. We have Halliwell, Casley, Wallbran on one side, and Mr. Bond on the other, who is we need not observe, one of the very highest authorities that can be adduced. Kloss's theory as to "internal evidence" is, however, most doubtful, and in our opinion untenable, and in fact his arguments, if fully developed, might (with our present knowledge of MS. of which he was ignorant) rather substantiate than diminish the earlier date of MS. We must remember here that Mr. Bond gives both to the Masonic Poem, and Matthew Cooke's MS. prose Constitutions an equally early 15th century date.

What the Constitutions of York Masons are, to which Bro. Willoughby alludes, we do not profess to understand. Bro. Willoughby's theory that the word Freemason is "intended to indicate their independence of the clergy, under whose control and direction they had formerly been," is, we apprehend, however ingenious, utterly opposed to all the well known facts of the case, and utterly untenable.

If one fact is clearer than another, it is the intimate union between the mediæval Freemasons and the Monastic bodies. The word "Freemason" (see Kenning's Cyclopædia) means simply, "a Mason free of his Guild."

Bro. Willoughby seems to have been misled by a want of clearness of expression in Bro. Findel's History as regards the Sloane MS. That MS. had been known for some years before 1863, to more than one Masonic Student in England, through Mr. Wallbran, and Bro. Findel's attention was called to it by an English Masonic Student, who also gave a duplicate copy of it in his possession, (which had been transcribed for him by Mr. Sims, of the British Museum), to Bro. Findel himself, and on which he based his enquiries in the British Museum.

This is clearly stated in the "Mittheilungen" of the German Masonic Union, though not in the "History." Bro. Findel thinks the Sloane MS. had belonged once to Dr. Plot, which certainly would account for his knowledge of the contents. Whether that MS. be a portion of an operative ritual catechism or not is an open question. It is very much like what seems to have been seen by Dr. Plot himself, as we have just remarked, and which clearly was not purely operative.

Agreeing as we do in the main with Bro. Willoughby's able paper, and entering fully as we do into his appreciation of the French High Grade movement in the last century, we are glad to read his contribution to "Macmillan," and thank him for it sincerely. But we think it right to add in conclusion that English Freemasonry is alike indigenous in origin, and national in conception and development, and that the notion of a special philosophy, a peculiar teaching attached to it, beyond what its honest and excellent formularies allow, is, though a popular idea with some foreign writers, a mere chimera.

English Freemasonry, since 1813, at any rate, has been a religious and philanthropic sodality, based on acknowledgement of T.G.A.O.T.U., reverence for the Bible, and toleration of our brethren and fellow mortals, upholding the principles of loyalty, order, and peacefulness, a disavowal of sectarian controversies, and marked by a very active exercise of universal benevolence and charity. During the last century it was more Christian than anything else.

To say that English Freemasonry is "Deism" or any other "ism" is simply a parody on history, a complete travesty on all the known facts of the case. Our honest old brethren knew nothing about "Deism;" many of them were men of culture and men of position, clergymen and savants, nobles and literati, soldiers and well-to-do merchants. If they took up any "vanity" it was, perhaps, a little social materialism, in common with all around them then, and which is illustrated effectually by those festal songs and gay madrigals. But to assume today, that all those who formed part of our loyal and social Order in the last century, who toasted "The King and the Craft," were "Deists," philosophers in aprons, or sceptics in petto, is not only a little too much, but it is simply ridiculous. It is a "discovery" of our modern critics, whether from internal or external evidence, which seems to be on a par with that well-known old print, "Commemorating A Discovery," which some of our readers will remember placed the W.M. and brethren in a very unfortunate position, and even made some of the older P.M.'s, being married men, blush. If any of our good foreign brethren doubt our word, let them study that striking print carefully.

Seriously, we thank Bro. Willoughby, as we hope we may term him, for a most readable and rational paper on Freemasonry.

BULLETIN DU GRAND ORIENT DE FRANCE.

This useful monthly publication has reached us, and though there is nothing of great importance in it just now, we are always glad to receive it.

THE MASONIC ADVOCATE, INDIANAPOLIS.

We greet our old friend month by month with genuine satisfaction. It is always most readable.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPÆDIA.

The publication of this cyclopædia is an undoubted service and a noteworthy enriching of our literature. This encyclopædia of Bros. Woodford and Kenning really meets a want, and it is so correct, thorough and complete, that it satisfies all reasonable demands, though absolute perfection and correctness such a work cannot attain to, but in general, and on the whole, a permanent, useful, and valuable work has been produced and up to the height of Masonic enquiry, and of which, unless we wish pettishly to find fault, we cannot deny our recognition.—J. G. FINDL, in Bauhütte.

GRAND COMMANDERY K.T. OF NEBRASKA.

At the sixth annual convocation of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, in Nebraska, the following named Knights were elected and were duly installed in their respective stations: Sir Daniel H. Wheeler, G. Commander; Sir George H. Trummel, Deputy G. Commander; Sir Joseph K. Marley, G. Generalissimo; Sir George W. Lining, G. Captain General; Sir Thomas B. Lemon, G. Chaplain; Sir Charles B. Palmer, G. Senior Warden; Sir Gustavus Stevenson, G. Junior Warden; Sir Samuel G. Owen, G. Treasurer; Sir William R. Bowen, G. Recorder; Sir Cyrus W. Wheeler, G. Standard Bearer; Sir Francis E. White, G. Sword Bearer; Sir Dennis H. Andrews, G. Warden; Sir William J. Mount, G. Captain of the Guard.

A new command was established at Falls City; Mt. Sinai Commandery, No. 8.

The Grand Commandery ordered that the election of officers in subordinate Commanderies shall be on the first Friday after Good Friday of each year, and the installation on Ascension Day: that each Commandery shall annually assemble at its Asylum on each Good Friday for religious services appropriate to the day, permission being granted to repair to some church or place of public worship for such purpose.

A field encampment was ordered to be held on the first Tuesday in September next, at such place as the Grand Commander and his staff may determine.

The resolution adopted at the last annual convocation, (page 232) increasing by 50 dols. the fees for the Order, was repealed, and instead each candidate is required to uniform himself within ninety days after receiving the Knights Templar Order.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The forthcoming number of Petermann's "Mittheilungen" contains a highly interesting paper entitled "The Sun in the Service of Geography," in which the advantages of the process of heliogravure, or sun engraving upon copper, as practised by the Austrian Military Geographical Institute, are dwelt upon. The maps of the new Austrian Ordnance Map are carefully drawn on paper, on a scale of 1: 60,000. They are then reduced photographically to a scale of 1: 75,000, transferred upon copper, touched up, and printed. In this manner each sheet of the map can be produced in nine months, while the same amount of work engraved in the usual manner requires nearly 46 months for its completion. The whole of the Austrian Staff Map, consisting of 715 sheets, will thus be completed in 10, 11, or 12 years. No less than 271 have been published since 1874. The advantages of this process, as regards cost and rapidity of publication, are evident, and they fully compensate for any slight inferiority in the appearance of the work. An engraver, to whom we showed one of the maps produced in this manner, firmly believed that it had been engraved upon copper. If the Ordnance Survey Office were to avail itself of this process, the one inch map of the United Kingdom, for which we shall have to wait under present arrangements for years, might be completed very speedily. The Ordnance survey of Palestine, at all events, might be produced in this manner at comparatively little expense, and in a very superior manner, as an examination of a specimen map in the "Mittheilungen" will show. We ought to mention that a similar process, invented by Colonel Avet, has been in use for several years past, in the office of the Italian General Staff.—Athenæum.

The Pope last week presided over the Commission of Christian Archaeology, being the first time for 120 years (so a telegram states) that the Pope has filled the chair at a meeting of savans. He ordered the excavation of the Catacombs of St. Petronilla to be prosecuted at his own expense.

A Joint Roasted by the Heat of the Sun is one of the chief attractions of the grounds of the Paris Exhibition, where M. Mouchot, a Tours Professor, when the clouds permit, daily cooks a portion of meat by means of a strong reflector. On Saturday he succeeded in boiling sufficient water for three cups of coffee in three quarters of an hour. In Algeria, where the sun naturally possesses greater power, Professor Mouchot has roasted quails in twenty minutes.

At the International Cattle Show, in connection with the Paris Exhibition, last week, both her Majesty and the Prince of Wales are exhibitors. The three English laureates of honour at the show are William MacCombie, of Aberdeen, for a cow of Angers breed; Lord Walsingham, for sheep; and Mr. Sexton, of Ipswich, for a hog.

The Training of Carrier Pigeons is still energetically pursued in Belgium, and during the latter part of May some 3086 baskets of pigeons, containing in all 123, 440 birds, crossed the Franco-Belgian frontier, so that the pigeons might learn their way home from French territory. Four hundred birds have also been sent from Belgium to Rome, where they will be loosed and despatched on their return journey to Brussels.

In consequence of recent bereavement, Princess Louise was unable to open the exhibition of the Fanmakers' Company on the 19th inst., as originally intended. The exhibition is accordingly postponed for a few days, but due notice of the opening will be shortly announced.

Professor Virchow, of Berlin, believes he can furnish proof from a Bulgarian skull that the Bulgarians are not of Slav, but of Turkish origin.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—There is nothing further as yet to report, beyond the fact that a beginning has been made in the movement of the monolith itself, apart from the cradle on which the ship is berthed. The lift, which was but a few inches, and merely for the sake of verifying the powers of the only pair of hydraulics then in position, was made about 7 o'clock on Friday morning, when the tide was near its lowest. The hoist was applied to the head only of the needle—that is, to the lighter end. Of course, since the obelisk weighs but 187 tons, the result of this merely pro formâ experiment was perfectly satisfactory. In the course of the day the second pair of jacks was fairly planted on the middle staging, and when the third and last shall have been placed under the monolith's base all will be ready for more serious work.

A letter from the French Ogowe Expedition was read at the last meeting of the Geographical Society of Paris. It is quite a year since it was written, and some apprehensions have been entertained as to the safety of the explorers. M. de Brazza states that the Ogowe is reduced to small proportions and flows from the south, so that it gives the impression of being really an arm detached from the Congo. The expedition was to travel northwards in order to examine the sources of a powerful affluent. Illness was prevailing among the small party, and the hostility of the native tribes was growing stronger.—Nature.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has, we understand, graciously intimated his consent to accept the office of president of the Royal Colonial Institute. The Duke of Manchester, who has filled the position since 1871, upon the retirement of Viscount Bury, has been elected a vice-president and chairman of the council.—The Colonies and India.

The Eruption of Vesuvius, in A.D. 79, when Pompeii and Herculaneum were overwhelmed, is to be commemorated in Pompeii next year, on the eighteen hundredth anniversary.

IRREGULARITIES IN THE RETURNS OF THE SCRUTINEERS.

We hear with much regret of some sad mistakes in the returns made by the scrutineers of members elected to serve on the Board of General Purposes at Grand Lodge on the 5th inst. We have been informed, though we can hardly credit it, that the returns they made were so far incorrect that brethren were returned as heading the poll who were really amongst the last on the list, and that at least three brethren were returned as elected who were not elected at all. The errors appear as if they could not be accidental. This is a very untoward state of affairs. We are most glad to learn, however, that the M.W.G.M. has taken active steps in the matter, and we may be assured that justice will be done. If it should be proved, (as we trust it may not be), that false returns were purposely made, we hope that the offenders will be brought to condign punishment. The following is the correct list of the brethren really returned:—Bros. Charles Atkins, No. 27; Henry Bishop, 66; Robert F. Gould, 92; Frank Green, 1567; Henry C. Levander, 632; Alfred Meadows, M.D., 4; Frank Richardson, 14.

THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

As the interest in this election increases, and the contest assumes a more animated appearance, we think that we may be pardoned, in consideration of our many readers who have a lively concern in the progress and welfare of the Girls' School, if we recur week by week, to the subject. We think that we are warranted in doing this, the more so (as whatever our private and personal opinion may be, and to which we have a distinct right), we write publicly in the Freemason in no partizan spirit, we praise no one person at the expense of another, and we do not seek to depreciate by an open or concealed expression of opinion the claims of any one particular candidate. We do not think it right to say, for instance, that A is preferable to B, or B to C, though we possibly have an opinion of our own on the subject, and least of all do we seek officially to put forward the real or dubious claims of any one eager aspirant for office. We lay down certain general qualifications, which in our experience, we deem the most needed, for that important official, beyond that we do not go in our editorial capacity, and whether we are right or wrong in our views it does not matter much, though we fancy from what we have heard, that such qualifications as we alluded to in the last Freemason chime in with the ideas and wishes of a great majority of the subscribers to the School. But to-day we think it well to say a little more. It will be a great advantage, we venture to believe, to the School, to Charity, and to Freemasonry if, with the new Secretary we have as it were, a clear recognition of the important and pervading duties of his office. We do not want a Secretary whose time is taken up with other matters, and other grades, who is running about here and there and everywhere, who is seldom to be found, who is often absent, and whose business hours are alike uncertain and short. We require a Secretary to be always in the way at reasonable hours, in his office, attending to the details of his post, ready to give information, cheerful and courteous in imparting it. In olden days it was not expected that the Secretary should be every day at his office. But "nons avons changé tout cela," and daily attendance is requisite. The time of the Secretary should also be given up to the School, as he will have a liberal salary, and all his interest should be centred in his work. We need hardly observe that our remarks do not apply to past or present Secretaries, but are simply "general propositions," in which we think all will concur. The great difficulty of this and similar posts lies in this often, that the Secretary forgets that he is a Secretary, and becomes the ruler, ignoring the wishes of subscribers, or antagonizing the opinions of the governing body. The Secretary of the Girls' School, should be simply a good Craft Mason, (the School is a Craft Institution,) and we by no means ambition his belonging to this grand grade or that ineffable degree, or even adding many mystic letters to his name. As long as he is a Master Mason of fair standing and good repute it is quite enough, though there is no reason why he should not seek, but every inducement why he should, to rise to office in Craft Masonry, and become the actual W.M. of a lodge, and First Principal in a Chapter. For our part we shall be very glad if the time has come when this Secretarial visiting of lodges should be put a stop to. In our opinion abject touting for subscriptions, for this or that charity is hurtful to all concerned. Masonic mendicancy is a very bad thing "per se," and we know from long experience, and many brethren will confirm our expression of feeling, that nothing is so grating on our sensibilities, so lowering to the whole notion of Freemasonry, as to hear at the conclusion of the banquet, "pray pity the sorrows of this 'child:'" pray give your names to this "poor Secretary." This is Masonic mendicancy in its worst form. Masonic Charity would stand in a far better position, if the support of stewards and subscribers, was made more a matter of principle and of duty, rather than that of the "propitious moment" or the "fortunate applicant." We need hardly say that such a change would be gladly hailed by the Secretaries themselves, who now must, "nolentes volentes," conform to custom and fashion. Whether or no, in the present unhealthy position of affairs, as regards the non recognition on the part of Lodges, Chapters, and Brethren of the claims of the charities, such a salutary reform be possible we know not, but we have thought it our bounden duty to touch upon a subject which, however delicate and unwelcome, is one which many of us all have much at heart, and about which as far as we know, there is but one opinion among the brethren generally.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE SECRETARIAL ELECTION OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL?

We are happy in being permitted to state to the Craft that about a fortnight ago our gallant and esteemed Bro. Col. Creaton, acting for the House Committee of the Girls' School, secured the great hall of Freemasons' Tavern for the convenience and accommodation of the voters on the day of the Secretarial election, July 11th. We also are informed that arrangements have been in progress during the last fortnight to simplify the voting process and prevent confusion and crowding, by having various tables at which alphabetically the brethren may vote. We feel sure that these arrangements will please our readers and the Craft, and we congratulate the authorities of the Girls' School on their courtesy, and wish to meet all reasonable wishes of the subscribers, as well as for the ready action of our gallant and estimable Bro. Col. Creaton.

CAN LADIES VOTE AT THE GENERAL COMMITTEE OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

This most important question has been raised, as our readers will perceive, by a carefully written letter signed "Bye-Law," and which appears in another column to-day. The question is in itself a serious one and one clearly that deserves most careful consideration. We invite the attention of our legal brethren to the subject, and shall be happy to publish their opinions. When we have a little more "light" on the subject, we will recur to the subject editorially.

OUR LATE BRO. THE KING OF HANOVER.

We have to lament the somewhat sudden death of our late brother the King of Hanover (though, we believe, he had been for some time ailing), a Past Grand Master of the Old Grand, Lodge of Hanover. Since the battle of Langensalza, and the convention that followed that melancholy episode, our royal brother has lived in comparative retirement in the immediate circle of his amiable family, finding possibly in their general and affectionate interest, that peace and comfort which are sometimes here denied to the occupants of thrones. We as Freemasons have nothing to do with the political history of the late exiled king, nor with the events which resulted in his death, afar from his pleasant Hanover, but we can sympathize to-day with his grieving family, and remember that we have lost a highly cultivated member of our own royal family. Afflicted as he was with the loss of sight, he was, as we know, both an amiable and intelligent man, while he was also friendly to our Masonic brotherhood. That misfortune darkened his later years, that he had to succumb, as others have done, to the inevitable "fortune de la guerre," while they are matters of material fact, they do not come within our Masonic cognizance, and we only propose here, to express our sincere regret at the loss inflicted on his devoted family by his removal, at the death of a member of our own royal family, and at the premature departure of a once esteemed ruler of our Order.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of, the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

CAN LADIES VOTE IN THE GENERAL COMMITTEE OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I fear that I shall seem ungallant to some, pragmatical to others, when I raise this question, which is, however, a most important one, in your fair and impartial pages. Let me congratulate you on your equity as to correspondence, which is a good example to all. I have grave doubts, despite a sort of tacit understanding on the subject, whether ladies can legally vote in the General Committee, and I will tell you why.

No doubt the words of Rule XIII, p. 3, "every individual donor," &c., would seem to settle the matter. And so they would, had not the rule gone on specially to deal with "Ladies," or a "Lewise being a minor," in Rule XVIII, p. 5.

It may be observed here that the original qualification for voting in the General Committee is a Life-governorship, and no matter what payment is made, unless a lady is a "Life-Governor" in the sense of the rules she is not a qualified voter.

Now by the special provision of Rule XVIII, a lady subscribing five guineas obtains two votes for every five guineas subscribed, and is a Life-Governor—but in what sense? Simply, as I read it, as regards the election of candidates. She is not given—as the individual brother and lodge is given—under Rule XIII, "a vote at the meetings of the General Committee," and, therefore I apprehend, by the strict and well-known rules of legal interpretation, she is barred by the special provision of Bye-law XVIII, from voting in the General Committee, or for anything but at the election of candidates.

In Bye-law XXXVII, p. 9, when the election of the House Committee is dealt with, we meet with "nominations of brethren," (not ladies), the election is to take place "from the brethren so nominated," (not ladies), and a list is to be given to "every qualified brother attending the election"—again not ladies.

I therefore come to the conclusion that neither ladies, nor Lewises, or minors can vote in the General Committee legally. We must always bear in mind that unless it is expressly said to the contrary, the rules of the School apply to "qualified brethren," and qualified brethren alone. In the first rules of the Girls' School the words "Governor or Governess" are to be found, but in our revised rules, as ladies are specially legislated for, they can only vote under the special provisions of the rules.

I do not go into extraneous topics, or allude to other arguments which might fairly be adduced, but content myself by calling attention to the subject, and beg to subscribe myself, yours fraternally,

BYE-LAW.

THE WORLD'S FAVOUR FOR FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

There never was a period in our history when the world, qua the world, so smiled on Freemasonry. The old days in this country of alleged suspicion, contempt, derision, are over, and on every side of us we listen to words of commendation and expressions of admiration for Freemasonry. Indeed, to such a pitch has its "favour been advanced" that we find the profane press full of its goings on. Its meetings are recorded, its resolutions commented upon, its festivals are commemorated, and its good deeds are lauded. But this general admiration and acceptance have certain inconveniences, and re-act somewhat disadvantageously on our Order. The profane world, which takes our great organization into its favour, and patronises it, and praises it, adapts the outcome of Freemasonry to its own peculiar standard of men and things, and while it gladly publishes its frequent notices of our mysterious association, seems to imagine that it has a right to know all that it wishes to know about it, whether for the information of the inquisitive, or the delectation of the mere "gobemouche." Two great evils spring from this profane reputation and worldly favour. The one is over publicity, the other is a pandering to fashionable, and in a purely worldly sense, distinguished patronage. For it has come to this, that not only do Masonic papers, as Masonic papers, publish the actual accounts of Masonic work and meetings, but non-Masonic papers, using our terminology, availing themselves of our technical terms, adopt them, though without understanding them, and transfer to their pages those expressions of Masonic usages, which are peculiar to us as Masons, and belong prima facie to the lodge assembly, and to the lodge assembly alone.

Of course if we are to have Masonic publication at all, such inconveniences and incongruities must occur, (to which many old Masons no doubt fairly enough object), but at any rate the evil, if it be an evil, would be materially lessened in its effect if the brethren confined these flowing accounts of theirs to professedly Masonic papers. But we open to-day the sheets of non-Masonic papers, and find carefully detailed accounts of lodge meetings in all the special language of the Craft, and which do not appear, be it noted in any Masonic paper. We think then that this tendency to over communicativeness, to hyper-publication amongst us, is a great and growing evil, and we cannot too strongly deprecate the forgetfulness that some brethren are good enough often to exhibit that there is such a thing in the world as a Masonic Press.

The Freemason Sir, I am happy to remark, has been conspicuous in its endeavours to restrain ritual allusions within the narrowest limits possible, and to uphold the principle that the technicalities of our work should be confined to the lodge. I for one have for some time been sensible that Masonic writers are writing too freely on Masonic ritualism and the like, and it will be remembered favourably that in the "Cyclopædia" of your Publisher all ritual explanations, except certain fair open questions, are most properly left to the lodge, and to the lodge alone, so thus both publisher and editor of the work have shown a wise discretion.

Let us then set our faces against the increasing desire of Masonic publication of lodge work. It only flatters, as I believe, the "amour propre" of the "faincant," the self conceit of the upstart. The staple of a Masonic paper must of course always be the "reports of lodge meetings," but with due caution and careful supervision they can, while easily understood by "bright Masons," cease to be marked by indiscreet allusions to the "aporreta" of our Masonic work and symbolism.

But there is another evil growing amongst us, which I think it my duty seriously to denounce in all the honesty of manly and independent utterance. It is the craving for something grander, more exalted, more fashionable than Craft Masonry. Something which is a "more gentlemanly sort of thing" than the old Craft work, which delighted our honest forefathers, which has charmed the educated, and is yet good enough, let us hope, for us. The craving for high grades and greater mysteries has been a "disease" in France and Germany, which led to the most deplorable results in the last century, which eventually shut up the lodges in Russia, and has split up Freemasonry into "factions," more or less, everywhere. In England we were too sensible, to matter-of-fact, to allow any such passing or political manufactures of senseless systems to pass current with us. We kept happily to the old foundation, the old form, the old names, and at this time, the English Grand Lodge stands in a position never yet reached by any other Masonic body in the world.

When we are told to-day that the "High Grades" are superior to Craft Masonry, what do the brethren mean who tell us such nonsense, inasmuch as they belie the facts of history, and contradict all rational evidence?

"Les Hautes Grades" in France were originally founded on a fictitious Templarism, first put forward by Ramsay, and elaborated by Von Hund, and which rested on a pure fable, (we might properly use stronger language), and served to build up an utterly fictitious, useless, unsound Masonic edifice, which has long since crumbled away into dust and nothingness. The multiplication of the "Hautes Grades" in France has been the cause of unmitigated evils, and to them may be traced and fairly attributed much of the opposition of the Roman Catholic body, inasmuch as some of their peculiar ceremonies, the Romish Church has been wont to regard, (whether rightly or wrongly matters not to us), as "irreverent travesties" and "blasphemous parodies." Yet, singularly enough, all these High Grades, the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite especially, make Craft Masonry the basis on which their wondrous and awe-inspiring superstructure is reared.

Can any reasonable man—any Masonic student—seriously claim any good from the various aspects of the high grades, which abound specially on the Continent, (except as a medium of fees), and which have, as far as I can see, no practical benefit, or any practical meaning.

It has been said that the inventive genius of degree-mongers, a very fruitful and trustful activity, has found out and framed something like goo high degrees in the world, most of which, I hope their friends will excuse me for saying so, seem to me to-day the creation of childishness or perversity, the outcome of personal folly and human ineptitude.

Nay, I will even say, such is the tolerant spirit of Craft Masonry, that a priori if their acolytes see good and utility in them they have as much right to exist as Craft Masonry itself, despite its honoured annals and its obvious utility to man.

But, having said this, I also think it right to add these few further remarks. To the Christian Grades I at once concede, if I do not at once realize their "raison d'être," owing to my own subjective infirmity of mind probably, their "jus vivendi" in respect to their own associates, admirers supporters and members.

I have always denied, therefore, and I always shall deny to them the rightful appellation of "High Grades," inasmuch as, in my opinion, nothing can be higher, more excellent, more ancient, more useful than our less pretentious but admirable Craft Masonry, including the Royal Arch.

It would be impossible and improper for us as Craft Masons, one of whose leading principle is the goodly one of toleration, to lay down any objective dogma as against the "Christian Grades." If their members like them, find good in them, study them, praise them—be it so, they have a full right to do so, and whether we see their good or utility, matters nothing—they do, and that is quite enough for them, and practically quite enough for us only do not let us mix up Craft Masonry with them. They and Craft Masonry stand on entirely different basis, act upon a totally different platform. Craft Masonry is universal, the Christian Grades are limited, and though I will not presume to say that the two principles cannot in some measure be harmonised, yet for my part, I honestly prefer and as honestly cling to the simpler profession of Craft Masonry.

As Craft Masons, we need none of us ever be ashamed of our good old Order, which has weathered the storm of ages, and now stands erect and firm, asking for the approval of all loyal Masons, all honest men, and seeking the happiness of the brotherhood, and the welfare of mankind.

I trust that none will misunderstand the drift, or misinterpret the spirit of these remarks. I have spoken "more meo," frankly, fearlessly, openly, believing honestly what I distinctly put forward, and I trust that none will blame me for writing too much, even as "Downright Dunstable."

If at the present day it is often difficult to speak plainly, if truth is not always palatable to us unvarnished mortals, if some may dislike my plainness of speech or independence of opinion, let us keep Masonry free from such baneful influences, from such demoralizing degradation; and let us still make it our boast as Freemasons, that we are not afraid, any of us, to avow our opinion, in all modesty and consideration for others, and not afraid, in season and out of season, through good report and evil report, to speak what in our consciences we actually believe to be the truth.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

CRAFTSMAN.

THE WORD "ARYAN."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to the second query of your correspondent "W. W. A.," in the Freemason of last week, will you kindly allow me to point out that the word "Aryan" is an adjective, and the substantive "Arya," from which it is formed, is a Sanscrit word, meaning "noble." It is in connection with the history of our own language that we generally meet with the word "Aryan," and the enquiry to which your correspondent draws attention must ever be one of great interest.

Language bears undeniable witness to the fact that our own forefathers originally dwelt in the same country with the ancestors of the Hindoos, Persians, Greeks, Latins, Slavonians, and Celts, and it is to the progenitors of these nations and of our own that the name "Aryan" is applied. I may mention that the original meaning of the word "Arya" was "a tiller of the soil," or "plougher," and it is not too much to say that we may see traces of the term in the Latin "arare," and in our own English "ear." It is not hard to see how the word came to mean "noble." The Turanian, or roving, tribes were far less civilized than the old "Aryans," or "ploughing folk," and it was to distinguish them from those nomad Tartar hordes that they adopted the word "Aryan" as a national name.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

T. M. DRON, Sec. 417.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Aryan is the original tribal name of the Persian and Indian race; used in the Vedas and Avesta. The Jews called that tribe Japhetic which the Brahmins term Aryan. The Slavs, Gauls, Greeks, Teutons, and Old Armenians are of Aryan descent. These families of nations speak a similar language, of which the words are formed by a welding of the monosyllabic root to the adjective terminal.

The Aryan tribe apparently assumed the name to indicate that they were tillers of the soil, for the word-root, ar, originally meant—to plough, and from it are formed many words expressive of skill and noble qualities—as art. In Sanscrit ar means noble, and in Danish and Anglo-Saxon er is glory, honour.

W. W. A. will find information in Max Muller's "Lectures on the Science of Language."

Yours fraternally, JOHN YARKER, 33-96.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The first of W. W. A.'s queries in your last number I am unable to answer.

In reply to the second I can tell him the following:—

"Aryan" is a name given to one of the large families of language, spoken in different varieties by nations extending from India to Europe, and hence also called Indo-European. The word is derived from the Sanskrit "Arya," meaning "of good family," which was adopted as a title by the early speakers of this family of language, to distinguish themselves from others.

Hoping that W. W. A. may find this "a clear and satisfactory definition" of the word,

I am yours fraternally,

E. L. H.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to the query of Bro. W. W. A. in your paper of the 15th inst., I send you the following account of the derivation and meaning of the word "Aryan."

In Hebrew the word "Aree" means the courageous one, in Greek the "areios" mighty or warlike, from Pres the God of war, in Sanscrit the word "aree" means master in the extended sense of master of the house or head of the family "pere de famille" as Mons. A. Langlois, the French scholar and orientalist renders it in his translation of the Reg-Veda, (the oldest of the Vedas or sacred books of the early Indians).

Mons. Langlois attaches great importance to this meaning of the word, assigning as his reason for so doing that he is of opinion, that the Indian colony which under the guidance of Mann, settled in the Aryavartta, came from the countries lying to the west of the Indus, called indiscriminately Aria, Ariana, and Hiran. The simple word arya and its derivation arya, were the natural denominations of the colonists who became the owners of the land. Hence it was that in ordinary language the word Arya ceased to be used as an appellation distinctive of a people, but preserved its meaning of Master. Later on, when the caste system was established, the name "Aryan" (confounded with "Varsyan") was given to the agriculturists. Meanwhile, the ancient inhabitants had been driven back into the mountains, and being compelled to live by plunder, received the name of "Dasyas" (which name had perhaps an allusion to their barbarous character) which contrasted marvellously with that of the "Aryans," both in morals and religion; in fact, so remarkable, that the name "Aryan" became synonymous with good, or respectable.

Monsieur Langlois is also of opinion that as the word "Hellenes" was used as the generic name of the inhabitants of Greece, so the word "Aryan" was for a long time the generic name of the Indian nations.

I should have sent you a copy of M. L's remarks had I not feared to trespass too far on your valuable space, but trusting that the above will interest some of your readers, as well as "W. W. A.,"

I am, yours fraternally,

J. R. J.

CHESHIRE EDUCATIONAL MASONIC INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the notice you gave of the Cheshire Educational Masonic Institution in your paper of Saturday, the 15th inst., I observe you finish your remarks with the following question:—"What steps are taken to see that the children do receive a befitting education?"

I now beg to inform you, in reply, that that subject is always most carefully considered at the time when the child is first placed on our books, so that it might be sent to a suitable school in every way, and we always require, at least, an annual report from the schoolmaster or mistress of the progress, &c., &c., of their pupils, and occasionally we get some brother known to us to look after any child that may be at school in his neighbourhood, so that he might give us an unbiased opinion of the child's progress and welfare; in fact, this is a point on which we are very particular.

For your information and satisfaction I enclose a copy of a circular which I have just sent to all the lodges and chapters in our province, with a copy of our last report, and which you will see gives extracts from some reports from the various schools where our children are placed. Hoping you will consider your question satisfactorily answered,

I remain, yours fraternally,

F. K. STEVENSON,

Hon. Secretary

Cheshire Educational Masonic Institution.

PROVINCIAL RETURNS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can it be possible that there exists such a lax state of affairs as stated by "A P.M. and Prov. Officer," in your last week's issue, or has he stumbled over a "mare's nest?" In sec. 26, page 69, Book of Constitutions it is ordered "That all monies due to Grand Lodge from private lodges shall be annually remitted to it, failing which the delinquent lodge may be erased."

Thus armed, I can scarcely think that our highly esteemed and excellent Grand Secretary would allow defaulting lodges thus to escape their liabilities for periods varying from two to eighteen years. If such be the case there must be a sad lack of supervision somewhere.

Yours fraternally,

A PAST PROV. OFFICER.

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will any brother Mason assist the writer in obtaining admission for a strong, healthy, fairly educated boy into Her Majesty's Navy.

He is one of fourteen children (ten boys), and although the writer has done his best for such a swarm, he cannot find money to place this one in trade, for which he has no taste, and from which he would assuredly bolt at an early date.

I intend him to work and fight too (if wanted) his way up from the ranks; and all I ask in charity is the opportunity of giving one of my children to the service of his Queen and country.

That I am not an adventurer may be known by the circumstance that I am in a position to subscribe myself, Very faithfully and fraternally,

A W.M.

MASONIC ELECTIONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The many objections that have been made in your columns during the past few weeks to the mode of conducting elections for Masonic Committees, not only prove the increased interest that is taken by the Craft in the welfare of the Institution, as a whole, but also point out the necessity of remedying any seeming abuses which may tend to breed dissension, or to cause unnecessary irritation or ill-feeling amongst its members; and it would be well that those who take the lead in such matters should direct their attention to these complaints, and, by a timely revision of the regulations prevent a further growth of dissatisfaction, which, if allowed to spread must undoubtedly prove detrimental to the interests of Freemasonry in general, and of our Charities in particular. The communications referred to have only alluded to the School elections, but it cannot be denied that they are equally applicable to the Committee elections in Grand Lodge. Let us take as an instance the election for the Board of General Purposes. The Book of Constitutions states (p. 107) that "the Masters and Past Masters are to be elected by ballot, and for that purpose the names of the several brethren intended to be put in nomination are to be delivered in writing at the General Committee preceding the Grand Lodge in June." If this election is to be by ballot, that ceremony ought certainly to be conducted upon the most approved standard, rather than in the loose manner at present practised. The Ballot Act as applied to parliamentary and municipal elections, with which we are all familiar, having been found to work well, there can be no good reason why, its general principles should not be adopted in Freemasonry. Clause 6 of Schedule 1. would meet one objection that has been strongly urged. It provides that each candidate shall be nominated by a separate nomination paper, but the same electors or any of them may subscribe as many nomination papers as there are vacancies to be filled, but no more." The provisions for withdrawing nominations, for conducting the poll, for the issue of ballot papers, and for the care of them after they are marked, might all be advantageously considered in framing a set of rules, which should enable Freemasons, as men of business, to conduct the business of their elections in a more business-like manner. If this were carried out by Grand Lodge, as well as by the Charities, there would be less occasion for those charges of "sharp practices," "packing and nursing committees," "want of honour, right, truth, and justice," "dishonest elections," "unseemly scandals," "disorderly proceedings," "cliques," &c., which have been used in from various quarters.

Yours fraternally,

THE LETTER "H."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As you have thought fit to copy from the Times a communication from the pen of the Rev. F. O. Morris, anent this much misused letter, charging the county of Worcester with the misdemeanour; may I ask to have the saddle put on the right horse,—Salop,—and the lines correctly given? That is as "Holloway in his Dictionary of Provincialisms" gives it.

"The petition of the letter 'h' to the inhabitants of Shrewsbury greeting.

Whereas I have by you been driven
From house, from home, from hope, from heaven,
And placed by your most learn'd Society
In exile, anguish, and anxiety,
And used without one just pretence,
With arrogance and insolence,
I here demand full restitution,
And beg you'll mend your elocution."

To this petition the inhabitants of Shrewsbury returned the following answer:—

"Whereas we've rescued you, Ingrate,
From handcuff, horror, and from hate,
From hell, from horsepond, and from halter,
And consecrated you in Altar,
And placed you where you ne'er should be,
In Honour and in Honesty;
We deem your pray'r a rude intrusion,
And will not mend our elocution."

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

A WORCESTERSHIRE MAN.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPÆDIA.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

The name of "Warener," alluded to in the New York Dispatch of June 2nd, under the head "New York," in your Cyclopædia, should read Harrison. It is an obvious misprint.

The "notes of correction" by our esteemed confrere will be duly attended to in a second edition. I observe, however, with some little amusement, that printers' devils in America are as faulty as in England, since even my kind friend in New York begins with two errata, he reading "now according to the Constitutions of 1766 and Dunckerley's copy in 1737," whereas, in the Cyclopædia it properly reads according to the Constitutions of 1764 (published by Kearsley), and Dunckerley's copy, by the way, in 1737, &c.

This is a proof, if proof were wanting how many allowances must be made for printer's errors, and which cannot be ascribed to any want of editorial supervision. I think it right to say this, and am,

Yours fraternally,

THE EDITOR OF YOUR CYCLOPÆDIA.

Dear Bro. Findel,—

I thank you sincerely for your kind words in the Bauhütte of June 15th, which are truly appreciated by Bro. Kenning and myself. In your very thoughtful and fair review you have shown a most genial spirit to many unavoidable shortcomings, but which, arising from "circumstances" over which, to use a hackneyed phrase, "I had no control," I hope to amend (D.V.), in a second edition.

If you will kindly put down such "errata" as strike your careful observation, and suggest such emendations, or alterations as you think well, I will, I need not say, gladly welcome them, and duly note them.

I am, dear Bro. Findel, yours very sincerely and fraternally,

A. F. A. WOODFORD.

OLD AND VALUABLE BOOKS.

For all whom it may concern I desire to state that Messrs. Ellis and White, of 29, New Bond-street, (the well-known dealers in noted and scarce works), have a set for sale of Bernard Picard's splendid work, 1723-43, &c. It is especially valuable to the members of the "mystic tie," because it contains a fac-simile of the engraved List of Lodges, by John Pine, up to 1734, and about which the erroneous statement has been made that it is a Register of York Lodges, whereas, all of them were warranted by the London Grand Lodge, a note of which was lately made by Bro. Kenneth R. H. Mackenzie (editor of the Royal Cyclopædia) for the Freemason.

The set contains the seven volumes of "Cérémonies et Coutumes Religieuses de tous les Peuples du Monde," Amsterdam, 1723-37, and the "Supplement," Amsterdam, 1743 (2 vols.) The "Superstitions ancienne et Modernes," &c., Amsterdam, 1733-6. Eleven volumes complete and bound in six royal folio, all first editions, with 266 "beautiful engravings, brilliant impressions, in the original Dutch calf, neat," (12 12s.)

The works are in French, and certainly well worth the money asked, copies of which are in the Free Library of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite," 33, Golden-square.

W. JAMES HUGHAN.

A QUERY.

Can any Scottish brother tell me who delivered a lecture on Constantinople, January 3, 1878, at Aberdeen? It appears in the American Masonic Eclectic for June, without a name, and I should like to publish it in the Masonic Magazine.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex was held on Saturday last at the Greyhound Hotel, Hampton Court. Col. Burdett, Prov. G. Master, presided. Bro. F. Davison, acted as Deputy Prov. G.M.; Dr. Ramsay as Prov. G. S.W.; Bro. James Lewis Thomas, Assist. G.D.C.; was in his chair of Prov. J.G.W.; Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treasurer; and Bro. H. C. Levander, Prov. G. Secretary.

Among the other brethren present were Gen. Brownrigg, Prov. G.M. for Surrey; Col. Shadwell Clerke, S.G.D.; Capt. N. G. Phillips, P.S.G.D.; H. A. Dubois, John Mason, George Kenning, F. Walters, Dr. Ramsay, J. W. Baldwin, J. B. Shackleton, Walter Howell Williams, G. Hammond, Col. Peters, T. J. Sabine, T. C. Walls, R. H. Thrupp, L. Beck, C. B. Brown, D. W. Pearce, Sir. C. Bright, Sanders, and H. Massey (Freemason).

The Prov. G.M. was first saluted.

After the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. Levander, by direction of the Prov. G.M., read the patent appointing Sir Charles T. Bright as Deputy Prov. G.M.; Sir Charles took the obligation, and the Prov. G.M. thereupon invested him with the collar and jewel of his office. Sir Charles Bright thanked the Prov. G.M. for conferring on him the honour, and promised to perform the duties attaching to the office to the best of his ability.

Bro. C. S. Brown acting as D. of C., then called on the brethren to salute Gen. Brownrigg, Prov. G.M. for Surrey, one of the distinguished visitors. The ceremony having been performed, Bro. Levander read the report of the Audit Committee shortly, from which it was shown that the Prov. G. Lodge had lost by the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival &c., £81 1s. 11d. The balance however to the credit of the Province, after deducting this sum, was £160 1s. 9d.

On the motion of Bro. F. Davison, seconded by Bro. D. W. Pearce, the report was ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

Bro. D. W. Pearce in proposing the re-election of Bro. H. G. Buss as Prov. G. Treasurer, said that Bro. Buss had faithfully served the province in that capacity during nearly all the years the province had been in existence. This year Bro. Buss came before the brethren under somewhat of a cloud, through no fault of his own, having had the misfortune to lose a portion of the provincial funds by the failure of the bankers. The Provincial Grand Lodge, however, entirely acquitted him of any fault, and as he brought forward a balance of £160 to the credit of the Province it showed that he had taken great care of the funds.

Bro. F. Walters seconded the motion, and Bro. Buss was unanimously re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer, amidst great applause.

The Prov. G.M. informed Bro. Buss that it was with much pleasure he had now to declare that he had been unanimously re-elected.

Bro. Buss said he had to thank the brethren for this mark of their renewed confidence. He could only say in reply to the observations of Bro. Pearce that the bankers fortunately were not of his selection, but were chosen by the Prov. G. Lodge. The loss by the failure of the bankers was £81 15. 11d. With the consent of the Prov. G. Master he accepted the composition which the Hampshire and North Wilts Bank offered, 9s. in the £, to the creditors of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co. The account of the Provincial Grand Lodge still stood at the Hampshire and North Wilts Banking Co. and would continue to do so unless the Prov. G. Lodge decided otherwise.

Bro. H. A. Dubois moved that the account be continued to be kept at the Bank.

Bro. Saunders seconded the motion; and then observed that the bank was a first class bank, which had for a long period been conducting a large and extensive business.

It was therefore resolved unanimously to keep the Prov. G. Lodge account at the Bank of the Hampshire and North Wilts Banking Co.

On the motion of Bro. F. Davison, seconded by Dr. Ramsay, Bro. J. Gilbert was unanimously re-elected Prov. Grand Tyler.

The Prov. G.M. then said that it had for several years been the custom of this Prov. G. Lodge to devote certain sums to the different Masonic Charities. These sums had been ten guineas to the Boys' School, ten guineas to the Girls' School, and £10 to the aged Freemasons. He proposed that they should do the same again this year.

Bro. T. J. Sabine seconded the motion, and these sums were unanimously voted.

Before passing to the appointment of Provincial Grand officers for the year, the Prov. G.M. drew the brethren's attention to the circumstance of the annual meetings of the Prov. G. L. not taking place on a fixed day; and he requested the brethren's consideration of the subject, whether it would be advisable to appoint a fixed day, say the third Saturday in June. There were many brethren who would have wished to be present at the present meeting but were absent because there was not a fixed day by which they would have been able to regulate other engagements. Among these brethren was Capt. Cockle, whom he was going to appoint Prov. G. S. W. He was very happy to see so large a meeting, but he believed it would have been still larger if there had been a fixed day for it.

Bro. F. Davison remarked that if any of the provincial lodges held their regular meetings on the day suggested they would have to alter them.

The Prov. G.M. said of course they would, but that could be easily arranged. He would let the matter stand over for the present, and whatever his decision was would be communicated to each lodge in the province.

The following brethren were then appointed to office:—

Capt. Cockle (Bro. F. Davison invested for him).....	Prov. G.S.W.
Col. Peters.....	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. W. S. Moses.....	Prov. G. Chaplain.
Rev. J. J. Wray.....	Prov. G. Chaplain.
Rushworth.....	Prov. G. Reg.
H. G. Buss.....	Prov. G. Treas.
H. C. Levander.....	Prov. G. Sec.
Saunders.....	Prov. G.S.D.
J. Llewellyn Jones.....	Prov. G.J.D.
Thomas Wells.....	Prov. G. S. of W.
C. S. Brown.....	Prov. G.D.C.
Capt. R. G. W. Williams, M.A., P.P.G.O.....	Prov. G. Swd. B.
Louis Beck.....	Prov. G. Org.
Driscoll.....	Prov. G. P.
J. B. Shackleton.....	Prov. Assist. G.P.
Simpson, Baker, Thrupp, Mead, Keene, Townsend, and Hammond.....	Prov. G. Stewards.
J. Gilbert.....	Prov. G. Tyler.

These brethren were then saluted.

Bro. H. A. Dubois said that as this was the first meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge since the lamented decease of Bro. Little, the Deputy Prov. G.M., he would move that a vote of condolence with Bro. Little's widow be passed, and a letter sent to her accompanying a copy of the vote.

Bro. James Lewis Thomas seconded the motion, which was put to the brethren and carried unanimously.

The Prov. G.M. directed Bro. Levander to say in the letter that the vote was agreed to unanimously.

Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. After the banquet the toasts and speeches were given very shortly, as the time was limited, on account of the trains, and when the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" had been honoured, the Prov. G.M. proposed "The M.W.G.M., the Prov. G.M., the Dep. G.M., and the Rest of the Grand Officers," in one toast, calling upon General Brownrigg to reply.

Bro. General Brownrigg said he believed it was Byron who described "Cerberus," the dog who guarded the gates of a place he would not mention, as being "three gentlemen rolled into one;" but the Prov. G.M. had done him the honour of rolling four into one in the toast he had just proposed. He (General Brownrigg) was no doubt the Senior Grand Officer present, as it was now twenty-five years since he was appointed S.G.W. in the Grand Lodge of England. Speaking for the Grand Officers, he thought that, as a rule, the Craft would agree in the selection of Grand Officers. As belonging to the Council which had the honour of selecting them, he knew the extreme difficulty there was in balancing the claims of those who from their Masonic proficiency were deserving of Grand Lodge honours. The Craft acknowledged that the honours were worthily bestowed. The task of selection had been especially difficult of late years, the field having become so much larger on account of the great increase in Freemasonry from which the officers were to be taken, than it was at the time he was chosen Grand Senior Warden. The Grand Officers tried their best to do their duty; and it was plain that they must from old habits, if from nothing else, have the interests of the Craft at heart. He could not sit down without expressing his great gratification at finding himself ranged alongside his dear old friend the Prov. G.M. of Middlesex. They generally found themselves at these Masonic entertainments side by side, and he thought this was emblematical of the cordial assistance and co-operation that the Provinces of Surrey and Middlesex, geographically united as they were, would always give to one another.

Gen. Brownrigg proposed "The Health of the Prov. G.M." with whom he could not help having particular sympathy because knowing the duties which devolved upon a Prov. G.M., he knew the difficulties he must have (which every Prov. G.M. had) in the distribution of his patronage. He had been trying to instil into the minds of the brethren of his own province that those who were anxious for the provincial purple, and those who were anxious, as all were, for the higher ranks, must remember that there were only two Wardenships that could be given. He had also done his best to show them that in his province all the purple aprons should be considered co-equal; that there were only two Wardenships, and therefore the selection must be made among those who had done the greatest work in the Craft. He thought that those who received the inferior collars ought to be just as well satisfied as those who had the superior. The brethren of Surrey took a particular interest in Middlesex. The province of Surrey considered itself a sort of elder sister, and felt that it was only natural that the younger sister should be more prolific in lodges. During the time the province of Middlesex had been established it had produced nearly double the number of lodges that Surrey had in the same time. In her production he wished her success, and hoped that her future offspring would be as satisfactory as those represented at the present meeting.

The Prov. G.M. in replying expressed the pleasure he had in seeing the progress of the Craft in his province, a progress which had far surpassed everything that he or any member of the province could have anticipated. He had had very able friends in the province to assist in carrying it forward, and it was in consequence of their exertions that the province had arrived at its present proud position. It had achieved a position of great power and influence, from which he hoped it would never retrograde. On the contrary he hoped it would continue to progress as it had progressed for the last seven or eight years. Hourly, daily and yearly, he felt more flattered and honoured by the position he now held in consequence of the enormous number of brethren and lodges joining the ranks in the province. The duties of the Prov. G.M. were great, but he endeavoured to perform them to the satisfaction of the brethren. These were the feelings which animated him, and as long as he could perform his duties to the brethren's satisfaction, he hoped to do so, and to live as respected as he would at the present moment. He could not help feeling that he was respected, and although it might appear like egotism he could not avoid saying so. The brethren had met him with so much fraternal affection that he flattered himself that he was respected and beloved by the Craft.

The Prov. G.M. proposed "The Deputy Prov. G.M. and the Past Dep. Prov. G. Masters," and mentioned that it he had not found that Sir Charles Bright was enthusiastically inclined towards the Order, he should not have placed himself in such a precarious position as to appoint him as Dep. Prov. G.M.

Sir Charles Bright in the course of his acknowledgment said that the Prov. G.M. did all the work and left nothing whatever for his assistants to do. Speaking for the rest of the Grand Officers just appointed he thought he could say, as far as they were all concerned, they, like himself, wished to be true and hearty supporters, shoulder to shoulder of their Right Worshipful Prov. G.M. He should try to do his duty well, and he was sure everybody else would, and the province would go on progressing. He thought General Brownrigg had spoken of the province in tones of envy, but the province would go on supporting him with love and affection as Bro. Masons.

Col. Shadwell Clerke, G.S.D. of England, responded for "The Visitors." This was not the first or the second time he had had the privilege of being present at the Prov. Grand Lodge of Middlesex, and he could honestly say he hoped it would not be the last, and he said this for many reasons, but particularly for the unanimity, and good feeling, and cordiality he found among the brethren. There was but one cloud which passed over his feelings, and that was caused by the absence from among them of his old friend and schoolfellow, Bro. Robert Westworth Little. Let them hope that he had gone to that reward which his numerous social and Masonic qualities led them to trust he was entitled to.

The Prov. G.M. next gave "The Masonic Charities," and reiterated the remarks he made in the Prov. Grand Lodge, that it had been the custom at all these yearly gatherings to vote sums of money to the Masonic Institutions.

Col. Peters, Prov. G.J.W., replying, said it had always been his delight ever since he had been a Mason to do everything he could for the Charities. As long as the province of Middlesex had such members as it had it would have good lists for the three Charities. He then thanked the Prov. G.M. for having appointed him to the rank of Prov. G.J.W., and said he had not expected it, and did not think he deserved it.

The brethren having received the Tyler's toast separated.

FREEMASONRY IN SUSSEX.

On Wednesday, the 12th inst., the officers of Provincial Grand Lodge and the Masters of lodges in the Province of Sussex were entertained by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master (Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., M.P.), at his seat, West Grinstead Park. Nearly all those who had the privilege of an invitation were present. After a stroll round the park and a minute inspection of the valuable contents of the mansion, the company, numbering about thirty, sat down to an elegant banquet in the fine old dining hall. The bill of fare enumerated every delicacy of the season, and the dinner was a magnificent entertainment.

At the close of the repast, the Prov. Grand Master gave the loyal and Masonic toasts in terse but pointed terms, and they were warmly received. With "The Health of the Provincial Grand Officers" he coupled the name of Bro. Dixon, Prov. G.S.W.

Bro. Dixon, in responding, referred to the popularity of the recent appointment of Sir Walter Burrell as Prov. G. Master of the Masons of Sussex, and expressed a sincere hope that he might long be spared to occupy that distinguished position, a remark which elicited warm approbation.

Bro. Wyatt, Chichester, replied to the toast of "The Masters of Lodges in the Province of Sussex," a band of brethren whom Sir Walter, in giving the toast, said were distinguished for their zeal and ability in the cause of Freemasonry.

Bro. John H. Scott, D.P.G.M., gave "The Health of Sir Walter Burrell, M.P." Referring to his recent appointment, he said it was necessary in one occupying that position, that he should be of noble birth, in easy circumstances, and have the welfare of Freemasonry at heart. In all these respects the present Prov. G.M. was eminently fitted for the post he held, and he felt satisfied that a more popular selection could not have been made. (Loud applause.)

In response, Sir Walter W. Burrell paid a very high compliment to the distinguished ability of his Deputy (Bro. John Scott), to whom, he said, was due in a great measure the high position of the Craft in the province. He said, so long as he had health, he should feel it a high honour to occupy the position to which the Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, had thought fit to appoint him. (Cheers.) He hoped to meet them on many annual occasions similar to the meeting of that day, as he believed such gatherings would tend greatly to promote the best interests of the Craft.

Bro. Jos. Farnham, P.G. Swd. (South Saxon, Lewes), gave "The Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Freeman," a brother occupying a very onerous and difficult position, but one which he filled with great ability and to the entire satisfaction of the brethren.

Bro. V. P. Freeman acknowledged the compliment in appropriate terms, expressive of his gratification at having the confidence of the brethren generally.

Bro. C. A. Wooley, P.G. Registrar (South Saxon), proposed "The Health of Lady Burrell and the other Ladies of the Family" in a few well-chosen remarks, the toast being acknowledged by Sir Walter.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

A moveable meeting of the Grand Mark Lodge of England was held on Friday week, and was a memorable day in the history of Masonry, so far as Cumberland and Westmorland were concerned, the Provincial Mark Lodge of the two counties having been honoured by a special visit from the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown. The gathering was held at Keswick, the Provincial Grand Lodge being held under the banner of Bective Lodge, No. 147, in that town, whilst the Grand Lodge was held under the auspices of the Province of Cumberland and Westmorland. The principal work of the Grand Lodge was to consecrate two new lodges, viz., Fletcher Lodge, No. 213, Whitehaven, named after the late Major Fletcher; and the Henry Lodge, No. 216, Frizington, named after Bro. Dr. E. W. Henry, Whitehaven. Both these lodges, it may be mentioned, have previously held charters, and been worked, under the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland; but latterly there has sprung up amongst the members a laudable idea of severing themselves from the Scottish Constitution, and transferring their allegiance to the Grand Mark Lodge of England. This feeling has become very general amongst the few Mark lodges in England holding their charters from Scotland, and besides the two bodies referred to, there is talk of yet another lodge (True Friendship, No. 27, Maryport) throwing in its Scotch charter, and applying for admission to the English Grand Lodge. Independent of these, we understand that steps are being taken to open a lodge of Mark Master Masons at Cockermouth. Should such come to pass, the Province of Cumberland and Westmorland will then be about as strong as any in the northern counties.

The working proceedings of the day took place at the Court Buildings, which had undergone a most elaborate ornamentation at the hands of the brethren of Bective Lodge, prominent amongst the decorations being a fine collection of lake and mountain scenery in oil, the "chefs d'œuvre" of Bro. A. Pettitt, Lodge 147, Keswick, three of whose latest representations of Thirlmere are now the property of the Mayor and Corporation of Manchester, and have been lent to the Council of the Art Treasures Exhibition in that city. The ordinary Mark lodge was opened shortly after twelve, there being a good attendance from the following lodges:—Cumberland, No. 60, Carlisle; Bective, 147, Keswick; Whitwell, 151, Maryport; Kent Dale, 195, Kendal; Fletcher, 213, Whitehaven; Henry, 216, Frizington; together with a few visitors from Electric Lodge, 39, West Hartlepool; Grosvenor, 144, London, &c. Bro. Col. Whitwell, M.P., Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in the absence of the Earl of Bective, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, opened the Provincial Grand Lodge, subsequently, supported by the following present and past officers:—Bros. Jos. Nicholson, P.M. 151, P.P.G.S.W., as D.P.G.M.; Dr. Henry, 60, P.G.S.W.; G. J. McKay, 195, P.G.J.W.; J. Gardiner, 151, P.G.M.O.; W. F. Lamony, 151, P.G.A.D.C. (Freemason), as P.G.S.

O.; W. B. Gibson, 151, P.G.J.O.; J. A. Wheatley, 60, P.G. Treasurer; P. de E. Collin, 151, P.G. Secretary; T. Mandle, 151, P.G.R.M.; G. W. Kenworthy, 151, P.G.S.D.; R. J. Nelson, 195, P.G.J.D.; F. W. Watson, 195, P.G.D.C.; J. H. Banks, 151, P.G.I.G.; F. W. Hayward, 60, P.P.G.S.W.; T. Usher, 147, P.P.G.S.O.; W. Thornton, 147, P.P.G.I.G.; E. Tyson, 151, P.P.G.I.G.

The following brethren were present, in addition to these holding provincial rank:—Bective Lodge, No. 147, Keswick: Bros. W. Lamont, R. Robinson, R.M.; J. Melmore, J.W. Miles, Capt. F. K. Sewell, W. H. Lewthwaite, R. G. Harris, W. Alsop, Kent Dale Lodge, No. 195, Kendal: Bros. R. G. Buston, R. B. Hunter, Henry Lodge, No. 216, Frizington: Bros. W. Martin, Jas. Winter, Bryce Craig, R. Baxter, A. Hardie, J. Bask, J. Gordon, J. Mills, J. Robinson, W. Tremble, and others.

The minutes of the meeting held at Carlisle, in November last, having been read and confirmed, Bro. Wheatley submitted his statement of accounts, which was received and adopted. The following officers were then appointed and invested for the current year:—Bros. G. J. McKay, 195, P.G.S.W.; J. Gardiner, 151, P.G.J.W.; G. Potter, 60, P.G.M.O.; W. B. Gibson, 151, P.G.S.O.; T. Mandle, 151, P.G.J.O.; Rev. H. B. Thompson, 195, P.G. Chaplain; J. A. Wheatley, 60, P.G. Treas. (for third time); G. W. Kenworthy, 151, P.G.R.M.; R. J. Nelson, 195, P.G.S.D.; G. Dalrymple, 216, P.G.J.D.; J. D. Mason, 60, P.G. Insp. Works; G. Godfrey, 195, P.G.D.C.; J. H. Banks, 151, P.G.A.D.C.; William Lamont, 147, P.G. St. Br.; J. Harper, 216, P.G. Swd. Br.; P. T. Freeman, unattached, P.G. Organist; E. Tyson, 151, P.G.I.G.; J. Haswell, 60, J. Taylor, 195, and J. R. Banks, 151, P.G. Stewards; Walter Cunningham, 60, P.G. Tyler. Bro. P. de E. Collin was elected to represent the province as Steward at the next meeting of Grand Lodge. The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed.

Shortly afterwards the members of the Grand Lodge of England were announced. They entered the hall, and took their stations as follows:—Bros. Rev. George Raymond Portal, M.A., M.W.P.G. Master of England, on the throne, in the absence of Lord Skelmersdale, Grand Master; J. Entwistle, P.P.G.M. Lancashire, as Deputy Grand Master; Col. Whitwell, M.P., P.G.J.W., as G.S.W.; J. Brockbank, P.G.J.W. of England, as G.J.W.; F. Binckes, Grand Secretary, as Grand Chaplain; D. M. Dewar, G.A. Secretary; G. J. McKay, as P.G.S.D.; Robt. Burridge, G.D.C.; T. Cubitt, P.G.D.C.; James Salmon, G.I.G.; Matthews, P.P.G.J.W. Cheshire and North Wales; Charles S. Saul, P.G.J.D. Durham and Northumberland; J. Rome, P.G.J.W. Lancashire. The Grand Lodge having been opened, the Assistant Grand Secretary read the minutes of the last Grand Lodge, held in London. The representatives of the two new lodges were next addressed, and requested to return the Scotch charters, to be deposited in the archives of the Grand Lodge, which they promised to do. The Grand Master in the chair, addressing the promoters of the new lodges, said it was always a great pleasure to him to receive a Scotch lodge under English rule, and it was a fact that some of the most flourishing lodges in the English Mark Constitution were originally worked under the Scotch régime. The warrants were next read over, when Bro. Binckes, Grand Secretary, proceeded to deliver the oration. He asked the brethren to look back over a period of twenty-two years, when the first Grand Mark Lodge was established. As a small body they received a considerable amount of opposition; but still they went on, and steadily progressed. Going on, they found an opponent in the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland, who granted charters to the lodges in England; but out of evil came good, for, from the report which had that day been read, they would notice the vast increase Mark Masonry had made during the twenty-two years it had existed as a Grand Lodge of England, it having reached its majority. The Grand Lodge had now two lodges to consecrate—not new lodges, but what had originally sprung from the Grand Chapter of Scotland. He referred to the fact of the Mark degree not being acknowledged by the Grand Craft Lodge of England, which should not be, seeing that they stood identical with Craft Masonry, inasmuch as nothing sectarian belonged to either one or the other. He believed that a more united body than the Grand Mark Lodge of England did not exist, and enough would have been gathered from the report just read as to the extent of their charity, not only to deceased brethren and their widows, but also to the education of the children of their deceased brethren. There should not be any hesitation on the part of the Craft Grand Lodge in granting recognition to the Mark Degree, and with that hesitation, England stood alone, occupying an isolated position for the Grand Mark Lodge of England was now acknowledged by every supreme governing body in the world, including the Grand Chapters of the United States and Ireland. In conclusion, he tendered some words of advice to the officers of the two new lodges to be consecrated, and wished them every prosperity.

The consecration ceremony was then proceeded with by the Grand Master in the chair, assisted by the Grand Secretary, and other Grand Officers, carrying round corn, the emblem of plenty; wine, the emblem of joy and happiness; and oil, the emblem of unity. Finally, the two lodges were dedicated to the purposes of Mark Masonry, and the first part of the ceremony came to a close. Subsequently Bros. Dr. Henry and Geo. Dalrymple were installed, by the Grand Secretary, as W.M. of the respective lodges, and their officers were appointed and invested as follows:—Fletcher Lodge, No. 213, Whitehaven: Bros. W. B. Gibson, S.W.; G. W. Kenworthy, J.W.; W. White, M.O.; J. Barr, S.O.; W. Alsop, J.O.; E. Tyson, Treasurer and Secretary; J. Robertson, S.D.; W. Gill, J.D.; J. E. Miles, I.G.; G. Fitzgerald, Tyler. Henry Lodge, No. 216, Frizington: Bros. J. Gordon, S.W.; W. Kennedy, J.W.; R. Wilson, M.O.; R. Baxter, S.O.; J. J. Robinson, J.O.; W. Martin, Treas.; Bryce Craig, Sec.; B. Winter, Reg. M.; A. Crawford, S.D.; J.

Fletcher, J.D.; W. Swain, I.G.; W. Macauley, Chaplain; J. Close, Tyler. The addresses to the Wor. Masters and Wardens were delivered by Bro. Rome, P.G.J.W. Lancashire; and to the Overseers and brethren generally by the Grand Secretary. After a vote of thanks had been given by the Grand Lodge to the Provincial Grand Lodge, and acknowledged by Col. Whitwell, M.P., the Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

The music incidental to the ceremonies of the day was under the direction of Bro. W. H. Lewthwaite, Lodge 151, who kindly presided at the harmonium, in the absence of the newly appointed Provincial Grand Organist.

The proceedings were wound up with a banquet at the Keswick Hotel, presided over by Colonel Whitwell, M.P. The band of the Skiddaw Greys played a selection of airs on the lawn during the afternoon.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

One of the most impressive and interesting events in connection with Scottish Freemasonry which has occurred for many years past, took place on March 15th, when his Honour Bro. Judge Harvey was formally installed as P.G.M. of the Scottish Constitution for the Middle Island. Bro. Harvey's elevation as ruler of the Craft here, may be looked upon as a most gratifying proof that St. John's Masonry is in a flourishing condition, and from his well-known devotion to Masonic matters, such an impetus will be given to the Craft Lodges under his jurisdiction as must tend to render them still more powerful and serviceable. In selecting Bro. Harvey as P.G.M. the brethren had done well, and we are sure that nothing will be left undone by him to prove to the members of the Order his fitness for the high position he has been called upon to fill. The committee appointed by the Grand Lodge to carry out the details of the installation are to be complimented upon the able manner in which they performed the onerous duties devolving upon them, and to their efforts is due the very satisfactory result of the whole ceremony.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form at 7 30 p.m., by Bro. J. Gore, P.M., S.P.G.M., and the following lodges were announced and received:—R.W.M.'s, officers, and members of the Lodges Taieri, Celtic, St. Andrew, and Kilwinning, S.C.; and the W.M.'s, officers, and members of the Palmerston, Dunedin, Port Chalmers Marine, and Otago Lodges, E.C. These were followed by the R.W. D.G.M., Bro. J. H. Harris, and Officers of the District Grand Lodge, E.C.; Bro. E. A. Whitaker, R.W.P.G.M. for the North Island, S.C., attended by Bro. E. T. Gillon, acting Grand Secretary, and followed by Bro. T. S. Graham, R.W.D.P.M., Irish Constitution. At this stage of the proceedings the lodge assumed a most brilliant appearance, contributed to it in no mean degree by the varied and elegant Masonic jewels and clothing worn by the Grand Officers and others, and at least 300 members of the Craft must have been present in the body of the hall, while the dais was filled by Grand Officers, Masters, and Past Masters of the several Craft lodges. The proceedings were commenced by the choir chanting the Sanctus, "Holy, Holy, Lord God of Hosts," the accompaniment being played by Bro. Moss, acting Grand Organist. Afterwards the Grand Chaplain offered prayer, and the choir followed with the anthem taken from the 128th Psalm. Bro. P. M. Kerr, acting Grand Director of Ceremonies, then led the Grand Honours, and the choir sang the Masonic Anthem, "Great Architect of Earth and Heaven." The presiding officer then directed the Past Grand Secretary (Bro. Watson) to read the commission from Bro. Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Grand Master Mason of Scotland, authorising the installation of Bro. G. W. Harvey as his deputy, and on the Grand Master designate being introduced the R.W. Bro. Gore proceeded to install him into his exalted office according to ancient custom, and the brethren present rendered their homage in due form.

After receiving the honours due to his rank, the P.G. Master was addressed by Bro. Gore in an impressive speech, setting forth the nature of his important duties; he was next congratulated by Bro. J. H. Harris, R.W.D. G.M., and saluted by the members of the English Craft.

The newly-installed P.G. Master having returned thanks, called upon the R.W. Bro. Caldwell, G.S., G.L. of Scotland, to invest and obligate the Grand Officers, a duty which Bro. Caldwell performed in his usual efficient manner, the Grand Officers for the year being R.W. Bros. J. Gore, R.W.D.P.G.M.; J. Mills, R.W.S.P.G.M.; J. Court, R.W.P.G.S.W.; A. Finlayson, R.W.P.G.J.W.; A. Barrett, R.W.P., G. Chaplain; and J. Watson, R.W.P.G. Sec.

After the investiture of the officers, prayer was offered by the Grand Chaplain, and the choir sang the Old Hundredth Psalm. The R.W. Bro. Caldwell, then delivered a most eloquent address to the Grand Officers, and the choir again sang the anthem "To Heaven's High Architect All Praise," which brought the proceedings to a close.

We must not omit to mention that great care had been displayed by the committee of management, consisting of Bros. Mills, Gore, Kerr, Watson and Caldwell, in appropriately decorating the lodge for the occasion.

After the closing ceremony the brethren adjourned to Bro. Thompson's Criterion Hotel, where a banquet was provided, at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This cooling medicine has the happiest effect when the blood is overheated and a tendency to inflammatory action is set up in the system. One Pill taken shortly before dinner does away with the indigestion, fullness, and flatulency indicative of a weak stomach or disordered liver. A few Pills taken at bedtime act as alteratives and aperients; they not only relieve the bowels, but regulate every organ connected with them; overcome all acid humours, and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and beget a feeling of comfort in hot climates and high temperatures, which is most desirable for the preservation of health.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice President, occupied the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice President, took the chair of Senior Vice President; and Bro. E. P. Albert, P.G.P., that of Junior Vice President. There were also present, Bros. John Hervey, G. Sec.; H. G. Buss, Assist. G. Sec.; W. Dodd, S. Rawson, Past District G.M. for China; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; H. C. L-vander, Samuel Poynter, P.M. 902; C. P. Cobham, Charles Atkins, P.M. 27; E. C. Massey, W.M. 1297; H. Bartlett, John T. Miller, W.M. 188; John Mason, C. F. Hogard, P.M. 205; Edw. Terry, W.M. 1319; Griffiths Smith; G. P. Britten, W.M. 183; William Russell, W.M. 77; John White, W.M. 1076; W. C. G. King, W.M. 483; James W. George, W.M. 1309; J. L. Collier, W.M. 1366; W. H. Cohen, W.M. 1298; Hugh Cotter, W.M. 554; W. R. Phillips, W.M. 975; Chas. Wyatt Smith, P.M. 892; James J. Unite, W.M. 144; John Diprose, jun., P.M. 957; Jas. Kew, W.M. 179; George W. Reed, W.M. 13; Walter Hopekirk, P.M. 1586; C. B. Payne, G.T.; and H. Massey (Freemason).

The brethren first confirmed grants to the amount of £290 made at last Lodge of Benevolence.

There were only eighteen new cases on the list for relief, and fourteen of these were relieved with a total sum of £295, one grant was for £50; four grants were for £30 each; three for £20 each; one was for £15; and five were for £10 each. Four cases were deferred for incompleteness.

The lodge was then closed.

PARIS PILGRIMAGE.

A number of brethren from the State of Pennsylvania, and mainly, we believe, from the "City of Brotherly Love" (Philadelphia), intend to make a pilgrimage to Europe, especially to visit the Paris Exhibition and this country. The majority, if not all the members, are Knights Templars, hence the title of the trip. But we must not on that account expect to see them habited as pilgrims, for the term of their novitiate has expired, and they are now accepted as true and faithful knights. They leave the United States to set sail on the 6th July, and expect to be at Londonderry on the 15th (nine days afterwards), on Tuesday, the 16th, the Giant's Causeway; Wednesday, Belfast; Thursday and Friday, Dublin; and Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday will be devoted to Scotland, reaching York on the eve of the 24th, and Thursday and Friday will be devoted to that city and Sheffield, arriving in London on the eve of the 27th (Saturday), at the Midland Grand Hotel. The four following days will be devoted to the metropolis, and if there should be any meetings or assemblies of the Knights Templars on either of these days (29th to 31st July), I shall be glad to know, either by letter to me at Truro, or communications addressed to my friend, Charles Eugene Meyer, at the Hotel named, who is one of the Secretaries of the expedition. Our friends are preparing to give our American fraters a most hearty reception, at Dublin, York, Sheffield, Edinburgh, &c., and, therefore, we are all the more anxious to be informed in time as to any Masonic meetings in London. After July, the itinerary includes Paris, Geneva, Chamouny, and Lucerne, arriving ultimately in New York 3rd September. We all wish them well and much pleasure.

W. J. HUGHAN.

The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, M.W.G. Mark M.M., will take the chair at the Annual Festival in aid of the Mark Benevolent Fund, which will take place at the Alexandra Palace on Wednesday, the 27th of July. Further particulars will be duly announced.

Lake dwellings have been discovered at Letten, Switzerland, at the junction of the rivers Limmat and Sihl.

In the course of executing some repairs on premises in Loreburn-street, Dumfries, occupied by Mr. Glover, seedsman, a small earthenware jar has been found, containing 916 small silver coins, chiefly those of Edward I. of England, with a few of the reign of Edward II. Among the coins was found a small silver seal, representing a stag's head, with a frog lying between the antlers, and bearing the inscription, "S. Nicolai de Galway."

It is intended to hold an International Fine Arts Exhibition in Munich next year. Preparatory steps have already been taken with this object.—Reuter.

The fashionable colours in Paris this year are a sickly bronze green called crapaud mort d'amour (love-slain toad), and a flaming scarlet styled crête de coq en colère—i.e., angry cock's comb.

The Quacentenary of Martin Luther's Birth is to be celebrated in November, 1883, at Eisleben, in Saxony, the Reformer's native town.

Another foolhardy trip has been taken across the Atlantic. Three brothers have undertaken the journey from New York to Havre in a cockle-shell of some nineteen feet long, called the "Nautilus."

The marriage between Bro. Lord Charles Beresford, M.P., and Miss Gardner is fixed to take place on Tuesday next, June 25th, at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square.

MASONIC SONGS.—A Selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—Adv.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Asheton Arms Hotel. Bro. W. Percival, W.M., presided, being assisted by Bros. F. Fothergill, S.W.; J. Hatton, J.W.; G. Bradbury, I.P.M.; H. Heywood, P.M.; Treas.; S. Hewitt, Sec.; P. Lawton, J.D.; J. Eckersley, I.G.; and J. Kent, Tyler. The lodge having been opened in due form the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary and received confirmation. Mr. W. S. Whitaker was proposed as a candidate, and the ballot being unanimous in his favour, he was accordingly initiated into the mysteries of the First Degree by the W.M., Bro. W. Percival. The working tools were presented by Bro. J. Hutton, J.W.; and the ancient charge was delivered by Bro. F. Fothergill, S.W. The ceremony throughout was of a very impressive character. Since the last meeting of the lodge, Past Master David Reid has been bereft of his partner in life, the companion of his joys and sorrows. The sleep of death does separate but for a season; may the awakening joy unite them in Grand Lodge on high. A vote of condolence and sympathy with Bro. Reid was proposed by Bro. J. Wood, P.M.; seconded, Bro. H. Heywood, P.M.; supported by the W.M., Bro. Percival, and carried unanimously. Instructions having been given for the same to be forwarded to Bro. Reid, P.M., the lodge was closed in the usual manner, and the brethren retired to the social board. The usual Masonic toasts were honoured and the brethren separated shortly before ten.

SLAIDBURN.—Royal Forest Lodge (No. 401).—The annual festival of St. John the Baptist was celebrated at the house of Bro. Sted, the Hawk to Bounty Inn, on Friday last, and was well attended. There were present, Bros. Col. Parker, P.P.S.G.W.; Lofthouse, P.P.G.A.D.C.; Landless, P.P.G.S.B.; Thomas Ainsworth, P.G.R. Whewell, P.P.G.S.B.; F. Thomas, P.P.G.R. Oxfordshire, P.P.J.G.D. East Lancashire; and numerous other brethren, members of the lodge and of other lodges in the neighbourhood. A more than ordinary number of P.M.'s were present. Bro. J. E. Anderton, of Clitheroe, having been elected W.M. for the next year, was installed in a most impressive manner by Bro. F. Thomas, of Blackburn. At the conclusion of the ceremony of installation, the brethren adjourned to the large court-room, where an excellent banquet had been provided by Bro. Sted, who may be complimented upon his catering. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed the dinner, and the visiting brethren were enabled to leave Slaidburn at an early hour. Bro. Anderton appointed as his officers Bros. Jas. Dewhurst, S.W.; Rev. R. L. Jones, J.W.; Rev. S. H. Ireson, Chap.; J. Livesey, S.D.; John Higson, J.D.; George Lofthouse, D.C.; Bro. John Slater, Sec.; and John Frankland, I.G. Bro. Henry Harrison, who has for many years acted as Tyler, was unanimously re-appointed by the members.

GATESHEAD.—Borough Lodge (No. 424).—A regular meeting was held on the 17th inst., at the Half Moon Hotel. There were present Bros. P. J. Jackson, W.M.; J. W. Lowick, S.W.; Jno. Mackay, J.W.; E. A. Gibbon, Secretary; J. Marchant, P.M., Treas. and D.C.; G. J. Dean, P.M., acting S.D.; Jas. Bryan, J.D.; Jno. Redpath, Steward; T. S. Miller, I.G.; J. Curry, Tyler; Past Masters Bros. J. Cook, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Ridsdale, P.P.G.J.W.; Lorck, P.G.S.D.; M. Corbitt, W.M. 48; J. Scott, P.M. 1343; G. J. Dean, W.M. 541; T. Halliday, P.M. 406; T. S. Wraith, P.M. 424; W. Hartig, P.M. 424; J. Marchant, P.M. 424; J. Mitchell, J.W. 1643; J. Goss, 541; S. Harris, I.G. 406, and others. Lodge having been opened, Bro. R. Ramsey was passed to the F.C. Degree, the tools being explained by the S.W. Bro. W. F. Poad was raised to the Sublime Degree by the W.M. in a most impressive manner, who explained the tracing board, the tools being explained by the J.W. The lodge was then closed to the First Degree, when some propositions were made, and the congratulations of many lodges were tendered. The business being all finished, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and spent a very happy evening, which was greatly enhanced by the harmony of Bros. Gee, Ferry, Hartig, P.M.; Poad, Cook, and others. The Tyler being called for, gave his toast, and the brethren dispersed till the 15th prox.

SPALDING.—Hundred of Elloe Lodge (No. 469).—On Friday, the 14th inst., the brethren of the above lodge enjoyed a sort of supplemental outing, which had the advantage of breaking up new ground, whilst, contrary to invariable rule, business formed no part of the programme. On this occasion, under the auspices of the W.M. of the lodge—Bro. Barrell—the brethren paid a visit to the ancient castle of Belvoir, so noted in story, and the day proving beautifully fine, the picnic resulted in one of the happiest reunions ever remembered by Masons in the Province of Lincolnshire. In addition to the brethren of the Hundred of Elloe, visitors from many other lodges were also invited by the W.M., and by the time of arrival at the Angel, at Grantham, the party had swollen to a considerable number. From this royal hostelry the brethren were driven in wagolettes to the Castle, where they were met by Bro. Ingram, the well-known head gardener, whose affability and gentlemanly bearing are proverbial throughout the district. Accordingly, under the auspices of Bro. Ingram, and the direction of an accredited guide, the whole company viewed the stores of wealth which are literally piled up within the walls of Belvoir—the costly tapestry, the valuable paintings by the old masters, the rich and delicate articles of virtue, the unique furniture, the massive gold and silver plate, as well as the ancient armour, alike coming in for minute inspection. Then followed the gardens, rich in untold and indescribable beauties, with their magnificent beds of choice flowers, and thickly studded with noble forest trees, standing upon acre after acre of undulating ground, which in many instances rises to an altitude of several hundred feet. In this delightful manner upwards of four hours were spent, when the whole of the company adjourned to the Peacock Hotel, on the estate, where a most abundant dinner had been provided, and to which one and all were prepared to do ample justice. In accordance with custom, Bro. Barrell, W.M., occupied the chair, and Bro. T. Hill-dred (Harmony), Boston, the vice-chair. After the usual Masonic toasts had been duly honoured, Bro. Robinson proposed "The Officers of the Neighbouring Province," coupling the name of Bro. Ingram, who was received with enthusiasm, and a cordial vote of thanks given him for the happy day he had been the means of affording the brethren of the Province of Lincolnshire. A similar reception met the toast of "The Worshipful Master," proposed by Bro. Samuel Kingston, the former being the chief promulgator of the picnic. Bro. Ingram then escorted the company over the kitchen gardens, and to some other points of interest on the estate, when seven o'clock having arrived, they took their departure for Grantham, arriving at Spalding by the mail train. So far as we can learn, the prevailing desire is that the Masonic picnic should be made an annual event.

WORKINGTON.—Sun and Sector Lodge (No. 962).—The installation meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Wednesday, the 19th inst. The members assembled at their lodge room, Portland-square, at half-past three, there being present: Bros. J. Wood, W.M.; Geo. Kirkwood, S.W.; G. McMillen, J.W.; Geo. Brooker, P.M. and Treasurer, P.P.G. Purst; H. Irving, Secretary; D. Reece, I.G.; W. Wagg, Tyler; G. T. Archibald, P.M.; J. J. Beatie, P.M., P.P.G. Supt. W.; J. A. Salkeld, W.M. elect; W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119 and 962, P.G. Secretary; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.P.G.J.W.; J. W. Young, P.M. 1400, P.G. Purst; W. Jackson, I. Evening, D. B. Winstone, S. W. Bradbury, R. Thomas, T. Atkinson, J. Blackburn, jun., F. Whitehead, J. Burnett, W. Whitehead, J. P. Burnett, W. Carlyle, P. Wedgwood, James Ruth, J. J. Coverdale, W. Selkirk, and J. J. Little. The visitors were Bros. W. B. Cowman, P.M. 872; T. Carey, P.M. 371; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. 1002, P.G. Org.; W. F. Lamony, P.M. 1002, P.G. Reg. (Freemason); G. W. Smith, 872; J. Johnston, W.M. 1400; W. Kice, 79, St. David's, Dundee; T. Coulthead, 1400; J. Sheridan, 177, Old Monkland, N.B.; W. Balderston, 1400; E. J. Fletcher, 119; R. Bailey, 1002; J. Halloway, 1002; G. Hirschfeld, 1, Mary's Chapel, Edinburgh; T. Mandle, P.M. 371; F. Hodgson, S.W. 872; G. W. Thompson, P.M. 371; J. T. Ray, J.W. 872; W. Gaspey, 1073; J. H. Raven, 371, and others. The lodge room presented a brilliant appearance, having been recently redecorated; whilst it may be mentioned that the bible belonging to the old Sun and Sector Lodge, of ninety years ago, has been handsomely and appropriately rebound in morocco, through the kindness of Bro. Evening. The W.M. having opened the lodge, the minutes were read and confirmed, including the election of Bro. G. W. Kenworthy as an honorary member, in recognition of his services at installation festivals. Subsequently, Bro. W. B. Gibson, the oldest P.M. of the lodge, took the chair, and installed Bro. J. A. Salkeld into the chair of K.S. After the admission of the brethren generally, and the salutations and proclamations, the officers were appointed and invested as follow:—Bros. Joseph Wood, I.P.M.; Henry Irving, S.W.; Rowland Hill, J.W.; George Brooker, Treasurer (re-elected); J. J. Coverdale, Secretary; D. Reece, S.D.; W. Jackson, J.D.; W. Whitehead, I.G.; P. Burnett, Steward; T. Whitehead, Steward; S. W. Bradbury, D.C.; J. Little, Organist; W.

Wagg, re-elected Tyler. The addresses to the W.M. and Wardens were delivered by Bro. Kenworthy, and that to the members generally by Bro. W. B. Gibson, after which Bro. Brooker, the Treasurer, read a most satisfactory balance sheet of the affairs of Sun and Sector Lodge. The lodge was then closed in form. An adjournment was then made to the Assembly Room, where an excellent and well-served banquet was provided by Bro. W. A. Smith, of the Lowther Arms Hotel, Workington. Bro. J. A. Salkeld, W.M., presided, supported right and left by the Provincial Officers present, and faced by the two newly-appointed Wardens. After dessert had been placed upon the tables, the Chairman proposed the usual loyal toasts, which were received with musical honours. Bro. Brooker, in a very patriotic speech, proposed "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces," which he coupled with the name of the Chairman, who returned thanks. The Chairman next proposed "The Health of the M.W. Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," which was drunk with full Masonic honours. Bro. Kirkwood also gave "The R.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," which was duly honoured. Bro. W. B. Gibson proposed "The R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmorland, the Earl of Bective, M.P." Masonry had progressed in an unparalleled degree since his lordship became ruler of the province, in fact he was A1 of the provincial Grand Masters of the country. The toast was drunk with all the honours of the Craft. Bro. Philip Wedgwood gave "The R.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Colonel Whitwell, M.P., and the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present." He said that Col. Whitwell, though a Freemason of so high a standing, showed the grand principles on which the Order was based in his everyday life, and was a pattern for every man to follow. He coupled the toast with the name of Bro. Lamony, P.G. Registrar. Bro. Lamony, after acknowledging the toast on behalf of his brother provincial officers and himself, took occasion to thank Bro. Wood and the brethren of the Sun and Sector Lodge for their kindness in allowing him to search through the minute books of the old Sun and Sector Lodge, which was founded in 1774. A perusal of those valuable documents had proved more than ordinarily interesting, and one fact had been established, that the brethren of that day were not a whit behind the brethren of the present day in the practice of benevolence and charity, in comparison with the value of money and the circumstances of the two periods. Again, the bye-laws of the old lodge, though over a century since they were written, proved in a remarkable degree that the Masons of those times were thoroughly constitutional, and a pattern to their descendants in working. Would it also be believed that nearly a hundred years ago, though the brethren of Sun and Sector Lodge were a social and charitable body of men, they were nevertheless advocates of temperance, for he (Bro. Lamony) found it duly recorded that the Tyler was to be paid sixpence per night and no drink. Again, in the exercise of their charity to a distressed brother it was on record that the lodge had acted the part of what was sometimes vulgarly called "my uncle," for they advanced a brother £4 5s. on his watch, entered the said watch as one of the lodge effects, and kept it till they in turn had to sell it. He should also like to add that Sun and Sector Lodge was many years ago removed to the Green Dragon Hotel, kept at that time by the great grandfather of their newly-installed Master of that day, Bro. Salkeld. Again thanking the brethren for their kindness, he also returned thanks for the Provincial Grand Officers. Bro. Jos. Wood, I.P.M., next proposed, in very complimentary terms, "The Health of the Newly-installed Master of Sun and Sector Lodge, Bro. J. A. Salkeld." He spoke in high terms of Bro. Salkeld's diligence and character as a Mason, and said he had gone up every rung in the ladder of office, from I.G. to S.W., two years ago, when he waited patiently till, being called on by his brethren to assume the highest office in the power of a lodge to bestow on any of its members, he had that day been installed W.M. He anticipated a prosperous year of office for Bro. Salkeld, and promised to afford him all the assistance in his power. The Chairman replied in a brief and modest speech. Bro. Gibson, as the oldest Past Master of Sun and Sector Lodge, then rose to perform what he termed a very pleasing duty, that of proposing "The Health of the Immediate Past Master," and at the same time presenting Bro. Wood with a mark of the esteem of his brethren in the shape of a Past Master's jewel. Bro. Wood, he knew, had filled the chair of Sun and Sector Lodge with the utmost credit to himself and advantage to the lodge, and the Past Master's jewel he now presented him with he was sure Bro. Wood had fairly earned, and might he live long to wear it. Bro. Wood returned thanks, not only to the brethren generally for their handsome recognition of his humble services, but to his officers who had so ably assisted him during his year of office. The Chairman then proposed, in most complimentary terms, "The Installing Masters, Bros. Gibson and Kenworthy," who had so kindly and ably performed the office of installation ever since the Sun and Sector Lodge was re-established. Bro. Gibson replied for Bro. Kenworthy, who had been obliged to leave by an early train, and as regarded himself he hoped to be long spared to attend on a similar occasion. The Chairman having given "The Newly-installed Officers," and "The Past Masters and Retiring Officers" which were duly responded to, Bro. Wood proposed "The Visiting Brethren." Bro. Gibson gave "The Masonic Charities," and in doing so, mentioned that a widow of one of their Whitehaven brethren had recently been elected an annuitant of the Royal Benevolent Fund. Extraordinary efforts, however, had been made to accomplish the old lady's election, and they had borrowed 400 votes from the neighbouring province of Northumberland, which would have to be paid back. It only showed, therefore, that no effort should be relaxed to increase the voting strength of Cumberland and Westmorland, and he hoped that next year there would be found a considerable increase of votes in the different lodges. Bro. Lamony had referred to the system recently adopted by the Sun and Sector Lodge to increase votes, and which had proved so signal a success, viz., the lottery system. Bro. Lamony had tried it at Cockermouth, but it was a failure, and he (Bro. Gibson) was sorry to say that the scheme had met with no better response at Whitehaven. However, he was still in hopes of Cumberland and Westmorland becoming self-supporting one of these days. The Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable entertainment to a close at nine o'clock; and the proceedings reflected the utmost credit on the Permanent Committee of Sun and Sector Lodge. Bro. W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M., 1004, Provincial Grand Organist, presided at the piano-forte, and also had charge of the music in the lodge-room. Several songs, and glees were contributed in the course of the evening by various musical brethren.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 4th inst. There were present:—Bros. Jas. Black, W.M.; Capt. Sewell, S.W.; John Bird, J.W.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas.; W. Shilton, P.M.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org.; W. Taylor, P.M.; E. C. Robinson, Sec.; Isaac Evening, as I.G.; Jos. Hewson, Tyler, and several others. After opening, and confirming the minutes, Bro. Chas. H. McCall, of Fidelity Lodge, No. 289, Leeds, was balloted for, and unanimously accepted, as an affiliating member of Skiddaw Lodge, whilst Bro. Henry Ritson was duly accepted as a candidate for initiation. The lodge was then passed to the Second Degree, when Bros. Jos. Borrowdale and Jos. Hewson, were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, in first-class style, by the W.M., Bro. Capt. Sewell, S.W., as ably explaining the tracing board, presenting the working tools, and delivering the introductory address to the third lecture. The lodge was then reduced to the first degree, when Bro. R. W. Robinson, Domestic Lodge, No. 177, London, was proposed as an affiliating member. After some other matters were gone into, the lodge was closed in form.

KESWICK.—Greta Lodge (No. 1073).—The ordinary monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the 24th inst., in the Court Room. The attendance was very small (within a dozen, all told), doubtless by reason of its being the height of the season, when tradesmen in the "Metropolis of the Lake District" make hay while the sun shines. The officers' positions were occupied as follow: Bros. W. F. Lamony, P.M. Lodge 1002, Cockermouth (Freemason), as W.M.; Thos. Usher, as S.W.; William Lamony, W.M. 1073, as J.W. and Sec.; W. Hodgson, J.D., as S.D.; W. Gaspey, D.C., as J.D.; D. Crowden, as I.G.; J. Barron, Treas.; C. Thompson, Tyler, and others. After the minutes were read and confirmed, Bro. Rushforth, of Restoration Lodge, No. 111, Darlington, was balloted for as a joining member, and approved. The balance sheet for the past year was next read and adopted. Then Bro. F. Jackson, being in attendance, gave proof of his efficiency as an Entered Apprentice, and retired, when the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. On re-admission, the candidate was duly passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M. in the chair, after which the lodge was resumed to the First Degree, and finally closed.

BLACKHEATH.—Blackheath Lodge (No. 1320).—The installation meeting of this pleasant summer lodge took place on Thursday, the 20th inst., at the Green Man Hotel, Blackheath. The business was the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Wm. Hy. Morson, and investment of officers. The brethren present were Bros. E. M. Hubbuck, P.M.; H. A. Collington, P.M.; R. B. Webster, P.M.; Budds, Le Cren, Anderson, the W.M. elect, and others. Among the visitors were Bros. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Benevolent Institution; Kippis, P.G.O., Kent; J. T. Miller, W.M., Joppa, No. 188; Hudson, Royal York, No. 315; Theo. W. Williams; Jordan; C. J. Turner, Bedford, No. 157; Spence, Grenadiers, No. 66. The lodge having been opened and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Wm. Hy. Morson was presented to Bro. Hubbuck, who acted as Installing Master, and regularly installed in the chair of K.S. as W.M. for the ensuing year. The officers were then invested as follows: Bro. J. C. Scard, I.P.M.; Turner, S.W. Penidge, J.W.; R. B. Webster, Treas.; H. A. Collington, Sec.; C. Jardine, S.D.; Le Cren, J.D.; and Parkinson, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed the W.M. announced his intention of offering himself as a Steward for the K.M. Institute for Girls at the festival in 1879, which intimation was gladly welcomed. After closing the lodge the brethren adjourned and partook of a choice banquet, Bro. Wm. Hy. Morson presiding. The customary toasts followed, and Bro. Till, proposing "The toast of the W.M.," stated that Bro. Morson was the first initiate of the Blackheath Lodge, who had become W.M., and he felt sure that he was only expressing the feelings of the brethren when he stated that he was very pleased at seeing Bro. Morson in the chair as W.M., he hoped that Bro. Morson would be blessed with good health, that he might carry out the duties of his office satisfactorily. The W.M. replied, thanking the brethren very heartily for the kind and cordial manner in which they had received the toast, he assured them that nothing would be wanting on his part to carry out his duties to the best of his abilities, and to the credit of the Blackheath Lodge. He felt sure that during his year the officers and brethren would amply support him, especially in the object he had in view for the Girls' School, as he looked upon the Masonic charities as the very essence of Freemasonry. Bro. Miller, W.M. of the Joppa, No. 188, in replying, on behalf of the visitors, stated that he had had the pleasure of being associated with Bro.

Morson, the W.M., for a great number of years. He wished him a very successful and pleasant year of office, he was always highly gratified in visiting the Blackheath Lodge, and on this occasion he felt bound to express the extreme pleasure he had experienced in witnessing the very able and efficient manner in which Bro. Hubbuck had discharged his duties as Installing Master. The ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner, and would long be remembered with feelings of admiration. Bro. Terry responded on behalf of the Masonic charities. He was gratified to hear that Bro. Morson, the W.M., had decided to act as Steward for the next Girls' Festival. From what he had heard regarding the success of Bro. Jardine, he felt sure that with plenty of zeal and energy a good sum would be raised. Bro. Terry's speech was marked throughout with that perfect sincerity and earnestness which always flows from his lips when speaking in connection with the great charitable Institutions attached to Freemasonry. During a very pleasant evening Bro. Hudson delighted the company with two capital recitations, and Bros. Brown and Frill, with others, displayed with much taste their vocal power, accompanied by Bro. Jordan at the piano. This closed a very successful and enjoyable gathering.

LIVERPOOL.—Stanley Lodge (No. 1325).—The special session of summer installations in the Province of West Lancashire, more especially the section which comprises Liverpool, may be said to have again set in with great severity, and one of these interesting annuals was celebrated on Tuesday evening, the 18th inst., the Waterloo anniversary, when the brethren attached to the Stanley Lodge, No. 1325, met at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, for the purpose of assisting at the celebration of a ceremony which is always viewed with interest. Bro. James W. Burgess, W.M., occupied his seat of honour in the E. at the opening of the lodge, shortly after two o'clock, and amongst the official representatives of the lodge present were Bros. F. Knight, P.M.; C. Leighton, P.M.; T. H. Bradshaw, S.W. (W.M. elect); C. Winkill, J.W.; H. Ashmore, P.M.; Treas.; T. Faulkes, Sec.; R. B. Burgess, S.D.; W. Robertson, J.D.; S. Hill, I.G.; A. Samuels, S.; J. Holme, Assist. S.; and M. W. Clemson, Tyler. The privates of the Masonic ranks of the Stanley comprised Bros. T. W. Pritchard; B. Littleton; R. Jones; G. Argyle; S. Gordon; J. Hughes; F. C. Sanders; J. M. Arnold; W. Bell; J. H. Groans; W. H. Quayle; J. Falkingham; P. S. Johnson; I. Ashwin; P. M. Campbell; W. J. Bell; E. D. Jones; G. Vining; J. Threlfall; R. Upson; H. Braddock; W. Laddon, &c. The numerous visitors included Bros. J. Hayes, P.M. 249; R. Ellery, 667; W. Corbett, S.D. 249; F. Barnett, S.W. 249 (W.M. elect); Joseph Skeaf, P.M. 216; P.G. Organist; T. Johnson, 283; D. A. Davis, J.W. 625; J. Gage, 823; W. R. Reeve, 671; J. Healing, P.M. 1264; J. Pemberton, P.M. 1864; P.P.G.S. of W.; T. Roberts, P.M. 673; J. Wood, Treas. 1024 (Freemason); Hugh Williams, P.M. 1264; G. F. Hammer, P.M. 1086; R. Davidson, 673; H. Burrows, W.M. 673; D. Jackson, S.W. 673, W.M. elect; A. C. Forshaw, 1035; R. Fairclough, S.D. 1675; J. H. Linaker, Sec. 1364; W. T. May, P.M. 1675; J. R. Bottomley, S.W. 1675; J. P. Bryan, S.D. 1035; W. Jones, P.M. 220; J. Mortleman, S.D. 1473; T. H. Carefull, I.G. 823; T. Shaw, P.M. 823, T. Hutton, 203; and M. Donnelly, 823. The lodge was duly opened by the W.M., Bro. J. W. Burgess, and after the transaction of the usual preliminary business he proceeded most efficiently to install Bro. Joseph Harrison Bradshaw as the W.M. for the year. The following were the officers who were appointed and invested: Bros. James W. Burgess, I.P.M.; F. Knight, P.M. D.C.; H. Ashmore, P.M., Treas.; C. Winkill, S.W.; T. Faulkes, J.W.; R. B. Burgess, Sec.; N. Robertson, S.D.; R. Samuels, J.D.; S. Hill, I.G.; J. Holme, S.S.; and P. Campbell, J.S. The charges to the officers were given by Bro. H. Ashmore, P.M., Treas., and at the close of the ceremony a cordial vote of thanks, on the motion of the W.M., seconded by Bro. C. Leighton, P.M., was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to Bros. Burgess and Ashmore, for their admirable services that day. The brethren subsequently gathered in the old lodge room, where an excellent banquet was served, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Bradshaw. On the cloth being drawn, he proposed "The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen." (National Anthem.) Bro. Foulkes, Bro. H. Arnold, P.M., next proposed the toast of "The M.W. the G.M. of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." In the course of his speech he said that he, who was now the head of their glorious institution, would one day be King of England, and no more hearty support would be given to him than that which would be given by the Masons of England. "God bless the Prince of Wales," by Bro. J. P. Bryan. The W.M. next gave the toasts of "The Pro Grand Master and the D.G.M. (Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. G.M. W.L.)," whose affability and urbanity he referred to in the highest terms. Bro. J. Pemberton, P.P.G.S. of W., responded to the latter toast, and said that as the Masonic head in that province, Lord Skelmersdale was the right man in the right place. They did not perhaps see so much of his lordship in that province as they could desire, as his parliamentary duties greatly interfered with that visitation, but there was no doubt his heart was in Masonry and he exercised a large amount of influence in connection with the progress of the Order in that division. It gave him (Bro. Pemberton) great pleasure to be an ordinary member of the Stanley Lodge, and any service he could give towards advancing the interests he would be most happy to give. Bro. Burgess then gave "The Health of the W.M.," referring with satisfaction to the fact that Bro. Bradshaw was the first Master of the Stanley who had been initiated in the lodge since its consecration. He had most faithfully served nearly all the offices, and they must all feel proud that he had at last got to a position which ought to be the ambition of every Mason. He (the W.M.) would do his work as well and faithfully as any of his predecessors. The W.M. in response said he would strive to do his duty most faithfully, and trusted he would have the active and cordial co-operation of all his officers and the brethren connected with the Stanley Lodge. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Installing Master" (Bro. Burgess), and after alluding to the excellent services he had rendered to the lodge during the period of his membership, and especially in his year of office, he concluded by presenting Bro. Burgess, as I.P.M., with a very valuable P.M.'s jewel, with the following inscription: "Presented by the members of the Stanley Lodge, No. 1325, to Bro. James Whittaker Burgess, I.P.M., as a token of their respect and esteem." The present was most happily acknowledged by Bro. Burgess, who assured the brethren he would continue to take a very active interest in a lodge with which he had been so closely identified since his return from India several years ago. The toast of "The Past Masters," given by the W.M., was responded to by Bos. Crosby Leighton, P.M.; F. Knight, P.M.; and J. W. Burgess, I.P.M. The toast of "The Visitors," also given from the chair, was acknowledged by Bros. N. Williams, P.M. 1264; J. Hayes, P.M. 249; T. Roberts, P.M. 673; and W. Jones, P.M. 220 and 1299. Bro. Burgess, I.P.M., gave the toast, "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," which was acknowledged by Bro. H. Williams, P.M. 1264. "The Officers," was responded to by Bros. Winkill, S.W.; T. Faulkes, J.W.; F. Knight, P.M., D.C.; R. B. Burgess, Sec., &c. "The Masonic Press," given by Bro. Burgess, was suitably acknowledged by Bros. Joseph Wood, Treas. 249 (Freemason); MacKenzie, and Davis. Several other toasts followed, and the brethren separated at an early hour. The harmony of the evening was greatly promoted by the efforts of Bros. Linaker, Foulkes, Winkill, Bryan, Skeaf, &c. It should be stated that the installation cards were beautifully got up, and greatly enhanced by two splendid portraits of the W.M. and I.P.M.; the cards being done by Bro. G. G. Walsley, and the portraits by the celebrated firm of Bros. Brown, Barnes, and Bell, of Liverpool.

CHURCH GRESLEY.—Carnarvon Lodge (No. 1739).—The third regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic room, Church Gresley, on Friday, June the 14th. Present, Bros. Wm. Carrick Croft, P.M. 779, P.P.G.J.W. Leicester, W.M.; Robt. How, P.M. 624 S.W.; T. Halliday, J.W.; E. Faulkner, P.M. 779, P.P.J. G. D. Leicester, I.P.M.; G. Haasall, S.D.; G. Crutenden, J.D.; W. S. Allen, P.M. 779, P.P.G.J.D. Leicester, Treas. G. Hamilton, I.G.; T. A. Cochlin, Clements, Walters, Thompson, and Cooper. The lodge was opened at 6 p.m. Bros. Thompson and Cooper were passed to the Second Degree by the W.M., and the W.M. then initiated Mr. Whitmore as serving brother. The bye-laws were submitted and discussed. A communication from Grand Lodge was read respecting the recent decision of the Grand Orient of France. The usual proclamations were made, and this promising young lodge closed in peace and harmony. The brethren afterwards sat down to supper at the Boar's Inn. The usual loyal toasts were given and duly honoured, and the brethren separated shortly before ten o'clock.

INSTRUCTION.
PANMURE GENERAL LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—The second Craft meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Antelope Tavern, Lord-road, Brixton, on Thursday evening, the 20th inst. Bro. J. Coe, W.M. of the Stockwell Lodge, as W.M.; Bros. E. A. Francis, S.W.; H. Lovetov, J.W.; Dr. C. T. Pearce, S.D.; R. Hooker, J.D.; C. P. McKay, W.M. Panmure Lodge, 240, I.G.; James Stephens and Thomas Edder, Preceptors; J. G. Dickie, P.G.P., Secretary; also W. H. Cobes, H. Baldwin, G. Lambert, and others. The minutes of the former Craft meeting having been confirmed, the ceremonies of the second and Third Degrees were ably rehearsed. The brethren present, not already members, were unanimously added to the list of founders of the general lodge. Bro. Francis was elected W.M. for the next Craft meeting, to be held on the first Thursday in July, and the lodge was then closed in peace and harmony.

DORIC LODGE (No. 933) held its weekly meeting at Bro. Clayton's, the Duke's Head, Whitechapel-road, on Friday, the 14th inst.: Bro. Butler, W.M.; J. J. S.W.; Wallington, J.W.; Waterer, S.D.; J. P. Cohen, J.D.; McDonald, I.G.; Musto, Hon. Sec. There were also present a large number of brethren, including the following Past Masters: Myers, Koch, Barnes, Scott, Wallington, Hogg, I. P. Cohen, Atkins, Cundick, and Musto. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer, the minutes read and confirmed; the lodge was opened in the Second and Third Degrees, and the W.M. worked the installation ceremony in a most impressive manner, after which he worked the ceremony of passing. Bro. Barnes proposed that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to the W.M. for the able manner in which he had worked the installation ceremony, and that he be elected an Honorary Member of the Doric Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Barnes in the course of his remarks said that he was pleased that upon him devolved the duty to move the resolution, for he had had a large experience in the working of the several ceremonies, including also the ceremony of installation, and he must say—and felt sure that every P.M. present would confirm the statement—that it was not very often the ceremony in its entirety was so well performed as it had been this evening, and especially so when we take into account that this was only the second time Bro. Butler had rehearsed it. Again, Bro. Butler had broken away from the traditions of the locality in which his sphere of action lies, and had come to the very fountain whence the method he had adopted sprung—to a Lodge of Instruction noted for the number and excellence of its workers, and where he was sure to be, not unkindly, but closely scanned and criticised, circumstances likely to somewhat unnerved any but the most expert, and especially the novice. Bro. Butler had, however, sustained the ordeal with great credit to himself, and also he (Bro. Barnes) was sure to the satisfaction of every brother now present who had ever before assisted at the ceremony. The proposition was seconded by Bro. Cündick, Preceptor of the lodge, and unanimously carried. Bro. Butler in reply expressed the deep sense of the obligations he was under, not only to the brethren of the lodge for courteously allowing him the privilege of occupying the chair in a London lodge so justly celebrated for its excellent working, to one hailing from a provincial lodge, and also to the P.M.'s for the invaluable aid he received in the ceremony just concluded; but also to his esteemed friend Bro. Musto, the Hon. Secretary of the lodge, who, knowing that he had shortly to instal his successor in his mother lodge, had in so kind a manner invited him to rehearse it at the Doric Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Past Master Musto had further rendered him material assistance in overcoming the difficulties of the ceremony, and had in great measure conducted to that success the brethren were pleased to praise. His sense of obligation was, however, deepened by the honorary membership which was conferred upon him. He assured the brethren he fully appreciated the confidence, and trusted that an opportunity might not be far distant when he could make each brother some return for the many kindnesses he had enjoyed that evening. Bro. Musto said he would take the opportunity of thanking the brethren of the lodge for their kindness in having invited Bro. Butler to preside that evening, and also the Past Masters and Preceptors for their numerous attendance. He (Bro. Musto) was anxious that the brethren of the East-end of London should know upon what ground the seed of the Doric working had been sown, and he was sure from the fertility of the soil it would germinate and spread throughout the province with which the W.M. was associated. Bro. Job was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and the lodge was closed in due form.

Royal Arch.

CAMBRIDGE.—Pythagoras Chapter (No. 88).—This being the jubilee year of the above chapter a meeting was held on Friday, the 14th inst. at the Lion Hotel, at 3 p.m., for the purposes of exaltation of candidates, election of officers for the ensuing year, and other Masonic business, immediately after which a Holy Conclave was formed under the auspices of the above chapter, when the Most W. Excellent Comp. J. Deighton, Provincial Grand Superintendent for Cambridgeshire (who had been previously installed), proceeded to form and complete a Provincial Grand Chapter for this province, when he then conferred the distinguished honour of appointing as his officers: The Most Excellent Comps. J. Dimmock, P.Z., P.P.G.W., H.; F. Haggis, P.Z., P.G.S., J.; F. Gray, P.Z., P.P.G.W., E.; G. Winderup, P.Z., P.P.G. Reg., N.; T. Nichols, P.G. Treasurer; W. Davison, P.Z., P.P.G.W., P.S.; Comps. G. N. L. Macgillivray, 1st A.S.; R. Fairbairn, 2nd A.S.; C. F. Jarrold, P.P.G.S. of W. Reg.; Th. Most Excellent Comp. J. A. Dimmock, P.Z., P.P.G.D.C., D.C.; Comps. T. Humphreys, P.P.G.D.C., S.B.; W. C. Dewbury, P.P.G. Org.; Org.; C. E. Peck, Stan. B.; The Holy Conclave was duly closed, when thirty-six companions and distinguished guests adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Comp. Mayes, the remainder of the evening being spent in perfect Masonic harmony.

Mark Masonry.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 104).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 21st inst., at the Guildhall Tavern. Bro. Alfred Williams, G.S.D., W.M., presided, and the other brethren present were Bros. North Ribbendon, S.W., Thos. Meggy, P.M. and Treasurer, W. Worrell, P.M. and Sec., James Stevens, P.M.; A. Woron, P.M.; G. W. Verry, J.D.; W. Collins, N. J. F. Bassett, W. Hall, G. Yaxley, Theodore Dixon, Org.; Louis Hirsch, J.K. Pitt, and visitors, H. Taylor, St. Ethelburga, Wimborne, and H. Massey, P.M. 22. (Freemason). Bro F. E. W. Collard was advanced to the degree of Mark Master, and Bro. North Ribbendon was installed as Master by Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.M., Bro. James Stevens, P.M., delivered the addresses. The brethren appointed as officers were Bro. Edward Moody, S.W.; Bro. E. Drewett, J.W.; Bro. W. P. Collins, M.O.; Bro. F. H. Gozens, S.O.; Bro. N. J. F. Bassett, J.O.; Bro. Thos. Meggy, P.M., Treas.; Bro. W. Worrell, P.M., Sec.; Bro. E. Yaxley, Reg. of Marks; Bro. G. W. Verry, S.D.; Bro. W. C. Hall, J.D.; Bro. J. Stevens, D.C.; Bro. Theodore Dixon, Org.; and Bro. W. Grant, T. The Audit Committee's report was read and received, and Bro. Alfred Williams, I.P.M., was presented with a P.M. jewel. It was afterwards resolved that Bro. G. Ward Verry, S.D., should represent the lodge at the festival of the Benevolent Fund to be held on the 17th July at the Alexandra Palace, when Lord Skelmersdale, M.W.G.M., will preside, and the lodge voted three guineas to Bro. Verry's list as Steward. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren dined together. After dinner the usual toasts were honoured. Bro. Alfred Williams, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M." said he wished him all health and the most work the brethren could cram together during the year, so that they might see he carried out his promise faithfully and showed his willingness to leave the chair as satisfactorily as those Masters, who had gone before him. It seemed but a little task for a Master of the Macdonald Lodge to do this, although there were three months in the year during which there was no working at all, and in consequence of which a W.M. was very likely to forget all he had previously learned. The W.M., replying, said he felt very deeply the honour the brethren had done him in electing him to the high office of W.M. He felt great diffidence in responding to the toast, because he felt his deficiency and an inability to fill the chair as ably as had been done by his predecessors. At the same time, although diffident and modest, he had a great deal of determination and a strong will; and he was determined to fill his position in such a manner that he should not disgrace the lodge, and a strong will not to call upon the P.M.'s to assist him more than he could help, although he knew they were always ready and willing to render any assistance that might be required. He trusted that he should have a prosperous year, and he would do the best he could to fulfil all the duties the brethren had cast upon him (and the more they did cast upon him the better he should like it) to his own credit and the welfare of the lodge. He took great interest in Mark Masonry: he liked the degree, and he liked the lodge. He congratulated himself on having entered the degree in the Macdonald Lodge. He had visited other Mark lodges, and had felt reason after each visit still further to congratulate himself, inasmuch as the members of the Macdonald, past and present, and he might almost say future, were such as he was pleased to meet. There were few lodges also where the work of the Mark Degree was so well performed as in the Macdonald. The W.M. next gave "The Newly Advanced Brother," and said that the brethren who came to the Macdonald were doubly welcome, inasmuch as they proved worthy of the recommendation of their proposer, and they also were brethren of zeal and ability, who aspired to office, and when they got into office shewed themselves able to fulfil the duties thereof. Bro. Collard replied, and hoped to prove worthy of the recommendation of Bro. Wotton. He entered this lodge with the ambition of going through the different offices, and he hoped to obtain office and to do the duties of office. He hoped he should not be long before he took office. The charity box of the lodge was sent round at this part of the proceedings, and yielded 14s. 3d. Bros. Taylor and Massey replied to the toast of "The Visitors." In giving "The Health of the P.M.'s," the W.M. narrated the working qualities of each of the P.M.'s of the lodge. Bro. Alfred Williams, I.P.M., who replied, said this was the first time he had had to respond in this character. The song they had just heard, "All's Well," had peculiar words in it—"all's well," and "above, below," but they were applicable to the position of P.M. The P.M.'s had been "below;" they had now got "above;" and it had been "all well" with them. They had gone through the chairs with credit to themselves; they had done their duty "below," and it was "all well." His brother P.M.'s and himself, if they could be of any assistance at any time to the brother who occupied the chair, would one and all of them be happy to render that assistance. The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Treasurer," and said it he talked for a month he could not make the brethren appreciate the merits of Bro. Meggy more than they already did. One and all of the brethren were spontaneously ready to acknowledge their indebtedness to him for the way he had acted in every capacity, but more especially as their Treasurer. Their funds had sometimes been high and sometimes low, but they had never known whether high or low. The mud might have shown its mark to him, but he had not let the brethren know about it, for he had found that which was needful himself. He always had and always would do all he could to advance the prosperity of the lodge. Bro. Meggy replied. As the W.M. had said, he had the interests of the lodge at heart. It was his child, and he hoped as long as he remained in the lodge and was spared to come among the brethren that they, as his children, would take care that he, as their Treasurer, would not let any mud be shown. The lodge was in a very prosperous condition, and all they had to take care of was that those who belonged to the Order should come and see them and find it was in a prosperous condition. He was very pleased to see the W.M. in the chair, and felt assured that he would have, with the assistance of the brethren appointed to office, a most prosperous year and a happy year. He could only ask the brethren to promote the interest of the lodge by bringing new members. He should do so himself, and he hoped the other brethren would do so as well. The W.M., in proposing "The Officers," said he was quite sure they were such brethren as would conduce to his having a prosperous year of office, and that all candidates who came would be impressed with Mark Masonry, in a way that the brethren would desire them to be impressed. Bro. James Stevens replied on behalf of Bro. Moody, S.W., who was absent, and said he was sure that Bro. Moody regretted it very much. Bro. Moody, however, was very busy just now, and was away with his partner in Paris, and but for that circumstance would have been present. Bro. W. Worrell, P.M. and Secretary, replied as well, and thanked the W.M. for having mentioned his candidature for the Secretaryship of the Girls' School. He was pleased with the strong support he had received, and if the promises to support him were fulfilled he was certain to be placed at the head of the poll. But unless these friends made it a matter of certainty that they would record their votes for him, he was afraid some other zealous candidate would be in that position. He was himself trying very hard, and if he failed it would not be for want of trying. He was very much obliged indeed to the brethren of this lodge for their support. Those brethren who were governors would vote for him, and those who were not were doing all they could to further his success. Bros. Collins, Bassett, and Pitt also replied; and the toast of "The Press" having been proposed, Bro. Massey replied, and the proceedings were brought to a close. The brethren were entertained with some capital music during the evening by Bros. Theodore Dixon, F. Taylor, A. Wotton, James Stevens, and Thomas Meggy.

MARYPORT.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 151).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday afternoon, the 20th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Eaglesfield-street. The following members were present: Bros. T. Mandle, W.M., P.G.J.O.; J. R. Banks, S.W., P.G. Stewart; J. H. Banks, J.W. and W.M. elect, P.G.A.D.C.; P. Dodgson, M.O.; Jos. Nicholson, P.M. and Treas., and S.O., P.P.G.S.W.; J. Melmore, as J.O.; J. W. Robinson, R.M.; E. G. Mitchell, S.D., as Sec.; Thompson, J.D.; R. Hetherington, I.G.; J. Gardiner, P.M., P.G.J.W.; J. Smith, Org., P.P.G.O.; G. G. Hayward, P.M. Cumberland Lodge, No. 60, P.G.I.G. of England, Installing Master; W. F. Lamonby, P.P.G.A.D.C. (Freemason); T. Carey, John Adair, W. Armstrong, W. Dobie, J. Pearson, Capt. F. R. Sewell, T. Dixon, and Harris, Tyler. The following visitors were also present: Bros. F. W. Hayward, P.M. 60, P.P.G.S.W., P.G.S.D. of England; Geo. Dalrymple, W.M. 216, P.G.J.D.; Dr. E. W. Henry, W.M. 213, P.P.G.S.W.; Jas. Winter, 216; and H. Bewes, 60. After the lodge had been opened and the minutes of the previous monthly and emergency meetings read and confirmed, the W.M. read the dispensation from Grand Lodge, sanctioning the installation of Bro. J. H. Banks, W.M. elect. Bro. G. G. Hayward then took the chair, and subsequently, with the assistance of Bro. F. W. Hayward, and the other Masters and Past Masters present, regularly installed Bro. J. H. Banks into the chair of A. After being saluted and proclaimed, the new W.M. appointed his officers and they were invested as follows: Bros. T. Mandle, I.P.M.; W. Armstrong, S.W.; P. Dodgson, J.W.; E. G. Mitchell, M.O.; J. W. Robinson, S.O.; J. D. Thompson, J.O.; W. F. Lamonby, Chap.; Jos. Nicholson (re-elected) Treas.; Capt. Sewell, R.M.; J. Adair, Sec.; W. Stoddart, S.D.; T. Carey, J.D.; T. Dixon, D.C.; J. Melmore, I.G.; J. Smith, Org.; W. Dobie, Steward; R. G. Harris, Tyler. Two candidates for advancement having been proposed, lodge was closed. Shortly afterwards the brethren were invited by the W.M. to partake of a splendid luncheon, laid out in the lodge room, the like of which is seldom seen in these high latitudes, whilst there was a constant flow of Muet from beginning to end of the sumptuous entertainment. Bro. Banks, W.M. presided, and proposed the usual loyal toasts, which were duly honoured. He also proposed "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces," coupled with the name of Bro. Capt. Sewell, Reg. M. Bro. Sewell, in reply, contrasted the warfare of the present day with that of the Crimean contest, showing that science had more to do with the success of military and naval operations than physical force. That he ably illustrated in the case of the telephone, which in its turn had to give way to the microphone. He also compared the equipments of the soldier of the present day with the wretched outfit of above twenty years ago; and highly approved of camps of instruction. The remarks of the gallant captain were received with much applause. The W.M. next proposed "The M.W. Grand Mark Master of England, Lord Skelmersdale," and in doing so expressed the regret of all the Mark Masters of Cumberland and Westmorland that his lordship was unable to attend the moveable meeting of Grand Lodge, at Keswick, the other day. The toast was accompanied with grand honours. Bro. Mandle, I.P.M., followed with "The R.W. Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Donoughmore, and the rest of the Grand Officers," which was likewise duly honoured. Bro. Armstrong gave "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master, the Earl of Bective, M.P.," and the W.M. proposed "The R.W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Colonel Whitwell, M.P., and the rest of the Prov. Officers, Past and Present," both of which toasts were honoured with a full supply of "fire." Bro. Nicholson first of all replied. Bro. Dr. Henry said he was proud to be not only a Past Officer of the province, but also Master of a Mark lodge, and he hoped that the name of Fletcher would prove an augury of success to that lodge, as it had done on former occasions, in which the name of their departed brother had been connected with Masonry. Bros. Lamonby, Dalrymple, J. R. Banks, Dodgson, Gardiner, and Mandle also replied to the toast. Bro. Mandle then proposed, in complimentary terms, "The Health of the newly-installed W.M. of Whitwell Lodge," which was received with immense cheering as a matter of course. The W.M., in reply, expressed his warmest thanks for the honour done him, though he rather thought himself in a somewhat false position. He thought he would be more at home on board ship than in command of the Craft he had that day been appointed to. However, he would do his best during the ensuing year, with the assistance of the officers whom he had appointed. He proposed "The Health of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Mandle," which was cordially received, and replied to by that worthy brother. Bro. Nicholson proposed "The Installing Masters, Bros. G. and F. W. Hayward," who had unfortunately been obliged to leave at an early stage of the proceedings. Bro. Gardiner gave "The Oldest Past Master, Bro. Nicholson," and the veteran having acknowledged the compliment, the W.M. proposed "The Newly Invested Officers," followed by that of "The Past Masters." Bro. Lamonby gave "The Masonic Charities," and begged to interpolate a word thereto, viz., "The Mark Masonic Charities." He drew attention to the fact that Whitwell Lodge would be represented at the annual festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, at the Alexandra Palace, next month, under the presidency of the M.W. Grand Master of England, Bro. Gardiner having kindly offered to attend as Steward. He hoped that Bro. Gardiner would be able to carry up a good list, and was glad to see that Whitwell Lodge had set so excellent an example to the other Mark lodges in the two counties. He, therefore, coupled the toast of "The Mark Masonic Charities" with the name of Bro. Gardiner. Bro. Gardiner, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had received more encouragement from the members of the Whitwell Lodge than he ever anticipated. He should highly appreciate the honour of Steward at the festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund. Bro. Armstrong then gave "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with Bros. Dr. Henry, Dalrymple, and Winter. Dr. Henry after thanking the W.M. for his handsome hospitality that day, said that the Whitehaven Masons had hitherto been connected with Maryport, through the R.A. Chapter; but now they hoped to open up a new connection in the Mark Degree. Bro. Dalrymple wished the W.M. of Lodge 151 every success, and the way in which they had been entertained by Bro. Banks that day was worthy of all praise. The brethren of Frizington would always look up to Whitwell Lodge as the master spirit in Mark Masonry. The Tyler's toast then brought to a close decidedly the most successful meeting ever held in connection with Whitwell Lodge.

PLUMSTEAD.—Excelsior Lodge (No. 226).—Tuesday, the 18th inst., was a most important day for Mark Masonry and for Plumstead, the above lodge being on that day consecrated to the working of the Mark Degree, and Plumstead, for the first time in its existence, having Mark Masonry hung like a jewel upon its bosom. The consecration was held in the fire hall attached to Bro. Garbett's house, the Sir Robert Peel, on Anglesea Hill, which is, and has been for the past three years, the home for the military Masons of the district. Great preparations had been made, and the hall was very beautifully decorated with flags and flowers, much taste being displayed in the arrangements, which were carried out under the able directions of Bros. Weston and Watkins. The lodge was opened at two o'clock p.m. by Bro. Fitzgerald Matier, who, in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Binckes, G.S., filled the chair, having for his Wardens Bros. Dewar, A.G.S., and Finch, one of the Grand Officers of Kent. The following brethren were then advanced to the Mark Degree, viz., the Rev. C. A. Solibé, Bros. C. Jolly (Freemason), H. Harding, H. Holleyman, Capt. Eugene Sweny, J. J. Donnelly, G. Kennedy, Watkins, Jas. McCaffery, R. Crisdale, Capon, Neil, Tappenden, Dunn, Norman, Orchard, Garbett, Hepburn, Kirkbride, Wilson, J. A. Mason, Buckland, Husegood, Baver, Tomkins, Fountain, Sharpe, Larder, Nicholls, Mould, Gibson, Edwards, Anderson, and others. The beautiful ceremony was finely rendered by Bro. Matier and his officers, and made a deep impression upon the newly-advanced brethren. The ceremony of consecration followed, Bro. Matier working in superb style, and most ably assisted by Bro. the Rev. R. Holden, the Grand Chaplain, whose impressive delivery and imposing manner added much to the beauty of the consecration. A brief oration was delivered by Bro. the Rev. G. Wilson Sicklemore, M.A., Provincial Grand Master of Kent, and the usual formalities observed to the letter. The installation of the Worshipful Master followed, Bro. Matier filling the office of installing officer, in which his fine declamatory and effective elocution made a great impression, and in due form Bro. Capt. Ritchie, P.G.M., J.W. Mid. and Surrey, was placed in the chair of A. and saluted in due form. The investiture of the officers was then proceeded with, as follows: Bros. C. Coupland, S.W.; Jos. Smyth, J.W.; Rev. C. A. Solibé, Chap.; W. A. Weston, M.O.; A. Penfold, S.O.; H. Shaw, J.O.; G. Spinks, S.D.; E. Palmer, J.D.; D. Deves, I.G.; Capt. Eugene Sweny, R. of M.; H. Harding, Org.; H. Holleyman, Dir. of Cer.; Capon, Steward; Norman, Tyler; and Bros. H. Pryce and G. Kennedy were elected as Treas. and Sec. A vote of thanks to Bro. Matier for his valuable services was carried by acclamation, and on the proposal of one of the brethren, he, together with Bros. the Rev. J. W. Sicklemore and Holden, were elected honorary members of the lodge. Letters of regret at not being able to be present were read from Bros. Lord Holmesdale, General Brownrigg, Colonel F. Burdett, and other distinguished Mark Masons, and the lodge was closed in due form. Among the distinguished brethren present were Bros. James Lewis Thomas, Hammerton, Brighten, Pye, Poore, and others. The banquet which followed was one of a very choice description; the menu was excellent, and the wines of the choicest vintages, the table and banqueting room being beautifully decorated with flowers, and presenting a grand appearance. The usual toasts followed, the first, proposed by the W.M., being "The Queen and Mark Masonry," followed by those of "The Grand Master," "The Deputy Grand Master, and all the Grand Officers, Past and Present," "The Provincial Grand Master for Kent," &c. These toasts were responded to most enthusiastically, that of "The Grand Officers" being met by Bro. Brighten, the Asst. G.S. of Works, and Prov. G.S. for Middx. and Surrey, who made a very telling speech on the subject of Mark Masonry. The toast of the evening, that of "The W.M. of the Excelsior Lodge," was then proposed in glowing terms by Bro. Matier. He said: Brethren, it is one of the duties as well as one of the privileges of the Consecrating Officer to propose to you "The Health of your W.M.," and I need hardly tell you that it is a task that I approach with much pleasure. Now that the good ship "Excelsior" has been launched upon the sea of Mark Masonry under such distinguished and auspicious circumstances, with a good and skilful captain, good officers, and a willing and gallant crew of fifty men—and I may safely say that I have never seen a ship launched upon that sea with so good a Master, officers, and men as this that I have assisted at to-day—may she go on her way and prosper, I feel sure, the prayer of us all. I can see that this lodge will be second to none holding their rank under the Grand Mark Lodge of England, and I feel sure that there is a great future before it. Now we know that at all consecrations of lodges there is a great deal for the W.M. designate to do to get the lodge and its affairs in ship-shape fashion, and from the beautiful appearance of the lodge, its decoration, and the care evidently bestowed in having everything properly prepared for the ceremonies, it shows us that he has worked hard and done well for our comfort and the successful carrying out of their grand and glorious enterprise. Then, brethren, let us thank him for carrying us through so well and so ably, and say in the words of one of the noblest of our poets:—

"Tho' hushed the rude whirlwind that ruffled the deep,
And skies if no longer dark tempests deform;
When our perils are o'er shall our gratitude sleep?
No! here's to the pilot that weathered the storm."

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and in reply Bro. Ritchie said he begged to return them his grateful appreciation of all that had been said in his favour, and that he trusted as the Excelsior promised to be first in point of numbers, it would always be first among the lodges in all its Masonic duties. The next toast was that of "The Installing and Consecrating Officer, Bro. Matier," and in proposing it the W.M. said that were he to attempt to tell that brother how deep, ly they were indebted to him for the valuable services rendered to them that day by him he should, he felt sure, make it a failure; all that he could say was that to see the splendid manner in which Bro. Matier had advanced thirty-four initiates, consecrated the lodge, and then installed him into the chair, was nothing less than the work of a giant among Mark Masonry, and would long be remembered by all who had the privilege of witnessing it. They had not done Bro. Matier enough honour by making him an honorary member, but now he would ask them to drink his health with "Three times Three." After the toast had been honoured, Bro. Matier, in the course of an eloquent reply, said he should have thought they had had enough of his melodious voice that day. A great poet had said "modest men are dumb," and he had felt sure come almost to the end of his cable tow, so far as talking was concerned. He always had a great and enduring love for the Mark Degree; it was his first love, and through that love he had worked hard for the success of the degree. There were, as they knew, many magnificent charities in the Craft, the Boys', the Girls', and the Aged Men and Women's Institutions, doing good work in the cause of charity, and to night he was going to tell them of a charity in connection with the Mark Degree—he alluded to the Mark Benevolent Fund. During the next month they would hold a festival for that Institution at the Alexandra Palace, at which their Grand Master would be present, and he hoped to see many of those assembled there that night present on that occasion. He concluded by saying that he had to tell them their W.M. had consented to stand Steward for the year 1879. The next toast was that of "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Bro. Dewar, who had come all the way from Cumberland to assist in his Mark Masonic duties and in the opening of that lodge. Bro. Dewar briefly and suitably replied. Bros. C. Jolly, R. Croisdale, and Eugene Sweny severally responded for "The Newly-advanced Brethren." Bros. C. Coupland and Jas. Smyth responded for "The Officers." The latter in a speech replete with eloquence and elevated sentiments said: "W.M., Officers, and brethren, I rise with much pleasure to respond to your very kind allusions to the officers of this, the Excelsior Lodge. It is indeed a most appropriate and excellent motto for Masons at large, and this lodge in particular. For, I would ask, What is Masonry? Is it merely the meeting together of a number of brethren to perform certain evolutions in a room appropriate for Masonic meetings? Not so. I take it it has much loftier aims and ambitions. It is intended by its teachings and symbols to elevate the mind of man above its grosser state of animal. It appeals to the inner self, and draws us upwards to soar in regions above. Yes, 'Excelsior, Excelsior!' higher still, until the loftier and grander our aspirations become the nearer we get to the contemplation of inimitable truths, and the knowledge of spiritual and divine objects. Now, it is a truth—not to be denied—that the teaching of all the arts has the same object, a diffusion of knowledge and the elevation of the human mind to a loftier status, but I would here state to my young brethren present, that, possessing as I do some slight knowledge of art, I must yet confess that a close study of Masonry in all its various degrees seems to me to afford a readier and swifter road to reach the promised goal than any other means within the grasp of the human mind. If this then be the case, what an incentive it ought to be to zeal and perseverance by the young brethren who have been raised to this beautiful degree to-day. I would here beg to say, W.M. and brethren, particularly to those brethren of my old and respected lodge, The Florence Nightingale, it may appear somewhat strange that for many years I had given up personal attendance at the lodge meetings. No doubt it has been remarked, spoken of, and animadverted upon from time to time, and doubtless my present appearance, and my high advocacy of the elevating tendency of a close study of Masonry, may be the subject of surprise and question of old brother Masons around me to-night. The fear lest this should in any manner tend to throw any slur upon the Craft induces me to do, what has been left undone for many years, and what I must confess seems to me to be the proper moment to speak. Well, brethren, it was no loss of love or reverence for Masonry pure and simple, but because of deep family afflictions. Englishmen, I am proud to say, take their punishment, whether in the shape of family afflictions, or other causes, silently, respectfully, and according to ability firmly. It is not our custom to carry on our sleeve for public inspection or curiosity the sharp strings of misfortune, let them be of whatever sort they may. Such a reticence may be condemned, even while it is, and must be, respected. This, then, brethren, has been my course of action; it has my own full approval, and I doubt not will at once remove any cloud or wonderings which may have been collecting for a long space of time in our Masonic hemisphere, and place us upon a footing of full accord and sympathy. It occurred to me to-day, during the consecration of our M.M.M. Lodge Excelsior, that this was the third consecration of Masonic lodges I had personally assisted, at Woolwich, viz.: 1. The Florence Nightingale Craft Lodge; 2. The Florence Nightingale M.M.M. Lodge; and 3. The Excelsior Lodge of M.M.M. of to-day. This is a remarkable thing to occur to one individual, because many old Masons have never had the opportunity of even seeing, without assisting at, any single consecration of a lodge; but a yet more remarkable occurrence struck me, that at the period of the consecration of the first lodge, 1854, and again at the period of the consecration of the lodge of to-day, England was on the eve of a war with Russia. I well remember Lord Panmure, the Secretary of State for War in 1854, coming down from his office in London when deeply engaged in his arrangements for the army of the Crimea, and in right of his office as Deputy Grand Master, with his retinue of Grand Officers, consecrating the Florence Nightingale Craft Lodge at Woolwich. I am fearful, W.M., I have trespassed upon the indulgence of yourself and the brethren in general, in what I certainly did not, at this late period of the evening, mean to be a speech, certainly not a long speech, and as I believe another officer, one of my respected confreres, has to address you, I will conclude with my warmest thanks for your kindness and the indulgence accorded to me by the brethren at large. (Loud applause.) A special compliment was next deservedly paid to Bro. Weston for his efforts for the successful carrying out of the formation of the lodge, in which he had undoubtedly, with Bro. Shaw and others done yeoman's service. Bro. Weston replied, assuring the brethren that his work had been a labour of love, and his reward was their approbation. The Tyler's toast then concluded a most important and successful gathering. The proceedings were enlivened by the efforts of a musical quartette, consisting of Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Kate Leopold, Bro. Steadman, 172, and Bro. Tinney, 319, Bro. Steadman directing.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PORTSMOUTH—Naval and Military Conclave (No. 35).—The quarterly meeting was held in the Masonic Hall, on Friday, 21st June. The N.P.S. Sir Knight G. A. Green was supported by the Int. Gen. and Dep. I.G. of the division, and the greater number of his officers. Bro. John Cox, of the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 342, was unanimously approved of, entrusted, admitted, and installed a Knight of the Order. After the closing of the Conclave, Mount Olive Sanc. R.H.S., was opened in due form and ordinary business transacted. The Sanctuary was formally sealed until the third Friday in September next.

GRAND CHAPTER OF PRINCE MASONS OF IRELAND.

The Triennial Convocation of the Order of Prince Grand Rose Croix of Ireland (which was adjourned unavoidably from April last), was held at the Chapter Rooms, Freemasons' Hall, Dublin, on Wednesday, the 19th inst., immediately after the conclusion of the Quarterly Meeting of the Grand Chapter.

The attendance of members of the Order on the occasion was unusually large, the very beautiful room appropriated to the special use of chapters of this degree was filled to overflowing, the brethren wearing the full costume of the Rose Croix Degree, and all evidently anxious to manifest their respect and esteem for the beloved President, as well as their sincere sympathy with him in the heavy bereavement with which it has pleased T.G.A.O.T.U. so recently to afflict him.

The regular business of Grand Chapter having concluded, the Hon. Judge Townsend, LL.D., President of the Order, and Sovereign Grand Commander of the 33° for Ireland, presented his report as to the progress and position of the Rose Croix Degree in Ireland, which was listened to with the most rapt attention.

A warm vote of thanks having been presented to Judge Townsend for his able and exhaustive report, and he having, in compliance with the unanimously expressed wish of Grand Chapter, consented to prepare same for publication, the convocation closed after partaking of the "loving cup." We hope at some future time to present our readers with an abstract of this report.

The banquet which took place in the evening was attended by nearly 100 members, and at it an interesting ceremony took place, viz., that of presenting to the Hon. Judge Townsend, President of the Order, a very beautiful Prince Mason's ring, with the cross of the Order set in precious stones. The desire to unite in this token of esteem was so great that it was found necessary to confine the subscriptions to the Grand Officers and the actual Sovereign of such of the subordinate chapters as representatives of the entire Order. The pleasing duty of making the presentation devolved upon the Vice-President, Bro. E. J. Armstrong, D.L., who was ably seconded by the Sovereigns of the senior and junior chapters present. The President's reply was one of his happiest efforts, and a more beautiful and effective address has seldom been heard in a Masonic assembly.

The Directors of the Bank of England met on Thursday, and advanced the rate of discount from 2½ to 3 per cent.

An interesting letter from Bro. Pike, U.S., will appear in our next.

A meeting will be held in the Board room at Freemasons' Hall, on Friday next, July 5th, at six o'clock p.m., "to institute measures for establishing a memorial to perpetuate the memory of Bro. R. Wentworth Little amongst the brotherhood, for which he did so much and by whom he was so much esteemed."

Reviews.

FROM CALAIS TO KARLSBAD. T. LOUIS OXLEY.

Kerby, and Endean, 190, Oxford-street.

We have received this little sketch with much pleasure, and only wish that it had been somewhat longer, and that there had been "more of it." It gives an animated account of a journey from Calais to Karlsbad, commencing with the well-known and quaint hotel of M. and Mme. Dessin, and ending at "La Grande Ville" of Paris, of which the writer most truly remarks, "what a beautiful city!" Yes, Paris is beautiful under all aspects and at all times, and he must be a very blasé or borné subject who cannot admire or appreciate Paris. From Calais the party go on to Brussels, "Hotel de l'Europe," and seem to be most favourably impressed with that agreeable city. The writer runs along, via Aachen, paying a just tribute to Nuellen's Hotel and the Dremels; he passes through Bonn, and Bingen, and Frankfurt, and Eisenach. He sees the Mosenthal, the Wartburg, and glances at the Green Vaults and galleries of Dresden, Konigstein, and its fortifications, until for a month he sojourns peacefully and comfortably amid the charming scenery of Schandau. Then he proceeds to the "Kur" at Karlsbad, and afterwards goes for the "Nach Kur" to the Rhigi, or Rigi Kaltbad. We too have a vivid remembrance of that Rhigi Kaltbad in less civilised days, before the Rhigi Kulm Railway was made, before Vitznau took the place of "Wäggis," but our memory reverts to a "wooden dependance" not quite finished, which was a "bath" by day and night, which was on the top of the sunburnt plateau, and which rendered sleep impossible, and comfort out of the question, to say nothing of incessant conversation through thin partitions, and innumerable cockroaches which made themselves completely at home, chez vous. But despite all these "desagremens" we liked the genius loci and the Swiss people. We can fancy the Rhigi Kaltbad to be a most enjoyable spot, apres tout. All this little story of a foreign journey is told with much quietness and simplicity of style, in an easy, unconstrained narrative, and we recommend to any of our readers who are thinking of a foreign tour to Karlsbad or the Rhigi, to invest at once in this little book, and if they pay a visit to Mr. Endean's well stocked emporium they will not go away disappointed. We commend the work for its truthfulness of description and unpretentiousness of profession. It is what it claims to be, an interesting account of an interesting journey.

THE VOICE OF MASONRY. Chicago.

The "Voice of Masonry" for June is now before us, as usual most admirably edited by Bros. J. W. Brown and A. G. Mackay. It is one of the best Masonic periodicals that we know, and deserves to be appreciated in England as in America.

LE MONDE MACONNIQUE for June, is before us, and contains a great deal of French Masonic matter, which unfortunately does not quite harmonise with our English views. Bro. Caubet's address at the opening of the new lodge, "Les Maçons réunis," is marked by much moderation, good sense, and Masonic sentiment.

This is a very imposing looking volume of 616 pages, which we are happy to receive and interested in perusing.

This is a very interesting record, which we deem worth preserving, and which we have perused with pleasure.

KENNING'S CYCLOPEDIA OF FREEMASONRY.

This invaluable companion for the reading Mason is on our table. The labour of preparing the work was undertaken some five years ago by Bro. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., editor of the London Freemason, an accomplished, able, and fearless writer; and in the preparation of it he has found ample scope for his versatile intellect and sound knowledge of things pertaining to Freemasonry. The acceptable secret in making such a book consists more, perhaps, in knowing what to leave out than what to put in, and in this our learned brother has great skill.

It is published by Bro. George Kenning, whose name the book bears, and who is known to all the world as the greatest Masonic publisher in this century. He liberally supplied the sinews, such a necessary accompaniment to an undertaking so laborious and expensive, and it is earnestly to be hoped that he will reap a handsome reward. The book is handsomely bound in fine blue cloth, having a beautifully illuminated cover bearing the portraits of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England; the Duke of Abercorn, M.W. Grand Master of Ireland; and Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, M.W. Grand Master of Scotland.—The Masonic Eclectic.

We are delighted to hear that the authorities at Trafalgar-square have just been enabled to acquire for the national collection several of the gems of the famous gallery formed by the late Mr. Fuller Maitland, of Stanstead-park. Foremost among these acquisitions must be reckoned the small Botticelli exhibited at Burlington-house in 1871, with the enigmatical Greek inscription at the top; this Nativité—a nativity, as our readers remember, with the addition of several unusual episodes—is one of the most imaginative, the best preserved, and in all respects most delightful examples in the whole works of the master.—Academy.

OLD CERTIFICATES.

A day or two ago, when looking through the old minute books of Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371, at Maryport, in search of material for my projected work on Craft Masonry in Cumberland and Westmorland, Bro. Jos. Nicholson, one of the oldest Masons in the north, showed me a number of parchments, which he had collected from time to time. One is a warrant issued by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia, dated Dec. 7, 1785, with a large seal attached in a tin box, suspended by a blue and yellow ribbon. The names of the signatories are John George Pyke, P.G.M. W. Campbell, D.P.G.M.; J. Snelling, P.G.S.W.; and D. J. Wood, P.G.J.W. The Earl of Antrim is also mentioned as Grand Master of England. The warrant empowers John Fraser, James Carmichael, and George Brown, to form and hold a lodge at the house of Bro. John Fraser, or elsewhere, in the township of Walsley, in the said province. The name of J. Peters appears as G.S., and a note at the corner certifies that "This warrant is registered in the Grand Lodge, vol. 1, letter A." The warrant is wholly in manuscript. Another parchment is the Craft certificate of Bro. Samuel Hyslop, Lodge 299, Merlin's Cave, Liverpool, now extinct, dated June 15, 1797. There are also two or three scraps of a paper certificate, printed, issued to Bro. Hyslop, by his mother lodge, the following September, one of which scraps has intact the lodge seal in red wax. The same brother has also left behind him a parchment certificate from St. John's Lodge, No. 253, Castle Douglas, N.B., dated April, 1799, showing that Bro. Hyslop had "duly passed the chair, received the degrees of Excellent, Super-excellent, and Royal Arch Mason, by us in our lodge." To this part of the parchment there is attached a crimson ribbon, with a red wax seal, an almost exact representation of the Scotch Royal Arch jewel of the present day. The second half of the parchment certifies that the brother also "was duly dubbed a Sir Knight Templar" in the encampment attached to St. John's Lodge. The seal, in black wax, representing emblems of mortality, in this case, is suspended by a black ribbon. St. John's Lodge, Castle Douglas, was chartered in 1794, and is now numbered 189; but the chapter and encampment appear to be numbered with the things of the past. Bro. Nicholson has also in his possession a most interesting pamphlet, published in 1804, entitled "Masonic Union: an Address to the Duke of Athol on the subject of an Union between the Masons that have lately assembled under his Grace's sanction, and the regular Masons of England, H.R.H. George, Prince of Wales, Grand Master; by a Member of the Fraternity." As a supplement to this pamphlet there is a list of Grand Patrons, Grand Masters, and Provincial Grand Masters; together with a list of lodges. I am sure Bro. Nicholson will be most happy to lend this interesting pamphlet to any reading Mason who has never seen it.

W. F. LAMONBY.

PHILOSOPHICAL DIALOGUES.

My able friend Bro. Findel can no doubt confirm or refute the supposition that a work entitled "Philosophical Dialogues on the Reunion of the Different Christian Communions," by the late Baron de Starck, Protestant Minister, and first Preacher to the Court of Darmstadt, and published in London in 1819, translated from the German, is the production of the well-known High Grade Bro. von Starck. If it be, he was clearly a Roman Catholic in sympathy, if not in profession, and this would account for many of his erratic proceedings in respect of Freemasonry.

MASONIC STUDENT.

GRAND ORIENT OF EGYPT.

I have very much pleasure in informing the brethren in this country, who are interested in the progress of Freemasonry in Egypt, that the Grand Orient for that country has been officially recognised by the Grand Lodge of Iowa (United States), and the M.W.G.M. has appointed the indefatigable Grand Secretary (Bro. F. F. Oddi) the representative of Iowa of Egypt. This makes still another Grand Lodge which has followed the example of the Grand Lodge of Missouri in extending the right hand of fellowship to our brethren in Egypt, and, doubtless, ere long there will be few who will not thus unite in helping the Craft in that country, just as England and Ireland have done. Recognition in a fraternal spirit is what is asked, the matter of representation being a matter of much less importance, though none the less desirable.

Obituary.

BRO. R. D. DUCKETT, 228.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. Richard Dent Duckett, of the United Strength Lodge, No. 228. Bro. Duckett retired to rest apparently in good health late on Tuesday night, and was found dead in bed on Wednesday morning. A stroke of apoplexy had carried him off in the early hours of the morning, and he seemed to have died without a struggle or a pang. Our Bro. Duckett, who was one of the permanent staff of the Standard, was well known among the members of the press, and was highly respected in both business and social circles. Bro. Duckett was a keen appreciator of character and motive, and whenever he found honesty of purpose and sincerity of disposition he became a firm friend whom it was impossible to alienate.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

At a general assembly of the Royal Academy of Arts held on Thursday last week, Mr. W. F. Yeames, painter, was elected an Academician, and Mr. Frank Holl, painter, and Mr. E. Crofts, painter, were elected Associates.

The Clothworkers' Company have voted a sum of twenty guineas towards the sustentation fund of the Parkes Museum of Hygiene, University College. The Lords of the Admiralty have forwarded a series of plans and drawings of hospital ships and other articles having reference to naval hygiene.

Mr. H. P. MacCarthy, the sculptor, was permitted to take a cast of the face of the late Mr. Russell Gurney. A successful mask was obtained, and Mr. MacCarthy is preparing a bust from it.

Mr. Joseph Albert, photographer to the Court of Vienna, has just constructed a photographic steam-press by which he has induced photography to render the natural colours in a picture. An expert painter, says the Medical Examiner, could hardly portray the colours of the object more faithfully, and the distinctness in the nicest shades more accurately, than the Albert press does in these coloured photographs.

Some further additions have been made to the series of cabinet portraits of civic celebrities taken by Bro. Fradelle, 246 Regent-street. Alderman Sir R. W. Carden is one of the "subjects," and his portrait is an exceedingly striking one. Another is Mr. John Bath, C.C., President of the Society of Accountants; a third, Mr. W. S. Page, Master of the Shipwrights' Company; a fourth, Mr. W. A. Oldaker, warden of the Cutlers' Company. All these are remarkably good. As likenesses they are very successful, whilst in each case the details are brought out in the clear manner for which Bro. Fradelle's photo-mezzotint portraits have become renowned.

The adoption of a Rat by a Cat is reported by a correspondent of the Turf, Field, and Farm, writing from Connecticut. A young rat, about two weeks old, was brought to an old cat for her dinner, but instead of eating it she carried it off to the nest where her kitten lodged, and left it there. The rat, finding himself comfortable, stayed with the kitten, and the old cat nursed both the kitten and the rat, and all lived happily together. The little rat left the nest once a week, but returned of his own accord. The owner had a wire cage built for the trio, which was convenient for all three, but the door was so narrow that one day, as the cat and rat were trying to pass through it at the same time, the little rat was squeezed to death. So the rat was thrown away, and for two days the old cat mewed and sought about for her lost protégé.

The probability is that the prison of Newgate will be removed before many months have elapsed, and the site occupied by a "Criminal Court of Justice," to which all the business of the Central Criminal Court will become transferred. The change is inevitable, and, such being the case, the City of London Corporation are said to be contemplating the erection of a pile of buildings which will compare favourably with the handsome Assize Courts at Manchester and elsewhere.

The Honorary Treasurer of the London school of medical women 30 Henrietta-street, Brunswick-square, has, received a notification from Mr. George Oakes, of New South Wales, of a legacy amounting in value to nearly £7000 having been left to the institution by his late wife.

The closing meeting of the Meteorological Society for the present session was held last week at the Institution of Civil Engineers, Mr. C. Graves, F.G.S. (President), chair, when the following papers were read:—"The Climate of Lundy Island," by Mr. A. J. H. Crespi, B.A.; "On the Auroral or Magnetic Cirrus," by the Rev. S. Barber; and "On a method of sometimes determining the amount of the diurnal variation of the barometer on any particular day," by the Hon. R. Abercomby.

It is interesting to learn from the Bulletin of the United States Survey of the Territories that the remains of a bird of high organisation have been discovered in certain insect-bearing shales at Florissant, in Colorado. The relics comprise the greater part of the skeleton, and, though deficient in portions of the head, include nearly all the bones of the anterior and posterior extremities; the wings and tail are so well imprinted on the rock as to indicate even the shafts and barbs of the feathers. The fossil represents a bird of aboreal habits, with well developed powers of flight. It belongs evidently to a high ornithic type, and is probably referable to the group of Passeres, or perching birds. Although the absence of bill renders it impossible to assign the species to any particular family, there are reasons for believing that it is allied to the finches. Palacespiza Belta is the name under which Mr. J. A. Allen describes this new bird. Both generic and specific names are new. This specimen represents the first fossil passerine bird which has been discovered in North America.—Academy.

The Chinese pavilion in the Paris Exhibition is not yet open to the public. Through the closed porch a sight can be obtained of the garden within, in the centre of which stands a richly-decorated summer-house; and the bazaar adjoining is doing a fair trade in Chinese articles of every nature, vended by Orientals in full national costume. It seems rather peculiar to see these sleepy eyed, pig-tailed "heathen Chinese," clad in rich silken stuffs, which suggest romantic ideas of the Celestial Empire, quietly pulling away at large cigars of the most European and prosaic appearance. The Siamese and Persian pavilions are closed yet, through exteriorly complete. The buildings will be picturesque features of the Trocadero grounds.

THE RECENT PROCEEDINGS OF THE SCRUTINEERS.

The untoward fact, to which we called attention last week, is one which, as it reflects great discredit on Grand Lodge and Freemasonry, we feel it to be proper to recur to-day. The returns of the Scrutineers at the last Grand Lodge have been examined, and with the result as we stated in our last impression. The brother who was returned as head of the list had, we believe, only 54 votes, and was not returned at all; while several other brethren, who were said to be upon the Board, have been found not to have received the qualifying number of votes. This is a most unprecedented state of things, and demands alike serious enquiry and severe animadversion. It is most discreditable and painful on every ground. We shall probably hear in the next report of the Board of General Purposes what notice that important tribunal has taken of such premeditated and unmasonic "laches," (to use a law term), and we trust that we may never have to hear again of a like dereliction of duty on the part of Scrutineers—a similar scandal in Grand Lodge. Dame Rumour, who, as the saying is, is a "lying jade," and always prone to exaggeration, and in addition wise after the event, has been very busy amongst us lately in regard to these recent extraordinary proceedings. We are, however, inclined charitably and Masonically to believe that much that has been said rests upon no solid foundation of accuracy or fact. Until authority has spoken we decline to be made the "mouthpiece" of foolish "canards" or exaggerated assertions. At any rate, the evil has been discovered and rectified, and let us all hope, that Masonic justice will be done, and mete out a proper punishment to those who have so far forgotten themselves as men and Masons as to have had recourse to a very dirty trick, and to most discreditable proceedings.

THE SECRETARIAL ELECTION FOR THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The struggle grows in vivacity as we approach July 11th. Other candidates have come forward than those who have publicly avowed themselves, it seems, and despite the clear words of the advertisement, two or three are excluded by the age line. We publish elsewhere a report of the meeting of the General Committee by which we learn how many received candidates are before the subscribers, and for whom their votes will be asked and recorded on July 11th. We do not think that we can add much to our remarks of the two last preceding weeks, further than to say that the election is still practically in the hands of the subscribers. The number of unpledged votes is very large indeed, and it is difficult on any safe ground of calculation to forecast now what the final response of the subscribers will be to the various appeals made to them. To use a sporting expression, the "betting is nearly even all round," and whether one of the "favourites" or a "dark horse" may make the "running" is a matter which can only be satisfactorily determined on the "course" on July 11th.

A QUID PRO QUO.

Our esteemed and excellent friend Bro. James Terry, the indefatigable Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, made some amusingly sarcastic remarks, "more suo," at the consecration banquet of the Lodge of Perseverance, with respect to some recent observations in a leader in the Freemason, relative to "Masonic Mendicancy." We pass over to-day any little "skits" which our good brother "in the exuberance of his playful imagination thought well to direct against the Freemason," as to "whether it will be read or not," "perhaps not," and to its price being "2d.," with respect to which latter remarkable announcement, we beg to say, that it is not a new fact, nor any "factor" in the discussion at all. As we understand Bro. Terry's objection to our remarks—it is this, put into simple words, as an easy proposition. "Without this going about of the Secretaries, the Institutions cannot be kept up. It would be better no doubt if it were not so, but it is a necessary evil." Such we apprehend to be the exact force of our versatile and amusing friend's remarks, for whose untiring labours we have the greatest admiration, and of whose many qualities of head and heart, we in common with his many friends, have the warmest appreciation. Few brethren have worked harder than Bro. Terry has done for Masonry, and the efficiency and lucidity which mark the performance of his duty as a "Consecrating Officer," are both very remarkable and very impressive. But we think a statement of our worthy brother will come upon the Craft very great surprise, will affect them, as it did us when we heard it, very deeply, and is in itself great as a condemnation of the existing system as can well be imagined. Nothing that we have as yet said surpasses the effect on all thinking minds produced by the following admission of Bro. Terry himself. He declared with much pathos, before a most sympathetic audience, that "labouring, as he was, to earn his livelihood by the sweat of his brow, he had for 290 evenings during the last twelve months attended lodge meetings, and given up the quiet and happiness of home, 290 nights out of 311 working days. We need hardly remark that anything more condemnatory of the present mischievous system cannot well be conceived. Multiply 290 by three, as representing the three Institutions, giving an equal amount of activity, and we all know that Bro. Binckes is not inferior in activity to Bro. Terry, and supposing "all things equal," the Secretaries have to make 870 visits to lodges during the year. No wonder that brethren are complaining, no wonder that some lodges sternly refuse to allow charity appeals in their social circle, no wonder that the whole fabric of our charity stands upon a very insecure and fragile foundation. For what is the effect of this unnecessary (we hope we do not use an offensive word) Masonic Mendicancy? Only this, nothing more, and we beg all our brethren to note it. The great bulk of our lodges and chapters, as well as the brethren and companions, do nothing for our charities. No, their support is left to the zeal of the liberal, and to the repeated efforts of a few large-hearted individuals—all honour to them be it said. This is not a satisfactory nor a safe state of things, and as Masons, always professing charity, we should not allow it to continue. Therefore it is that we appeal to lodges and chapters, and the brethren generally, to come forward and strengthen the cause of the charities and lighten the labours of the Secretaries. It cannot be right that any one of our Secretaries should have to pay 290 visits in one year to obtain Stewards and support. Of course there are certain gatherings and festivals and the like, when it is most advisable, nay needful, that the Secretaries should be present, but why, in addition to their hard work in their offices, we are to deprive them of home life and domestic comfort we cannot, for the life of us, conceive. With all due deference to our excellent Bro. Terry, we, therefore, beg to repeat to-day, that we are convinced abstractedly of the justice of our previous remarks, (which he does not apparently contest), and that in practice we apprehend that with much greater support on the part of lodges and chapters and brethren, Bro. Terry's fears as to the diminution of the annual income for the charities will be found to be unreal. Our remarks were penned with all good feeling to the Secretaries, in the first place, with a lively interest in the charities in the next place, and we fancy that, above all, in all that we have said, we express the feelings of a very large number of the most thoughtful and intelligent of our brethren.

THE CONSECRATION OF THE LODGE OF PERSEVERANCE.

This interesting ceremony, as a full report shows our readers elsewhere, took place last Saturday, and was carried through under the happiest auspices and with the best effect. Our excellent and esteemed Grand Secretary, Bro.

John Hervey, and his assistant Consecrating Officers, performed the ceremony of our ancient ritual with great animation and power, and the gathering was alike evidently impressed and gratified with such an evidence of the beauty of our ceremonial, and the manner in which it had been set forth by our "Masonic experts." We call the attention of our readers to the faithful report of the speeches elsewhere, and specially to an impromptu address of Bro. Court, of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, U.S. We congratulate our worthy Bro. Leins, the first W.M., and his officers and brethren, on this most successful "début" of the Lodge of Perseverance, and we trust that its future may be as happy and prosperous as its beginning was bright and genial.

THE FRENCH GRAND ORIENT AND THE ENGLISH GRAND LODGE.

It seems that, owing to a very pardonable mistake, we erred in supposing that the new French lodge at the Mauritius had been chartered by the French Grand Orient. It appears, according to our old friend, Bro. Grimaux, in the Monde Maconnique, this lodge has been really chartered by the Grand Conseil of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite at Paris. When we read in the Monde Maconnique the account of this consecration, and the protest of the W.M. of our English lodge, and of the arguments of the French authorities, as nothing was said to give us a clue to the real state of the case, we never could suppose that Bros. Caubet and Grimaux, staunch members of the French Grand Orient, would lend their names even to the semblance of irregularity, or even mention it without protest. Under what pretence can the Grand Conseil of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, claim to charter a Craft Lodge? Is it that though illegal in France it is legal out of it? We really are astonished at the inconsistency of the position assumed by our good friends in France. Bro. Grimaux's idea that the Freemason is hostile to the Grand Orient of France is altogether a chimera. We will venture to add that the Grand Orient of France, so long as it preserves the even march of legality, order, and true Masonry, has no sincerer friend than the Freemason.

OUR LATE BRO. THE KING OF HANOVER.

On Monday last, the Royal Mausoleum in St. George's Chapel, at Windsor, received all that was mortal of our late royal and distinguished brother the King of Hanover. In that most fitting burial place, in that solemn receptacle of so many of the House of Brunswick, and amidst the tears of sorrowing relatives, and the respectful and loyal attachment of ancient subjects and friends, he rests, life's stormy journey over, let us all hope, in peace. And we who record the fact to-day, will only presume to add the heartfelt expression of our own loyal sympathy and concern.

RETURNS TO GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"A Past Prov. Officer," quoting from his letter in your last has 'stumbled over a mare's nest' as he will readily perceive, by another reference to my communication of the 15th inst. I made no allusion whatever to "monies due to Grand Lodge;" what I wrote about was neglect in making annual returns to Grand Lodge, immediately after installation, of the new W.M., Wardens, and Past Masters, so as to qualify them to sit in Grand Lodge.

Yours fraternally,

A. P.M. and Prov. Officer.

PILGRIMAGE OF AMERICAN KNIGHTS TEMPLARS TO EUROPE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your last issue you give particulars of a pilgrimage to Europe which the Mary Commandery, No. 36, Philadelphia, U.S.A., will make next month. Perhaps next week you may be able to devote some space to a similar pilgrimage to be made by the Allegheny Commandery, No. 35, leaving New York July 3rd. With this pilgrimage our distinguished and universally esteemed Bro. Dr. Robert Morris, La Grange, Kentucky, will be associated, and I am sure the brethren generally will be eager to seek the privilege of taking him by the hand, wherever opportunity may offer. I enclose you full particulars of the pilgrimage.

Yours truly and fraternally,

JOHN HOGG.

"We have already announced that Allegheny Commandery, No. 35, of Allegheny, Pa., together with such members of other commanderies as may join the expedition, will set forth on the 3rd July next, for a tour of seventy-five days in Great Britain and the Continent. We have now to add that Sir Knight Robt. Morris, Past Grand Master of Kentucky, has secured a place, and will give his large Masonic experience to make the tour pleasant and instructive. Success go with them.—Masonic Review, Cincinnati, May 18, 1878.

Bro. Robert Morris, LL.D., 32°, is the author of "Masonic Songs and Poems," incomparably the best collection of Masonic poems ever written, commencing with "We Meet Upon the Level, We Part Upon the Square," "The History of Freemasonry in Kentucky," "Freemasonry in the Holy Land," &c., &c. Bro. Carson, in his "Masonic Bibliography," after enumerating ten of Bro. Dr. Morris's works, adds: "He was also the Editor of the American Freemason (Louisville, 1859, Folio); the same title, 8°, Chicago, 1859. He was also the projector, editor, and publisher of that ponderous collection the Universal Masonic Library, 30 vols., 8°, 1856-57, and he edited an edition of Webb's Freemasons' Monitor, Cincinnati, 1859, and has been engaged in various other Masonic literary enterprises.

A MASONIC SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me through the medium of your valuable paper to propose a scheme, which I think may be welcome to many brethren who are blessed with children, and who may now or will shortly require a good school for them without being either a charity school or an expensive one. In short, Sir, I would have a Masonic School Co., Limited, with £10 shares, each share giving the right to send one pupil, being the child of a Mason. Should this project meet with a favourable reception I shall be pleased to communicate with any brother on the subject, and explain my ideas more fully.

I am, Sir, Yours fraternally,

S. DAVISON, 1619.

BRO. R. WENTWORTH LITTLE DECEASED.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It has been suggested by many of Bro. Little's Masonic friends that a meeting should be convened to institute measures for establishing a memorial to perpetuate his memory amongst the brotherhood, for which he did so much, and by whom he was so much esteemed. Permission has been obtained from the Board of General Purposes to hold a meeting for that object in the Board Room at Freemasons' Hall.

Friday, the 5th July, at 6 p.m., has been fixed for the time of meeting, that being quite a blank day in the Masonic Calendar.

It is to be hoped that the brethren will make an effort to be present on that occasion, and submit for consideration any suggestion they may think best suited to keep in remembrance the name of our departed brother.

I remain, yours fraternally,

WILLIAM DODD,

Executor of Bro. R. Wentworth Little deceased.

26th June, 1878.

CONSECRATION OF THE LODGE OF PERSEVERANCE, No. 1743.

On Saturday last this new lodge was consecrated at the Imperial Hotel, Holborn Viaduct, by Bro. John Hervey, G.S.; who was assisted by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; as Chaplain, Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, as S.W., Bro. Edgar Bowyer, Prov. G.D. Herts, Bro. James Terry, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies Herts, as D.C.; Bro. Mollindina, as Secretary, and Bro. D. Reed, Prov. G.D. Essex, as I.G. The complete list of brethren who attended was as follows:—Louis A. Leins, Albert Barker, Frederick Kearney, John L. Mather, E. Marlet, Joseph Wall, C. E. Sparrow, C. E. Ferry, W. Payne, C. H. Reed, Alfred Eade, George Mellison, C. Robinson, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, W. Miller, 65; Fredk. Crookford, Zetland, (Malta); G. F. Brown, W.M. 65; W. Simmons, W.M. 1569; J. Roberts, 65; Edgar Bowyer, 1580, P.G.D. Herts; Alfd. Tremond, S.W. 1693; H. P. Isaac, 188, J.W. 1693; John Greenfield, 1602; Robert Court, Ancient York, Lovell, Massachusetts, W. W. Morgan, 211; W. J. Wright, 65; D. Reed, 1457, P.G.D., Essex; Frederick Gotto, 1087, P.G.S. Works Berks and Bucks; Thos. W. Simons, 1185; Fred. H. Cozens, Org. 907; John Hervey, G.S.; H. G. Buss, A.G.S.; Jas. Terry, Prov. G.D.C., Herts; A. W. Hubbard, 813; George Murray, 1471; J. Tullidge, 1426; Thomas Parry, P.M., 890; C. L. Pierce, 65; George B. Cutler, 217; C. B. Payne, G.T.; and H. Massey, P.M. 619, (Freemason).

After the Lodge had been opened, the Grand Secretary in addressing the brethren, briefly referred to the innovation made recently by the Grand Orient of France, and spoke in terms of high praise with respect to the action taken by Grand Lodge of England on the subject. He afterwards dwelt shortly on the matter of the change, and on the whole objection to it. The ceremony of the day, and its importance had engaged his attention, and in speaking of it stated the pleasure he felt in once more installing in the Master's chair of a lodge a brother who had occu-pled that position on three previous occasions. He would leave the subject of Freemasonry to be dilated on by Bro. Woodford, who had always something to say to the brethren which they might ponder over with profit.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford P.G.C., then delivered the following oration;

I have been requested, V.W. Presiding Officer, by the W. Master elect of this new lodge, as you are aware, to deliver the customary oration on the present occasion, and though I acceded to his fraternal request with pleasure, I yet did so with diffidence, as the thought struck me, as it will perhaps strike many more now present, what is there to say? either worth hearing? or worth preserving? So many able brethren have from time to time addressed the brotherhood, that at first sight it might almost appear as if there were neither room for novelty or even further illustration of a subject so often dilated upon just now as Freemasonry. I, for one, however, hold it to be a great mistake to repeat at such gatherings as these, interesting and important in themselves, stereotyped formulæ or familiar utterances, since, however, well delivered they may be by the practised speaker, they weary the intelligent and disappoint the cultivated. And hence the special difficulty of the Chaplain on such occasions as these. He has to avoid the two dilemmas of oversateness and over novelty, and while he does not weary he is to interest, to instruct, and to edify a critical but sympathetic audience. What then, V. Worshipful Sir, can I say to-day, as your Chaplain, which shall serve to "improve the occasion," to command the adhesion of the thoughtful and to gratify the feelings of the assenting? Luckily for us we have a very tolerant audience to deal with, and we know well before we begin, from old experience of their indulgence, that we may rely upon their patience and invoke their forbearance. What, then, can I say about that good old Order of ours, in whose service and ranks we both, like many more old friends, have grown grey, which shall be worthy the occasion, or the assembly I see before me? It appears to me that I cannot do better than build upon the "ancient foundations," and endeavour from the goodly teaching of older Masters to lay down certain first principles of Masonic teaching and action, if in modern diction, which may serve to refresh the memories of the older Masons amongst us, while they tend to commend Freemasonry to the warm appreciation and admiration of those younger brethren of ours, in whose hands, let me once more impress upon them, lies after all the solemn future, of the honour, of the usefulness, of the progress of Freemasonry in this great country of ours! We shall then all agree, in the first place, in this definition of Freemasonry, that it is a philanthropic brotherhood, based upon the acknowledgement of these two great truths, Belief in God, Love to our brother. We in England, from the very first have been a religiously minded sodality. We have ever declared that we knowingly admitted no "stupid Atheist" amongst us; we loudly repeat that avowal to-day. Let other sections of the Masonic family do what they perversely will, let some, foolishly and wickedly departing from the foundation truth of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, and relax restrictions which are, Sir, I conceive, absolutely essential to our safety, our endurance, and our very existence as a brotherhood in the world, we in England will always seek to walk in the good old paths, and as loyally adhere to our wise and ancient formulæ. No candidate can or shall be admitted amongst us who will not profess to put his trust in God. Neither will we associate as Masons with those under whose laws the intolerant sceptic and the open infidel is permitted to claim adoption into our tolerant, beneficent and religious order. Love to our brethren, also the Second Table of our Masonic Law, is and ever will be the distinguishing characteristic of our Fraternity. We shall adopt no Utopian views or childish chimeras. We shall invent no cant phrases, such as "La Solidarité humaine" to take the place of well-balanced truths; but we shall simply seek to assert and to evince our love to our brethren in theory as well as in practice, in word as well as in deed. And if some of my younger friends may ask me, not unreasonably, how is this great principle best manifested in practice amongst us, I would shortly thus reply. Brotherly love is an active duty, not a phrase, a practical and personal reality, not a tissue of mere fine words. By brotherly love we understand a sincere regard for, interest in, attachment to, our brother. We are to act with him "on the square." We are to render him every service that kindness, justice, morality can require. We are to uphold his character in his absence as in his presence, we are boldly to repel the slanderer of his good name, we are to relieve his necessities and succour his wants, if unforeseen and unavoidable calamity fall upon him as it does upon all mortals often, in a spirit of thoughtful observation and prudent consideration. Because a man is a Mason we are not, however, to uphold him when he does wrong. We are not to allow a fictitious sentiment of Masonic sympathy, to cloud our understanding or warp our judgment, and while in all cases of human transgression and weakness, which are many and great, as we all know, our Masonic sentiment is to be "Fiat justitia ruat Caelum," to use the words of our old teacher, we are also to bear in mind that if our "brother deserves not our esteem and friendship he has at least a demand on our commiseration and our forbearance. Like a fruitful olive tree planted by the side of a fountain, whose boughs overshadow the wall, such is, such ought to be, brotherly love. It spreadeth abroad its arms, from the strength and opulence of its station, and lendeth its shade for the repose, comfort, and protection of all those who come under its branches. Let us then haste to the home of affliction and open the arms of affection to a distressed brother and fellow creatures. While they live, let us strive to support the drooping head and cheer the afflicted heart, let us cover them with the garments of kindness and friendship, and administer to them the cordial balm of brotherly good will, and however great or small our own abilities may be, we should always remember that a cup of cold water, the humblest mite of true charity given in the name and with the heart of a brother, shall in no wise be forgotten or blotted out of the Great Book of God's remembrance." Thus you see, V.W. Sir and brother, that these two great principles of our Masonic profession and practice, (of course not our only ones), must rest on some sacred authority, not merely human but God's and that authority is the Holy Book of divine Law, happily for us in England, ever open in our lodges. It is the one sure foundation on which our whole Masonic edifice so peacefully rests. It animates, it inspires, every prayer we offer, every doctrine we avow, every principle we profess, and every action we perform. It is the source and the inspiration of all our Masonic existence, it alike directs, pervades, and ennobles our whole Masonic theory, and our entire Masonic practice. Without God's word no true or binding morality can be proclaimed to man, because all human morality is alike ephemeral and uncertain, shifting and erratic, because purely human, it resembles in everything the weakness, the inconstancy, the frivolity, the mortality of man. To proclaim morality without the Bible, is as if we were to seek to steer a ship without a compass, or to set a mighty piece of machinery at work, without a directing, controlling and sovereign power, without which ere long that machine must come to a stop, or fall to pieces and crush all things within its range. As far as we are concerned in England, I make bold to say no profane hand shall ever remove our bibles from our lodges, because we find in them the very authority, reality, and soundness of our Masonic morality, because God's holy and inspired word is the best of counsellors, the safest of guides, and the most consoling of friends to weak, and suffering, and dying men. If in other jurisdictions unhappily the Word of God has disappeared, as the great light of true Masonry, we do not at all wonder at that dimness which now obscures their Masonic profession, according to our views, or at that darkness which seems now overclouding their whole Masonic life. And we also venture to assert, and in this I know you will agree with me, V.W. Sir, that the first step needful to bring back other jurisdictions to the great universal family of Freemasonry, to heal existing dissensions, and to prevent a lasting schism, is the reintegration and the restoration of the Bible in these lodges, from which it has been most unwisely and irreligiously banished. Then we might fairly hope for peace for our universal family, and Freemasonry might seriously pursue its goodly and gracious mission among men, inculcating mutual forbearance and toleration, proclaiming hatred of persecution, liberty of conscience, loyalty to the throne and sympathy for the people, reverence of God and love for man! It is a matter of great rejoicing to us to-day to see you, Very Worshipful Sir, with your wonted skill, urbanity, and courtesy to all, in the name of our Royal Grand Master, consecrating another goodly lodge to the honour of God and the welfare of our ancient and accepted brotherhood. We thank you, Sir, for that admirable spirit of aesthetic elegance and carefulness which you have thrown round those venerated ceremonies of ours, and we trust that this auspicious commencement of new Masonic work may result in the erection of a truly Masonic building amongst us, "perfect in all its parts, and honourable to the builders." May all of prosperity attend the new Lodge of Perseverance, and may it worthily take its rank on the lengthening roll of English lodges. May its members ever remember this day, and zealously strive to do good "ashlar work" for Masonry and for Charity in their time and generation, to uphold the reputation of the Lodge of Perseverance and maintain the prestige of the Grand Lodge of England. In the words of a Masonic poet, with which, if slightly adapted, I will close this imperfect oration, I beg to end my agreeable duty, and to commend in all honest earnestness and sincerity that useful brotherhood to which it is our pride and privilege to belong, alike to the matured intelligence of the old Mason and the warm and zealous attachment of the young Mason.

Securely in the Lodge without alloy
We raise a Structure and the mind employ,
As o'er the universe Freemasonry extends,
The voice of Truth in majesty attends.
On that foundation we in safety build;
Through that fair medium our doctrines are instilled,
Here honest friendship rising from its seat,
Bids peevish envy to its cave retreat,
Here virtue lifts on high her gentle voice,
Bidding true men and Masons all rejoice,
Impelling vice, in every subtle shade,
To quit her presence, nor dare her ranks invade.
Here wisdom's utterance is gladly heard,
Her's is the gentle and the monitory word.
And thus she speaks to Masons in good will,
And these her words—Oh! listen to them still.
"True to your trust be not unwisely gay,
Nor carelessly your solemn vows betray:
Be just and faithful, honest and sincere,
Delight in virtue, and your God revere;
The world, convinced by honour's measured line,
That all the virtues round your hearts entwine,
Will bright encomiums to your Order pay,
And bless the light of our Masonic day."

In the old formula of our ritual, V.W. Sir and brethren, let us say with one voice "So mote it be!"

The above oration was very attentively listened to, and was loudly applauded on the rev. brother resuming his seat. The usual programme was afterwards gone through, the ceremony being splendidly accompanied by the musical brethren, Bros. T. W. Simons, F. H. Cozens, and Albert Hubbard. The lodge having been formally consecrated and dedicated to Freemasonry, Bro. Terry, presented to Bro. Hervey Bro. Louis A. Leins for installation. Bro. Hervey thereupon installed Bro. Leins as W.M., who afterwards invested as his officers, Bros. A. Baker, S.W.; F. Kearney, J.W.; J. L. Mather, Treas.; W. H. Mollindina, Sec.; E. Marlet, S.D.; J. B. D. Wall, J.D.; Sparrow, I.G.; C. Daniel, D.C.; Robinson, Asst. D.C.; Mellison, W.S.; and Reed, Asst. W.S.

Bro. Hervey afterwards delivered the addresses to the W.M., and Bro. James Terry the addresses to the Wardens and brethren. A vote of thanks was afterwards passed to the Consecrating Officers, and they were elected honorary members of the lodge.

Bro. Hervey, on behalf of himself, Bro. Woodford, Bro. Buss, and Bro. Terry, acknowledged the compliment, and expressed his hearty wishes that the lodge might long remain on the roll and confer honour on the Craft.

The brethren immediately after closed lodge, and repaired to the dining room, where a choice banquet was provided for their entertainment. When this had been partaken of, grace ("Non Nobis") was sung by the musical brethren, and the W.M. proceeded with the toasts. "The Queen and the Craft," and "The M.W.G.M.," having been duly honoured, the W.M. proposed "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master and the Rest of the Grand Officers."

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., in reply said, you have done me, W. Sir, the honour to associate my name with the toast, and I feel it a great privilege, I assure you, to be permitted to rise on the present occasion to return thanks on behalf of the present and past Grand Officers. The Grand Officers of England next to the confidence of the Grand Master who selects from time to time brethren from the Order to take the highest places in Grand Lodge, always desire to earn the good opinion of the Craft; and I think I am justified in saying this, that under all circumstances, in lodge and out of lodge, the present and past Grand Officers of England have always deserved the esteem of their Grand Master, and the hearty consideration (cheers) and fraternal love of their brethren. It has struck me during the very interesting proceedings of to-day, and has often struck me before, what a remarkable thing Freemasonry is! Perhaps none of us in our various stations in life who have travelled through the world at large, have ever heard of or found such a useful and such an excellent society, or a sodality which has such claims on the affections of its members, or on the respect and goodwill of mankind. Here is a society composed of men of different creeds, different denominations, different professions, different walks of life, different nationalities, different colours, all uniting together in the one grand design of reverence for God and love for man. Whatever differences there may be amongst brethren its members in their every day life Freemasonry makes them one in heart and feeling. Within the lodge the voice of controversy is hushed, and the angry passions are still. And I venture to say—and I say it especially in the interest of our younger brethren—that go where you will, north, south, east or west, you cannot find a society which so commends itself in this present time to the love of the thoughtful and the respect of the intelligent. (Cheers.) Freemasonry has long been a beacon light in the world, and long may it be a rallying point for us all. (Cheers.) Long may it proclaim liberty of conscience, long may it proclaim the sacred right of every human being on this our earth to worship God in his own fashion. (Cheers.) You, Bro. Hervey, said in those admirable remarks, with which you opened the proceedings to-day that if the measures taken in other jurisdictions are to be followed out, Freemasonry may become a benefit order, it may become a friendly association, but it will cease to be Freemasonry. (Cheers.) I am quite sure, W. Sir, that in entire agreement with that statement will be found to be the feeling of the great body of English Freemasons. English Freemasonry has always been distinguished not only for its humanitarian, not only for its cosmopolitan, but also for its religious character. It not only opens its lodges with an expression of reverence for the G.A.O.T.U., but it shows that there is not a moment of its work, not a ceremony of its ritual, which is not better for being hallowed by Masonic prayer. If for one moment we stir from that position, we shall not only drift into a mere ephemeral benefit order, but we shall cease to maintain our prestige in the world, our usefulness and our value will have passed away. It is our duty as English Freemasons, then, while we consider it not to be our right to interfere with any man's creed, to welcome all good men into the lodge, and so long as he acknowledges a reverence for the G.A.O.T.U. we shall adhere to our present formulae. And, therefore, I beg to repeat that if we ever depart from that combined cosmopolitan and yet religious character which has made Freemasonry admired among the brotherhood and respected among men, we may be sure that we are departing altogether from that which constitutes the value of our mission and our true work in the world. (Cheers.) I might go on at a greater length to comment on the value of Freemasonry, but to you, Sir, who have often presided over a lodge, I know it is perfectly needless. I would merely say in conclusion, as I sit down, to use the language of the motto to be found in the great and mighty cathedral under whose shadow we are, in reference to its builder, who was a great Freemason, "Si monumentum quaeris, circumspice." If any man asks what is Freemasonry? and what Freemasonry does? I would simply say it clothes, cares for, and educates the orphan young, it assists the aged, it soothes the voice of anguish, and helps infirmity, and causes the widow's heart to sing for joy. It proclaims before man a firm adherence, an unchanging belief in the great God of heaven and earth, and we couple with that unchanging belief, hearty goodwill, tenderness, sympathy, and compassion for every brother, nay, for every mortal of the dust. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. Hervey, Grand Secretary, in proposing "The Health of the W.M. and Prosperity to the Lodge of Perseverance," said he trusted the brethren would tolerate him for a very few moments. It had been a very great gratification to him to be present that evening among the brethren. He had attended at the instance of the W.M. to consecrate the lodge, and although he felt that there were men in London who could have performed the ceremony better than he had, and notably, one brother on his right (Bro. Terry), yet he felt it a great compliment to be asked to perform the ceremony of consecrating the lodge of Perseverance. He felt it to be a great compliment because the W.M. put it to him in a way which he could not understand, and he would like him to install him in the chair once more. It had happened to him to install Bro. Leins before, and like all modest people he (Bro. Hervey) probably had a few deprecatory doubts as to undertaking the task; but finally Bro. Leins overcame his modesty, and hence his attendance. Now, his great gratification was based on the fact that he had placed at the head of the brethren a brother who would do them justice, and that he thought was the greatest tower of gratification a Consecrating Officer could have. He was convinced that the W.M. would do them justice, and placing such a brother over a new lodge gave an additional pleasure to adding one more link to the long chain of Masonic lodges. He was convinced that this new link would not soon rust away. They had descanted a good deal that night upon one phase and another of Freemasonry, and after the excellent speech which had just been delivered by Bro. Woodford, he felt he was out of order in addressing the brethren at length: but he felt that the feelings of the W.M. were so much his own on one or two points which he was going to mention, that he would not make any apology for dilating upon them. From what he understood from the W.M. and the Treasurer, it was the brethren's wish not to make the lodge a large lodge, but rather to make it one where the brethren might meet those whom they would wish to meet, and where they would find no sort of difference or disagreement, where they would enjoy a quiet evening, and then go away feeling that all those whom they had met were true and sincere friends, not only Masons in name, but brothers in reality. (Cheers.) This being the object of the W.M. and the brethren it was one to be highly commended. He advised brethren not to go for numbers, not to take into their lodge those whom they did not know, and did not feel would do them justice while they were in the lodge. Let them not take them for the sake of their fee, but for the sake of themselves. Look to their characters and enquire what they were in private life, and if they were good men and true in private life, if they were good fathers, husbands, brothers, or sons, then they might entrust them with the Masonic grip, and feel assured that those men would not do them injustice and would come in as the W.M. wished, as good men and true. (Cheers.)

The W.M. in reply said that Bro. Hervey had represented himself as under an obligation to him for asking him to perform the ceremony of the evening but the obligation was really the other way. He had applied to Bro. Hervey to consecrate the lodge and moreover to do him the high honour of installing him as W.M., very likely for the last time. He (the W.M.) had gained his point, getting into the chair of W.M., and all brethren should try to gain that point before going to the Grand Lodge above. He (the W.M.) most heartily thanked Bro. Hervey for having done him the honour to install him, and he could assure Bro. Hervey that it would never be effaced from his memory. He trusted that God would spare Bro. Hervey for many more years and that the brethren might have the pleasure and honour of seeing him on many future occasions.

The W.M. having given the toast of "The Consecrating officer."

Bro. Hervey made a very short reply on the ground that the brethren had heard him a great many times that evening.

The W.M. then gave "The Assistant Consecrating Officers," and informed Bro. Edgar Bowyer that though he was not elected an honorary member that evening it was an oversight which would be remedied, and he hoped Bro. Bowyer would not feel himself slighted. The W.M. then thanked all the brethren who assisted in the consecration, and assured Bro. Woodford that if he would take a quiet hint and act as Chaplain at the lodge meetings it would be exceedingly gratifying to all the brethren.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford in reply said if the Grand Secretary had proclaimed himself a trespasser he was afraid the brethren must by this time be sick of hearing his voice. He hoped none of the brethren were in the position of a wicked old married man, who when a friend said "your wife is in a state of coma: had not you better run for a doctor?" said "No, I don't often get the chance." He hoped the brethren would not, to use a common phrase, having heard him so often during the day, tell the Past Grand Chaplain to "shut up." He had said so much that evening that though he had said it with all sincerity he did not think it became him to trespass any longer on the brethren's time. He should be very happy, whenever numerous other employments permitted him to come to the lodge and act as Chaplain, as requested by the W.M.

Bro. Woodford then referred in most complimentary terms to Bros. Buss, Terry, and Bro. Bowyer, and left the further reply to the toasts in their hands.

Bro. Buss, Assist. G. Secretary, who was also called on for a reply, in the course of doing so, said, he knew the brethren so well who were connected with the lodge, that he felt it had in it the ingredients which would make it an honour to the order. Many observations had been made during the evening, and for some time past with regard to the action taken by the Grand Orient of France, and these observations must have convinced the brethren that Masonry was entertaining, and bringing to bear those grand questions which must bring their institutions to support the integrity of the system on which it had been conducted for many years past.

Bro. James Terry, who was also requested to respond, said, it was with unfeigned pleasure he attended to see Bro. Leins installed for the fourth time in the chair of a lodge. He had known Bro. Leins sufficiently long to be assured that he would not have been asked to take that position unless the other brethren who signed the petition entertained for him the same regard as he (Bro. Terry) did. He was sure that during Bro. Leins's tenure of office the government of the lodge would be in the best of hands. The brethren had made a very wise selection for his kindness of heart, his courtesy of manner, and his generosity of disposition. If there was anything to be achieved in Freemasonry, if there was anything worth working for or aspiring to, Bro. Leins would aspire to, work for, and endeavour to achieve. He would conduct the lodge in a manner that would be commended by the brethren. As he (Bro. Terry) had had the honour conferred on him of being elected as honorary member he should do himself the pleasure of attending to witness the growth of the lodge and to congratulate the brethren on their success. He trusted the time was not far distant when the Lodge of Perseverance would make its mark among the charities of England. He knew he was treading on dangerous ground and on forbidden ground, as the brethren must know who read the leading articles in the Masonic organ. Articles came out in that paper every week to the effect that the Secretaries of the Masonic Institutions had no right to go about and plead the cause of their Institutions, but that it would be much better for them to stay at home and allow the members of lodges to supplement the efforts of the Masters to bring contributions to the charities. He (Bro. Terry) was one of those unhappy individuals who had to go about to lodges, 290 nights out of the 313, and he could say he only wished he could find more time to spend at home. With all due respect to the observations of those brethren who entertained the opinions he had referred to he could only say that if they did spend the time mentioned at home it would entail a loss of from £3000 to £4000 a year to the Institutions whose Secretaries now went out. The brethren might take what he had said just as a simple idle rumour, or they might take it as an answer to what he had told them about articles that had appeared. If the brethren did not think those articles had appeared, let them lay out their two-pence a week and have the paper, that they might see for themselves. Putting, however, this matter aside he wished to thank the lodge very much for having elected him an honorary member, and wishing every prosperity to it, he hoped he might have the proud satisfaction for years and years to come, of seeing it in a bright position in the Craft.

Bro. Edgar Bowyer, in giving his reply said, that the W.M. and himself were initiated into Freemasonry within a month of each other.

Bro. Brown, W.M. 65; Frederick Crockford (Zetland, Malta), and Gotto, having replied to the toast of "The Visitors," a call was given for Bro. Court from Massachusetts, in obedience to which call,

Bro. Court said it was an unexpected pleasure that he enjoyed that night in witnessing the consecration of a new lodge. This was the first lodge he had visited in England, and it had given him great pleasure to be present under such auspicious circumstances. He should be happy to convey to America when he went back to his own lodge, and his friends and brethren of the Order, the good will and wishes of the brethren of this country. He believed there was nothing that was tending more to dissipate the prejudice which had prevailed on both sides of the Atlantic against those two portions of the Anglo-Saxon people than the principles and practice of Freemasonry. They had learned to know and to respect each other as brethren, and any circumstances which would keep them apart had been overcome by Freemasonry. He might mention that for instance the prejudice that had existed against the Prince of Wales in America had been dissipated by his becoming Grand Master of Freemasons of England, and the greatest kindness, respect, and esteem were now entertained for him. He was very glad to assure the brethren that the sentiments uttered by the Grand Secretary, the Past Grand Chaplain, and others, both round the table and in the consecrating hall, in regard to the cardinal principles of the Order were shared by the brethren in America almost unanimously. The brethren in America were at one with those in England on the point that it was essential to the practice of Masonry to acknowledge the Supreme Great Architect of the Universe, through whose kindness and grace they hoped to be saved. They believed that this was the only true basis of Freemasonry; and that one feeling animating them, though they were divided by the ocean, they were one, and it would be so while this feeling lasted; in the words of the Scotch poet, who was also a Mason—"When man to man the world o'er, shall brothers be, and a' that." That solidarity would not rest on words of universal liberty, equality, and fraternity. It had been founded on those good principles of our Order, a belief in the existence of a Great Architect, of the hopes of an immortality beyond this transient scene. He therefore said that the English and Americans were one in all these principles, and not only these countries, but Ireland and Scotland. (Cheers.) Ireland and Scotland had already taken the same step as England with respect to the Grand Orient, and he supposed it was only a question of time, or it was only a question of expediency, how soon the Order in America would make a similar announcement. A report with that recommendation would be adopted by the District Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, as he knew the District Grand Master when he visited the lodge proclaimed such sentiments as had been expressed so strongly by the brethren to-day. He would again thank the brethren for allowing him the extreme pleasure of being present, and he trusted he had not trespassed on their time and patience, but he could not help saying that the more the brethren in America became acquainted with the brethren in England, the more the brethren in England became acquainted with the brethren of America the more would they love and respect each other, and the more would be the links and ties that would bind the daughter nation to the mother nation, the more would they become one in sentiment, in liberty, equality, and fraternity all over the world. The lodges in America were prospering. They exercised a considerable amount of discretion in selecting the rough ashlar with which to add to the structure. They looked to see if there were any flaws in the stone, and whether it was likely to crumble, and if it was they rejected that stone. They were very careful in enquiring where a candidate came from, for in the selection, the proposing and balloting for candidates for admission to the Order, it was necessary that it should be so, seeing that there were many ravening wolves that had gone among them. As there were sham orders, so there were many enemies that had been against the Order from a mistaken idea that it came into collision with religion. In this way their very enemies had done them good. (Cheers.) It had been said by the American proverb that our enemy is our friend when he points out our fault. Their enemies had shown that Masonry was worthy of the whole community and worthy of the appreciation of every lover of humanity, and of every sincere believer in God, that would take the trouble to make himself acquainted with the proper way of entering into the lodges of the order. The order was in one sense a secret order, but in another sense, it was not. It was a secret order, inasmuch as it was kept from the profane world without, but it was not a secret order, inasmuch as any one who is a worthy and a good man could enter it. There was no government and no church that need fear the Masonic Order, which was within the reach of all those who wished to make themselves acquainted with its principles and practices in the proper way in the lodge, in which they would enjoy the light that radiated from the Master's chair in the East. Bro. Court, again thanked the brethren for their cordial reception of him, and said he should carry with him to America a lively recollection of a very pleasant evening. (Cheers.)

The remaining toasts were then given, and the brethren separated.

A beautiful selection of music was given during the evening by Bros. T. W. Simons, F. H. Cozens, and A. Hubbard, under the direction of Bro. T. W. Simons.

Telegraphing on Sunday night his daily letter to the Liverpool Courier, the London correspondent of our contemporary says:—

"The consecration of the Freemasons' Lodge of Perseverance, yesterday evening, at the Imperial Hotel, Holborn Viaduct, was a very brilliant affair. The Grand Secretary of England, who was the central figure, stamped the proceedings as a success, by initiating them with an excellent extempore address, in which he referred to the much-reprobated action of the Grand Orient of France in obliterating from their Freemasonry the fundamental Masonic principle—belief in God. The Grand Secretary was followed by a Past Grand Chaplain, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, who delivered an eloquent oration the detailed principles of Masonry, not perhaps in a new light, but in new language, the freshness of which riveted the attention of the brethren. There was a large attendance of brethren from various localities, and among them was an American Mason, Mr. Robert Court, of the Ancient York Lodge, Massachusetts. Mr. Louis A. Leins was installed as Master of the Lodge, which afterwards extended its hospitality to its visitors by entertaining them at an elegant banquet. Two remarkably fine speeches were delivered in the course of the evening, in reply to the toasts, one by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, and the other by the American brother. The vocal music was of the highest order."

A notice of the consecration of the Perseverance Lodge also appeared in the Standard, Daily News, Daily Chronicle, and Morning Advertiser of Monday, in the City Press of Wednesday, and the Era of to-day.

GRAND LODGE OF PERU.

[We have the pleasure to print the following communication from the Grand Lodge of Peru.]

Muy Querido Hermano:

Me es grato poner en vuestro conocimiento que la Secretaría General del Supremo Consejo gr. 33 para la República del Perú, bajo cuya Jurisdicción trabajan todas las Logias Simbólicas y Altareas Superiores Regulares del Rito Escocés Antiguo y Aceptado, se ha trasladado a la Calle de Lima, No. 3 (antes Zorreo), Altos, Lima; con cuya dirección deben venir, sea por vía de Inglaterra, Panamá ó Estrecho de Magallanes, todas las comunicaciones é impresos que tengais á bien remitir bajo el rótulo que os adjunto.

La Secretaría, que se dice existe en la Calle del Rastro de San Francisco No. 53, es ilegal y espúrea, por corresponder á un cuerpo titulado Gran Oriente del Perú, que no es ni puede ser reconocido por ninguna potencia Masónica regular; ni tampoco deben continuar dirigiendo comunicaciones Masónicas ó impresos á la Calle de Carabaya, No. 24, (antes Bodegonas), como indican algunos Calendarios y Boletines Masónicos, publicados en Europa, en los Estados Unidos y en la América del Sur.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This cooling medicine has the happiest effect when the blood is overheated, and a tendency to inflammatory action is set up in the system. One Pill taken shortly before dinner does away with the indigestion, fullness, and flatulency indicative of a weak stomach or disordered liver. A few Pills taken at bedtime act as alternatives and aperients; they not only relieve the bowels, but regulate every organ connected with them; overcome all acrid humours, and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and beget a feeling of comfort in hot climates and high temperatures, which is most desirable for the preservation of health.—Amaz.

GRAND MASONIC FETE IN DUBLIN.

We extract the following account from the Dublin Evening Mail:—

On Monday, 20th inst., in the Exhibition Palace the Masonic body, which is conspicuous for its good works, held the annual festival for the distribution of prizes to the children of deceased brethren distinguished for their answering at the recent examination in the Masonic Schools. The occasion is always one for the display of Masonic strength and influence, as it is of Masonic charity. At no other demonstration in the annual round of Dublin gatherings is there such a representative assemblage of Irish society. Men eminent in the learned professions and in mercantile pursuits, representative men of all classes that consolidate society, ensure the stability of good order, and the promotion of social virtues, appear in Masonic panoply. Then there is in addition an array of Irish beauty outnumbering the "brethren of the mystic tie," though the sex is denied admission to the Craft. The Deputy Grand Master, Bro. R. W. Shekleton, G.C., presided. As the Institution for Girls was the first founded, the demonstration is still in name associated with it, while prizes are, at the same time, distributed to the boys. At present there are forty girls in the school, and there not being accommodation for a greater number, the committee are in treaty for a site on the Earl of Pembroke's estate at Donnybrook. The new school will be constructed to accommodate at least sixty. In the report an encouraging account is given.

At half-past eight o'clock a procession of officers and members of the Order was formed in the transept, and proceeded along the platform to the orchestra. Those who composed this procession were attired in full Masonic costume, with the appropriate insignia of the several degrees of Blue, Red, and Black Masonry:—

As they reached the orchestra the brethren filed off according to their lodges, and took the places pointed out to them by the platform stewards.

During the progress of the procession to the orchestra the strains of the "Victory" march, composed by Mr. Joseph Robinson, pealed from the organ.

The following officers of Grand Lodge were present:—Robert W. Shekleton, G.C., Deputy Grand Master; Robert Warren, D.L., Grand Treasurer; the Rev. John James MacSorley; Alderman Joseph Manning, J.P., Senior Grand Deacon; Theophilus E. St. George, Junior Grand Deacon; George A. Stephens, J.P., Grand Superintendent of Works; George Meyers, LL.D. J.P., Grand Director of Ceremonies; Humphrey Minchin, M.B., Grand Sword Bearer; Charles Ogilvie Grandison, Grand Organist; Jas. Creed Meredith, LL.D., Grand Inner Guard; Samuel B. Oldham, Deputy Grand Secretary and Treasurer; Archibald St. George, Assistant Secretary.

A most brilliant and distinguished company assembled, whose names would fill a column of the Freemason.

The Right Worshipful R. W. Shekleton, G.C., Deputy Grand Master, having taken the chair,

A salute to the Grand Master, his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, was called for and given according to ancient usage.

A portion of the 100th Psalm having been sung,

The Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. R. W. Shekleton, G.C., said he had been requested by the Grand Master to express his deep regret that he was unable to preside over them that night. He was unfortunately obliged to remain abroad a considerable time, in consequence of the illness of his wife, and since his return to England he had been obliged to remain in London in consequence of important Parliamentary duties. He had stated to him (Bro. Shekleton) that his wishes were to be present with them that night, as he was not able to be with them on the last occasion. He was sure they would all accept his excuse. Perhaps some of the visitors there might not be aware of the objects of their institution and what they were; and as the acting head at present in Ireland, they would excuse him if he gave them in a few words the meaning of these charities. They were supported by the voluntary contributions of the brethren—they were managed by boards of governors, and as the Girls' School was the oldest established, and he confessed, the one in which he took the greatest interest, he would give it the place of honour. It was managed as he had told them, by a Board of Governors, who delegated their duties to certain committees. Amongst others they had a ladies' committee, who endeavoured, as far as they could, to look after the maternal wants of the institution. Ex-officio, he was the chairman of all the committees, but he need not say that, as he did not understand the difference in articles of ladies dress, or what the difference was between poul de soie and tulle illusion, which he saw sometimes mentioned in the newspapers, he did not know what it was all about (laughter), so he would confess he did not know much about the proceedings of the ladies' committee; but he did know something about the proceedings of the education committee. If they wanted proofs of their work they had them in the education of the girls. Of course, coming, as the girls did, from the better classes, they were never allowed to look for any menial occupation. They tried to develop among them the means of self-support. They excluded altogether from their ideas the fact that the schools were charities. (Hear, hear.) They looked upon them as Masonic duties devolving on them as members of the Masonic body. (Hear, hear.) They tried to discover amongst the girls their capabilities for different branches of study. They were trained to support themselves as soon as possible, but in no instance did they allow any child to go out of the institution unless they were thoroughly satisfied that the place she was going to was in every way fitting for her. (Hear.) They then had the Financial Committee, which looked after the resources of the institution, and, as the report showed, they had discharged their duties faithfully and well. (Hear, hear.)

hear.) They had also an Apprentice Committee whose duty it was to inquire into the character and fitness of any person desiring to have one of the pupils as an apprentice. With regard to the Boys' School it was managed in a similar way. They did not allow any of the boys either to go into a menial position, as they sprang, as he had told them, from a better class. These few details, he thought might be interesting to some of the visitors, who might not be aware of how the Institutions were carried on. (Applause.)

Bro. Chaworth Ferguson then read the report as follows: "The receipts for the year (exclusive of balance from last year), amounted to £3318 8s. 1d., showing an increase of £601 5s. 8d., includes three items which may be considered as exceptional, viz., Nagle Memorial Prize Fund, £100; bequests, £300; interest accumulated on Browne's bequest of £200, £88. The increase in the ordinary revenue of the institution for the year may therefore be stated as £113 5s. 8d., and arises mainly under the head of "Permanent Official Governorships." The expenses of the establishment for the year amounted to £2609 17s. 2d; a sum of £2075 15s. 3d. has been invested in the purchase of £2000 India 4 per cent Stock; and £148 has been laid out on building a new front wall on the plot adjoining the school, which was purchased last year. The cash balance to credit at 31st December, 1877, was £65 17s. 8d., and the Stock balances amount to £11,441 13s. 7d. During the year thirteen girls have left the school; of these three have been sent to schools on the Continent, and two to schools in England to complete their education, with a view to better fitting them to become governesses; three have obtained situations in business establishments; one accepted a situation as housekeeper in a school, and the other four have returned to their friends. Eight new pupils have been elected during the year. The total number of girls in the school, including the pupil teacher, is forty. The health of the pupils during the year has been good. Anything to the contrary has arisen from ordinary colds or constitutional delicacy; there has been no epidemic. Negotiations are in progress for a suitable site whereon to build a school for the accommodation of a larger number of girls than we have hitherto been able to receive. Plans for the building are in course of preparation by your architect. A very considerable expenditure must necessarily be incurred, as well for such building and its furniture, as the annual support of our enlarged establishment. It is therefore earnestly urged upon our brethren (particularly in the country, whence the majority of our girls have hitherto, and probably will hereafter, come), to make increased exertions, not only by subscribing to the building fund, but by adding to the number of our Annual Governors, thereby securing the prospect of a permanently enlarged annual income for the support of our new school, which we feel assured will be made, through the invariable generosity of the brethren, a fitting memorial of the Masonic Order in Ireland."

Bro. James Spaight, of Limerick, said it was his pleasing duty to propose a formal vote of thanks to those officers who had, by their zeal and energy, contributed so much to the success of the schools, in which all present seemed to take so deep an interest. The resolution spoke for itself. It was—

"That the report now read be approved, and that the thanks of this meeting are due to the members of the several committees of the institution, and also to the medical officers of the school for the zealous and efficient manner in which they have discharged the duties devolving on them, and the deep interest they manifest in everything conducing to the prosperity and progress of the Masonic Female Orphan Schools." These statements were in themselves so full and so complete that it hardly needed any words from him to commend the resolution to the audience to ensure their cordial and favourable reception of it. It was somewhat unaccountable to him, and he had no doubt it also appeared a little unaccountable to many of them, that he, an unknown stranger, from a remote province, should be placed in so prominent a position there that night, while there were many around him far better qualified to discharge the duty imposed on him, and who were more worthy of the great distinction that had been conferred on him. He could only attribute it to a desire on their part to show that ubiquity was one of the characteristics of their Order, and obedience of its rules. In a word, he came from the province of Munster, which he had the honour to represent, and he might there state, and if necessary prove, that the principle of Freemasonry lived, aye, flourished nearly as vigorously in the wilds of the West as they did in the cultivated civilization of the metropolis. The first question that naturally would present itself to any one looking from that platform on the grand imposing spectacle before him, was to ask what had brought such a vast concourse of the rank and wealth of the great city together; it was not curiosity, but it could not be a vain desire to penetrate forbidden secrets. They could not hold out to them eloquent appeals, or the gay scenes and inducements which had often filled these large halls. He believed the force that brought that vast concourse together was moved by motives that were as high and as noble as any that could actuate the human breast. He believed it was the homage paid by philanthropy and virtue to active and practical benevolence. It was there they could offer a triumphant answer to the scoffer or the sceptic, who would ask what was the object of Freemasonry? Here they could point to it in the objects of their fraternal love; here they could point to a noble duty bringing hope and relief to places where all had been dark despair. Count the many happy faces of those children before them, and they would know the number of desolated homes that had been brightened by Masonic love. Amongst them they would find many who had acknowledged, and acknowledged with gratitude, the sympathy and comfort the Order had afforded them. It was their Masonic duty; it had smoothed the pillow of many a dying brother, and brought comfort and happiness to the afflicted widow and orphan. The evidence given by the people of this great city that night was most cheering to those who undertook the duty and responsibility of conducting these schools. He believed those who would follow him would adduce to them many reasons which he had not had time to state, or, probably, which they would not listen to, why they continued to take such a deep interest in that favoured institution. There was but one dark spot, which he would venture to point out to them, in the bright future presented to them. He thought it was not consistent with the position which their order had assumed, and the great strides which it had recently made, that an order which embraced in its fraternal links the prince, and peer, and peasant, should close the doors of its sanctuary against any worthy applicant. He trusted, and he hoped and believed from what he saw there that night, that the day was not far distant when the sanctuary would be opened wide to the destitute children of their worthy brethren who came to seek its shelter, and that they would not be obliged, as they were now, to turn poor applicants away from the door to buffet the cruel blows of a cold unsympathising world.

Bro. Hugh Holmes, Q.C., in seconding the resolution, said he need hardly say that he had the greatest pleasure in doing so. He said he could not help feeling a little diffidence and hesitation in rising to speak on a Masonic subject in presence of many who bore and had borne the highest offices, and who had received the highest honours which it was in the power of the Order to bestow. As far as the resolution was concerned it was not necessary for either the proposer or the seconder to say much. He believed there was not a person in the audience who did not know something of the Masonic Schools. He thought he might venture to say that there was not a person there who had ever heard anything said against them. One charge, and one charge alone was made, and that was that there is not placed in the hands of the committee a sufficiency of funds to enable them year by year to increase the number of pupils; but a complaint of this kind, so far from being actuated by hostility, was prompted by a friendly spirit, and should act as an incentive to all to increase the usefulness of the schools. But it might not be amiss to say a few words about Masonry itself on that occasion, when there were many present who were not Freemasons, and very many who were never likely to have the slightest chance of being Freemasons. Freemasonry resembled Operative Masonry in this—that up to the present time it was confined to the rougher and less graceful sex; and, although in an age like this they could not tell what change might occur, it was scarcely likely that within any reasonable time there would be such a revolution in the state of the Order that they should receive within their ranks the fairer portion of their audience. In addressing an audience like that on Freemasonry there was some difficulty, for one was in danger of saying either too little or too much. One might say a word to remove certain misconceptions that prevailed against the Order. He did not refer alone to actual honest misconceptions, but he was afraid he must add to wilful misrepresentations they sometimes heard of the Order. It had been said even in this country, and in no very doubtful terms, that there was something in the principles of Freemasonry that was wrong and vicious—that it was inconsistent with the due performance of the duties of a pious Christian and a loyal citizen, and that any man with a proper respect for his virtue and honesty ought to separate himself from such a body. He would say to any man who entertained that opinion honestly, let him form his opinion of them of what they were in their lodges, by what they found them in the open world, let them judge of their secret conclave by their public acts. Did they find that because a man was a Mason he was less charitable, less truthful, less honourable, less loyal, less obedient to the law? Was it possible that men who had attained the highest position in the State—men belonging to families in which virtue and honour had been a heritage, would associate themselves with a society of the kind represented. He did not claim for the Masonic body exceptional virtues; but he would say boldly and fearlessly on their behalf, that they were not stained by exceptional vices. And if it was demoralising, as it was sometimes represented to be, he could not understand how it was that they had been so wonderfully successful in concealing from the world the fruits that would naturally follow. (Hear, hear.) He would also say a word about misconception of a different character. There were some people perhaps in the audience who would say they had no objection to Masons or to Freemasonry, and who would say there was nothing wrong in it, but at the same time there was not much good in it; that the Masons met together at stated times for no very earnest purpose; that they wore jewels and insignia, and indulged in certain harmless forms and ceremonies, but there was nothing real or earnest in the body. Now, he would ask the man who had such an idea this question—Was it not true that, without referring to the traditions of the Order, Freemasons had existed for centuries, and were to be found in every country and every clime; that at the present moment they were to be found in every part of the globe—was it in accordance with history or experience that such a society had nothing in it, and was merely a ceremonial uninformed by any active or earnest vitality? It would be contrary to experience, and he especially denied it in connection with Freemasons. It would, perhaps, be difficult for an audience like that to understand what Freemasonry is, but he could tell them this, that Masons, being bound together by the common tie of humanity, would teach, and would learn, as far as each was himself concerned, that the union that exists amongst them should be not merely nominal but real; and they should join with each other in sympathy and mutual help, and that, in short, in the word "brotherhood" they had the key of all Freemasonry. The period in which they now lived happened to be a prosperous one for the Order. They had first, him who would by-and-bye be their sovereign; they had the noblest in rank in the Order; and, what was, perhaps, still better, the principles of Freemasonry were extending amongst the toiling classes, who by their honest and daily labour had done so much to make and keep the country great. That, of course, was a subject of pleasure to every true Mason, but they should remember that while they should rejoice at their prosperity, it entailed on them a great responsibility—they would endeavour to see that Masonry was not to be a form or name—that while they attended to the ceremonial of the institution in a dignified and becoming manner, they were also bound to make its principles a real earnestness and life. If they did this it would soon be realised that in the extension and increase of a body which teaches those principles—to be mutually forbearing, to be noble in thought, to be honourable in conduct, to be loyal to the Government, to be obedient to the law, to be lovers and cultivators of the art of peace, and yet not shrink from those warlike undertakings by which real peace alone can be secured, it would soon be recognised that in the extension and progress of a body of this kind there was the surest guarantee for the strength and safety of the State.

Bro. Captain King Harman, M.P., said the resolution which had been put into his hands was one most suitable to the occasion. It was this:—

"That while acknowledging with gratitude the liberal support and friendliness with which the institution has hitherto been favoured, the governors would earnestly invite the co-operation of the brethren in order to still further extend its usefulness." He would not detain the meeting long in commending that resolution to their acceptance, for it embraced in a few words as much, perhaps, as he would be able to convey in half-an-hour. He would add one word to the resolution, and that was to ask the ladies in the hall and the ladies of Dublin, and the ladies of this charitable island of Ireland, to come forward and help them in the maintenance of the orphans of their Masonic brethren. What could touch their hearts and stir their feelings, and keep them as closely together in the bonds of humanity and Christianity, as the sight of the orphans of their fellow countrymen. They did not ask them for charity, they asked for sympathy and help, and to give their contributions, and encourage their husbands, their sons, brothers, and friends to come to the assistance of the orphan. Standing there he had one regret, and that was that the children he saw around him were so few. Could it be said in this great country of this great brotherhood that they would not look after their own orphans? It was only a little they asked for, and that little given promptly might save suffering in future years.

Bro. M'Mullen, of Cork, seconded the motion, which was unanimously adopted.

A selection of music was performed by the pupils, the National Anthem was then sung, after which the procession was reformed and moved from the concert-room to a dais in the Glass Building, where the pupils were presented with their prizes and certificates as follows:—

The Fienell Prize, value £3, for the best answer in Scripture and English, founded by a donation from lodge No. 248, Roscommon, in memory of Bro. John Fienell, Past Master of that lodge—Francis Smith. Gertrude Gill having obtained the highest number of marks in the examination receives a certificate, but having won the prize last year is disqualified to receive it again.

The Astley Prizes, founded in memory of the late Charles D. Astley, Grand Superintendent of Works, consist of two divisions, two prizes being given in each division—1st division, English (spelling, reading, writing, and arithmetic)—1st prize (£2), Gertrude Gill; 2nd prize (£1), Francis Smith. 2nd division, French—1st prize (£1 15s), Francis Smith; 2nd prize (15s), Gertrude Gill.

The Nagle Prizes, founded by the brethren of Lodge No. 242, Boyle, in memory of the late Bro. James Roche Nagle, M.D., to be awarded to the girls in the first and second classes who in the result of the examinations show the highest general proficiency—1. Class (value £3), Gertrude Gill; 2. Class (value £2), Sophia Fenton.

Good Conduct Medals, presented by Bro. Samuel B. Oldham, Deputy Grand Secretary, awarded by the votes of the pupils themselves—Silver Medal, Jane Crymble; Bronze Medal, Henrietta Richards. The general prizes are:—Class I.—Grace Harte, 1st in history, 2nd in grammar, geography, and drawing; special prize in needlework; 2nd in practice of music. Butler, 1st in English. Luara Bradburne, 2nd in writing; 1st in scripture. Florence Anketell, 2nd in scripture. Catherine Johnson, 1st in arithmetic, Mabel Barnwell, and in needlework.

A promenade then took place throughout the building, and more especially the gallery containing the splendid collection of pictures known as the Murrel, the leading items of which are so deserving of study. We cannot better conclude our account of the proceedings than by suggesting that a Masonic ball should be held during the meeting of the British Association in Dublin next August. Former Masonic balls in Dublin have been splendid successes, and there is every reason to anticipate that one at the time indicated would rival the best. It would also afford an admirable opportunity for augmenting the building fund for the new schools.

PUBLIC HALLS AT ROTHESAY.

The memorial stone of the new Public Halls in course of erection in East Princes-street, by ex-Provost Charles Duncan, was laid on Saturday, 15th inst., with Masonic ceremony, by Bro. Charles Dalrymple, Esq., M.P., Prov. Grand Master of Argyle and the Isles. The weather was wet, which had a somewhat depressing effect on the proceedings. Notwithstanding the weather, a very large number of visitors thronged the town, and the procession was both imposing and attractive.

Ex-Provost Charles Duncan received at the Town Clerk's Office, County Buildings, the magistrates and councillors of the burgh, and others invited joined in the procession, at 1.30 o'clock p.m. The gentlemen in procession, who wore their official robes and uniforms, proceeded to the front walk at the west end of the Victoria Street Esplanade, when the Provincial Grand Marshal, Alexander Duncan, Esq., arranged the procession, viz.:

The following lodges were represented by deputation or individual members: St. John, St. John's, Newfoundland, 579; Gael, Glasgow, 604; The Calender, Falkirk, 588; Dramatic, Glasgow, 571; St. Vincent, Glasgow, 553; Kildalton, Islay, 552; St. Andrew, Coatbridge, 544; St. Munn, Ardenadam, 496; Kilburne, Cumber, 459; St. John, Busby, 458; Govan Dale, Govan, 437; Neptune, Glasgow, 419; Clyde, Glasgow, 408; Royal Blue, Kilburne, 309; Renfrew County Kilwinning, 370; St. Clair, Glasgow, 362; St. John, Rutherglen, 347; Argyle, Dunoon; St. George, Glasgow, 333; Royal Arch, West Kilbride, 314; St. John, Rothesay, 292; Shamrock and Thistle, Glasgow, 275; Star, Glasgow, 219; Commercial, Oban, 180; St. John, Largs, 173; Leven, St. John, Renton, 170; St. Barchan, Kilbarchan, 150; St. Mirren, Paisley, 129; St. Mary Patrick, 117; Fortrose, Stornoway, 108; Union and Crown, Glasgow, 103; Thistle and Rose, Glasgow, 73; Doric Kilwinning, Port-Glasgow, 68; Loudoun Kilwinning, Newmills, 51; St. John, Inveraray, 50; St. Mungo, Glasgow, 27; St. John Kilwinning, Dumbarton, 18; Greenock Kilwinning, Greenock, 12; St. John, Glasgow, 31, Provincial Grand Lodge of Argyle and the Isles.

On arriving at the platform the Architect was the first of the Masonic procession who walked up to it on the East; and, the Provincial Grand Chaplain; and, the Provincial Grand Jeweller, Provincial Grand Deacons, Provincial Grand Secretary, Provincial Grand Treasurer, Provincial Grand Wardens and Substitute; the Provincial Grand Master and Deputy Provincial Grand Master, followed by the brethren attendant. All gave way to the Provincial Grand Master when on the platform, and the Substitute took the right of the Provincial Grand Master. The Grand Jewels, &c., were laid on the Provincial Grand Master's table.

A handsome silver trowel was presented to the Provincial Grand Master by ex-Provost C. Duncan.

After the performance of the ceremonies customary on such occasions, the Prov. Grand Master addressed the assemblage. Three cheers were given for the Prov. Grand Master for the efficient way in which he had discharged his duties.

The procession then returned in inverted order by Bishop-street and Castle-street to the place from which it set out, when the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed.

After the ceremony a select company sat down to a cake and wine banquet purveyed in the well-known excellent style of Mr. Wilson. Ex-Provost Charles Duncan occupied the chair, and was supported on the right by Charles Dalrymple, Esq., M.P., Rev. H. H. Richardson, Millport, and John T. Wilson, town clerk; and on the left by Thomas Russell, Esq., of Ascog, Rev. J. F. Macpherson, and Captain Heron. Provost Orkney discharged the duties of croupier, and he was supported by A. B. Stewart, Esq., Sheriff Orr, Bailie M'Kew, and John Eaton Reid, Millport. The company included all the leading inhabitants and representatives of the different bodies in town and country.

The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were duly proposed by the Chairman, and responded to.

Bro. Gavin Park entertained a number of the brethren to dinner in the Queen's Hotel.

THE SAILING BARGE MATCH AND THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

At the sailing barge match on Tuesday last, the steamer "Queen of the Orwell" was chartered to "accompany the race." Among the charterers were a large number of Masons, and it was resolved to devote the surplus from the sale of tickets over the expenses for the benefit of the Masonic Institutions. We are informed that about forty guineas is the amount available for the purpose.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The marriage of Bro. Lord Charles Beresford, M.P., P.G.S.W. Devon, second son of John, fourth Marquis of Waterford and brother of the present peer, with Miss Mina Gardner, eldest daughter of Mrs. Gardner and the late Mr. Richard Gardner, was celebrated on Tuesday last at St. Peter's Church, Ebury-square, The Prince of Wales, attended by Colonel Ellis, and the Prince Imperial, attended by the Marquis de Basano, were present at the ceremony. The bride was accompanied to the altar by six bridesmaids—namely, the Hon. Evelyn and Miss Violet Paget, Miss Margaret Cadogan, Miss Wemyss, Miss Leslie and Miss White. His Grace the Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of all Ire and officiated. After the ceremony the wedding party and friends bre-kfasted, at the invitation of the Marquis and Marchioness of Waterford, in Charles-street St. James's. Early in the afternoon the newly married pair left for Down-place, Windsor. The bridal presents includes gifts from the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the Captain and officers of her Majesty's ship Thunderer, of which his Lordship is the Commander.

The Approaching Marriage of Bro. H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, P.G.S.W.—Prince Frederick Charles and the Princess Louise Margaret arrived at Windsor Castle on Tuesday afternoon. Accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, their Imperial Highnesses crossed the Channel in the Maid of Kent steamer, belonging to the London, Chatham, and Dover Company, landed at the Lord Warren Hotel, and proceeded to Windsor over the Chatham and Dover and South Western lines, arriving at 4.20. Prince and Princess Christian and Princess Beatrice met the distinguished party at the Royal waiting rooms at Windsor. In the evening their Imperial Highnesses dined with the Queen and Royal family at the Palace, and slept at the Castle, where they will remain for a short time as the guests of Her Majesty.

A Grand Masonic Concert was given at the Corn Exchange Oxford on Tuesday, at which nearly 500 ladies and gentlemen were present.

Bro. W. G. Lemon (P.M. 165, P.Z. 414, Prov. G. Reg. (Royal Arch) Berks and Bucks, Treasurer 1601, 187), of New-square, Lincoln's Inn, is a candidate for the office of Cuy Remembrancer.

HIGHGATE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1366.—The ceremony of installation will be worked in the above lodge, Bull and Gate Tavern, Kenish Town-road, on Thursday next, July 4th, at eight o'clock. Bro. H. C. Soper, W.M. 704, will be the Installing Master.

A meeting of Mark Master Masons was held at Cockermouth on Friday, the 21st inst., when it was resolved to petition Grand Lodge for a warrant to open a Mark Lodge. The title fixed upon was the Faithful, in memory of a late Cockermouth brother, and the respective W.M., S.W., and J.W., will be Bros. W. F. Lamouby (Freemason), R. Robinson, and W. H. Lewthwaite, all Past Masters of the Skiddaw (Cr-ft) Lodge, 1002.

The installation of Bro. James Winsor, F.M. 203, as the W.M. of the Merchants Lodge, No. 241, took place at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, last Tuesday morning, and the brethren afterwards journeyed to Southport, where a sumptuous banquet was served at the Prince of Wales Hotel. A report of the installation proceedings of the premier lodge of West Lancashire will appear in our next issue. The brethren of the Downshire Lodge also gathered at the same place on Thursday morning for the purpose of installing Bro. Houghton, as the W.M. for the ensuing year, and we will next week give a resumé of the proceedings.

A contemporary is asked to state that the Baroness Burdett-Coutts has desired the secretary to withdraw her name from the Ladies' Sanitary Association.

At the Royal Counties Agricultural Show, which was opened on Tuesday at Southampton, the Queen, who sent both from the Osborne and Windsor farms, took the first prize for Herefords.

Masonic Libraries of considerable size now exist in London, Leicester, Snettfield and Hull. That in London of the Supreme Council, is one of the finest in the World.—Keystone (Philadelphia).

It has been decided to continue the ceremonial opening of the Castle Art Museum, on the occasion of the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Nottingham, on July 3rd, as arranged by the late Mayor.

We are asked to state for the information of our readers that the meetings of the Peace and Harmony Lodge, No. 60, will in future be held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire will be held at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, under the banner of the Wentworth Lodge, No. 1139, on Wednesday, July 24th.

From April 1 to the 22nd inst. the Exchequer receipts amounted to £17,429,041, as compared with £17,729,006 in the corresponding period of last year. The expenditure has been £17,315,673.

On Tuesday evening the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress, according to annual custom, gave a ball at the Mansion House in honour of the Mayors and Mayoresses of the United Kingdom.

MASONIC SONGS.—A Selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. Philpotts, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—Advt.

A report of the installation of Bro. H. Gloster as W.M. of the Chichester Lodge No. 1531, will appear in our next.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale will on Wednesday next, July 10th, undertake the ceremony of launching the "Albert Edward" Lifeboat, at Clacton-on-Sea. This boat is one of the two presented by Grand Lodge, to commemorate the safe return of the M.W.G.M. from India. It is expected that a large number of brethren will be present. Extra trains will run, and a special excursion by the steam yacht "Queen of the Thames," is announced. Full particulars as to time of starting, &c., will be found in our advertisement columns.

Mr. George Smith left in an almost complete state the History of Sennacherib (in the same style as the well-known History of Assur-banipal), with the cuneiform texts transliterated and translated. All that was wanting was the last twenty pages, which have been supplied by the editor, Mr. Sayce. The book is being published at the expense of the late Mr. Bosanquet, and will be out shortly.—Athenaeum.

At a meeting of the board of delegates of the Hospital Saturday Fund, the following officers were elected for the current year: Mr. Samuel Morley, M.P., President; Mr. Hamilton N. Hoare, Treas.; Mr. John Hughes, C.C., Chairman of Council; Messrs. C. Bray and A. Comrie, Vice-Chairmen of Council; Messrs. J. Barlow, Robert Frewer, A. W. Mackenzie, and J. Minor, Hon. Secs.

Bro. Morris Abrahams, of the Pavilion and East London Theatres, has been presented with a handsome testimonial, consisting in all of 700 ounces of silver, as a mark of esteem for the manner in which he has promoted labour among the working classes of the East-end and for the good he has done to the local and other charities.

Referring to the approaching marriage of the Earl of Lonsdale with Lady Gladys Herbert, which is, we believe, definitely fixed for the 6th prox., we understand that Mr. Henry Lewis, the artistic jeweller, of 71 New Bond-street, has received instructions from his lordship for the design and manufacture of the entire bridal ornaments, viz., those which are to constitute no small portion of the Earl's wedding gift to his future countess, and those to be worn by the bridesmaids. This is not surprising when it is known that at many of the fashionable marriages which have taken place this season, most of the jewelled presents were the production of Mr. Lewis, who has acquired a very high reputation for the excellence and general beauty of his designs. Mr. Lewis, with a wise and discreet combination of good taste and originality, has introduced some charming novelties in the shape of brooches, sprays for the hair, and other ornaments, which are intended to vary the locket, which it has long been the custom with bridegrooms to present to the bridesmaids in commemoration of the happy event at which they lent their graceful presence and genial smiles.

Bro. Faithfull, M.A., who is well known as Clerk to the Merchant Taylors' Company (an office which he has held during the last eight years), was previously engaged in the War Office, during which time he was successively Assistant Private Secretary to Sir John Pakington (Lord Hampton), when Secretary of State for War, Private Secretary to Lord Northbrook when under secretary of State. Bro. Faithfull is a member of the Bayard Lodge, No. 1615.

Mr. J. H. Steward informs us (Globe) that the heat on Wednesday reached the extraordinary height of 91 degrees in the shade—doubtless the highest on record.

The grand fete given by the Apollo University Lodge on Wednesday, in the gardens of St. John's College, Oxford, was attended by a numerous and fashionable company. The enjoyment was, however, considerably marred by a very heavy thunderstorm.

Owing to the death of Her Majesty the Queen of Spain, Her Majesty's concert, fixed for July 5th, will not take place.

Reports of Lodges 667, 1662, and Instruction 724 stand over.

Among the various candidates for the office of City Remembrancer is Bro. Macrae Moir, P.M. of the Grenadiers' Lodge, No. 66. Bro. Moir was called to the Bar in 1864, and has practiced his profession in the superior courts and at Guildhall regularly since. He has frequently had the honour of sitting as Deputy Judge in the Lord Mayor's Court, on the nomination of the late Recorder, Mr. Russell Gurney.

A meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Province of Surrey will be held on Tuesday the 16th July, at the Public Hall, Dorking, at one o'clock punctually.

A bronze statue of Captain Cook, the navigator, has been placed on a temporary pedestal in Waterloo-place, opposite the Athenaeum Club. It has been executed for the New South Wales Government, and is to remain in its present position for two months.

ORDER OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM.—On Monday, being St. John the Baptist's Day, the Knights of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem held their annual meeting at the Chapter House, St. John's Gate. A service had been previously held at the Chapel Royal Savoy, when the sermon was preached by the Rev. E. J. Beck, sector of Rotherhithe. The Duke of Manchester presided at the meeting, amongst those present being the Earl of Glasgow, Lord Leigh, Sir E. Lechmere, M.P., Colonel Bourne, M.P., Sir Brook Kay, Sir J. St. George, Sir H. C. D'Aubiney, General Lowry, Colonel Weston, &c. Major F. Duncan, R.A., LL.D., brought up an elaborate report on the Ambulance Department of the Order, stating that by means of the instruction gratuitously afforded by that body at least 1100 men and women had become skilled in the treatment of injured persons. In case of a war in which England might be engaged they had also 102 men and women who had registered their names with the Order as prepared to go abroad at any moment in the capacity of skilled nurses.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

ROCHFORD.—Lodge of True Friendship (No. 160).—The annual festival of this ancient lodge was held at the Old Ship Hotel, on Tuesday, 25th ult. Bro. F. Tillings, W.M., opened the lodge, assisted by his officers, and afterwards raised Bro. J. K. Frostick to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. Bro. A. Lucking, P.M. 160, P.M. and P.Z. 1000, Prov. G.D.C., then proceeded to instal Bro. W. Alken, S.W. and W.M. elect, as the W.M. for the ensuing year, who appointed and invested the following as his officers, viz.: Bro. F. Tillings, I.P.M.; G. F. Jones, S.D. 1000, S.W.; J. C. Johnstone, J.W. 1000, J.W.; H. Wood, P.M., P.P.G.O. (re-elected), Treas.; G. Burgess, P.M., P.P.G.D. (re-appointed), Sec.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, P.M., P.P.G. Chap.; A. Lucking, P.M., &c. (re-appointed), D.C.; H. Harper, S.D.; B. Johnstone, J.D.; W. Hey, I.G.; W. D. Merritt and W. Willson, Stewards; A. Martin, Tyler. There were also present Bros. W. Allen, P.M., P.P.A.G.D.C.; J. A. Wardell, P.M. 160, P.M., M.E.Z., and Sec. 1000, P.P.G.D.; D. B. Grout, P.M., P.P.G.D.; J. Allen, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. C. Underwood; J. F. Harrington; G. Goodman; N. Bishop; H. D. Brown; O. Bentall; Z. Pettitt; W. Newsome; W. Kilpin; Visitors: Bros. Green, P.M. and Sec. 1024, P.P.G.W.; Humphreys, W. M. 1024; and Daniels. A vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Lucking for the able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. After the lodge was closed the brethren partook of an excellent banquet. Between the toasts some excellent songs were given by Bros. Hatch, Newsome, J. Allen, &c. Bro. Daniels also enlivened the proceedings with some vocal and instrumental music. The Tyler's toast brought a very successful and enjoyable evening to a close.

LEICESTER.—John of Gaunt Lodge (No. 523).—The annual festival of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, June 25th, at which there was a large attendance of brethren. The lodge having been opened, and the regular formalities gone through, Bro. Richard Taylor was duly installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, by Bro. T. A. Wykes (Prov. G. Treasurer, and the retiring W.M.), who performed the ceremony in a very able manner. The following officers were appointed by the W.M., viz.: Bro. T. A. Wykes, I.P.M.; Geo. Odell, S.W.; Jos. Young, J.W.; W. Beaumont Smith, P.M., &c., Treasurer; Edgar Taylor, Secretary; R. J. Clarke, S.D.; T. R. Pickering, J.D.; Henry Meadows, D. of C.; C. E. Willoughby, Org.; T. M. Quinn, I.G.; William Sculthorpe, P.M., &c.; and William Bream, Stewards; F. Dunn and J. Tawzer, Tylers. This done, the usual routine business was transacted, and various cases of distressed brethren were brought before the lodge, and relieved. "Hearty good wishes" were received from numerous visitors, and the lodge was adjourned till the third Thursday in September. Afterwards the members of the Craft sat down to a banquet, excellently provided by the Stewards, and presided over by the W.M. The customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given and honoured with enthusiasm, and the evening's enjoyment was contributed to by various musical brethren. There were present Bros. Wm. Kelly, P.M., P.P.G.M.; Geo. Toller, jun., P.M., P.G.S. of Eng.; S. S. Partridge, P.M., Prov. G. Secretary; J. T. Thorp, P.M., &c.; W. T. Rowlett, P.M., &c.; G. J. Baines, P.M., &c.; A. M. Duff, P.M.; T. Worthington, P.M. 50, &c.; John Hunt, W.M. 1560, &c., together with many other members of the lodge. Among the visitors were Bros. Rev. W. Langley, P.M. 50 and 1130, &c.; C. E. Streton, P.M. 279, &c.; G. W. Statham, W.M. 279; W. F. Ellis, W.M. 432; F. Grant, W.M. 1330; M. H. Lewin, I.P.M. 1330; H. James, P.M. 1007, &c.; W. Vial, W.M. 1007, &c.; R. A. Barber, P.M. 279, &c.; J. M. McAllister, P.M. 279, &c., and several others.

THIRSK.—Falcon Lodge (No. 1416).—On Thursday, June 20th, the members of this lodge, accompanied by the Worshipful Master (Bro. George Ayre), and many lady friends, enjoyed their annual picnic, and visited Wharfedale. The day, exceptional this season, was all that could be desired, and the neighbourhood displayed its sylvan charms to the greatest advantage. On arriving at Ilkley Station, waggons were in readiness to convey the party to Bolton Woods, where an abundant luncheon was soon spread under the shaded bank near the Strid. Here an interesting incident occurred, which contributed much to the enjoyment of all. A large party of the Blackburn Choral Society, organised by Bro. N. Jones, and consisting of between fifty and sixty ladies and gentlemen, had made a similar excursion, and as they included many Freemasons, the brethren of the Felicity, Perseverance, Falcon, Lion, and Anchor Lodges soon fraternised, meeting together unexpectedly from the east and the west, and the woods echoed with the harmonious melody of glees and patriotic songs. The party visited the beautiful ruins of Bolton Priory, whence they resumed their journey to Ilkley, by the romantic drive through Beamsley, &c., arrangements having been made for dinner at the spacious and elegant Middleton Hotel, at Ilkley. After doing justice to the viands, which fully sustained Bro. Bentley's reputation, and wandering along the beautiful terraces of this recently erected and exquisitely situated hotel, the party returned home, highly delighted with their day's enjoyment. Great praise is due to the Secretary, Bro. J. Johnstone, for his complete arrangements.

CHISLEHURST.—Chislehurst Lodge (No. 1531).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Bull's Head Hotel, on Saturday afternoon last, and passed off most harmoniously. The lodge was opened at half-past two by the W.M., Bro. W. Kipps, Prov. G. Organist Kent; and the other officers present were Bro. Guest, I.P.M.; Bro. H. Gloster, W.M. elect, S.W.; J. Mason, J.W.; H. J. Coutts, P.M., P.G.P., Treasurer; W. O. Goldsmith, Sec.; J. Griffin, S.D.; J. J. Hutchings, J. D. Gibson, as I.G.; Hunt, D.C. The preliminary business consisted of the passing of Bros. Albery and Hopper to the Second Degree, and the raising of Bro. Goodall to the degree of M.M., the ceremonies being ably rendered by the W.M. The W.M. then resigned the chair to Bro. Coutts, and Bro. H. Gloster was presented and took the oath of W.M. elect. All below the degree of Installed Master then retired, and Bro. Gloster having been presented to the Board of Masters, was duly installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. He was afterwards duly saluted in the three degrees, and then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bro. W. Kipps, I.P.M.; Mason, S.W.; Griffin, J.W.; Coutts, Treasurer; Goldsmith, Sec.; Hutchings, S.D.; Hunt, J.D.; E. Kipps, I. G.; Hooker, D.C.; Luck, W.S.; Rawles, Tyler. A very handsome set of chairs for the principal officers having been presented to the lodge by Bros. Behenna and Hollis, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to them for [their gift], which was suitably acknowledged. A vote of thanks was also accorded to Bro. Coutts, P.M., the Installing Master, after which the W.M. presented in a few felicitous terms a handsome P.M.'s collar and jewel to Bro. Kipps, the retiring Master, alluding to the services he had rendered since the lodge had been founded and the great interest he always took in everything which related to Masonry. Bro. Kipps acknowledged the compliment, and alluded to the very happy year of office he had had, wishing his successor equal success. It should be added that the Audit Committee's report showed a balance in hand of between £70 and £80, which, considering the lodge had only just entered upon its fourth year of existence, must be considered highly satisfactory. Lodge having been closed, the brethren partook of a most sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. Wain, in his best and most liberal style. The W.M. presided, and in addition to the officers already named, there were present Bros. West, Albery, Hopper, Hooker, Goodall, Seager, Behenna, Luck, Hollis, Samuel Gibson, Tuck, Dana, Ford, Dowsett, and Wain. The visitors were Bros. Speight, P.M. 147; Bishop, 180; Hickman, 188; Ebeidge, W.M. 829; Wyer, W.M. 1314; Iretton, W.M. 1348; and Graham, 1567. The W.M. gave in succession the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft"; "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales"; "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon"; and "The Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present." Bro. Coutts, P.M., in responding to the latter toast, spoke of Lord Skelmersdale's great services to the Craft, and expressed the pleasure with which he (Bro. Coutts) at all times responded to the toast in this lodge. The W.M. next proposed "Lord Holmesdale, the Provincial Grand Master of Kent," which was drunk with all the honours. He then gave "Bro. Eastes, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Kent, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present." In doing so, and in coupling with the toast the name of his immediate predecessor in the chair, Bro. Kipps, Provincial Grand Organist, he took the opportunity of presenting that gentleman with a handsome Prov. Grand Lodge jewel from the members of the Chislehurst Lodge, who wished to convey with it, and by it, their great appreciation of the zeal with which he had served the Craft in the lodge and in the province. Bro. Kipps, in returning thanks, said that although he had not achieved very high office in the province he should always endeavour to do his duty by the lodge. As to Bro. Eastes, all who knew him knew that he was the right man in the right place. He had visited many lodges in the province, and he hoped the day was not far distant when he would come to see them at Chislehurst. He also bore his testimony to the excellent services which had been rendered by the other officers who had been included in the toast. He could not find words sufficient to thank them for the jewel which the W.M. had just pinned on his breast, but as long as he lived he should prize it highly, together with the jewel which he had received earlier in the day in the lodge. It was a most thoughtful present, and although he could not thank them adequately he hoped they would take the will for the deed. Bro. Kipps concluded by proposing the toast of the evening, "The Worshipful Master," observing that Bro. Gloster had been voted to the chair without a dissentient voice. That was a happy state of things on which the Chislehurst Lodge might well congratulate itself, and he hoped the same unanimous feeling would always animate the members. He was certain that in this instance in placing Bro. Gloster in the chair they had done the right thing. The W.M., in response, assured the brethren that he would during his year of office discharge the duties of the chair to the very best of his ability. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. Hickman, Wyer, Speight, and others, all of whom bore warm testimony to the harmonious character of the Chislehurst Lodge, and the ability with which the various officers did their work. The W.M. proposed "The Past Masters of the Chislehurst Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. Kipps, who said that if he had gone through his year of office to the satisfaction of the lodge he was amply repaid for his trouble. He had had a very happy time of it, and his pleasant memories would add gems to the jewels with which he had been presented. Bros. Coutts and Guest having also returned thanks for the Past Masters, the W.M. proposed "The Officers of the Lodge," of whom he expressed himself very proud; and Bros. Mason, S.W.; Hutchings, S.D.; and Hunt, J.D., returned thanks. The next toast, given from the chair in very complimentary terms, was that of "The Treasurer and Secretary." Bro. Coutts, P.M., Treasurer, said that the lodge financially was in a much better state and more prosperous condition than it had been since its establishment. They had a larger number and the expenses were smaller in proportion. He trusted the lodge would go on prospering, and become second to none in the Province of Kent. Bro. Goldsmith, Secretary, regarded it as a great honour to have been re-appointed Secretary of his mother lodge, and assured the brethren of his deep interest in Freemasonry generally, and in this lodge in particular. Bro. Coutts had spoken of their financial condition, and he would only add that during the year they had initiated three new brothers and received four joining members, and had lost only one, by resignation, leaving a net increase of six. The Tyler's toast having been given, the company separated, after a most enjoyable evening.

INSTRUCTION.

LIVERPOOL.—Derby Lodge (No. 724).—The annual meeting of the Derby Lodge of Instruction was held at the Masonic Hall, Hop-street Liverpool, on Monday, 10th inst. Bro. Ballard, Preceptor, occupied the chair. After some formal business the officers for the ensuing year were unanimously re-elected as follows: Bros. Ballard, P.M., Preceptor; H. Trevitt, Treasurer; and Maurice Hart, P.M., Hon. Sec. Afterwards the brethren sat down to a supper, supplied by Bro. Ball. In the course of the evening a very handsome clock and a framed address were presented to Bro. Ballard by Bro. Asher Hart, W.M. 724, on behalf of the members of the Derby Lodge of Instruction, as a mark of the respect and esteem in which Bro. Ballard is held by all who receive instruction at his hands. Bro. Hart, in the course of his speech, said that not only the members of the Derby Lodge received the benefit of instruction at the hands of Bro. Ballard, but also several prominent officers of other lodges, all of whom had testified their appreciation of Bro. Ballard's uniform kindness and ability by contributing heartily towards showing in some manner that Bro. Ballard's teachings had not been lost upon them. Bro. Ballard in replying said that he neither expected nor required any reward for doing his duty. When he undertook the office of Preceptor at the formation of the Lodge of Instruction he, together with the other officers, signified their intention to do their best to further the interest they all had at heart, and his companion officers were equally entitled to a mark of their esteem as himself. He accepted the testimonial as a sign that the instruction he had given had taken root and was flourishing. Bros. M. Hart, S. Henochsberg, Gordon, Trevitt, Rendleton, Becken, and others contributed to the harmony of the evening.

The "National Church" for July states that great scandal has been caused in Lisbon by the discovery that several priests are Freemasons. The Papal Nuncio, it adds, has written to the Pope urging that they shall be removed to a Roman monastery!

Masonic Menu Cards and Masonic Programmes, quite a novelty—nicely finished. A pleasing souvenir of the banquet. A large assortment at the office of this Paper, 198, Fleet-street, London.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF MIDDLESEX AND SURREY.

The annual meeting was held at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on Saturday, the 29th June, and the attendance and proceedings were of the most gratifying nature.

At 2 o'clock the Croydon Mark Lodge, No. 198, was opened by the Prov. Grand Secretary, Bro. W. G. Brighten, after which Bro. H. Lovegrove was balloted for, and was duly advanced, the ceremony being also performed by the Provincial Grand Secretary, on account of the W.M., Bro. Close, having the carrying out of the arrangements at the church. Shortly after 3 o'clock the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened, when there were present: The R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Col. Francis Burdett; the V.W. F. Davison, Deputy Prov. Grand Master; Sir Chas. T. Bright, P.G.S.W.; the Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, P.G. Chaplain; C. Hammeton, P.G. Treasurer; J.M. Klenck, P.G. Registrar; W. G. Brighten, P.G. Secretary; J. Kirk, P.G.M.O.; J. Tomlinson, P.G.S.O.; H. Court, P.G.J.O.; W. Taylor, P.G.S.D.; J. B. Shackleton, Director of Ceremonies; R. Davis, Sword Bearer; J. C. Legg, Standard Bearer; H. A. Pocock, P.G.I.G.; and B. Meyer, J. T. Gibson, A. W. Hume, and A. Clark, Provincial Grand Stewards; and the following Past Provincial Grand Officers, namely, W. Warrell, E. Simpson Baikie, John Close, J. K. Pitt, and F. H. Cozens; and among the numerous visiting brethren present were Bros. W. Foulsham, of the Prov. Grand Mark Lodge of Northumberland; H. C. Levander, Grand Registrar; F. Binckes, Past Grand Warden, and Grand Secretary; C. F. Matier, Past Grand Warden; A. G. Goodall, of New York City; C. Coles, 169; C. A. Solle, Chaplain 286; T. R. Adams, 198; G. Kennedy, Secretary 226; S. Griffiths, 198; W. H. Goodall, 211; J. B. Graham, 211; E. Palmer, 226; H. Shaw, 226; T. W. Simons, 101; E. Whittaker, 139, and H. Massey (Freemason).

The minutes of the previous meeting held at the Town Hall, Twickenham, in July last, were then read and confirmed.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then called off to Divine service at the parish church, where the service (full choral) was kindly conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Canon Hodgson. The sermon was preached by the Prov. Grand Chaplain, the Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, on the text, "I will give unto him that overcometh a white stone," at the close of which the preacher brought to the notice of the hearers the Croydon Provident Clothing Fund, and the offertory realized the sum of £7 6s. 2d. The service throughout was admirably conducted, and great credit is due to the W.M. of the Croydon Lodge, Bro. J. Close, to the Secretary, Bro. H. A. Pocock, and other brethren of the Croydon Lodge for the excellence of the day's arrangements.

On the return from the church, Provincial Grand Lodge was resumed, and then the brethren saluted the Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Master in due form.

An announcement was then received that Bro. A. G. Goodall, the representative of the Mark Masons of the United States, was without, and upon which a deputation of Grand Officers was sent to receive him, and on his entering the lodge he was saluted in due form.

The Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. W. G. Brighten, then called over the roll of lodges, seventeen in number, and reported that every lodge in the province had made its returns and paid its dues with the utmost punctuality, except the Temple Mark Lodge, No. 173.

The report was received with great satisfaction, and then the Provincial Grand Master appointed Bro. F. Davison his Deputy P.G.M.M. for the ensuing year, and the brethren accordingly saluted Bro. Davison in due form, after which the Prov. G.M.M. appointed his officers as follows:

Alfred Clark	Prov. G.S.W.
Major Harding	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. A. W. Hall	Prov. G. Chap.
Rev. W. S. Moses	Prov. G. Chap.

Edwin Gilbert	Prov. G. Stwd.
Claydon Palmer	Prov. G. Stwd.
John Gilbert	Prov. G. Tyler.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer presented his accounts, which, for the first time in the history of the province, showed a balance in hand, and it was moved by the Deputy P.G.M. and seconded by Bro. H. C. Levander, that the thanks of Provincial Grand Lodge be presented to Bro. Hammeton for the efficient manner in which he had performed the duties of Provincial Grand Treasurer. This proposition was carried unanimously.

After some remarks upon the beautiful service of the afternoon and the excellent sermon preached by the Provincial Grand Chaplain, it was moved by the R.W.P. G.M., and seconded by the Deputy P.G.M. that the thanks of Provincial Grand Lodge be presented to Prov. Grand Chaplain for his able and instructive sermon. It was then moved by the Prov. Grand Sec., seconded by Bro. J. M. Klenck, that the thanks of this Provincial Grand Lodge be presented to the vicar for his kindness in placing the parish church at the disposal of Provincial Grand Lodge, and for the beautiful service of the afternoon. Both these propositions were carried unanimously.

Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

In giving "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale, M.W. G.M.M.M.," the Prov. G.M. said, that though it was only a short while ago that the brethren had seen him installed as Grand Master they had known him a long time, and knew that he would perform his duties satisfactorily. He followed a very excellent Grand Master, the Earl of Limerick, but no doubt he would perform his duties as well as his predecessor.

Bro. Binckes, P.G.W., and G.S., replied to the toast of "The Deputy Grand Master, and Grand Officers." He said Mark Masonry had been very fortunate. It had made enormous progress, and had arrived at a position of unquestioned and undoubted success. Mark Masons did not now care to ask for that which they did some years ago, absorption by Grand Lodge of England. It was then looked upon as a great boon. They were now quite able to take care of their own interests, and they knew themselves to be so strong as to be able to indulge in a boast—not a presumptuous boast—that if Grand Lodge was in danger she would find her firmest ally in the Grand Mark Lodge. The principles of Grand Mark Lodge were thoroughly identical, and their sentiments as universal. They ran in parallel lines, and there ought not to be any rivalry between them except to promote the best interests of pure and ancient Freemasonry. The Grand Officers of this degree were as worthy to take honours as they were in any other degree. As regards the progress Mark Masonry made in the province of Middlesex and Surrey, he knew how much Mark Masons were indebted to the genial and kind way in which Col. Burdett had held sway over the province for many years, and he had no hesitation in stating that Mark Masons owed a deep debt of gratitude to Col. Burdett for the progress of Mark Masonry in Middlesex and Surrey. This was a happy reflection for Col. Burdett and for the brethren. Bro. Binckes concluded by saying that the brethren who had not obtained office did not envy those who had, but he advised them to imitate their example and to manifest an honest desire to do what they could to further the interests of Mark Masonry.

Bro. Binckes, in giving "The Health of Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M.M.M." said that Col. Burdett also held in the Craft a high position, as he was the representative at Grand Lodge of England of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter of Ireland. Grand Chapter of Ireland had recognised the Mark Degree, and this was mainly due to what Col. Burdett had done.

The Grand Master, in acknowledging the toast, said it had always been a great gratification to him to find himself among the Mark Masons of Middlesex and Surrey. Bro. Binckes had referred to the duties which he (Colonel Burdett) had performed. Although the office was so responsible a one, he had been so much relieved and assisted by the other officers and the brethren of the province, that those responsibilities had been very much lightened. He was very much pleased to find the province in such a prosperous state, but he could not say it was entirely due to him. He thought it was from the kind feeling of the brethren, and the support they had given him, that the province had progressed so much. For the last two years, although it had been a great anxiety to him, yet for the last year it had not been so great. He found himself still the Provincial Grand Master, a position which any man might be proud of, and he thanked the brethren very much for placing him in that position as well as for the support they had hitherto given him. It was eight years he had held the office, and as long as the brethren chose to continue to have him as their head he should be very happy to hold the office, and he hoped that as long as he did hold the office the province would stand in as good a position as now.

Col. Burdett next gave "The Health of the Visitors," and selected as a respondent Bro. Goodall, U.S.A. He said that while he had been Grand Master he had had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of Bro. Goodall. That brother was in every way calculated to promote the interests of Freemasonry and the good of his fellow creatures. Bro. Goodall would have gone back to America before this, but he had stayed a day or two longer in order to be present at this meeting. He was representative of Grand Mark Lodge in New York and in the United States of America. The brethren knew what he had done out there, that Freemasonry had received great advantages from his exertions. From what he had done, he (Col. Burdett) was sure the brethren would give him a hearty reception.

Bro. Goodall, in reply, said it was now over twelve years since he had first become known among the Fraternity in England, and during that period his visits to the English Freemasons had enabled him to participate with them in their working on occasions similar to the present. On those occasions he had been called upon to reply to toasts. He had, therefore, already exhausted the subject of thanks for the hospitality bestowed upon him. Although the Grand Master had spoken of him as a stranger from a foreign jurisdiction, he really did not feel that he was a stranger. When he had visited England before, the Mark Grand Lodge was looked upon by Grand Lodge of England as a usurper. It was not considered legitimate Masonry; and the Three Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason, together with the Royal Arch, were all that were recognised. At one time that was the only Masonry that was known to America. Grand Mark Lodge of England presumed to say it had a pure and ancient degree of Masonry, and its claim was allowed by the Grand Chapter of America. He was happy to say that on his arrival in London, Bros.

Binckes and Levander paid him the compliment to ask him to come to this Grand Lodge. It was not necessary for him to recapitulate the number of transactions they had been associated in for some time, but he might inform the brethren that they would not let him go until he had visited here. The consequence was he had had to stay in England another week, and it was with feelings of peculiar pleasure he was present at this meeting, because he felt he had accomplished something for the brethren which they had desired. Now that he had done it he was ready to resign his work to those who were more youthful, and who, perhaps, might serve the Order better. He could not hope to be remembered better than he had been, and he was very much flattered by being so remembered. He would mention a circumstance which occurred last year in America. In Lodge Holland, No. 8, one of the oldest in New York, a brother presented to that lodge a lost treasure which he had found—a volume of thirty or forty pages of letter paper of the meetings of a Mark Lodge under the Grand Lodge of Holland, when America was one of the colonies of Great Britain. He supposed this was the most ancient document yet heard of in the Mark Degree. If Mark Grand Lodge of England had not been already established he would have sent that document to it; but it was not necessary. The records of Grand Mark Lodge of England was made, and it could stand forth and say to those who had criticised it in the past, "the stone which the builders rejected is become the corner stone of the jurisdiction in Great Britain."

Col. Burdett next gave "The Health of the Provincial Grand Officers of Middlesex and Surrey."

Bro. Davison, Grand Treasurer, and Deputy Grand Master, replied, and assured the brethren that the province was in a very prosperous state. At one time there had been a deficit on taking the accounts of the year, but now there was always a balance in hand. He was quite sure that under the Provincial Grand Master, and with the zealous assistance of the Grand Officers, the province would continue to prosper.

Bro. Brighten, Prov. Grand Secretary, proposed "The W.M. of the Croydon Lodge, Bro. Close." In giving the toast, Bro. Brighten said that when the province was established eight years ago there were but five Mark lodges in it, whereas at the present time there were eighteen. The Croydon Lodge was the youngest of these.

Bro. Close, W.M. Croydon Lodge, responding, said that although the Croydon Lodge was a small lodge he thought it would soon get into note in Masonry. It was a great pride to its members to find themselves supported by the Provincial Grand Lodge and so many Grand Officers. If there had been anything like laxity in the proceedings he must ask that it might be excused, as the lodge was but young. He, however, had the good fortune to be surrounded by good officers, and it was on this account that the lodge was in such a good position. Before sitting down he would ask the brethren to drink "The Health of the Officers," coupling with the toast the name of the Secretary, Bro. Pocock.

Bro. Pocock responded.

There were several other toasts on the list, but as the hour was getting late they were dispensed with, and the meeting broke up, to give the brethren time to catch the London trains.

Under the direction of Bro. F. H. Cozens a pleasing selection of music was admirably given by himself, and Bros. T. H. Simons and A. Hubbard.

MODERN AND ANCIENT LODGES, RECORDS, &c.

Referring to Bro. Hughan's very interesting article in this month's part of the Masonic Magazine on "Modern and Ancient Lodges," it is rather a coincidence that I was copying one of the very charters mentioned on the day the magazine would be published. I allude to the Royal Cumberland Militia Lodge, the charter of which was discovered some time since in an attic at the Freemasons' Hall, belonging to Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge, No. 119, at Whitehaven. This warrant apparently had been framed, as the parchment had a canvas back, give the particulars, premising that there appears no number, while 215 is the designation in Bro. Hughan's article, and, in addition, the locale on the parchment is Kingston-upon-Hull, instead of Halifax. The warrant bears the signature of the Duke of Atholl, Grand Master; Thomas Harper, D.G.M.; John B. Roach, S.G.W.; Richard Humphreys, J.G.W.; and Robt. Leslie, G. Sec. The first W.M. is Duncan McNicholl; the S.W., William Bowstead and the J.W., William Nelson. The place, as I said before, is "Kingston-upon-Hull, or elsewhere in His Majesty's Royal Regiment of Cumberland Militia, being duly registered pursuant to the statute made, and with the consent of the commanding officer of the said regiment." The date is October 9th, 1807. I am glad to say the relic is to be framed, as it deserves to be.

In Bro. Hughan's article on the Old Bristol Lodge, allusion is made to the phrase "Passed Masters." In looking over the records of Lodge 129, I find this phrase frequently used, and as recently as 1852, where there is an entry of four brethren being "Passed or Installed Masters in the chair," the four last words being underlined in the MS. In 1850 also I find a note that a well-known eminent brother "this evening became a joining member, received his G.L. certificate, and was also raised to the degree of P.M." I have also a copy from the original MS. of the by-laws of the Sun and Sector Lodge, Workington, No. 478, A.D. 1774, which are a credit to the Masons of those days; whilst a perusal of the minutes shows that they were rigidly adhered to.

CONSECRATION OF THE CHAUCER
CHAPTER, No. 1540.

The consecration of a new chapter attached to the Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540, took place on Friday, June 28, at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, in the presence of a number of well-known Arch Masons, amongst whom were Comps. John Hervey, P.Z., Grand Scribe E.; the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.Z.; J. Levander, P.Z.; J. Terry, P.Z.; James Willing, P.Z. 1000 and 1507; G. Brown, P.Z. 1469; Gallant, 813; Barrett, 188; Harmsworth, Richard Giddy, 1574; Batchelor, 325; H. Thompson, 619 (Freemason), and others.

Comps. J. Hervey was the Consecrating Officer, and occupied the chair of M.E.Z.; Levander, H.; and the Rev. A. Woodford, J.; J. Terry, Director of Ceremonies.

The chapter having been opened and the companions admitted,

Comp. Hervey then addressed them, and remarked that it was three years ago that very day since he consecrated the Chaucer Lodge, when he was assisted by the reverend brother who then stood beside him, and he could readily understand as far as possibility went that the lodge would at some time add to it a chapter, and he was glad that Bro. Woodford was there that night to assist him in consecrating a new chapter to be attached to the Chaucer Lodge. Since the lodge was established three years ago it had progressed in a manner that reflected honour upon those by whom it had been established, and was a credit to the Craft in general. He remarked that new chapters were not so frequently called into existence as new lodges, nor were such large numbers enlisted into them as lodges, for somehow or other chapters did not command the same love for them as lodges. It might be that as there were three degrees in the Craft, there was something in each to be learnt, but in the Royal Arch, as all the ceremonies were gone through in one night, there was nothing in the future to excite the curiosity of the candidate or induce him to follow up the science with that love and affection that existed in Craft lodges. Still the Royal Arch Degree was one of great importance and interest to all who wished to become acquainted with the true principles of Freemasonry. As to whether it was a new or an old degree it was not his wish or intention to inquire, but he would say that it most fully and properly completed the Master Mason's Degree, and under those circumstances Royal Arch Masonry bore a most distinguished position in regard to Masonry in general, and all who followed its workings would admit that it possessed the highest claims. He hoped that all who became candidates for admission to that chapter would be happy, and that the result of their inquiries would be gratifying to themselves, and that the more they studied its details they would find Royal Arch Masonry more pleasing to them than if they had confined their studies to Craft Masonry alone. In conclusion he expressed a hope that the chapter would achieve the same success in Freemasonry as the Chaucer Lodge had done in the Craft.

After some formal proceedings had been gone through, Comp. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford then delivered the following oration:—

M.E. Companions, and V.W. Presiding Officer—When, in common with yourself, I was invited by our esteemed and mutual friend, Comp. Sabine, to attend the consecration of the Chaucer Chapter and personally to deliver the oration, I felt that I had no alternative but to comply with his most courteous and fraternal request. Indeed, the grounds he gave for his flattering invitation were simply irresistible, inasmuch as they carried me back to the time when you and I, sir, in connection with our late lamented Bro. Little, were privileged to assist in the consecration of the Chaucer lodge, three years ago to-day. And when, then, under the auspices of that "Good Lodge," and of a most historic name, I was invited to aid in completing the edifice, of which on a former occasion we feebly but honestly endeavoured to lay a permanent foundation stone, I could only esteem it to be both a privilege and a duty to associate myself once again with yourself, sir, in so proper and so Masonic a work. For, like many of us, I have long felt, and felt strongly, that we have through various causes somewhat neglected the Royal Arch Grade, that most interesting portion of our venerable system, and I, or one, halt the appearance at length of a revived appreciation amongst us of its necessity, of its utility, and of its beauty. I am also one of those, M.E. sir, who think that all lodges ought to have a chapter in some way attached to them, and that all Master Masons have a right to ask to have every facility for exaltation in due time, after proper examination, and under befitting circumstances. I congratulate, therefore, the members of the Chaucer Lodge that, imbued with the true teaching, as I venture to conceive, of our early English system, they have, at this early period of their lodge existence, asked for and obtained a warrant for the Chaucer Chapter. May all of prosperity attend it, and may its members ever bear in mind that with a completed scheme of Masonic arrangement and ritual there is also expected of them a manly realisation both of the professions and practice of the articles of Masonry. Sir, I think that I cannot better occupy a few minutes to-day than by tracing out what I conceive to be a not unfitting representation of the mystical teaching of our compact and completed system. I have previously ventured to touch upon the history of the Royal Arch Degree, I have also called attention to its practical message, and now I think I shall be warranted in making my oration turn on its spiritual characteristics, on its more mystical doctrines. In all I am about to say I, however, think it well to mention, by way of caution, that I am only putting forward my own humble individual explanation of what may and does admit, no doubt, of many hke explanations, and I will add this, if you do not agree with all I say, (which perhaps you will not), you must be good enough to put it down to the "individualism" (to use a fine word), or the "idiosyncrasy" of the speaker alone. Within certain fair limits, we all have a right, it appears to me, to spiritualise the customary representation of our inner teaching. Freemasonry, then, M.E. sir, has often appeared to me, when looked at mystically and spiritually, in this wise, we are admitted into the First Degree just as all men are admitted into this world of ours, and we share in its trials and struggles, its joys and its sorrows, its cares and its crosses, and we are bidden to pursue our journey through the "strait gate," and on the "narrow ways," neither turning to the right hand nor turning to the left—but to march on, like brave soldiers, resolutely to our goal. The world is all before us, in its glorious lights, its gracious colours, its festive hours, its melodious songs, while, at the same time we are warned of the dark clouds which often lower, the blue sky which often fades away, the flowers which wither, and the songs which are hushed, whether we start in life hopeful and exulting, or pass through the ripper hours of stalwart manhood, or reach at last the inevitable weakness of old age. The First Degree shows us the world, and greet us as mortal sojourners for a little season. In the Second Degree we are told of that mental improvement and illumination which can only render us fit members for regularly organised society. We are bidden to improve ourselves, educate ourselves, charm sameness with literature, dispel tedium with science, and we are warned, (as honest old Feltham would put it), that to be "idle and ignorant are the worst characteristics for us all." We learn the advantages of refining studies and the soothing love of books, while the wondrous system of nature is unveiled before us in all its greatness, glory, marvel, grace. And then in the Third Degree we are thrown back upon ourselves. Man is a compound and most mysterious being, with a complex striving and a twofold existence, and though in the possession of an immortal soul, he is nevertheless mortal, most mortal. We are therefore warned how frail and short often are our earthly lives, how that we are here to-day and to-morrow gone—forgotten. Our place in the lodge knows us no more, and as the poet has said with a touching irony, all that is sometimes left of the greatest, the fairest, the brightest, the proudest, the bravest, the wisest of us all is a "nameless stone." Lord Macaulay, in some beautiful lines, well known, probably, to many now present, thus sums up, in his wondrous happiness of expression, this mortal condition of affairs:

"Then learn that all the griefs and joys
Which now torment, and now beguile,
Are children's hurts and children's toys,
Scarce worthy of one better smile.
There learn that pulpit, throne, and press,
Sword, sceptre, lyre, alike are frail,
That science is a blind man's guess,
And history a nurse's tale.
There learn that glory and disgrace,
Wisdom and folly, pass away;
That truth hath its appointed place,
That sorrow is but for a day.
That all we love and all we hate,
That all we hope, that all we fear,
Each mood of mind, each turn of fate,
Must end in dust and silence here.

Yes, M.E. Sir, how very beautiful is that Third Degree of ours, which says to each of us, Gnothi Seauton, which reminds us one and all of our inevitable destiny, which bids us all realise, which we too often forget to do in the glare and greatness of the world, that "Dust thou art, and unto dust thou shalt return." Do what we will, we cannot any of us put off that inevitable hour which comes to us all sooner or later, older or younger, and to-day as ever is it true for us all, as the famous poet Longfellow so well sings, that—

Our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still like muffled drums are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.

But if faith and hope can pierce through the clouds which rest on the prospect of futurity in the Third Degree, in this Sublime Grade we are reminded of the greatness and glory of the Eternal and Triune Jehovah, of the wondrous truth of a glad resurrection, and of the blessed reality of immortality, which awaits all faithful companions when the Most Excellent of All shall summon them from all climes and resting places to form part of that Grand and Eternal Chapter, His own most Holy Convocation, which shall neither be separated nor scattered, nor divided, nor dissolved any more. If man often unwillingly contemplates his own innate weakness, and transgressions, and mortality, and casts a sad and sorrowing look into the dim recesses of the grave, which hides from his tear-laden eyes and aching heart all that he loves best on earth, he yet is, and can be cheered and consoled by that voice of religion, which, as in the Royal Arch Degree, surely bids him "lift up his eyes to the hills from whence cometh his help," and which whispers to him in the deadliest hour of mortal tribulation of a happier hour, of a brighter day, of a rejoicing reunion, when those who part on this side the grave shall meet on the other. How great, then, how fascinating, and how consoling is the teaching of this goodly grade; when the mind weary and troubled, and perplexed, looks on, often half doubting, from the many conflicts of earth, and is soled, cheered, and encouraged by the knowledge, nay, the absolute certainty, that the "Lord God Omnipotent liveth," that "justice and mercy are the habitation of His seat," that there is a future life, a blessed life for the "faithful and obedient" of the whole human race, and that "Verily there is a reward for the righteous, doubtless there is a God that judgeth the earth." And in this way, I think, M.E. Sir, we may fairly arrive at the thoroughly religious character and teaching of our well-known formularies, our cherished utterances, our exoteric symbols and our esoteric lore. Yes, M.E. Sir, let us dedicate this Chaucer Chapter to-day, fully realizing these goodly truths, with all hearty good wishes for its future career, hoping and trusting, ourselves, in the general accomplishment for us all one day, through God's grace and goodness, of the better, higher, and brighter promise of our eternal destiny. With the poet, let us say:

Thou great Omnipotent, our hearts inspire
With every virtuous, every good desire,
Bring into order every failing thought,
By reason balanced and experience taught.
Teach us in heart to feel another's woe,
Nor e'er that generous sentiment forego,
In that, the Royal Art its truth imparts
A bond of union for genial hearts,
And full of sympathy for human woe,
Sighs with each sorrowing sufferers here below.
In union with the world's Great Architect it strives
To throw glad hopes o'er failing mortal lives,
It bids the mind on glorious hopes depend,
And fills the trusting soul with joys that never end.
(Applause).

Several prayers having been offered up and anthems sung, after the patriarchal benediction had been pronounced, the formal business of the consecration was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

The installation of the Principals was then proceeded with as follows: Comp. T. J. Sabine, P.Z. 73, 811, &c., as Z.; J. Catley Mason, P.M. 1540, H.; Edward Spencer Sidolph, W.M. 1540, J. The officers were then appointed, viz.: Comp. Walters, S.E.; Wilkins, S.N.; Hudson, P.S.; Fair, 1st A.S.; Hatch, and A.S.; Graham, D.C.; Spaight, Janitor.

The M.E.Z. said the first duty he had to perform was to propose a vote of thanks to the three companions who had performed the duty of consecration; Comps. Hervey, Woodford, and Terry. Three years ago that very day Comps. Hervey and Woodford had consecrated the Chaucer Lodge, but circumstances had prevented one who had assisted in that consecration being present, for he was now laid in his grave, and could not take his place in the work which they had completed that day. He (the M.E.Z.) could not allow the opportunity to pass without offering a few words of reverence and affection to the memory of their esteemed Comp. Little. Comp. Little attended the consecration of a chapter at Brighton, at which he (the M.E.Z.) was present; and he should never forget the plain and practical oration which he delivered upon that occasion. It had sunk deep into his memory and he might say with the poet:—

"Long, long, be my heart with such memories filled,
Like the vase in which roses have once been distill'd,
You may break, you may ruin the vase if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still."

He then proposed "That the best thanks of the chapter be given to Comps. Hervey, Woodford, and Terry for the services they had rendered that day, and that they be elected honorary members of the chapter."

Comp. Wilkins, Scribe N., seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

Comps. Hervey, Woodford, and Terry respectively returned thanks for the honour conferred upon them.

Several propositions for exaltation in the chapter were then made, and the present members were appointed as a committee to prepare a code of bye-laws.

The chapter was then closed in due form.

Obituary.

BRO. WILLIAM WINCH.

The severe loss which our brethren in the Isle of Thanet experienced on the 16th of May, by the sudden death of Bro. Brasier, of Margate, the esteemed Treasurer of the Union Lodge, No. 327, has been soon followed by another irreparable loss in the death of Bro. William Winch, of St. Peter's, Thanet, last surviving son of Richard Winch, J.P., late of Rochester, which sad event took place on the 15th ult. Bro. Winch was initiated into Freemasonry in the Lodge of Unions, No. 256, on the 4th January, 1864. Anxious to make himself proficient in working, he became a member of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, and, having served several offices in the Lodge of Unions, we had hoped to have seen him occupy the chair, but he was attacked by an illness which rendered it necessary that he should retire from active life in London, and on the 7th December, 1868, upon taking up his residence at St. Peter's, he tendered his resignation, which was accepted with great regret. Bro. Winch carried his Masonic zeal into Thanet. He became a member of the Royal Navy and the Lewis Lodges, and passed through the chair of both. He was also P.Z. of the chapter held at Ramsgate. His death will be severely felt by the lodge of instruction meeting at Broadstairs, of which he was the main stay, inculcating the working of the Emulation Lodge, with which he was so well acquainted. He attended a Masonic meeting at the Lord Nelson Inn, Broadstairs, on Thursday evening, in his usual health. Early on Friday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing, and fell into a state of insensibility, which lasted till his death on Saturday. The remains of the deceased were followed to the parish church, in addition to the members of his family, by about fifty members of the Craft, some Foresters (of which he was an honorary member), and a large number of the principal residents in the neighbourhood. The service was choral. The coffin was covered with some very beautiful wreaths of flowers. Bro. Winch was one who unostentatiously did good service to the Order, and whose death, at the comparatively early age of 45, will leave a blank in the Craft, in his parish, in his family, and among his friends.

BRO. WILLIAM SMITH, C.E., P.G.S.

Bro. William Smith, C.E., P.G.S., P.M. and P.Z. 33, late of Salisbury-street, Strand, died at Liverpool, to which town he some time since removed, on the 28th ult.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The annual summer fete and distribution of prizes in connection with the visit of the festival Stewards and friends of this Institution, was held on Wednesday on the school premises, Wood Green. The brethren and ladies who attended numbered about 500. The President of the day was the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, Prov. G. Master for Norfolk, who is the President of the Board of Stewards for the 80th anniversary festival to be held next Monday, under the chairmanship of H.R.H., the Duke of Connaught, K.G., P.G.W. A complete list of the visitors being impossible, we give the names of a few only of the brethren who attended, and among these were Bros. Benj. Head, S. Rosenthal, W. Roebuck, R. W. Stewart, G. J. Row, J. G. Chancellor, H. W. Hunt, J. J. Michael, F. Ralph, C. Soppet, Charles Jardine, W. J. Murlis, R. B. Webster, S. B. Wilson, C. Harrison, Rev. Dr. Morris, F. Binckes, R. Cross, F. Adlard, Jas. Stevens, W. Norris, J. Scott, Thos. Cubitt (Hon. Treasurer, Board of Stewards), E. M. Haigh, W. F. C. Moutrie, John Walker, P.M. 27, E. C. Mather, Edward Terry, and H. Massey (Freemason).

The proceedings commenced shortly after two o'clock, when the party assembled in the gymnasium. The first part of the programme was musical, and the choir sang in excellent time, first, Mendelssohn's part song "Behold the woods." This was followed by the lads Swallow, Steddy, and Battye giving Barnaby's trio, "Voice of the Western Wind," after which there was a piano duet, "Fairly Queen." Lord Suffield then distributed the first division of prizes in the list as under:—

Prizes presented by the Institution:—

First Class.—Classics, H. Bowler, 1; E. T. Sage, 2. Mathematics, A. Bryant, 1; G. S. Widdowson, 2. French and German, T. E. Sage, 1; W. Davenport, 2; H. Pinson, 2. English, P. Heavyside, 1; J. Moon, 2; J. Hazeland, 2. Divinity, G. S. Widdowson, 1; W. Davenport, 2.

Second Class.—Classics, H. Brock, 1. Mathematics, W. Cheetham, 1. French and German, W. Cheetham, 1; A. Pearson, 1; A. H. Stephenson, 2; H. Baylis, 2. English, H. Brock, 1; M. B. Ellis, 2.

Third Class.—Latin, E. J. Saunders, 1. Mathematics, F. W. Dunaway, 1; D. Dove, 2. English, H. M. Shipway, 1. French, J. E. Coulthurst, 1.

The proceedings were again varied at this point with some more music, the following compositions being executed:—

Part Song, "Awake! the Flowers unfold," (Leslie) by the Choir; Duet, "O säh ich," (Menderson) by Swallow and Steddy; Trio, "God of our Life," (Gounod) by Swallow, Battye, and Steddy.

A dramatic performance succeeded, in which the actors acquitted themselves with great skill. The piece selected was Martin's farce "D'ye know me now?"

This had no sooner been disposed of when more vocal and instrumental music was introduced in the following order:—

Part song, "Breathe soft, ye winds" (Calkin) by the Choir; Song, "The red Moss Rose" (Slicher) by J. T. Swallow; Piano Duet, "Ostorn Quadrille" (Glover) by Price Stansfield.

A second distribution of prizes then took place, the prizes being awarded for the subjects mentioned in the following list, to the boys whose names are set against the respective branches of education.

Fourth Class.—Latin, W. Jackson, 1; W. D. Whalley, 2. Mathematics, W. Tyler, 1. French and German, G. Robinson, 1. English, G. Robinson, 1.

Fifth Class (1st Div.)—Arithmetic, S. Woodhouse, 1. Latin, A. J. Green, 1. French, W. R. Hunter, 1. English, R. G. Head.

Fifth Class (2nd Div.)—Arithmetic, W. Meacock, 1. Latin, S. R. Chandler, 1. French, A. Stevens, 1. English, A. J. Watkins, 1.

The Choir.—J. Battye, 1; F. Steddy, 2; F. Swallow, 3. Special Prizes (presented by the House Committee):—Writings A. E. Grimes, 1; H. Brock, 2. Dictation, J. Hazeland, 1; H. B. Brock, 2. History, J. Battye, 1; A. E. Grimes, 2. Geography, H. Bowler, 1; C. Sage, 2. Mental Arithmetic, E. L. Price, 1; H. Bowler, 2. General attention to studies, E. T. Sage, 1; C. Sage, 2. General proficiency, E. T. Sage, 1; H. Bowler, 2. Efficiency as monitor, W. Sparkes, 1; H. Eastland, 2. Proficiency in drill, F. Allinson, 1; H. Gordon, 2.

Presented by private donors:—By Bro. Capt. Wordsworth, for elocution, awarded July 3rd, 1878.

By Bro. the Rev. Dr. Morris:—Attention to studies, W. Sparkes, 1; F. Gates, 2; S. H. Sargent, 3; R. S. Chandler, 4. Elocution, P. Heavyside. Arithmetic, J. Jackson, 1; J. Butterwith, 2. Mental Arithmetic, W. Meacock. Latin, A. Routledge. French, F. Steddy.

By Mr. J. S. Humphrey:—Mapping, A. Parker.

By Mr. E. V. Gardner:—Natural philosophy, E. T. Sage.

By Mr. Silvester:—Drawing—Frechand, H. Bowler, 1; W. Evans, 2. Painting, A. E. Pearson. Shading, J. Hazeland. Model, H. J. Wellington. Architecture, E. T. Sage.

By the Members of the "Old Scholars' re-union:—English Composition.

By Mr. Holmes:—Music (Piano), E. L. Price, 1; J. A. Stansfield, 2; Davenport, 3.

Lord Suffield during the distribution announced his intention of giving a second prize to P. K. Heavyside, a first by Bro. Captain Wordsworth having been awarded to Harry Bowler.

The remainder of the programme consisted of the performance of Bruyere's French comedy "L'Avocat Patelin."

After this the Choir sang Mendelssohn's "Early Spring," and Davis's "Hark, 'tis Music," and Swallow, Steddy, and Battye sang "The Ticking Trio." The performances concluded with the acting of Horne's farce, "Two heads are better than one."

In addition to the prizes the undermentioned rewards were also presented.

Silver Medal for good conduct, presented by the Institution, John Gilbert Whyatt.

Canonbury Gold Medal, presented by Bro. Edward Cox, Vice-patron, P.M., No. 657, Alfred Nutt.

Silver Watch and Chain, for general good conduct, presented by the Supreme Council 33° to a pupil on leaving the Institution, George Simons Widdowson.

Silver Watch, for efficiency as monitor, presented by Bro. F. Rath, P.M., William Spottiswoode Sparkes.

Before the proceedings in the gymnasium closed the usual complimentary speeches were made, and Lord Suffield expressing the great gratification he felt at finding the school in such a thorough state of efficiency, declared that it was an honour to the Craft and a credit to the head master, Dr. Morris, the under masters, Committees, Secretary, and every one engaged in the administration of its affairs. Wishing it every success, and a progress in the future similar to that it had made in the past, he hoped that on Monday next, under the presidency of the Duke of Connaught, the Institution might have a subscription list for 1878 in no way inferior to the largest it had ever had.

A cold collation followed, when more complimentary speeches were made; sports followed in the grounds; the band of the Institution, composed of the pupils, played some charming music on the lawn in front of the building; the company subsequently partook of tea; and, according to ancient custom, finished off the day's proceedings with dancing.

BRO. HEDGES'S COMMITTEE.

(Communicated by a Correspondent.)

The weekly meeting of Bro. Hedges's Committee took place on Wednesday evening. It was stated that his prospects were most cheering, a very large number of Life Governors having promised to attend and vote for him on the 11th. It was understood that all the nine candidates would go to the poll.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, was held on Wednesday, at the Chapter House of the Cathedral, Canterbury, upwards of 600 brethren being present. Lord Holmesdale, R.W.G.M., was present having Bro. A. A. Douglas as Senior Grand Warden, and Dr. F. Spurrell, as Junior Grand Warden. The proceedings were of considerable length which compels us to leave a full report for our next impression.

At the banquet of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, held at Canterbury, on Monday, a most interesting event took place, which was the presentation of a testimonial to Bro. the Rev. A. W. Hill, the Provincial Grand Chaplain, as a mark of the esteem in which he is held by his brethren throughout the whole of the county of Kent. It consisted of several articles of plate and a purse of money, altogether of the value of upwards of £300. The gift was presented by Lord Holmesdale, who prefaced it by an address highly complimentary to the reverend brother, and to which he made a suitable reply in eloquent terms, thanking the brethren for the honour they lavished upon him. Bro. Hill is also Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of England.

The 72nd anniversary festival of the Licensed Victuallers' School took place on Wednesday, at the Alexandra Palace, under the presidency of Bro. John Bagot Scriven, of the eminent firm of Barclay, Perkins, and Co., proved a magnificent success, resulting in the largest subscription list ever announced at these festivals, £6500, to which list the chairman, his firm, and friends contributed the munificent sum of £2,750.

Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master of English Freemasons, will conduct the ceremonial of inaugurating the new lifeboat station at Clacton-on-Sea next Wednesday, and will launch the lifeboat which has been founded and established there by the Grand Lodge of Freemasons, to commemorate the safe return from India of the Prince of Wales. The Provincial Grand Lodge has resolved to mark the event with full Masonic honours.—The Daily Chronicle.

The Annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire will be held in the new Masonic Hall, Osborn-street, Grimsby, on Thursday next the 11th of July. Lodge will be opened at quarter to one o'clock.

We have to record the death of Bro. J. Stonehewer, of Wandsworth Wimbledon-park-road. Our brother met with his death from his pony taking fright and throwing him out of the vehicle. The deceased was a member of the Wandsworth Lodge, No. 1044. He was much respected by all classes.

The directors of the Bank of England met on Thursday, and advanced the rate of discount from 3 to 3½ per cent.

The Installation of Bro. Wm. Henry Smyth, J.P. Deputy Lieutenant of Warrickshire P.M. 712 P.D.P. G.M., Grand Supt. R.A. Masons, etc., etc., as Right Worshipful Grand Master of Lincolnshire will take place on Thursday next at the New Masonic Hall Osborne-street Grimsby. The proceeding will commence at one o'clock.

The name of Bro. F. A. White was inadvertently omitted from the list of approved candidates for the Secretaryship of the Girls' School in our report last week.

The election of Secretary to the Girls' School will take place in the Large Hall of Freemasons' Tavern on Thursday next. The Poll will commence at two o'clock and close at five o'clock p.m. All members the General Committee are entitled to vote, including Ladies and Lewises. Personal voting is compulsory.

A Quarterly General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will be held at Freemasons' Hall Great Queen-street on Saturday next at 12 o'clock on the general business of the Institution and to place candidates on the list for election in October next.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks was held on Wednesday, at the Carlton Club Rooms, Windsor, under the presidency of Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., R.W.P.G.M., who installed the Venerable Archdeacon of Buckingham as Deputy Provincial Grand Master. A full report of the meeting is in type, and will appear in our next.

The Medical Examiner is informed that Dr. Matthews Duncan is likely to be the next President of the Obstetrical Society, and that Dr. Tilbury Fox will succeed Bro. Erasmus Wilson, P.G.S., as Professor of Dermatology at the Royal College of Surgeons.

The annual dinner of the Royal General Theatrical Fund was held in the Freemasons' Tavern, on Tuesday night, Bro. J. L. Toole, presiding. The subscriptions amounted to about £1000, which included a contribution of £100 from her Majesty the Queen.

In consequence of the anniversary festival of the Bys' School, under the distinguished presidency of Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, P.G.W.; of the election for the Secretary of the Girls' School; and of the meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodges for Kent and Berks and Bucks; and much other matter, the publisher begs to inform the Craft that he proposes to issue the Freemason on Saturday next, with 24 pages. An early application for copies at the office, 198, Fleet-street, is advisable to prevent disappointment.

Bro. the Marquis of Hartington, R.W.G.M., Derby, has accepted the office of President of the Warehousemen and Clerks' schools, a post held almost from the foundation of the institution till his death by the late Earl Russell.

The publisher wishes to draw the attention of those correspondents who complain of the difficulty in obtaining copies of the Freemason, to the following:

Mr. John Bright, accompanied by his youngest daughter, is staying at Shottery Hall, Stratford-on-Avon, the guest of Bro. the Rev. Dr. Collis, the Vicar of Stratford. The visit is in connection with the intended marriage of Miss Bright to Mr. Richard Curry, stepson of Bro. Collis, and eldest surviving son of the late Admiral Curry.

The Duke of Cambridge, attended by General Sir Alfred Horsford, G.C.R., Major General R.P. Radcliffe, R.A., Colonel Bateson, and Colonel Annesley, arrived at Gloucester House on Monday morning from Malta, by way of Naples and Paris.

The subject of the Crayon Portrait in the Whitehall Review of next week will be His Imperial Majesty the Czar of Russia, with a Biographical Sketch.

On the occasion of the visit of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales to Nottingham on the 3rd inst., to open the Castle Art Museum, the Danish Ambassador presented her Royal Highness the Princess with a magnificent white Morocco glove casket mounted in gold, and containing gloves of Nottingham manufacture. The centre of the casket was ornamented with the Prince of Wales's feather, which were supported by the English and Danish arms beautifully and artistically blended; while beneath them was the monogram of their Royal Highnesses. Each of the four corners was embellished with lilies of the valley, very effectively executed in gold. The casket was designed and manufactured by Messrs. Toulmin and Gale, of 10, Cornhill, upon whom it reflects the highest credit, alike for its conception and execution.

The members of the Navy Club entertained the First Lord of the Admiralty (the Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P.) at dinner at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, on Wednesday evening.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and the Princess of Wales visited Nottingham, and presided at the ceremony of opening the Midland Counties Art Museum in the Castle, which has been appropriated by the town to that purpose.

A complimentary dinner to Bro. J. Derby Allcroft, P.M. and M.P., took place at the Star and Garter, Richmond, on Wednesday, under the presidency of Bro. the Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, W.M. of the Aldersgate Lodge 26, ladies and gentlemen were present, and the meeting was a great success, as all enjoyed themselves, and the "music" gave great satisfaction.

Several important communications are crowded out this week owing to the pressure of advertisements. An extra eight pages (in all 24) will be given with our next impression which will contain all reports that are omitted in the present issue.

MASONIC SERVICES IN BELFAST.

In accordance with time-honoured custom, the Freemasons of Belfast commemorated the festival of St. John by attending Divine worship in St. George's Parish Church, the use of which for many years has been most generously granted for the special services by the incumbent (Canon McIlwaine), the churchwardens, and select vestry.

In the afternoon (of Sunday, the eve of St. John, the sacred edifice was thronged to overflowing, many having been obliged to go away for want of room; the congregation consisting chiefly of the brethren, augmented by their friends. The Rev. E. Maguire, rector of Bangor, Co. Down, a distinguished member of the Masonic body, was the preacher on the occasion. The subject was "God's Temple," as alluded to in 1 Cor., iii. Chapter, from which he delivered an eloquent, earnest, and truly evangelical discourse, which was listened to with intense interest, concluding with an affectionate and urgent appeal to his hearers on behalf of the funds of the Masonic Charities of Belfast and Dublin, which elicited a liberal response.

On St. John's Day (Monday) the same pulpit was occupied by Bro. Rev. C. E. Tisdall, D.D., Chancellor of Christ Church Cathedral, and Rector of St. Dolough's, Dublin. At this service, the Lord Bishop of the United Dioceses of Down, Connor, and Dromore took a prominent part, as also the Revs. Canon McIlwaine, J. Byrne, E. Maguire, J. A. Kerr, R. C. Oulton.

The text selected by Dr. Tisdall was taken from Luke vii., 31, 34, who opened his subject by directing attention to the determined opposition with which our blessed Lord and his forerunner were met by the people of their day. They were not only rejected but wickedly maligned. John came neither eating nor drinking, and he was accused of being possessed of a devil. Christ himself, mixing freely with the people, manifesting a kindly interest in their joys and sorrows, &c., was designated as "gluttonous, and a wine bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners." Having expounded the passage under consideration at very considerable length, wherein the preacher pointed out many of the ways with which God deals with men, and the instrumentalities which He uses, said, "The poor by Divine appointment 'never ceases out of the land,' and the command of Him who has willed diversity of earthly allotment is, that we should open our hand wide unto our brother, the poor and needy in our land." Dr. Tisdall then proceeded with his acknowledged eloquence and ability to advocate the claims of the Belfast Masonic Charity Fund, and the Orphan Schools in Dublin, paying a very handsome tribute to those brethren who took an active part in the promotion of these benevolent institutions; at the same time calling on any of the Order who had hitherto kept aloof from contributing thereto to throw their mite and influence into the laudable work. Before concluding this most practical and appropriate sermon, which rivetted the attention of his numerous hearers, the Doctor alluded to the action of the Grand Lodge of Ireland towards the Grand Lodge of France, with regard to the alterations made in the Constitution of the latter, as to render admissible to lodges under its control persons denying the very existence of God; observing that it should be put on record that the Irish Masons were first in protesting against the daring violations of the first great principles of the system; and seeing that they had taken the initiative in this regard, doubtless they would be true to the obligations inseparably connected with the fundamental one of loving and reverencing the Supreme—namely, that of rendering their brethren any kind office in their power, which justice or mercy may require, by relieving their distresses and soothing their afflictions, shewing that love to man which must exist where love to God was sincerely felt. Alluding to the beautiful monument in the borough cemetery erected to the memory of deceased brethren there buried, the preacher declared his assurance that when the dead had been so feelingly commemorated he had no doubt but that the living would be tenderly cared for.

As on the preceding evening, there was a hearty and liberal response to the appeal, so pathetically made.

The collectors on the two occasions were Bros. Sir C. Lanson, J.P.; Thomas Valentine, J.P.; John Coulton, Dr. Ball, E. G. Dickey, J. M. Fordyce, Francis Johnstone, W. J. Wheeler, Charles Stewart, Robt. Thompson, J. G. McGee, Andrew P. Cowan, John Arnott Taylor, F. Watson, J. Giffard, and E. N. Banks.

Amongst the most energetic promoters of the Belfast Masonic Charity Funds, the names of Bros. Thos. Fisher, John Adrain, John Ireland, James Allen, James Scott, H. Dowie, William Seeds, &c., stand foremost.

The Cleopatra's Needle obelisk, in its horizontal position, raised 6ft. and pushed forward 25ft.—such is the total result of the operations at the Adelphi-steps, as reported on Friday last. The apex is now within 7ft. of the top of the steps, but the monolith's under-side is still 4ft. or 5ft. below the level of the platform. The manipulation is now almost out of the reach of disturbance by the tides, and the elevation of the monument another yard will place it wholly so. Among the names inscribed in the visitors' book in the course of the day was that of our most eminent Egyptologist, Dr. Birch, of the British Museum.

A copy of the famous Mentz Bible, the first book printed, has been sold in Paris for £2000.

NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—We notice that the proprietors of the popular "Specialite" Wines and Spirits (Messrs. Felton and Sons, Albemarle-street, London, W.) have again contributed, in addition to their usual prize (a quarter-cask "Specialite" Sherry), a 3 dozen case "Specialite" Saumur Champagne for competition at the forthcoming Wimbledon Meeting.

HALLECK'S INTERNATIONAL LAW; OR RULES IN PEACE AND WAR. New Edition. Revised, with Notes and Cases, by SIR SHERSTON BAKER, Bart., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-law. Two vols. London: C. Kegan Paul and Co., 1878.

The new and revised edition of the late Mr. Halleck's well-known work on International Law, ably edited by Sir Sherston Baker, and dedicated by him to Lord Coleridge, is an important contribution to literature. The historical account of the subject has been continued to the present day; the most recent cases are fully gone into, and the various decisions are commented upon at some length, and in addition to frequent references to authorities and numerous notes, the editor has supplemented the original text with some interesting remarks on the questions of slavery and extra-territoriality of ships of war. With regard to privateering, the case of the "Meteor" is given as an illustration of the working of the American Neutrality Act of 1818, and the judgment is reviewed in a long and interesting note. The case of the "Alabama," the "Trent," and the "Huascar" are also dealt with. A copy of the instructions for the government of armies of the United States in the field, dated 24th April, 1863, is set out, and the editor points out that these instructions are, with certain exceptions indicated by him, almost similar to those for the Prussian army. In the appendix (which contains some important matter) the Foreign Enlistment Act, 1870, is given verbatim. The division of the work into two volumes, one containing matter relating to peace and the other to that of war, is a decided improvement, and the addition of an index greatly increases the practical utility of this carefully revised and valuable text book.

THE MAGAZINES.

We have seen "Temple Bar," "All the Year Round," and "Scribner," for July, and very readable things they all are. Mr. Trollope's "Is he Popenjoy?" in "All the Year Round," is very interesting, and promises to give us a sound and healthy moral just now. We cannot say, however, that we think "Temple Bar" is quite up to its average. "Dolly" is a very painful story, and the Wicked Lord is very uninteresting, and has not, as far as we can see, one redeeming point. It is simply sensationalism of a low type, as what good on earth can any one possibly derive from reading or knowing about Lord Ferrers?

"Scribner" is as usual very agreeable reading, and as a Magazine seems almost "sui generis." It says a good deal for our American Cousins, that such a Magazine is appreciated properly (as we trust it is) by them. The "Chapter on Oxford," the "Account of the New York Police," "Bird Architecture," and "A Few Antiques," are thoroughly agreeable, and valuable papers.

ART. Part III.; Cassell, Petter, and Galpin. Maintains its high character, and is likely, we think, to prove a permanent success. The engravings are not only very artistic, but very pleasant to look at.

We have received from the publisher, Bro. George Kenning, through the courtesy of R.W. Bro. Charles E. Meyer, of Philadelphia, the American agent, a copy of the above named volume, which we take great pleasure in commending to the attention of the American Craft. The work is mainly due to the skill and perseverance of Rev. Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, the well-known Masonic scholar, and editor of the London Freemason, assisted by Bro. Hughan, and others known to Masonic literary fame. This differs from most other works of a similar character in the evident desire for condensation, and the large number of persons named. The work itself is really meritorious, and bears evidence of careful painstaking in its creation. We presume that it will have a large circulation among the Craft.—New York Dispatch.

Election of Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.—The next issue of the Freemason, which will be published at 8.30 on Friday morning next, will contain a full report of the proceedings at this election and the RESULT. Brethren desirous of obtaining a copy at the earliest moment should send 2d. in stamps to the publisher, 198, Fleet-street, with their name and address plainly written.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—A special general meeting of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution will be held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Wednesday next, at 4 p.m., to consider the propriety of substituting in several of the laws of the Institution the word guineas for pounds.

A meeting of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight will be held at the Assembly Rooms, High-street, Aldershot, on Wednesday next. Grand Lodge will be opened at 2 o'clock p.m.

The case of the "Merchant Banking Company of London, Limited," v. the "Merchants' Joint Stock Bank, Limited," has been before the Master of the Rolls, on a motion to restrain the defendants from using the name under which their company was legally registered, on the ground of its similarity to that of the plaintiffs, and also "as being calculated to deceive." His Lordship decided against the plaintiff company on every ground advanced by their counsel, and in an exhaustive judgment refused the motion. The case is of interest, as it may be hoped it will finally settle the question of the right of companies to use the name under which, after all the formalities prescribed by law have been complied with, the Registrar grants their certificate of incorporation.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

The National Portrait Gallery at South Kensington received eighteen additional pictures during the year ending in May last, seven of these being presented and eleven purchased. The donations consisted of heads of Queen Caroline, Bishop Morley of Winchester, and R. P. Bonington, portraits of Francis Horner, M.P., and Lord Chancellor Somers, painted respectively by Sir Henry Raeburn and Sir Godfrey Kneller, and busts of Thackeray and Earl Stanhope. The purchases were a panel painting of Henry VIII., a life-size half-length figure, one of the latest likenesses of Henry; a small copper oval half-length of George I., corresponding with a full-length picture by Sir G. Kneller in St. James's Palace, and a companion picture of his daughter, Sophia Dorothea; Sir Kenelm Digby, by Vandyck; Louise de Querouailles, the notorious Duchess of Portsmouth; the great Duke of Marlborough, by Clostermann; Bishop Juxon; Edward, Lord Herbert of Chesham; Ralph, Lord Hopton of Stratton; Archbishop Boulter of Armagh, and an Indian ink drawing of Kirke White, which was presented by Southey to the poet Bloomfield. During the first four months of this year 22,239 persons have visited the Gallery, there being 3560 visitors on Easter Monday. There are now 494 portraits on view.

It is said that Lord Dufferin will, on his return to England, publish a work based on notes made in the course of his travels.

The Shah of Persia is evidently an accomplished artist, to judge from the Paris Figaro. When recently at Enghien, the Shah visited the house of the Princess Mathilde, who was absent, and found on the easel in her studio a blank piece of paper. He immediately filled the space with a capitally executed drawing, putting his autograph beneath, and so pleased was the Princess on her return, that she has sent his Majesty a charming painting of a girl clasping in her arms a pigeon that died in bringing her a message.

A NEGLECTED GALLERY.—It is a remarkable fact that, whilst the paintings at the Royal Academy can seldom be seen in comfort on account of the crowd, a gallery under the same roof, and which contains a far finer though a smaller collection, is left almost entirely without visitors. It is called the "Gibson and Diploma Gallery," one end being occupied by Gibson's sculptures, whilst the rest is gradually being filled by the diploma pictures deposited by Academicians on election. In pacing this deserted gallery the eye is attracted by the names of Reynolds, Lawrence, and others of almost equal note, and so desolate is the aspect of the place that it would not be difficult to imagine it haunted by their spirits; who, as they contemplate their neglected works, must realise the fleeting nature of popular admiration. But perhaps it would be more charitable to suppose that the public are not generally aware of the existence of this beautiful collection. The notice in the right hand corner of the Academy is not very conspicuous; and the matter is seldom alluded to by the press. Surely, if it were widely known that such a gallery is open every day, from eleven till four, without charge, the custodian's book would show a better total than ten or a dozen visitors per diem.

Dr. D. G. F. Macdonald writes:—"The heat is so intense that great care should be taken to prevent sunstroke. We have already had early warnings. If outdoor labourers would put fern or cabbage leaves inside their hats, or wind bands of rushes, vetches, or green herbage of some sort around them, there would be no cases of sunstroke. By this means the heat is strained through herbaceous substances, and is much less oppressive."

Mr. Thomas Stevenson, food analyst for the parish of St. Pancras, has reported to the Vestry that he has examined eight samples of violet powder, and found five of them to be genuine, consisting of farinas only and scent; while three of the samples contained from 16 to 33 per cent. of terra alba or gypsum, which he states acts injuriously on delicate skins. There being a doubt whether violet powder comes within the Adulteration of Food, &c., Act, as being a "drug," the matter has been referred to the legal adviser of the Vestry to advise on the matter. Dr. Stevenson states that the genuine samples were purchased from chemists and the adulterated samples from perfumers.

It would appear from the last number of the Telegraphic Journal that the telegraph officials of the Post Office have succeeded in applying the "duplex" method to the Wheatstone automatic instruments, the practicability and importance of which was pointed out in an article on "Telegraphic Progress," in the Times of the 22nd of November last. The trial would appear to have been made at the recent Epsom race meeting, when there were, of course, a great many telegrams of all kinds to be received and despatched, and it is stated that in one hour 219 messages were sent in one direction, and 139 in the other—358 in all; more could have been sent in the latter case had there been more to send; and from this it would seem not unreasonable to hope that the speed of the Wheatstone system may one day reach, or even exceed, 400 messages an hour. The messages are said to have been of the ordinary kind and of the average length, and the number transmitted is believed to have been the largest ever sent on one wire in the same time.

A large number of Roman coins have been found on the estate of Mr. J. T. Mott, at Baconsthorpe, near Holt, Norfolk. The discovery was accidentally made by a labourer while at work. The coins, of which there are some thousand, were found enclosed in a broken urn. They are in an excellent state of preservation, both obverse and reverse being perfectly distinct.

Mdlle. Gemma Luziani, the Italian child pianist, who has been playing with great success in a varied classical repertoire at the Salle Erard Paris, has arrived in London.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1878.

THE CLOSE OF THE LONDON MASONIC SEASON.

At the time we write, in the sultry heat which has set in, "work" becomes pure labour, and even refreshment ceases to refresh us any more. Many of our brethren are already "off and away," our lodges are closing and closed, and for the next three months Masonic life in the metropolis is confined to the lodges of instruction, which seem somehow to survive alike the effects of the weather, and the departure of our brethren. And on the whole we have had a good working season. A kindly and genial spirit pervades our lodges, and never at any time was Freemasonry so active and so energetic, so valued among ourselves, so commended by the outer world. And yet there comes over the thoughtful Mason the unavoidable feeling, that, after all is said and done, there is yet a good deal of room for improvement and for amelioration—in one respect especially—and that is the greatest of all, Masonic charity. We wish we could think that in this respect our lodges and chapters are doing their duty. But we fear, that we all must admit this, even those of us who take the most roseate hue of Masonic matters, that while a large sum is expended on the social circle, far too little is done for the great charities of the Order, by lodges and chapters, qua lodges and chapters. Everything is left to the individual, which we hold to be unfair to him, and not sufficient is done by the aggregation. But we do not wish to be severe, or to seem to be always finding fault, and in this very hot weather we make every allowance for a possible little irritability in some of our good readers, so we will simply add, that when London lodge life recommences in November next, we shall trust to see a new effort made on the part of all the lodges and chapters to do something for our excellent and central charities. Let the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in 1879 shew that lodges and chapters have begun this good work in real fervour and full energy.

MASONIC MEMORIALS.

There are those of us who sometimes object to Masonic presentations, and think that there is too great tendency to "get up" testimonials. On the whole we are inclined to think that there is very little in the objection, inasmuch as by way of "compensation," admitted if you will that some are over-rewarded for work done, a great many resolute workers never receive any acknowledgment at all for the hearty and unselfish labours of years. Like as in all things here, taking "all things round," therefore, we are pretty much, it seems to us, on a "level," after all. But there are some testimonials,—those which assume the feature of a memorial to the departed,—which are without possible objection of any kind, and which alike deserve our commendation and claim our support. Such is the movement set on foot in West Yorkshire to raise a memorial to the late lamented Bro. Bentley Shaw, its old D.P.G.M., by a perpetual scholarship for the Girls' School. Those of our readers who know anything of the Masonic life or work of that most distinguished province are well aware that to it is entirely owing the impetus to the Provincial movement for the support of the Metropolitan Charities, which has culminated in such noble results, and in which Bro. Bentley Shaw took such a leading part. As we write to-day memory takes us back to a day at Sheffield, when Bro. John Symonds and Bro. Hopwood first advocated the cause successfully of the Boys' School, as well as to the subsequent visit of Bros. Crewes and Patten, who at Doncaster pleaded the claims of the Girls' School. We are reminded of Lord Mexborough and Bro. Dr. Fearnley, of Bro. R. R. Nelson, and many other good old Masons and true, since passed away, of the best of Provincial Grand Masters,

Lord Ripon, and his amiable, warm-hearted, and excellent Deputy, our lamented Bro. Bentley Shaw. If Bro. Henry Smith, the active Secretary of W. Yorkshire, reads these lines, he can best tell us, if he will, the somewhat startling result as regards returns to the Central Charities, which since 1859 have been witnessed in W. Yorkshire, up to the present hour, close upon twenty years ago, and towards which "noble consummation" the brethren of that good province have laboured with such commendable zeal, unity, and devotion. The present authorities, under the distinguished presidency of Sir Henry Edwards, have most wisely favoured this new movement, and remembering Bro. Bentley Shaw's remarkable and pleasant rule, his immediate excellent qualities, and his many claims on the affectionate and grateful remembrance of his brethren, we feel sure that such an appeal will not be made to West Yorkshire brethren in vain. It is an effort which we deem alike seasonable and befitting in every sense, and we trust to hear that it has met, from a large-hearted province, that success which it so incontestably and fairly demands.

THE CHAUCER CHAPTER.

The consecration of the Chaucer Chapter, which took place on Friday week, under all the drawbacks of very hot weather and a very small room, was, nevertheless, a great success. Our esteemed Comp. John Hervey was, as usual, most effective, and we refer our readers to a full report elsewhere. We rejoice to note the progress of the Royal Arch Grade, and hope that other lodges will follow the good example of the Chaucer Lodge.

THE SECRETARIAL ELECTION, JULY, 11, 1878.

As we said last week, there are now nine candidates for the vacant Secretaryship of the Girls' School before the subscribers, and up to the present time, we believe, that all intend to go to the poll. In all probability a large number of votes will be recorded, larger than at any previous election.

WOMAN'S WORK.

It is said, though we repeat the statement with some reserve, that beneath the gay and even gorgeous surface of a civilized and intellectual society there exist depths of moral weakness and evil enough to make the mind depressed and the heart to mourn deeply. We fear, that from what we know ourselves, there is a considerable laxity just now in the sociality of the hour, and that as regards the men of the day, especially old and young married men, the sanctities of the home are too often forgotten, and the decorum of duty is often and too easily laid aside. We do not, however, presume to lecture, nor do we seek to "pile up the agony," but we propose rather to turn the thoughts of our readers to that far brighter aspect which the good sense and warm heart of woman still afford, whether to the cynical or crying philosophers amongst us. Luckily, amid the crazes of the day, the uniform good sense and moral steadiness of woman have saved her from those hyper-everythings, for the most part, in which some of our young men make such exhibitions of themselves. They have been so far happily preserved by a kind Providence, just as for the happiness and safety, of a former generation from the weak and shallow ineptitudes of scepticism, or the destructive tendencies of Ultramontaniam. It may be possible, that following the tendencies of the age, they have "gone in" for "aestheticism" in all things, and not the least "religious worship," but we have yet to learn, that that aesthetic taste of theirs overpasses the bounds, of what is reasonable, decorous, and above all, English. We doubt very much whether our often blamed young ladies are at all blameable, in any measure, for extreme views, or fantastic proceedings. And one thing is quite clear, greatly to their honour, namely, that they have given themselves up to work for others, perhaps often as a happy and saving contrast to the disappointments and drawbacks of home, and that work, as we all know has been blessed to others, and to themselves, very remarkably in their time and generation. There is hardly a labour of philanthropy, there is scarcely a scene of trial, there is, we believe, no one useful or commendable association, which has not largely benefitted from the warm heart, unselfish aims, and noble sentiment of woman. We are glad to think of her in such a guise, and under such conditions, still going forth as an "angel of mercy" to our race, helping and comforting, blessing and soothing, cheering and restraining man. Go where we will, read what we may, we find that woman's gentleness and woman's heartiness are enlisted in the best of all causes—work for others, simple, sober, generous, unselfish work, prompted by duty, and guided by good sense. We take up our great contemporary the Times, and find for instance this paragraph, full as it is of most gratifying reflections, suggestive as it is of most gracious thoughts. On Monday last, a very large and influential congress of ladies assembled at Willis's Rooms from all parts of the United Kingdom for the purpose of discussing the best means of assisting and watching over young girls of good character, whether employed as general servants, or in any other occupation of life. Upwards of 400 ladies were present, either as lady associates or branch secretaries of the Girls' Friendly Society, established under the patronage of the Archbishops of Canterbury and York in 1875. The chair was taken by Mrs. Townend, of Honington-hall, Snipston-on-Stour, and among those present, many of whom took part in the proceedings, were Lady Georgina Vernon, Lady Brabazon, representing Hampton Rural Deanery; Lady Mary Dashwood, representing Woodstock; Lady Mary Currie, representing Hingham Branch, Norfolk; Lady Mary Egerton and the Misses Egerton, representing the Rural Deanery of Chichester; the Marchioness of Hertford, representing the Alcester Branch; Lady Cunliffe, representing Wrexham; Lady Florence Blount, representing the Windsor branch of the Oxford Diocese; Lady Knightley, representing the Rural Deanery of Daventry; Lady Muldoch, representing St. George's branch, St. George's-square; Miss Katharine Gathorne Hardy, representing the Sandhurst branch of the Diocese of Canterbury; Miss Moberley, Salisbury; Miss Agatha Stacey, Birmingham; Miss Brampton, City of Winchester; and Mrs. Fox, for Lady Mary Turner. Miss Oxenham, Secretary, then read the annual report, which was very gratifying, and showed that the objects of the society were to inculcate strict morality among girls; to give help to young girls who are members, to establish a registry and home for sick members. The society now numbers 15,000 members throughout the country. Papers were then read on "Diocesan Central and Branch Organization—transfer and re-transfer of members," by Miss Money; "London Business and Factory Girls," by Mrs. Papillon; "Domestic Training," by the president; and "External Co-operation, with special reference to the Church of England Temperance Society," by Lady Georgina Vernon. Those of us who know anything of the trials and difficulties of female servants, will hail such a movement, and rejoice to think, that woman, ever foremost in all that improves, elevates, and consecrates humanity, is also resolutely doing such good, useful, practical, common-sense work, in our own epoch, manifesting that religious sense of interest and responsibility towards that most important, yet too much neglected class of our population. Such needed and valuable work has our heartfelt good wishes.

THE LATE QUEEN OF SPAIN.

It is impossible for the most thoughtless of us all not to be struck with this fresh proof, (if proof be needed), of the sad vicissitudes of this mortal life. Indeed, hardly an hour passes over our heads in which we are not struck deeply with the unforeseen visitations and unfathomable mystery of the Eternal Providence of God. In the midst of the greatest earthly happiness, surrounded by all that makes life enjoyable or gilds it with the promise of auspicious years, radiant in grace, youth, and beauty, of a sudden the young Queen passes away, struck down by deadly disease, which the skill of man is impotent to arrest, despite the overwhelming grief of her husband and the regrets of a whole and a great people. What more touching picture can be drawn of the shortness, uncertainty and disappointments of life? And yet, as religiously-minded Freemasons, who avow our "trust" in God in every emergency of life, must not our reflection also be, that I.G.A.O.T.U. both knoweth what is best for us and doeth what is best for us all? In such sad cases as these Faith and Hope whisper to us that what is our "loss" is perhaps our brother's or our sister's "gain," and that in the inscrutable providence of the Most High, those who pass away from our hearts and lives may, after all, be taken away from the evil to come.

BRO. MCINTYRE'S OPINION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

For the information of the Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls I beg to forward a copy of the valuable opinion of our esteemed brother, the Grand Registrar, just received. I take this means of making this opinion known, by which it will be seen that ladies and lewises being minors can legally vote on July 11th, because there is no previous meeting of the Committee to which it would otherwise naturally be first reported.

I, of course, feel that the information is doubly important for the provincial voters, and I undertook at the General Committee to promulgate this decision through the Freemason.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
J. CREATON.

July 2nd, 1878.

Brick Court, Temple,
1st July, 1878.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In compliance with the wishes of the General Committee of the Girls' School, as expressed by the resolution of Bro. Nunn, I have read and considered the laws of the Royal Masonic Institutions, with respect to the "eligibility of ladies to vote at the election of Secretary" of the Girls' School at the approaching election. After having given the subject my best attention, I have come to the conclusion that ladies are eligible to vote at the election of Secretary to the Institution. In coming to this decision I have followed the canon of construction of written documents, namely, to give effect to the meaning of the persons framing them as manifested by the words which they have used to express their intention. By Law LXXI., page 17, "The election and removal of the Secretary shall be vested in the General Committee, the voting to be by balloting papers, duly furnished to every qualified member present." I think that this law, unless qualified by some other enactment restricting the right of voting for the Secretary, gives the franchise to every person who is qualified to be and who is a member of the General Committee present at the period of election. I next consider what persons form the General Committee. By Law XXXV. it is enacted that "The ordinary business of the Institution shall be transacted by the General Committee, consisting of all Life Governors, together with twelve Life or Annual Subscribers," &c., &c. It is conclusive therefore, if this law stood alone, that all Life Governors are members of the General Committee, with power to transact the ordinary business of the Institution. They are by this law also empowered to "elect or remove the Secretary." This authority being vested in "all Life Governors," the question arises, are ladies capable to become Life Governors of the Institutions? This question is most clearly answered by By-law XVIII., page 4: "A lady (or a lewise being a minor) shall be a Life Governor on payment of five guineas," &c., &c. If it were intended to restrict the rights of a lady who becomes a Life Governor, restricting words should have been introduced. If the power of voting for candidates was the only privilege to be conferred, that would have been easily effected by merely omitting the words "shall be a Life Governor." In answer to any contention that the election of Secretary, &c., the ordinary business of the Institution, can be conducted by Masons alone, I would call attention to Law XXXII., which, to my mind, shews that non-Masons may take part in the proceedings of General Courts. "At all General Courts the President, Treasurer, a Trustee, or Vice-President, or in their absence a Life Governor (in each case being a Mason) shall preside. Five members shall form a quorum." This shews that the presiding officer must be a Mason, but the rest of the quorum are not required to be Masons. I think, therefore, the ladies should be permitted to vote.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

ÆNEAS J. M. MCINTYRE.

ELECTION OF SECRETARY ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am much surprised to find that my name is omitted from the list of eligible candidates in your report of the General Committee of this Institution. I enclose you a copy of a note I received from Bro. H. A. Dubois on the 15th ult., announcing that "the Committee had unanimously agreed to report me to the General Committee as an eligible candidate for the vacant Secretaryship," subject to my sending in a certificate of my birth. This request was duly complied with.

As the omission of my name is doing my candidature a serious injury, I shall rely upon you giving this a place in your next issue; even this morning I have heard that one of the candidates has been asking my supporters to support him, and producing a Freemason as his authority.

I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

F. A. WHITE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hear that a report has gained currency to the effect that I have retired from the contest now pending for the election of a Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

Will you kindly allow me, through the medium of your valuable paper, most emphatically to contradict this, and furthermore to assure my numerous friends and supporters that I have every reason to hope their efforts on my behalf will be crowned with success?

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM WORRELL, P.M., P.Z., &c.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the interest of Bro. Storr, a candidate for the office of Secretary of the Girls' School, Bro. Mockton (President of the Board of General Purposes) invites the House Committee to provide a separate polling place for such members of the General Committee as are of the gentler sex. In your issue of the 22nd ult. you solicit the opinion of members of the Craft on the question "Are Ladies entitled to vote?" It is a question of far greater importance than at first sight would appear. If determined in the negative the constitution of the various Committees will remain unchanged—if conceded, composite Committees may be the result, with what effects it would be difficult to prognosticate.

The claim to a vote is based upon the declaration in Law XIII., that "every individual donor of ten guineas shall be a Life Governor, and be entitled to vote at the meetings of the General Committee," supported by the declaration in Bye-law XXXV., that "the ordinary business of the Institution shall be transacted by a General Committee, consisting of all Life Governors," the privilege of voting being thus seemingly restricted to individual donors of at least ten guineas.

A further claim to a vote is also made on behalf of ladies, being Life Governors, under the special privilege conferred upon them by Rule XVIII. of being Life Governors on payment of five guineas, notwithstanding the omission of the words "and be entitled to vote at the meetings of the General Committee," inasmuch as Law XXXV. places the ordinary business of the Institution in the hands of a General Committee, consisting of, amongst others, all Life Governors.

This General Committee is empowered to elect the House Committee—the Finance and Audit Committee—the Secretary—Collector, &c.; and the mode of conducting an election is thus detailed in Bye-law XXXVII.: "The election shall take place by ballot—brethren only are eligible for nomination—the names of those nominated are to be printed, and a copy of the list is to be given to every qualified brother attending the election," thus limiting the privilege of voting at elections for officers of the Institution to Masons, to the consequent exclusion of all uninitiated members of the Committee, irrespective of sex.

Thus on the one hand it is contended that every Life Governor without distinction of sex, is entitled to vote under one or other of the rules quoted, and on the other it is contended that none but Masons can legally exercise the privileges in accordance with the provisions of Law XXXV., as the voting being by ballot and the lists being distributable amongst the brethren only, the privilege is thereby confined to Masons and to Masons only.

This adverse contention is materially strengthened by the operation of Rules XXXVII. and XLVII., as thereby it is declared that the House Committee and the Finance and Audit Committees are to be chosen from the General Committee, and if it be conceded that Life Governors of the female sex are entitled to any of the privileges conferred on Masons with a similar status, they are equally entitled to all, and might be nominated to serve on the Finance and Audit Committee, the omission from Law XLVII. of the word "brethren" (which is used in Law XXXVII.) conferring upon them in common with other Life Governors the privilege of so acting when elected—I refrain from using the words "if elected," for who amongst us would be so ungallant, or so forgetful of the Entered Apprentice's song, as to vote negatively to a lady candidate's aspirations?

Support is also given to the view entertained by those who oppose the claim, by the fact that the sex of the person to be nominated (as a member of the House Committee, as well as that of the person voting) is prescribed, and if it be ruled that the word "brother" will include a lady as qualified to vote, the word "brethren" will also include ladies, as eligible for nomination and thus the House Committee may become in its turn a mingled assembly of the two sexes. Is the Craft prepared to accept this? Is Freemasonry included in the platform of "women's rights?" I trow not.

At the General Committee meeting, on Thursday last, Bro. Browne stated that he and Bro. Symonds had been entrusted with the preparation of the bye-laws now in force—that it was their intention to exclude ladies from the privilege contended for, and with that object in view they drafted the laws subsequently submitted for acceptance and confirmation. I agree with him in the proposition that the rules can Masonically admit of but one interpretation, and that an adverse one to the claim urged in Bro. Stor's interest.

The importance of the subject as affecting the interests of the Masonic Charitable Institutions, in many other and far higher ways than the mere election of a Secretary, must be my apology for intruding at such length on your space.

Yours truly and fraternally,
102, Chancery Lane.

EDWARD COX.

CAN LADIES VOTE IN THE GENERAL COMMITTEE?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The question "Can Ladies, being Life Governors, vote at elections for Officers?" has I am told been referred to the Grand Registrar.

I have always been led to believe, that in this country, gentlemen holding legal offices invariably refrain from expressing an opinion on subjects in which they are interested, or to the advancement of which they may have pledged themselves. In this sense it strikes me that the Grand Registrar forcibly illustrates the oft quoted position of a man between two stools. If he determines that Lady Life Governors are not entitled to vote at the elections for Officers, &c., he runs the risk of being twitted by Bro. Stor's supporters with disloyalty to the cause he has publicly avowed—if his opinion be contrariwise, the other candidates and their supporters may challenge him with bias and partiality.

I honestly believe that every member of the Craft will agree with me in expressing the fullest confidence in the Grand Registrar's conscientiousness, but would it not have been better for the General Committee to have referred the question to some disinterested Queen's Counsel for adjudication?

I am, Sir, with feelings of high respect, yours very truly,
D. D.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very glad to note that by your report of the meeting of the General Committee on Thursday week the question has been submitted to Bro. McIntyre, and as the matter is now "sub judice," I think that perhaps discussion is not advisable, at any rate, at any length. But two points I wish to allude to. The one is, the generally unsatisfactory state of the laws, their want of clearness and precision; and I would suggest that a committee be appointed to revise the laws, which certainly are, in my opinion, anything but what they should be.

The question of the admission of ladies is narrowed, I think, to this,—are they or are they not contemplated in the word "Members" mentioned in the Section relating to the election of Secretary? If they are, then this anomaly occurs. A brother pays £10 10s., a lady pays £5 5s. and has equal rights with a brother, and so equally has a minor, even in "statu pupillari."

For if the lady can vote in General Committee so equally can the minor, and though in the election of members of the House Committee, "brethren," and "qualified brethren," alone are mentioned, yet if the lady can vote, it seems to me to be difficult to limit her privileges. It may be that she can vote for the Secretary; but how about minors?

I still venture to believe, pace higher legal authorities, that the intention of the laws is to make the Lady a Life Governor only quatenus voting for candidates, on special terms, and I understand that our esteemed Bro. Browne stated at the General Committee that such was the intention of the revised law.

Whatever Bro. McIntyre's decision may be, it is one in which we shall all acquiesce, though I trust that these doubts may lead to a revision of the laws.

I am, yours fraternally,

BYE-LAW.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The three great London Masonic Charities are justly held in esteem by all Freemasons, and are liberally supported by them, and it is desirable that all should feel satisfied the funds of each Institution are applied to the best purpose and in the most economical manner.

Doubtless every one, whilst wishing to help a brother in time of need, would like to be assured this object is obtained without extravagance or unnecessary expenditure.

In this year's report of the Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, lately issued, I cannot but notice the considerable expenditure there detailed.

The accounts are divided into two heads—the "Male Fund" and "Female Fund"—so that separately they do not appear so formidable as when taken together, but by the enclosed memorandum you will notice:—

Secretary and his assistants appear to receive nearly £1000 a year. Printing, Advertising, and Postage amount to over £550. Something relative to Stewards nearly £100, and an item for "repairs and furniture, &c., &c.," no less a sum than £828 14s. Truly, this latter, with its "et cetera, et cetera," appears a very large item.

In looking over such an account as this, where expenses of this nature, without including rent, taxes, medicine and other similar charges, amount to considerably over £2500 per annum, I cannot but imagine it is a large outlay for an institution, which, it should be remembered, is not a business establishment, but merely a charitable one, having mainly to rely on annual subscriptions and donations for its support, and which has little capital invested.

I have no wish to speak disrespectfully of the management or officers, and am only desirous of being satisfied that everything is conducted on the most economical principles.

The accounts of the Boys' School and Girls' School, I will, with your permission, reserve for further consideration, and must apologise for trespassing so much on your space in the present instance.

Yours faithfully,

A LIFE GOVERNOR OF THE THREE INSTITUTIONS.

THE WORLD'S FAVOUR FOR FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As I have received some friendly communications on my last letter under this heading, and I am anxious not to be at all misconstrued or misinterpreted by any of your readers in what I have ventured to put forward, conscientiously and believingly, I crave your kind permission to supplement my letter with a few explanatory remarks to-day.

I may be asked what is, after all, the teaching of Craft Masonry? My answer to this is simply this. Basing all its assertions on that Divine form of words, the "Lord's Prayer," it avows belief in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, in their widest sense, their fullest application. Freemasonry proclaims a recognition of God, the Great Creator and Preserver of the world and of man, the immortality of the soul, the resurrection of all mankind. It also avows a true and holy morality based upon God's own moral law, and the sanction and witness of His word, the Bible.

Now some contend that in so doing it does not go far enough, others loudly aver their opinion that it goes too far. But English Craft Masonry seems to me to be in the "via media," and avoiding hyper-dogmatism and hyper-tolerance, to hold out to all its alumni alike a reasonable faith and a goodly morality, in which all who believe in God can share. It is in this acceptance that all can act together for the welfare and alleviation of our suffering humanity.

English Masonry also begins and ends all its meetings with prayer, and it teaches nothing as moral duty which is not based upon the inspired message of the Most High. Unlike other bodies it asserts no human philosophy nor dubious theories, and dubs them Masonry. But as a religious and yet philanthropic order it proffers to its members the true and wholesome morality of Divine Authority. And if some, as I said before, desire something more definite and dogmatic than this, they must find it in the Christian Grades, or if there bein this more than enough for some minds, they must take up the views of the French Grand Orient, and discard all idea of religion from Freemasonry. And thus to them Freemasonry will soon become a fraternity based upon human morality alone, and assuming a very doubtful position, a very questionable attitude among men.

Human morality alone is, as we know, worthless, per se, either to meet the needs of man's nature, to point out the path of man's duty, or to satisfy the intensity of man's spiritual yearnings. For man is, despite all his weakness and aberration, as was said of old, "animali religiosum,"—a religious animal. He must have some religion, (religio), to bind him close to God, and he will even make to himself a religion sooner than go without.

Freemasonry, without being religion, is a handmaid to religion, in that it proclaims belief in God, and trust in God, as well as love to man, as its cardinal principles. Whenever, then, Masons forget this, as in France, they go astray, for as a necessary consequence of such departure from the simple via media of English Freemasonry they either take up with "Positivism," and glorify humanity, and disavow all objective divine truth, or they join the "morale independante," and sink into "nothing-arianism," or they flatter themselves that they show liberality of sentiment because they talk of "deism," or any other "ism."

Of all these things true Craft Freemasonry knows nothing, and with these has nothing whatever to do, and ought not to be mixed up with.

But it may be said, why should not the Christian Grades form a supplement to Craft Masonry? This is a "crux," confessedly, for us all just now, and I propose in your columns next week, (for this hot weather indisposes one for long letters, and mine is already too long), to consider if there is any point of contact between, any possibility of harmonizing the antagonistic systems of Craft and Christian Masonry.

I stop therefore, here, to-day, and am, yours fraternally,
CRAFTSMAN.

THE MOTHER COUNCIL OF THE WORLD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"A 33," writing in the Freemason of the 1st June, is as to many matters of fact, greatly mistaken.

I send you by mail a facsimile of the Register of the Grand Lodge of Perfection of South Carolina, published in 1802, containing the tableau of the Supreme Council at Charleston; and a copy of an edition of the Constitutions, in which, at pp. 182 ff., you will find the facts in regard to the establishment of the A. and A. S. Rite in South Carolina, and of the Supreme Council.

This body was established on the 31st of May, 1801, the only members named as then constituting it being Col. Mitchell and Dr. Dalcho. As there is, according to the Constitutions, no Supreme Council without three members, we infer that the Count De Grasse and his father-in-law, Delahogue, concurred in forming it, retiring when other members were added, because by the French copy of the Constitutions there was to be a Supreme Council for the French West Indies, of which De Grasse proposed to be Grand Commander and Delahogue Lieut. Grand Commander.

The members of the Supreme Council for the United States, in 1802 were Bros. Mitchell, Dalcho, De la Motta, Alexander, Bowen, De Lieben, Auld, Levy, and Moultrie. De la Motta, De Lieben, and Levy were Hebrews, of the Hebrew faith. None of the others were.

On the 21st of February, 1802, the Supreme Council granted to De Grasse a patent of the 33rd Degree, certifying that he was a member of the Council, and Grand Commander for life of the Supreme Council in the French West Indian Islands. On the 3rd of August, 1802, the Supreme Council at Charleston by patent made him its Grand Representative for the West Indian Islands.

De Grasse was the son of the Count De Grasse, who commanded the French fleet sent to the assistance of the American colonies in their War of Independence.

In 1804 he went to Paris, and there, on the 22nd of September, 1804, created the Supreme Council for France.

On the 29th of December, 1804, a large number of Masons of the Grand Orient of France (forty and more), received the Fifteenth to Eighteenth Degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Rite from Bro. De Grasse, Grand Commander, and signed an oath of obedience to the Supreme Council. Rottiers de Montaleau, Challan, Bacon de la Chevalerie, Burard, Thory, Pyron, and the Comte de Valence, signed the same oath for the 33°. This was in pursuance of a concordat made between the Supreme Council of France and the Grand Orient of France, on the 5th of December, 1804.

The concordat was soon broken, and the two powers continued to exist separately, until, at the downfall of the Empire, the Supreme Council, of which Cambacères had been Grand Commander, and Kellerman, Massena, Serrurier, Lefebvre (Duke of Dantzick), Perignon, and other Imperial Marshals and Generals were members, ceased to work, its members being dispersed. But this did not take place until after the 28th of October, 1814, for on that day the Supreme Council for France held a session, and addressed a communication to the Grand Orient, signed by the Comte de Valence, Pyron, Hacquet, Challan, the Comtes de Bournonville, Perignon, and Muraire, the Chev. Aigrefeuille, Comtes Le Pelletier d'Aulnay, Segur, and Laugier-Villars, the Marshal-Duke of Dantzick, the Baron Fretau de Peny, General Royer, De Coly, and General Baron Desfourcaux.—Rebold, 471.

On before the 18th of August, 1815, for on that day, the Chev. d'Aigrefeuille, Thory, Hacquet, the Comte Maraie, Le Pelletier d'Aulnay, and Le Barbier de Tinan, for the Supreme Council of France, replied to a circular of the Grand Orient.

De Grasse did establish, before the 21st of February, 1803, a Supreme Council at Cap François, San Domingo, for the French West Indian Islands. This body was dispersed when France lost that island; and De Grasse and the other members who fled to France claimed that the Council created by him still continued to exist, in their persons, in France, so that if the island were re-conquered, and they returned there, it would return with them. In 1804, De Grasse created the Supreme Council of France. There was no antagonism between the two bodies. The De Grasse Council created no bodies and claimed no jurisdiction in France. It existed there, for the French West Indies. The two lived side by side. Until 1812, the names of the members of the Supreme Council of America always appeared in the tableaux of the Supreme Council of France, following those of its own members. They were omitted for the first time in 1812, in consequence of some disagreement. In 1813 the Supreme Council of France apoloised for the omission, styling it "une mesure d'ordre."

The Supreme Council of America, which had begun to hold separate meetings in 1811, continued to do so, and in 1814 its Grand Commander, De Grasse, returned to Paris, reassumed the exercise of his functions, and commenced the negotiations for a union with the Supreme Council of France, which, interrupted by the events of 1815, were successful in 1821.

In 1815 this Supreme Council for America thought it might exercise, ad interim, the powers of the dispersed Supreme Council of France. It divided into two parts in 1817, one of which tried and condemned De Grasse. But his party prevailed, and the other disappeared as a Supreme Council. In 1818 he resigned, and the Comte, afterwards Duke, Decazes became Grand Commander of the Supreme Council of America. During the year 1820 he occupied himself with re-uniting the members of the Supreme Council of France, "ten of whom had died after their dispersion in 1815."—Reboul, 478. On the 4th of May, 1821, that body re-assembled, the Comte de Valence presiding; and on the 7th of May, 1821, it united with the Supreme Council of America.

I have the "Extrait du Livre d'Or" of the Supreme Council for France, containing the minutes of its session of 24th June, 1821. The Comte de Segur presided; Comte Murair and General de Fernig were Secretaries. The Comte Murair, in his address, stated that the Supreme Council had met on the 4th of May, and again on the 7th, and that there were nine places to fill to make its number twenty-one, which had been given to members of the Supreme Council of America.

It is therefore entirely a mistake that "the Supreme Council of France was not instituted until the 7th May, 1821." "A 33°" says that a spurious body existed in Paris on the 15th November, 1814, designating itself "the Supreme Council of the 33° for the French West Indies Islands." He does not mention the fact that in 1821 this body, which the Supreme Council of France never considered "spurious," but, on the contrary, bore for many years the names of its members on its own rolls, was united with it as a lawful and legitimate body. It made Prince Paul of Wurtemberg a 33°, and had on its rolls in 1818 the Baron de Fernig, as Lieut. Grand Commander, the Comte Belliard, the Comte Allemand, the Duc de Saint Aignan, the Duke de Reggio, the Comte Guilleminot, as Treasurer-General, the Prince of Hess-Darmstadt, as Secretary-General, the Comte Fièvre, the Baron de Coinville, the Comtes de Castellane and d'Estourmet, and a host of other nobles, French, Russian, and Polish.

If Dr. Morison's patent of 15th November, 1814, was signed by De Grasse as Grand Commander, it emanated from that body, and not from the Supreme Council of France. He was made by it a 33°, as many others were, who were always recognised by the Supreme Council of France.

But all this has nothing to do with Dr. Morison's powers in 1846.

That union in 1821, by which the Supreme Council of France recognised that of America as a lawful body, and received at first nine and afterwards five of its members into itself, made Dr. Morison's patent to have the same effect as if it had been granted by itself, and he was consequently always afterwards recognised by it as a lawful Sovereign Grand Inspector General.

The question is not what powers the patent of 1814 gave him, but what powers he had in 1846. He had ample power then, and if he even had not, the subsequent ratification by the Supreme Council of France retro-acted, and was equal to an original delegation of power.

Bro. Loth, some time ago, wrote to me pretty much as "A 33°" writes, and my reply will be found in the No. of our Bulletin, which I send you, at page 377.

Dr. Morison, of Greenfield, died at Paris in 1849, after residing there 27 years. He was "membre du 33me degré, admis et reconnu," present as such in the Supreme Council of France, in 1827, 1828, 1830, 1836; and is on the tableaux of that body, of 1836, 1838, 1841, 1842, and 1843, always as a membre reconnu, as Grand Representative of the Supreme Council of the Low Countries in 1836, and Representative of the Supreme Council at Bruxelles in 1838. He never was an honorary member of the Supreme Council of France, but was recognised as admitted by it to be a Sov. Grand Inspector General.

As such he had the power to create a Supreme Grand Council in Scotland. Dr. Cruicfix getting his 33° (by having the ritual sent to him, and taking the obligation from the Supreme Council at Boston, was precisely what Dr. Morison was, and made the Supreme Council of England and Wales in the same manner. The Supreme Council for Ireland had been made in the same way.

The Comte de Grasse received at Charleston, on the 12th of November, 1796, from Hyman Isaac Lange, Deputy Inspector General his patent as Knight Kadosh and Deputy Inspector General, of the Rite of Perfection. There was no 33rd Degree or Ancient and Accepted Rite in South Carolina until 1801. "A 33°" is at sea about the Bro. de Grasse and his patent. I have several copies in full of the patents of 1796, to De Grasse and Delahogue.

The 33° patent of De Grasse does not bear the signature of six "unknown" Masons, neither does his patent of Deputy Inspector. All the names on both occur in many other Masonic documents of the two periods. The patent of 1796 was signed by several French brethren residing in Charleston, and whose names you will find on the old registers of lodges in Charleston, and part of them on the tableau of the Grand Lodge of Perfection, of 1802.

De Grasse was a member of the Lodge La Candeur, of Charleston, in 1796; in August, 1797, was one of the founders there of the Lodge Réunion Française, of which he was at some time Master; in December, 1798, he received at Charleston the Degree of Knight Commander of the Temple. In October, 1799, he was Deputy Sovereign Grand Commander of the Grand Council and Sublime Orient, at Charleston. In June, 1803, he was Senior Warden of the lodge, and Senior Grand Warden of the Chapter des Sept. Frères Réunis, at Cape François. His patent of 1802 (of the 33°) is signed by Grand Commander Mitchell, Dr. Dalcho, and other members of the Supreme Council.

So that it is absolutely certain that he was a 33°, authorised to create a Supreme Council for the French West Indies; and he did create that of France, and in proper person or by delegate those of Belgium, Spain (at Madrid), and Italy (at Milan). See the discourse of the Bro. Langlois de Charlangé, at the meeting of the Supreme Council for the French Possessions of America, on the 27th of November, 1817.

The Grand Orient of France could not invest a "Scottish Council of Rites" in Scotland, by warrant, with authority to work the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. I should like to see in print a copy of that warrant. The Grand Constitutions vest the power of administration and government in Supreme Councils only, and the Grand Orient of France itself never had lawful possession of the Supreme powers of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. Its possession for a long period of time became title by usurpation.

And if a Scottish Council of Rites did work the degrees of the Rite, that was no obstacle to the creation of a Supreme Council. These can be established wherever none exists.

"A 33°" calls upon me to enlighten your readers in regard to the designation of our Supreme Council as "The Mother Council of the World." He disputes that on two grounds.

One is, that Frederic created a Supreme Council. I believe that, but it died, childless, almost as soon as born. It left no offspring. Ours was the next. From it, mediately or immediately, all existing Councils have sprung. De Grasse, a member of it at its origin, created that for France, and from him our Grand Orient received the degrees, its members swearing to obey the Supreme Council.

Secondly, that "all these degrees, as is well known, were practised by the Grand Lodge and Grand Orient of France many years before the commencement of the present century." It would be difficult to compress more error into so many words. The Grand Lodge of France practised the Blue Degrees only. The Grand Orient, in 1786, reduced its degrees to seven, the seventh being the Rose Croix. The Council of Emperors of the East and West, which was for a time united with the Grand Lodge, practised the Rite of Perfection, in twenty-five degrees, but seven, never worked by Grand Lodge, or Grand Orient, or any other body in France, were added, besides the 33°, to make the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite.

And, in 1804, none of the degrees of the Rite of Perfection were worked or known in France, except the four above the Blue Degrees included in the Rite Français or Moderne of the Grand Orient.

Fraternally yours,

ALBERT PIKE.

VOTE-TOUTING IN GRAND LODGE BALLOTS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Now that you are calling attention to some unhappy disclosures respecting the recent election of members of the Board of Purposes, will you kindly allow me space to point out a practice most reprehensible in itself, as well as a nuisance to the brethren and a disgrace to Grand Lodge itself, which ought to be swept away at once. I mean the thrusting into our hands little bills, similar in appearance to those forced upon many passengers in the streets, and containing an urgent request to vote for certain brethren.

Nor is this all, for at last Grand Lodge, one of the Scrutinizers who was seemingly too busy to attend to his duties properly—thus causing the brethren unnecessary delay—was actually occupied in handing these documents to the brethren he passed, and in some cases was even going so far as to request the brethren to comply with the demand therein contained.

I need hardly dwell upon this conduct farther than to say that of the seven names printed upon this paper, no less than five were those of brethren included in the incorrect return, and of these five three were those of brethren not ultimately returned at all.

Does not this point to a deliberate conspiracy to over-ride the will of Grand Lodge? May we not fairly ask that this—more than nuisance—shall be at once suppressed?

Surely if a brother is worthy of the suffrages of Grand Lodge he will be returned without stooping to any aid of this kind; and surely, if brethren go to Grand Lodge ignorant of the merits of the respective candidates for office, they should withhold their votes and not become, unwillingly may be, accomplices in such a practice.

In any case I cannot imagine that the recent exposé will incline the brethren so to alter the Lodge of Benevolence as to render it possible that it shall be manipulated in the way that the Board of General Purposes seems to have been.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours

W. T.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg you will accept my best thanks for your fearless and good intentioned observations upon "Masonic Mendicancy," and although you appear to have touched a tender chord of our worthy Bro. Terry's, yet, I venture to think, you have expressed the prevailing sentiment of your brethren. You have had the uncommon courage to denounce as unwise, not a growing evil but an evil of too long standing, and you deserve the thanks of the brotherhood in ventilating this subject, and if from your observations any modification to the present objectionable system of stumping for charity shall be obtained, you will have conferred a boon upon Freemasonry in general and upon the energetic and worthy Secretaries of our Institutions in particular.

For years I have held the very opinions you have expressed, and with our late lamented Bro. Little I have often discussed them, and with which he in the main coincided. "Who, among us, can say to what extent Secretarial lodge visiting conducted to the premature death of that loved brother." I remember accompanying that brother home one evening, when he was very indisposed, and I urged him to plead excuse from those frequent banquet board visits for his health's sake. I even went so far as to remark that he was killing himself, to which observation he simply remarked "I can't help it, my brother, it is one of my duties and I must do it." Does this not speak loud enough to call for investigation? All constitutions are not alike, 'tis true, all are not of that iron strength to withstand the heavy strain of late hours and festivity. We may, perhaps, congratulate our worthy Bro. Terry, who can, with apparent impunity, endure a strain of 290 out of 365 nights at the festive board—for if we deduct 52 Sundays, we find he has but 23 nights left to bask in the comforts of his own fireside, and the endearments of his family, presuming Bro. Terry to be that happy being, "a married man." We must all, I am sure, share in the regret expressed by him, viz., that he could not find more time to spend at home. But as he here appears to endeavour to support the "necessity" of frequent lodge visiting on the hypothesis that in the alternative the Institutions would entail a loss of from £3000 to £4000 a year, then I submit that such a system of, to amassing funds is anything but creditable to our Order, and augurs sooner or later its decline. Surely, brethren charitably disposed, can be equally moved to benevolence by their own lodge Secretaries, and thus spare Institution Secretaries such unheard of labour; if not, then all I can say is, that that charity which requires forcing by wine, and the eloquence of an accomplished and practised after dinner speaker, deserves another name. I give our Secretaries full justice for their sincerity, their perseverance, and earnest intent of well-doing, but there is such a thing as carrying Masonic mendicancy a little far for the well-being of our Order, and it is, perhaps, well they do not see behind the scenes, that is, to know how obnoxious such visits generally are to our brethren. As I speak so warmly upon this matter, it will be remarked possibly that I should venture to suggest some remedy. I can do so and that very candidly, viz., "less banquets and the money which would have gone to defray the same placed to the credit of our institutions"—that would at once give our Secretaries more hours at home and contribute a much larger fund to our Institutions—Should this some day happily come to pass, I think our worthy Brother Terry will not think it so much amiss that his brethren condescend to spend their "2d. a week" for the Masonic Organ that so much contributed to his welfare, and the good of Freemasonry generally.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, Yours in faith and fraternity,

A BROTHER WHO LAYS OUT HIS TWO PENCE A WEEK TO SEE FOR HIMSELF.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It was with mingled feelings of disappointment and uncourteous treatment, I learnt on my entrance into Freemasons' Hall to-day that a feté or gala day was to take place at the Boys' School, at Wood Green. I feel sure that I am only one amongst many whose contributions individually and collectively towards that Institution can be counted by hundreds, and, although not Stewards, are entitled by right, let alone courtesy, to be apprised individually by letter when proceedings in which they have proved themselves so much interested are to take place. As far as I myself am concerned, without any desire of boasting, I will merely say that I am Vice-President of all the Institutions, my two sons are Joint Governors (each) of one or more of them, and that our joint contributions to the Charities can be counted by hundreds; and I do feel a very uncourteous treatment when I am not treated with a pennyworth of civility in the shape of a circular or otherwise. In conclusion, let me assure you that these remarks are made not for one Institution, but for all—from one of them I have invariably received the civil pennyworth.

Yours fraternally,

CARLO LAVERCOP.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The eighteenth anniversary festival of this Institution was held on Monday last, at the Alexandra Palace, when about 700 ladies and brethren sat down to dinner under the presidency of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Past Senior Grand Warden of England. His Royal Highness was supported on his right by the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, Provincial Grand Master for Norfolk, and on his left by General Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Master for Surrey. Among the other brethren present were Bros. Col. Creaton, Capt. Wordsworth, James Lewis Thomas, Thomas Cubitt, R. B. Webster, W. Eastes, D. Prov. G.M. for Kent; S. Rosenthal, Sir H. Edwards, Col. Peters, Edward Terry, George Kenning, H. G. Bess, A.G.S.; A. J. Altman, A. Brookman, H. C. Levanter, F. Kelly, J. Tanner, C. F. Matier, F. Adlard, J. Boyd, A. Dicketts, J. Terry, F. R. W. Hedges, C. Coote, E. C. Mather, T. Bull, I. Abrahams, W. Reebeck, E. Bowyer, and Magnus Ohren.

When the banquet had been disposed of the list of toasts was proceeded with.

After dinner, in proposing the toast of the Queen, The Duke of Connaught said: The first toast I have the honour to propose to you requires no preface from me. I therefore call upon you to drink "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen," the Patroness of this Institution.

The toast having been drunk with musical honours, The Duke of Connaught said, My lords, ladies, and gentlemen, the next toast I have the honour to propose to you is, I am sure, only second in importance to the one which we have just drunk. It is "The Health of the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and the President of this Institution." Ever since his Royal Highness accepted the important position of Grand Master of England he has never failed to show the deep interest he takes in everything relating to the Craft, and I can assure you that I know personally the immense interest he takes in every matter connected with it. (Cheers.) In the year 1870 his Royal Highness presided at a festival in connection with this Institution, and I am happy to think that he did an immense amount of good, for funds came in largely after that festival, and an immense amount of benefit was the result. I ask you to join me in drinking, with all honours, the health of our Most Worshipful Grand Master. (Applause.)

Lord Suffield, in proposing the health of the Chairman, said: Your Royal Highness, ladies, and gentlemen, it is my proud privilege to propose to you the next toast. It is a toast which is somewhat difficult to propose in the presence of the person whose health is to be drunk. On this occasion the difficulties are greater than usual, because I have to propose a toast to your Chairman. We all know the readiness with which members of our Royal family at all times render their services to any object that is good. We know that our Chairman, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, has invariably come forward when he has been asked to come forward to serve any philanthropic purpose; and on this occasion he makes a most successful début in any great Masonic ceremony. (Cheers.) It must be as gratifying to you all as it is to himself to observe the enthusiasm of the noble gathering which has been brought together to do him honour. It is not always that assemblies of this kind are graced by the presence of so many ladies. We are indeed at all times most happy to see them, and I am certain that His Royal Highness must thoroughly appreciate the honour the ladies do him in coming and being present at this gathering. I could wish, ladies and gentlemen, that it had fallen to the lot of a more able person than myself to propose this toast. There are many persons, members of the Grand Lodge, who, I am sure, it would have given great pleasure to have been present on this occasion, but who are absent from unavoidable circumstances, and so it falls to my lot to perform a duty which otherwise would have devolved on them. It will, I feel sure, meet with your hearty approval if, before I sit down, I venture on the part of the Freemasons, as well as on the part of the ladies who are present, to congratulate His Royal Highness on an event which we all sincerely hope will be fraught with happiness to the contracting parties? (Cheers.) I venture to congratulate His Royal Highness on the marriage which is shortly to take place. (Renewed cheers.) Everything that concerns the welfare of our Royal family is dear to us, and I know that it is the wish of you all, as it is the wish of myself, that His Royal Highness may long live to enjoy the happiness which he deserves with the wife he has chosen. (Loud applause.) I will not detain you any longer, but ask you to drink with all the enthusiasm and all the cordiality which I know I need not ask from you, "The Health of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught." (Cheers.)

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, who was loudly cheered on rising, in reply, said: My lord, ladies, and gentlemen, I rise with great difficulty to return thanks in suitable terms for the great honour you have done me in drinking my health with such cordiality. I can assure you that I appreciate most fully the very kind and flattering sentiments which have been given expression to by Lord Suffield. I only feel that it is rather difficult for me to thank him sufficiently. It is a great pleasure for me to be present on this occasion, and I quite agree with Lord Suffield that this pleasure is enormously enhanced by seeing so many ladies present. I am afraid that among ladies Masons are credited with being very selfish. We generally keep all our pleasures to ourselves, but we are glad on this occasion that the ladies have come amongst us, and I am sure that we will always be glad to see them. Although only a Mason of short standing, and of not so high a rank as my elder brother, still I will not give way to him in the interest I feel for Freemasonry. (Cheers.) Lord Suffield mentioned that this was my début on a great Masonic occasion. He is not strictly correct in this; but still it is the first occasion on which I have had the pleasure of meeting so many of my brother Masons of England, and I only hope that I may often have a similar opportunity. Ladies and gentlemen, Lord Suffield touched in the kindest terms on what is always a rather delicate matter for any man to speak. (Hear, hear.) I am sure that it will touch her Royal Highness very much when I inform her of the kind reception she has met with, and that the first reference to her in England has been among Freemasons. Ladies and gentlemen, I beg to return you my most cordial and heartfelt thanks for the honour you have done me. (Applause.)

The Rev. H. A. Pickard, Grand Chaplain, in proposing the toast of "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M., the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Dep. G.M., and the Prov. Grand Masters and Present and Past Grand Officers," said: Your Royal Highness, my lord, ladies, and gentlemen, I have had your Royal Highness's command to propose the next toast, and, as you are aware, having been brought up myself in the habits of military discipline, I cannot refuse the command which is imposed upon me from the chair; otherwise, I should have hoped that it would have fallen to some more distinguished brother than myself to propose the next toast which stands on the list. It is "The Healths of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, our Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, who is Vice-President ex-officio of this Institution; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Masters and Present and Past Grand Officers." It is not very often, Sir, that a man has to get up to propose among others his own health; but in obedience to your command, I propose the toast which has been put before you; and it gives me great pleasure personally to have to speak of that most distinguished man and Mason, the Earl of Carnarvon; because when I was the Master some twenty years ago of the Apollo University Lodge he joined that lodge; and Lord Skelmersdale also was initiated by me into the mysteries of Freemasonry, and afterwards in my second year of office became my Inner Guard. It is, therefore, with very great pleasure that I rise to propose the health of those two most distinguished men and Masons. With this toast, Sir, I have to ask you to drink "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master for Surrey, Gen. Brownrigg." I have often had the pleasure of seeing Gen. Brownrigg in Grand Lodge. His son, the Rector of Moulsey, is one of my most intimate friends. I give you the toast I have mentioned, and I couple with it the name of Gen. Brownrigg.

The toast having been most warmly received, General Brownrigg, C.B., Prov. Grand Master for Surrey, in reply, said: May it please your Royal Highness, my lord, ladies, and gentlemen, it is, I am sorry to say, in virtue of my old age that I am called upon to return thanks for this toast that has just been proposed; but old age, especially Masonic old age, has its duties as well as its privileges, and it is a great privilege to me to return thanks for this toast in this assembly. It is not only that we have in our chairman this evening the illustrious prince who promises so well for the Craft, but also it delights my heart to see so many of the other sex present on this occasion. I think when we are not strictly confined to our Masonic duties, it is always pleasant—at all events it is very pretty—to see the other sex among us. I will not detain you by saying anything in reference to the toast. The excellences of those distinguished brethren who had been mentioned, the Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale, were so well known that it would not be advisable for me at all events to dilate upon them on this occasion. Time is pressing. A great many of us I know have a great difficulty in reaching our distant homes, and I shall, therefore, at once conclude by thanking you very much for the honour you have done me and for the kind way in which my name has been coupled with this toast. (Cheers.)

The Duke of Connaught, in proposing the toast of the evening, said: "My lord, ladies, and gentlemen, the toast which I have now the pleasure to propose to you is one full of interest, and will commend itself to you all, namely, "Prosperity to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys." (Applause.) This Institution has now been in existence for 80 years, having been founded in 1798. Up to the year 1854 the Institution had no building of its own, and the boys were educated at schools adjacent to their parents' residences. In the year 1855 the buildings and grounds at Wood-green were purchased; in 1863 the foundation-stone of the present edifice was laid, and in the year 1865 the building was completed. At first there were only 50 boys in the Institution, then 80, and now, I am happy to say, that there are 211 clothed, educated, and maintained there. (Cheers.) All this is most satisfactory, but these increasing demands require increasing funds; and I feel that I should not be doing my duty as chairman if I did not bring this point fully before you. I myself, as a Mason, am—and I am sure all of you here present are—proud of the Craft and proud of its leading principles. (Applause.) One of these—and, I think, the most important, and that which commends itself to the world at large—is that of charity. I appeal to you, therefore, brother Masons, to assist me in carrying out this grand principle for charity's sake. I am sure that we could not show our charitable wishes and interests better than by assisting to educate and to maintain the sons of poor Masons. (Renewed applause.) It is, therefore, on their behalf that I appeal to you. We ought to be very satisfied with the progress the school has made, and I am happy to be able to say that the health of the boys is everything that could be desired, and that their education has been most carefully carried out, so that at the last University examination a most satisfactory result was obtained. With this toast I have the honour of coupling the name of the Worshipful Bro. Geo. Plucknett, Treasurer and Vice-President. (Hear, hear.) After the satisfactory account of the school that I have given you, I am sure that we must congratulate him in all that he has done to carry out all that is best for the school, and I am sure that you will join with me in drinking his health, and in congratulating him on the prosperity of the Institution. (Cheers.)

Bro. Geo. Plucknett, in response, said he thanked the brethren most sincerely for the way in which they had drunk the toast, and also the Chairman for having associated his name with it. His Royal Highness had so ably stated to the company the circumstances of the Institution, and so forcibly engaged the attention of the visitors, that it was quite unnecessary for him (Bro. Plucknett) to detain them by going over the same ground. He would, however, remind the brethren that the success of the Institution depended on themselves. The Committees had managed the Institution very successfully, and they were very grateful to the brethren for the support which they had extended to it. It was the most anxious desire of all those who took part in its management that everything should be done for the boys educated therein that their parents could wish for had they been alive. (Hear, hear.) He again thanked them sincerely for drinking, with so much warmth, prosperity to the Institution, and he hoped that the forcible appeal made by His Royal Highness, the Chairman, would produce good results.

Bro. F. Binckes, Secretary, then rose to announce the list of subscriptions, but pre-empted the announcement by saying that he stood in the position of a comparatively disappointed man. With the presidency of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, he had hoped that the success of the festival would have been second only to that of 1870, when His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales took the chair. But he would ask that those present would not forget that for the last year or two commercial matters had not been, nor were they now, in the condition which all must wish them to be. Were they but in a fairly prosperous condition the brethren generally would be able to do for the Institutions what the dictates of their hearts prompted. The circumstances of the country would not however allow them to do so much as they would wish. Whilst recognising the prestige, the power, and the influence attaching to the Masonic début of the illustrious Prince who presided over the meeting, the brethren were absolutely prevented from responding to the appeal which he had made to them with that heartiness which they would otherwise have done. The presidency of His Royal Highness this evening was over one of the finest Masonic gatherings which he (Bro. Binckes) had ever had the pleasure of witnessing, and if there should be considered to be a financial failure, in other respects the meeting was a great success, and he was delighted that the brethren and the ladies associated in the good work had rallied in such large numbers to give His Royal Highness a hearty reception. Having achieved in connection with this Institution for a number of years an extended series of magnificent successes, the Institution was in a position for once to submit to a comparative failure. The Institution had a glorious past to which they looked back with satisfaction, and he was sure it had a future to which they could confidently look forward. (Applause.) Bro. Binckes then announced the following lists of subscriptions:

feeling will be displayed on behalf of all our Institutions, and with this earnest hope I leave the future of the three Institutions for the year 1879 in the hands of those good friends who have hitherto supported them so zealously. (Cheers.)

The Duke of Connaught then said: My lord, ladies, and gentlemen: I beg to propose the last toast but one on the list, namely, "The Board of Stewards and the President, the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master for Norfolk." When I look round upon the splendid festival of this afternoon I feel that our thanks are due to the Stewards of this festival, and I congratulate them on their admirable arrangements and on the entire success of this festival. I am particularly glad to couple with this toast the name of Lord Suffield. I am happy to say that I have had the pleasure of knowing him for a great many years, and there is nobody I appreciate more highly. I will ask you to drink his health with all honours, especially as he is the Right Worshipful Master for Norfolk.

Lord Suffield, in reply, said: I rise with great gratitude to thank you, sir, for the very kind way in which you have proposed "The Stewards of this Festival," coupled with my name. You are most of you aware that as regards the working of this great festival I have had very little more to do with it than any of you have. I have been willing indeed to come and give what poor services I had at my command; but the work of the festival has been done by others, and it is not for me to take to myself that credit which belongs to them. I feel certain that when this or any other festival requires the services of myself and of those who have acted with me, they will never be found wanting.

Bro. James Lewis Thomas, Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies, proposed "The Health of the Ladies," and said the pleasure of the evening had been enhanced by their presence. Ladies not only graced these meetings, but they did all they could to further the welfare of the Masonic Institutions. It was the incentive which the ladies gave which produced the very large lists of magnificent contributions which were proclaimed at these meetings, because they took a most active part in the furtherance of the welfare of the Masonic Institutions. It would, therefore, he was sure, meet the feelings of every brother present when he said how much they respected and felt indebted to the ladies for their presence. (Cheers.)

The whole party then adjourned to the conservatory, where a concert was given by Madame Parodi, Madame Collini, Madame Thaddeus Wells, Miss Josephine Sherrington, Mr. William Shakespeare, Mr. Thomas, Signor Franceschi, M. Thierry, and Mr. Thurlay Beale. Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Bro. Rialp, and Signor Bisaccia were the conductors, and Mr. George Magrath presided at the pianoforte.

Bro. Harker was the toastmaster.

The following lists have been received since the evening of the Festival:—

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NEW FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1695).—The brethren of this lodge met for their summer banquet, at the Alexandra Palace, on Thursday, 27th June. The W.M., Bro. Purkiss, presided, and was supported by a good attendance of the brethren and many visitors, among whom were Col. Hope, Capt. Bird, Bro. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary; Bro. Terry, Secretary to the Freemasons' Benevolent Institution; Bros. Wright, 1298; Dickinson, 1298; Wilkinson, 167; Burnett, 95; Wood, 1288; Searle, 1288; Stannard, 1275; Green, P.M., 1538; May, P.M., 212. An elegant repast was admirably served by Messrs. Bertram and Roberts, and its enjoyment was greatly enhanced by its being served in a spacious and lofty room, the large windows of which opened on to the balcony, so that the splendid weather and fine prospect were not lost. When the cloth had been removed, the Chairman remarked that he should not consume a great deal of their time in proposing the toasts generally honoured by Freemasons on occasions of assembling together round the festive board, indeed, he should get through this part of their arrangements as soon as possible. His first duty was to propose "The Health of the Queen," whose good qualities they all knew so well that no words from him were required to recommend the toast. The toast having been duly honoured, that of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," was proposed, and enthusiastically received, after which "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Skelmersdale; and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," was proposed by the Chairman, coupled with the name of Bro. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary. Bro. Buss said, Mr. Chairman and Worshipful Master, I rise at once to respond to this toast. I will not trespass upon your time, but briefly return thanks on behalf of the Grand Officers and myself. I need not say one word, for the Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale are so well known to you in their labours of love on behalf of Freemasonry. You know so well that they spare no effort in working for the good of the Order, that no words of mine are needed to enhance your appreciation of them. I congratulate you, sir, upon having passed through the first year of this lodge with credit to yourself and credit to the lodge, and I congratulate the lodge upon its prospect of brilliant success in the future. With these few words I return your best thanks. The Chairman then said: The next toast I have to propose is a rather unusual one at Masonic meetings, but we are not following Masonic rule strictly this evening. I am sure it will be a toast appreciated by all. It is the toast of "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers." We have the honour of having in our company Col. Hope, who has been decorated with the Victoria Cross. That is an honour not given lightly, but is strictly the reward for personal gallantry. We have also the advantage of having the society of the old and distinguished volunteer officer, Capt. Bird, and we have also Bro. Edmonds, who has known some service as a seaman, so that the three services are represented. Col. Hope in response, said: Worshipful Master, on behalf of my old comrades of the army I venture to return my thanks for the toast which you have just given. It is the recollection of such scenes that cheer soldiers by the camp fire. I am sure if on all occasions we could anticipate the good things in store for us when we come home we should strive even more than we have done in the past. Captain Bird: I am sure, sir, there is very little left for me to say as an unpaid soldier, but when we speak of the volunteers, we speak of an arm of the service which can command at very short notice from one hundred to one hundred and thirty thousand well qualified troops, ready to face the enemy in any part of the world to which they may be called. It is an honour that I am proud of to have a command in that service. There are higher honours, I like that which has been won by my friend on my left. It is an honour to which many aspire. I would go myself this very night, and if there were a chance I would have that cross. Bro. Edmonds said it had been his pleasing duty to travel some thousands of miles in many ships of Her Majesty's navy, and also in the mercantile marine, and also in those of foreign navies, and the British were beyond comparison the best. The Past Master said it was his privilege to propose the next toast, "The Health of their Worshipful Master." It needed no words of his to urge it on the notice of those present. They had seen him at his work in the lodge, and it was a proof of their good opinion that they had re-elected him to be their Master for the ensuing year. He concluded by referring to the origin of the New Finsbury Park Lodge, which was caused by the overgrowth of the lodge to which the founders belonged. He proposed "The Health of the W. Master, Bro. Purkiss," and hoped that the causes of discomfort in the old lodge would be avoided in the new one. Bro. Purkiss, in returning thanks, assured the brethren that he fully appreciated the honour of being Master of the lodge, and the increased honour the brethren had done him in electing him to fill the chair for another year. His best efforts would be directed to secure the comfort of the brethren and the well working of the lodge. If they all tried to perform their separate duties and to aid each other that result would be attained. The Chairman next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," which was responded to by Bro. Terry. The last toast was that of "The Officers of the Lodge," which the Chairman coupled with the name of Bro. Davis, who, in returning thanks, made some appropriate remarks on the great importance of possessing a staff of officers thoroughly efficient for the duties required of them. The remainder of the evening was enlivened by some delightful vocal music, the New Finsbury Park Lodge being unusually fortunate in the possession of a large number of musical members and friends. There was besides an air of the most genuine amity and good fellowship prevailing all present, which rendered the party a thoroughly enjoyable one, and we beg to congratulate the Worshipful Master and the brethren in having made this summer meeting at the Alexandra Palace such a genuine success.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The last meeting of this lodge was held at the Ashterton Arms on Thursday, June 27th. There was a large attendance both of brethren and visitors. Bro. W. Percival, W.M., presided, and was assisted by Bros. F. Fothergill, S.W.; J. Hutton, J.W.; H. Heywood, P.M., Treas.; S. Hewitt, Sec.; P. Lawton, J.D.; J. Eckersley, I.G.; and J. Kent, Tyler. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. Clarke, Stephens, Andrews, Crompton, Dawson, J. M. Percival, Appleby, Whitley, Nowell, and Southworth. The lodge having been duly opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. W. J. Iliffe was proposed for initiation by the W.M. The ballot was unanimously in his favour. Mr. Iliffe was accordingly initiated into the mysteries of the First Degree by the W.M. The working tools were presented by the J.W., and the ancient charge was delivered by Bro. J. Wood, P.P.G.A.D.C. Hearty good wishes were accorded from Lodges 152, 163, 1034, 1219, 1588, 1633, and 1730. It was unanimously agreed that the lodge adjourn until September 26th. The lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet table. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Wood proposed "The Health of the Initiate," to which Bro. Iliffe responded, and expressed the gratification he felt at being admitted amongst their number. Bro. H. Heywood proposed "The Visitors," which was very warmly received, and expressed the gratification felt by the members of No. 78 at seeing the representatives of so many lodges present with them that evening. He trusted it would not be long before they repeated their visit. Bros. Southworth and Clarke responded on behalf of the visiting brethren, and expressed the pleasure they had felt in being present that evening. The Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings of the evening.

WHITEHAVEN.—Sun. Square and Compasses Lodge (No. 119).—The last of the festivals of St. John the Baptist, in West Cumberland, for the present year, was held in connection with this old and flourishing lodge on Friday afternoon, the 28th ult., at the Freemasons' Hall, College-street. The members did not muster in a force consistent with the number on the roll (over 120), but the visitors attended from far and near. The following is a list of the members present:—Bros. J. L. Paiton, W.M., P.G.S.B.; J. W. Montgomery, S.W.; W. Sandwith, P.M., P.P.G. Tyler, a J.W.; W. B. Gibson, P.M. and Treas., P.G. Sec.; W. H. Atkinson, Sec.; J. Cooper, Org., P.P.G. Org.; W. B. Slav, Steward; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M., P.P.G. J.W.; E. Fearon, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; J. Barr, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; Dr. Henry, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; E. Tyson, W.M. elect; Chas. Rigg, J. Casson, W. Holloway, S. J. Newman, M. Golightly, W. F. Hunter, D. Dickinson, T. Smith, J. Rothery, J. W. Mills, J. I. Wilson, Chas. Mossop, W. Pagen, Chas. Dalton, J. Milligan, W. Jackson, T. Tyson, and G. Fitzgerald, Tyler. The visitors were:—Bros. W. Kirkbride, P.M. 339, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Spitts, P.M. 872, P.P.G. Supt. W.; W. F. Landonby, P.M. 1002, P.G. Reg. (Freemason); G. J. McKay, W.M. 129, P.G. A.D.C.; J. Wood, P.M. 962; F. Hodgson, S.W., 872; J. T. Ray, J.W. 872; J. W. Young, P.M. 1400, P.G. Purst.; J. Tallentire, J.W. 1400; J. H. Banks, 371; J. S. Braithwaite, 872; R. Bailey, 1002; A. Hardie, 872; W. Gaspey, 1073; T. Atkinson, 872; W. Carlyle, Treas. 1400; R. Pearson, P.M. 995, Ulverston, P.G. Reg. West Lancashire; G. Case, 995; W. Bath, J.W. 1021, Barrow-in-Furness; D. W. Finney, P.M. 1250, Warrington; J. Probert, P.M. 24, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and 424, Gateshead. The lodge having been opened Bro. Gibson, P.M., took the chair, whereupon, Bro. E. Tyson, W.M. elect, was presented to him for installation, and afterwards was regularly installed, saluted, and proclaimed, according to ancient custom. The following appointments were made:—Bros. J. L. Paiton, I.P.M.; J. Milligan, S.W.; J. Rothery, J.W.; W. B. Gibson, Treas. (ninth time); J. W. Miles, Sec.; W. F. Hunter, S.D.; I. Wilson, J.D.; Jas. Cooper, Org.; W. Jackson, D.C.; J. Casson, and M. Golightly, Stewards; W. Bewley, I.G.; and G. Fitzgerald, Tyler. The addresses to the W.M. and Wardens were delivered by Bro. Kenworthy, P.M., and that to the brethren generally of 119 by Bro. Gibson. The Treasurer then presented a very satisfactory balance sheet, which was adopted nem. dis.; and, after a running fire of hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed in form. The brethren immediately adjourned to the banquet hall below, where an excellent collation was provided by Bro. E. Fearon, P.M., Bro. E. Tyson presided, faced by his Wardens, and supported right and left by several P.M.'s of different lodges. The Chairman proposed in succession the usual loyal toasts, and opened the craft portion of the post-prandial proceedings with "The Health of H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master of England," which was drunk with full honours. Bro. Gibson gave the "M.W. Pro. Grand Master, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," which also was received with all the honours. Bro. McKay, in proposing the "R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmorland," gave one evidence of the flourishing state of the Province under the Earl of Bective's Grand Mastership, in the fact that £100 was voted at the last meeting for the Boys' School, and he (Bro. McKay) who would represent the province as steward at the forthcoming festival, expected he should be able to take up a total of £260 for the institution. Bro. Dr. Henry proposed the "R.W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Colonel Whitwell, M.P., and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers," which he coupled with the names of Bros. Gibson, Lamsonby, McKay, and Paiton, who severally responded. Bro. Paiton, in highly complimentary terms, proposed the "Newly installed Master of Lodge 119, Bro. E. Tyson," and, as his I.P.M., promised him every assistance during his year of office. The toast being drunk with much warmth, the chairman rose to reply. He hoped that what had been said of him by Bro. Paiton would be no exaggeration at the close of his year of office. Ever since he entered the threshold of Masonry eleven years ago, he had made up his mind never to stop till he got into the chair, and no effort of his should be wanting to keep the lodge in that working order which had now existed during so many years. He should do everything to promote the still further welfare of 119, and hoped the lodge would not lose any of its former prestige. He would conclude by saying that if his year of office was only as successful as that of his predecessor, he should be perfectly happy and content. Bro. Barrs proposed the "Newly appointed Officers," which was responded to by Bros. Milligan, Rothery, Miles, and others. The Chairman then gave the "Immediate Past Master, Bro. Paiton," who replied. Bro. Montgomery proposed the "Installing Masters, Bros. Gibson and Kenworthy," and the former brother acknowledged the compliment for his colleague and himself. Bro. Sandwith proposed the "W.M.'s, P.M.'s and Officers of other Lodges," which was replied to by those present. The Chairman, in giving the "Visiting Brethren," welcomed more especially Bros. Pearson and Case, from Ulverston, two of his oldest friends. Bro. Pearson, in reply, said that it spoke well for the prosperity of so old a lodge as 119, and Bro. Tyson had been thrice a candidate for the Master's chair, and at last had been successful, as he had lately observed in the Freemason. Those three contests certainly did not detract from Bro. Tyson's claims and abilities, but showed unmistakably that the lodge had abundance of working talent to fall back upon. There was therefore all the more credit in Bro. Tyson having stood three elections for the Master's chair. Bros. Case, Frimley, and McKay also replied. At this moment the W.M. received a telegram from Bro. Bowes, P.M. 129, P.P.G.J.W., Cumberland and Westmorland, at Warrington, conveying his congratulations and best wishes. Bro. Atkinson proposed the "P.M.'s of lodge 119," which was responded to by Bros. Gibson, Barr, Sandwith, and Henry. After the "Masonic Charities," by Bro. Gibson, the "Tyler's Toast" brought a pleasant evening to a close at a few minutes past nine. In the course of the proceedings some excellent harmony was contributed by various brethren, to the able accompaniments of Bro. Cooper, Organist of Lodge 119.

LIVERPOOL.—Merchants' Lodge (No. 241).—Of the numerous summer celebrations of the Festival of St. John, in Liverpool—and these are about as plentiful as the leaves in June at present—none excites more general interest than that in connection with the Merchants' Lodge. The reason for this special feeling is to be found in the fact that for a long time the lodge has held a premier place in West Lancashire, as a result of influential membership and extensive charitable work in almost every direction of Masonry. Many good men and true Masons have occupied the Merchants' chair, and the maintenance of the prestige of the lodge seems to be the ruling passion amongst its members. The annual installation which took place on Tuesday week, at the Masonic Hall, Hope-st., Liverpool, was no exception to the success which has attended former annual gatherings, and the whole of the long day's business and after pleasure was characterised by a thoroughly enjoyable amount of unanimity. Bro. Councillor George Peet, W.M., was in his place of honour in the East at the opening of the lodge, at 10 o'clock a.m., and his official supporters were Bros. R. Robinson, P.M.; R. Brown, P.M.; James Winsor, S.W. (W.M. elect); T. H. Sheen, J.W.; Dr. S. J. McGeorge, P.G. Registrar, P.M.; Treasurer; Thomas Salter, Secretary; W. Williams, S.D.; John Latta, J.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., D.C.; A. B. Ewart, Organist; T. Whitehead, I.G., and Peter Ball, Tyler. The members present were, Bros. E. Vash, S. Jacobs, E. C. Jones, N. H. Huther, C. Warner, J. Brotherton, F. W. Coates, W. Williamson, E. I. Manson, C. Düringer, R. W. Barnes, W. Davies, J. O'Keefe, G. Robson, and D. Hughes. The visitors were Bros. J. Healing, P.M. 1264; M. P. Tieski, I.G. 1502; A. Barker, 1012; J. T. Alston, S.W. 203; Julius Frank, I.P.M. 203 and 1502; J. Jacobs, 724 and 1576; and J. P. Bryan, 1035 and 203. Brother Councillor George Peet, W.M., opened the lodge in due form, and after the transaction of some formal business he brought a most popular year's service to a close by installing Bro. James Winsor, P.M., 203, in the W.M.'s chair, as his successor. The presentation for this purpose was made by Bros. P. M. Brown and Broadbridge. The ceremony was admirably performed, eliciting the commendation of all who were present. The following was the staff of officers appointed, elected, and invested for the ensuing year:—Bros. George Peet, I.P.M.; T. H. Sheen, S.W.; Thomas Salter, J.W.; Dr. S. J. McGeorge, P.G.R., Treasurer (re-elected); W. Williams, Secretary; John Latta S.D.; T. Whitehead, J.D.; J. Pendleton, I.G.; A. B. Ewart, Organist; and Bro. G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., was re-appointed D.C. At the conclusion of the ceremony, Bro. J. Winsor, W.M., in the name of the brethren of the Merchants' Lodge, presented Bro. G. Peet, I.P.M., with a very chaste and valuable P.M.'s jewel, in token of the esteem in which he was held by the lodge. Bro. Peet suitably acknowledged the presentation of the jewel. After luncheon in the Masonic Hall, the brethren proceeded to Southport, where, after inspecting the numerous "lions," and enjoying the sea breezes, they gathered in strong force at the Prince of Wales Hotel, where a recherché banquet was served under the personal direction of Bro. W. Clask, of the Lodge of Unity, No. 641, manager of the hotel. When dessert had been placed on the table the W.M. said he hoped that short speeches would be the order of the day, in view of the bright and brilliant weather outside. He would set the example in this respect and trusted it would be followed by all who might succeed. He had also thought it desirable to make a slight innovation in the toast-giving on that occasion, as he intended to distribute the proposition of these amongst the various officers who had that day been appointed. He hoped this would meet with general approval, and that the course thus adopted would prove acceptable to all the brethren. The Worshipful Master then gave the toast of "The Queen." The W.M. next gave "The M.W. G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the M.W. Pro G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon." He said the Prince was esteemed as the first gentleman in the land, but this esteem was increased and deepened by the position he held as the head of their noble Order. The fact that three members of the Royal Family were connected with the Craft showed the deep interest Her Majesty the Queen must take in the Order. In Lord Carnarvon they had a gentleman of rare ability, a Mason whose heart was in the right place, and who spared no pains to effectively fulfil the duties of his high and important office. The S.W., Bro. T. H. Sheen, was entrusted with the toast of "The R.W.D.G.M. and Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers, Present and Past," referring to the eminent services in the cause of Freemasonry throughout the length and breadth of the land which his lordship had performed. The next toast was given by the J.W., Bro. T. Salter, "The W.D. Prov. G.M., Bro. the Rt. Hon. F. A. Stanley, and the Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge, Past and Present." That toast, he said, was always received in the Merchants Lodge with especial enthusiasm, and he felt the Worshipful Master had done his officers good service by allowing them to have a little practice even in speech making. Bro. Stanley was well-known as a zealous Mason—ever ready to put his hand to the Masonic plough. All the P.G. Officers were tried men, and by their efforts they had proved themselves equal to the great work entrusted to them. A conspicuous example in this direction was Bro. H. S. Alpass, their admirable P.G. Sec., to whose zeal and ability the present unparalleled prosperity of Masonry in West Lancashire was largely due. Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., in responding to the toast, (enthusiastically received) expressed his continued admiration for the Merchants' Lodge, his earnest desire for its future welfare, and his deep thankfulness for the eulogistic manner in which his name had been mentioned by the J.W. It was to him a source of great satisfaction to find that his work—extensive and increasing year by year—was so greatly appreciated, and it would give him even greater pleasure to devote the whole of his leisure to the proper fulfilment of his Secretarial duties. In conclusion, Bro. Alpass referred to the great progress the Order was making in that division, and to the interest which Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., and Bro. the Right Hon. F. Stanley, D.G.M., took in the welfare of the Craft. The Secretary (Bro. W. Williams) proposed "The Masonic Charities," referring to the fact that the invested capital of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution had now nearly reached £14,000, the available interest for the charity being about £600, and he further stated there were now nearly 100 children on the foundation of the Institution. The toast was acknowledged by Bro. G. Broadbridge (in the necessary absence of Bro. R. Brown, P.M., Honorary Secretary of the Institution), and the P.G. Secretary strongly advised the brethren to endeavour to secure the election of a daughter of the late Bro. Captain Mott, P.M. 241, in connection with the Girls' School, London. "The Worshipful Master" was proposed by Bro. G. Peet, I.P.M., and received with great cordiality. Bro. Peet said it had been his proud privilege that day to place one in the chair who, he was sure, would do honour to the position. He was satisfied that under Bro. Winsor's sway the Merchants Lodge would not decay, but would continue to hold the place of honour which it did with respect to the influence of its members and the extent of its charity. Bro. J. Winsor, W.M., in responding to the toast, thanked the brethren for the very great honour which they had conferred upon him that day—an honour to which he had aspired from the very moment that he saw the pure light of Freemasonry. Nothing would be wanting on his part to maintain the high reputation of the lodge, and he trusted to be able to hand down to his successors the warrant as pure and unsullied as he had received it. No brother ever entered that chair with a greater number of personal friends, and no candidate ever entered it with fewer than he did. Bro. Dr. S. J. McGeorge, P.G. Reg., Treas., proposed "The Visitors," the toast being acknowledged by Bros. Julius Frank, P.M. 203; J. P. Bryan, 1035 (on behalf of the musical brethren); Baker, P.M. 1012, Bury (on behalf of the brethren from a distance); and J. B. MacKenzie, J.W. 1609 (Freemason) (on behalf of the press). The W.M. next gave "The Installing Master," referring to the excellent services which he had performed that day; and Bro. Peet, I.P.M., in response, spoke of the lively satisfaction which it had given him to perform the work of installation—the second or third occasion only on which it had been done by a retiring Master. Bro. J. Latta, S.D., gave "The Past Masters," responded to by Bro. R. Robinson, P.M., and J. Cobham, P.M.; and "The Officers" was acknowledged by Bros. Thomas Whitehead, J.D., and James Pendleton, I.G. After the Tyler's toast had been given, the brethren returned to Liverpool at an early hour. An excellent band played during dinner, and a choice selection of vocal music was given during the evening by Bros. Queen, Hobart, Bryan, and Pugmire. Bro. A. B. Ewart, Organist of the lodge, most efficiently played the pianoforte accompaniments. The toast list, lithographed by Bro. S. Jacobs, 241, was exquisitely got up, and a splendid portrait of the W.M., photographed by Bros. Brown, Barnes, and Bell, added immensely to its value as a souvenir of the highly successful installation gathering of 1878.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Lodge (No. 249). On Thursday, the 4th inst., the brethren of this strongly constituted lodge gathered in great force at the headquarters of Freemasonry in Liverpool, Hope-street, for the purpose of assisting at the annual installation of the W.M. The lodge was duly opened by Bro. J. C. Robinson, supported by Bros. J. Lloyd, I.P.M.; H. Pearson, P.M., P.G.S.; J. Hayes, P.M.; P. Pinnington, P.M.; J. T. Rose, P.M.; F. Barnett, S.W.; W. P. Jennings, J.W.; Dr. J. Kellett Smith, Treas., P.M., P.P.G. Reg., P.Z.; R. Collings, Sec.; W. Corbett, S.D.; J. Whalley, J.D.; H. N. Parry, I.G.; C. Leighton, P.M. 1325, Org.; W. H. Vernon, S.; W. Morney, S. The members present were Bros. W. Williams, H. Hall, M. Davies, J. Hyams, J. Molloy, J. L. Whitney, W. Sambrook, J. Chambers, J. Lear, J. Simpson, D. Thomas, S. Johnson, M. Goldstone, M. W. Thornton, J. Baines, W. Louthair, R. Bradley, D. Oliphant, Wm. Pye, G. C. Reeceham, F. Cooper, R. Fitzgerald, J. Whittall, J. Messenger, R. Thompson, J. Pye, G. Bowker, J. Wood (Freemason), P. Stern, N. Cohen, J. Williams, W. Yates, M. Howarth, jun., D. Cangle, R. Thomas, J. White, W. Gamble, J. Jenaway, F. J. Porter, J. Chisnall, R. Morrin, J. Morrison, E. Owen, J. N. Perleton, A. Barnan, J. K. Walker, F. G. Ross, J. Crebbin, and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The visitors' list included Bros. J. Pemberton, P.P.G.S. of W.; J. W. Burgess, P.M. 1325; J. Peters, P.M. 597; J. Lecomber, I.P.M. 594, P.P.G.S.W. North Wales and Shrop.; R. Ramsden, P.M. 579; M. Hart, P.M. and Sec. 1502, Sec. 724; W. H. Cooper, W.M. 1350; W. J. Chapman, W.M. 1609; F. H. Bradshaw, W.M. 1325; A. Cohen, 1502; R. Williams, 594, 1609; A. Samuels, J.D. 1325; J. D. Griffiths, 724; A. Finger, 1182; L. B. Goodman, 594; Lindo Courtney, S.W. 1609; H. Jones, J.G. 1675; J. N. Bryant, 1035, 203; S. M. Davies, 22, Canada; S. Schonstadt, S.W. 1502; and F. H. Walker, 1675. Bro. Frederick Barnett, W.M. elect, having been presented by Bros. J. Kellett Smith, P.M., and J. C. Robinson, P.M., was installed by Bro. John Hayes, P.M., in a very effective manner. After the usual honours the following brethren were invested officers for the coming year: Bros. John C. Robinson, I.P.M.; W. Corbett, S.W.; W. P. Jennings, J.W.; Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.P.G. Reg., P.M., Treasurer (re-elected for eighth time); John Hayes, P.M., D.C.; J. Whalley, and H. W. Parry, S.D. and

J.D.; W. Vernon, I.G.; W. Mooney, S.S.; Joseph Jenaway, J.S.; and James Simpson, Assistant Steward. Bro. W. H. Ball was re-elected Tyler. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hayes, P.M., for his impressive carrying out of the installation ceremony, and the W.M. then proceeded to give a degree to two brethren in a manner which showed him to be no novice in Masonry. The officers also showed considerable proficiency. A P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Robinson. After the closing of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to the large banquetting-room, where a substantial dinner was provided by Bro. Vines, and was followed by the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. That of "The Provincial Grand Officers" was responded to by Bros. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.G.R.; Pemberton, P.P.G.S. of W.; and Pearson, P.G. Steward. "The Worshipful Master" was proposed by Bro. Robinson, I.P.M., who stated that he need say nothing to recommend Bro. Barnett to them. During his five years' connection with the lodge his conduct had been that of a worthy Mason; and his working in the subordinate offices, such as amply to justify their choice. Bro. Barnett briefly thanked the brethren, and promised his best efforts to promote the interests of 249. "The Installing Master" was proposed by the W.M., and cordially received. Bro. Hayes replied, and thanked the brethren. A very handsome set of diamond studs was presented to Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.M., on behalf of the lodge, in recognition of his long services as Treasurer, by Bro. Robinson, I.P.M., and also of his past Preceptorship of the lodge of instruction. A very fine timepiece and vases were handed over to Bro. Hayes, P.M., at the same time, as a token of esteem, and in consideration of his services as Past Master and present Preceptor. Bros. Smith and Hayes acknowledged the gifts in suitable terms. "The Past Masters" was spoken to by Bros. J. K. Smith, P.M.; Rev. Philip Pennington, P.M.; H. Pearson, P.M.; J. J. Rose, P.M.; J. Hayes, P.M.; and J. C. Robinson, I.P.M. "The Visitors" followed, and was responded to by Bros. M. Hart, P.M. 1502; J. W. Burgess, I.P.M. 1325; Peters, P.P.G.S.W. North Wales; Le Comber, I.P.M. 594, and others. "The Masonic Charities" was proposed by Bro. Rev. P. Pennington, who spoke more especially of the value of their educational charities, and made an appeal for their funds. Bro. M'Kenzie, J.W. 1609, responded, and spoke of the singularly honourable position held by West Lancashire with regard to its educational charities. "The Officers" was fully done justice to, and was responded to by Bros. Corbett, S.W.; Jennings, J.W.; James Simpson, Assist. Sec.; and others. "The Press" was proposed by Bro. Robinson, and responded to by Bros. M'Kenzie (Freemason), J. P. Bryan, and Davies. After a most enjoyable evening the brethren separated.

HULL.—Minerva Lodge (No. 250).—Monday, the 24th ult., being the feast of St. John the Baptist, the annual installation of officers of the Minerva Lodge, No. 250, took place according to ancient custom. The following is a list of the brethren installed:—Bros. Richard Huntley, Worshipful Master; Charles Newton, Im. Past Master; John Charles Serres, Senior Warden; John Campbell Thompson, Junior Warden; Henry Haigh, P.M., P.P.G.D., Lecture Master; Charles Wells, P.M., P.P.J.G.W., Treasurer; Walter Reynolds, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Treasurer Benevolent Fund; J. L. Jacobs, P.M., P.G.S.B., Treasurer Building Fund; M. C. Peck, P.M., P.P.G.S. Wks., P.G. Sec., Secretary; John Henry Glover, Senior Deacon; Arthur Jones, Junior Deacon; Edmund Bitchin, Director of Ceremonies; W. D. Keyworth, P.M., P.P.G.S. Wks., Almoner; Vessey King, J. Hearfield Walker, William England, Alfred Thornton, William R. Cross, Stewards; Chas. H. Hunt, P.P.G.O., Organist; William Foele, Inner Guard; Jeremiah Faulkner, Tyler; Daniel Swallow, Assistant Tyler. The installation ceremonies were performed by W. Bro. J. P. Bell, J.P., Deputy Provincial Grand Master. At the conclusion of the business an elegant collation was provided in the dining-hall of the lodge, of which over fifty brethren partook; the musical arrangements were under the superintendence of the Organist, and the collation was provided from the Cross Keys Hotel.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The members of this lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, who hold their meetings at the Athenaeum in Lancaster, celebrated the festival of St. John the Baptist, or "Little St. John," as it is more generally termed, on the 27th ult. by dining together at Rigg's Hotel, Windermere. For many years past it has been customary to hold this festival at the North-Western Hotel, Morecambe, but this year the members decided to go a little further from home; and the Lake district was selected. The day was remarkably fine, and as there was no fixed order as to how the brethren should arrive at the place of meeting, each individual member in this respect followed the bent of his own fancy, but the bulk of them made a day of it, and in the interval which elapsed before dinner, visited some of the scenery for which the Lake district is so noted. Five o'clock was the hour named for dinner, and with commendable punctuality between thirty and forty of the brethren had assembled at Rigg's Hotel, and sat down to a dinner for which the mere mention of the hotel is a sufficient guarantee as to the quality of the viands that were placed before the guests. Bro. Jowett, the W.M., presided, and was supported by Bros. Dale and J. Hartley, 1353, James Hatch, A. Bell, Shaw, Hall, T. Atkinson, J. Harrison, Heald, Acton, &c. In the absence of the S.W. the vice-chair was occupied by Bro. Kelland, who was supported by Bros. Bell, 1353, Bond, Bailey, Whitehead, Thistlethwaite, Melrose, Pilkington, J. Atkinson (Freemason), and others. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given from the chair and duly honoured. These were followed by the Masonic toasts customary on such occasions, and which were received in a manner peculiar among Masons. The toast of "The W.M." was very cordially received, as was also that of "The Visitors;" the evening's proceedings being further enhanced by the harmony of several of the brethren. The brethren returned to Lancaster by the 8.30 p.m. train, all of them having enjoyed a pleasant out.

LIVERPOOL.—Downshire Lodge (No. 594).—The annual installation meeting of this well established and estimable lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, at ten o'clock, on Thursday morning, the 27th ult. There was a very large gathering of the brethren, drawn together for the special purpose of witnessing the ceremony of placing Bro. J. L. Houghton, S.W., the W.M. elect, in the chair of K.S. Bro. John Lecomber, W.M., opened the lodge shortly after ten o'clock, and he was supported during the ceremony by Bros. R. P. France, I.P.M.; S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B., P.M.; H. Hunt, P.M.; T. Dilcock, P.M.; P. M. Larsen, P.M.; John L. Houghton, S.W., W.M. elect; Thomas Boswell, J.W.; A. Pedersen, Sec.; J. H. Burch, S.D.; J. V. Clitherow, J.D.; W. H. Vevers, I.G.; R. J. Wilkinson, S.; J. Yapp, Org.; and T. Malcolm, Tyler, and a numerous assemblage of brethren of the lodge and a number of visiting brethren. After the transaction of the usual routine of preliminary business Bro. R. P. France took the chair, and proceeded to install Bro. Houghton (presented by Bros. P. M. Larsen and Dilcock), and his rendering of the ceremony and the accompanying addresses gave every satisfaction to the brethren. The W.M. then invested the following officers:—Bro. John Lecomber, I.P.M.; Bro. S. Ibbs, P.M., D.C.; Bro. Thos. Boswell, S.W.; Bro. Adolph Pedersen, J.W.; Bro. Robert Ing, P.M., Treasurer (re-elected); Bro. J. H. Burch, Honorary Secretary; Bro. J. J. Yapp, Organist; Bro. J. J. Clitherow and W. H. Vevers respectively Senior and Junior Deacons; Bro. R. J. Wilkinson, I. G.; Bros. J. D. Thomas, E. Messham, W. S. Larky, and C. W. Ing, Stewards. Bro. Malcolm was unanimously re-elected and invested as Tyler. A cordial vote of thanks given to Bro. France for his excellent work as Installing Master. The lodge was then closed in solemn form and harmony, and after partaking of luncheon the brethren proceeded to Lime-street Station, where they were joined by their lady friends, and proceeded by train to Frodsham. The journey was most enjoyable, and the change from the sultry streets of Liverpool to the breezy slopes of the Overton hills was a delightful one. Those who were inclined to exercise their climbing powers soon set out for their destination, while others pressed into their service the much enduring donkeys of the neighbourhood. Soon all were seated, to the number of 150, to a substantial dinner, provided by Mr. Rigby, of Belmont. There was a large number of visitors, among whom were Bros. A. Hart, W.M. 724; James T. Callow, P.M. 673, 1505; W. Cottrell, P.M. 823; John C. Robinson, W.M. 249; Barnett, S.W. 249; John Hayes, P.M. 249; William May, P.M. 673; Myers, W.M. 1182; and others. After dinner, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, but the list of other toasts was curtailed to enable the excursionists to enjoy the beautiful scenery. In proposing "The Health of the Worshipful Master," Bro. Lecomber said it gave him great satisfaction to see such a worthy brother placed in the chair that day. The reins of government could not have been given to better hands, and he had every confidence in the future of the lodge under Bro. Houghton's guidance. The W.M., in responding, thanked the brethren, and stated that, with the assistance of the very efficient staff of officers under him, he hoped to be able to render a good account of his stewardship. He then proceeded to propose the toast of "The Installing Master and Past Masters," complimenting Bro. France on his working that day, and said that Lodge 594 might be proud of its Past Masters. In conclusion, he said he had a most pleasing duty to perform—viz., to present Bro. Lecomber with a Past Master's jewel, which had been voted by the lodge. This vote was supplemented by the private donations of members, and the result is one of the most magnificent jewels of its class ever seen in Liverpool. It contains over one hundred brilliants, and is of most pleasing design. Bro. Lecomber briefly and feelingly thanked the brethren, and the toast was also spoken to by Bro. France and Bro. Ibbs, the latter of whom also responded for "The Ladies." After "The Visitors" had been honoured, various amusements were indulged in, and dancing on the grass seemed, notwithstanding the warmth of the weather, to be spiritedly entered into. The company departed for home after tea, arriving at Lime-street at 10.30, evidently having thoroughly enjoyed their outing.

LIVERPOOL.—Alliance Lodge (No. 667).—A most interesting evening was enjoyed by the members and visitors of this capital lodge on Thursday evening, the 18th ult., when the ceremony of raising possessed a peculiar attraction from the fact that the sons of two P.M.'s were raised at the same time, one of their fathers occupying the chair. It will be remembered that two or three months ago Bro. J. E. Jackson, P.M., P.G.S., initiated his own son and that of Bro. George S. Willings, I.P.M., and on this last occasion Bro. Willings completed the good work thus begun by raising his son and Bro. Jackson, jun., along with two other candidates, to the Sublime Degree of M.M.'s. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. John Ellis, W.M. The ceremony of raising was performed with the perfection of impressive effect by Bro. G. S. Willings, I.P.M., and the manner in which he afterwards gave the lectures of the degree still further enhanced the Masonic enjoyment of an evening which will be long remembered with pleasure. Charity was voted, propositions were made, "heartily good wishes" were conveyed by various visitors, and the brethren subsequently adjourned to the banquetting hall, where a most pleasant evening was spent.

LIVERPOOL.—St John's Lodge (No. 673).—The annual installation meeting of the members of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday evening, the 2nd inst. Bro. H. Burrows, W.M., occupied the chair, and amongst the principal members present were Bros. Thos. Roberts, P.M.; J. T. Callow, P.M.; J. Hocken, P.M.; D. Jackson, S.W.; W. Brackenbury, J.W.; T. Clark, P.M., Treas.; W. T. May, Sec.; L. Herman, S.D.; J. Seddon, J.D.; B. Whitehead, Org.; T. Falshaw, I.G.; T. Smith, Steward. The members present were Bros. W. Irvine, W. Sunderland, J. S. Knox, H. Jones, E. Browne, G. Leitch, W. H. Miller, T. Wood, M. Mendoza, Z.; D. Patterson, S. W. Halse, W. A. Lake, J. B. Widdows, M. Corless, P.M.; R. Pearson, P.M.; E. Kyle, J. Johnson, R. Ewans, W. J. Morton, Thomas Miller, A. P. Garcia, E. Tomos, H. Nelson, P.M.; and James W. Alderson. The visitors included Bros. B. Martin, P.M. 1182; Thos. Shaw, P.M. 823; W. B. Myers, P.M. 1182; F. E. Jackson, P.M. 667, P.G.S.; Henry Morris, P.M. 1505; W. N. Wass, W.M. 758; Peter M. Larsen, P.M. 594; H. Pearson, P.M. 249, P.G.S.; T. E. Ibbs, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; John Ellis, W.M. 667; J. H. Bradshaw, W.M. 1325; John Hayes, P.M. 249; K. P. France, P.M. 594; J. E. Robinson, W.M. 249; J. R. Goepel, P.M. 155 and 823, P.P.G.D.C. W. L.; Geo. Peat, P.M. 241; J. Lecomber, P.M. 594; A. C. Morrison, W.M. 1570; T. Davis, S.W. 1188; L. Courtenay, S.W. 1609; W. Healing, P.M. 1094; W. Cottrell, P.M. 823; J. W. Burgess, P.M. 1325; A. D. Heskeith, Sec. 1082; J. Wood, Treas. 1094 (Freemason); Thos. Hatton, 203; N. B. Richards; J. Lolrey; J. F. Spedding, 673; J. R. Coombs, W. Cansfield; J. Buckley, J. Chetton, T. Little, C. Gormall, R. Gormall, T. Pallman, J. R. Bottomley, S.W. 1675; T. Davies, S.W. 1182; F. Barnett, S.W. 249; G. Mustler, 1182; G. King, 823; F. Cooper, 249; J. M. King, 823; J. Hunter, 1356; W. J. Harlam, J. Massey, J. Bryan, 1035, 823; A. Gregory, 594. After the usual business, the chair was taken by Bro. Thos. Clark, P.M., and Bro. David Jackson, the W.M. elect, was presented by Bros. H. Burrows and Hocken, P.M.'s, and the installation ceremony very efficiently performed by Bro. Clark. On the readmission of the brethren the usual Masonic honours were paid, and the work taken up by Bro. W. May, P.M., in a manner pleasing to all. The W. M. (Bro. D. Jackson) then invested his officers for the ensuing year, viz., Bro. H. Burrows, I.P.M.; Bro. W. Brackenbury, S.W.; Bro. L. Herman, J.W.; Bro. Thos. Clark, P.M., Treasurer (re-elected); Bro. W. May, P.M., Secretary; Bro. R. Whitehead, Organist; Bros. John Seddon and Thos. Falshaw, Senior and Junior Deacons; Bro. Thos. Smyth, I.G.; Bro. J. C. Callow, P.M., D.C.; Bro. C. Marsh, H. Marshall, and G. Leitch, Stewards. Bro. W. H. Ball was re-elected Tyler. The newly-chaired W.M. then proceeded to initiate a member, and performed the ceremony in a perfect manner. Before the lodge closed he presented a handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Burrows, I.P.M., expressing the kindly feeling of the brethren towards him in a few well-chosen terms. Bro. Burrows briefly replied, saying that it was most pleasing to him to receive such a gift after fourteen years' connection with the lodge. The brethren then adjourned to the banquetting-room for supper, when about 130 sat down, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured; that of "The Prov. G.M. and Prov. Officers" being responded to by Bro. John E. Jackson, P.M. 667, P.G. Steward, who said that this was an unexpected honour. His humble position in Prov. Grand Lodge hardly entitled him to say much, but he could not forbear expressing his admiration for their Pro Grand Master, and they ought to be very proud of him, not only as a Mason, but in his position in the councils of the nation and among their local aristocracy. In proposing the toast of "W.M.," Bro. Burrows, I.P.M., said he felt proud to see in the chair not only so worthy a Mason but an old friend. He was sure that, if spared, his work would be equal to any of his predecessors, and give every satisfaction to the brethren. The W.M., in responding, said he must thank the I.P.M. for the very flattering terms in which his health had been proposed, and also the brethren for the hearty way in which they had endorsed those sentiments in the high honour they had conferred upon him, and of which he was afraid he was not worthy. Still, with the assistance of such well qualified Past Masters as the lodge possessed, and who with their usual good feeling, he was sure, would support him, he hoped to go satisfactorily through his year of office. "The I.P.M. and Past Masters" was then proposed by the W.M. Bro. Burrows, in reply, said he felt exceedingly proud of the honour of being P.M. of such a lodge as 673, and returned his thanks. Bro. Pearson also responded. "The Installing Masters" was coupled with the names of Bros. Clarke and May. The former thanked the brethren, and said he was only conscious of having done his duty to the best of his ability. Bro. May said it gave him great pleasure to have taken part in installing their W.M., as he had watched his steady upward progress in Masonry, and was perfectly certain he would do the office credit. Bros. Shaw, P.M. 823; J. S. Jackson, P.M. 667; Burgess, I.P.M. 1325; and Healing, 1264, &c., responded to the toast of "The Visitors." The annual picnic took place on the following day at Wynnstay Park, Ruabon, the seat of Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart., P.G.M. of N. Wales and Shropshire, when about 300 ladies and brethren were present.

HAVANT.—Carnarvon Lodge (No. 804).—The ceremony of installing Bro. T. P. Hall as Worshipful Master of this lodge took place in the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, 3rd inst., when there was a large attendance of brethren, including several Past Masters and officers of neighbouring lodges. Congratulations were received from the W.M.'s of 309, 903, 1428, and several other brethren. The Installing Master was Bro. Francis, P.M., who was assisted by a full Board of Masters. After the installation the Worshipful Master proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows: Bros. C. H. Liddell, S.W.; O. C. Harries, J.W.; J. Weeks, P.M., Treas.; T. Francis, P.M., Sec.; J. N. Hillman, P.M., M.C.; W. Dart, S.D.; H. Kimber, J.D.; J. E. Elverston, I.G.; H. Richardson and A. J. Reed, Stewards; T. B. Askew, Organist; W. Blackmore, Tyler; and Bro. G. Blackmore, Assistant Tyler. The important business of the lodge having been concluded, the brethren adjourned to the Dolphin Hotel, where a recherche banquet was served, which reflected the greatest possible credit on Bro. J. Purnell and his staff. On the removal of the cloth, the Worshipful Master proposed "The Queen and Craft," and subsequently he gave "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales." He was sure the brethren would agree with him that their royal Brother was one of the most hardworking men in the world, and that he did all he possibly could to advance the interests of the Craft. The toast was received with great enthusiasm. The W.M. next proposed "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, the Right Worshipful Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers," the toast being well received. He next gave "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, Bro. W. W. Beach, and the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past." It was perfectly clear that Freemasonry could not have flourished as it had flourished without good Provincial Officers, and he was glad to welcome that day those brethren who had taken provincial offices, and who had done him the honour to be present at his installation. The Provincial Officers had a deal of rough work to do sometimes, but they invariably acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of the brethren. He coupled with the toast Bros. P.M.'s Lintott, Malby, Hillman, and Green. Bro. Lintott, in responding, dwelt at some length on the merits of Bro. Beach, the Prov. G.M., and alluded to his great efforts to advance the best interests of the Order. It was not long ago that Bro. Beach had put himself to great inconvenience and travelled a great many miles in very inclement weather to perform the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the Carnarvon Lodge, and, subsequently, when the erection of the lodge premises had been completed, he came among them again to perform the ceremony of consecration. This, and, in fact, all the incidents of Bro. Beach's life, showed most conclusively that he had the welfare of the whole fraternity at heart. Bro. H. Martin Green, P.M., also responded. Bro. Clay, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the newly-installed W.M.," and in the course of his observations wished him a happy and prosperous year of office. The W.M., in responding, thanked the brethren heartily for the kind reception they had accorded him from time to time, and for the great honour they had done him in electing him as the W.M. of the lodge. He sincerely trusted that he should so carry out the duties which would devolve upon him so as to afford satisfaction to the brethren, and he promised faithfully that nothing but sickness or business of great emergency should ever prevent his being present in his place at the various lodge meetings. Of course, in all gatherings there must of necessity arise now and then some little unpleasantness, but he trusted that any little hitch that might occur during his year of office would speedily be overcome, and that they would be able to work harmoniously together. If peace and harmony existed, and the various officers and brethren did their duty, the lodge must prosper. Bro. H. Martin Green, P.M., proposed "The Visitors" in a neat speech, the toast being duly acknowledged by each visiting brother present. "The Health of the Installing Master" was proposed by Bro. Weeks, P.M., and responded to by Bro. Francis, P.M., who expressed a hope that the year upon which they were about to enter, under the guidance of Bro. Hall, would prove even more prosperous than the years which had gone by. The W.M. proposed "The Past Masters of the Carnarvon Lodge," to which Bro. Clay, I.P.M., and Bro. Hillman responded, and both promised to render the W.M. every possible assistance during his year of office. The remaining toasts were "The Officers of the Carnarvon Lodge, Present and Past," proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Liddell, S.W.; "Bro. Weeks, P.M.," proposed by Bro. Triggs, P.M., and responded to by Bro. Weeks; "The Host," proposed by Bro. Clay, I.P.M., and responded to by Bro. J. Purnell, and the Tyler's Toast. The proceedings, which were of the most enjoyable character, terminated soon after eleven o'clock.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—An emergency meeting of the above lodge took place on Thursday the 27th June, for the transaction of preliminaries necessary at this large and important lodge for the forthcoming installation meeting. Bro. Butter, W.M., presided. Bro. Hayes, W.M. elect, and the other officers filling their several stations. The lodge having been opened in due form Mr. C. Capham was, after approval, initiated into Freemasonry, and before closing it was unanimously resolved, on the motion of the W.M., supported by the W.M. elect, that a vote of thanks be presented to Bro. C. Jolly and inscribed on the minutes of the lodge for his full and faithful reports of their meetings, as published in the Freemason during the last year. Bro. Jolly modestly and briefly returned thanks, and the lodge was closed. A most enjoyable evening was afterwards spent by the brethren.

The installation meeting took place on Thursday, the 4th inst., and was honoured by the presence of Bro. Eastes, D.P.G.M. Kent, and a large array of Present and Past Prov. G. Officers, visitors and brethren of the lodge, among whom were Bros. R. v. W. A. Hill, G. Chap.; F. Spurrell, P.M. 615, and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; C. Coupland, P.M. 913, and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; W. Russell, P.M. 77, P.P.G.D. Kent; R. Pidcock, P.M., 916, and P.G.D.C.; Sussex; T. Smith, P.M. 829, and P.P.G.P. Kent; T.

Hastings, P.M. 829, and P.P.G.P. Kent; T. Wil's, P.M. 299, and P.G. Superintendent of Works, Kent; J. Scott Mutch, W.M. 706; A. Waters, W.M. 700. W. Weston, P.M. 1536; F. Dawson, 700; L. Etheridge, W.M. 829; Sydney Clarke, P.M. and Treasurer 706; E. W. Young, P.M. 704; W. P. Appleber, P.M. 13; W. Muster, P.M. 1349; W. G. Wingrove, W.M. 299; T. Butt, P.M. 700; T. Hutton, J.W. 13; J. Donally, S.W. 706; H. Picken, S.W. and W.M. elect, 1536; A. Woodley, S.W. and W.M. elect 700; J. Warren, J.W. 700; H. Syer, Sec. 13; Eugene Swene, J.W. 706; W. Wilson, I.G. 166; S. Streeter, 972; Jos. Chapman, 942; G. Beaver, 700; T. Holleyman, 1536; Watkins, 1536; S. W. Iron, 902; W. G. Batchelor, 548; E. B. Burr, 1349; E. H. Williams, 1056; D. Campbell, 33; Roberts, 77; Jas. Ellis, 700; W. Ponton, 1158; B. de B. Lopez, 6; and C. Jolly (Freemason). The Past Masters present were C. A. Ellis Fernor, E. Denton, Sec., and P.P.G.P. Kent; J. McDougall, A. Penfold, and W. T. Vincent. The lodge was opened at two p.m., Bro. H. Butter, W.M., in the chair, and shortly after the arrival of Bro. Eastes was announced. Upon that distinguished brother entering the lodge he was received with grand honours, and took his seat at the right of the chair. Their being no other business before the lodge, the ceremony of installation was immediately proceeded with, and Bro. T. D. Hayes, S.W. and W.M. elect, was presented to the Installing Officer, Bro. Butter, and in due form seated in the chair of K.S. He then proceeded to invest his officers as follows: Bros. W. B. Lloyd, S.W.; James Chapman, J.W.; E. Denton, Sec.; A. Jessup, Treas.; R. J. Cook, S.D.; H. Mason, J.D.; R. Edmonds, I.G.; C. Cooke, Org.; H. Pryce, D.C.; Reed, W.S.; and R. Lester, Tyler. The charges were then delivered most eloquently, and indeed the whole ceremony was magnificently worked by Bro. Butter, whose installation of his successor will long be remembered with pleasure by all who had the privilege to be present. A cordial vote of thanks was then passed to Bro. Eastes for honouring the lodge by his presence, and that brother briefly returned thanks. A handsome Past Master's jewel of the value of ten guineas was then placed by the W.M. upon the breast of Bro. Butter, and he was unanimously thanked for his splendid working of the installation, and after he had returned thanks, the lodge was closed, and the brethren sped away by special train to Gravesend. There, at the New Falcon Hotel, Bro. Sam Hubbard's pleasant hostelry, a superb banquet awaited them, which having been fully considered and the cloth cleared, the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," saying, as Englishmen they were all faithful to their country and loyal to their Queen, and when they looked upon her, not only as the sovereign of those realms, but the mother of three noble Masons, one of whom was their future King, and present Grand Master, and the two others holding a high and distinguished position in the Craft, he felt sure they would drink it heartily and wish her long life and every happiness. The next toast was that of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, our Grand Master. They all knew the great and unceasing interest their G.M. took in progress, both at home and abroad. In France his labours for the success of their Great Exhibition had endeared him to the whole of the French nation, and at home he was first in all good works. It was only the day before that he had been into the country for the purpose of opening a Fine Art Exhibition, and for that labour in the advancement of Art and Science, as well as for his great interest and exalted position in Masonry, they felt it a duty and a pleasure to honour him. The next toast was that of "The Pro G.M., Earl Carnarvon; the D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," and in putting it the W.M. said, they were honoured that night by the company of a most distinguished Mason, Bro. Hill, who was a Grand Chaplain of England, as well as Grand Chaplain of their own Province of Kent, and he felt sure there was no one they felt more delighted to have among them than Bro. Hill. They felt proud and gratified at the high position he held among the Masons of England. None could be more worthy, and none could do greater credit to that position. He coupled the name of Bro. Hill with the toast, and asked them to do honour to it. Bro. Hill, in response, said he regretted that the two Grand Officers sitting under H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and named in the toast, were not present, because, if they were, they would go away with a good opinion of the Pattison Lodge. H.R.H. was well supported by his officers in Grand Lodge, and they knew what it was to have good officers if they wished to become efficient. In Lord Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale they had two most able and devoted Masons, worthy by their talents and abilities for the exalted stations they occupied. The first from his earliest youth was a great master of the most abstruse sciences, and eloquent, both in his own and other tongues. As an orator he was second to none for grace and elegance. In his intercourse with the brethren he was always courteous and earnest, and ruled them with an easy yoke. In Lord Skelmersdale he had an able coadjutor, whose labours for the Craft was unceasing. Next week he would be at Clacton, presiding at the launching of the life-boat, given to that coast as a thank-offering to the G.A.O.T.U. for the safe return of our beloved G.M. from India. So that seeing the great work of love and good that these brethren did, he felt that they must be like the knights of old, who won their spurs by perseverance in good works, and well did they deserve the good wishes and earnest prayers of the brethren. For himself he thanked them for their kind notice of his promotion, in the name of Grand Lodge for their enthusiastic reception of the toast. The next toast was that of "Lord Holmesdale, Grand Master of the Province of Kent, Bro. Eastes, D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers." Bro. Hayes in putting it, said those who had attended Grand Lodge must have seen the genial way Lord Holmesdale had of conducting the business of that lodge. In the person of their D.G.M., Bro. Eastes, they had a good Mason, and one who devoted a great deal of his time to the needs of the province. All of them were under a deep debt of obligation to him for doing so. And now, brethren, said the W.M., in conclusion, what I lack in words to express our admiration of our esteemed brother, you make up in enthusiasm. Bro. Eastes, in responding, said he could hardly find words to thank them sufficiently for their reception of the toast, and more particularly for the kind way in which it had been put by the W.M. With regard to Lord Holmesdale, their G.M., they had good reason to be proud of him. He (Bro. Eastes) knew something of the labours of their G.M. and the interest he took in Freemasonry. At Canterbury, yesterday, he (the G.M.) had conducted the proceedings with that courtesy and kindness that was so like him, and which made it a pleasure as well as an honour to be in communication with him, and he trusted that T.G.A. O.T.U. would, in his wisdom and mercy, let their Bro. Lord Holmesdale long be spared to rule over them and aid them in their efforts for the good of Freemasonry in this their grand old Province of Kent. For himself he felt it a sorrow that circumstances prevented him visiting so often as he should like so large and excellent a lodge as the Pattison. He must congratulate the W.M. upon what he had seen of the working of it. Bro. Hill had a brother here who was at Canterbury yesterday, and that brother had expressed his unequalled gratification at the magnificent sight presented there, and he (Bro. Eastes) felt it a most gratifying sight to see a lodge like the Pattison, meeting some 130 strong, and all bound together in one bond of brotherly love and unity. It was a sight that made him, and might make any one feel proud of Freemasonry, and of the province. It had often struck him, and it might be, that in a large lodge, where there were no doubt many aspirants for office, that feeling of jealousy might arise, and that its very strength might be ultimately its weakness. Of course it was possible for all to hold office, and he had often thought that perhaps a lodge might be too large to firmly bind together all the elements that might be supposed to make it a prosperous lodge, but now, and that night, he saw that such a thing might be; that a lodge might not only be large, but united so genially together, as to fulfil all the conditions of a thoroughly happy and prosperous one. From this neighbourhood he always received great and many tokens of friendship, and although living in a distant part of the province some of them might think that he did not look sufficiently after them in the western portion of it, he could assure them that he did, and desired but one thing, and that was the welfare and prosperity of all and every lodge in the province. The next toast was that of "The Provincial Officers, Past and Present," coupled with the names of Bros. Wills, Coupland, and Spurrell, each of whom responded. Bros. Butters, I.P.M., then rose to propose the toast of "The W.M.," and in the course of an eloquent address said he felt that in relinquishing the chair to one who had by arduous work rendered himself worthy of holding it he would lose none of the prestige that had hitherto surrounded it. He asked them to give the new occupier the same hearty support that they had given him. He felt that he had passed through a year of great work and intense pleasure. The work he sought, and the pleasure they had given him in the unremitting expression of their fidelity and brotherly love. He felt that he had done his best, and had not had one bad quarter-of-an-hour with any single brother of the lodge. He should always regard, with the greatest satisfaction, the handsome jewel they that day had presented to him, because it came with a spontaneity that bore evidence of their goodwill to him. He felt, however, that he was speaking too much about himself, and too little about the W.M. He asked them then to give their support to a most worthy man and Mason. They knew the manner in which he had passed through the subordinate offices of the lodge, and they could see that he would be able to do the same good work in the highest, and wishing him a prosperous year of office, he asked them to do honour to the toast. Bro. Hayes in reply said he thanked the brethren for their kindness, and felt exceedingly gratified to hold the office they had unanimously elected him to. He trusted he should be found worthy of it. He was a bad speaker, but hoped he should be a good worker. Their I.P.M. was a most excellent one, and he was afraid he should only be a foil to him, but if they would only give him their support, he would try all that in him lay to fill the position as they desired to see it filled. In the past years they had accorded him their suffrages, and in the future he hoped he should continue to merit it. The toast of "The Past Masters of and belonging to the Lodge" followed, and Bros. Butter, Ellis, McDougall, Smith and Pidcock severally responded. To that of "The Visitors," Bros. Mutch, Burt, Weston and Hill responded, and after Bro. Lloyd had responded for "The Officers," the meeting broke up, and the brethren returned to Woolwich and Plumstead. The musical arrangements were in the hands of Bro. Sallenger, who with Madame Sallenger, Miss C. Claremont, and Bro. Arthur Thomas, enlivened the proceedings with a choice selection of morceaux, and Bro. Hubbard was congratulated upon all sides for his excellent catering.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Victoria Lodge (No. 1013).—The annual installation meeting in connection with this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The chair was taken by the retiring W.M., Bro. C. A. Whitney, supported by Bros. James Thompson, S.W.; J. R. Rowan, J.W.; J. K. Hughes, P.M.; Lowe, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; E. Rogers, Treasurer, and others. The lodge having been opened, Bro. T. K. Hughes, P.M., took the chair, and proceeded to install Bro. James Thompson, the Worshipful Master elect, in his usual impressive manner. The regular Masonic honours were duly rendered, and the following officers invested by the W.M.:—Bros. C. A. Whitney, I.P.M.; J. R. Rowan, S.W.; J. Stoddart, J.W.; C. Vick, Secretary; E. Rogers, Treasurer (re-elected); H. Shewell, S.D.; T. E. Tomlinson, J.D.; R. Johnson, I.G.; T. K. Hughes, P.M., D.C.; W. C. Woods, Organist; J. Jordan and H. Glover, Stewards. Bro. P. Ball was re-elected Tyler. A Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. Whitney, I.P.M., and Bro. Hughes made the presentation on behalf of the brethren. The lodge then adjourned to the old lodge-room, where a very recherche dinner was provided by Bro. Vines, and a pleasant evening was spent. The toast of "The Provincial Grand Officers" was responded to by Bro. T. Armstrong, P.P.G. Treasurer; and the toast of the evening, viz., "The Worshipful Master," was most cordially received. "The Installing Master" and "The West Lancashire Educational Institution" were duly honoured; while "The Visitors" was coupled with the name of Bro. J. W. Turley, P.M. 1305 and 1473, P.P.G. J.D., &c., and warmly acknowledged. Bros. Hughes, P.M.; Lowe, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., and Whitney, I.P.M., answered for "The Past Masters." A number of glees and songs were rendered by the following brethren, to the great satisfaction of the members: Bros. Armstrong, W. Forrester, Tomlinson, W. C. Woods, Crowther, and S. Howard, the accompaniments being furnished by Bro. J. P. Bryan.

SHEERNESS.—De Shurland Lodge (No. 1089).—The adjourned meeting for the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing twelve months was held in the Victoria Hall (by the kind permission of the brethren of the Adams Lodge, No. 158). Bro. E. Penney, W.M., duly opened the lodge, when the V.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province of Kent, Bro. J. S. Eastes, was introduced to the brethren by Bro. J. R. Macdonald, P.M., and P.P.G.D. of C., with the usual Masonic honours. Previous to the installation the W.M. informed the brethren that he was entrusted with the (to him) pleasing duty of presenting a Past Master's jewel to Bro. John Hancock, P.M. and Treasurer of the lodge, which had been passed by a unanimous vote of the lodge. Bro. Hancock briefly returned thanks. Bro. A. Bourne, I.P.M., then introduced to the W.M. the W.M. elect, Bro. H. G. Clarkson, for installation, when the lodge having been raised through various degrees, and the usual preliminary questions having been answered by the Worshipful Master elect, a Board of Installed Masters was formed. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Penney, the retiring W.M., in a most pleasing and satisfactory manner, reflecting great credit upon Bro. Penney as an efficient brother of the Craft, Bro. Clarkson having been placed in the chair of K.S. and saluted with full honours in the different degrees according to ancient custom. Previous to investing his officers for his term of office, the W.M. presented the retiring W.M. with a Past Master's jewel, the receipt of which was thankfully acknowledged by Bro. Penney. The following brethren were invested with the insignia of their various offices: Bros. E. J. Penney, I.P.M.; W. Isaac, S.W.; J. Saffery, J.W.; John Hancock, P.M., Treas.; W. Pannell, P.M., Sec.; H. Johnson, S.D.; T. H. Smith, J.D.; T. G. Redman, I.G.; J. T. Murray and H. Vile, Stewards, and J. W. Parsons, Tyler. Amongst the visiting brethren present at the installation we noticed Bro. Tuff, S.W. of 1273, Bros. Green, Stutely, and several other brethren from Lodge 158, and others. The lodge was closed in the usual manner and with solemn prayer, when the brethren of 1089 and visitors adjourned to the Fountain Hotel, where a sumptuous dinner was placed on the table by Bro. A. W. Howe. About 40 brethren were in attendance. The W.M. presided, while the vice-chairs were filled by Bros. Isaac, S.W., and Saffery, J.W. The Worshipful Master proposed "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The R.W. the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers, Present and Past." The R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, Lord Holmesdale, M.P., which toasts were duly and enthusiastically honoured; "The R.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Eastes." In responding to this toast Bro. Eastes said that it had given him much pleasure and satisfaction to be present at that installation, especially as the whole of the proceedings of the day had been conducted in so highly satisfactory a manner. He was not in the habit of making invidious comparisons as to the working of the various lodges he was in the habit of visiting, but he must say that he was much pleased that he was present to commend the brethren of the De Shurland on the very efficient state of the lodge. After a few remarks on the necessity of a constant and increased support of the Masonic charities, the V.W. thanked the brethren for the very kind manner in which they had received him, and hoped it would not be long ere he could again visit them. The toast of "The Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," was coupled with the name of Bro. Thorpe, Provincial Grand Treasurer. Bro. Thorpe responded in a few appropriate remarks. The other Masonic toasts, "The W.M.," "The I.P.M. and Installing Master," "The Visitors," "The Secretary," "The Treasurer," and others, were all well received, and the day passed off in a most pleasant manner, and was concluded to be one of the most successful Masonic banquets ever held in Sheerness.

LEWES.—Tyrian Lodge (No. 1110).—On Wednesday, the 26th ult., the annual ceremony of installation in this lodge took place at the Gildredge Hotel, when Bro. A. Taylor was duly exalted to the dignity of W.M. for the ensuing year, and he appointed the following officers:—Bros. J. Head, I.P.M.; C. Crisp, S.W.; G. Perry, J.W.;

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF BERKS AND BUCKS.

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks was held on Wednesday week, in the Royal Borough of Windsor, when the whole of the sixteen lodges in the two counties were represented. The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in the Carlton Club Room at half-past one o'clock, the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., presiding. The officers of the Prov. G. Lodge also present included Bros. J. Palmer, W. H. Cutler, Rev. R. C. Honey, H. Clark, R. Bradley, W. H. Herbert, W. Fitch, L. Bryett, J. Fuller, A. M. Yettis, A. B. Weston, C. Nowell, W. H. Bingham, H. D. Hume, W. Rest, S. A. Pocock, R. Roberts, F. Manley, and others. The late Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, was also present.

The lodge having been opened in the usual form, the P.G. Master announced that the first business would be the installation of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. Bro. W. Biggs, late Provincial Grand Secretary, with three other Past Masters, then presented Bro. the Rev. Arthur Percival Purrey Cust, Archdeacon of Buckingham, and the patent or warrant of the P.G. Master, appointing the Archdeacon to the office, was then read by the Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Robert Bradley, after which the P.G. Master installed the Archdeacon, who was thereupon conducted to the seat on Sir Daniel's right, and the customary honours were given to the P.G. Master and also to the Deputy P.G. Master. The P.G. Secretary then called over the lodges in the province, and the brethren of each rose in response, after which the roll of Provincial Grand Officers was called, and most of the brethren appointed to provincial rank last year were in their places.

The financial statements for the past year were read by the Provincial Grand Secretary, showing the funds to be in a very satisfactory state.

The report of the Charity Committee was also read, and on the motion of the P.G. Master, seconded by Bro. Dixon, the sum of twenty guineas was voted from the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund to the Charity Fund.

The returns from the various lodges in the province being read, showed that Masonry is making a steady advance in this part of the country. The present number of members in the province, as shown by the returns sent in by the Secretaries of the different lodges, is upwards of 700.

The next business on the agenda paper being the election of a Provincial Grand Treasurer in the room of Bro. George Chancellor, of Reading, who succumbed to a long illness in the early part of the present year, the Provincial Grand Master said he desired to express on his own behalf, as well as on behalf of the whole province, the very deep regret felt at the death of Bro. Chancellor, who for some years fulfilled the duties of Treasurer to the credit of himself, and also to the satisfaction of the brethren generally. (Hear, hear). He felt sure that they would, without hesitation, agree in passing a vote of condolence with the widow and family of their deceased brother in their heavy affliction. (Hear, hear).

Bro. Grisbrook seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to.

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed that Major Charles Stephens, of Reading, and a member of the Union Lodge, No. 414, be appointed Provincial Grand Treasurer.

This proposal was seconded by the Deputy P.G.M., Archdeacon Cust, and unanimously adopted.

The Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to invest several brethren with the Provincial Charity jewel, which, of all Masonic jewels, is, perhaps, the most honourable, inasmuch as it testifies in itself that the holder has cultivated the virtue which is the very essence of Freemasonry, namely, "Charity," it being an indispensable requirement that a Mason should have served the office of Steward at the festivals of at least two of the great Masonic Institutions, and contributed liberally himself before he can receive from his province this distinguishing badge. The brethren to whom Sir Daniel presented the jewel on this occasion were Bros. John O. Carter, P.M. 209; G. M. Knight, W.M. 574; Edward Grisbrook, P.M. 771; and Thomas Taylor, J.W. 1410.

At this stage of the proceedings, the Provincial Grand Master, addressing the brethren, said it gave him much pleasure that day, as on former occasions, to be able to congratulate the province on the general prosperity of the Craft. Sir Daniel then referred to some points which were referred to with the greatest interest, and proceeded to the next business, namely, the appointment and investiture of the Provincial Grand Officers as follows:

Barron Fielder, 574	Prov. G.S.W.
McCubbin, 948	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. R. C. Honey, 1101	Prov. G. Chap.
T. N. Garry, 414	Prov. G. Chap.
Major Charles Stephens, 414	Prov. G. Treas.
Arthur Welch, 1101	Prov. G. Reg.
Robert Bradley, 414	Prov. G. Sec.
W. H. Bingham, 771	Prov. G.S.D.
W. S. Cantrell, 1501	Prov. G.J.D.
S. A. Pocock, 414	Prov. G.S. of W.
C. D. Hume, 209	Prov. G.D.C.
G. T. De Fraine, 591	Prov. G.A.D.C.
R. L. Shepherd, 945	Prov. G.S.B.
R. B. Bateman, 591	Prov. G. Org.
R. Revell, 840	Prov. G. Purs.
C. Nowell, 771	Prov. A.G. Purs.
J. W. Britton, 1566	Prov. S.G. Stwd.
Barrett, 945; Baker, 945; A. H. Simpson, 945; Dick Radclyffe, and F. Ferguson	Prov. G. Stwds.

The business of the lodge shortly afterwards terminated, having occupied less time than usual, there being no special subjects for discussion.

At three o'clock the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided at the Town Hall in a most satisfactory manner by Mr. Kemsley, of the Castle Hotel. The floral decorations were unusually beautiful, and for these the brethren were indebted to the taste and liberality of Bro. Dick Radclyffe, of the firm of Dick Radclyffe and Co., the eminent florists, of High Holborn. The Prov. G. Master presided, supported by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master (Archdeacon Cust), Rev. R. C. Honey, Rev. T. N. Garry, Bros. Hodges, Stephens, Biggs, Cutler, Winkfield, Bradley, and others. The company also comprised, in addition to the brethren whose names are given above, Bros. J. Stacey, W. S. Cantrell, H. D'Almaine, J. Strange, C. A. Barrett, W. Graham, G. M. Knight, S. Bradley, J. T. Stransom, W. J. Westrope, S. Knight, G. Cosburn, (Freemason), R. Ravenor, J. G. O'Farrell, W. H. Herbert, E. Baker, R. Nicholson, C. W. Seymour, H. Perks, T. V. Davison, H. D. Gooch, J. Cooper Forster, S. B. Merriman, Jos. Johnson, C. P. Smith, J. Whitehouse, Hickie, and others.

The musical arrangements devolved upon several brethren of St. George's Chapel Choir, under the able direction of Bro. Tolley, P.G.J.D., whose admirable performances greatly enhanced the pleasure of the party.

Grace was said by the Provincial Grand Chaplain, and dessert having been introduced, the P.G. Master proposed the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," which was followed by that of "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England, Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," both being received with great cordiality.

The P.G. Master then proposed "The Health of the M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. the D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers of England, Present and Past," for whom Bro. Winkfield, one of the Grand Stewards, returned thanks.

The Prov. Grand Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. R. C. Honey, of Reading, said it was a great pleasure, and he also regarded it as a great privilege, to propose the next toast, "The Health of the R.W. the P.G. Master, Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P." (Cheers.) The reverend brother said that no doubt there were many present who were far more able to take custody of this toast than he was, owing to their more lengthened acquaintance with the Provincial Grand Master, nevertheless he felt from his own knowledge of Sir Daniel, and the way in which he discharged his duties, that he would not be expressing his own individual opinion too highly, and would not be reflecting the opinion of the brethren too highly, when he said that they could not possibly have a more worthy representative of the Craft in the chair than Sir Daniel Gooch. (Cheers.) He felt sure that as regards Sir Daniel's qualifications for that and other positions he held there could not be two opinions. (Hear, hear.) The remarkable dispatch with which Sir Daniel performed the duties of P.G.M. in the lodge must have secured the admiration of every working brother, (hear, hear), while the genial and hospitable way in which he presided at the banquet must also have given the brethren much satisfaction. (Cheers.)

The P.G. Master said he thanked the brethren very much for the hearty reception they had given to the last toast. It always gave him great pleasure to be among the brethren, whether at Windsor or elsewhere, as they invariably received him with the greatest possible kindness and cordiality. Sir Daniel then announced that the Provincial Grand Lodge would meet at Abingdon next year, and although he could not promise the brethren, the splendour, he might say wonderful, reception which they had on their last visit to that town, he felt sure they might all look forward to a very hearty greeting. (Cheers.)

The brethren then drank "The Health of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Archdeacon of Buckingham," who had been compelled to leave the banquet through an engagement at Aylesbury.

Sir Daniel remarked that it was a matter of satisfaction that a man so deservedly popular as Archdeacon Cust had accepted the office. (Hear, hear.)

The health of the Past Grand Officers being embodied in this toast, Bro. Cutler responded.

To the toast of "The Visiting Brethren" Bro. Berry replied, and Bro. Dick Radclyffe responded to the reference made by Sir Daniel to the Masonic emblems which that brother had so tastefully arranged with flowers of the sweetest and choicest description. The toast of "The Masonic Charities" was eloquently given by the Rev. T. N. Garry, Vicar of St. Mary's, Reading, who observed that it had fallen to his lot to propose that which, after all, formed the very object, and end, and soul of the Craft. (Hear, hear.) The Masonic charities were an honour to the Craft as a body, and also to the individual brethren by whom they were supported, and he sincerely commended the great charitable institutions of the Order to the sympathy and help of those brethren who were not subscribers already. (Cheers.)

Bro. Carter, one of the brethren who had that day been presented with the Charity jewel, briefly replied.

To the toast of the newly-appointed Provincial Grand Officers, Bro. McCubbin, Junior Grand Warden, and Bro. Arthur Welch, Grand Registrar, responded, the facetious speech of the latter provoking much laughter.

The healths of Bro. Major Stephens, Grand Treasurer, and Bro. Robert Bradley, the Grand Secretary, were proposed and cordially received, each brother suitably responding.

The next toast was "The W.M., Officers, and Brethren of the Ettonian Lodge, No. 209, and Windsor Castle Lodge, No. 771," by whom the arrangements for the reception of the Provincial Grand Lodge had been so admirably carried out.

The W.M. of the Ettonian Lodge, and Bro. Tolley, a Past Master of the Windsor Castle Lodge, acknowledged the compliment, after which two or three other toasts were drunk, and the company rose at about seven o'clock.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF KENT.

The meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge in the ancient city of Canterbury, on Wednesday, the 3rd of July, stands without a parallel in the Masonic history of the county of Kent, for never during its existence has been before seen anything at all approaching it, either as regards numbers or the rank and importance of those by whom this Provincial Grand Lodge was attended; and when the brethren were assembled in the Chapter House, clothed in purple or cerulean blue, and their breasts blazing with the jewels worn by them in the discharge of their duties in the Craft, a scene of brilliancy was presented seldom, if ever, witnessed out of the metropolis. It must have been not less gratifying to the Masons of Kent than to their esteemed Provincial Grand Master himself, to see him so well supported on this occasion, for there was not a single lodge in his province but members from it had assembled to do him honour, as only a just acknowledgment of the services his lordship has rendered to the Craft during the eighteen years he has presided over them, and the extraordinary increase in lodges and members in the county during that period. With reference to the present meeting there is one fact that is deserving of special notice, and that is the great kindness and courtesy shown to the Provincial Grand Lodge by Dr. Payne Smith, the Dean of Canterbury, who in the most unreserved manner allowed the use of the Chapter House, the cathedral, and pulpit on the present occasion, and in the after part of the day. On the motion of Lord Holmesdale, a cordial and unanimous vote of thanks was passed for his kindness in allowing their use for the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge. Thanks were also due to Mr. H. G. Austin, the cathedral surveyor, who had done all in his power to make the Chapter House comfortable and convenient, so that it could be properly "tiled" during the meeting.

A procession having been arranged the brethren entered the lodge room, Lord Holmesdale, the Provincial Grand Master, occupying the throne, Bros. Akers Douglas, and F. Spurrell occupying the chairs as Grand Senior and Junior Wardens and the following brethren were present:—A. Rawson, P. Prov. G.O.; T. Asher, P. Prov. G.R.; F. F. Giraud, P. Prov. G.D. Kent; E. T. Budden, P. Prov. G.S.D. Dorset; W. Earnshaw, P. Prov. G.J.D.; W. F. Gosling, P. Prov. G.J.D.; J. H. Hallett, Prov. G.R.; R. Elliott, P. Prov. G.R.; J. Hunt, P. Prov. G.D. Punjab; W. Cessford, P. Prov. G.R.; W. A. Hill, G.C., Prov. G.C.; B. K. Thorpe, Prov. G. Treas.; J. Mangan, D.D., P.G.D. North and Hunts; J. L. Terson, P. Prov. G.S.D.; N. G. Pownall, Prov. G.S.W.; W. Make, P. Prov. G.R.; C. Collinson, P. Prov. G.S.W.; T. Hemery, P. Prov. G.J.W.; G. W. Greenwell, P. Prov. G.J.D.; T. S. Warne, Prov. G.A.S.; R. Eastley, Prov. G.T.; R. B. Newsom, P. Prov. G.S.B.; A. Wootton, P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. M. Emmerson, P. Prov. G.S.D.; J. Fenwick, P. Prov. G.S.B.; W. Sheen, P. Prov. A.D.C.; C. Reuter, Prov. A.G.D.C.; W. Hern, P. Prov. G.S.B.; J. Hazeldine, P. Prov. G.D.C.; A. J. Vanderlyn, P. Prov. G.S.B.; A. Avely, P. Prov. G.B.; J. McDonald, P. Prov. G.D.C.; R. Fry, P. Prov. G.J.D.; J. H. G. Snowden, P. Prov. J.G.W.; C. Coupland, P. Prov. J.G.W.; F. W. Edwards, P. Prov. J.G.W.; W. M. Cavel, P. Prov. G.S.D.; G. E. Hawkes, P. Prov. G.S.B.; H. Ward, P. Prov. G.W. Wilts.; M. Hicks, P. Prov. G.S.B.; H. Spurrell, Prov. G.J.W.; R. J. Emmerson, P. Prov. G.J.W.; J. Thomas, P. Prov. G.S.W.; T. Walker, P. Prov. G.S.; E. Corte, Prov. G.D.C.; W. Green, Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex; W. Page, Prov. G.J.W.; W. Green, Prov. A.G. Purs.; J. T. Eastes, D. Prov. G.M.; J. Twiflen, P. Prov. G.S.W.; G. Adamson, P. Prov. G.A.D.C. Kent; E. Ashdown, P. Prov. G.S.W.; A. E. Relf, P. Prov. G.S.D.; A. Spears, P. Prov. G.A.; J. Nichols, P. Prov. G. S. of W.; M. Knight, P. Prov. G.D.C.; W. Hills, P. Prov. G.J.D.; W. Parnell, P. Prov. G.S.W.; C. Burley, P. Prov. G.A.D.C.; J. B. Hanson, Prov. G.C.; L. Finch, P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. Bagshaw, P. Prov. G. Org.; H. Wood, P. Prov. G.S.W.; T. Wyles, P. Prov. G.D.; T. Smith, P. Prov. G.P.; T. Hasting, Prov. G.P.; H. T. Sankey, P. Prov. G.S.W.; G. Watson, P. Prov. G. Reg.; J. Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; H. Thompson (Freemason), and a very numerous assemblage of W. Masters, Past Masters, officers, and brethren, representing the various lodges in the province.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in ample form, the minutes of the last annual meeting were read and confirmed.

The Prov. Grand Master then appointed the following brethren Grand Officers for the ensuing year:

Col. A. H. King, P.M. 905	Prov. G.S.W.
Philip Higham, P.M. 31	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. W. A. Hill, M.A.	Prov. G. Chap.
Rev. J. B. Harrison, M.A.	Prov. G. Chap.
George Payne, P.M. 1273	Prov. G. Reg.
B. K. Thorpe	Prov. G. Treas.
Alfred Spencer	Prov. G. Sec.
R. C. Burfield, P.M. 30	Prov. G.S.D.
Fredk. Spencer, P.M. 1063	Prov. G.J.D.
Thos. Wills, P.M. 299	Prov. G.S. of W.
Thos. Ayling, P.M. 1096	Prov. G.D. of C.
J. P. Griffin, P.M. 1050	Prov. A.G.D. of C.
Simon Young, P.M. 184	Prov. G.S. Br.
J. H. Jewell, P.M. 1223	Prov. G. Org.
J. Hancock, P.M. 1089	Prov. G. Purs.
H. S. Neate, P.M. 77; T. S. Chancellor, P.M. 127; B. S. Wilmot, P.M. 874; Geo. Pilcher, P.M. 972; Geo. White, P.M. 1174; H. T. Naylor, P.M. 1449	Prov. G. Stwds.
R. Eastley,	Prov. G. Tyler.

The new Grand Officers having been invested and taken their proper places, the following grants were made: A hundred guineas to the Boys' School in the name of D.P. G.M. Eastes, in order to make him a Vice-President of that Institution. Twenty guineas were also given to the Royal Benevolent Institution for each of the following lodges: 1414, Sevenoaks; 1324, Chatham; 184, Brompton; 199, Dover; 396, Dartford. To the Boys' School twenty guineas each were given for 1414, Sevenoaks; 1424, Chatham. For the Girls' School twenty guineas each were given for 1414, Sevenoaks; 1424, Chatham; 829, Sidcup; 874, Tunbridge Wells; and 913, Plumstead.

The lodge was then adjourned for the purpose of allowing the brethren to attend Divine Service in the cathedral, and the well-known dislike of the Provincial Grand Master of allowing any public Masonic display in clothing was here avoided, as the brethren had only to pass from the Chapter House through the cloisters, and enter the cathedral by a side door, so that any passage into the public streets was avoided. The service was conducted by the Rev. Bro. Syree, and the anthems sung were composed expressly for this festival by Bro. W. H. Longhurst, Mus. Doc., who presided at the organ.

The service having concluded,

Bro. the Rev. W. A. Hill, M.A., Vicar of Throwley, Grand Chaplain of England, and Provincial Grand Chaplain, preached the sermon, taking his text from the Book of Micah, vi. 8—"He hath stewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord thy God require of thee but to justify and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" This is not the first occasion, my brethren, by many, on which we, as members of the Masonic body, have united together in public worship in the house of prayer and craved from God a blessing upon our proceedings, and listened to words of exhortation from the pulpit. The recurrence of our Annual Festival should speak to us in deeper and more solemn tones than ever, and remind us that our opportunities for doing good and improving events are drawing to a close. Few amongst the many who, now almost eighteen years ago, knelt with us in the Parish Church of St. George's, Gravesend, are present now. We can easily recall the faces and names of some who have fallen from our side, and we yet mourn their loss. New acquaintances are here in large numbers, but the old friends have departed. Our own summons to arise and go will soon come. May we then so number our days as to apply our hearts unto true wisdom. In speaking to you we shall endeavour to be open and unreserved, and so we trust God's Word will abundantly profit and have free course and be glorified in our lives and conduct. We propose speaking on the essentials of happiness—ever abiding happiness—the very thing we need; for how to quaff a full cup is man's special aim, but as paths across country generally wind in various directions, so methods vary to gain happiness, because opinions differ as to what constitutes it. The covetous man, who places his highest good in the acquisition of wealth, and glazes over gold, experiences small satisfaction, save from the contemplation of increasing hoards. The sensual man cares only for the gratification of his appetites, and with him everything is made subsidiary to self-indulgence. The ambitious man knows no happiness apart from rising above his competitors and wielding the rod and tasting the sweets of power. And the philosopher esteems all else as poor that is not connected with his favourite theories. It is the same with all those who, with the ardour of children chasing the painted butterflies, pursue eagerly the shadows of this ever-changing scene. There are, however, some of a different type who refuse to stake their all upon uncertainties: men, alive to the fact that they are destined for an existence beyond this earth, and these crave to know what awaits them in the future, and study to lay the foundation of their happiness in learning and performing the requirements of God. These rejoice in the revelation He has been pleased to make of Himself, and to this they cling as the rule of that faith and practice. This class is the only one which can expect permanent happiness—these alone get it. Their hopes are bright during the term of their earthly pilgrimage, and when their short day is done, they enter into peace in a mansion provided for them by Divine love and mercy. Among these aspirants we include our brethren of the mystic tie, provided always that they hold fast to the ancient landmarks of the Order, cultivate the gifts of the Holy Ghost, and daily strive to become marked and polished stones for the King's Palace. Fortunately for them, and deserving of recollection in these times of spiritual difficulties and departures from truth, from the day of their initiation into the Masonic body, the deepest reverence for God and His revealed Word has been impressed upon them. They have in the striking words of their ritual been led to esteem the volume of the Sacred Law as the unerring standard of truth and justice, and to regulate their actions by the precepts which it contains. They have been charged to learn the preciousness of prayer, and to realise its power, to implore God's aid in all lawful undertakings, looking up to Him in every emergency for comfort and support. Working on such sure foundation, and assured that any other would prove as sand—contemptible and worthless—especially where the heart is sad, and on the approach of death, the true Mason goes forward working and labouring, and finally raises a superstructure, a spiritual house, which no storm or tempest can destroy. He who thus aspires and acts is on the high road to the Palace of perpetual bliss. Our ancient Master Solomon, the founder and finisher of the first Temple of Jerusalem, has left a record—"a word in season how is it!" And liable as the purest men and the noblest institutions are to the attacks of open and secret enemies, we may rejoice with all those who venerate our ancient Order upon the providential escape recently made from the determination of men banded together in conspiracy, to secularise our society, and give it a non-religious character. If on the attractive ground of tenderness for the feelings of others, and perfect toleration to all and religious freedom, we had listened to syren voices, we should at this moment have been as the wounded bird fluttering in the dust, and on the high road to disruption. We allude to the proceedings of the French Masons—the Grand Orient of France—which has surrendered up its ancient landmarks, and under pretence of being unsectarian and giving entire liberty of conscience has banished both the name and idea of God from its Constitution. Its candidates are no longer required to trust in God, but only in themselves. Belief in God—of all the landmarks the strongest and last to be surrendered—has been by a vote of 135 lodges to 76 abolished. This breach in the foundation of ancient Masonry at once aroused the attention of the brethren in the United States of America, the members of the Irish Grand Lodge, and others, and last, but not least, our own Grand Lodge of England, which, having well considered the matter and foreseen the destruction of the grand edifice which we are proud to raise to Eternal Truth, unanimously resolved that an entire severance from association with all persons tainted with this dreadful heresy must be made. The lopping off of the diseased limb has been performed as a melancholy duty, yet with admirable courage, with the firmness of the skilled surgeon, who, discerning mortification impending on the whole body, and eager to save life, cuts deep, adopting as his motto the spirit of the words of the gifted Roman—"Sed immedicabile vulnus esse recidendum ne pars sincera labatur"—and so by prompt action and by the use of the sharp sword we have escaped injury from the unsound limb, and we live and breathe freely, but we may not be haughty but rather fear, for the dangers that are coming are perilous, the air is filled with invitations to unbelief, and these voices are not hushed and low, but loud and stubborn. As a noble lord, an ex-Lord Chancellor, recently said: "There was in the world a flood of dismal and desolating doctrine which sought to make a negation of the human conscience and to drag the Almighty Himself from His throne. There was a prevalence of infidel opinions such as never was exhibited before, and the time had come when there would be a death-struggle between the truths of Christianity and the falsehoods of Atheism." Oh, let us think that if belief in God and the immortality of the soul, held no place in our hearts, and we, with the fool of scripture, held to the baneful and degrading theory—There is no God, how hopeless and lamentable would be our condition; and how could we dare enter this sacred fane, raise our heads amid all its historic and noble associations, where lights of varied tints like glories fall on aisles, and capitals and pillars, carved and sculptured by skilful hands of Masons of deep piety in days long gone by; where the fretted roof re-echoes the feeling anthem, and the organ rolls in majesty, and the sweet voices of the choir blend in harmony as though led by white-robed seraphs. If we were unbelievers our presence here would be an abomination and a desecration. We should set at defiance our own teaching, and ignore the very foundation on which our superstructure rests, the Volume of the Sacred Law, which distinctly proclaims man's fall by nature and his restoration alone through the grace and mercy of a spotless Saviour. Happily for us, our love to God and man binds us, and disinterested friendship unites us, and while we avoid various questions which engender strife, and decline in our assemblies to discuss theological controversies as tending to bitterness, and political topics as apt to separate chief friends, while at the same time we thirst for knowledge and intellectual improvement, and the acquaintance of high-minded and gifted men, and look beyond the enigmas of the present to a glorious future in the Grand Lodge above through the World's Redeemer, the bright and morning star, we need not write hard things against ourselves, but rather view ourselves as generally useful and honourable, and more than mere ornamental pillars in a great edifice, and not unworthy of the sympathy and kind reception conceded to us by the very reverend and highly-gifted Dean, the special guardian of this ancient and magnificent cathedral. Humbly thankful for present safety, for escape from rock and whirlpool, and conscious alone of the enormous power wielded by the Masonic body, either for evil or good, and praying that we may never become irreligious or revolutionary, we proceed to point out the essentials of lasting happiness. These are our permanent goals—justice, mercy, humility—for these polished and worn make up the life of holiness, without which there can be no true happiness, and apart from which no man can see the Lord. Alive to the truth that change is written upon everything, and that we are all drifting rapidly, though silently, down the stream of time onward to eternity, we are anxious to be reminded of our duty, to learn our marching orders, that we may loyally carry them out. As our moments are measured, brevity is imperative, and therefore we must content ourselves in the first place with a reference to the object of the writings of the prophet Micah. He was contemporary with Isaiah. He addressed his message to Judah and Israel, which contains sharp reproofs, encouraging promises, predictions of the Messiah, and of the establishment and prosperity of his kingdom. The seer was instructed to blame for ingratitude, to speak with boldness before the most powerful chiefs and monarchs, to proclaim the Lord's controversy or indictment against His people. God required to know what had aggrieved them, why they had become weary of His worship, and prone to idolatry. Had He oppressed them with heavy services? Had He refused to supply their wants and protect them? If they had anything to say let them speak out. He reminded them of their rescue from Egyptian slavery, of the provision made for their government and instruction by competent persons, Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. True he had defeated Balak the Moabite, and restrained the mercenary Balaam from execrations, and rendered abortive his fiendish malice. By thus stirring up the memory of the past, he led them to realise the equity and benevolence meted out to them, and so taught them not to bite the hand that fed them, but to render Him a grateful service. Touched by these remonstrances, some men, afraid of the Divine vengeance, and perceiving the necessity of approaching God with evidences of submission, enquire what propitatory sacrifices they should bring. The burnt offerings and sin offerings prescribed by the law might possibly be deemed insufficient, would their Jehovah be pleased with more numerous and costly oblations. Would thousands of rams atone, or rivers of oil suffice? or would the sacrifice of the child—the heart's fond treasure—the sweet maiden, budding into beauty, or the noble youth, fairest of form and fleetest of foot, avail? Such offerings as were made at Carthage and in Tyre to Moloch, the sun god, termed by John Milton, "horrid king"—

"Besmeared with blood,

Of human sacrifice, and parents' tears."

The response indicates that such offerings would be most distasteful. Jehovah speaks by His prophet, "He hath shewed, O man, what is good," &c., and where and how shewed? In the law, and by the voices of the prophets, delivered at sundry times and in divers manners, thereby confirming the value of the Divine word, of which the poet and warrior king testified. "The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart. The commandment of the Lord is for enlightening the eyes." The requisites are in number three, and these like the Divine decalogue comprehend much, and have, as the mature oak of the forest, many branches. The three great virtues, justice, mercy, and humility, are essentials to happiness—here and hereafter. And so that justice, what is it? That virtue which leads a man to give to every one his own, to render to all their dues. As regards God, to worship Him in the ever-blessed Trinity, serve Him, and obey Him; to see His goodness and benevolence pre-eminent in teaching the true faith, and informing us of His rights as Creator, Redeemer, and Sanctifier. As regards man, justice, requires to do to them as we would be done with, to help them to improve their condition, to render to them all kindly offices which brotherly love and charity can suggest. Justice is required to be exhibited in sincere attachment to the land of one's birth, conducing to its prosperity, and assisting to maintain its status among the nations, and practising loving obedience to the Queen and all constituted authorities. In every case self is to be kept in the background, and personal sacrifices to be gladly undertaken. And so, in like manner, as regards the second requirement—mercy—that sweet and moving creation of the heart, which induces us to rejoice with the prosperous and to weep with the distressed, to hasten to the rescue of the sick and suffering, to deliver the poor, the widow, and fatherless, to dry the tear from the eye of the orphan, and to deliver the lone and bruised from the hands of the oppressor. He who rightly claims the possession of this virtue, will act as the good Samaritan to the traveller from Jerusalem to Jericho, who fell among thieves. And even in the case of one who has forfeited character by wrong doing, and is entangled in the meshes of the legal net, he will strive to mingle judgment with clemency, so as not to exclude all hope of forgiveness or repentance and restitution. He who carries not the requisite of mercy, approaches nearest to God Himself, for He is a gracious God, long suffering, and full of compassion, and His tender mercy is over all His works. The third essential is the excellent grace of humility—the root of all others. Proclaiming that the daily walk of life must be in communion with God, in accordance with the example of Abraham, who "staggered not at the promises of God through unbelief," and of those noble ones who opposed not themselves to orders issued, because they could not comprehend all their object and scope, but practised childlike submission, and amidst enigmas waited for the unravelling hand, exclaiming "Thus it is written, and thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness." To ensure permanent happiness the requirements now pointed to, must be met. And hence comes the question—are they? By no means, generally, for notwithstanding laws divine, and laws human borrowed from the divine, man is by nature a rebel against authority. It is not needful to pourtray before you the acts of injustice, the frauds and felonies, murders and robberies daily brought to light. Our tribunals, civil and criminal, teem with the constant discussion of subtle conspiracies to cheat and deceive. And outside our own sea-girt land the two attempts recently made, the last of which was so nearly successful, to assassinate our illustrious Masonic brother, the Emperor of Germany, a venerable potentate of eighty-two summers, who has deserved well of his country in having raised it to the highest pitch of national glory, and whose only fault consisted, so far as we see, in having to exercise firm sway over his fellow-men, and to repress the wild outbursts and lawlessness of revolutionary socialists. The allusions made to acts of injustice daily committed, aided by the experiences of life, may suffice to satisfy that the first requirement of the text is not generally performed; and the next shares the same fate. Honourable exceptions there are—and not a few—but, as a rule, mercy does not prevail. Men are stern, they impute the vilest motives to each other, they look at the worst side, they strive to sting and wound each other; they rejoice in iniquity rather than in the truth. St. Paul alludes to man as the very opposite of true love in his grand encomium on true charity. And once more, do men walk humbly with their God, the Almighty Lord, whom they profess to adore? Alas! we must say no. Man is by nature full of pride, he has the hereditary taint in his veins. He strives to have his own way, and inasmuch as he cannot find out God to perfection because of the limited horizon of his mind, he too often defies him, and sets up the image of himself as his idol. He thinks he knows everything, when he knows nothing. The pride of the natural man is evident; he arraigns the Lord of a thousand worlds before his petty tribunal, and we hear or read daily of his foul ravings, and are shocked at his miserable presumption. The happiness of the family, the individual, and of society sorely suffers through neglect and failure in fulfilling the obligations demanded. Here comes then the practical and personal question. What shall we say to these things, what shall we do?—we who want to put the chalice of happiness to our thirsty lips, and quaff continued refreshing draughts from it. Why, strive by the help of God's Holy Spirit, and the use of all the means pointed out in holy Scripture, to act up to the personal surrender required—i.e. justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with our God. They who range themselves under the banner of Jehovah, and fight under a sense of His fatherly eye over them, will have strength given to them for their day, and a comfortable assurance of high promotion when the campaign of earth is finished. My brethren, let us rejoice in the Lord, sing praises unto His name, for His servants ye are to whom ye obey, for teaching us what is good, and revealing so much concerning Himself. Our position is favourable for growth and expansion. We have a goodly heritage, wondrous opportunities for usefulness. Let us not retrograde, but go forward, hate the slavery of sin, not be idolaters, or worshippers of wealth, and power, and self-gratification certainly are, but wise and temperate in all things as travellers on the path of humility, imitators of the mighty dead and of bright luminaries such as the Apostle of the Gentiles, who counted not his life dear to him so that he might win Christ, and be found in Him. Let us value our jewels, justice, mercy, humility, and remember if constantly worn they will never tarnish or fade. We have little more to say, but that little is connected with an appeal to your bounty. We ask from you on this festival a sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, and trust it may prove a substantial one. We plead for our Masonic Charities, and for an excellent institution or house of mercy, connected with this city and county, viz., the Kent and Canterbury Hospital. As to the Masonic Charities we may abstain from more than a passing allusion to them. They are not rarely spoken of as the pride of our Order, and certainly they do exhibit practical evidences that Masons are not unwilling to make large sacrifices for the sake of others. In our schools a good array of children—boys and girls—are carefully instructed, and through our Benevolent Institution old men and old women are comforted and cared for in their declining days; and through the charity funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent we testify that great benefits redound to individuals and the general credit of this body. It is not unworthy of observation that the sums voted to-day in the Provincial Grand Lodge have reached the handsome amount of £428. The Secretary of one of our Masonic Institutions lately said in public that the Masonic Institutions occupied a very prominent position in the history of the charities of England—prominent because they had a very limited circle to which to appeal, and from that limited circle they derived greater results than any other three institutions. Last year the Benevolent Institution, the youngest of the three, obtained at its festival £13,300; the Girls' School obtained £9,000; and the Boys' School £12,800. When the year 1877 closed it was found that the three Institutions had collected amongst them over £44,000. This is gratifying, but to repress pride we may say that without these signs of willing sacrifice Masonry would fail to hold its present high status. And now to the house of mercy. It is worthy of support. It carries out the Divine teaching of Him who said "I was sick and ye visited me." It has stood the test of time. Its doors are free to casualties and cases of suffering, without reference to creed, colour, or clime. By it the aggregate of human misery is lessened. The poor flock to it every week in crowds, and the gratitude of the convalescent and relieved is particularly well-known to the clergy of our retired villages. The patients are generously treated. They receive every comfort, the best attention, kind and quiet nurses wait upon them, and the highest medical skill is always at their command. The Institution tells manifestly of the power of Christianity in our land. It lives on Christian sympathy; it exists upon voluntary contributions. So, then, rejoicing, as many of us do, in splendid health and abundant wealth, or at least a competency, enjoying the highest religious privileges, having been kindly welcomed into this ancient city, and allowed the great privilege of offering worship to Almighty God in this sanctuary, let us exhibit our sense of the obligations under which we labour, and act as God's stewards, and leave a large blessing behind us, so shall our present happiness be augmented, and our future bliss be promoted; so shall the recollection of our visit be fraught with nought but pleasant memories to ourselves and others. And may God deign to accept what we this day render to Him of his own. May we say and of thine own have we given Thee.

At the conclusion the hymn, "The strain upraise of joy and praise," was sung during the collection of the offertory, the proceeds of which are to be divided between the Kent and Canterbury Cathedrals and the Masonic Charities. At the conclusion of the service the brethren returned to the Chapter House, the Provincial Grand Master resuming the chair, when a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the Dean and Chapter for the use of the Chapter House and Cathedral, and the lodge was closed in ample form and with solemn prayer.

The morning was ushered in by the cathedral bells, and they were frequently rung throughout the day.

At the conclusion of the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge the brethren proceeded to the Music Hall, where it had been arranged the customary banquet should take place. It is a large and very spacious apartment, in which long lines of tables were arranged longitudinally, with a gallery at one end devoted to the reception of Mr. Tench White's septet band, that discoursed most eloquent music during the dinner, and the rear of it was set apart for such visitors who felt an interest in being present, amongst whom were many ladies, whose patience must have been most severely tested in witnessing an agreeable business, in which, curiously enough, they are not allowed to participate. The hall was most elegantly decorated by Mr. Blogg with Masonic devices, and three noblemen of the neighbourhood contributed the flowers with which the table were decorated. Bro. John R. Hall, the very able and efficient Secretary of 31, Canterbury, as Hon. Secretary to the Reception Committee, was most indefatigable in his exertions to secure the comfort of all, and our representative had just reason to appreciate the kindness and truly Masonic courtesy he received at his hands. The chair was taken by Lord Holmesdale, and he was supported by all the Provincial Grand Officers, on a dais raised above the level of the flooring of the hall. When his lordship made his appearance to proceed to the presidential seat he was greeted with loud and truly hearty applause. The menu was a work of art and great taste, but we see no reason why, as Englishmen, speaking the Anglo-Saxon tongue, a document entirely in French should be put before a body of about 400 brethren, to a great majority of whom its contents must have been perfectly unintelligible. It is rather a severe reproach for it to be inferred that the English language is so poor that an adequate description of a dinner table cannot be obtained, and that a foreign tongue must be resorted to. However, the fare was very ample, and there was no stint of the most agreeable liquors with which it was accompanied. At the conclusion of the repast grace was sung by the professional singers with very good effect.

Lord Holmesdale said the first toast he should have the honour to propose was "The Queen," who always took a deep interest in the Craft, and in giving that toast the brethren would readily understand why no Masonic honours could be given.

The toast was enthusiastically responded to, followed by the National Anthem, the solo parts by Mrs. Rogers, a lady of great local celebrity.

Lord Holmesdale said the next toast he had to propose was "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," and the brethren knew that he not only took a deep interest in the Craft, but was also a thorough English gentleman. He should couple with the toast "Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." (Loud cheers, followed by "God bless the Prince of Wales.")

Lord Holmesdale, in giving "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, Earl of Carnarvon, and the rest of the Grand Officers," said he had for the first time the honour of coupling the name of a Kentish man with this toast, for since their last meeting his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had been pleased to appoint the Grand Chaplain of Kent to be one of the Grand Chaplains of the Grand Lodge of England, which was most gratifying to them, as Bro. Hill had been their Provincial Grand Chaplain for many years. At the last meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge a committee was formed to consider whether some fitting testimonial should not be presented to him, and the testimonial he should have the pleasure in handing over to him was a mark of respect, which was not to be measured by the amount, but as a token of the esteem the brethren entertained for him. He was a man who never cavilled at any time or attention that might be required of him, but when anything that might prove for the good of the county of Kent was to be done his services were freely and generously afforded, and to none were those services more known or better understood than by his brother Freemasons. In conclusion, he asked him in the name of the brethren of Kent to accept the testimonial, which he handed to him, and he felt certain that it was the fervent wish of all that he might for many years to come continue to enjoy the same esteem of his brother Masons as he did at the present time. (Loud and enthusiastic cheering.) His lordship then presented to him several articles of plate, and a purse of sovereigns, the whole of the value of upwards of £300.

The toast was most cordially received.

Bro. the Rev. W. A. Hill, M.A., said that if he had the gratification of speaking to them in a more dignified character, yet how could he do so in a more dignified manner than he could do in that room, which was so artistically arranged and beautifully and handsomely decorated with flowers, as well as with wild flowers culled by the hands of the fair ladies he saw before him, not far distant, and his only regret was that they did not come down from their elevated position and join them, for they did not know how delighted they felt if they were enjoying the same gratification and comforts as themselves. In mentioning the name of Lord Carnarvon and the rest of the Grand Officers, he might say that they were men who were always to the front in any good cause, and although they might not at all times entertain the same political views, yet when they were required to serve a friend or any good cause they did so to the utmost of their ability and power. He had had the honour of being appointed one of the Grand Chaplains of the Grand Lodge of England, but how that was brought about he never could understand, for such an appointment had never entered his mind, but he did believe that his lordship in the chair had something to do with it, and he formed this opinion because in his address that day his lordship had spoken of him far more kindly than he deserved, but he supposed that the reason was, that from time to time it was necessary that fresh blood should be introduced amongst Grand Officers, as well as every other body in the community. He felt great satisfaction, however, that he had not to speak before hard critics, but in the presence of men who understood the principle of brotherly love, relief, and truth, and in reference to the Masonic body, he had always pleasure and happiness when speaking in reference to their Institutions. He was not a juvenile, but rather falling into the sear and yellow leaf, and during the thirty-three years he had been a Mason he had highly enjoyed its institutions, he had formed many acquaintances and made many friends, and without the aid of the Masonic body he should have been ignorant of a large amount of valuable knowledge that he then possessed. A good Mason was a sincere and religious man, and that was the reason why they had so many good men amongst them. For many years he had been in and out amongst them, and that day he had come to receive at their hands the extraordinary favour they had been pleased to bestow upon him, although he never anticipated any thing of the sort, and was astonished at the generosity and kindness they had shown him. His lordship had handed him a bag, bound with gold, which he had no doubt was the work of the fair hands of one of the ladies he saw before him, filled as he believed with the current coin of the realm, judging from the specimen he had seen, and he could assure them that it would be discreetly applied. As to the valuable articles which he saw displayed before him on the table, he could tell them that it was his determination that they would not be wrapped up in leather and put away not to be seen, but should at all times be seen in the full blaze of light to remind him of their kindness, and they would be equally gratifying to him who might afterwards stand in his shoes as a memento of how his father was loved and esteemed by those who lived in times gone by. He looked upon those presents as a noble and generous act. As Masonic he had no doubt they were the offerings of the purest love, affection, and regard, for the brethren had freely put their hands in their pockets to give him what represented their love, which would cheer him on to his latest day, and others might take this warning, that if they went on and did what was right they might in referring to him say that this man was Grand Chaplain of England. He should go on his way rejoicing, and when his children from time to time looked upon the splendid objects before him they would feel that their father was respected and honoured, and never to his dying day should he forget their kindness; for it would be to him as an oasis in the battle of life, and he begged gratefully to thank them for the too much honour they had conferred upon him. (The rev. brother sat down amidst loud and continued cheering.)

Bro. Eastes (Deputy Provincial Grand Master) said it was the first time for eighteen years that he had to give the health of the Provincial Grand Master in the City of Canterbury, when they had met in the sacred edifice, which was so large and full that it must have satisfied the feelings of their Provincial Grand Master, whose health he then had the honour of proposing. In Canterbury they naturally looked back to the meetings of Freemasons, and he found that there had been only four meetings of the Provincial Grand Lodge there, which were in 1781, 1792, 1801, and 1857. As they did not come to Canterbury every day he might be permitted to take a retrospective glance at Freemasonry in 1857, then under the presidency of Bro. Chas. Purton Cooper, and contrast it with the presidency of Lord Holmesdale in 1878. In 1857 they met there, and he well remembered the gathering, and at that time there were but fifteen lodges in Kent, with 499 members. To-day he found from the last return there were forty-three lodges in Kent, with 2340 members. He thought, however, that the mere accession of numbers was not altogether sufficient if the amount they contributed to the charitable institutions was not good. In 1857 the amount sent up to the charitable institutions in London was £63, but in 1878 they sent up £352. In connecting his lordship's name with the toast, he believed a large amount of the increase was due to him, as he felt that under his rule Freemasonry had made its way, by the manner in which Freemasons had conducted themselves. He concluded by asking them to drink his lordship's health in bumpers, and with Kentish "fire."

Lord Holmesdale said he was greatly obliged to the brethren for the cordiality with which they had received the toast of his health, and the Deputy Grand Master for the manner in which he had proposed it. As regarded Freemasonry, for some years there had been a firm and steady increase, and he had every confidence that they would never have an ebb tide again. He looked forward with confidence for a steady increase in the Order, and he had no anticipation of a return of the cold time which prevailed from 1780 to 1820, but an increase as the years rolled on. The Deputy Grand Master had said a good deal about the meeting at Canterbury, and he might say with the exception of the meeting at the Albert Hall, on the occasion of the installation of the Prince of Wales, there had been no meeting attended by so many Freemasons as were present in the Chapter House that morning, for the numbers were so large and influential as to have exceeded the aspirations of the most enthusiastic Mason. He was glad to renew the practice of going to the Cathedral in procession, as he was opposed to parading in the public streets like a benefit club, but when they went by way of the cloisters, and passed over the graves of many worthy Masons, whose marks were to be still seen engraved on their tombs, he gave up old ideas, and went in at once for a procession. The whole was well done, and the whole ceremony was a great success. He hoped that the success of to-day would further help them in the county of Kent, and no doubt a number of recruits would come in and join them. In conclusion, his lordship said he hoped that Freemasonry in the future would increase in numbers, as it had done in the past. He then proposed, in very flattering terms, "The Health of Bro. Eastes, Deputy Grand Master."

Bro. Eastes returned thanks, and some other toasts having been given, the proceedings were brought to a close, the whole having passed off without a single hitch, and had given entire satisfaction.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.—Arrangements have been made with Mr. F. H. Macklin, of the principal London Theatres, to give a Dramatic and Musical Costume Recital at this hall, on Wednesday next, July 17th. The programme includes songs, recitations, and dramatic selections (in character) from "The Happy Pair," "Still Waters Run Deep," and "The Hunchback." Several well-known artists are to assist Mr. Macklin.

THE FREEMASON,

SATURDAY, JULY 13, 1878.

ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

This was a great success. The presidency of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught was certain to be hailed enthusiastically by the Craft, and a very goodly and distinguished company asserted alike the loyalty of the Order, and the attraction of the occasion. We are struck, as all will be, by the thoroughly practical character both of the speeches and proceedings, and we congratulate the authorities of the school, and Bro. Binckes on this satisfactory result of so many arduous labours and so many thoughtful preparations. The Stewards' returns, which amounted to £10,100, with twenty lists to come in, are, under the circumstances, we venture to think, alike commendable and satisfactory in the highest degree. Of this amount the metropolis apparently sends up £4600, and the provinces head the metropolis by about £1000. No doubt the twenty missing lists will yet considerably increase the amount for 1878. May we venture to ask here, by the way, why our good brethren, the Stewards, will not send their lists in at the proper time, and why they are "missing," or "wanting?" This is a question we have often heard asked before, and as we never yet listened to a satisfactory reply to so natural a query, we think it well to record this statistical phenomenon, and to express our opinion that it is very "hard lines" on our excellent brethren, the Secretaries, who naturally wish their list to be final, and complete. In the present state of trade, we could not, it is clear, expect a larger return, and, in our opinion, it is one which does credit to all concerned, and shows how hard every one must have worked to bring about so successful an anniversary. We say this, because amidst the "high figures" to which we have lately been accustomed at such festivals, (wonderful contrast to days gone by), spoiled by success, we are apt to overlook two stern facts, (1), that our returns are simply marvellous, per se, and such as no other society in the world can put forward, and (2) that we cannot always expect, humanly speaking, undimmed prosperity or advancing returns. The one simple fact, that, despite all the drawbacks of trade, and all the agitations of the money market, private anxieties, and public excitement, we English Freemasons have contributed £33,000, in round numbers, for our great central charities for 1878, is in itself worth a hundred eloquent speeches, and testifies strongly to the reality after all of our Masonic professions and declarations. We therefore beg heartily to congratulate all those who have been connected with this last anniversary on the success which has attended their zealous efforts, and on those admirable and effective arrangements which made all present comfortable and happy. Not to weary our readers in this hot weather, and as we have plenty of time before us, we beg to defer to next week a detailed examination of the relative returns of the metropolis and the provinces, though we allude to them in the gross above, as well as those general remarks on the present position of our great charities, which their actual circumstances and future prospects seem to warrant and require at our hands.

THE SECRETARIAL ELECTION FOR THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The election for Secretary took place on Thursday, the 11th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, when a large number of votes were recorded for the various candidates. Bro. Hedges was announced by the chairman to have received 373 votes, and to be therefore duly elected. We rejoice to announce the result, and we feel sure that it will be one which will alike please the Craft, advance the best interests of the subscribers, and lead to the real and lasting interests of that most useful Institution, the Girls' School. All the instructions for the election were admirably carried out to suit the convenience of the voters, and to render the voting a facile process for all. There was no confusion, no crowding, and the best thanks of all the subscribers and voters are due to Bro. Col. Creaton for the careful and skilful arrangements he had so ably and so considerably made. We congratulate the subscribers, the authorities, and Bro. Hedges sincerely, and we are convinced that the interests of the Girls' School are safe in his hands.

OUR GRAND MASTER AT NOTTINGHAM.

Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales opened last week the Midland Counties Art Museum, at Nottingham. The whole ceremony passed over with great effect, and happy unanimity. All Nottingham was there, and crowds of holiday folks swelled the assembly on the festive occasion, so that the Prince and Princess received, as they so well deserve, a right hearty good welcome, from the warm-hearted and loyal people of Nottingham. It has been well pointed out by one of our contemporaries (the Times), whose words are so apposite to the event, that we venture to transcribe them, that this gathering is one of no mean importance to Nottingham, to the county, and to art:—"The occasion was by no means an ordinary one even for a personage so indefatigable as the Prince in his patronage of all ceremonies of public interest and of all institutions tending to the public advantage. It was one of the most cherished purposes of the late Prince Consort to educate the taste and to foster the art education of the English people. To his initiative we owe the establishment of the Department of Science and Art at South Kensington—an institution which, however much it was despised and ridiculed at its first foundation, has undoubtedly borne excellent fruit in the regeneration of the national taste. But the Prince Consort's farsighted purpose did not stop short at the conception of a central school of design and museum of artistic instruction. He hoped that sooner or later the idea would be imitated and developed in different parts of the country, and he looked forward to the time when every town of any importance would have its local museum, from which the inhabitants of the surrounding district might draw a share of that artistic inspiration which the whole country, directly or indirectly, derives from South Kensington. It has taken a long time to realize this fruitful conception, but Nottingham has now given it a practical and effective shape. The ancient and historic castle of the town, rich in memories extending from King Alfred to William the Conqueror, and thenceforward throughout the whole range of English history down to the Reform riots in 1831, has now been devoted to the peaceful and beneficent purpose of an art museum, affiliated to South Kensington. The Prince of Wales was invited by the local authorities to be present at the opening of the new museum, and to inaugurate an institution of which his father many years ago was the real founder. With his accustomed readiness to promote all objects of public utility, the Prince accepted the invitation, and Nottingham has accordingly enjoyed the rare gratification of a Royal visit on an occasion highly creditable to its public spirit. We may hope that the encouragement thus deservedly given to Nottingham will induce other towns throughout the country to follow its excellent and courageous example." We shall all agree in these sentiments and these conclusions, and trust that the "wish" will be "father" to the action.

VOLTAIRE AND ROUSSEAU

We must confess, (perhaps we are to be pitied for the crass state of mind which is our personal property), that just as we had but little sympathy with the Voltaire centenary at pleasant Paris, so we had still less for that of Jean Jacques Rousseau, at the good City of Geneva. To use a common expression, we do not think that either of these so-called world's heroes "pans out" in any way for the welfare of humanity, or the moral good of the world. Monseigneur Dupanloup accuses Voltaire of being unpatriotic, cynical, a sycophant, and tyrannical, despite his high qualities of mind, while the Republique Francaise tells us that Rousseau was "a paradoxical theorist, whose ideas have been refuted by facts," "a retrograde sophist, whose systems have no foundations, and whose politics and principles send progress on a wrong track." Some of us may remember how in another generation Horace Walpole amusingly quizzed Rousseau's egotism and pretentiousness, his hopeless self-conceit, and his overbearing vanity, and much more now, we venture to suggest, when the glare and glamour of his writings have ceased to inflame the sentiments and passions of mankind, we all must feel how little real claim he has to the true admiration of us all. Who can seriously pretend either to admit his paradoxes or accept his views? While, then, we put down Rousseau's celebration, like that of Voltaire, to that love of excitement which just now is so prevalent, and which is fostered by those in whose interest it is, that Paris and Geneva should alike be full, for "business is business still," while we note the fact, we cannot but deplore this fresh proof, if proof were ever wanting, of the "twists" or the "crazes" which affect or afflict humanity in all epochs, and through all generations. Whether the world or man will ever be better for anything that Voltaire or Rousseau wrote, we greatly and gravely doubt. We have been taken to task by a very courteous correspondent for saying that Voltaire was a Deist. Voltaire, like a good many other people, has spoken differently at different periods of his life, and no doubt, if our kind correspondent correctly quotes the words he calls attention to, Voltaire was not a Deist only, as we understand the word. It is just possible, as we ventured to point out, that Voltaire, like many others, actually represents that state of thought into which the intolerant assumptions of Ultramontane dogmatism have thrown so many acute intellects and educated minds. For as it was in past time a serious effort to listen with any appearance of reverence, and without ridicule, to a system which laid down as a matter of faith absolutely incredible legends, so it is equally a heavy trial for the present generation to be told from the pulpit of Marie Alacoque, and sternly bid believe "obfidem" her hallucinations, as well as a physical impossibility. But though this be so, as we always speak plainly, we cannot honestly concur in those extravagant praises which unreflecting party spirit still seemingly likes to heap on the words and writings of Voltaire and Rousseau.

BOYS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In common with many brethren who attended the festival on Monday last, I was considerably surprised and annoyed at being subjected to what was, in my opinion, a mistake on the part of Messrs. Bertram and Roberts in charging us to gain admission to the banquetting hall. Considering the price paid for the dinner, 21s., and which was really nothing more than a cold collation, one would think that any further tax as entrance fee was certainly unwarranted. Surely the dinner ticket should have served for passing the entrance barriers, otherwise it places the Alexandra Palace at a discount as a Masonic dining hall. General and strong dissatisfaction was expressed upon the subject, and I am sure that in the end the management of the palace will suffer rather than gain from this unfair tax, which partakes strongly, in my opinion, of sharp practice.

Yours fraternally,

A STEWARD.

[We have received several letters on this subject, but all being written in a similar vein, this only is inserted.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The motives suggested, if not imputed, by several writers in your paper of to-day are scarcely nice.

When I wrote suggesting a separate polling place for ladies, I had no idea that their right to vote was questioned. I, therefore, intended in no way to prejudice or prejudice that question. I only knew that a number of ladies had promised Bro. Storr to support him, and I desired that they should, if possible, be saved the mobbing inseparable from the efforts of a large body of men to poll in a short space of time. The Grand Registrar I have not seen or heard of, or from for some weeks past, and I read his opinion in your columns to-day for the first time. The suggestion of "D. D." that Bro. McIntyre should not be consulted because he is interested in the result, is unworthy of a "D.D." In justice to Bro. McIntyre let me say that he cannot have the remotest knowledge (I doubt if any one has), whether it would be better or worse for Bro. Storr if ladies vote, and further, that beyond the bare promise of his own vote (if not on circuit, where he probably will be) he has not so interested himself in this election as to be in any degree called with propriety an active partisan. I suppose every member of the House Committee is interested in the result, but that surely does not unfit them for the due conduct of the election. At this moment of writing, the result of the election is of course absolutely doubtful, and I shall be glad, as a really "active partisan" of Bro. Storr to say that in early supporting him and advocating his election I intended in no way to throw any doubt on the fitness of others. I trust the best man for the Institution may be eventually chosen, and that we shall all loyally support him, when elected.

Fraternally yours,

JOHN B. MONCKTON.

THE WORLD'S FAVOUR FOR FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I fulfil my promise, and continue my remarks to-day.

1. Christian Masonry, though undoubtedly of late origin, and probably a development of Ramsay's original mistaken but specious thesis in 1740, is just now very much in vogue, and has many ardent followers. It is, however, as it boldly avows, Christian Masonry, and, commencing with Templarism, cannot be entered by non-Christians, though, curiously enough, some writers declare that the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, in its present form, is the actual compilation and arrangement of Hebrew Masons.

So far as this country is concerned, the "Rite of Heredom Kilwinning, with which the Rose Croix Grade is bound up, seems to have had a chapter, or Grand Chapter, in London about 1778, which professed, according to the Rite of Perfection, to give twenty Grades. I am not aware of any appearance of the A. and A. S. Rite nomenclature in this country until well on in this century. Separate grades may have been established, and probably were, but the Ancient and Accepted Rite, as we have it in England, is historically a 19th century arrangement.

2. I fear, as far as I know, that it must be admitted at the outset, that the Christian Grades have not done any good to Craft Masonry. I mean in this way. It is undoubted that a good deal of Roman Catholic opposition to Masonry is based on the "cæna mystica" for instance, and other usages and nomenclature of the High Grades, which seem to Roman Catholic writers to parody the offices, the names, the usages, and the sacraments of the Church of Rome. The "cæna mystica" is an institution very difficult to defend, except on Dr. Leeson's argument that it is a representation of the old "Agape," and is a link which binds our Freemasonry to the "Disciplina Arcana." But then as the "Agape" was condemned and suppressed on account of its admitted abuses, I fail to see why Christian Masons should seek to revive it or perpetuate it. Dr. Leeson's theory of any connection between Masonry and the "Disciplina Arcana" is, in my opinion, utterly untenable. The original objection to Freemasonry in 1738 by the Pope Clement, and which was promulgated before Christian Masonry appeared on the scene, was to its union of Roman Catholics and Protestants, and to its teaching the "religion of nature," but the Roman Catholic controversialist of to-day adds to that condemnation, the more modern accusation of impiety and irreverence, and an equally vehement anathema.

3. When, then, I am asked, what is the use of Christian Masonry? I, for one, am at a loss for a reply. But I admit equally, not being a Christian Mason, that I am not perhaps competent to reply to the query, except archaeologically. The English Christian system is confined to Templarism, to the Mark Grade to the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, and to the revived Order of Constantine, and is undoubtedly free from many of the gross absurdities and childish nonsense which mark many of the foreign "High Grades," and which character, I fear, must be given to so-called "Cryptic Masonry," to the rites of Misraim, Memphis, Swedenborg, "et hoc genus omne." You see I speak openly and frankly, with all deference, however, to the opinions of others, as I am always ready to be convinced by evidence and argument.

4. Now, as I before asked, is there any harmonising possible of Craft and Christian Masonry? or can the latter be in any sense a complement or supplement of the former? The one is universal, the other limited. The one is theistic alone, the other is Christian; the one admits all who believe in God the Most High, the other rejects all except those who accept the doctrine of the Holy and Blessed Trinity.

5. Admitted, if you like, that Christian Masons have as much right to exist, to speak, to act, as Craft Masons; conceded, if you choose, that the Christian Grades, (some of them at any rate) are beautiful æsthetically, doctrinally, morally, yet how can they and Craft Masonry meet or work on any common platform? That theory seems therefore to me to be impossible to uphold, and to be one not consonant either with truth or honesty to put forward.

6. But I am not prepared, therefore, to condemn my Christian brethren. Nay, I admit that in their Christian character they meet a common charge, (if it be worth meeting), of some superficial objectors, like Mr. Kerr, a reformed Presbyterian, at the present day.

7. It is quite possible, I feel bound also to say, that there is after all no absolute contradiction which at first sight might appear to exist as between the Christian development and the Craft foundation. That is to say, the Christian Mason may fairly say, it appears to me, (as I speak not for the sake of victory, but of truth), "I have a moral right to extend, as I believe the organisation and teaching of a Christian Hemitic Masonry, which I contend has always existed in the world, side by side with Craft Masonry, in which Christian Masons see great good, and to which I personally prefer alike in all its formulae, and its symbolism, and its dogmata. May it not also be fairly contended, that Christian Masonry is the natural consequence, the inevitable development of the pure theism of Craft Masonry?"

8. Thus, then, I come to the conclusion, to which I have tried to lead my readers, that while I, for one, prefer on my own subjective views the simpler teaching of the universalism of Craft Masonry, and see in that its highest use and its greatest glory, I yet concede to my Christian brother Mason his equal right, absolutely and subjectively, to adhere to the more limited theory of Christian Masonry. Both systems can co-exist and may peacefully progress side by side, and let us praise and commend all who in these doubting and prevaricating days hold manfully to their own opinions on one side or the other, neither heeding the world's favour nor seeking the applause of men.

I am, yours fraternally,

CRAFTSMAN.

MASONIC ÆSTHETICS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You have properly always commended Masonic æsthetics, which are certainly much improved since the days that you and I, Sir, "went gipsying" in Masonry "a long time ago." But I confess that I was scandalized with the very "hugger mugger" way in which the consecration of the Chaucer Chapter was effected, though I am very much flattered by the use of my name.

The patient companions, in the first place, in the hottest of weather, were crowded into a little room, and perspired, and panted, and mopped their faces all through the long ceremonies. Indeed, I thought at one time that there would be nothing left behind of the reverend Orator but a large spot of grease. Indeed, the sufferings of all were patent, though, like good Masons, theirs was a "willing" mind. And, then, what shall I say—what can any one say—about the paraphernalia? Perhaps, in that very hot weather the consecrating vessels might have been melted between Great Queen-street and Southwark, and great would have been the "payne" of all. Perhaps it was too far to go for them from the "Borough!" Be this as it may, cannot proper vessels be secured? I think they can, and I fancy that I have seen them before on similar occasions. I, for one, object to "butter boats," except at table, and I think a very witty "mot," of a most distinguished official deserves recording "Ah!" he said sotto voce, "I see, fried soles and melted butter."

As there is, I am credibly informed, no difficulty whatever, in procuring suitable vessels, at a higher or lower fee, I trust that I may never again witness such unsatisfactory arrangements. I think it may, however, all be put down to the very hot weather, in which no doubt every one, was in person or imagination at the seaside or his "Sabine farm," and, therefore, these were things which in such a state of affairs a "fellar" could not be expected to think about. I hope you won't think that I have written either in "heate," or in "speighte," and I am, yours most fraternally,

CHAUCER.

THE MOTHER COUNCIL OF THE WORLD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am not concerned in this discussion, which is a pretty little quarrel as it stands, further than to ask Bro. Albert Pike, through your pages, what is his authority for the statement that Frederick the Great ever established a Supreme Council?

Might I also ask Bro. Pike to tell us frankly and carefully in your pages also, what in his opinion is the valid evidence which connected Frederick the Great with the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite at all? He will hardly, I think, contend for the genuineness and authenticity of the so-called Constitutions of 1786.

I am, yours fraternally,

CRAFTSMAN.

KENNING'S CYCLOPEDIA.

Dear Bro. Kenning:—

I have read the various flattering and careful criticisms on your Cyclopædia with much pleasure and profit, but I think it well when, from ignorance or misapprehension, the reviewer, (let us hope unwittingly), seeks to depreciate the work, to rectify any such patent errors, and to remove any such palpable undervaluing.

Public Opinion of June 20th, contains a very superficial and unfriendly review of the work, which, though I may be wrong, seems to be pervaded by somewhat of a personal animus, for I shall hope shortly to show the remarks of the writer are positively unsound and unjust. From a book of 656 pages he takes one subject, "not the worst," he adds, and which he dubs "unsatisfactory," and remarks in a novel adage "Ex pede Herculem!" The article inculcated is "Cabiri." Now, it was impossible in a Masonic Cyclopædia to go into a question like the "Cabiri" at any length, the more so, as the writer well knows it is a most debateable one. The connection of Masonry with the mysteries is in itself a matter of much discussion and some doubt. The Samothracian mysteries surely belong to the "dim distance of ages." It would have been obviously most unwise to load pages in which space was valuable with matter so dubious and so recon-dite. But I did what I proposed to do, I gave a sketch of the main opinions on the subject, and I purposely omitted the names because I could not see why I was to insert them, as I was not editing a general, or a classical, or a simply archaeological Cyclopædia. I am quite aware of the various theories of the "Cabiri," and of the discussions as to their origin, and even as to their names. But the writer chooses to forget that there is so far no actual agreement even as to their number, much less as to their names, and had he carefully read the article he would have realised the fact that I have con-dened the opinions of all the known authorities on the subject, and to which he must excuse me for saying; he has added nothing. Whether they were 2, 3, 4, 7, or 8, whether Egyptian, Assyrian, Hindoo, or Phœnician, or Pelagic is still a matter of controversy. As it was impossible to decide, I left it, I think wisely, an open question. Suppose I had treated the subject as he has done, which I could easily have done, how does it touch upon Masonry? I think hardly at all. If we come to a second edition I may add a few remarks, if space permit, such as the alleged names of the Cabiri, and the various theories as to their origin.

As a German writer puts it, "the whole legend lies still in darkness." If I had given four names, as commonly received—"Axietos," "Axiokersa," "Axioheros," and "Kadmilos," which are very dubious; I do not see that I added to the value of the Cyclopædia. So with all deference to the Reviewer, it is, in my opinion, a very ridiculous criticism, which, because a writer does not take your view of the subject, hastens to dub him ignorant of what he is writing about. Nothing is so easy as to criticize with second-hand information and judicious cramming. The padding of reviews is simply nauseous, and I must beg to demur to the dicta of any critic who is obviously unfair, and, by the animus he displays, incompetent to lecture another writer. There is nothing new or difficult about the Samothracian Mysteries, except that concerning them the accounts are most conflicting, and the opinions most antagonistic.

I am, dear brother Kenning, yours fraternally,
THE EDITOR OF THE CYCLOPÆDIA.

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I trust that you will give space for the following letter, in aid of a girl named "Mita Bell Braiser," whose case is so unique and exceptional, and as any body thoroughly reading the details cannot fail to understand and appreciate, that no words from me would be needed to draw attention to it; but as rule, the circulars are only curiously glanced at and then throw into the fire or waste paper basket; I wish to attract the notice of your readers to a case whose claims one require to be known to receive the support of those whose votes are disengaged. Indeed, so great is the claim, that in my opinion, other claims which have one or more chances, might fairly lay in abeyance to secure her election. I know, or rather feel, that as a rule, you would feel bound to decline a letter in any particular case, but I do believe you could afford to insert this on behalf of a candidate whose position stands almost if not quite alone. I beg to state that I was, and am, unacquainted with any of the family, but when the case was pointed out to me by one who had known the father and family well and for many years, I at once saw the great need of every exertion, as there are only three vacancies at the ensuing election, that I gave up a case which could better afford to wait.

The case is as follows: The girls' father was initiated into Freemasonry in 1853, died in May, 1878, leaving six daughters unprovided for, the youngest of whom is the subject of my letter, and should she not succeed in the ensuing election her age will preclude her from another attempt; now, the great claim consists in these facts, that our brother was a subscribing member for over twenty-five years, that he was a constant subscriber to, and took an active interest in all the Institutions, and, brethren, this is the only chance we have of showing in a small way our appreciation of one who so ably performed his work and assisted the Craft during his life, let it not be said that the Craft generally failed to render so small a tribute to one so worthy of our remembrance.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
CHARLES JOHN PERCEVAL.
V.P. of all the Institutions.

CONSECRATION OF THE OGMORE LODGE, No. 1752.

On Tuesday 2nd inst., a new lodge, to be known as the Ogmores Lodge, was opened at the Wyndham Arms Hotel, Bridgend, and dedicated to the purposes of Freemasonry; the ancient usages and ceremonies being duly observed. For many years past it had been thought that Bridgend was a suitable centre for a Masonic lodge, embracing as it does an important district from the various points of the compass. By dint of repeated energy and advocacy of the claims which the central town of Glamorgan held up for favourable consideration, the "consummation devoutly to be wished" has at length been realised. A petition was presented to the Grand Lodge of England, numerously signed and supported by Sir Geo. Elliot, R.W. P.G.M., and the D.P.G.M. (Bro. Marmaduke Tennant), and a warrant of constitution was granted, bearing the signature of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master; Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M.; and the Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey.

Bro. John Sim Woolley, P.G.D.C., had thrown in his energies in supporting the prayer of the petitioners, and had consented to occupy the W.M. chair for the first year. The arrangements for the ceremony were complete, and the various appointments of the lodge were highly approved of; the scene at the hour when the room was well filled with the brethren, clothed in full Masonic regalia, was of a very imposing kind. Most of the lodges in the province were represented, and brethren attended from Pembrokeshire, Monmouthshire, Bristol, &c., and members of American and Australian lodges were also present.

At 12.30 p.m. the lodge was opened by Bro. Canton, the W.M. of the Indefatigable Lodge, Swansea, Bro. Sladen acting as S.W.; Bro. Symons, J.W.; Bro. W. Williams, S.D., P.M. 818; Bro. Lloyd, J.D.; Bro. W. H. Headon, I.G.; and Bro. Atkins, Provincial Grand Organist, conducted the musical part of the ceremonies. The brethren present included the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Marmaduke Tennant; G. E. Dowman, 951; Rowland Thomas, P.M. 364, P.P.G.S.W.; W. H. Davies, P.M. 960, P.P.G.D.; John Jones, P.M. 833, P.P.G.T.; F. Atkins, 960, P.G. Organist; William Williams, P.M. 818, P.P.S.G.D. (Mon.); Rev. W. Watkins, Prov. Grand Chaplain; J. H. Mayor, J.W. 36, P.G.S.; Dominic Watson, I.P.M. 36; O. J. Brooke, 833, P.P.G. Steward; M. W. Morgan, 1578; G. Pennington, 833; J. Hurman, 960 and 36, P.P.J.G.D.; E. Sidney Hartland, W.M. 1323, Prov. G.D.; T. D. Daniel, P.M. 833; R. T. Gibbs, 237; W. H. Headon, 237; Frederick Pratt, 1459; Rev. Watkin Davies, 833; John P. Hutchings, 378; J. G. Morris, 818; John H. Thomas, 833; Henry Simon, J.W. 237; John Harrop, 237; Gilbert Legge, Org. 237; W. T. Canton, W.M. 1573; J. L. Wrighton, 1573; J. C. Manning, Swansea; J. H. Hall, 1323; E. Fish, 237; Edward Daniel, P.G.S.W. 833; Rev. Thomas Walters, 1573; William Lewis, 366; David W. Thomas, 960; Isaac George, 833; R. Burnell, 833; John Hemming, 833; M. P. S. Tozer, 265; R. Rawle, 1288; R. Southey, W.M. 36; D. Duncan, J.D. 36; W. H. Davies, 960; R. Christie, 960; T. J. Newman, 833; Titus Lewis, 1258; J. W. Lloyd, 237; James Hughes, 1573; J. Wessendorf, 237; T. W. Hall, 833; John Thomas, 36; William Williams, 818; W. Watkins, 1578; Thomas Rogers, Chaplain 1578; J. H. Mayor, 36; R. C. Hunter, 1578; J. Loveluck, 833; Edward Loveluck, 833; W. H. Thomas, 833; W. Podmore, 995; D. R. David, W.M. 833; R. W. Llewellyn, 1116; B. A. Daniel, 833; W. Whittington, P.S.G.W., 364; David Williams, Organist 833; John Howell, 833; J. L. Perrin, 1573; W. H. Rees, 364; and others.

The Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master and officers having been announced, they entered the lodge and took their respective places, the D.P.G.M. being supported by his officers—Bro. Daniel, Prov. S.G.W.; Bro. Dr. Hall, Prov. J.G.W.; Bro. Livingston, Prov. S.G.D.; Bro. Hartland, Prov. J.G.D.; Bro. the Rev. W. Watkins, Prov. Grand Chaplain; and Bro. the Rev. Dr. Walters, Assistant Prov. Grand Chaplain. Bro. Whittington was at the right of the chair as acting Deputy Provincial Grand Master. Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. Morgan (Pontypridd), Prov. G. Supt. Works, on behalf of the petitioners for the lodge, requested the Deputy Prov. G.M. to consecrate the Ogmores Lodge. Bro. Mayor, Prov. G. Steward, and acting Prov. G. Registrar, then read the warrant of constitution, which included the names of Bros. John Sim Woolley (P.S.G.D.), O. J. Brooke, G. Morley, W. Podmore, J. Hemming, and George Pennington.

The consecration ceremony commenced with the reading of a portion of the Holy Scriptures by the Grand Chaplain. The Prov. Grand Supt. of Works having testified as to the regularity of the initiative proceedings of the promoters, and as to the elements of consecration, the consecration anthem was sung. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then called upon Bros. Whittington, Rowland Thomas, Livingston, and Hartland to assist him in performing the ceremony, after which the lodge was formally dedicated to virtue and universal benevolence, and declared duly dedicated and consecrated to ancient Freemasonry. Bro. Walters (who, in addition to his Masonic regalia, wore the scarlet robe of a Doctor of Divinity) then offered up the dedication prayer, having, in a very impressive manner, previously delivered the consecration sentences.

The musical part of the ceremony was elaborate and very effectively rendered. During the ceremony of consecration to "Masonry," "Virtue," "Universal Benevolence," and "Wisdom," responses and odes were sung. D. R. David, W.M. of the Afan Lodge, sang with great ability the recitative from the Messiah, "For behold darkness," after which a choir selected from the brethren sang Dr. Clarke's familiar and popular anthem, "Behold how good and joyful it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity," the verse parts being taken by Bros. D. Williams, of Aberavon, and D. R. David, of Margam. It was admirably rendered throughout, the chorus being most effective. The ceremony of consecration was concluded with the anthem, "Hail, Masonry Divine!" in which the whole of the brethren joined. Bro. D. Williams, of Aberavon, acted as choir-master; and the Prov. Grand Organist, Bro. F. Atkin, of Cardiff, accompanied on the organ. The following brethren formed the choir, and for their musical aid the Ogmores brethren feel much indebted to—D. Williams (Organist), D. R. David, John Jones, F. G. Jenkins, E. T. Lewis (all of the Afan); Gilbert Legge (Organist), J. W. Lloyd, W. H. Headon, H. Simons, J. Harrop, (all of the "Indefatigable"); and Bros. F. Pratt, 1457, and James Hughes, 1573.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed, Bro. Woolley, the W.M. designate of the newly-consecrated lodge, was then introduced to the Deputy Prov. G.M. for installation. The ancient charges were read by the Prov. G. Registrar, and the W.M. designate, having taken upon himself the necessary obligations, was duly installed according to ancient custom, and openly proclaimed by the installing master as W.M. of the Ogmores Lodge, No. 1752.

On the motion of the Worshipful Master, seconded by Bro. Canton, the Deputy Prov. G.M. was elected an honorary member of the lodge, who, in thanking the lodge for electing him, said that nothing would be wanting on his part to promote the interests of the Ogmores Lodge to the extent of his ability.

The Worshipful Master then moved the thanks of the lodge to the Deputy Prov. G.M. for the very able, kindly, and fraternal way in which the consecration ceremony had been performed by him, and for his kindness at all times in connection with the lodges of his province.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, in acknowledging the vote, said he felt that, in doing what he had done, he was only doing his duty. He could have wished that the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Sir George Elliot) had been there to perform the ceremony. As it was, he could only express his pleasure at being able to be there, and to do what he could for the Ogmores Lodge, as he would for any other lodge in the province.

The Worshipful Master then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Oliver J. Brooke, S.W.; George Pennington, J.W.; William Podmore, Treas.; John Hemming, Sec.; John Howell, S.D.; J. H. Bennett, J.D.; Captain Tozer, Dir. of Cers.; J. H. Thomas, I.G.; Captain T. W. Hall, and W. H. Thomas, Stewards; Robert Burnell, Tyler.

Hearty good wishes were then conveyed to the Worshipful Master by representatives of nearly all the lodges in the province, and from lodges in Pembrokeshire and Bristol, which were conducted throughout with marked ability, and were deservedly applauded at the termination. The important and onerous duties of Installing-Master were skilfully performed by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, as was also the beautifully impressive ceremony of consecration, it being the general remark by brethren present that they never remember it to have been carried out from beginning to end more perfectly.

A number of propositions were made for candidates desirous of being inducted into the mysteries of Freemasonry. This concluded the business of the day, and the lodge was then closed in ancient form by the newly-elected Master and his recently-appointed officers. The brethren then dispersed for nearly a couple of hours; many of the visiting brethren who were strangers perambulating the streets and suburbs of this pleasant town.

The banquet was served with commendable punctuality in the Assembly-room of the Wyndham Arms Hotel, the tables being laid out in an elegant manner; choice flowers spreading their perfume and adding colour and effect to the bright appearance of the banqueting room.

The Worshipful Master of the Ogmores Lodge having taken the chair, the following toasts were given:—"The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Pro Grand Master," "The Deputy Grand Master, and Officers of Grand Lodge," "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master," "The W. D.puty Prov. Grand Master (the Consecration and Installation Master), and the Provincial Grand Officers," coupled with the name of Bro. E. R. Daniel, "The Visitors," "Success to the Ogmores Lodge;" proposed by the D.P.G.M. and responded to by the W.M. "The Lodges of the Province," and "The Officers of the Lodge," responded to by Bros. Brooke, Pennington, Hemming, and Podmore. The speeches bearing reference to the new lodge were all of a very congratulatory kind, and there appeared to be but one opinion as to the very successful way in which the event of the day had passed off.

We may here mention that in addition to the usual toast-list, that of "The Host and Hostess" was given, and responded to with much heartiness; no idle compliment, but one which was well earned by Mr. and Mrs. Williams.

The evening was enlivened by songs and glees, sung by various brethren.

The Tyler's toast concluded the list, and the brethren dispersed about 9.0 p.m.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. J. G. Chandler, presided. There were also present Bros. H. Browne, D. M. Dewar, J. H. Cox, Raynham W. Stewart, James Winter, S. Rawson, Geo. J. Row, J. Joyce Murray, the Rev. Dr. Morris, C. F. Matier, L. B. Pillin, R. B. Webster, Benjamin Head, F. Adlard, J. R. Gallant, James Blyth, W. H. Perryman, C. G. Rushworth, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason.)

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes the list of petitions was taken, and as this was the last day for placing candidates on the list for the October election, it was very heavy. There were no less than seventeen petitions to be examined. These took more than an hour to go through. In the result one of those was rejected, one deferred, and one accepted, subject to the decision of the Quarterly Court of Monday next. All the others were unconditionally accepted. The Quarterly Court was recommended to place sixty-eight boys on the list for next election and to declare eleven vacancies.

Bro. Binckes informed the Committee that in these circumstances there would after the October election be 211 boys in the School.

Three outfits were granted, and a notice of motion for the Quarterly Court was given by Bro. Jesse Turner, for altering Law 70 by giving the Committee power to grant £40 to advance a boy instead of £20 as at present.

The Committee then adjourned.

The Consecration of the Metropolitan Chapter No. 1507 took place on Thursday last at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville Road, Kings Cross, the ceremonies being performed by Bro. James Terry, P.Z. G.D. of C. Herts in his usual able manner. Comps. J. Willing, jun., J. R. Stacey, and W. J. Ferguson, were respectively inducted into the chairs of First, Second and Third principals. A full report will appear in our next.

The 80th anniversary festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys took place on Monday, at the Alexandra Palace. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, P.G.S.W., presided, supported by a very large number of brethren. The list of subscriptions amounted to £10,100, with lists still to come in.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF SOUTH AFRICA (EASTERN DIVISION.)

(From a Correspondent.)

In the month of April, 1876, a circular was issued by the Grand Secretary dividing South Africa into three divisions for Masonic purposes, and the M.W. Pro Grand Master, in his consideration for the interests of the Fraternity in this District, permitted the various lodges to nominate a brother for the office of D.G. Master for the new Eastern Division, whom it would then be his pleasure to appoint.

In accordance with this wish, a conference was called in November, 1876, which was held in the Temple of Albany Lodge No. 389, Grahamstown (being the oldest lodge in the district), at which delegates attended from 13 out of the 19 lodges which then came under this division, 3 being unable to send delegates and the remaining 3 not communicating.

At this conference Bro. Charles James Egan, M.D., A.B., and P.M. of the British Kaffrarian Lodge, No. 853, was elected as the brother who should be recommended to the M.W. Pro Grand Master as a fit and proper person for the exalted appointment of D.G. Master.

By resolution of this conference it was decided that the town in which the D.G.M. resided should become the headquarters of the D.G. Lodge.

At this time Dr. Egan, being very unwell, decided upon taking a trip to England, in order to obtain the rest which he so much needed. While there he obtained his patent, and was enabled to attend Grand Lodge, and a number of private lodges, thereby increasing and refreshing his already large stock of Masonic knowledge, the benefits of which we are already experiencing to a large extent.

On his return to the colony he immediately began making the preliminary arrangements for his installation and the first meeting of the District Grand Lodge. He very fortunately secured the services of Bro. P.M. Geo. P. Perks, the present W.M. of the British Kaffrarian Lodge, to act as his Secretary, and a great deal of the success of the installation and first meeting was owing to his untiring energy and zeal.

In appointing his officers Dr. Egan followed the example set by the M.W. Pro Grand Master (by waiving his right of appointing the D.G.M.), and delegated to the members of the various lodges in order of seniority the right of nominating brethren to fill the sundry offices in D. G. Lodge for the first year, as he had not a sufficiently personal acquaintance with all the brethren residing in the district, until he should have had the opportunity of meeting with them.

This arrangement gave great satisfaction, and also had the effect of distributing the offices broadcast through the division.

The installation ceremony took place on the 16th of May, when the brethren of the British Kaffrarian Lodge, No. 853, met at their Temple in King William's Town.

At noon the lodge was opened in the First Degree by the W.M., Bro. P. Perks, who acted as the Installing Officer. A choir, consisting of Bros. P.M. John Ryan, W. F. Sissing, Edward Gray, Rupert E. Webb, and H. Watkins, under the direction of the Organist, Bro. A. J. Fuller, rendered the musical portion of the ceremony in a very efficient manner. After the opening ode "Hail Eternal" had been sung, the Secretary stated the object of the meeting. The lodge was passed and raised. The choir sang "The Glorious Majesty," the solos by Bros. Edward Gray, John Ryan, and A. J. Fuller.

The R.W.D.G.M. on entering was received with honours, and presented his patent, the Organist playing a suitable organ march. The W.M. then read the patent and addressed the brethren. Prayer was offered by the Chaplain, and the choir sang "To Heaven's High Architect." The D.G.M. was then presented to the W.M., who gave him the obligation and invested him with the jewel and regalia of D.G.M. He was then proclaimed from the East, West, and South.

The W.M. handed his gavel to the R.W.D.G. Master. After prayer by the Chaplain the choir sang "Glory to God on High," and the R.W.D.G.M., Charles James Egan, M.D., proceeded to invest the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year: Bro. P.M. Oliver Lester, D.G.S.W.; Bro. P.M. C. F. Blakey, D.G.J.W.; Bro. the Rev. George Gould Ross, M.A., D.C.L., D.G. Chaplain; Bro. P.M. George Prescott Perks, D.G. Sec.; Bro. C. T. W. D.G.S.D.; Bro. P.M. John Ryan, D.G.J.D.; Bro. W. S. Leigh, as proxy for Bro. P.M. T. P. O. Mathew, D.G. Dir. of Cer.; Bro. P.M. Albert Ziervogel, D.G. Pursuivant; and Bros. P.M. A. J. Randell, E. J. Smithies, Guy Barber, W. A. Smith, W. Wynne, and J. R. M. Cole, D.G. Stewards.

The R.W.D.G.M. then addressed the brethren and the M.M. lodge was closed. The F.C. lodge was closed and the E.A. lodge was closed, all the brethren uniting in singing the closing ode, "Now the evening shadows closing."

The Temple, a fine building, surrounded by a garden, had been furnished with sundry suites of drawing-room furniture, lent by various brethren for the occasion, and presented a very pleasing and comfortable picture, filled as it was in every part by brethren resident in K.W. Town, and visitors from every part of the district.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the first communication of the D.G. Lodge was held in the same building, the R.W.D. G. Master in the chair. The lodge being opened in due form, Bro. Geo. Broster, S.W. of British Kaffrarian Lodge, was elected and installed as D.G. Treasurer. The sitting was chiefly occupied by the framing and discussion of by-laws for the government of the lodge.

On the following evening all visiting brethren were invited to a banquet in the Town Hall, given by the members of the British Kaffrarian Lodge, No. 853, at which the usual

Masonic toasts were drunk with honours, one speech deserving special comment, viz., that of Bro. the Rev. Dr. Ross, D.G. Chap., who is Principal of St. Andrew's College, Grahamstown. He said he was anxious to see some provision made for the education of children of Masons, such children to be either orphans, or children of good abilities, whose parents were unable to afford them an education high enough to develop their natural talents. He had great pleasure in stating that the committee of St. Andrew's College had authorised him to offer Masonic Scholarships for the cost of board, making no charge whatever for tuition fees. The necessary sum for the support of a free scholar might be provided immediately by an annual subscription of, say, two guineas from each lodge, and at some future time a capital sum might be funded or a wing might be added to the college on condition that certain scholars nominated by the Craft should be free exhibitioners. The proposition was received with acclamation by the brethren present, and we hope to see the scheme fairly floated at the next meeting of D.G. Lodge, which we believe will take place in Grahamstown about September next.

The sincere thanks of the brethren are due to the committee of St. Andrew's College for the liberal offer they have made, and also to Dr. Ross, upon whose shoulders the extra labour would fall.

With this banquet (which was a great success) the meetings in connection with the opening of the first District Grand Lodge of the Eastern Division of South Africa were brought to a close. I cannot conclude this account without expressing my appreciation of the unceasing kindness and attention paid by the members of the British Kaffrarian Lodge to their visitors and guests on this occasion, and with such a lodge stationed at the head quarters, and with such a worthy man and sterling Mason as the R.W.D.G.M., Dr. C. J. Egan, everything bids fair for a brilliant future for the District Grand Lodge of the Eastern Division of South Africa.

Reviews.

RITUALES DE LOS TRES GRADOS DE LA MASONERIA, per E. A. LECHEFF, Havannah.

We have received this little work of Spanish Ritualism, and have run through it. Though like all foreign rituals it has many differences with ours, yet we are glad to note that it distinctly recognises T.G.A.O.T.U., and the need and use of and value of Masonic prayer. How much pleasanter would be the realization and important the fact if it could be safely said that everywhere the conditions and teaching of Craft Masonry were essentially the same. As many are well aware the Spanish is a noble language, and many of our well-known English formulae are preserved in the Spanish language with great effect and striking power.

POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS, PAST AND PRESENT; Tegg & Co.

We have somewhat cursorily, (we have to confess it), looked over this handy little book, and we have found it full of very interesting information. To those of us to whom telegraphy is alike a marvel and an interest we commend earnestly this useful work, as it will post them up on matters which now-a-days a "A fellow ought to know," and will tell them of much of which at present they are profoundly ignorant.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA.

"Kenning's Masonic Cyclopædia," edited by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford (G. Kenning), seems to be a very complete handbook in alphabetical arrangement of Masonic archaeology, history, and biography. It is necessarily less extensive, or rather, we should say less minute in detail than Mackey's great work; but being more portable and cheaper, it is perhaps better adapted to the requirements of a large class who are interested in Masonic literature and the history and organisation of Freemasonry. The author has availed himself of numerous sources of information, English and foreign. His volume includes a short history of the High Grades. The biographical articles are very numerous, and are frequently curious. We infer, however, that the records of Freemasonry are not kept with the care that might be expected, since, with regard to the late Emperor Napoleon, the author is only able to tell us that "he has been claimed as a Mason, but we believe erroneously," and that, "if anything, he was connected with the Napoleon Masonry."—Daily News.

Madame Christine Nilsson has left London for Paris, en route to Mont d'Or, where she will make a month's sojourn for the benefit of her health. She returns to England in the autumn, for a provincial tour, under the direction of that spirited entrepreneur, Mr. Pyatt. A new Minor Planet of the twelfth magnitude has been discovered by Professor Pelais, at Clinton, New York.

Freemasons as a race that dwell apart from the ordinary ranks of men when they have books compiled for their special edification. They will no doubt fully realise the value of Kenning's Masonic Encyclopedia, or Handbook of Masonic Archaeology, History, &c. (George Kenning), a goodly octavo of some six hundred pages, in which will be found many things which to brethren will doubtless be valuable. To the rest of the world, the profanum vulgus, the book must have little meaning.—The Standard, Monday, July 1st, 1878.

NOTES ON ART, &c.

COLOUR BLINDNESS.—It results from the studies of M. Favre on this subject at the Académie des Sciences that at 3,000,000 persons in France are afflicted with inability to distinguish colours (Daltonism.) The number of women so affected, as compared with a number of men, is in the proportion of one to ten. Nine cases of Daltonism out of ten may easily be cured in young subjects. The best means of treatment consists in methodical exercise upon coloured objects.—British Medical Journal.

The preparations for erecting Cleopatra's Needle are well advanced. Nearly the whole of the iron-work has been removed, and the inscription on the fourth side is at present in an excellent position for examination and comparison with the various editions which have been given of it. There are several points of interest to be observed with regard to the palaeography of the older or central line and that of the two nearer lines with which it is flanked, the former being far superior in workmanship and treatment to the later additions. This is particularly remarkable in those parts which have been covered by sand and so protected from injury by weather or design. Some of the hieroglyphics are executed in a different manner; the circle, for instance, of the middle column of text is slightly raised at the centre; in the side lines it takes the form of a deep and cup-like depression. It is expected that the work will be completed in about two months' time. The solid base of masonry and granite blocks is being built upon a staging; above this the Needle will be raised and swung by an armed collar, which will enable the monolith to be balanced, and thus easily transferred from a horizontal to a vertical position.—Athenæum.

Swimming for girls is strenuously advocated in a letter in the Times from Mr. John Macgregor (of the London Schools Swimming Club, School Board for London, Victoria Embankment). He states that hundreds of girls are learning to swim, and affirms that many hundred more would gladly learn if teachers could be had. As a proof of this Mr. Macgregor asserts that last year a class for thirty girls was begun late in the season, yet 25 of these were taught to swim in six lessons, and six of them won prizes. At present only five of the public baths are available for girls and female school teachers, but we sincerely hope that public attention may be drawn to this movement, which promises to be one of great benefit to the community at large, for, apart from all other considerations, it may be said, as Mr. Macgregor concludes, "Mothers and sisters who can swim will not let their boys be unwashed when on land or drowned when in the water."

The Women of Belgium have decided to offer a present to the Queen of the Belgians on the occasion of her silver wedding, the 22nd prox. Subscriptions are limited to 25d.

On Sunday afternoon, at St. Nicholas parish church, Newbury, a flower sermon was preached by the rector, the Rev. E. Imber Gardiner. After the sermon some hundreds of bouquets of beautiful flowers were carried by the children to the chancel and deposited in large baskets arranged within the communion rails. A collection was made in behalf of the Children's Hospital, Great Ormond-street, and in the evening the flowers were despatched by the Great Western Railway to that and similar institutions in the metropolis.

An Exhibition of Fans was opened on Tuesday week at Drapers' Hall, containing 1259 specimens, valued at about £15,000. One of the most valuable exhibits is Queen Anne's fan, and also a curious fan, painted by an Italian on chicken skin, with a little watch in the handle. There are also two or three peculiarly small hand-tablets, fashionable under the First Empire, still glistening with the inimitable glaze called vernis-Martin, after the artist, whose secret died with him. There is one fan in the collection to which a singular legend is attached. The blades are strangely and unusually shaped, like the wooden beaters with which French laundresses sometimes kneaded the clothes they washed. The style is Louis XV., when the ladies of the Court, to show their distaste for the vulgar upstart Dubarry, are said to have had their fans so made that, without any open affront they could remind her of her early life among the soap-suds. There is the jewelled fan presented by the Maharajah Duleep Singh to the Princess Alice, which is composed entirely of emeralds, rubies, and pearls, from the collection of Runjeet Singh, of Lahore, and also an old French fan, possibly the gem of the collection, belonging to Lady Musgrave, having been in the Musgrave family for a century, and representing a scene from the Æneid. Altogether, the Exhibition is well worth a visit, particularly from our lady readers. It may be mentioned that among the fans at the Drapers' Hall is a jewelled fan shown by her Royal Highness the Grand Duchess of Hesse. It is put down in the catalogue at a nominal value of £300, but we believe the price should really be £800.

Dr. Ferdinand Hiller's "Biblical Idyll," "Rebecca," has been performed, with great success, under the direction of its eminent composer, by the Association for Classical Sacred Music at Stuttgart. Why do we never hear any of Hiller's sacred compositions in this country? What Mendelssohn thought of his contemporary and intimate friend is known to all who have perused the very interesting correspondence of that veritable "last of the Romans."

The first two parts of Wagner's "Ring des Nibelungen" brought, in twenty-two evenings, no less than 14,000 marks (about £7000 to the treasury of the Leipzig Opera House.

SUMMER FETE OF THE PAXTON LODGE, No. 1686.

The Paxton Lodge, No. 1686, which was consecrated only a twelvemonth since, and has had a most brilliant career, held on Wednesday evening last, at the Crystal Palace, a Summer Fete that had been most admirably arranged.

The Fete consisted of a dinner party, to which ladies as well as brethren were invited, and as it was given in one of the pretty dining saloons at the Crystal Palace, where a charming view of the beautiful county of Kent can be had, and soft breezes can be at any time obtained, the efforts of the committee to make the evening pleasant received considerable natural aid. The efforts of Bro. F. J. Sawyer, S.D., also were energetically directed to making the meeting a success, and the dinner was most liberally laid, and the table elegantly adorned with choice flowers and fruit. The committee who had charge of the arrangements were Bros. J. M. Klenck, W.M.; C. Hammerton, P.M.; F. W. Goddard, S.W.; C. H. Benham, J.W.; F. J. Sawyer, S.D.; W. H. Boswell, J.D.; R. E. Woodhams, I.G.; N. J. Bassett, W.S.; G. R. Dodd, D.C.; S. Walker, A.W.S.; R. A. Platt, R. Turner, F. T. Goddard, N. J. Whitcombe, H. E. Frances, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., Hon. Sec.

The party was composed of Bros. J. M. Klenck, W.M.; F. W. Goddard, S.W.; G. R. Dodd, as J.W.; H. E. Frances, P.M., Treas.; F. J. Sawyer, S.D.; N. J. Bassett, W.S.; S. Walker, Asst. W.S.; Turner, W. G. Brighten, Frank Goddard, W. W. Morgan, Dr. Cutmore, H. Massey (Freemason), and Mrs. Klenck, Miss McRae, Mrs. Goddard, Mrs. Dodd, Mrs. Bassett, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Walker, Miss Sawyer, Mrs. W. W. Morgan, and Mrs. Massey.

Letters of apology were received from the following brethren who could not attend: Lieut.-Col. Burdett, Grand Lodge; Alderman Hadley, J. E. Saunders, Grand Lodge; F. W. Masters, 1339; R. Vincent, 72; J. Smith, P.G.P.; Dr. Kempster, Earl Spencer Lodge; J. McRae, J. Taylor, P.M. 933; Gibson, P.M. Earl Stanhope; Dodson, P.M. 72.

At the conclusion of the dinner the list of toasts was gone through.

In giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. said that if it had not been for Masonry no doubt the present assemblage would not have been got together, and for the information of the ladies he would say that Freemasons met in various lodges, and in those lodges they formed acquaintances through which many of the brethren formed friendships, which happily were lasting. He hoped that Masonry would continue to bring them together in the manner it had hitherto done, and that they would all feel towards each other that brotherly love which should at all times characterise Freemasons under whatever circumstances they met. They had met that day almost on the first anniversary of their consecration, and he was pleased to say they had lost none of that unanimity and concord which characterised their consecration meeting. He was very pleased to find the brethren and ladies present, and he hoped they had enjoyed themselves. The Stewards had done everything they could to contribute to the company's comfort, and he trusted the ladies especially would have a good impression of Masonry and of Masonic brethren. He would ask the ladies to look at the gentlemen around them, and he thought that having done so they would not regret having met them. The brethren present were a very fair sample of Masonry, and the ladies must acknowledge from the specimen they had had they would not object at meeting them in private society.

In giving "The Health of the Grand Master," Bro. Klenck reminded the brethren that a member of the Royal family took the chair on Monday at the Festival of the Boys' School, and that the Chairman of the day, the Duke of Connaught, expressed his full sympathy and thorough hearty feeling with Masonry.

In giving "The Pro G.M., the Deputy G.M.," &c., Bro. Klenck told the company that that very day Lord Skelmersdale was engaged in launching a lifeboat at Clacton-on-Sea, and he hoped that that boat might be the means of saving many a shipwrecked mariner and rescuing him from a watery grave. If such a case did occur he hoped that those saved would remember with gratitude the munificence of Freemasons.

Bro. James Coward, Past Grand Organist, responded. Bro. H. E. Frances, P.M., Treas. and Sec., in very complimentary terms, proposed "The Health of the W.M."

Bro. Klenck, W.M., in reply, said he hoped everything had been done satisfactorily to contribute to the comfort and happiness, and that the company were pleased with it. It was at all times the endeavour of W.M.'s of lodges to obtain and to merit the approbation of all, rather than of any individual in particular. He had done what he had to the best of his ability. He could safely say that the truest principle of Masonry was charity, and he did not think any brother during his tenure of office in Masonry could boast of doing more than he, in his humble capacity, had done. He had viewed the charities as one of the best institutions of Masonry, and to that principle he had adhered in his advocacy of charity.

The W.M. in proposing "The Visitors" informed the company of the cordial reception he had always met with among Freemasons while travelling abroad. Visitors were always acceptable to Freemasons, and he very much hoped that the visitors that evening had thoroughly enjoyed themselves. If they had done so as much as the hosts had enjoyed their society, they must be satisfied indeed.

Bros. Levander and Brighten replied, and assured the W.M. that the visitors had spent a most pleasant evening. Bro. Brighten in the course of his reply referred to the W.M.'s allusion to the launch that day of the "Albert Edward" Lifeboat. But he informed the brethren that though the vessel had only been formally launched that day, she had already done service, for when she was out on a sail, some very bad weather sprang up, and the crew of a brig to the number of eight or nine were all saved by means of the "Albert Edward," at Clacton-on-Sea. Such a case as that was evidence how urgently a lifeboat was needed at Clacton-on-Sea. "The Stewards," "The Press," and "The Ladies" were the other toasts, after the proposal of and returning thanks for which the company separated. A beautiful musical entertainment was given in the course of the evening by Mrs. Klenck, Miss McRae, Bro. Goddard, Bro. Brighten, Bro. F. J. Sawyer, and Bro. James Coward, who accompanied on the pianoforte most of the vocalists, also performed some beautiful compositions on the same instrument. The musical performances as well as all the other enjoyments of the evening were fully appreciated by the brethren and ladies.

PROPOSED MEMORIAL TO THE LATE BRO LITTLE.

A meeting of brethren was held at Freemasons' Hall on the evening of the 5th inst., for the purpose of taking steps for raising a fitting memorial to the late Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, &c., &c., &c. The following brethren attended: Bros. John Boyd, George Kenning, Rev. Dr. Brette, H. C. Levander, Thomas Massa, Thomas Cubitt, H. A. Dubois, H. G. Buss, Herbert Dicketts, W. Dodd, R. B. Webster, George Tidcombe, jun., F. R. W. Hedges, and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. John Boyd was called upon to preside, and in opening the proceedings of the evening he said that it was unnecessary to remind the brethren what the object of the meeting was, as all the brethren had had a circular, and the matter was fresh in their recollection. He should, therefore, leave the matter in the hands of the meeting to suggest the form which the intended memorial should take. But before that was done he should call on Bro. Dodd to read any letters he had received on the subject.

Bro. Dodd then read a letter from Bro. W. Roebuck, regretting his inability to attend the meeting, but giving permission for his name to be placed on any committee that might be formed. Another letter from Bro. J. C. Parkinson, informing the meeting that other engagements prevented his attending, but suggesting that the best memorial to the dead was the extending of help to the living, and with that view he would be happy to subscribe to any fund which might be raised to Bro. Little's widow. A letter from Col. Burdett regretted his being obliged to be absent on account of other engagements, but expressing sympathy with the object of the meeting. Bro. John Thomas Moss also wrote saying he would be happy to assist, and that the meeting might make use of him in any way; and if they pleased might use his name on a committee.

The Rev. Dr. Brette said he had thought over the subject which had brought the brethren together, and he quite agreed with the opinion of Bro. Parkinson, that the best way of showing respect to the dead was to take care of those whom they loved in life. He therefore thought the best way in which they could show their respect for Bro. Little would be during the life of his widow to assist to make her comfortable. He would at the same time add that they might erect a memorial tombstone over the grave of Bro. Little; but considering the distance from town of the cemetery which Bro. Little had selected for his grave it would not be well to lay out more than £30 or £40 for the tomb. This amount he had had already promised, but the amount desired to be raised was £1000, and he thought the interest on this sum when invested might be paid to Mrs. Little during her life as a memorial to Bro. Little, and when she died the principal to be paid to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, as a memorial in some form to the late Secretary of the Institution. In this way he thought the brethren would be taking care of one whom Bro. Little had loved during life, and of the children of the Girls' School, for the benefit of whom he had exercised his best efforts during his Masonic career. His proposition therefore was that a testimonial be erected over the grave of Bro. Little, to be paid for out of the subscriptions to the Wentworth Little Memorial Fund, that the remainder should be invested and the interest paid quarterly to Bro. Little's widow during life or widowhood, and at her death or re-marriage the principal to be paid to the Treasurer of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

Some questions as to form having been asked and answered, the brethren formed themselves into a committee for carrying out the above project, and appointed Bros. Dr. Brette, John Boyd, H. C. Levander, H. G. Buss, George Kenning, Col. Burdett, J. C. Parkinson, W. Roebuck, and Thomas Cubitt, a Sub-committee, with power to add to their number, to deal with the matter. Bros. W. Dodd and F. R. W. Hedges were appointed joint Secretaries, and Bro. H. G. Buss, Treasurer of the Fund.

The Chairman asked whether it was proposed to place any limit to the amount of individual subscriptions.

Dr. Brette thought not. The best that could be done was to get the largest amount of subscriptions possible. The first step should be to erect a memorial over Bro. Little's grave, which he proposed should consist of a tomb made of grey granite, six feet by six; and then to obtain as large an amount as possible for investment, the interest to be paid to the widow, and the principal, on her death or re-marriage, to be paid to the Treasurer of the Girls' School.

Bro. Tidcombe asked whether there was any Masonic place where a tablet to the memory of Bro. Little might be erected. He had noticed several tablets on coming into Freemasons' Hall that day.

The Chairman said that those tablets commemorated the building of Freemasons' Hall, and perpetuated the memory of those brethren who took a prominent part in that event.

Bro. Tidcombe observed that with regard to the proposed fund it would be as well to let the Craft know that the money which they subscribed to the Wentworth Little Memorial would in the end go to and benefit the Masonic Girls' School, so that they were really contributing to a great charity while doing honour to a brother whom they all respected.

The meeting was then adjourned for a fortnight.

THE STAR AND GARTER, KEW BRIDGE.

The opening of the new Banqueting Hall at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew, a notice of which appeared in the Freemason of the 1st ult., was inaugurated on the 27th ult. by a banquet, at which between fifty and sixty of the brethren were present. Situated in one of the most charming of the environs of the metropolis, watered by the Thames, and in the midst of associations of no ordinary interest, Kew has ever been one of the favourite resorts of jaded Londoners; and it is needless to say that the Star and Garter has ever been a favoured hostelry. Are you tired, careworn, and dyspeptic? Do you wish to throw off the thousand-and-one petty cares and vexations of every-day existence? Would you exchange the vile carbon of the city for the pure oxygen of the fields, the everlasting wearying mezzotint of city chimneys, the bilious hue of city skies, for the deep azure that is heaven-born and for the fresh verdant foliage of trees, that a Claude would sigh to transfer to canvas, then go to Kew. Health is in its breeze, poetry is in its picturesque beauty, history and romance meet you at every turn, and the genius of a Gainsborough and a Zoffany still haunt the favoured spot which brought them inspiration and gave charm to their pencilings. But the most favoured of earth-born men must sometimes seek the prosaic comforts of life, and where shall we find them so complete as at Bro. Stanbury's, mine host of the Star and Garter? Do you want the true flavour of the violet, where will you find a choicer Mazarin than at Bro. Stanbury's? Hock, Chablis, Champagne! Waiter, bring the carte!

And so Bro. Stanbury, moving with the times, and secure in the affections of his visitors, has enlarged his borders and thrown out a fine banqueting hall, which is also a hall of mystery, as every place dedicated to the rites of Freemasonry ought to be. How long it took to build, what its dimensions are, how it is upholstered and carpeted, all these are details which have already appeared in the Freemason and are too prosaic for the present occasion. It suffices us that the coup d'œil is attractive, and that the inaugural banquet promises to keep up the time-honoured reputation of the Star and Garter, and to add additional laurels to Bro. Stanbury as a caterer. Bro. Layton presided, and Bro. Ellis occupied the vice-chair, and as we have said, between fifty and sixty brethren graced the festive board, where everything was perfection, and everyone was gay, and the chairman exercised a wise discretion by making short speeches the order of the day.

The loyal and patriotic toasts were drunk with enthusiasm, and Bro. Newson in a gallant little speech, full of fire and pluck, responded for the martial element of the Queen's subjects. The toast to Lord Beaconsfield met with a response which would have satisfied the most capacious of Tories and have stirred the emotions of the veteran champion of British interests.

Bro. Tredwell improved the occasion, and was followed by Bro. Carpenter, who in a speech concise and epigrammatic, gave the toast "Prosperity of the Town and Trade of Brentford and Kew."

This marriage of aristocratic Kew with plebeian Brentford called forth a neat little speech from Bro. Besley, who somehow or other seemed inclined to give the pas to the commercial advantages of Brentford over the sylvan beauties of Kew.

Then followed what, after all, was the toast of the evening, namely, "The Host and Hostess of the Star and Garter."

The Chairman in his most genial vein sang the triumphs of mine host and the many virtues of the amiable hostess, without whom the Star and Garter would be wanting in inspiration.

The commercial enterprise which had been shown in building the new hall was referred to, and the happiest results to every one were prophesied, and if good wishes could control events there is no chance that the prophecy will lack fulfilment.

Bro. Stanbury thanked the brethren for their kind wishes towards himself and his wife. So far as he was concerned nothing should be wanting to deserve a continuance of the favours which the brethren had accorded him in the past. It was not for mortals to command success, but he would do his best to deserve it. And what could mortal do more? Several brethren who had been expected were unable to attend, but the banquet had gone off successfully which he was willing to accept as a good omen for the future.

Toasts of a complimentary character to "The Press" and "The Ladies" followed, and the banquet was brought to a harmonious conclusion.

During the evening some capital songs were sung by Miss Matilda Roby and Bro. Seymour Smith, who also acted as accompanist.

Bro. William James Hughan, P.M., P.S.G.D. of England, the present Master of the Lodge of Fortitude, No. 131, Truro, is delivering a series of lectures to the brethren. In June No. 1: "Masonic Degrees and Regalia." In July, No. 2: The Symbolism of the Master Mason's Apron. In August No. 3: "Masonic Grand Privileges." In October No. 4: "Masonic Antiquity and Customs."

The next meeting of the Frederick Lodge of Unity will be held at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on Tuesday next, at half-past six o'clock.

C. W. Tomes, S.D.; A. Lye, J.D.; A. Newman, I.G.; Foulds, Secretary. The ceremony of installation was efficiently performed by Bro. E. W. Adamson, P.M. At the conclusion of the business of the lodge, which included the presentation of a jewel to Bro. Head, the retiring W.M., the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, served in excellent style by Bro. Sutton, of the Gildredge Hotel. It was attended by upwards of 40 members and visiting brethren. The enjoyment of the evening was greatly enhanced by some first-rate part-singing by Bros. Plant, Moulding, and Higgings, of Canterbury. The brethren present included Bros. V. P. Freeman, P.G. Sec.; Adamson, P.G.O. Kent; Cave Brown Cave, W.M. 40; T. R. White, W.M. 311; H. Davey, W.M. 732; Faithful Davies (Hartington), and the following Past Masters of the Tyrian Lodge:—Bros. J. Head, W. Kirkland, T. Morris, C. Tomes, C. Tomkinson, and E. W. Adamson.

EGREMONT.—Kenlis Lodge (No. 1267).—The members of this young but flourishing lodge celebrated the festival of St. John the Baptist, on Tuesday, the 25th ult. The proceedings opened at the Odd Fellows' Hall, at three p.m., when there was present the following members: Bros. J. Lindow Burns-Lindow, W.M.; Rev. W. E. Strickland, S.W. and W.M. elect; W. Armstrong, J.W.; E. Chapman, Treasurer; J. J. Robson, Secretary; W. F. Towers, D.C.; W. Matthews, Organist; James Woodburn, I.G.; J. J. Wilson and John Smith, Stewards; and S. Braithwaite, Tyler. The following members were also present: Bros. E. Clarke, P.M., P.G. Steward; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Muncaster, P.M.; Jonas Lindow, H. Ashley, J. Fearon, E. Bromley, J. Nelson Jos. Goul'ar, G. Douglas, W. Spiers, W. Woodman, Jos. Cook, Rev. G. B. Armes, W. F. Charters, and R. Baxter. There was also a good attendance of visiting brethren, including Bros. W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119 and 962, P.G. Secretary; Rev. J. Barton, W.M. 1390, Milom; J. Mills, P.M. 1390; Dr. Henry, P.M. 119; W. Martin, W.M. 1660, Frizington; W. Sandwith, P.M. 119; W. Alsop, P.M. 119; J. L. Paitson, W.M. 119; J. Harris, 1660; H. Waiting, 1390; J. Rothery, 119; F. Hodgson, S.W. 872, Whitehaven; J. T. Ray, J.W. 872; W. F. Lamonthy, P.M. 1002 (Freemason); G. S. Braithwaite, 872; J. W. Montgomery, S.W. 119; W. Bradley, J.W. 1390; and others. After the lodge was opened, Bro. E. Clarke, P.M., took the presiding officer's position, and the W.M. having presented Bro. Rev. Strickland as his successor, the ceremony of installation was performed by the brother named in a manner worthy of all praise, and in the presence, as will be observed, of a large Board of Installed Masters. The newly-installed W.M. subsequently appointed his officers, and they were invested thus: Bro. J. L. Burns-Lindow, I.P.M.; J. J. Robson, S.W.; J. Carpenter, J.W.; Rev. G. B. Armes, Chaplain; E. Chapman, Treasurer, re-elected; J. J. Wilson, Secretary; Jonas Lindow, S.D.; J. Smith, J.D.; R. Towerson, D.C.; W. Matthews, Organist; E. Bromley, I.G.; J. Jackson and J. Woodburn, Stewards; and S. Braithwaite, Tyler. The addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren of Kenlis Lodge were delivered by Bro. Muncaster, P.M., in a faultless and most impressive style. After numerous hearty good wishes, the lodge was closed in form. Upwards of fifty subsequently sat down to a sumptuous banquet at the Globe Hotel, and, after the numerous bounties had been fully done justice to, a few hours were pleasantly spent in toast and sentiment, under the able presidency of the new W.M.; but, owing to the early departure of the last train, we regret our inability to give any particulars of what must have been a "feast of reason and flow of soul."

SOUTHPORT.—Fermor Lodge (No. 1313).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated their annual summer festival on Thursday evening, the 27th ult., at the Masonic Rooms, Neville-street. The chair was taken by Bro. P. J. Whitehead, W.W., who was supported by his officers. The usual routine business being over, the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. Hobbs, was presented by Bros. Dor'd, P.M., and T. Whitehead, P.M.; and Bro. J. F. Roberts, P.M., proceeded to install him in a most efficient manner. After the usual honours had been paid to the new W.M., the following officers were invested: Bro. P. J. Whitehead, I.P.M.; C. E. Bryan, S.W.; Howie, J.W.; Dr. Baker, Treas.; Platt, P.M., Sec.; T. Whitehead, P.M., D.C.; Wyles, S.D.; Welsby, J.D.; Hunter, I.G.; Alured and R. Johnson, Stewards. Bro. Rockliffe was re-elected as Tyler. A handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. P. J. Whitehead by the W.M., on behalf of the lodge, and a vote of thanks recorded to Bro. Roberts for his perfect working in the installation ceremony. The brethren afterwards dined together, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—An emergency meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Friday, July 5th, at the Red Lion Hotel. Punctually at the appointed time, half-past six o'clock, the W.M., Bro. Copeman William Fox, opened the lodge. The ballot taken separately, were declared to be unanimous in favour of Messrs. Edwin Bowley and John William Wickens. Bro. F. Walters, P.P.G.D., Mx. P.M. 73, and Secretary, having solicited the W.M. to allow him to confer the degrees about to be given to the candidates, who were all personal friends of his, the W.M., Bro. C. W. Fox, in the kindest manner possible agreed to the work being done by the Secretary. The work done was raising Bros. Samuel Allen, Patrick Brown, and Henry Leander McDowell. Mr. Edwin Bowley was duly initiated into Freemasonry, all the ceremonies being done in an admirable manner. As each candidate was initiated separately they were enabled to appreciate the beauties of the degrees conferred on them. Apology was received for the non-attendance of Mr. Wickens. Apologies were also received from Bros. Capt. Reginald W. Williams, P.P.G. Org. Midx., P.G.S.B. Midx., W.M. 1275, S.W.; J. B. Shackleton, P.G. A.P. Midx., P.M., &c., S.D.; J. W. Baldwin, P.P.G.P. Midx., P.M. 1423, &c., J.D.; H. Gloster, W.M. 1531, I.G., &c., excusing and regretting their non-attendance, which was caused by circumstances entirely beyond their own control. Bro. C. W. Fox, W.M., announced that his list as Steward for the Boy's School was thirty guineas; he asked for more donations to it. Business ended, the lodge was closed, and adjourned to meet on Saturday, July 20th, at 3 p.m. No banquet of refreshment was partaken of. The brethren returned to town as soon as the lodge was closed. There was a good attendance of the members.

LIVERPOOL.—Hamer Lodge (No. 1393).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Friday afternoon, the 28th ult., at 3.30 p.m. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. T. Sammons, who was supported by Bro. John Jones, P.M., and a good muster of his staff of officers, viz.: Bros. Thos. Large, S.W.; Robt. Leason, J.W.; W. C. Erwin, Sec.; J. Pilling, J.D.; R. J. L. Kynaston, I.G.; W. H. Jewitt, M. Callaghan, and G. B. Tension, Stewards. Amongst others the following visitors and brethren were present: Bros. J. McCarthy, I.P.M.; Henry Jackson, P.G.A.D.C., P.M.; R. H. Evans, P.M.; John Price, Treasurer; Dr. B. Price, S.D.; Jos. Skeaf, P.G.O.; Jas. Tomlin, W. J. Henderson, Stewart Speedy, J. A. Lambert, J. A. McRobie, Robt. Parry, J. J. Griffiths, R. W. Rowlands, H. Davidson, H. Roberts, John Bond, Ben. Russell, T. F. Airey, J. S. Clegg, John Atherton, T. Adler, W. Clarke, J. F. Davies, J. C. Merrilees, John Houlding, W.M. 823; A. E. Richardson, R. L. Stockton, J. Wilks, Wm. Guirten, and others. Visitors: Bros. Child, Busfield, Hobart, J. F. Bryan, J. W. Hill, J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; Wm. Kidson, 292; and Joseph Wood (Freemason). After the reading of the minutes of the last regular meeting which were duly confirmed, the W.M. opened the lodge in the Second Degree and afterwards in the Third, and then proceeded to raise Bros. Atherton and Airey to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, which ceremony he rendered in his usual efficient manner. The W.M. elect, Bro. Thomas Large, S.W., was then presented by Bros. R. H. Evans, P.M., and J. McCarthy, P.M., to the W.M., as Installing Master, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. Bro. Sammons accepted this important Masonic duty, and delivered the opening address to the W.M. elect and the brethren. The Secretary read the summary of the ancient charges and regulations, to the whole of which the W.M. gave his unqualified assent, and then took the usual obligation. All brethren below the rank of Installed Master then retired, and after an absence of fifteen to twenty minutes returned to the lodge and saluted the newly chaired W.M. with the usual honours. The officers for the ensuing year were then invested: Bro. Thos. Sammons, I.P.M.; Henry Jackson, P.M., D.C.; Robt. Leason, S.W.; W. C. Erwin, J.W.; R. A. Evans, P.M., Treasurer; Dr. B. Price, Secretary; Jas. Pilling, S.D.; R. J. L. Kynaston, J.D.; W. A. Jewitt, I.G.; M. Callaghan, S.S.; G. B. Tension, J.S.; J. J. Smith, A.S.; Jas. Tomlin, A.S.; Thos. Pierpoint, Organist. Bro. H. Jackson, P.G.A.D.C., then delivered the address to the W.M., the Wardens, and the brethren, in a most impressive and dignified manner, and his fine declamation and effective elocution made a great impression, and brought the ceremony of installation to a delightful close. After some formal business the W.M. closed the lodge in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall, where an excellent and well served banquet was provided, Bro. Ball, House Steward, being the caterer. After the desert had been placed upon the tables the W.M. proposed the usual loyal toasts, which were received with musical honours. Bro. Robt. Leason, S.W., then proposed "The Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and Grand Lodge." Bro. W. C. Erwin, J.W., proposed "The R.W.D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire, and Provincial G.L.," coupling with the toast the names of Bros. H. Jackson, P.G. Assist. D.C., and Skeaf, P.G. Org.; both of whom suitably responded. Bro. T. Sammons, I.P.M., then gave "The Health of the W.M.," which he said should be considered the toast of the evening, and referred to the fact that Bro. Large was the first master of the Hamer, who had received his initiation in the lodge, and had served since then as an officer for five years past, well and faithfully, and his present high position was a just reward for zeal and ability. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm and full Masonic honours. The W.M. in responding expressed his warm appreciation of the cordial reception given to the toast, and begged to return them his grateful thanks for all that had been said in his favour, and hoped that he should fill the chair as ably as his predecessors. After advocating the claims of the various charitable institutions, he said he trusted he should have a prosperous year and he would do the best he could to fulfil all the duties the brethren had cast upon him to his own credit and the welfare of the lodge. Bro. McCarthy, P.M., proposed in very eloquent terms "The Health of the I.P.M.," and amongst other remarks congratulated Bro. Sammons on his successful year of office and the happy termination he had brought it to by installing his successor. The W.M. presented Bro. Sammons with a very valuable and chaste P.M. jewel, and he duly acknowledged the toast and presentation. "The Masonic Charities" were proposed by Bro. J. Jones, P.M., responded to by Bro. Tomlin, A.S. "The Past Masters" proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bros. Child, Bryan, and Joseph Wood. "The Officers" proposed by the W.M., and responded to by the S.W. and J.W., and other officers. "The Lodge of Instruction" proposed by the W.M. and responded to by Bro. Pilling. "The Brethren of the Lodge," proposed by Bro. R. H. Evans, P.M., and responded to in an excellent speech by Bro. Houlding, W.M. 823. The proceedings of the evening were rendered most enjoyable by the vocal and instrumental harmony provided by Bros. Bryan, Child, Hill, Hobart, Busfield and Richardson, under the artistic direction of Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Percy Lodge (No. 1427).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 18th June, at the Masonic Hall, Maple-street, at which there was a good attendance of brethren, not only belonging to the lodge, but also from several visiting lodges. The lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M., the Installing Master, Bro. E. D. Davis, P.P.G. S.W., and Prov. G.D.C. Northumberland, assumed the chair, and Bro. Bertram Paget Ord, S.W., was presented to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. After the usual obligations had been subscribed to, and the lodge raised, those below the rank of P.M. withdrew. The Board of P.M.'s was then opened, and in the most impressive manner, the new Master was placed in the chair of K.S. After the usual salutes and the presentation of the tools, the lodge was successively closed from the Third to the First Degree, when the Master proceeded to appoint his officers as follows:—Bros. J. C. Mowbray, I.P.M.; W. S. Lishman, S.W.; Jno. Braithwaite, J.W.; B. J. Thompson, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G. Sec., Treasurer; W. B. East, Chap.; Chas. Bushell, Sec.; G. E. Macarthy, S.D.; W. Magall, J.D.; H. Dixon, I.G.; J. MacLaren, S.S.; Fred Ferrina, J.S.; R. Ferry, Organist; and G. S. Sims, Tyler. The Treasurer's report, which was read, was found extremely satisfactory, and augured well for the prosperity of the lodge. On the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to the Queen's Head Hotel, Pilgrim-street, where a splendid banquet was served, to which about fifty sat down, amongst whom were the following: Bros. J. C. Mowbray, P.G. Supt. of W., I.P.M.; J. H. Bentham, P.P. G.S.B.; B. J. Thompson, P.P.G.S.W. and Prov. G. Sec.; E. D. Davis, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G.D.C.; J. Ridsdale, P.P. G.S.D.; J. Cook, P.P.G.S.W.; T. Anderson, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G. Treas.; G. Cockburn, P.M. 24; J. Bolam, I.P.M. 541; J. Atkinson, P.M. 481; Jesse Marchant, P.M. 424; J. Mackay, J.W. 424; E. Gibson, Sec. 424; J. Brydon, J.D. 424; F. W. Poat, 424; J. Ward, 424; J. Gose, 481; W. S. Lishman, S.W. 1427; J. Braithwaite, J.W. 1427; Chas. Bushell, Sec. 1427; G. E. Macarthy, S.D. 1427; Wm. Magall, J.D. 1427; H. Dixon, I.G. 1427; H. Wilson, 24, and J.W. 1664, and others. All the toasts were given and responded to in a very cordial manner. The I.P.M. in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," alluded to his long intimacy with him, which extended over a period of thirty years, and which was suitably acknowledged by the W.M., who proposed "The Health of the Installing Master," and stated that he was under a debt of the deepest gratitude to Bro. E. D. Davis, for having come at some inconvenience to him to perform the duties of Installing Master. The toast was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Bros. Ferry, Dewar, Richardson, and Liddell enlivened the proceedings by singing several glee during the course of the evening, and all the brethren expressed their gratification on the termination of the proceedings at having spent such a delightful evening.

GREAT STANMORE.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 1549).—The principal meeting of the year of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Abercorn Arms Hotel, Stanmore, Bro. Osman Vincent, W.M., presiding, supported by Bros. Geo. Tidcombe, S.W. (W.M. elect); Joseph Ebbs, J.W.; W. A. Rogers, Treas.; R. Helsdon, P.M.; Garrod, I.P.M.; and many other brethren, officers, and members of the lodge, besides a large number of visitors, among whom we noticed Bros. J. Patterson, W. Unwin, W. Drew, and E. V. New, of No. 174; J. G. Defriez, 45; H. Hall, 34; Dr. F. H. Wilson Iles, P.M. 404, P.P.G.S.W., and Prov. G. Sec., Herts; the Rev. Newton Price, P.M., P.P.G. Chap. Herts; Benskin, 404; W. J. Green, P.G.S. Middx.; Page Dunn, 1288; and H. Massey (Freemason). After the reading of the minutes and the report of the Audit Committee, the ballot was taken for the admission of Mr. Edmund Harwood Tyrrell, proposed by Bro. Hancock, seconded by Bro. Squire, for initiation, and for Bro. William Drew, 733, as a joining member, proposed by Bro. Helsdon, P.M., and seconded by Bro. Garrod, P.M., and both were declared unanimous in favour of the admission of these new members, whereupon Mr. Tyrrell was initiated into the mysteries of the First Degree, the ceremony being very neatly performed. At its conclusion, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. George Tidcombe, S.W., was presented as the W.M. elect to the W.M., Bro. Vincent, who proceeded to address the lodge upon the occasion, and when Bro. Tidcombe had given his unqualified assent to the conditions read by the Secretary, obligated him in the usual form. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and a Board of Installed Masters was formed, Bro. Helsdon, P.M., in the chair, to whom the new W.M. was presented, and the ceremony completed of installing him into the chair of K.S. The brethren having been re-admitted, Bro. Tidcombe was duly proclaimed and saluted, and the orations were delivered by Bro. Helsdon in a highly impressive manner. The officers for the year were appointed and invested as follows: Bros. J. Ebbs, S.W.; W. S. Marshall, J.W.; Dr. W. A. Rogers, Treas.; C. Veal, P.M., Sec.; C. Long, S.D.; R. Ray, J.D.; C. Hunt, I.G.; R. Helsdon, P.M., D.C.; F. Meek, W.S. The lodge having been resumed in the First Degree, the W.M. presented a handsome P.M. jewel, voted by the lodge, to Bro. Vincent, P.M., for the very able manner in which he had conducted the business of the lodge during his year of office, and Bro. Vincent having returned thanks for this mark of the brethren's appreciation of his services as Master, the lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer. The brethren then adjourned to the pretty grounds which surround the hotel and where the abundance of roses and other flowers made the fresh air and sunshine of a summer afternoon thoroughly enjoyable, for it is one of the prettiest spots near London, and the Abercorn Arms Hotel is one of the most comfortable hostilities we know of. Our meditations on the beauties and comforts of the place however were soon cut short by the announcement of dinner, through the tongue of a very vigorous bell, and the brethren were soon all assembled in a prettily arranged dinner-room and discussing a very excellent repast, admirably served. The labours of the brethren in the lodge, and the sweet air they had been inhaling in the gardens, had sharpened their appetites, and the heart of Bro. Veal must have been cheered at the sight of his good dinner being so heartily enjoyed. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts very briefly, merely announcing the toast and, when it had been duly honoured, calling upon the musical brethren for the performance announced in the programme. Thus "The Queen and the Craft" was followed by the "National Anthem,"—solo by Bro. Faulkner Leigh; "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," was followed by a song (written by the Master) entitled "Freemasonry," which went to the air of "God bless the Prince of Wales," sung by Bro. Faulkner Leigh; the toast to "The M.W. Pro G.M. Earl of Carnarvon, Dep. G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," was followed by a duet, "The Moon has raised," very prettily sung by Bros. Leigh and Parker. In proposing "The Health of the R.W.P.G.M. for Middlesex, Col. Burdett, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," he regretted that Col. Burdett was unable, in consequence of another engagement of long standing, to be present. The toast was heartily responded to, and was followed by a solo on the pianoforte, entitled "The Fairy Harp," a sweet bit of music, composed by the performer, Bro. Parker. The W.M. then requested the brethren to drink a toast to the memory of the late Bro. Little, as a late Provincial Grand Officer who had left them for the Grand Lodge above, for whom he requested muffled honours on the sledge. The "Death of Nelson" was then sung with great spirit and feeling by Bro. Faulkner Leigh. Bro. Heldon having returned thanks on behalf of the Prov. Grand Officers, the Chairman proposed "The health of the Visitors," observing that he would not select any one in particular for praise, for they were all good men and true. He was glad, he said, to see that the Press was represented there, as it was a power in the country we could not do without. The duet, "All's well" having been performed by Bros. Leigh and Parker, Bro. Herts, P. Grand Sec. Herts, returned thanks on behalf of the visitors, and in doing so remarked upon the excellence of the working in the lodge, and also referred to the rapid increase in the number of Freemasons, observing that it remained to be seen whether this great increase is an unmixed good. He himself believed in quality and not in quantity. The Abercorn Lodge, he remarked, had got a very nice number, and he believed that the more they increased the less happy they would be, and he felt that it behoved all Freemasons to be very careful whom they introduced into the Order. Bro. Vincent, I.P.M., said it devolved upon him to propose the toast of the evening. They had just been musically informed that "All's Well," and as regarded the choice they had made of a Worshipful Master, he fully believed that they had got a good man, and that all was well. The Abercorn Lodge was now beginning the fourth year of its existence; it had got very well over the first three years. They were not numerous, but they were a happy family, and hoped they would continue to be, as he believed they would, and that they would be a pattern to the other lodges of the province. He had the honour to propose "The Health of the W.M.," he had had the honour to be associated with Bro. Tidcombe in the lodge ever since it was a lodge, and he was sure he would prove an efficient Master and ruler in the Craft. He had very good officers, and he hoped that they would support their chief as he ought to be supported. Bro. Tidcombe having replied, proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," which Bro. Vincent acknowledged; after which the toast to "The Officers of the Lodge," to which each of the Officers replied briefly, and the proceedings terminated as usual with the Tyler's toast, and thus a very successful meeting was brought to its close.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street. Bro. Thomas Longstre, the newly-elected W.M., presided, and there was a good attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. There being no special business before the lodge it was opened up in the three degrees and closed down again, the working being very well gone through. A candidate was proposed for initiation, and the usual proclamation made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren; after which the lodge was closed, in peace, love, and harmony.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—On Monday, the 8th inst., the regular meeting took place, the W.M., Bro. T. B. Whythead, presiding, and working the ceremonies of passing and raising, supported ably by his officers and a large number of brethren. A portrait of the late Lord Lonsborough, P.G.S.W. for North and East Yorkshire, was presented to the lodge by Bro. T. Cooper, P.M., and a view of the beautiful ruins of Ricavault Abbey by the W.M. During the evening a telegram was read by the W.M., which had been sent by the S.W., Bro. J. S. Cumberland, and Bro. A. T. H. Turner, the Lodge Stewards at the Boys' Festival, who had wired down the total amount collected, and hearty cheers were given for those brethren absent on such a truly Masonic errand.

WALTHAMSTOW.—Beaconsfield Lodge (No. 1662).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Chequers, Marsh-street, on Wednesday, the 26th ult., when the following officers were present: Bros W. T. Christian, W.M.; W. Goome, S.W.; W. G. Hallows, J.W.; J. Pindar, P.M.; J. Hallows, Sec.; T. Franklin, S.D.; J. H. Cambridge, J.D.; A. Oldroyd, I.G.; T. Upward, Org.; A. Delvall, W.S.; Gilchrist, Tyler, and the following brethren, viz., Bros. Hunt, Field, Carter, Clark, Rubery, Stockwell, Putney, and Harris, and others. The lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer in the First and Second Degrees. Bros. Putney and Harris, the candidates for raising, were examined and entrusted. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and Bros. Harris and Putney were regularly introduced and raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons. The lodge was resumed in the First Degree, and the brethren called off for refreshment. The lodge was called to labour, and the ballot taken for three gentlemen, whose names had been previously handed to the Secretary, which proved unanimous in their favour. One only being present, he was introduced and initiated into the Order according to ancient form and custom. The Secretary then read a letter received from Grand Lodge respecting the four resolutions passed at the last Quarterly Communication respecting the Grand Orient of France, and the same was ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the lodge. The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer, and adjourned until the 5th October next. Several visitors were present.

LIVERPOOL.—Ancient Briton Lodge (No. 1675).—The brethren of this lodge met for the usual performance of their Masonic duties, at the head quarters of Masonry in Liverpool (Hope-street), on Tuesday evening, the 25th ult., when there was a good attendance, attracted by the fact that the First and Third Degrees were expected on. Bro. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., W.M., occupied the chair. The minutes were read and confirmed, and afterwards three candidates were initiated, and three brethren raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., the whole of the principal portions of the work being most admirably performed by Bro. Wylie, W.M. It was proposed to have a picnic in connection with the lodge, and after some discussion, the consideration of the matter was left in the hands of a Committee to decide when it should take place. After three propositions for initiation and the transaction of other business, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Royal Arch.

RYDE.—Medina Chapter (No. 175).—The regular quarterly meeting of this chapter took place at the Masonic Hall, John-street, Ryde, on Friday, July 4th, when the installation of the Principals elect took place, and was witnessed by many Principals and Past Principals from the other chapters in the flourishing province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight; amongst whom, who attended to do honour to the much respected Principal elect, Comp. R. Loveland-Loveland, I.P.Z. of the Phoenix Chapter, No. 257, were Comps. J. Le Feuvre, P.Z., P.G. Scribe E.; W. Tuohy, P.Z. 257; J. Lillywhite, Z. 257, P.P.G.P.S.; E. S. Main, P.Z. 342 and 903; J. Thomas, P.Z. Southampton; G. Green, P.Z. 804, Havant, &c. The ceremony was performed by the retiring Z., Comp. Cawte, P.Z. 342, in an earnest and interesting manner, who installed and invested the following companions as officers for the ensuing twelve months: Comps. R. Loveland-Loveland, Z.; F. Newman, H. and Treas.; A. P. Wilkes, J.; F. W. Faulkner, E.; C. C. Peltey, N.; Rev. J. N. Palmer, P.S.; J. H. Smith and J. Houston, Asst. Sojs.; and Willis, Janitor. After the usual formal business the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the Royal Pier Hotel, where a most recherche banquet was provided by that esteemed brother, the prior, The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the M.E., Comp. Loveland, in replying to the toast of "The Principals," thanked the companions for the high honour conferred upon him, and dwelt at some length on the action taken by the companions to resuscitate this old chapter, which had been allowed to remain dormant for many years until last year. Comp. Cawte, P.Z. 342, Portsea, readily came forward and undertook the onerous position of Z.; he was warmly supported by the R.A.M.'s on the island, and they had had a most successful year, having exalted twelve brothers into this Sublime Degree. The Ex. Z. expressed his confidence in the officers and companions, and believed he should receive an equal support during his term of office. "The health of the I.P.Z. and Installing Principal" was enthusiastically received and appropriately responded to. Comps. Peltey and Palmer responded for the officers, the latter remarking how pleased he was to occupy the position of P.S., and assured the M.E.Z. of his earnest desire to perform the duties of his responsible office in a manner which would be satisfactory to the chapter. Comp. J. Lillywhite, Z. 257, responded for the visitors, and in an effective speech congratulated the R.A.M. of East Medina Chapter on having so distinguished and thoroughly efficient companion to preside over them. He had had the pleasure of preceding and succeeding him in the office of Z. in the Phoenix Chapter, and he could bear testimony to the earnestness and really clever working of his esteemed friend and companion, Ex. Z. Loveland. The toasts were interspersed with a few capital songs, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. We are glad the Isle of Wight Royal Arch Masons, are taking an interest in the working of this beautiful degree, and as it is the only chapter on the island, it should be made one of the most efficient working chapters in the province. It has a bright future before it, under Comp. Loveland, and he will no doubt endeavour to emulate the working of the other chapters, and restore it to a prominent position in a province where good working chapters are the rule instead of the exception.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Chapter (No. 823).—The usual meeting of this chapter was held on the 25th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Comp. T. Shaw, Z., was in his place, and well-supported by his officers. It was proposed and carried that 15 guineas be paid to the West Lancashire Masonic Institution, to make the three chairs Life Governors. After propositions for exaltations, and other formal business, the chapter was closed in due form, and the companions adjourned to banquet. A very pleasant evening was spent.

Knights Templar.

MOUNT CALVARY ENCAMPMENT.—The last meeting of the Mount Calvary Encampment of this Order was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on the 24th ult., when there were present amongst others, Sir Knights J. Tanner, P.C.; Paas, P.E.C., Almoner; D. M. Dewar, P.E.C., P.G.C.G. Registrar; Driver, Second Captain; Walls, C.L.; Rawles, E. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the Sir Knight Registrar, by permission of the E.C., most impressively installed Comps. J. H. Thomas, Canonbury, 657; and A. Williams, 176, as Knights of the Order. The ballot was also taken and proved to be unanimous in favour of another companion for installation, but who was prevented from being present. There being no other business of importance to transact, the encampment was duly closed and the Sir Knights adjourned to a collation. The annual summer banquet in connection with this old encampment was held at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton, on the 26th ult., and was ably presided over by Sir Knight J. Tanner.

LAUNCH OF THE MEMORIAL LIFE-BOAT AT CLACTON-ON-SEA.

The second of the memorial lifeboats presented by the Grand Lodge of Freemasons to the National Lifeboat Institution to commemorate the safe return of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of English Freemasons, was launched on Wednesday under the most favourable circumstances at Clacton-on-Sea. Between sixty and seventy miles from London on the Essex coast, Clacton-on-Sea offers many attractions to visitors, and when its natural resources are fully developed it bids fair to become a favourite watering place on the East Coast. It is within a very short period that Clacton has sprung into existence, and the ceremony on Wednesday last may be looked upon as its debut to the world, and a most successful debut it was.

As our readers are aware, the boat formally launched and christened on Wednesday has been for some months stationed at Clacton, and that within a few weeks after her arrival she was instrumental in saving nine lives from the wreck "Garland."

The inaugural ceremony, including the laying of memorial stones in the new boat house, was, at the express request of the Freemasons of the district, delayed until the summer.

At 10 o'clock on Wednesday Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and a numerous party left the Liverpool-street Station of the Great-Eastern Railway Company, arriving at the Weeley Station after a sharp run of two hours, from whence the party were driven to Clacton, a distance of between five and six miles. The railway station and the village of Weeley presented quite a gala appearance. The whole route was gay with many-coloured bunting, and mottoes of the most cordial welcome were worked on banners spanning the roadway. Clacton itself had never, probably, in its brief history been so thronged. From Colchester, and all parts of Essex, holiday makers had come to Clacton, to do honour to the occasion, and the appearance of the escort of Essex Division of the Suffolk Yeomanry Cavalry, who preceded the Deputy-Grand Master's carriage, was the signal for an outburst of enthusiastic welcome. The holding of an especial Provincial Grand Lodge was the first work of the day, after which a procession was formed by the brethren, who proceeded in Masonic regalia to the Lifeboat-house, situated about a quarter-of-a-mile from the pier. Two memorial stones were here let into the building with the customary ceremony; the Deputy Grand Master having personally laid the stone, said: May the Great Architect of the Universe so govern and order events that the purposes for which this edifice has been built may be adequately fulfilled, a wish which was re-echoed by Bro. Lewis, on whom devolved the pleasing duty of laying the second memorial stone.

The Rev. J. Bridge, Prov. Grand Chaplain of Essex, said: we are acting here to-day thoroughly in the spirit of Freemasonry, one of the first principles of which is charity towards our fellow man, in inaugurating the launch of a lifeboat, and the opening of a house in which this splendid lifeboat is to be kept. By our act we have consecrated this building to preserve from damage a boat which is to be devoted to the saving of human life. As Freemasons we admit that this is a part of our duty, as it is one of our principles; further we are showing an act of loyalty towards our Grand Master, to whom has been vouchsafed a safe return from a voyage fraught with all the perils of the sea. As Freemasons we are loyal, and we cannot show our loyalty in a more pronounced and worthy manner than in thus commemorating the safe return of an illustrious Prince who will one day (though we hope that that day is far distant) be our Sovereign. (Applause). I am expressing the feeling of all my brethren when I, as your Grand Chaplain, say we are glad to see all of you here to-day. (Applause).

The Lifeboat on its carriage, to which six horses were harnessed, proceeded towards the beach, preceded by a band of the 11th Hussars, and followed by the mounted yeomanry, the brethren and representatives of the corporations of Maldon, Harwich, Ipswich, and Colchester.

Arrived at the beach, Lord Skelmersdale, taking the vessels containing corn, wine, and oil in his hands, said: I scatter this corn as the symbol of plenty; I pour this wine as the symbol of joy and gladness; and I pour this oil as the symbol of comfort and peace. It is now my duty in the name of the Grand Lodge of England to present this magnificent Lifeboat to the National Lifeboat Institution of England. (Cheers.) That Institution has now received two commemorative Lifeboats from Grand Lodge; one was placed on the Devonshire coast, and this one the Institution has decided to station here, and I think that the Clacton people ought to be very proud to possess such a boat. (Hear, hear.) You all know—at all events the great majority of you here to-day know—that this boat was presented to Clacton as a remembrance of the safe return to England of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales from India. I can only hope that this boat may prove of great service to this coast, and we may take it to be a good augury of her future service, that she has already been instrumental in saving life here (renewed cheers). In the interests of humanity, I hope that she will not have frequent occasion to shew her excellent qualities, but when necessity arises I have not the slightest doubt that the gallant crew, whom you now see manning her, will be ready to do their duty at whatever personal peril or sacrifice. (Applause.) I think you will agree with me that a Lifeboat is a very fitting thank-offering. His Lordship, turning to the Secretary of the National Lifeboat Institution, said: Bro. Lewis, I have very great pleasure in presenting to you in the name of Grand Lodge this Lifeboat, and I can only trust that she will be of great service on this coast. (Cheers.)

Bro. Lewis, in response, said: My Lord, the gift is a magnificent one, and it is a fit acknowledgment of the goodness of the Great Architect of the Universe in permitting the safe return of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to England. I may mention that for twelve years H.R.H. has taken the greatest interest in the affairs of the National Lifeboat Institution, and when the Freemasons decided to present this magnificent lifeboat as a memorial of his safe return to England, the fact was most gratifying to His Royal Highness. (Applause.) This boat is the representative of mercy—she has already saved nine lives from an inevitable death—and these men now manning her are noble soldiers in mercy's army, whom no storm, no tempest, no darkness will intimidate from attempting to save a fellow creature from shipwreck. This is not the only instance on the part of the Freemasons; and I may mention that not only have they presented this boat and its accessories and the handsome boat house which we have just left, but they have handsomely endowed the building and the boat, so as to repair damage, and replace this boat when damaged or worn out. (Loud cheers.)

The Rev. H. Law, incumbent of Clacton-on-Sea, returned thanks on behalf of the local committee.

Miss Woolf, of Colchester, here stepped to the bow of the boat, and, after naming her the "Albert Edward," dashed a bottle of wine against the prow, and the boat, amidst enthusiastic cheers from the beach, the cliffs, and the pier, glided from her carriage into the sea. The boat was exercised for some time, and her qualities were favourably commented on. The "Albert Edward" is thirty-four feet long, eight-and-a-quarter feet wide, rows ten oars, double-banked, and possesses the usual characteristics of the boats of the Institution in regard to self-righting, self-ejecting water, &c.

Later in the afternoon Lord Skelmersdale presided over a luncheon provided in a marquee at the rear of the Royal Hotel. In proposing the toast to "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," his Lordship said: Your appearance here to-day show that you join with us in your thankfulness for the safe return of His Royal Highness from India, where he went, not for mere personal gratification, but as the representative of Her Majesty in her great Indian Empire. Whatever His Royal Highness undertakes, no one can do better than he does; whether he presides over a dog show, or over the highest philanthropic institution in the land, he performs his duties equally well and to the satisfaction of every one. (Cheers.) In fact, the same remark may be made with equal truth in respect to all the members of the Royal Family. Only a few days ago His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught presided over one of the great Masonic Charities. You know that he is shortly to be married to a Princess whom I have not seen, but of whom I hear nothing but the most flattering accounts, and I hope that he will soon be as happy as any man ought to be under such circumstances. (Cheers and laughter.)

The toast was drunk with all honours.

His Lordship and the principal of the visitors from London left the marquee at 4 o'clock, and returned to town by a special train leaving Weeley at 5 o'clock.

The President and Fellows of the Royal College of Physicians held their annual conversation on Wednesday evening, 3rd inst., in the rooms of the college, Pall Mall East, on which occasion no fewer than 400 visitors assembled. Among these were several members of Parliament and many gentlemen of eminence in the scientific world, as Professor Huxley, Professor Addison Thomson, Professor Lankester, and others, in addition to the leading physicians and other members of the medical profession in the metropolis. The library of the college was abundantly furnished with objects of scientific interest lent for the occasion. An exhibition of Oriental gems and precious stones by Professor Tennant attracted considerable attention. The walls of the library were decorated for the occasion by paintings by well-known artists.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton, V.P. and Trustee, presided. The other brethren present were Bros. Erasmus Wilson, S. Rawson, J. M. Case, Hyde Pullen, J. A. Farnfield, W. Hale, J. G. Stevens, Thomas Cubitt, W. Stephens, F. Adlard, Joseph Smith, L. Stean, C. J. Perceval, James Willing, jun.; James Brett, E. J. Barron, Rev. D. Ace, Joshua Nunn, C. F. Hogard, J. Terry, Sec.; and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Terry, after the reading and confirmation of the minutes, reported the death of two male annuitants.

The Committee's report was then read and ordered to be entered on the minutes.

A recommendation having been received from Bro. Jas. Ebenezer Saunders, that the Institution accept the offer of the Brighton Railway Company to pay £21 as compensation for the deprivation of any benefit the asylum might derive from a small piece of the ground at Croydon, of which they have had the use, but which the company, by its parliamentary powers, takes, was adopted.

With reference to the Institution proving against the private estate of Bro. Samuel Tomkins, after a lucid statement of the position of affairs from Bro. E. J. Barron, it was resolved to take counsel's opinion on the point.

A gardener's lodge, at an expense of £300, was resolved to be erected immediately, Bro. Griggs having submitted drawings after the House Committee had found they could not effect a purchase of one of the cottages in immediate proximity to the asylum. Bros. Col. Creaton, Joseph Smith, and Thomas Cubitt were appointed a Committee for carrying out the proposition.

On the motion of Bro. W. Stephens, seconded by Bro. W. Hale, thanks were voted to Bro. Cutbush for his numerous presents of flowers and shrubs to the Institution, and Bro. Cutbush was elected an honorary Life Governor of the Institution, with all the privileges appertaining to the rank.

The Committee then adjourned.

A special meeting was held in the course of the afternoon, the same brethren, with the exception of Bro. Erasmus Wilson, being present, when, on the motion of Bro. S. Rawson, seconded by Bro. Joseph Smith, it was resolved that the subscriptions to the Institution be altered (in so far only as affects Life Governors) from pounds to guineas.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

OLD LODGES OF THE "ANCIENTS," &c.

I have been interested by the perusal of Bro. Lamonty's note on "Old Lodges," and especially as to the Cumberland Militia Lodge. I should like much to see a transcript of it made for this department of the Freemason (which, to my mind, is the one for Masonic students generally), and also the by-laws of the Sun and Sector Lodge. In a military lodge the town mentioned in the warrant is only where the regiment is stationed at the time. My own lodge, once of that kind, though chartered at Chatham in the 67th Regiment, has nearly been "all the world round" before it is titled at Truro. The Cumberland Militia Lodge was 215 before the "Union." After then it became 270, and in 1832 No. 192, soon after which it collapsed.

I see in "Ahiman Rezon" of 1807, two "Ancient" lodges mentioned for Whitehaven, viz., 154 and 157. The first of these was called the Concord, became 187 at the "Union," and 136 A.D. 1832, soon after which it collapsed. The No. 157 is the present No. 119, and was warranted in 1768. In my lists of "Lodges at the Union" (now out of print) will be found a register of all the lodges under "Moderns" and "Ancients" at the Union, with their numbers before and since. Should Bro. Lamonty not be provided with such, I can lend him my copy, so as to complete his investigations.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Truro, 6th July, 1878.

It is said that the United States Government, after consideration, has resolved to disregard the provisions of the Postal Union Treaty with regard to the delivery of book packets. Orders have been given to stamp all such packets "Undeliverable," and to return them. The authorities base their determination on a clause in the fourth article of the treaty which, however, relates to the case of a country desiring to exercise jurisdiction over the Post Office, and to hinder the circulation of what may be called seditious matter.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey will be held on Tuesday next at the Public Hall Dorking, at one o'clock. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The Prince and Princess of Wales will have a garden party at Marlborough House on Saturday afternoon. The invitations state "to meet Her Majesty the Queen."

Bro. F. B. Chatterton was at a general meeting of the committee of the proprietors of the Theatre Royal Drury Lane, unanimously elected as the new lessee.

The Bishops who will occupy the pulpit in St. Paul's Cathedral to-morrow (Sunday) are, the Bishop of Colombo in the morning; the Bishop of North Carolina in the afternoon; and the Bishop of Western New York in the evening.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Quarterly General Court of the Girls' School will be held at 12 o'clock this day (Saturday) at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, when the following business will be transacted. The general business of the Institution, to place candidates on the list for election in October next, and to declare the number of girls then to be elected; also to consider the following:—by Bro. H. G. Warren, 1st Rule LXXIV., Page 17. To omit the words "in the sum of three hundred pounds," and insert in lieu thereof, "in such sum as the Committee shall from time to time deem fit." Also to omit the word "two" in the first line, and add in line one, after the word him, "by guarantee society or otherwise."

WEATHER WARNING.—The following cable message has been received at the London office of the New York Herald from New York: "Three depressions, attended by moderate gales, rains, and probably lightning, will pass over the north British and Norwegian coasts between the 12th and 17th. The rains will extend over the British Isles and the north of France."

The inspectors, sergeants, and constables of the A Division of the Metropolitan Police, on the invitation of Chief-Inspector Harris, recently subscribed a substantial sum of money to erect a memorial stone to the memory of the late Superintendent Mott. The stone has now been erected over the grave at Brompton, and is a handsome and gratifying tribute of the men's respect.—Globe.

The Directors of the Brighton Aquarium Company, at their meeting held on Saturday last declared an interim dividend, for the half-year ending June 30, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum free of income tax.

The Field Marshal Commanding in Chief will hold a levée at one o'clock on Wednesday next, the 17th inst., at the Horse Guards, Whitehall, the number being limited to one hundred and fifty. Applications to attend should be addressed to the Military Secretary.

We are asked to state that the meetings of the Eccleston Lodge of Instruction, No. 1624, will in future be held at the St. George's Club, Victoria Station, every Saturday evening.

A Quarterly General Court of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, on Monday next, the 15th inst. The proceedings will commence at 12 o'clock.

SUNSHINE IN JULY.—The Astronomer Royal reports that the duration of registered sunshine in London last week was 21.6 hours, the sun being above the horizon during 115.1 hours; the recorded duration of sunshine was, therefore, only equal to 19 per cent. of its possible duration.

The Consecration and Installation Meeting of the West Smithfield Lodge of Mark Master Masons No. 223, will be held at the New Market Hotel, King-street, Snow Hill, on Friday the 26th inst., at half-past 5 o'clock. The officers designate are Bro. Edwin Gilbert, W.M., Bro. Thomas Wm. Adams, S.W., and Bro. G. S. Elliott, J.W.

The installation meeting of the Stuart Encampment of Knights Templar will take place at the Freemasons' Hall, Watford on Monday next, the 15th instant, Sir Knight Magnus Ohren is the E.C. Elect.

The sixty-eighth annual meeting of the Swedenborg Society, British and Foreign, was held at the Society's House, 36, Bloomsbury-street, London, W.C., on Tuesday, the 18th ult. The Rev. J. Presland occupied the chair. The Committee's report states "that 3523 volumes of Swedenborg's works have been sold and presented during the Society's year." A large number of theological students have made themselves acquainted with the contents of "The True Christian Religion" and "The Apocalypse Revealed." In a letter from one of them, the effect is described as "calling light and order out of the theological darkness and chaos which has hitherto brooded upon my soul and mind." Many favourable notices of the Swedenborgian (so-called) doctrines have appeared in the provincial press, and the "London School Board Chronicle" stated its opinion "that within the last half-century a larger number of intellectual sceptics have been brought back within the pale of Christianity by the doctrines of the founder of the New Jerusalem than by all other forms of Christian faith put together." Between 400 and 500 volumes have been presented gratuitously to public libraries, colleges, and various other institutions, as well as to private individuals. The operations of the Society on the Continent have extended to Italy, Russia, Sweden, and Germany, also to Trinidad. The President has received on behalf of the Society a most interesting letter from Rao Dadoba Pandurang, of Bombay, accompanied by a MS. of some ninety folio pages, entering minutely into a comparison of the new doctrines with those termed orthodox, and the principal beliefs of the people of India. The MS. will be printed and sold at a cheap rate.

The Globe says that civil list pensions have been granted to Dr. Prescott Joule, the inventor of the principle of the mechanical equivalent of heat, of £200 per annum; to Mr. Nash, water-colour artist, and the Rev. Mr. Graves, Irish antiquary and archaeologist, of £100 per annum each; and to Miss Chisholm, daughter of Mrs. Chisholm, "the emigrant's friend," of £50 per annum.

Berlin has added to the treasures of its National Gallery two memorable portraits, one by Brogino, the other by Botticelli, and the Museum of Sculpture in the same city has acquired a bronze statue, half-life size, of John the Baptist, by Donatello, the Berlin casts of whose bronzes in the Santo at Padua, we are glad to see, about to be photographed and published.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

ELECTION FOR SECRETARY.

The special meeting of the subscribers to this Institution for the election of Secretary, consequent upon the death of Bro. R. Wentworth Little, was held on Thursday in the large hall of the Freemasons' Tavern. Col. Creaton, V.P. and Trustee, presided, and in opening the proceedings stated that the meeting was held especially for the election of the Secretary. He then informed the brethren that the following had been appointed Scrutineers of Votes: Bros. Dubois, Bishop, Newton, Nunn, Perceval, J. G. Stevens, Larham, Tyerman, Thos. W. White, Jardine, and Finney. The candidates were Bros. Crick, Cull, Eames, Hedges, Matier, Smallpeice, Storr, F. White, and Worrell. He then declared the poll opened, and announced that it would close at five o'clock.

Among the brethren who attended were Lord Skelmersdale, Lord Sherborne, Lord De Tabley, Earl of Limerick, Col. Burdett, Capt. Phillips, Col. Shadwell Clerke, B. Baker, Agg-Gardiner, M.P., Gen. Brownrigg, John Havers, Col. Peters, J. L. Hine, Edward Cox, Joseph Smith, V. B. Wilson, John Mason, W. Mann, Frederick Smith, W. Main, F. Fellows, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Geo. Kenning, James Mason, Rev. Dr. Morris, James Terry, F. Binckes, Peter de L. Long, J. B. Monckton, H. Hacker, Capt. Wordsworth, George Newman, A. Midlemas, H. Browne, W. T. Howe, J. M. Case, Rev. G. R. Portal, E. P. Albert, A. Stridman, Jas. Brett, W. Winn, W. Oliver, Rev. P. M. Holden, J. Holbrook, Rev. Dr. Brette, Rev. Ambrose Hall, Edward Clark, W. Long, T. B. Yeoman, Stillwell, A. H. Tattershall, C. Hutton Gregory, E. S. Snell, A. H. Diaper, H. G. Warren, G. J. Palmer, W. White, John Edward Dawson, C. A. Cottebrune, T. J. Sabine, Geo. Bolton, C. Hammerton, A. D. Lowenstark, A. Tisley, F. A. Philbrick, Q.C.; H. Pritchard, Rev. Dr. Ace, S. Rosenthal, C. R. Vine, Dr. F. J. Lilley, Griffiths Smith, W. Woodward.

The poll was declared at half-past six o'clock with the following result:

Bro. HEDGES, F. R. W.	373
" Storr, P.	268
" Matier, C. F.	153
" Cull, T.	44
" Crick, W. C.	42
" White, F. A.	42
" Worrell, W.	40
" Eames, T. R.	34
" Smallpeice, W.	1

Col. Creaton then said: Bro. Hedges having polled 373 votes, I declare him duly elected. (The announcement was received with immense cheering.)

Bro. Hedges, who had been loudly called for, said: Brethren and ladies, allow me to thank you most sincerely for this mark of your confidence; and I assure you that nothing shall be wanting on my part to justify it.

Bro. Storr here stepped forward and warmly shook Bro. Hedges by the hand, and he was followed by Bros. Worrell and the other candidates.

Bro. Gladwell proposed a vote of thanks to the Scrutineers for their arduous duties.

Bro. H. Bartlett seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

The Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., then said: Brethren, I am sure there is no one present who will not heartily join with me in thanking our worthy and excellent chairman, for the urbanity he has displayed, and the admirable arrangements that he has made for the convenience and comfort of all the voters this day. I beg to propose a vote of thanks to our chairman. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. W. Hilton: I beg to second it.

The Chairman thanked the brethren for this renewed mark of their confidence, and assured them that it was always a great pleasure to him to do anything for the Masonic Institutions.

The proceedings then terminated.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

MATRICULATION EXAMINATION, UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, JUNE, 1878.

C. D. GREEN.—This boy left in March of this year, having just completed his sixteenth birthday. He has received no instruction or coaching up other than the teaching he got while at the Masonic School, Wood Green, under Dr. Morris.

Green has entered his name on the books of St. Thomas's Hospital, and he intends to qualify there for a surgeon. Having passed the College of Surgeons in the Matriculation Examination, he will find no difficulty in working up the degrees of M.B. and M.D.

SCIENCE AND ART EXAMINATION, SOUTH KENSINGTON.—THEORETICAL MECHANICS.

Nearly £20,000 has so far been received for the Hospital Sunday Fund.

Owing to the fact that hydrophobia has carried away upwards of thirty of the Holker harriers, the Marquis of Hartington, who owns the pack has decided to abandon it, much to the regret of the lovers of the chase in the district.

THE DISTRICT GRAND MASTERSHIP OF MADRAS.

The following petition, numerously signed, has been addressed to the M.W. Grand Master.

"To the Most Worshipful Grand Master of the United Fraternity of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

"We, the undersigned, being regular registered Masons of the lodges mentioned against our respective names, having the prosperity of the Craft at heart, and whilst deeply deploring the loss which we have sustained by the sudden and unexpected death of our District Grand Master, beg with all humility and respect to submit for your approval, the name of Worshipful Brother James Balfour Cockburn, P.M., P.D.G.S.W., &c., &c. (Surgeon Major of the British Army Medical D-partment, and attached to the Royal Horse Artillery), as a fitting successor to the late Right Worshipful Brother John Miller. Fully aware of, and perfectly recognizing the fact that the prerogative of election lies entirely in your hands, we venture to trust that you will be graciously pleased to take under your favourable consideration our nomination of a brother whose Masonic career, both in this Presidency and elsewhere, has been such as to gain our complete esteem and confidence and under whose rule and guidance we feel assured the lodges of Southern India would work zealously and harmoniously, and whose election to the high and honourable post of District Grand Master of the Madras Presidency would command the approbation of the whole Fraternity of this large and important district."

[We are not ourselves favourable to "Masonic Petitioning," as we are quite sure that the authorities will try to place the right man in the right place.]

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Common sense, ever the best of all learning, becomes invaluable when its practice will renovate broken health and reinstate soundness, strength, and vigour. Summer is the season for removing coughs, shortness of breath, wheezing, asthma, and all pulmonary diseases inflicted on the delicate and careless by our rigorous winters, and Holloway's remedies are the means of effecting a happy transition from danger to safety. After the harassed chest has been fomented with sea water, or weak brine, and dried, this Ointment should be well rubbed into the skin both in front and behind, between the blade-bones. Holloway's Pills should be taken to correct any functional irregularity; they will make each organ conform to health's requirements.—[Adv't.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place on Wednesday, 10th inst., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, when Bro. J. P. Moore, W.M. elect, was placed in the chair with the usual ceremonies. Bro. G. Davies, P.M., was the installing officer, and admirably fulfilled the duties appertaining to that position. The new W.M. then invested his officers as follows: T. Hutton, S.W.; N. Brown, J.W.; H. Syon, Sec.; G. Davies, P.M., Treas.; Colker, S.D.; T. Hosgood, J.D.; A. Dean, I.G.; and B. Norman, Tyler. A vote of thanks was recorded unanimously to Bro. Davies for his services as installing officer, and a P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Reed, the I.P.M., for his services to the lodge during his year of office. The banquet took place at the Lord Raglan, Plumstead, and was highly commended by the brethren. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the harmony was well sustained throughout the evening.

SIDCUP.—Sydney Lodge (No. 899).—This excellent little lodge, which has been so ably presided over during the last year by Bro. L. Etheridge, installed its new Master, Bro. Sidney Gore, into the chair on Tuesday, the 9th inst., and was the occasion of a gathering of Masons, many of whom are not only eminent by virtue of their official rank, but by the more distinguished positions they have made for themselves in the splendid charities of the Order, through their untiring zeal and benevolence in the cause of those institutions, that any Master might be proud of; and we need only mention the names of Bros. Coupland, P.M. 913, and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; Dr. Flaxman Spurrell, P.M., and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; W. Russell, W.M. 77, and P.P.G.S.D. Kent; W. T. Birt, P.P.D.C. Kent; T. Smith, P.M. 829, and P.P.G.P. Kent; T. Hastings, P.M. 829, and P.P.G.P. Kent; T. D. Hayes, W.M. 913; and L. Etheridge, now I.P.M. of the lodge, most of whom have repeatedly stood as Stewards, and all are Life Governors of all the charities, to claim for this gathering a distinction second to none for its love of the highest and most honoured attributes of good old Craft Masonry. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Etheridge, at 1 a.m., and after the minutes of the last meeting had been confirmed, Bros. Etheridge, Luck, and Clarence were, after the usual questions, passed to the Second Degree. Bros. Carlyon, Parsons, and Lee were then raised to the Sublime Degree, both ceremonies being worked by the W.M. Bro. Gore, S.W., was then presented to the installing officer, Bro. T. Hastings, and was with due formality placed in the chair of K.S., and saluted in the three degrees. He then proceeded to invest his officers as follows: Bros. F. Spurrell, M.A., S.W.; Moulder, J.W.; T. Smith, P.M., Sec.; T. Birt, P.M., Treas.; R. Hanson, S.D.; J. Jacobs, J.D.; W. Hawkins, I.G.; Ilton, D.C.; Gates, P.M., W.S. On the completion of the ceremony, a cordial vote of thanks was passed, and ordered to be inscribed on the minutes of the lodge, to Bro. Hastings, for the manner in which he had carried out the ceremony of installation that day, and to Bro. Etheridge a handsome and valuable Past Master's jewel was presented in the name of the lodge, for his services rendered to it during his year of office; and in pinning it on his breast, Bro. Gore, in felicitous terms, wished him long life to wear it. Suitable replies having been made by these brethren, it was then unanimously resolved that Bro. T. Smith should again (for the fifth time) represent the lodge on the Charity Committee of the Province of Kent. "Hearty good wishes" having been given, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, the manner and service of which reflected great credit upon Bro. Carlyon, the host. Forty-eight sat down, and upon its completion, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in good style. To that of R.W. Lord Holmesdale, Prov. G.M. for Kent, a hearty reception was given, and "Bro. Kates, D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," toasted with enthusiasm. Bros. Coupland and Spurrell replied, and in the course of excellent addresses bore testimony to the ability with which the Grand Officers fulfilled the duties of their important positions. "The Health of the W.M." was, in the unavoidable absence of the I.P.M., proposed by Bro. Hastings, in glowing terms, and the cordial reception of it by the brethren showed unmistakably the high estimation in which their W.M. is held by them. Bro. Gore briefly and feelingly returned thanks, assuring the brethren of his determination to support the honour of and add to the prosperity of the lodge by every means in his power, and upon shortly afterwards retiring was cheered lustily. Bro. Hastings then took the chair, and proposed the remainder of the toasts. "The Visitors," for whom Bro. Hayes eloquently replied. "The Past Masters of and belonging to the Lodge" was responded to by Bros. Birt and Smith. The latter in the course of an admirable speech on behalf of the "Officers of the Lodge," spoke of his endeavours in the cause of charity, saying that for many years past he had stood Steward, and the last was the seventh time he had done so; not only himself, but the members of his family, in the person of his wife and four of his children, were Life Governors of the Charities; and while God gives me strength, said our worthy and esteemed brother, I shall always do my best to support our charities and make them a sine qua non in all my transactions with my brethren in Masonry. A special toast was, by the permission of the chair, proposed by Bro. Hayes, in honour of Bro. Past Master Birt, and in the course of his remarks, Bro. Hayes spoke of the many years of intercourse, both Masonically and privately, he had had with Bro. Birt, and of the pleasure it afforded him as W.M. of a sister lodge in the province, the Pattison, to have the opportunity of visiting, in that capacity, a lodge in which Bro. Birt's name was so honoured and respected, and finding him still adding it onward in its path of progress. He spoke of Bro. Birt's efforts in the cause of the Charities, and concluded by wishing him all the happiness and distinction he so justly deserved. Bro. Smith as well bore testimony to Bro. Birt's untiring zeal, and attributed to him the present proud position they stood in both numerically and financially. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Birt, in the course of a telling reply, thanked them for their unremitting kindness and support, and in powerful language advocated further, and still further support of the Masonic Charities, pledging himself to support the name acquired by the Sydney Lodge for its constant support of those grand institutions, the Masonic Charities, by every means in his power. The Tyler's toast concluded one of the most pleasant meetings we have had the pleasure this year of assisting at. Among the visitors present, beside those already named, were Bros. Brown, P.M. 869; J. R. Desser, W.M. 79; W. B. Lloyd, S.W. 913; Gibson, 1107; W. McCrow, P.M. 879; F. Freeland, 879; Toppe, 879; J. C. Reynolds, P.M. 1329; J. H. Field, P.M. 558; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason).

BATH.—Royal Albert Edward Lodge (No. 909).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Crown and Anchor, Weston, on Wednesday, July 10th. The chair was taken at 8 o'clock by the W.M., Bro. W. Williamson, who opened the lodge in the First Degree, assisted by the following officers, P. C. Young, S.W.; L. Howes, J.W.; J. Hayward, S.D.; J. Stuckey, J.D.; J. Duffield, Sec.; T. B. Moutrie, P.M., Treas.; E. L. Hill, D.C.; J. Freeman, I.G. The business having been completed the W.M. opened the lodge in the Second Degree, and the chair was then taken by the W. Bro. R. C. Elze, D.P.G.M. Somerset, who administered the obligation to the W.M. elect, Bro. P. G. Young. Lodge was then opened in Third Degree, and those below the rank of Installed Master having retired, the Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Young was duly installed by the D.P.G. Master in his usual impressive and effective manner. On the return of the brethren the processions, salutations, and greetings took place, and Bro. Elze concluded the ceremony with the prescribed addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren. The W.M. having thanked the lodge for the honour conferred upon him, and expressing his determination to deserve it, proceeded to appoint his officers as follows: W. Williamson, I.P.M.; T. B. Moutrie, Treas.; J. Duffield, Sec.; E. L. Hill, D.C.; L. Howes, S.W.; J. Stuckey, J.W.; J. Hayward, S.D.; J. Davies, J.D.; J. Freeman, I.G.; J. Knight, Organist; Braham and Glover, Stewards; J. Pinkett, Tyler. The lodge was closed in perfect harmony, and the brethren then adjourned for an hour preparatory to the banquet. Amongst the visiting brethren were J. Brown, P.M. 41, Prov. G.S.W. Somerset; J. Edwards, P.M. 53; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. 43, P.P.G.S.W. Warwickshire; Ridges, W.M.; H. Brumby, P.M. Lodge Steuben, New York, and others. The following brethren of 906 were also present: Lieut.-Gen. Doberty, P.M., P.P. G.S.W.; W. Reeves, P.M., P.P.G.O.; J. Beckett, P.M.; W. Sparrow, J. Brooks, T. Greenman, Jones, W. Bright, G. Neate, H. Banks. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured. The character of the Albert Edward Lodge for musical proficiency was fully maintained, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 1356).—The members of this large and rapidly increasing lodge celebrated their annual festival of St. John at their room, No. 80, North Hill-street, Toxteth Park, Liverpool, on Wednesday afternoon, the 10th inst., and the interesting ceremony, as usual, attracted a very large and highly influential gathering of the fraternity. Bro. T. Nickson, W.M., presided at the opening of the lodge, and amongst the numerous assembly were Bros. Thos. Horne, P.M.; B. B. Marson, P.M., P.G.S.B.; Sam E. Ibbes, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; J. Williams, S.W.; A. Woolrich, J.W.; Edward Paul, Treas.; Charles Arden, Sec.; James Keet, S.D.; Edward George, J.D.; William Evans, I.G.;

H. Squire, Steward; R. Fairclough, Org.; P. M. Larsen, P.M., Tyler. There were also a large attendance of other members present, numbering no less than 45. The list of visitors included Bros. W. J. Chapman, W.M. 1609; S. Holden, 1182; W. Williams, P.M. 1182; J. W. R. Brown, 1609; W. E. Coxon, 1675; E. S. Griffiths; B. D. Share, 1502; Robert Ing, P.M. 594; John Ellis, W.M. 662; S. H. Run, 1182; H. Burrows, P.M. 673; J. Hughes, 1675; H. E. Squire, 231; Richard Burgess, Org., 1609; O. W. Sanderson, 1609; J. Johnson, Sec. 1675; Joseph Booth; J. Davaynes, P.M. 667; J. E. Jackson, P.M., 667, P.G.S.; Joseph Skeaf, P.G. Org.; A. Morison, W.M. 1570; James C. Fask, 1504; J. R. Bottomley, 1675; John Hill, 1609; James Bolton, P.M. 667; W. May, P.M. 673; J. B. Myers, Past Master 1182; Jos. Wood, Treas., 1094. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and unanimously confirmed, the retiring Worshipful Master most effectively performed the ceremony of installation, as the crowning and closing act of his official year. The chair was then taken by Bro. B. B. Marson, P.M. 1356, P.M. 1609, P.G.S.B., who proceeded to install Bro. J. W. Williams, Jun., as the W.M. for the ensuing year. In carrying out the whole of the ceremony Bro. Marson displayed an amount of efficiency which has rarely, if ever, been equalled, and the really impressive style in which the whole of the work was done elicited the heartiest approbation and appreciation of even the oldest Mason who had the privilege of being present. The officers of the lodge were invested as follows: Bros. T. Horne, F.M., D.C.; Thomas Nickson, I.P.M.; A. Woolrich, S.W.; Charles Arden, J.W.; James Keet, Sec.; Edward Paul, Treas.; Robert Fairclough, Org.; Edward George S.D.; W. Evans, J.D.; H. P. Squire, I.G.; William Parrington, H. Mytton, and John Ashley, Stewards; and P. Larsen, P.M., Tyler. At the installation banquet which followed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and in the course of the proceedings a valuable P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. T. Nickson, I.P.M., in recognition of his services to the lodge. The after banquet proceedings were greatly enlivened by a number of songs, and amongst the "chief singers" must be named Bro. John Hill, of the Dramatic Lodge, No. 1609, whose contributions were of the most artistic and delightful character, and, as the saying goes, "worth any money." Bros. P. M. Myers and Fairclough were also amongst the vocalists. The brethren separated at an early hour, and on the following day (Thursday) the members of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge held their annual picnic at a new watering place, St. Ann's-on-the-Sea, between Lytham and Blackpool. About 170 ladies and gentlemen dined at the hotel, and then went into the St. George's Gardens, adjoining the hotel, where the arrangements for varied enjoyments were excellent, leading to a general desire for an early return to the charming place. The ladies and gentlemen joined in various games, and Bro. Marson's quadrille band, as usual, added much to the enjoyment. A special train was engaged to convey the brethren, but owing to the great demonstration at Blackpool on the same day considerable delay was caused; every one, however, thoroughly enjoyed the "out."

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1513).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Sun Hotel, on the 4th inst., and was well attended. Amongst those present were Bros. J. Hammond, P.G.S. of Middlex., W.M.; Fox, S.W., W.M. elect; Hunt, D.C., acting J.W.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, Secretary; Ockenden, S.D.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, J.D.; Davey, acting I.G.; Gilbert, P.G.T. of Middlesex, Tyler. Bro. Morris, of No. 177, was a visitor. The W.M. thanked Messrs. Cox and Carpenter, passed Bros. Cole and Patey, and raised Bros. Passworth and Beauchamp, the three arduous ceremonies being most ably performed. The W.M. proposed, and Bro. Walls seconded, the following resolution, which was carried nem. con. "That the sum of three guineas be taken from the fund of the lodge and added to those being raised for the purposes of the Barrett Testimonial." The lodge was then closed, and the resident brethren partook of a collation, presided over by Bro. W. Hammond, P.M., &c. The next regular meeting of the lodge will be held on the third Thursday in October next.

LIVERPOOL.—Fermor Hesketh Lodge (No. 1350).—The brethren of this lodge met on Monday evening, the 8th inst., to celebrate the festival of St. John, at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, when and where there was a goodly gathering of members and visitors. The chair at the opening of the proceedings was taken by Bro. W. H. Cooper, the W.M., and amongst those present were Bros. R. Collinson, P.M.; J. Higson Johnston, P.M.; Dr. A. Samuels, P.M.; T. A. Collinson, P.M., Treas.; T. F. Cooper, Sec.; C. P. Titherley, S.D.; R. Thomas, I.G. The minutes of the previous meeting having been unanimously confirmed, Bro. Cooper, the retiring W.M., closed his year's work by most effectively installing Bro. W. P. Evans as his successor in the chair for the coming year. A full Board of Installed Masters was held, and on the re-admission of the brethren the newly-chaired W.M. was saluted and proclaimed in proper form in the Three Degrees. The following were the officers invested:—Bro. W. H. Cooper, I.P.M., Dir. Cer.; T. F. Cooper, S.W.; C. P. Titherley, J.W.; T. A. Collinson, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Treas. (re-elected); J. W. Shaw, Sec.; Robert Carruthers and George Gordon, S.D. and J.D.; Robert Montgomery, I.G.; Charles Leighton, E. G. Grundy, and W. Yallop, Stewards; John Hodgson, Org.; Rev. C. F. Mermagen, Chap.; P. Ball (re-elected), Tyler. The concluding addresses were given by Bros. T. A. Collinson and A. Samuels, P.M.'s. The brethren afterwards sat down to dinner, provided in the banqueting room by Bro. Ball, House Steward, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. In responding for the Provincial Grand Officers, Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G.

Sec., thanked the brethren on their behalf. He stated that the Masonic avocations of their P.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, were increasing daily, or he would otherwise be offender with them. His popularity in this province was only exceeded by the cordial esteem manifested for him in London. Their D.G.M., Bro. the Hon. F. A. Stanley, though quite as much occupied politically as well as Masonically, was ever ready to help them. He (Bro. Alpass) must direct their attention to the example set them by these, their superior officers. With regard to the Masonic charities, he feared that the claims of the metropolitan charities, more especially, were not fully recognised here; and he wished to impress upon the brethren the fact that these noble institutions were really deserving of support, and in some cases necessitous. Their institutions in West Lancashire were excellent, and not so likely to be neglected, being at their own doors. He earnestly exhorted them to bring some of the energy they expended upon these to bear upon their great metropolitan charities, more especially the asylums for aged men and women and the schools for boys and girls; and eloquently appealed to the eighty lodges of this province to support them in a fitting manner. "The Worshipful Master" was proposed by Bro. W. H. Cooper, I.P.M., who said Bro. Evans had filled the various offices in the lodge with credit, and he had great pleasure in seeing him in his present proud position. The W.M. thanked the brethren, and promised his best efforts to promote the interests of the lodge. In conclusion, he had great pleasure in presenting their esteemed I.P.M. with a handsome P.M. jewel on behalf of the lodge, and in asking them to drink his health. The toast was most enthusiastically received, and Bro. Cooper responded in suitable terms. "The Past Masters" was coupled with the names of Bros. J. Higson Johnson, P.M., and Dr. Samuels, P.M. The former expressed the pleasure he felt in seeing so many promising young members joining them, while Bro. Samuels said it gave him great satisfaction to see the respected father of the lodge, Bro. Johnson, again restored to health and present among them. Bros. R. Collinson, P.M., and T. A. Collinson also replied. Other toasts of a complimentary character followed. A very enjoyable musical programme was provided by Bro. Hodgson, assisted by Bros. J. S. Watson, T. H. Cooke, and E. J. Grundy.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The last meeting of this lodge was held at the Albany Hotel on Wednesday, the 10th inst., when there were present Bros. W. Wigginton, P.P.G.S. of W. Middx., acting W.M.; Court, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Ashley, J.D.; Palmer, I.G.; Tomlinson, P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, Treas.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middx., D.C. (Freemason); Court, jun., Asst. Org.; Richnoll, S.; and Clark, P.M. (hon. member). The visitors were Bros. Jefferies, Canon-gate, Killwinning; and Kerr, Downpatrick, Ireland. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Wigginton announced that in consequence of severe indisposition Bro. S. H. Knaggs, their W.M., was unable to be present. The ceremony of raising Bro. Taylor to the degree of a M.M. was then performed. Previously to the lodge being closed, a vote of sympathy to Bro. Knaggs was passed. A collation followed, at which the customary toasts were duly honoured. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the second Wednesday in October next.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Lodge (No. 1547).—On Wednesday evening, the 10th inst., the members of this lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, for the purpose of assisting at the installation of the W.M. The chair was taken by Bro. J. Marshall, W.M., who was supported by Bros. Councillor J. Forrest, I.P.M.; W. T. Lunt, P.M., D.C.; Jno. H. Parker, S.W.; R. Warriner, Sec.; Jno. Duncan, jun., S.D.; J. C. McGuire, I.G., and others. The W.M. elect was duly presented, and installed by Bro. Richd. Roberts, 1547, in a very impressive manner. After the usual honours had been paid, the following were invested as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. Marshall, I.P.M.; R. Warriner, S.W.; Jno. Duncan, J.W.; Councillor J. A. Forrest, P.M., Treas. (re-elected); Wm. Ladyman, Sec.; J. C. McGuire, S.D.; Chas. J. Caddock, J.D.; Wm. J. Lunt, P.M., D.C.; Thos. J. Farrell, Organist; H. Hignett, I.G.; Wm. Stonier, Robt. D. Hewetson, and F. W. A. Soldat, Stewards; W. H. Ball was re-elected Tyler. The concluding address was given by Bro. Roberts, in a style worthy of Masonry, and the brethren afterwards adjourned to the banqueting room, where dinner was excellently served by Bro. Ball. After the usual loyal toasts, "Our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate," was proposed by the W.M. in suitable terms, and coupled with it Bros. Muldrow, P.G.D.C.; W. J. Thurley, P.P.G.J.D.; and S. Ibbes, P.P.G.B. Bro. Jas. A. Forrest proposed the "West Lancashire Educational Institute," and stated he need not say that he had great pleasure in proposing a toast connected with the keystone of Masonry, charity. More especially was that the case when it was to such a noble object as that which they had before them, viz., education. He urged them to imitate the example of their Royal brother, the Duke of Connaught, who had sat at the head of the Festival of their great Masonic Boys' Institution, and thereby shown his appreciation of its value. Bro. Cottrill, P.M. 823, replied, and spoke of the benefits conferred by the "West Lancashire," in not only forwarding the education, but also in putting out into the world those children who experienced its benefits. To meet these demands extra efforts would be required, and he hoped the brethren would do their utmost to support them. "The Visiting Brethren" was coupled with the names of Bros. Winkup, P.M. 667, and Callow, P.M. 1505. The toast of the evening, "The Worshipful Master," was proposed by Bro. Marshall, I.P.M., in flattering terms, and he expressed a hope that the W.M. would have a prosperous year of office, which he was sure he deserved. Bro. Parker, in responding, thanked the brethren for the confidence reposed in him in giving him the highest office in their power. He would do his best to deserve their kindness, and, supported by his officers, he had every hope to be able to carry out their Masonic principles with credit to the Order and the lodge. The W.M. next proposed "The Installing Master," which was cordially received. Bro. Roberts replied, and thanked the brethren. "The I.P.M." was duly honoured, and a handsome Past Master's jewel presented to him by the W.M. on behalf of the brethren of the Liverpool Lodge, with their best wishes. Bro. Marshall replied in feeling terms, and said he should certainly not abate the interest he had taken in the lodge now that he had passed the chair. Bro. Warriner proposed "The Past Masters," and the "The Musical Brethren" and "The Officers" followed. A capital selection of songs and glees was provided by Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O., assisted by Bros. A. Child, J. P. Bryan, Busfield, C. Waterson, and T. J. Hughes.

HAMPTON.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—The installation convocation of this chapter was held at the Island Hotel, on the 13th instant, when there were present amongst other Comps. Thiellay, P.P.G.D.C. of Middlesex, H. M.E.Z. elect; F. Walters, P.P.G. Assist. S., &c., S.E.; Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, 1st Assistant; Faulkner, and Assistant; W. Hammond, P.P.G. Assist. S., D.C.; Baldwin, W.S.; T. Ockenden, Faija, Johnson, Gilbert, P.G.J. of Middlesex, Janitor. Comp. Haslett, P.S. Prudent Brethren, was the only visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, and letters of apology for non-attendance having been read from Comps. Sabine and Wilkins, Comps. Thiellay and Walters were duly installed as First and Second Principals by Comps. Baldwin and Hammond. In consequence of indisposition Comp. J. Mason, Third Principal elect, was prevented from being present to be installed. The other officers elected for the present year are Comps. E. Wilkins, S.E.; T. C. Walls, S.N.; Sabine, I.P.Z., Treasurer; Faulkner, P.S.; W. Hammond, 1st. Assist.; Ockenden, 2nd. Assist.; Johnson, D.C.; Faija, W.S. The ceremony of exalting Bro. Ryley, Era Lodge, to the Sublime Degree was well performed by the M.E.Z., assisted by his officers and Comp. Haslett. The latter companion's services were acknowledged by a vote of thanks. Comps. Buss, P.G. Treasurer, and H. C. Levander, P.G.S.E., were elected honorary members. The services of the out going First Principal, Comp. Sabine, having been handsomely recognised, and a vote of thanks passed to Comp. Dubois for the manner in which he had discharged the duties of Treasurer for the past year, the accounts were duly audited, and the chapter was closed. There was no banquet, but the companions partook of a collation previously to their return to town. The next meeting of the chapter will be held on the second Saturday in September next.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (T.I.).—On Thursday, June 27, the first regular meeting, under the new W.M., was held. The lodge was opened at 8.30 by Bro. John Dutton, W.M., supported by the following:—Dr. Hopkins, P.G.J.W. and Chaplain, as I.P.M.; Rubie, S.W.; C. Wilkinson, J.W.; Braham, Sec.; Murliss, M.O.; Peach, S.O.; Dingle, J.O.; Hayward, S.D.; Mercer, J.D.; Penley, I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed; letters of apology for absence were read from Bros. Carey, P.M., and Howes. On the proposition of the Chaplain, seconded by the J.W., a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. T. Wilkinson for a handsome box, in compartments, to preserve the officer's jewels. New collars and leather aprons were ordered. A ballot was taken for Bros. Holmes and Ames as candidates for advancement, and this proving unanimous in their favour, they were admitted to the privileges of the Order by Bro. James J. Dutton, P.M., who performed the ceremony for his brother, the W.M. No other business offering, the lodge was closed by the W.M. at 10 o'clock.

GIBRALTAR.—Inhabitants' Lodge (No. 43).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 31st May last, when Bro. J. J. R. Morgan, P.M., occupied the chair, in the absence through sickness of the W.M., supported by Bros. Beal and Franceri, P.M.'s. A large number of the brethren were present, and after Bro. W. Davis, 153, E.C., had been advanced in Bro. Morgan's usually impressive manner, the other business of the evening commenced, which was to elect Treasurer and instal the W.M. Master elect, and the appointment by him of his officers. The result of the ballot for Treasurer was the election of Bro. Bacon. Bro. J. Cunningham, J.W., the W.M. elect, was presented to the W.M. by P. Masters Beal and Franceri, and after answering the usual questions, the brethren, except Installed Masters' retired. On re-admission, Bro. Cunningham proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. J. Conroy, S.W.; B. White, J.W.; W. Briggs, M.O.; J. King, S.O.; J. Button, J.O.; E. Bacon, Treasurer and Secretary; J. Robson, R. of M.; J. Batchelor, S.D.; O. Latham, J.D.; W. McGrath, M.C.; W. Cockburn, I.G.; Ghio, Tyler. The following brethren were then duly proposed and seconded for advancement: Bros. Peano and Hunter, 278, E.C., and Bros. Bellion, Wilkinson, Way, and Lowry, 153, E.C. After the usual routine business the lodge was closed in due and ancient form, with solemn prayer, and the brethren retired in peace and harmony to the refreshment room. The usual Masonic toasts having been given by the W.M., Past Master Morgan proposed "The Health of the Newly-installed W. Master, Bro. Cunningham," speaking in high terms of the W. Master's Masonic career, and predicting a prosperous year for the lodge, as well as a highly creditable performance of duty. Bro. Cunningham, in responding, was sensible of the great honour bestowed upon him by the brethren in placing him at their head, and in heartily thanking them for this proof of their confidence, assured them that nothing would be wanting on his part to work the lodge in such a manner as he hoped would give satisfaction to the members and be beneficial to the Craft in general. "The Health of the Past and Present Officers" was then given, and after the Tyler's toast the brethren dispersed.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The July Quarterly Court of the supporters of this Institution was held on Monday in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. J. Creaton, V.P., presided, the other brethren present being Bros. F. Adlard, Henry Mugeridge, Charles J. Percival, James Terry, H. Browne, F. Binckes, Sec., and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Binckes read the letter of condolence with the widow and family of Bro. Bentley Shaw, which he had written by direction of the Committee of the Institution to Bro. J. Lancaster Shaw. Bro. Binckes also read the letter he had received in reply, acknowledging the kindness of the Committee sympathising with the family of the late brother in their bereavement.

On the motion of Bro. H. Browne, seconded by Bro. J. Terry, both these letters were ordered to be entered on the minutes.

The brethren then approved and adopted the recommendation from the General Committee that eleven boys be elected at the Quarterly General Court to be held on Monday, 14th October, 1878, from an approved list of sixty-seven candidates, one having been withdrawn since the advertisement was issued.

Bro. Jesse Turner's motion was the next on the paper of business—to alter Law 70 (defining the power of the Committee to make grants in aid of deserving boys on leaving the Institution) by erasing the word "twenty" before the word "pounds," and inserting in lieu thereof the word "forty."

Bro. Turner not being present, the Chairman said he did not think so large a question could be considered.

Bro. H. Browne said it was a very wide question and the meeting was very small, and he also did not think such an important question should be settled when so few brethren were present, especially as the mover of the alteration had not attended. For himself, he did not consider it would be right to make the proposed alteration, as the brethren would by altering the rule be helping those who were really able to help themselves. He held that such a question should be considered by a full meeting.

The Chairman concurred, and the motion dropped. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The July Quarterly Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creaton, V.P. and Trustee, presided; and there were also present Bros. Capt. J. Wordsworth, H. Browne, H. A. Dubois, Thos. Massa, A. H. Tattershall, J. Terry, T. R. Eames, W. Ashwell, C. G. Rushworth, H. G. Warren, F. R. W. Hedges (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the minutes had been read and confirmed, the brethren settled the list of candidates for the October election, placing twenty-nine children on, and declaring vacancies in the school for three.

The following motion, of which notice had been given by Bro. H. G. Warren, P.G.S., was brought forward and agreed to:—

"In Rule LXXIV., page 17, to omit the words 'in the sum of three hundred pounds,' and insert in lieu thereof, 'in such sum as the Committee shall from time to time deem fit.' Also to omit the word 'two' in the first line, and add in line four, after the word him, 'by guarantee society or otherwise.'"

The Chairman said that £300 had been the amount hitherto required as security for the Secretary, but as the sums now coming to the Secretary's hands were very much larger than they used to be, Bro. Warren thought (and a great many other brethren thought with him) that the amount of security should be greater.

Bro. H. A. Dubois asked the Chairman whether the Guarantee Society should be the surety, because if so he thought the Institution should pay the premium.

Bro. James Terry said that that matter might be brought on when the subject of security was being discussed by the brethren who would have to decide on the amount.

The proceedings closed with the customary vote of thanks to the Chairman.

On dit that the Prince of Wales has purchased "Hazlemere," on Norwood-hill. The house stands in grounds of thirty acres, commands a splendid view of the Penge Valley, Beckenham, and Shirley, with Shooter's-hill and Bromley in the distance. It was built by a Dr. Butler, who received therein a number of Indian Princes, and it is probably the most attractive residence on the south side of London.—Whitehall Review.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SURREY.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey was held on Friday at the Public Hall, Dorking, Bro. General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Master, presiding.

After the formal opening of the Provincial Grand Lodge the roll of lodges in the province was read over by Bro. Greenwood, Prov. Grand Secretary, when it was found that every lodge in the province was represented by Masters, Wardens, and brethren. This list contains eighteen lodges, viz., St. George's, 370, Chertsey; Grove, 410, Ewell; Surrey, 416, Reigate; Frederick Lodge of Unity, 452, Croydon; East Surrey Lodge of Concord, 463, Croydon; Royal Alfred, 777, Guildford; Dobie, 886, Kingston-on-Thames; St. Andrew's, 1046, Farnham; Dorking, 1149, Dorking; Lorne, 1347, Sutton; Royal Albert Edward, 1362, Red Hill; Way Side, 1325, Woking; Addiscombe, 1556, West Croydon; St. John's, 1564, Knaphill; Studholme, 1591, Surbiton; Friendship and Harmony, 1616, Walton-on-Thames; Brownrigg, 1638, Ditton; and Albert Edward, 1714, York Town.

The minutes of the last meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge were then read, put, and confirmed. The reading of the balance sheet, which was the next business, disclosed receipts £214 2s. 11d., and expenses £67 5s. 6d., leaving a balance in the hands of the Provincial Grand Treasurer, Bro. George Price, of £146 17s. 5d.. This announcement was received with loud cheers, and on the motion of Bro. H. J. P. Dumas, seconded by the Rev. C. W. Arnold, the balance sheet was ordered to be received, adopted, and entered on the minutes.

Gen. Brownrigg then rose and said, these funds enabled the Grand Lodge to do a little more than usual, and it had been suggested to him that they should contribute something to the Earlswood Asylum for Idiots, and also beyond the contributions which would be made by the brethren after Divine service, a sum to the Dorking National Schools. He was always very glad when the brethren had funds to make such grants, because it was too much the custom of the outer world to represent Masons as very selfish, and as confining their subscriptions to the Masonic Institutions. Now that the Provincial Grand Lodge was in possession of such large funds, he was happy to say they could contribute something to charities beyond the Masonic body. General Brownrigg then explained that when he appointed the Rev. C. W. Arnold as Deputy Provincial Grand Master he had neglected to obligate him, and he would now therefore call upon the Rev. Brother to take the obligation for the due performance of the duties of his office.

This form having been gone through, Bro. George Price was unanimously re-elected for the 22nd time as Provincial Grand Treasurer, for which compliment Bro. Price expressed his thanks to the brethren.

General Brownrigg then invested the following brethren as Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—
 Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., P.G.C., Prov. D.G.M.
 Dr. Brushfield, 1395 ... Prov. G.S.W.
 Dr. Spencer, 1149 ... Prov. G.J.W.
 Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, ... Prov. G.Chap.
 George Price, 463 ... Prov. G. Treas.
 Milner, 1616 ... Prov. G. Reg.
 Charles Greenwood, ... Prov. G. Sec.
 A. T. Jeffery, P.M. 452 ... Prov. G.S.D.
 Wells, W.M. 1638 ... Prov. G.J.D.
 Street, P.M. 1395 ... Prov. G.S. of W.
 Owens, 1347 ... Prov. G.D. of C.
 Capt. Ormsby, 1616 ... Prov. G.S.B.
 E. M. Lott, ... Prov. G. Org.
 Stacey, W.M. ... Prov. G. Purst.
 C. T. Speight, ... Prov. G. Tyler.

All the Grand Officers were then saluted in Masonic form.

At the conclusion of this ceremony General Brownrigg said: Brethren, it is usual on these occasions for the Provincial Grand Master to address a few words to the brethren assembled respecting Masonry in the province in general, but I shall cut it short to-day, because we have been very late in beginning our work, the trains having been much delayed. Altogether I think Masonry in the province is extremely satisfactory. Most fortunate for me I have a most zealous and indefatigable Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and I believe that he has visited every lodge in the province since we last met. Of course, the reports that he sends to me touching those visits are confidential, and must remain confidential to me; but, altogether I am very well satisfied with his report. He has found fault—he has pointed out deficiencies among some lodges, and I certainly shall not particularise those. I give only my advice to them—I do not say "censure," because I hope it will never come to that. I think it much better to advise quietly and without fuss, and I shall take the opportunity of calling the attention of the brethren of the province to what are certainly deficiencies. I think it cannot be too strongly impressed upon you all that no brother should undertake work that he cannot perform. I do not like to be thought for a moment to interfere with the right of selection by the brethren of those who are to rule over them; but I do think it very important that the Worshipful Master of a lodge should be able to do his work thoroughly well, and not only the Worshipful Master, but all the brethren who are placed in office. Therefore, I suggest to the brethren that it is not because a brother is popular and charming that he should be chosen as Master; that is not the only recommendation for the Master of a lodge. He ought to be up to his work. Now, a man must have a very defective and bad memory if he cannot with the assistance he can obtain get up his work properly, and, therefore, I hope and trust in this province, wherever I may go, that I may see the work properly performed. I make it a point of never announcing when I am coming, and I think the Deputy Provincial Grand Master does just the same. We drop in unawares, and I think that is the proper way. However, I repeat that altogether I am satisfied with the way in which the duties of the province are performed, and I need not say how happy and glad I always am to meet you. General Brownrigg added that he would now appoint the Provincial Grand Stewards; whereupon Bro. H. E. Frances remarked that there was a difficulty in getting Grand Stewards, because when a brother took the office it carried with it no past grand rank. He thought if a representation was made upon the matter to United Grand Lodge, and some pressure brought to bear, the Grand Master would make an alteration in this respect. He did not see why it should not be properly brought before Grand Lodge.

General Brownrigg said he had not failed to mention it, but he did not think it was the intention of Grand Lodge to make any alteration. However there was a rule adopted in some provinces which he did not think a bad one, that no brother should be appointed to Provincial Grand Lodge Office if he had not first served the office of Steward. He should not be at all indisposed for the future to adopt some rule of that sort in the Province of Surrey. That would be, at all events, an inducement. Brethren must know how extremely difficult it was to select brethren for the provincial purple. There were only fourteen offices to be given away in a large province, and it was the most difficult task he had to distribute the purple. Not adopting any hard and fast rule, he would, however, be much disposed for the future to give preference when conferring the purple to those brethren who had served the office of Provincial Grand Steward.

Bro. Greenwood said that if the brethren served the office of Steward it was one indication that they did attend Grand Lodge and the duties of office. There were only six Stewardships to be given, would it not be better to select them from the lodges according to the seniority of the lodges.

Bro. General Brownrigg said there would be a difficulty about that. It would be hardly fair to take the first six lodges, because in that case those lodges would always retain the Stewardships.

A brother asked whether it would not be better that the Stewards should be balloted for.

Bro. George Price said he thought it would be well not to arrive at a decision at once, but to give notice to all the lodges before the next meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge.

Bro. General Brownrigg said he was much obliged for the suggestion. Cætris paribus, he would rather give Grand Office to brethren who had been Grand Stewards than to those who had not. Another plan might be adopted; they might start with the youngest six lodges.

Bro. Greenwood suggested that Masters of lodges might claim the privilege of being Grand Stewards. If six Masters were present and ready to take the rank, it might be better to take them than the rank and file.

The following brethren then volunteered, and were accepted and appointed as Provincial Grand Stewards for the year: Bros. Browne, W.M. 410; Taylor, W.M. 1046; Streeter, J.W. 1714; Honeywell, P.M. 889; Lendrim, S.W. 1616; and Aldridge, W.M. elect 1347.

Bros. H. E. Frances, George White, Woodward, H. J. P. Dumas, and Dr. H. J. Strong, were appointed the Audit Committee, and the brethren then voted five guineas to the Dorking National Schools; ten guineas to the Asylum for Idiots, Earlswood; ten guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; ten guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; and ten guineas to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons.

Letters of apology for inability to attend were read by Bro. Greenwood, from Bros. H. Hacker, Col. Shadwell Clerke, Lees, Wainwright, Col. Burdett, and several other brethren.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren repaired to the Parish Church to evening service, which was performed by the Rev. P. Ralph Atkinson, the vicar, who had kindly placed his church at the disposal of the brethren.

The Rev. Ambrose W. Hall preached the sermon.

The offertory after the sermon amounted to £7 11s. 10d., and was devoted to the Dorking National Schools.

The proceedings of the day were concluded by a banquet in the public hall, after which the usual toasts were honoured.

After the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," General Brownrigg, in giving the toast of "The Grand Master and the other Grand Officers," said it had been no doubt an immense advantage to the Craft (to the Craft of England at all events) that they were honoured by having the Heir Apparent to the throne as their Grand Master. Not only had he taken a prominent position in Masonry, but last year two of his brothers filled the offices of Senior and Junior Grand Wardens. He (General Brownrigg) had on several occasions been associated with the Duke of Connaught in Masonry, and it certainly charmed his heart as an old Mason to see how His Royal Highness had taken to it, and what a warm interest he felt in everything that concerned Freemasonry. He augured from this very favourably for the continuance of the prosperity of the Craft. True, the Craft was so well founded and was so grounded in the hearts of Englishmen generally, that it did not absolutely require the attachment of members of the Royal Family, but still he should be very sorry to see that connection of Masonry lost. Longer than any of the brethren could recollect members of the Royal Family had been members of the Craft, and he hoped that our children's children might see that connection continued.

The Rev. C. W. Arnold, P.G.C., replied, and after thanking the Grand Master and the brethren, proposed "The Health of the P.G.M." In the P.G.M.'s absence he might say perhaps far more than he could in his presence. All the brethren knew Gen. Brownrigg, and how willing he was to come forward in every matter connected with Freemasonry. The brethren knew how he was always ready to go to every provincial gathering to which he might be invited. Without any breach of confidence he might tell the brethren that in a private letter Gen. Brownrigg wrote to him to say that his engagements were such that if he were to die he thought upon his tomb would be inscribed, "Killed by Freemasonry." (Laughter.) He (Bro. Arnold) hoped that the Masons of Surrey would never work their P.G.M. to that extent. From his knowledge of the P.G.M., he might safely assure the brethren that whenever anything was addressed to him in the way of a call for Masonic purposes there he would be found, if it was really possible for him, to be present.

Gen. Brownrigg in reply said: Brethren, I regret extremely that I am obliged to run away, but I have people staying in my house, and carriages are waiting for certain trains and must go. If I could have anticipated that we should have been here as late as we have been I should have made other arrangements. I am very much flattered by what my excellent friend and brother on my right has said about me. I can assure you that any labour I have in connection with the province of Surrey is really a labour of love. I suppose no P.G.M. had ever more kind and fraternal spirit shown him from every part than I have had. It is now my eighth year of being your P.G.M. During that time the lodges have nearly doubled in number, and with one solitary exception I have never had anything that has been really unpleasant; that has passed, and certainly is forgiven by me, and I have no doubt will very soon be forgotten. I do my best always to forget anything unpleasant. There is one thing I omitted to mention in Grand Lodge to-day which I may do now, as it may suit the convenience of brethren to know it. I propose (I do not actually fix it as a fact, in the same way as I did not fix as a fact the matter about the Provincial Grand Stewardships; but I think it would be a very good beginning) that we should hold the Provincial Grand Lodge on the second Tuesday in July. The third Tuesday is a meeting of the Frederick Lodge of Unity, and many of those brethren, I regret to say, were obliged to go away to attend the duties of their own lodge. This circumstance makes me the more thankful to them for their zeal in attending the Provincial Grand Lodge; but I would wish you to bear in mind that if nothing unforeseen happens to prevent it, we will for the future, as long as God preserves me to do my work as your Provincial Grand Master, have our Provincial Grand Lodge on the second Tuesday in July. I thank you from all my heart for the kind and hearty way in which you have always received me, and in which you have drunk the toast which has just been proposed.

General Brownrigg next proposed "The Deputy Provincial Grand Master and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past." He said that holding the position he did he was most fortunate in having a very valuable Deputy Provincial Grand Master. He had already said how highly he appreciated that brother, and he had the happiness of knowing that wherever he himself went among Surrey Freemasons he found a kind word said about Bro. Arnold. Repeating Bro. Arnold's words with respect to himself (Gen. Brownrigg) it was difficult to say all one wished to say of a man in his presence; but he did not hesitate to say that Bro. Arnold had a thorough practical knowledge of his work, besides which, there was a charm of manner about him which ingratiated him in the brethren's favour wherever he went. He could not descend on the excellences of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, but he hoped in the selection of him he had given satisfaction to the brethren. If he had not, all he could say was that in appointing Bro. Arnold he had acted conscientiously. Bro. Arnold was thoroughly deserving of it. As he had said before, it was a very difficult task to select Grand Officers, but in selecting them that day he trusted he had pleased all the brethren of the province. (General Brownrigg then left, and deputed the holding of the chair to Bro. Arnold.)

Bro. C. W. Arnold, answering to the toast, observed that when the Provincial Grand Master was in lodge he made certain remarks with regard to his (Bro. Arnold's) reports of the different lodges. It had been his greatest pleasure to visit the lodges of the province, and wherever he had gone he had been entertained most hospitably, and received in a truly Masonic manner. Although there had been cases in which he had not been able to say that lodges were working in the very best manner, yet he could say that, on the whole, the Province of Surrey was in thorough working order. He believed that everywhere there was a desire in the Province of Surrey to carry out the duties of Freemasonry as they should be carried out. If in any case the duties of different officers had not been properly carried out, he felt certain that there had been a disposition on the part of the lodge that those offices should be carried out properly, and if any representation was made to them as to rectifying anything they would do it. He believed it was the duty of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master to report to the Provincial Grand Master the actual state of every lodge in the province. He must, of course, make a truthful report, and if he found that the duties were not carried out efficiently he must report to that effect. He was quite sure that the lodges would adopt any recommendation that might be made to them. The rev. brother then mentioned the subject of the support of the charities and the organisation of this province and that of Berks and Bucks for carrying candidates. He also recommended a junction with another neighbouring county—say Essex or Middlesex for that purpose.

Bro. F. Binckes responded to the toast of "The Visitors," and Bros. George Price and Charles Greenwood to that of "The Treasurer and Secretary."

Bro. Dr. Spence responded to the toast of "The Master of the Dorking Lodge," and thanked the Provincial Grand Lodge for the support given to the local charities, the Dorking National School and the Earlswood Asylum.

Bro. Browne, W.M. of the Grove Lodge, 410, replied or "The other Lodges of the Province," and after drinking the Tyler's toast, the brethren separated.

Bros. Chaplin Henry and Montem Smith entertained the brethren with some charming singing during the evening.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE MARK BENEVOLENT FUND.

The Mark Master's Benevolent Festival was held at the Alexandra Palace on Wednesday, when Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master of Craft Masons, and Grand Mark Master, presided, supported by Bro. Dr. Ace, D.D.; the Rev. Bro. Hatch, Bros. Dewar, Asst. Grand Mark Secretary; Roebuck, Matier, P.G.W.; Cubitt, Collins, Verry, Brighten, P.G.S. Middx.; J. L. Thomas, Asst. G.D.C.; Levander, Spencer, Goepl, and others. A large number of ladies also graced the party. It is needless to say that Bros. Bertram and Roberts did full justice to their reputation as caterers by the dinner which they placed before their patrons, and by the manner in which it was served.

At the conclusion of the dinner the Chairman rose and said: We have not very much time before us, as I am obliged to leave somewhat early, which I hope you will excuse, I shall, therefore, propose without comment "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen, and Success to Mark Masonry."

A portion of the National Anthem was then sung by Bro. Matier.

The Chairman: Ladies and brethren, the next toast I have to give you this evening is "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." I believe I am right in saying that His Royal Highness is not a member of our Order, neither is the Duke of Connaught, but I think that Prince Leopold is, and as so good an example has been set by one member of the Royal family, I am in hopes that the Grand Master of Craft Masonry will become a member of this Order. I need not allude to all the good that has been done in Masonry by H.R.H.; the mere fact of his having taken the Grand Mastership upon him has given a great impetus to the cause, not in England only but throughout the world. I give you "The Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family."

The Rev. Bro. Hatch then sang a song of considerable merit, in honour of our Masonic Grand Master, which he had himself written, and which was received with much applause.

Bro. Matier: The next toast I may call the toast of the evening, and I must express the great pleasure it gives me that it has fallen to my lot to propose it. It is not the first time that I have had the honour to propose the health of our Most Worshipful Grand Master. I have on many occasions had the honour to propose his health, but never I think under such distinguished auspices as to-day, when I have to do so as the Chairman of a Mark Benevolent Festival, who has just been installed in the chair of the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Mark Masons, and in asking you to drink his health I am sure I am asking you to do that which is most pleasant to you all.

The Chairman: Ladies and brethren, I thank you all most heartily, and you, Bro. Matier, in particular, for the way in which you have proposed and responded to the toast of my health. I assure you it gives me great pleasure to be here on this occasion. I hope that the result of the Festival will be much larger than the contents of this room. I think that these Festival dinners are rather overdone, and I think it would be much better if we could get the fund subscribed to as a rule without them, and then have a Festival biennially or triennially. I do not suppose you will all agree with me, but as I have said before, I think that where charities are concerned it is a mistake for brethren to meet to eat and drink. I know it is an English fashion, that nothing can be done without a dinner, but I think the thing could be better done without a dinner, and then we should have the dinner's price into the charity. I have before alluded in other places to the dining that goes on amongst brethren, and I believe that many of you already know that I think there is too much of it. But before breaking down the dining system, I think we should break down the talking system. I think we have a great deal too many toasts on these occasions. This, however, is not the case among Freemasons only. I remember that on one occasion I was invited to lunch with a mayor and corporation. We had a most excellent luncheon, and then we set to work and got through fourteen toasts. That is a fact, and there were only fourteen of us. However, ladies and gentlemen, I have a list to get through to-night, and I have now to propose "The Health of the Most Worshipful Past Grand Mark Masters and Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Masters," and I have great pleasure in this as I understand that all these brethren are alive and well at this moment and I hope that they may be for many years. I hope it is an omen of the way in which Mark Masonry will flourish in this country. I hope that I may be able to do the duties of the office as well as they. The original Master, Lord Leigh, told me there was a time when he thought the Mark Degree might be incorporated with Craft Masonry. I think it would be for the benefit of both if they could be incorporated. Lord Donoughmore was expected to be present this evening, but he had appointed this day for installing Lord Ellesmere in his own chair, and is therefore unavoidably absent. Lord Henniker promised me to be present, but he has failed to appear. I have no doubt that he has a very good reason for his absence. I give you the toast of "The Past Grand Masters and Deputy Grand Masters," coupled with the name of Bro. Roebuck.

Bro. Roebuck having said a few words in acknowledgement of the toast, the Chairman again rose and said: Ladies and brethren, Bro. Matier just now said he proposed the toast of the evening. He must allow me to contradict him, as I consider the toast of the evening to be that which I am now about to propose, "Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund. It is only lately that I have taken any interest in Mark Masonry, and I have found that Mark Masonry stands on its own legs, it has its own Benevolent Fund. I have not the slightest idea what Bro. Binckes has to announce to us, but I hope it is something good, and that the Mark Benevolent Fund will prosper. I understand this is the tenth anniversary festival, and that it began with a donation of £50. Twenty-eight cases have been relieved in sums varying from £1 to £30. There is invested in Canada and New Zealand Bonds a sum of £800, and there is a balance in hand of £50. A balance in hand of £50 is not a large one, only you see there are many calls on this fund. There is certainly an invested sum, but a very small sum annually for interest. However, the cause is prospering step by step, I hope that brethren will show their interest in it by subscribing largely. I know that those who have the arrangement of it take a hearty interest in it, and I hope that this Mark Fund will rise to the level of the Boys' School Fund, and that the Mark Benevolent Fund may take its stand in the Order as one of the best funds of the craft.

Bro. Dewar, Assistant Grand Mark Secretary, then read the following Steward's list, showing a total of £325 5s. 6d., including a donation of £25 from the noble Chairman. There are seven lists yet to come in.

Bro. Binckes returned thanks for this toast, in doing which, he referred to the remarks made by the Chairman on the subject of the amount expended by Freemasons in making these charity festivals occasions for dining; and he said it was the experience of the Masonic Charities that the Institutions suffered by any attempt to introduce the reforms advocated by Lord Skelmersdale. He reminded his lordship that compared with the immense sums which were annually collected for the charities, the amount spent on the dinners provided on these occasions was infinitesimal. He added also that he had been asked over and over again to compare the amounts contributed by those lodges which do not with those that do spend large sums in social enjoyment, and as a rule he found that the latter are the larger contributors to the charities, contributing nearly double the amount given by the others. As regards the Mark Benevolent Fund he took a cheerful view of their position. He remembered the time when the Stewards of the Boys' School Festival numbered only thirty or thirty-five when they thought £600 collected an enormous success. Therefore, why should they despair? This evening's result would enable them to raise their fund to £1000.

Chairman. The next toast I have to propose is "The Health of the Stewards." You have just heard read the list of Steward's amounts handed in to night. That the stewards have nobly and well performed the duties they have undertaken, there can be no doubt. With the toast I beg to couple the name of Bro. Goepl, and I am sure that in naming him I am naming a very worthy brother.

Bro. Goepl: Ladies and brethren, on behalf of the Board of Stewards, allow me to thank you for the very kind manner in which you honoured us. Allow me to assure you that upon all occasions when we undertake that duty we shall think that we are in duty bound to make the result of the year more successful than the last; to outstrip all former years, and hope that next year will be beaten only by its successor. It gives me great pleasure to have brought up the largest amount this evening, especially as it comes from that lodge in which our noble Chairman was advanced. I assure you that there is no trouble I can take, and no distance that I would not travel in acknowledgement of the kindness that I have always received at his lordship's hands. In Lancashire we think very highly of our noble Chairman, and consider that our lives have fallen in pleasant places.

Bro. J. L. Thomas: Worshipful Sir, and brethren, there has been this evening rather a contention which was the toast of the evening. Bro. Matier thought his was; our noble Chairman thought it was the Mark Benevolent Fund. Now I decidedly think that the toast of the evening is that which has been entrusted to me. Our meeting is, in a certain measure, dwindled away to a small number, but we have still some ladies among us, and their health I propose. Their presence has enhanced very much the pleasure this evening and given the meeting its most graceful charm. I propose their health, and I wish that in all our meetings, not within lodge, we might have the pleasure of greeting them.

Bro. Brighten returned thanks for the ladies in a very humorous speech, and the Chairman proposed "The Prom coupled with the name of Bro. Massey (Freemason)," who returned thanks for the kind manner in which the benefits conferred on Freemasonry by the Press had been referred to by the Chairman.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are requested to announce that Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, B.W. Grand Master of the province of Middlesex, will be away from home some little time. Due notice will be given of his return.

A Reuter's telegram from New York states that extraordinary heat prevails at present in the Western States; 150 cases of sunstroke occurred on Monday at Saint Louis, 50 of which proved fatal.

Her Majesty the Queen has contributed £100 to the fund in aid of the sufferers by the Haydock Colliery explosion.

Bro. the Earl of Hardwicke, R.W.G.M. Camb., laid the chief stone of a new district church in the Fen, near Littleport, on Tuesday last.

At the Bands of Hope fête at the Crystal Palace on Tuesday, 60,540 persons were present. Excursion trains ran from all the great towns. Ten thousand singers, of whom 1100 were life abstainers, gave two concerts. During the day meetings were held, at which Members of Parliament and others delivered addresses.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction, No. 1623, held at the New Market Hotel, West Smithfield, on Monday next, at 7 o'clock precisely.

The members of the Mariners' Lodge (No. 249) left Lime-street Station Liverpool by special train for Overton Hills, Frodsham, on Thursday week and after dinner contested for various prizes. A number of ladies accompanied the party. The pic-nic was a most enjoyable one, the arrangements being admirably carried out under the direction of Bros. Barnett, W.M.; Whalley, and Corbett. The prizes (all of which were given by Bro. John Pye) were distributed to the successful competitors by Bro. Barnett, W.M.

A large party of American Knights Templar belonging to the Allegheny Commandery, and headed by Sir Lees Smith, are doing the sights of Dublin to-day (Wednesday). Having arrived yesterday evening, they visited Lodge 35 of the Masonic Order last night; to-night they are received by the Grand Lodge, and to-morrow they proceed to Enniskillen on a northern tour. They will be followed in a few days by another party.—Daily Chronicle.

THE GROSVENOR GALLERY.—Mr. Charles Hill, Secretary of the Working Men's Lord's Day Rest Association, has written as follows to Sir Coutts Lindsay, under date July 11th, to the Times:—"Will you allow me respectfully to suggest that the Grosvenor Gallery should be opened free on the Saturday afternoon instead of on the Sunday? The Saturday half-holiday has been given to millions for the express purpose of affording time for recreation without trespassing on the day of holy rest. The opening of the gallery on Sunday is calculated to injure the religious character of the day and to impair it as a day of national rest from labour, and to teach the people that the Sunday is a day for mere sightseeing and amusement instead of a day for rest and religious exercises. The Sunday opening of the gallery must involve a certain amount of additional labour on the part of attendants, and increase the work of publichouses and refreshment-house keepers, who will be required to supply persons who come from a distance with liquors. It will also be a direct violation of the religious sentiments of the country, and of that command, read from 10,000 pulpits every Sunday, 'Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy.' Mr. Gladstone once remarked that 'the religious observance of Sunday is a main prop of the religious character of the country.' The opening of the Grosvenor Gallery on the Sunday is intended by those who have asked for it as a demonstration against the religious observance of the day, and as such can only do injury to a noble institution." On the whole, we feel bound to say, that in the interest of the working classes, thousands will agree with Mr. Hill.

The following contributions have been made by some of the City Guilds to the fund now being collected by the Society of Arts for the purpose of sending artisan reporters to the Paris Exhibition:—The Clothworkers' Company, £100; the Drapers' Company, 50 guineas; the Mercers' Company, 50 guineas; the Fishmongers' Company, 25 guineas; the Cordwainers' Company, 25 guineas; the Salters' Company, 10 guineas; the Carpenters' Company, 10 guineas.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—The Egyptian obelisk has at length reached its final resting place, and now lies stretched across the base on which it is to be erected. The process of raising it is steadily proceeding by means of powerful hydraulic presses placed under each end of the great monolith, and as these are worked every increase in the elevation is secured by wedges of timber driven in, and afterwards by building up blocks of timber, so as to maintain the height gained. It is now several inches above the pedestal, and when elevated to about 30 feet above it the machinery for suspending the obelisk by the centre will be brought into requisition.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

Sir Knight J. B. Macleod Moore, in his address to the Grand Priory of Canada, August, 1877, states that the "old English Templar ceremony differs very much from our present one, claiming a derivation from the ancient mysteries, as also a Rosycrucian origin. It was expressed in obscure language, evidently to disguise the design of the secret societies, entertained before the Reformation, to upset the Papal power." This is a very remarkable statement, on more grounds than one; and as a student of old Rituals I should like very much to know on what actual evidence it is founded. When I "worked up" the "Evidence of the Templars in England," I could find no old Ritual. The one in use is quite modern, and, I believe, does not date from much before 1851. Can any one give me a clue to an old Templar Ritual of the last century? I have reasons for asking this, though, (not being a Templar), I do not require to see the whole Ritual. A very little portion, especially of that part of it which conforms in any way to the description in our esteemed Grand Prior's speech, would be quite sufficient, that it claimed "a Rosycrucian origin," was "expressed in obscure language, evidently to disguise the design of the secret societies, entertained before the Reformation to upset the Papal power."

If the Great Prior of Canada will kindly communicate with me through the Editor, I will tell him why I am interested in such statements.

MASONIC STUDENT.

THE "ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE."

Our brother "Craftsman" has raised a very important question as to the "high degrees" (so called), which cannot, I think, be settled finally in ordinary correspondence in the Freemason. Though these degrees are often called the "Hautes Grades," it is from no feeling of antagonism to Craft Masonry, or to declare that the "Three Degrees" of Universal Freemasonry are lower in value than those of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite." The term has arisen doubtless from the fact that the Craft degrees are a prerequisite to the others, and hence the terms high or higher degrees mean simply beyond or after. Many of the degrees in question are so essentially different to Craft Masonry that no comparison can be made, and while we are free to admit that several beyond the first three mentioned by our brother are wholly unnecessary and undesirable, there are others, which for their beauty, Masonic symbolism, and general importance, have a claim upon our lasting regard and support. The gradual elimination of the first class and the prominent position of the second are in course of attainment. Our brother will doubtless see that all the degrees of which he speaks must not be placed in the same category, for the degrees of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite" have not always been, and are not now generally considered to be exclusively Christian. Whilst I cannot spare the time at present to discuss the matter at all as it deserves, there is one test we can all apply, viz., to test the subject in the light of facts. By their fruits let them be known. Is it not a fact that generally the best workers in the Craft are the heartiest supporters of the "Ancient and Accepted" and other Rites, from H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., and the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G. Master, downwards?

I have long noticed this to be a fact, as doubtless our brother "Craftsman" has. There are exceptions, of course, and honourable ones, for we all please ourselves as to what degrees we support. My own opinion is still, as from the beginning, that Masonic degrees date from early last century, and, therefore, the difference of age cannot be so much for use or more to be exalted at the expense of others equally worthy in other respects. "Brother "Craftsman" is right as to the difficulties abroad through the actions of certain supporters of the "high degrees," but even then, often such foolish brethren have really been working under Grand Orients working all the Thirty-three or Ninety-six Degrees.

The great Masonic scholar, General Pike, has given many reasons for the statement that Frederick the Great was the supporter of the A. and A. Rite, the work being in the Grand Library at Golden-square. I also have a copy.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

I have seen the above admirable paper of my valued friend Bro. W. J. Hughan, and think it well to add the following remarks:

1. I quite agree with Bro. Hughan as to the real meaning of the "Hautes Grades," though there always has been, and still is, a disposition in some grades to esteem the Christian Grades "more gentlemanly" than the Craft. This I, for one, think a grave mistake, and against any such theory I always have protested and always shall protest.

2. With regard to the antiquity of degrees, per se, I will admit, with Bro. Hughan, that the recognition of our present nomenclature dates from 1717. I am not quite prepared to concede that no evidence exists of three grades before 1717. The High Grades, and even if I allow an Hermetic Grade to have existed in 1717, are all subsequent to Ramsay's famous address, 1740. At least if Bro. Hughan does, I know of no evidence so far, barring an Hermetic Grade, of their existence. With regard to the Christianity of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, no doubt some of the grades are pre-Christian in their history, but the more modern degrees are, surely, essentially Christian. It may be that they are the sequel of the Royal Arch, which has its Triune teaching, and on this point I quite concede that much may be said.

3. As regards the connection of Frederick the Great with the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, I fear that I cannot go with Bro. Hughan. Statements, however ingenious, cannot alter facts, and some very serious facts have to be got over by Bro. Albert Pike, which may be summed up as follows: 1. The unauthenticity and unguineness of the alleged charter of Frederick the Great, in that the names are either spurious or unknown. 2. The fact that no contemporary evidence of the fact can be found. 3. That no German writer of any credit has ever supported the charter as an historical document. 4. The internal evidence of the charter, betraying its own incoherence and unreality, and in the fact, undoubted, that Frederick the Great never was known to have had anything to do with Masonry, except as a Craft system.

I have, like Bro. Hughan, studied the subject very carefully, (though I have not seen Bro. Pike's work), but I have before me all the available documents, and since I saw them and studied them I have always been persuaded of their unhistorical and mythic character. If Bro. Pike can bring forward any evidence as to such a meeting at Berlin, or that any of the alleged signatories ever attended such a meeting, I am open to conviction. As Bro. Hughan knows, Lenning and Findel, the Handbuch and Kloss, equally repudiate the charter, and it is not accepted by Mackay.

PRACTICAL GUIDE TO NORTH WALES, by H. T. JENKINSON. Edward Stanford, 55, Charing Cross.

We have run through this "Practical Guide" with much satisfaction, as we have been struck with the amount of local and practical information which it supplies in a most convenient compass and at a very cheap rate. Whether for the sojourner at some pleasant seaside place, or the pedestrian climbing Welsh mountains; whether for the "gentleman tourist at ease," or a "reading party in the long vacation," this little work is just the sort of book to put into one's travelling bag, as it will afford to all a fund of information and direction, alike valuable and important. It is one of the best arranged and clearly written guide books we have seen for some time.

KENNINGS MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA.

This work in brief compass, embodies the main points of information required by the general outside student of Freemasonry. Planned in the form of a dictionary, and alphabetically arranged, it lacks the cohesion of a consecutive history, but possesses all the advantages of cyclopædic treatment in detail, and misses nothing of material value to the inquirer. The doors of the great temple of the Masons are thrown almost wide open, and the forms of things usually deemed mysteries are partly discerned. The annals of Freemasonry are given in sufficient detail for a tolerably distinct comprehension of its past fortunes in different lands. Its principles, under divers headings, as they arise in order are explained and commended. The benefits of brotherhood which it has conferred on mankind in the various predicaments of travel, trade enterprise, and misfortune, are shown to be great; and the chief objections to Masonry, as a system of secrecy, puerile foibles, and false cosmopolitanism, are fairly met in effect, if not by formal argument. As a handbook of moderate price and much completeness within the limits, it bids fair to be of great service to the Guild and general inquirers. When we consider the vast proportions and diversified ramifications of Freemasonry, it must be confessed that its literature has been unaccountably limited. Its books have been large and rare rather than popular and well diffused. This "Cyclopædia," judiciously edited by Mr. Woodford, is not likely, we think, to disappoint either publisher or purchasers.—Echo, July 16th.

Corner of Cornhill.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—In general debility, nervous tremor, and mental depression, these unrivalled Pills have a marvellous effect. They have won the confidence of millions in all parts of the civilised world. Constitutions shaken by sensual excesses, or by long residence in unwholesome climates, or by sedentary habits, are wonderfully renovated by a course of this extraordinary medicine, which, powerful as is its action on the whole system is perfectly harmless to the tenderest frame. The Pills are composed of rare balsams, without the admixture of a grain of any mineral whatever, or of any other deleterious substance. They operate directly, powerfully, and beneficially upon the whole mass of blood; nor can we question the fact when we see indigestion cured, liver complaints arrested, the oppressed lungs brought into healthful play, and every physical function renewed and strengthened by their agency.—[Adv.]

NOTES ON ART, &c.

A Museum of Decorative Art in Paris is being organised. Sir R. Wallace has subscribed £400 towards it, and upwards of £42,000 has already been collected from other sources.

In addition to the médailles d'honneur awarded at Paris to English Art to Mr. Herkomer and Mr. Millais, the medals proper have been awarded to the under-mentioned English artists:—Mr. G. F. Watts and Mr. Alma-Tadema; these are "first medals." The following are of the second-class—Mr. Oulless and Mr. Calderon. The following are of the third-class—Sir J. Gilbert, Messrs. Orchardson, Pettie, Leslie Riviere, and Green. The other foreign medallists are M. Wanters of Belgium, Herr Mackart of Austria, and Herr Munkacsy of Hungary. The Frenchmen thus honoured are MM. Cabanel, Gérôme, Meissonnier, François, and Bouguereau.

The Glasgow Fine Art Loan Exhibition appears to be a great success, the attendance up to last week being 45,000, and the amount to the credit in the bank being £3000. The Committee have now decided to keep the Exhibition open in August, in order to afford English and other tourists when passing through Glasgow to the Highlands an opportunity of seeing the art treasures of Glasgow.

A Scientific, Literary, and Artistic Expedition is about to be undertaken under the direction of Professors Panchich and Valtrovich, of Belgrade, through the newly-acquired districts of Old Serbia, for the purpose of examining the old churches and monasteries there, taking sketches of the historical remains and collecting MSS., and whatever other literary curiosities are to be found.

The monument, after the type of the Albert and Scott Memorials, to be erected to the memory of King Leopold I., in the park of Lacken, is to be the collective work of a number of artists. The general plan has been intrusted to M. de Curte, and M. G. Geefs will be responsible for the statue of the King, which is to be placed under a canopy in the shape of a Gothic tower, 40 metres in height, and surmounted by a work representing the Genius of the Nation. Around it will be placed allegorical statues of the nine provinces, which will be executed by the best sculptors in Belgium.—Academy.

The Australian Colonies, as a whole, are especially well represented at the Paris Exhibition, where each political division of the great island-continent possesses a small section to itself, in which it can display its own particular manufactures and products to the best advantage. Foremost of the groups comes the Victorian Court, which contains a very fair collection of the exhibits of that colony. One of the chief features of the Court is an obelisk, showing the amount of gold taken from each mine; while in the centre of the section is a grand trophy, around which stand figures of diggers, of stock-drivers, and of natives. There are minor trophies of cloth, bottles of wine, and biscuits; while wool, preserved meats, furs, models of the fruits grown in the colony, native-raised silk, and even chemicals, metal castors, carriages, and billiard-tables form a prominent part of the display. One of the prettiest exhibits is a case of emus' eggs, handsomely and tastefully set in silver. The mineral exhibit is exceedingly good, as might have been expected, the cases of auriferous quartz and "wash-dirt" being especially interesting. Altogether the whole Court, and the careful and thoughtful manner in which the exhibits have been arranged, reflect great credit upon the gentlemen in charge.

The Assyrian Explorer, M. Hormwzd Hassam, the successor of the late Mr. George Smith, is on his way home from Nineveh with relics which he has secured for the British Museum. The oldest fossil of this type previously known was from the carboniferous strata found at Mons.

A new weekly journal, entitled the Britannic, to be devoted to the interests of British subjects in the United States, will shortly appear in New York. At present there is no English newspaper throughout the United States.

Some details have reached us concerning a large collection in entomology made by Henry Edwards, of San Francisco, during the last 25 years. Professor Davidson, president of the Academy of Sciences, states that this collection of insects is one of the largest ever made in the United States, and by far the most complete ever made on the Pacific coast. It consists of about 60,000 species, comprising more than 200,000 specimens. These include not only all the orders on the Pacific coast, but nearly or quite all in the United States, with a large representation of orders from all parts of the world. The collection is said to be really one of the most complete known in any country. It is valued at 12,000, dols. or rather, that is about the sum expended in freights, cabinets, and the purchase of rare specimens. The labour of 25 years is not estimated.

ELECTION OF SECRETARY TO THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

We think, as we said, necessarily very hastily and briefly last week, that the election of Bro. Hedges to the post of Secretary for the Girls' School will be a satisfaction to the Craft and a gratification to all the subscribers. During the recent contest, the Freemason officially espoused no cause, and put forward no candidate, though proprietor and editor, like every one else, had their rightful opinions, as Life Governors of the School, on the subject. We believe that in the last struggle all had the interests of the Girls' School at heart, and certainly the wish of the great majority of voters was to secure a thoroughly efficient Secretary in the place of our lamented Bro. R. W. Little. In supporting Bro. Hedges, his very numerous friends, though many were unable to be present, thought conscientiously that they were attempting emphatically to place the "right man in the right place." And in this we hold that they were correct, inasmuch as they were only following out the now generally received axiom as regards similar posts, namely, that a candidate should possess distinct knowledge of the duties of the office he aspires to. Without introducing comparisons with Bro. Hedges' opponents, which would be alike undesirable and unmasonic, and conceding to them all proper qualifications for the Secretaryship, we yet venture humbly to conceive, 1st that Bro. Hedges was specially fitted for the vacant post, and secondly that in electing him, the Life Governors have, to use a common expression, done "the proper thing." Bro. Hedges had been five years in the office, he knew all its routine duties, whether as regards finance, committee meetings, or public festivals. For two years he had discharged the actual secretarial duties. Large sums of money had passed through his hands, and he had proved to the satisfaction of keen and competent observers, that he undoubtedly possessed all those qualifications which are so essential in a Secretary and so conducive to the best interests of an Institution. A good man of business, well versed in figures, a ready penman, obliging and courteous, respectful to superiors, and considerate of inferiors, he adds to these qualifications the goodwill and respect of all with whom he has been brought in contact, a goodwill and respect which have been fairly earned by his zealous discharge of his proper duties, and his unpretending but consistent demeanour, alike in public and in private. It is this feeling, thoroughly creditable to our Masonic body, which prompted the cheerful, hearty, and enthusiastic support which he has received at the election on the 11th, which polled for him a larger number of votes than any Secretary ever yet received for the Girls' School, and which rewarded the anxious labours of his Committee with so gratifying and so successful a result. Henceforth, Bro. Hedges is before our Masonic public, and the Masonic public a somewhat exacting body, will take note of his words and works, his proceedings, and his efforts. We have ourselves no fear for the result. We are quite sure that in the future, as in the past, Bro. Hedges will justify the confidence placed in him; that he will maintain a high character for usefulness, courtesy, and efficiency; and that he will labour most zealously to advance the best interests of the great charity of which he is now the Secretary, while he earns the unchanged approval of the House Committee, and merits the approbation and commendation of his numerous warmhearted patrons.

THE RETURNS OF THE LAST FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We have gone through the Stewards' lists since our last issue, with the following results: The Metropolis has returned £4,778 4s. 11d., of which the highest amount was made up by Lewis Lodge, No. 1185, Bro. Frederick Binckes Steward, £194 16s. The next to that is the Friends in Council Lodge, No. 1583, Bro. Raphael Costa, Steward, £158 11s. The next, Royal Naval Lodge, No. 59, Bro. C. Harrison, Steward, £112 7s. The next Orpheus Lodge, No. 1706, Bro. J. J. Murray, Steward, £110 5s., and the next Gihon Lodge, No. 49, Bro. Wm. Bailly, Steward, £103 19s. These are the only lodges in the Metropolis returning three figures, though many lodges send up most liberal and commendable amounts, and the Tranquillity Lodge, No. 185, Bro. Parr, remits 96, and the Crystal Palace, No. 742, Bro. W. Land returns £90 6s. The provinces, and colonial, and other bodies have remitted £5321 16s. 1d., or about £600 more. Of these West Yorkshire, always in the van of a rightful cause, gallantly heads the list with £525. West Yorkshire is followed by the good province of Kent with £478, and Kent is succeeded by Dorsetshire with £401 12s. Gloucestershire appears next on the scene with £379 13s., and Lancashire, Eastern Division, sends up £315 15s., Norfolk has collected £279 6s., and Essex is not far behind with £233 5s. 7d., while Devonshire follows upon Essex with £220. Warwickshire next advances with £215 15s. 6d., and is almost touched by Surrey with £205 17s. Middlesex offers £194 7s., and North Wales is not far behind with £169; Monmouthshire remits £166 19s., and Durham £155; Cumberland and Westmorland are credited with £150; Suffolk with £120 15s., and Sussex with £118 13s. Smaller sums make up the amount previously specified. Though, as we said last week, we consider the amount, under the circumstances, most remarkable, yet certain considerations seem to crop up as regards the present position and future prospects of our charities, which not unimportant in themselves, demand careful treatment. We reserve, then until next week, the observations and suggestions which have occurred to us to make, and to offer on this most interesting topic to our many indulgent readers. In this hot weather, a very "little goes a great way," and we feel sure that we shall best consult their patience and our own space by stopping here today.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.

The new and promising seaside town of Clacton-on-Sea, which is likely to become a favourite as it is a most refreshing place of rest, health, and resort, was, on Wednesday week, the scene of a great Masonic gathering to commemorate the establishment of a second Masonic Lifeboat, most fitly named the "Albert Edward." Our readers will remember that to commemorate the safe return of our Royal and beloved Grand Master from India the Grand Lodge, after much discussion, granted £4000 to establish two Lifeboats—one of which is placed on the Devonshire coast, the other at Clacton-on-Sea. We are among those, (and we beg pardon of our readers for reminding them of the fact), who have ever deeply regretted that our Grand Lodge, led away by mistaken sentiment and excitement, refused Bro. John Havers's admirable proposal of voting four thousand pounds to the restoration of the great and historic Minsters of St. Alban's and St. Paul's. The proof how wise was his suggestion, and how Masonically appropriate and useful it would have been, is to be seen in the fact, that both these national works are languishing for want of funds, and bound up as they were with the earlier and later historic souvenirs of Freemasonry, no better or more rightful appropriation of our money could have been possibly made. Failing, however, the best appropriation of our funds, and the most rational at the same time, we think the idea of the Lifeboats a very good one indeed, and on humanitarian grounds highly to be commended. It may be a satisfaction to some of our readers to learn, that already the "Albert Edward" has been instrumental in saving nine lives from the wreck of the "Garland." Like its genial and kind-hearted namesake—may it proceed happily and successfully on its useful mission, and may all of prosperity and safety, under the protecting providence of T.G. A.O.T.U., attend its future career. The proceedings of Wednesday week at Clacton-on-Sea were most pleasant and practical, and we trust that Freemasonry has acquired a new impetus and increased prestige in that important and rising district. Our esteemed Deputy Grand Master spoke, as he always does speak, in a thoroughly manly, honest, and warm-hearted way, and gained, as he ever does gain, most deservedly, the attention and applause of his listeners. We shall as Freemasons, therefore, rejoice in the fact, that, thanks to the admirable interposition and eloquent words of Lord Carnarvon, the English Grand Lodge was extricated from a most false position, into which injudicious and unreasoning friends had placed it protempore, and was enabled to come to a conclusion alike sensible and useful, and to offer to the world a valuable proof of its kindly sympathies, and its own warm and unchanging desire to benefit our common humanity. As we often have observed before, in the great Providence of God, good comes out of evil, folly is overruled for wisdom here; and we, therefore, gladly commemorate to-day the completion of that vote of Grand Lodge, which, after many difficulties, has arrived at a most befitting resolution, to consecrate its means to the relief and rescue of perishing fellow mortals.

THE CHARITY VOTING REFORM ASSOCIATION.

We have read the proceedings of the meeting on Thursday week of this association with much interest, as we were very anxious to see what so great a speaker as Mr. Gladstone could conscientiously put forward in favour of reforms which, in our opinion, are, at any rate, "empirical," and in support of that wholesale condemnation of our charitable system, which, just now, is the "order of the day." We are among those who have always advocated the removal of proved abuses the needful and legitimate improvement as time runs on, of earthly systems, which are necessarily always incomplete and imperfect, liable to abuse, apt to get "out of order." But as we strongly object to unreality and false sentiment of every kind, the hyper-sensationalism and "high falutin'" of the hour, we have never been able conscientiously to endorse the somewhat wild accusations which amiable would-be reformers have brought against the charities generally. We do not see that Mr. Gladstone, with all his acknowledged ability and eloquence, has pushed the matter any further or brought the charges home to our charitable associations. He has made "more suo," a very interesting and effective speech,—and there it rests. With the exception of a new inculcation, to which we will call attention later, his remarks mainly turn on that "vexata quæstio," the "voting system," which he denominates the "voting nuisance." But has Mr. Gladstone seriously considered to what his own argument fairly leads? He is somewhat in the position of the morbid individual to whom everything was a "nuisance." But, surely, that is not a sound, nor rational, nor healthy state of feeling? The voting system may be abused, but, surely, it has its use, and we doubt very much if, on calm reflection, Mr. Gladstone would say that, either abstractedly or in the concrete, it was absolutely an abuse, and incapable of honest and legitimate use. And if so, where is his actual argument? We are at one with Mr. Gladstone, when he eloquently dilates upon the excellency of the principle of "Love" as the ruling and controlling principle of all such associations. But Mr. Gladstone need not be reminded by us, that though we shall all, we hope, feel, alas! "that it should be so," it is almost impossible to seek to govern existing associations on abstract first principles of action. No doubt if we were all permeated by such high and well-expressed views, the state of society and the world would be wondrously ameliorated; but alas, we have to do with very common-place mortals indeed, who are governed, and can only be controlled by secondary, nay tertiary, principles of action. It is because human weakness and human selfishness have warped us from abstract right and goodness, and truth, and love, that we have before us the ever mournful spectacle of conflicting interests, antagonizing sympathies, and contending passions. Mr. Gladstone condemns the voting system, on the ground that it fails in its object, and does not help the "most deserving case." As his whole argument bears truly on another matter, in which, as Masons, we have lately shown some interest, and as we accept Mr. Gladstone's view of the true responsibility of patron age, we give it fully: "Another point was, that when an appointment in any case was to be given away it was a received axiom that the person best qualified to fill it should receive it, and in like manner when charity was to be dispensed the persons who were the most fitted, or the most infirm, or the most distressed, as the case might be, or that person whose undeserved troubles were the most poignant, should receive the charity. But was the voting charity favourable to that? On the contrary, it went right against the principle of the most deserving and the most necessitous being made the recipients of the charity—the voting system did not aim at getting the best cases 'in,' but substituted for the most deserving those who could get the highest figures worked by careful machinery." Thus it will be seen that Mr. Gladstone asserts (what we should have thought his keen intellect would have discovered to be a fallacy), that it is possible for any body of men to agree upon what is "the most necessitous" or the "most deserving case." We hold, as we have just now said, this to be a hopeless and utter fallacy, and a most hurtful one, because, taking from it its actual speciousness. Let us test it in this way. Take any ten men you like, and ask them what are the "first principles" of necessitousness or "deserving" which they will lay down as descriptive of the most deserving case in respect of the reception and election of candidates, and you will find, especially as regards our orphan establishments, that no two will or can agree. It is impossible, on any known ground of argument that we are aware of, to lay down rules which shall clearly enable us to assert that this or that "case" is the "most necessitous" or the "most deserving." As absolute agreement is positively impossible, all we can positively do is to put forward a sufficiently distressing case, which accords with our rules, enlists our sympathies, and claims our votes. Curiously enough, even amid this outcry for reform, it would not be difficult to cite cases where those who most complain of the voting system as unfair to the "most distressing case" have come forward warmly to support a case which is clearly not the most distressing case in any sense, and only a distressing case, and was made more objectionable on every ground of fair play to others. Such an illustration demonstrates the tendency of favouritism, yes, and "jobbery," which is the inevitable result of all close and irresponsible bodies of men. The great argument in favour of the voting system is, that it is a counterpoise to private influence, deliberate jobs and unworthy partiality, and that it prevents any one body of men, or an unscrupulous official, or a busy, and noisy, and pretentious egotist from becoming the "Deus ex Machina," and for his self-glorification the "elector general" of candidates. That our charities may require overhauling from time to time who denies? That here and there abuses may have crept in we may all fairly admit. But that they are essentially corrupt or do more harm than good we do most absolutely and solemnly deny. And that the voting system is an actual evil we conceive to be only one more added to the numerous fallacies of the day. We are quite sure that the abolition of the voting system means, in nine cases out of ten, the abolition of the charity itself, and under proper direction, and with controlling safeguards, we believe it to be as fair a way of reaching "deserving cases" as any that can be devised. As regards our Masonic Charities, we are sure that it is so, and that any such proposed change would be mischievous in the highest degree, if not fatal to their progress and success. Mr. Gladstone mentioned, on the authority of our Past Grand Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, the existence of "middlemen," yes, and "middle women," who "trafficked in the votes" for the London Charities, and who were "paid for obtaining the election of candidates." As this is quite "new matter," and to say the truth we have never heard of this interesting species of humanity, where it exists or where it is to be found in operation, we should like to hear more about it. We should perhaps hardly have alluded to it, knowing well the habit, (though we doubt its morality), of making little sensational "hits" and "bits" for public meetings. But as the Times gravely repeats the story on the authority, not of Bro. Simpson, but of Mr. Gladstone, pace our worthy brother, a much higher authority, we shall feel obliged to any of our numerous good friends who will enlighten us as to those remarkable individuals, who so debase and so prostitute the "excelling grace of charity."

THE CONGRESS AND PEACE.

As Freemasons, lovers of peace (not "Peace at any Price," however, let it be noted and remembered), we rejoice to learn that the labours of the last distinguished and momentous Congress at Berlin, under the enlightened presidency of Prince Bismarck, have resulted in the prevention of war and the maintenance of peace. There are many topics in common with this great event, which we are prohibited necessarily and naturally from touching upon in consequence of our wise, decorous, and absolutely non-political position as Freemasons. But this, we think, we fairly may say, that Europe owes a great debt of gratitude to those eminent statesmen, (just as we in England gratefully recognize the honest efforts of the Queen's servants), who have laboured so zealously, despite conflicting interests and opposing clamours to vindicate on one hand the autonomy of nations, and on the other hand to prevent the continuance of a sad and hopeless war. That all interests are satisfied, all nationalities are conciliated, all animosities appeased, by the protocols of the Berlin Congress, is too much, owing to human weakness and perversity, to say or to expect. But, nevertheless, it appears to us that we ought to hail, whether as patriots or Freemasons, or citizens of the world, the deliberations and determinations of so able and dispassionate a body of men, some of them the most distinguished of contemporary statesmen, who, while they have clearly sought strenuously to uphold the sanctity of treaties and the honour of empires, have equally anxiously endeavoured to provide the elements of tranquillity and rest so much needed by Europe and mankind. Let us all hope that the pacific provisions of the treaty at Berlin will be alike durable and effective, and while relieving the anxieties of trade and soothing the agitations of commerce, will pave the way for the advance of liberty, civilization, and toleration, the progress and happiness of suffering peoples, and the onward and peaceful development of independent national life in the world.

CONGRATULATORY DINNER TO BRO. HEDGES.

We understand that a complimentary dinner will be offered to Bro. Hedges under distinguished auspices, on his recent election to the Secretaryship of the Girls' School at the opening of the next Masonic season, though we believe that the exact time is not yet fixed. We are informed that due notice will be given of it, when the committee appointed to manage it have finally settled their course of procedure. Such has been the interest manifested by Bro. Hedges's numerous supporters in town and country that it was at first intended to offer him this congratulatory dinner towards the end of this month, but it was considered advisable on account of the heat of the weather and the dispersion of so many brethren, to defer it to a later and more convenient season. There is little doubt, when it takes place, that it will be most numerous and influentially attended, and that it will be a fitting and friendly inauguration of Bro. Hedges's in the duties and responsibilities of his new and important office. We shall duly keep our readers "au courant" of all we hear on the subject, as we know well how much interest has been excited in the Craft by the successful and proper election of Bro. Hedges.

Original Correspondence.

ARE LADIES AND LEWISES (BEING MINORS) ENTITLED TO VOTE?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On the 6th inst. there appeared in the columns of your publication a letter from myself, commenting on the above question and arguing that the existing Bye-laws did not qualify ladies or lewises being minors to vote as members of the General Committee, and drawing particular attention to Bye-law XXXVII., which, as I conceived, limited the right to vote at an election to "initiated brethren."

In the same issue you also published a copy of the Grand Registrar's opinion upon the question, such opinion having been requested by the General Committee holden on the 27th ult. According to the Grand Registrar's ruling "ladies should be permitted to vote."

This opinion was preceded in the Freemason by a letter from Bro. Creaton, who, as chairman of the last General Committee meeting, undertook to give publicity to the Grand Registrar's opinion through its pages. In that communication the subscribers are informed that "both ladies and lewises being minors, can legally vote on the 11th inst."

This opinion, although contrary to what, I am led to believe, was the general expectation of the Craft, is one which the Chairman of the day will doubtless act upon, and must be submitted to by the subscribers.

It may be considered as an act of presumption on my part to express dissent from the conclusion arrived at by the Grand Registrar; I nevertheless venture, with much respect, to maintain that the interpretation given to Law LXXI. by the Grand Registrar is not that which the framers intended when they prepared the bye-laws now in force, nor, I think, was it the idea entertained by the Committee when they accepted and confirmed them. It is true that much ambiguity is traceable in the Bye-laws, and such being the case, the keynote struck by their framers and acceptors should, in my view, have been the one guiding to their interpretation.

Is it absolutely certain that Bye-law LXXI. legalises the votes of ladies, &c.? The words quoted by the learned Grand Registrar are significant and contain a word which I venture to suggest scarcely warrants the conclusion he has arrived at. The voting by that bye-law is declared to be by balloting papers, to be distributed to every qualified Member present. To whom does this word qualified refer? Clearly not to the members generally then present, as without the pecuniary qualification they could not have taken part in the proceedings of the meeting. May it not refer to the extra and ultra-qualification mentioned in Bye-law XXXVII., to which Bye-law LXXI. is a sequence, namely, that of being a brother; or, in other words, does it not specify the particular members of the General Committee, in whom the privilege of voting at the election or removal of a Secretary is vested?

Further, what meaning is to be put upon the words of the Grand Registrar—"I think therefore the ladies should be permitted to vote?" Is it intended to legalise the votes of ladies, being minors, and if so by whom are they to vote? It is a notion uncommonly prevalent, amongst the community at large, that minors are not by law enabled to vote; but this, after all, may be only a legal fiction. Still, it is very desirable to know the minimum age at which ladies may exercise the function of electors. Is it to be fixed at 3 years when they are supposed by omnibus authorities to cease to be "children in arms?" or at 7, when they are supposed to terminate childhood? or at 18, beyond which time they cannot travel at half fares? One would like to be made acquainted with this interesting detail, as much awkwardness might arise from a burly brother presenting himself, laden, mayhap, with twin voters (unable of themselves to retire gracefully from the scene) and being compelled to retrace his steps, thus burthened, from the presence of the Chairman owing to the infant voters being below the minimum age.

The letter of Bro. Creaton is worthy of comment as expressing his reading of the Grand Registrar's opinion. He states boldly that the opinion justifies voting by "ladies and by lewises being minors." I do not myself gather so much from the opinion; but it is doubtless assumed from the conclusion arrived at by the Grand Registrar, viz., that "ladies should be permitted to vote," and as he does not limit the privilege to such ladies as have attained their majority or been married, so by parity of reasoning Bro. Creaton takes it for granted that young lords of the creation are equally entitled.

But what a melancholy reflection does all this cast on Masonry. The Craft is known to be a matter of frequent comment by the outer world. It is oftentimes termed child's play, it is sometimes looked upon as but the cultivation of man-millinery, and not rarely Masons are supposed to be sadly addicted to gastronomical vices. These insinuations have hitherto been parried by a reference to the ultimate good effected by the Order through the agency of its charitable institutions, but who amongst us will hereafter be able to combat the firstly-named challenge when it can be alleged that an adult member of the General Committee, when attending a meeting, might be supported on the right and on the left by Life Governors of such tender years that guardians would become an absolute necessity.

The farcical aspect of the question may be thus portrayed. One donor, with 50 guineas at command, pays it to one or other of our charitable institutions, and becomes a Vice-President, with ten votes at each election for children, and one vote as a General Committeeman. Another, with a similar plethora of cash, invests it by becoming himself a Life Governor at an expense of 10 guineas, with two votes at each election for children, and one vote as a Committeeman, the remainder he pays to the Institution in the names of eight ladies or lewises being minors, and obtains thereby sixteen votes at each election for children and eight votes at General Committee meetings. A Vice-Patron who pays one hundred guineas has one vote as a Committeeman; a child in petticoats, in whose name five guineas have been paid, has the same privilege. One brother has enriched our charities to an unexampled extent; his payments have been more than five hundred-fold the sum paid in the name of the juvenile Life Governor, and yet both donors are placed on the same level as regards their supposed capabilities of administering the affairs of the Institution.

I should indeed be grieved at this review were I not very hopeful that an altered series of bye-laws will be the outcome of this "race for office."

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

EDWARD COX.

THE ELECTION OF SECRETARY ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In my former letter, published in your paper of the 6th inst., I neither suggested nor imputed a motive. Bro. Monckton's allegation that I had done so, as he says, "scarcely nice," though I do not admire the euphony of the expression.

I derived my knowledge of the Grand Registrar's avowed interest in Bro. Storr's behalf from the printed list issued by that candidate. I was sorry to see the Masonic executive so paraded, and deemed the publication of their offices to be scarcely in accordance with good taste.

No one, I imagine, would think of doubting the sincerity of Bro. Monckton in "early supporting" the cause of Bro. Storr, the only dubious feeling engendered is whether Bro. Monckton, as the President of the Board of General Purposes, has not permitted his zeal to outrun his discretion. It is possible for a man to be a too "active partisan."

Faithfully and fraternally yours,
July 15th, 1878.

D. D.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The excitement of the election being over, the calm that has supervened brings the proverbial wisdom that is at once the easiest and the most useless. Beati possidentis, remarked Bismarck on a recent occasion; possession is nine points in law, is an old English saying. Had the thought occurred to the defeated candidates or their friends and advisers much anxiety and considerable expense might have been spared. The overwhelming majority of Bro. Hedges is thus accounted for; the high influence and prestige of Bros. Storr and Matier no doubt account for the large number of votes polled for them; but then comes, longus intervallus, the comparatively few given for the other candidates. It is, however, remarkable, that (with one exception) the numbers polled for each are singularly uniform. So far, however, as my worthy Bro. Worrell is concerned, in whose candidature I took active interest, I have reason to know that a large number of his friends who promised their votes failed to enter an appearance—he had also considerable influence in the country, which would not have failed to have told on the result if voting papers had been issued. This probably to a certain extent might be the case with the other unsuccessful candidates; if so, they have the consolation I have tendered to my friend, that comparatively small though the numbers voting for them may be, it shows that, harring exceptional circumstances and influence, they uniformly possess the esteem of the Craft, and that the only difficulty appears to have been the embarras du choix.

So far as I could gather at the poll and elsewhere, your observations about the inadvisability of expecting the worthy Secretaries to our charities to wear themselves out by eating so many dinners appear to meet with general acceptance among the Craft, albeit the time may not have yet come when lodges and chapters will do their duty to the charities unaided by the eloquence of the Secretaries. It occurred to me while watching the excitement of the poll, and while using all my influence to catch votes for my much respected protégé, as affairs stand at present, and until some better order is taken in this matter, that a candidate will have to qualify as they do at the bar by eating so many dinners. Only fancy the time coming when "sandwich men" parade up and down at election time calling on electors to vote for Bro. Demosthenes Boanerges the eloquent, or for Bro. Hercules Bon Vivant warranted to dine from home every night, distance no object!

Seriously, I trust with you that the time may come when lodges and chapters will not require the stimulus that at present is deemed necessary, but let charity precede dining.

Yours fraternally,

G. J. KAIN.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Although myself a thorough supporter of the successful candidate at the recent election, I have no desire to sing a hymn of victory or to write a single word in disparagement of those who were defeated by Bro. Hedges.

I should like, however, to call the attention of my brother

Masons to the very great exertions displayed by a brother in connection with that event, and without which, in my opinion, the result might possibly (I had nearly written probably) been different. I allude to the Hon. Sec. of Bro. Hedges's Committee, Bro. Alfred Tisley, No. 8, and Sec. 1889. From first to last he worked with unflinching spirit and indomitable perseverance—sparing no labour—leaving absolutely no stone unturned—in order that the end he had so much at heart might be achieved. Many of your readers are aware of the important official position occupied by Bro. Tisley, and of the onerous and engrossing duties inseparable from such an appointment, but he managed, in spite of all, to find time for an almost incredible amount of labour. Forms and circulars were sent out in thousands. Letters at the rate of 50 a-day received and answered. Fresh Committeemen added day by day till that body had reached from 31 on May 6th, to 178 on July 11th. By these means the sterling merits of Bro. Hedges were brought well home to the electors; and Bro. Tisley had his reward at last in seeing him returned at the head of the poll.

Now that the heat of the battle is over I am sure those brethren who felt their duty to support a rival candidate will most readily admit (I can hardly ask them to say the best, but) that a thoroughly good man has won.

I remain, dear Sir, yours very truly,

P.M. OF TWO LODGES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am much pleased to note the fraternal spirit in which the election of Bro. Hedges as Secretary R.M.I. for Girls has been received, especially by Bro. Storr, and the other candidates for the office. I entirely concur with the spirit of the V.W. Bro. J. B. Monckton's letter, and trust with him that "we shall all loyally support" the new Secretary, and unite with him in the hope that "the best man for the Institution" has been chosen. In order that Bro. Hedges may have the hearty support of all concerned in the welfare of the "Royal Masonic Institution for Girls," with which our dear and lamented friend, Bro. Little, was connected, I think the most effective plan would be to join heartily in making the next festival a great success.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN,

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the hurry, I presume, and on account of the late hour at which my advertisement was received, two or three errors have crept in which I should feel obliged if you will rectify.

My short address should read as follows:

"I beg to tender to you my heartfelt thanks for the most honourable position in which your kind votes have placed me, and I beg also to assure you that the result of this day will never be erased from my memory. I trust by my earnest and assiduous labours to merit your continued confidence and to advance the best interests of a school so dear to us all."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

MASONIC ELECTIONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A very important step has been taken in the right direction—thanks to the energy and determination of Bro. Colonel Creaton—in the recent appointment of the Secretary to the Girls' School; which has satisfactorily proved, that a contested election—even in Freemasonry—may be honestly conducted; that the issue of ballot papers can be supervised; that tampering with the ballot boxes is preventable; that the destruction of adverse voting papers is not desirable; that the manufacture of fictitious votes is unnecessary; that the might of self-elected cliques can be beaten by right; that a truthful scrutiny is more welcome and less troublesome than a false one; and that courtesy is more powerful than official arrogance.

So grand a result of the first attempt at reform will surely be sufficient to secure such an amendment of existing regulations as will effectually prevent a repetition of recent scandals.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

H.

VOTES FOR THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I sincerely trust that neither you nor the brethren at large will think me presumptuous, or out of place if I venture to call their attention to the injustice and hardship which too often accrue by an indiscriminate promise of their votes, without sufficiently acquainting themselves with the merits of the case they are asked to support.

I would urge them not to give their votes blindly and so abuse the privileges they have obtained by their liberal support of the Masonic Charities. If they are too indolent, or too much taken up with their daily avocations, let them hand their individual votes over to the lodge of their election, and they may rest assured, when a body of men are met together for that specific purpose, or that they have a special case brought before them which they will not have taken up without duly considering its merits, that their votes will obtain their legitimate use, viz., to help those whose claims, or the merits of their forbears or fathers, have justly secured for them.

It would be placing little reliance indeed upon the intelligence of those for whom these few remarks are intended, if I were to dilate upon the many cases of injustice caused by indiscriminate voting, but I will, if this meets with your approval, enter into further details, and show what the provinces have done by amalgamating and trusting to their working bees to act for them, and how, consequently, London is so far behind them in the number of candidates they return at each election, and that because they have hitherto neglected to follow the motto of "In unity is strength."

I remain, dear Sir, yours fraternally,
CHARLES JOHN PERCEVAL.

THE WORLD'S FAVOUR FOR FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been waiting to see some reply to those excellent letters on the so-called superior degrees, or Christian Masonry; but I am led to believe from the arguments adduced and my own observation and research, that it is impossible to controvert or refute the opinions and facts which have been so fearlessly and ably expressed by "Craftsman," and I should like to see those letters embodied in the form of a lecture and placed in the hands of initiates, to enable them to understand more fully the theory of our authorized Masonic system, and to perceive that any dogmatic teaching is totally at variance with our Masonic professions and principles.

I am, fraternally yours,

E. S. M.

CHRISTIAN MASONRY AND THE SWEDENBORGIAN RITE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in the Freemason of the 13th inst. a very able letter from "Craftsman," on the subject of Christian Masonry. In paragraph three of that letter he refers to "so-called Cryptic Masonry, to the rites of Misraim, Memphis, Swedenborg, &c." Now, I am rather concerned in the defence of the last-named degree or rite, and I beg permission to say a few words.

In the first place Swedenborgian Masonry cannot in any sense be called a Christian rite—that is to say, its ritual is as free from any sectarian bias as Craft Masonry itself, of which system it is a philosophical exposition. The ceremonies of Swedenborgian Masonry indeed point to very primitive times and very primitive practices. This your correspondent "Craftsman" could easily learn for himself if he thought proper. Nor is there anything trivial or childish in the Ritual of Swedenborgian Masonry. The whole system is massive, impressive, and eminently suggestive.

Every Craft Mason who attentively considers its solemn lessons will hail it as a desirable and interpretative addition to Masonic Science. Now, it should be remembered, is the Swedenborgian system a modern rite. It is nearly as old as Royal Arch Masonry, and it is nowhere at variance with established Masonic truths.

"Craftsman" says he is always ready to be convinced by evidence and argument. As you may be aware, the forthcoming number of the Rosicrucian will contain a long account of the Swedenborgian rite, prepared by myself, and to that statement I will for the present refer your correspondent, our brother "Craftsman," but should he desire a better acquaintance with Swedenborgian Masonry I am always ready to confer with any brother on the subject.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally and truly,

KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE, IX,
Supreme Grand Secretary, Swedenborgian Rite.

A DISCLAIMER.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Through the medium of your widespread and valuable paper kindly allow me to thank the numerous friends who so readily expressed their willingness to support me for the Secretaryship of the Girls' School, and even voted for Bro. "Paul Storr."

I beg to inform them that I was not a candidate for the office, but am proud of the fraternal esteem of my brethren in the Craft.

I am, yours fraternally,

A DAY IN THE COUNTRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir,—

Last year some of your readers were led generously to help us to provide for nearly 500 poor boys and girls who attend the Hackney Juvenile Mission a day's excursion into the country.

This year the manager hopes to be able to take some 300 children for a day in July or August, and I should be glad if your readers will again aid practically by sending donations to either Mr. John Newman, Hon. Manager, 117, Cheapside, E.C.; Mr. H. M. Heath, 4, St. Thomas's-road, Hackney; or to your obediently,

ATHRO ALFRED KNIGHT.

South Hackney, London, E.

At a meeting of the Court of Common Council, at which the Lord Mayor presided, it was resolved to present the Freedom of the City in a gold box to the Earl of Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury, as a testimony of the court's appreciation of their services at the Berlin Congress.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk was held at Colchester on Tuesday, 9th inst. A detailed report of the proceedings, kindly forwarded by a correspondent, unavoidably stands over until next week.

ENGLISH MASONRY IN NORTH AFRICA.

On the afternoon of Saturday, 22nd June, the Italian steamer "Capera" anchored in the midst of the beautiful bay of Tunis, which washes the shores rendered famous in history as the site of the once flourishing city of Carthage. The arrival of the "Capera" had been anxiously expected by the brethren of the Ancient Carthage Lodge, No. 1717, who had assembled at the seaport of the Goletta to receive their worthy D.G.M., R.W. Bro. William Kingston, of Malta, and several of his Grand Officers, who had with true Masonic zeal and a courageous disregard of the inconveniences of an Oriental summer travelled from Malta to pay an official visit to this young but prosperous lodge, and at the same time to inaugurate the Mark Lodge, Kingston, No. 222, and to consecrate the Royal Arch Chapter Ancient Carthage, No. 1717. The D.G.M., D.G.J.W., D.G. Reg., and others were met at the Goletta by the W.M., Bros. Broadley, the S.W., Rev. E. B. Frankel, the J.W.; Barker, C.E., the Chaplain; the Rev. E. H. Shepherd, B.A., the J.D., Pentecost, and others, and the party proceeded to Tunis by the evening train.

On the following day a great number of the brethren (including the D.G.M.) attended Divine service at the English Church, dedicated to St. Augustine, where an eloquent and appropriate sermon was preached by the D.G. Chaplain, Bro. E. B. Frankel, J.W. 1717.

On Monday, 24th June (by a happy coincidence, the feast of St. John the Baptist), a goodly number of English and foreign brethren assembled in the commodious Masonic Hall, situated in a street bearing the Oriental name of Strada Si Aly Azuz. The lodge-room has a peculiarly elegant appearance, and is furnished throughout in a complete and satisfactory manner. It is nearly 45 feet long, and will contain with ease about eighty brethren. The walls of the lodge are covered with appropriate fresco, almost elaborate in design, and the whole house is brilliantly lighted with gas. A refreshment room, waiting room, &c., are composed in the general arrangement.

The Ancient Carthage Lodge, No. 1717, was opened by W. Bro. Broadley at 4 p.m. The following W.M.'s and P.M.'s were present: W. Bros. N. Lenghi, 33°, P.M. of Lodge Capera, at Alexandria, (P.M. 1717); P. Ghiani Mameli, 33°, P.M. and P.M.W.S. of the Lodge and Chapter Vittoria Fidelity, at Cagliari, and deputy for that city to the parliament of Italy; Vais, 33°, P.M., and P.M.W.S. at Leghorn; Dr. Maignani, P.M. of the Lodge Carthage and Utica, at Tunis; the Baron James Castelluovo, W.M. of the Italian Lodge Risorgimento, at Tunis; P. Sulema, 180°, P.M. of the Italian Lodge Concordia and Progresso, at Tunis. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. Rev. E. B. Frankel, S.W.; J. E. L. Barker, C.E., J.W.; A. Blanch, acting Treasurer; S. Souiller, Secretary; A. Perini, M.D., S.D.; G. Pentecost, J.D.; Rev. E. H. Shepherd, B.A., Chaplain; P. Palsologo, I.G.; V. C. Clement, D. of C.; M. Lumbroso and M. Schembri, Stewards, and H. Haylock, Tyler, together with Bros. the Chevalier Tulin de la Tunisie, Consul General of the German Empire; J. J. Gardiner, C.E.; M. Cassanollo, M.D., and nearly fifty others, including the officers of the newly-founded Italian Lodge II Risorgimento.

On an alarm being given that the District Grand Lodge of Malta sought admittance a procession entered the lodge in the following order: Bros. Beck, D.G. Purs., Paleologo, D.G. Steward, bearing the greater lights; Bro. Pentecost, D.G. Steward, bearing the D.G. Lodge banner; Bros. Rev. E. B. Frankel, D.G. Chaplain; Charles Richelman, D.G. J.W.; the R.W. Bro. William Kingston, D.G.M.

The D.G.M. was received with the honours due to his exalted rank. The D.G.M. assumed the gavel, and the W.M., Bro. Broadley, his place as D.G.S.W. The other D.G. Officers assumed their posts, and D.G. Lodge was declared open in ample form.

The D.G. Chaplain having offered up a prayer, the W.M. tendered the books of the lodge for the inspection of the D.G.M., and addressed the D.G.M. as follows:—

R.W. Sir,—Allow me on behalf of myself and the officers and members of this lodge to bid you welcome to Ancient Carthage. We are deeply sensible of the honour you have done us in coming amongst us, and of the great sacrifices made by yourself and your Grand Officers to accomplish this visit, so important in the annals of my lodge, and I feel sure so much calculated to advance our prosperity. I feel almost justified in saying that your presence in Tunis to-day has a deep interest, not only for this lodge and this district in particular, but for the Masonic world in general. Few spots possess greater attraction to the historical student of Masonry than the site of that mighty city from which we derive our name, the ruins of which are almost visible from the place on which we now stand. Founded by the countrymen of our Grand Master, H. B., seven centuries before the Christian era, it was adorned and embellished by the "cunning workman" of the Phœnician race, and finally, when Tyre itself fell before a victorious foe, it afforded a refuge to the descendants of those great men who originated, as our traditions inform us, the secrets and mysteries of our honourable Order. The ruins of that once powerful city contain many a mark and many a symbol familiar to all workers of our Craft, and, strange to say, these marks and these symbols have been perpetuated by the Moslem conquerors, whose children now possess those beautiful hills sloping down to the Mediterranean, once crowned by the Mistress of the World. It is to a lodge and a country possessing these almost unrivalled associations that I welcome you to-day. You find in our midst many representatives of the G.O. of Italy, who join with us in thanking you for the honour you have done us to visit this distant part of your province. Italy and England have enjoyed a long and unbroken friendship, and I can truly state that the most cordial and fraternal feelings exist between the Italian and English Masons in Tunis. We all of us are determined to overcome the difficulties engendered by diversities of race and creed, and unite together in upholding by example, as well as precept, the great doctrines upon which Freemasonry is based. The progress of our lodge up to the present time has surpassed all our expectations. We owe much to the encouragement afforded us by yourself and your excellent D.G.M., W. Bro. Rosenbush, and your presence amongst us to-night fills our cup of gratitude to the brim. Your visit will always form an important epoch in the history of this lodge, and will serve as an impetus to one and all of us to put forth fresh exertions in the Masonic cause. The Supreme Grand Chapter of England has lately given us a proof of its confidence in granting us a charter to open a R.A. Chapter in connection with our lodge, and we are fully determined to justify the trust so kindly reposed in us, that neither the Grand Lodge nor the Grand Chapter may ever regret extending their jurisdiction and that of your district to the shores of North Africa, and thus enable English Masons to work English Masonry in the country which will always be associated with the fame and glory of the mighty Tyrian nation, to which in all probability we owe the very existence of our Order.

The R.W.D.G.M. replied as follows:—

W. Bro. Broadley, W.P.M.'s, officers, and brethren—I thank you very much for the cordial reception accorded by you this evening to my grand officers and myself. In coming amongst you I have done nothing more than to fulfil my duty as D.G.M., and I must say that in the present instance my task has been a very pleasant one. I congratulate W. Bro. Broadley on the result of his great exertions in the cause of Masonry in Tunis, and particularly on the prosperity and increasing importance of the lodge over which he rules. I only hope that the fame of the Ancient Carthage Lodge will be lasting and that its future may be as satisfactory as its beginning.

The R.W.D.G.M. closed the D.G.L.

W. Bro. Broadley, at the request of the R.W.D.G.M., resumed the gavel and proceeded with the ordinary work of the lodge.

Mr. Joseph Allegro, an officer in the Turkish army, was then introduced and initiated into the secrets and mysteries of Ancient Freemasonry in the E.A. Degree, the ceremony being carried on in the French language. The W.M. then alluded to the presence of the W.M. and officers and of the recently established Italian Lodge, II Risorgimento, and wished both them and their lodge every success.

W. Bro. Baron Castelluovo, M.D. replied in appropriate terms, and expressed his high sense of W. Bro. Broadley's cordiality and good feeling towards the lodge over which he had been elected to govern, and hoped that both lodges would unite in forming a column of mutual defence and support.

The Chaplain of the lodge, Bro. E. H. Shepherd, having offered up an appropriate prayer, the lodge was then closed in peace and harmony at 6 p.m.

At 8 o'clock a banquet was given, under the presidency of the W.M., in the refreshment room, which was very numerous attended by the brethren and Masonic visitors.

The usual toasts of obligation were given and responded to, and that of the D.G.M. awakened peculiar enthusiasm.

W. Bro. Kingston in returning thanks expressed his gratification at the reception accorded to him and his officers, and proposed "The Health of the W.M. and principal Founders of the Lodge, Bro. Broadley" proposed "The Health of the Officers," coupling with the toast that of Bro. the Rev. E. A. Frankel, S.W., to whose Masonic zeal he rendered ample testimony.

Several other toasts were proposed and answered to, and amongst that of "The Grand Orient of Italy," responded to by W. Bro. Ghiani-Mameli, Deputy of the Italian Parliament; "W. Bro. J. M. P. Montagu, G.D. of England," hon. member of 1717; "The Former Masters of Lodges in Tunis," eloquently proposed by W. Bro. Lenghi, and responded to appropriately by W. Bros. D. Mugnani and P. Sulema. The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close at 11 p.m.

The next morning at 8 a.m., the brethren met to dedicate the newly-founded Mark Mason's Lodge, Kingston, No. 222, named after the popular and much esteemed D.G.M. of Malta.

The proceedings being opened according to ancient custom, R.W. Bro. Kingston, P.M., No. 109, installed the first W.M., Bro. Broadley.

The following brethren were then advanced, viz., Bros. Perini, W. Castelluovo, C.E.; A. Blanch, Dr. Cassanollo, Schrembri, Gardelle, Deni, Enriquez, and Barker, C.E.

Another meeting was held at 4 p.m., when six other brethren attained the Hon. Degree, viz., the Chevalier Tulin de la Tunisie, Felici, They, Macario, Cassar, and Bourepaux.

A third Mark Lodge was opened at 8 p.m., when seven brethren also sought advancement, i.e., Bros. J. J. Gardiner, C.E.; V. Fingi, Anzi, V.C. Clements, M. Le Gallais, S. Souiller, and E. Nurri.

The ceremonies being over, and the advancement of the twenty-two candidates efficiently carried out with the aid of the visiting brethren from Malta, a short address was delivered by the W.M. on the special interest of Mark Masonry for brethren in Tunis, who expressed his pleasure at the name of the lodge, No. 222, serving as a memorial of the visit of the Installing Officer, R.W.P.M.M. Kingston, and expressed a hope that it would ever continue as a memorial of his hard work and great popularity in the district over which he ruled.

The D.G.M. having returned thanks, the W.M. installed the following officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Rev. E. B. Frankel, S.W.; G. Pentecost, J.W.; Dr. A. Perrini, M.O.; Dr. N. Cassanollo, S.O.; J. J. Gardiner, J.O.; A. Blanch, Treasurer; S. Souilter, Secretary; P. M. Paleologo, Registrar of Marks; M. Le Gallais, S.D.; E. Nurri, J.D.; V. C. Clements D. of C.; V. Finzi and E. Gurdelle, Stewards; and H. Haylock, Tyler.

The Mark Lodge was then closed in ancient form at 10 p.m.

On Wednesday, the 6th June, at 4 p.m. the founders of the Ancient Carthage Royal Arch Chapter, No. 1717, assembled in the Masonic Hall, to witness its consecration and the installation of the First Principal elect, E. Comp. A. M. Broadley, W.M. 1717.

The warrant having been read by the Acting Scribe E, an elaborate address on the history, scope, and aim of R.A. Masonry was delivered by the Consecrating Officer, E. Comp. Kingston, P.Z., R.A.C. No. 349, which was listened to with marked attention and highly appreciated.

The Scribe E. elect, Comp. the Rev. E. B. Franket, offered up a prayer, during which the consecrating elements were poured out, and afterwards incensed the four corners of the building according to ancient custom.

The chapter being declared consecrated, E. Comp. Kingston proceeded to install in the first chair the principal Z. elect, E. Comp. A. M. Broadley, as designated in the charter signed by the Three Grand Principals of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Lord Skelmersdale, and Lord De Tabley, E. Comp. Reichelman, P.M. 515, in the third chair, while he himself, in conformity with the provisions of the warrant, assumed the chair of H. The following M.M.'s; were then introduced, to receive at their hands the benefits of exaltation, viz., W. Bros. Mugnaini, 32°, Lenghi, 33°, and the Baron Castellnuovo, all P.M.'s of lodges under the G.O. of Italy, and Bros. the Chevalier Tulin de la Tunisie (Consul General for Germany), Chevalier J. Cubisol (Consul for Denmark and Belgium), J. J. Gardiner, C.E.; J. B. Bourepaux, E. Gardelle, A. Blanch, G. B. Cassar, J. E. L. Barker, C.E., and Dr. N. Gassanello. The chapter was then adjourned till 8 o'clock, when Bros. the Professors Souiller Clement and E. Nurri were exalted. Before the closing of the chapter the M.E.Z., Comp. Broadley, delivered a short address on the position and nature of the degree and its relation with foreign Masonry. The chapter being closed in ancient form, the companions adjourned to a banquet, where the usual Masonic and loyal toasts were honoured and enthusiastically received.

On the following day the R.W.D.G.M., accompanied by Bros. Broadley, D.G.S.W., W.M. of 1717, and W. Bro. Reichelman, D.G.J.W., and P.M. 515, together with all the officers of the "Ancient Carthage" Lodge, paid a visit to the newly established lodge "Il Risorgimento," working under the auspices of the G.O. of Italy. The W.M. of this lodge is Bro. the Baron J. Castellnuovo, M.D., surgeon to the late King of Italy, and who on the previous day was exalted in the Ancient Carthage Chapter, and the subordinate officers are as follows: Bros. Dr. Funaro, S.W.; Professor Vais, 33°, J.W.; Professor Ayra, Orator; G. Maltesopolo, Sec.; Pariente, Treasurer; Attia, D. of C.; and J. Enriquez, Almoner. The lodge being opened in due form, the D.G.M. was received under the Arch of Steel and with the great honours peculiar to Italian Masonry. A most cordial reception was accorded to W. Bro. Broadley and his officers and Bro. Broadley returned thanks in appropriate terms. The work of the evening was proceeded with, and two candidates, Messrs. G. Parienti and Senigallia satisfactorily initiated according to the peculiar ritual as practised in Italy. After the ceremony, an address of much real value and research was delivered by the Orator, Bro. Professor Ayra, and listened to with deep attention by all present. At 9.30. the members and visitors over sixty in number, adjourned to refreshment, and entered in order the beautiful and tastefully decorated banquetting room of the lodge, which is held in one of those ancient Moorish palaces which excite the warm admiration of all European visitors. The room and tables were most elaborately decorated with flowers, national flags, &c. While speaking on this head it would be difficult to accord too much praise to the courteous and hard working, Stewards, Bros. Catalanotti, Attia, Saunino, and Tedeschi, whose exertions added not a little to the perfect success of the entertainment, which can only be described as a dinner of an elaborate kind. The toasts of the King of Italy and the G.M. of the G.O. of Italy having been drunk, coupled with that of our own Royal M.W.G.M., the W.M. proposed "The Health of the D.G.M. of Malta" in felicitous terms, declaring that his visit to Tunis would be considered an epoch in the annals of Italian as well as English Masonry. The D.G.M. returned thanks, and W. Bro. Lenghi explained his remarks in Italian. The W.M. then proceeded to propose "The Health of W. Bro. Broadley," whom he characterised as his co-worker in the Masonic ranks, and to whom he attributed the credit of bringing about by indefatigable exertion and perseverance the great Masonic revival now taking place in Tunis. W. Bro. Broadley returned thanks, declaring that the evening they had spent was a full recompense for any effort of his, and expressed a hope that harmony, affection, and brotherly love would unite and cement the two sister lodges of Ancient Carthage and Risorgimento, which might be appropriately considered as typifying the mutual good-will and regard existing between the two nations to which they belonged. Several other toasts were proposed and drunk with enthusiasm, particularly that of an absent brother, J. H. Stevens, British Vice-Consul at Tunis, at present recovering from severe illness, to which W. Bro. Broadley responded, and appropriately answered by proposing "The Health of his able Medical Adviser, Dr. Funaro," the S.W. of Lodge "Risorgimento." The W.M. having to leave for Goletta by special train, placed W. Bro. Broadley in his place, and the harmony of the evening was continued till a late hour, when a burst of enthusiasm was awakened by the Chairman proposing and giving the parting toast according to our English usage. The brethren separated at midnight with but one feeling as to the reception accorded to them by our Italian brethren, viz., one of complete and universal satisfaction.

After a visit to the ruins of Carthage and a few hours of needful repose on Friday, the R.W.D.G.M. and his officers proceeded to Goletta on Saturday, the 20th June, by the 10 a.m. train, accompanied by a large number of brethren belonging to both the Tunis lodges. Here the party was received by the respected agents of the Tunisian Railway, Messrs Williamson and Gardiner, and going on board the steam launch belonging to the company, soon reached the S.S. "Lancefield," on which they embarked. All being prepared for departure, the last adieus were exchanged and the Tunis brethren quitted the steamer, which soon left them and North Africa behind. Nothing more remains to be said but that the R.W.D.G.M. during his visit, by his patience, courtesy, and ability earned the hearty good-will of every Mason in Tunis, English or foreign, and that his sojourn amongst them will ever be pleasantly and gratefully remembered in the days to come.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF TASMANIA.

The first annual communication of this District Grand Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Hobart Town, on Tuesday, the 7th May.

The following District Grand Officers were present:—Bros. William Simmons Hammond, Dist. G.M.; George Smith, Dep. Dist. G.M.; F. H. Wise, Dist. G.S.W.; L. Susman, Dist. G.J.W.; R. D. Poulett-Harris, Dist. G.C.; Charles Toby, Dist. G.S.; C. W. Rocher, Dist. G.S.D.; John Clark, Dist. G. Purs.; John Hamilton, Dist. G.S.; W. R. Davey, Dist. G.S.; W. G. Beaumont, Dist. G. Tyler.

There were also present, as representatives of lodges, Bros. J. G. Davies, W.M. 536; J. Coates, Acting S.W. 536; J. M. Clarke, J.W. 536; William Horne, S.W. 618; J. F. Hobkirk, P.M. 618; T. H. Macgrath, W.M. 801; George Richardson, S.W. 801.

The District Grand Lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer at 7 o'clock, and the summons convening the meeting having been read, the minutes of the meeting held on the 27th of February were read and unanimously confirmed.

The following report of the District Grand Secretary was read:—

"This being the first meeting of District Grand Lodge since its formal opening and installation of the R.W. the D.G. Master, I have been directed to prepare a short report on the progress made towards placing the Masonic business of the District on a satisfactory and permanent basis.

"In carrying out my instructions I have to express my regret that so little demanding special comment has been accomplished, but I indulge in the hope that at the next annual communication a report of more substantial and practical results will be placed before you.

"Several causes have lately operated to retard the active prosecution of, and attention to, Masonic duties; amongst which may be specially named the rich and valuable auriferous, stanniferous, and coal deposits recently discovered and now in course of development in many portions of the colony, in which direction the attention of the capitalist and the trading portion of our community has been largely diverted. Another cause existed in the distance between Hobart Town and Launceston, rendering it very inconvenient for members of the Committee of General Purposes (who were selected from all the lodges) to meet to prepare a draft of laws and regulations for the government of the D.G. Lodge, and it was found requisite to appoint a sub-committee composed of members of the Hobart Town lodges for that purpose, which committee after due deliberation drew up and had printed a draft of laws, &c., a copy of which has been forwarded to each member of District Grand Lodge, and will be laid before you at this meeting for consideration.

"On the subject of finance, I can only report that in the absence of any power to demand or receive payment of any fees from the lodges until after the making, confirming, and subsequent approval of our laws and regulations, it has hitherto been necessary to meet all our disbursements from private sources. The only amount received has been £2 2s. from the D.D.G. Master for fee payable to the Grand Lodge on his appointment, which has been remitted to and acknowledged by the Grand Secretary. I may also add that the whole of the regalia and appointments for the D.G. Lodge were imported to the order of, and paid for by, the R.W. the D.G. Master, for which the D.G. Lodge is still indebted to him, less £10 10s., proposed optional fee payable to D.G. Lodge on his appointment, and which he has authorised to be deducted from the amount.

"I have to report that Lodge 536, Hobart Town, continues in active operation; the W. Master, Bro. J. G. Davies, reports 5 initiations and 1 joining member during the past year, and a list of 69 members. Lodge 618, Launceston, is also in active working; the W. Master, Bro. R. M. Johnstone, reports 13 initiations and 1 joining member during the past year, and a list of 57 members. Lodge 801, Hobart Town, is also in active working; the W. Master, Bro. T. H. Macgrath, reports 2 initiations and 3 joining members during the past year, and a list of 33 members. Lodge 691, Launceston, has not been working for many years, and the warrant has been surrendered to the R.W. the D.G. Master for safe keeping for the present. Lodge 719, Stanley.—No account received of the warrant for holding this lodge has reached me. The D.D. Grand Master has been requested to inquire who is its present custodian, and report thereon. It has not worked for a long period. No. 800.—A lodge at New Norfolk under this warrant has never been constituted. I have written to Bro. R. Thompson, the W. Master Designate, who, I believe, has custody of the warrant, to show cause why it should not be surrendered, but am without any reply at present. No. 1517, at Sorell.—This lodge has not been constituted. Bro. J. T. Coram, the Worshipful Master Designate, reports under date 1st May, 1878, that the few remaining brethren in the district have determined to wait a short time longer before asking to have it constituted, hoping at no distant date to be in a position to avail themselves of the privilege of opening the lodge. Such, R.W. Sir and brethren, is the present position of the several warrants in the District, and I regret not having it in my power to report more favourably thereon, but I do confidently anticipate a reaction at no distant period, particularly as the Districts of New Norfolk, Sorell, and Stanley are all localities wherein reside many zealous, good working Masons of high standing, both socially and Masonically, and I sincerely hope that ere long the apathy and inactivity at present existing in these Districts may be followed by a compensating amount of energy in furtherance of the objects of the Craft.

"On the subjects of returns to Grand Lodge, and applications for certificates, I have to state that the W. Master of each lodge working at present makes his return to, and receives certificates for the brethren, direct from the Grand Secretary, in conformity with the Constitution.

"It affords me sincere pleasure to report that the letter of the V.W. the Grand Secretary addressed to the Worshipful Masters of the several lodges in the District, under date the 28th of August, 1876, explanatory of the circumstances connected with the appointment of Bro. Hammond, R.W. D.G. Master for Tasmania, has resulted in putting an end to any further complaints, which is evidenced by the spirit of truly Masonic unity at present existing amongst the Tasmanian brotherhood, and the fraternal greeting accorded to the R.W. the D.G. Master in all parts of the District.

"I have likewise to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of sundry reports of proceedings at the quarterly and other communications of several of the Sister District G. Lodges, amongst which are those of the North Island (New Zealand), New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Bombay, &c., and I would further suggest an interchange of copies of the laws and regulations of the several District lodges, as approved of by the M.W. the Grand Master, which compliment I shall at all times be happy to reciprocate.

"The 'Tasmanian Masonic Benevolent Fund' is the title of an institution established in Tasmania A.D. 1843, having for its object to assist aged and distressed worthy brethren of the ancient and honourable Order of Freemasonry and to afford relief to their widows and orphans, supported by annual subscriptions and voluntary contributions by members of the Order, its constitution being such as to invite subscriptions from and afford relief to all contributing members of lodges subscribing to the fund, without respect to the Constitution under which the lodge is held.

"The report of the Chairman and Honorary Secretary of the fund for the past year, and a copy of its rules, are appended hereto. I hope that such arrangements may be made by D.G. Lodge, relating to the collection of Masonic funds for the purpose of benevolence, as will not materially interfere with the constitution of this old-established and thoroughly effective Masonic organisation. I am informed there is also a Masonic fund for benevolent purposes in Launceston, but no account of its constitution or report of its proceedings has reached me.

"In concluding what may be justly termed merely an inaugural or progress report on the establishment of this District Grand Lodge, I would fain express a hope that the rulers of our great Craft in Tasmania will not permit the present Masonic inactivity long to continue, for permit me to remind them that the immense extension of the Order in all parts of the world will bring with it a corresponding demand on our benevolent resources; it therefore behoves those in authority in our lodges to be earnest in practising the principles they profess to admire, and on which our Order is mainly founded, viz., brotherly love, relief, and truth, and also to use all legitimate means at their disposal in disseminating the principles and more widely extending the influence of this time-honoured and truly benevolent institution, and thus render unnecessary any further reports on the existence of unconstituted or inoperative warrants in the District.

"CHARLES TOBY,
District Grand Secretary."

It was moved by the W. Deputy District Grand Master, and seconded by the W. District Grand Junior Warden, that the report be received and adopted. Carried unanimously.

The Right Worshipful the District Grand Master then re-appointed the following officers of District Grand Lodge for the ensuing year, viz.:

F. H. Wise	Dist. G.S.W.
L. Susman	Dist. G.J.W.
R. D. Poulett-Harris	Dist. G. Chap.
Charles Toby	Dist. G. Sec.
W. A. B. Jamieson	Dist. G.S.D.
C. W. Rocher	Dist. G.J.D.
J. A. Ferguson	Dist. G.D. of C.
John Clark	Dist. G. Purs.
R. R. Davey, John Hamilton,	Dist. G. Stwd.
William George Beaumont	Dist. G. Tyler.

It was moved by W. Bro. D.G. Senior Warden, and seconded by W. Bro. Deputy District Grand Master, and carried unanimously, "That W. Bro. T. H. Macgrath be appointed District Grand Treasurer." R.W. the District Grand Master then invested the W. Bro. Macgrath with the jewel of office and installed him as Treasurer.

The following brethren were elected as the Committee of General Purposes: Bros. Hobkirk, Sadler, W. A. B. Jamieson, John Clark, and Poulett-Harris. The draft of rules and regulations provides that the District Grand Master, the D.D. Grand Master, the D.G. Wardens, Treasurer, Secretary, W. Masters, and two Past Masters from each lodge (five to form a quorum) shall be members of the Committee, the Chairman to be annually appointed by the R.W. the D.G. Master.

Bros. John Hamilton and Thomas May Evans were appointed Auditors.

The draft copy of laws and regulations for the government of the District Grand Lodge was then considered, and the clauses read seriatim, and with a few alterations passed, and ordered to be printed and distributed amongst the members of District Grand Lodge, with a view to their confirmation at a subsequent meeting.

Apologies for non-attendance were read from the following members of D.G. Lodge: W. Bros. R. M. Johnstone, W.M. 618; F. C. H. Dean, J.W. 618; W. A. B. Jamieson, and F. H. Huston, P.M.'s 536.

There not being any further business, the District Grand Lodge was closed in due form, after solemn prayer, the R.W. the District Grand Master intimating that he would hold the next annual communication at Launceston.

GRAND COUNCIL OF ROYAL AND SELECT MASTERS.

A meeting of the Grand Masters' Council (No. 1) was held at the new lodge rooms, No. 2, Red Lion-square, on Thursday, 27th June. Present: M.P. Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.P.G.M.; F. Davison, Grand Treasurer; H. C. Leander; S. C. Dibdin; H. Court; D. M. Dewar; and Ill. Comp. A. G. Goodall, 33°, of New York. Bro. the Rev. E. Y. Nepean and the Rev. P. M. Holden were received and admitted to the degrees of Most Excellent Master, Royal Master, Select Master, and Super-Excellent Master.

Several brethren having been proposed for admission to the Order, and the other business of the Council concluded, the Council was closed in ancient form and adjourned to Tuesday, the 30th of July, at 5 o'clock.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

"Abstract and brief chronicles of the time."—Hamlet.

ADELPHI.—"Proof," at this theatre continues to give proof that a good sensational, emotional drama is sure to go down, especially with an Adelphi audience, who never enquire too nicely into the construction, the diction, or the character painting, as long as there is plenty of incident, and that incident, sensational. There is some talk of a burlesque on this piece; the title at any rate is happy—"Over Proof, or our celebrated guinea case."

ALHAMBRA.—"Fatiniza" is by no means a good comic opera, the book is exceedingly poor, even worse than Reece's last—the music, except here and there but sadly indifferent. The audience generally, however, truly not a critical one, seems to tolerate it, if not enjoy it. Albery's ballet "The Golden Wreath," at this house still bears the bay leaf. By the way, he should have consulted some "old Indian" before he selected his meaningless, crackjaw names. The main idea of "The Golden Wreath" is not original as most critics seem to imagine. It is taken from Schiller's "Diver."

CRITERION.—"Pink Dominoes" still reigns here in its gay and festive immorality. Personally, I do not consider this very clever play immoral, but then perhaps I am no index, for I am not a hypocrite. It shows up married men as they are, especially your quiet men of business; they are the men who, as Albery said to me, more than any other class of men go, in for scoring. Shows them up certainly. "Ignorance is bliss where tis folly to be wise." Nonsense, let knowledge cost what it will, ignorance is dearer.

COURT.—Wills's last great success "Olivia," continues to draw crowded houses. Chapel-giers may see "Olivia" and enjoy it, there is a real hymn in it. I don't like the play myself, but then I never go to chapel, which may account for my dislike. The fact, however, must be recorded, the piece is a great success.

FOLLY.—"Les Cloches de Corneville" will yet rival its Paris original in the number of productions. The music is charming, the book is rather silly. Shiel Barry's acting as the old miser is alone worth seeing, in fact he made the piece; without him it would never have held the boards a month.

GAIRTY.—Closed for repairs. Open in a month.

LYCEUM.—"The Bells" and "Jingle." In the former Mr. Irving is always worth seeing, in "Jingle" he reminds us of the days when he played the clown in the provinces. In good comedy Mr. Irving is seen to better advantage than in tragedy or heavy drama, but I don't admire him as a buffoon.

A report of the proceedings at the Consecration of the Metropolitan Chapter, No. 1507, unavacably stands over.

Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744.—This lodge will hold its first summer festival at Lewis's Hotel, Maidenhead on Thursday, July 25th, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. J. Willing, assisted by his Wardens, Bros. J. Douglass (Standard Theatre), and F. H. Clemow (Anderson's Hotel), and the indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Stiles. These brethren being so well known in the Craft, and the place designated affording such delightful scenery, it only wants a continuance of the present splendid weather to render the meeting a very pleasant one to the brethren. The Banquet is fixed for 5s. Special arrangements have been made with the Great Western Railway, who have acted with their customary liberality.

LAUNCH OF THE LIFEBOAT "ALBERT EDWARD" AT CLACTON-ON-SEA.

(From our Woolwich Correspondent.)

As the columns of the Freemason have for some time shown, Woolwich and its vicinity take no small interest in things Masonic, particularly that portion of its divine principle that relates to charity, or why should some three hundred of its people assemble at Kiff's Pier, as they did on Wednesday morning week, anxiously awaiting the arrival of the "Queen of the Thames," Captain Kirby, which superb vessel had been chartered by a few of the leading Masons of Woolwich and Clacton for the especial purpose of a trip to that "Queen of the Eastern Coast," to see the "Albert Edward" launched by loving hands into the sea, from whose insatiable maw it is, by God's blessing, destined to rescue many a priceless life, and the charity comes in here, that every farthing of the surplus proceeds will be devoted to the Masonic institutions. And so at 9 a.m. precisely on that day the gallant ship steamed away with a cargo of such youth, beauty, and quality, that no Plimsoll mark could have for one moment prevented the keen eyes of H.M. inspectors from seeing the state we were in, and placing us all ashore at, say, Long Reach or Rainham Ferry; but thanks to the speed of the magnificent vessel, the Thames police were left behind, and we presume did their duty by running down in the Queen's name some two or three recalcitrant barges, as is not their wont. Well, we looked in at Gravesend, and missed some two or three of our brethren, simply because they were not on the pier when the ship arrived, but were there when the ship left, only on the wrong end of it, and so on to Clacton.

The weather was most delightfully cool, and tempered down by the cloud masses that hid the sun, and screened us from his too ardent gaze. There could be no doubt that Clacton had thoroughly made up her mind to enjoy the good the gods had sent her, for before our boat came fully into range we could see through our binoculars a clustering mass of humanity upon the beach, awaiting, as we poor mortals thought, our arrival, but "alas for the vanity of frail humanity," 'er we could make the pier, we, through those excellent optical arrangements above mentioned, saw the procession converge upon the shore, and the Lifeboat, manned by its "gallant, gallant crew," drawn down the beach by a team of horses, and placed in position for launching.

Our band on board started "See the conquering hero comes," and "God bless the Prince of Wales," and we fervently wished it might have the effect of staying the proceedings until the arrival of us, "the distinguished visitors," but

"Then and there was heard the thundry tread

Of many thousands on the shingled shore," And when we, after tearing like madmen through the clustering masses on the long pier, and in our progress receiving the maledictions of some unfortunate people with toes, crept as close as we possibly could, we heard our D.G.M., in a most eloquent and appropriate speech, commend the gallant boat and its crew to the care of Him "whose hand alone can save when mighty tempests sweep the angry wave."

Many years ago, more, perhaps, than my readers care perhaps to acknowledge, who remember the circumstance, and when H.M. Dockyard at Woolwich was in its palmiest days, one of the mothers of the present generation, then a blushing and lovely girl, christened a ship there, and before she threw the bottle of old port at its stern, said in clear and ringing tones, "Into the deep I commit thee, thou 'Niger,' and long mayst thou prosper," and so, while memory brought me back to that event, I seemed to feel thirty years younger, as I saw through the crowd of upturned faces a lovely girl throw a bottle of wine against the white bow of the beautiful Lifeboat, as it laid on its cradle ready for the sea. "God bless the Prince of Wales and the Lifeboat," was the prayer of many a heart in Clacton that day, and the beautiful and eloquent address of Lord Skelmersdale was listened to by the multitude with quiet but earnest reverence, as he spoke of the great good likely to result from the establishment of a Lifeboat on that coast, and when he had finished, from the port side arose a melody replete with devotion and praise, and down many a rough cheek poured the tears as the sweet strain and beautiful words broke upon the air, telling how solemn and grand was the work of that ark, that waited but the cry of distress to go forth on its mission to succour and save. Then came a prayer, listened to by all with bare heads, and then amid the shouts of the thousands assembled, away went the beautiful boat from its carriage into the blue sea, and all was over.

But Clacton, nestled like a bird upon the bosom of our genial eastern coast, rose from her nest with shout and song, and her streets were lined "with purple and fine gold," and the voice of the people waxed great, for never in our remembrance have we seen this eastern queen of all watering places so full of the élite as upon that occasion, and there can be no doubt that, as our D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, said, "she must become 'er long the 'Brighton of the eastern coast,' and while her inhabitants enjoyed the health borne to her by the breath of the sea, they would never forget that her coast was adorned with a Lifeboat, perpetually dedicated to the G.A.O.T.U. as a thankoffering for the safe return of our beloved G.M. from his Indian expedition."

Well, then, with the inner man refreshed, and the heart thankful, the joyous company gathered on board the "Queen of the Thames," and soon that ship was ploughing her way home through the waters, now glowing 'neath the rays of the descending sun, and after a quick and enjoyable run Woolwich was reached in safety. Too much praise cannot be given to the Stewards for their courtesy and endeavours for the comfort of all; they were Bros. Hayes, Webster, Jessup, Pryce, Haggett, Turrell, Iron, Reed, Topp, Ellis, Baker, and Watt.

We heard afterwards that the sports in front of Bros. Hayes, Haggett, and Penfold's houses, and the pyrotechnical display opposite the hotel, were all that could be desired to fill up the measure of a most unbounded and liberal day's enjoyment.

Obituary.

BRO. F. W. THIEL.

It is with very great regret that we have to record the decease of Bro. F. W. Thiel, who has for many years been connected with Canterbury, N.Z. Bro. Thiel was a prominent member of the Masonic body, having been identified for many years with the Craft both in Australia and New Zealand; indeed, in Christchurch he was the father of one lodge—the Canterbury—and he lived to see the small slip of the great tree of Masonry which he had planted blossom into goodly proportions. As a Mason Bro. Thiel was energetic and zealous to a degree; no trouble or expense was spared by him to advance the cause of the Craft. To his endeavours in no small degree the present flourishing condition of Masonry in Canterbury is due. The Canterbury Lodge, 1048, E.C., which now holds a high position amongst Craft lodges in N. Zealand, was established by him, and through many vicissitudes of fortune was safely piloted by him to the haven of prosperity. Bro. F. W. Thiel had the rare gift of organisation in a high degree, which stood him in good stead in the work of re-organising and building up the Canterbury Lodge, in which he held several offices, and of which he was Treasurer at the time of his decease. Beloved and respected in no ordinary degree by his Masonic brethren as well as by the outer world, the decease of Bro. Thiel will, we feel sure, be widely regretted.

It may be interesting to the Craft to give the Masonic biography of Bro. Thiel. He was originally initiated in a lodge working under the Irish Constitution, and his Craft career may be briefly traced as follows:—In Australia, member of the Australia Felix and Golden Lodges, Bendigo; founder of the Aurora Lodge, E.C., Inglewood, in 1861. In 1862 Bro. Thiel went to New Zealand, and threw in his lot with the Lodge of Dunedin, E.C., of which he was P.M., and he was also a member of the St. Andrew's Lodge, S.C. Going to Christchurch, Bro. Thiel joined the St. Augustine Lodge, 609, E.C., and afterwards became identified with the Canterbury Lodge, 1048, of which he was the founder, and with which his name will long be remembered in the Masonic annals of Canterbury. The lodge, in the day of small things, met in the room over the store of Messrs Thiel, Mytton, and Co., and Bro. Thiel's fidelity to his Masonic child never wavered to the hour of his death. The lodge was founded in 1864, and, as we have said, passed through great vicissitudes, in all of which Bro. Thiel never relaxed the hope, which he saw realised, of seeing his lodge take a prominent position amongst the Craft lodges here. He was Mark Master S.C. and E.C., Master of Instruction of the Canterbury Lodge, Master and honorary member of the Canterbury Kilwinning Lodge, S.C. (Lyttelton), honorary member of the Somerset Lodge, E.C., Ashburton. In the Grand Lodge he was P.D.D.G.M.

Passing upward into the Sublime Degree of Royal Arch, Bro. Thiel was a companion of the Golden Royal Arch Chapter, Bendigo. He was also founder in Christchurch of the Canterbury Kilwinning Royal Arch Chapter 136, S.C., of which he was P.Z., and Treasurer of St. Augustine Royal Arch Chapter. He was P.G.H. for New Zealand under the Supreme Chapter of Scotland, and with Comps. A. A. Dobbs (since deceased) and Booth went to Nelson to open the Trafalgar Royal Arch Chapter, where his admirable rendering of the ritual was the theme of much admiration from his Masonic brethren. He was also an Ark Mariner and Knight of East and West and Red Cross. Going still higher to the 18°, Bro. Thiel was M.W.S. of the Memphis Chapter No. 2, Sovereign Prince Rose Croix 18°. He was also a member of the Supreme Council of Nine of the 33° of the Valley of New Zealand, holding under the Grand Orient of Egypt. It will thus be seen that the deceased brother held all degrees from 1 to 33, and in all of them he evinced the same zeal and sincere devotion to the interests of the Craft which marked his career in the Craft degrees.

At the funeral the Masonic gathering was one of the most imposing that has ever been witnessed in Canterbury, or, indeed, in New Zealand. Shortly after half-past one the brethren assembled at the Canterbury Masonic Hall, and, after some preliminary ceremonies, formed a procession. Some 600 Masons took part in the procession, every Lodge in the district being represented. The onerous duty of marshalling the brethren was entrusted to P.M. Bro. Coleman, who had for his assistants Bros. P.M. T. Stapleton, S. P. Craig, Kerr, Walker, M. Sandstein, and Bergh, D.C. of Canterbury Lodge. Those brethren discharged their duties most satisfactorily.

The usual Church of England service, chorally rendered, was performed in the Mortuary Chapel, and at the grave, by Revs. De Berdt Hovell and W. E. Paige. At the conclusion of this the Masonic service was performed by Bro. the Rev. W. E. Paige. The choral portion of the Masonic service was rendered by a choir led by Bro. H. F. Towle, organist St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, who presided at the harmonium. The choir comprised Bros. John Marshall, F. Hobbs, Ellisdon, Funston, Comerford, Walton, &c. At the conclusion of the service, the brethren formed round the grave, throwing in evergreens. The procession then re-formed, and returned to the Canterbury Lodge.

Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales has intimated her intention of accompanying the Prince on the occasion of his laying the memorial stone of the new church at St. Mary's, Southampton, in August next. Prince Leopold also purposes visiting the Horticultural Society's annual show at Southampton on the 3rd of next month.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Votes of the Governors and Subscribers are earnestly solicited on behalf of

META BELL BRASIER.

The following letter, which appeared in the Freemason of the 20th July, will fully explain the merits of the case.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I trust that you will give space for the following letter, in aid of a girl named "Meta Bell Brasier," whose case is so unique and exceptional that no words from me would be needed to draw attention to it, as any body thoroughly reading the details cannot fail to understand and appreciate; but as a rule, the circulars are only carelessly glanced at and then thrown into the fire or waste paper basket; I wish to attract the notice of your readers to a case whose claims only require to be known to receive the support of those whose votes are disengaged. Indeed, so great is the claim, that in my opinion, other claims which have one or more chances, might fairly lay in abeyance to secure her election. I know, or rather feel, that as a rule, you might reasonably decline a letter for any particular case, but I do believe that you could afford to insert this on behalf of a candidate whose position stands almost if not quite alone. I beg to state that I was, and am, unacquainted with any of the family, but when the case was pointed out to me by one who had known the father and family well and for many years, I at once saw the great need of every exertion, as there are only three vacancies at the ensuing election, so I temporarily gave up a case which could better afford to wait.

The case is as follows: The girl's father was initiated into Freemasonry in 1853; died in May, 1878, leaving six daughters unprovided for, the youngest of whom is the subject of my letter, and should she not succeed in the ensuing election, her age will preclude her from another attempt; now, the great claim consists in these facts, that our brother was a subscribing member for over twenty-five years, that he was a constant subscriber to, and took an active interest in all the Institutions, and, brethren, this is the only chance we have [of showing in a small way our appreciation of one who so ably performed his work and assisted the Craft during his life, let it not be said that the Craft generally failed to render so small a tribute to one so worthy of our remembrance.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
 CHARLES JOHN PERCEVAL,
 V.P. of all the Institutions.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Perseverance (No. 155).—While Masonry makes no distinction generally among individual members, there are peculiarities attaching to certain lodges which give a kind of special feature and interest, and make them, as it were, the observed of all observers. For many years the old Perseverance has had a quiet yet distinguished position in Liverpool, representing as it does what may be termed the "blue blood" of the Order to a great extent. Its meetings are but few, its members distinguished by Masonic zeal and position, its initiation and joining fees are fixed at a figure which prevents any but the well-to-do from participating in the honour of membership; and as a consequence the work to be done is of the most limited amount. Still there are those connected with No. 155 who have won their Masonic spurs in other fields, and they well deserve the otium cum dignitate which they enjoy within the genial precincts of this lodge. The annual installation meeting, in addition to the four regulars fixed during the year, was recently held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, where there were present Bro. Councillor G. Fowler, W.M.; F. Murdock S.W.; D. Jones, P.M., J.W.; G. Morgan, P.M., J.D.; R. Whyte, W.M. 1675, P.P.G.S.D., S.D.; J. B. Goepel, P.M. P.P.G.D.C., L.G.; Thomas Armstrong, P.P.G. Treas.; H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., Treas.; the Rev. H. G. Vernon, P.P.G. Chap. W. Lancashire and Cheshire; W. Laidlaw, R.P.G.S. of W.; J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.G., and others. Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., took the chair, and installed Bro. F. Murdock as the W.M., the presentation being made by Bro. Goepel and Wylie. The officers appointed and invested were Bro. G. Fowler, I.P.M.; D. Jones, S.W.; W. H. Ivetts, J.W.; H. S. Alpass, Treas. (re-elected); Thomas Armstrong, Sec. (re-appointed); G. Morgan, S.D.; J. W. Turley, J.D.; and J. R. Goepel, I.G. It was unanimously resolved to appoint Bro. Goepel the representative of the lodge on the Masonic Hall and Masonic Relief Committees. A sum of money was voted from the funds of the lodge on behalf of a distressed brother, and all the brethren present subscribed on behalf of the W. Lanc. Masonic Educational Institution, and the Master Benevolent Fund. The brethren afterwards banqueted in the building under the presidency of the new W.M., and the full flow of harmony continued during the pleasant evening's proceedings.

STONEHOUSE.—Lodge of Sincerity (No. 189).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the lodge-room, St. George's Hall, agreeably to summons, on Monday, the 8th of July, for the installation of Bro. the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., P.P.G.C., Senior Warden of the lodge, as the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. There was a large assemblage of the brethren of the Three Towns. The W.M. elect was presented by the W.M. (W. Bro. J. Moon), to the W. Bro. Major J. Sheaks, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., for the benefit of installation. The ceremony was performed by the W.M., assisted by the I.P.M. (W. Bro. T. Waldo Hore), and W. Bro. J. E. Curteis, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., who, with the following, formed the Board of Installed Masters:—W. Bro. Isaac Latimer, P.P.G.J.W., A.S.; R. Robinson Rodd, P.P.G.R., S.W. (Cornwall); Richard Rodda, P.P.G.R.; John Sadler, P.P.G.S.B.; Samuel Jew, P.P.G. Treas.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.A.D.C.; Rev. R. Measham, P.P.G.C.; Rev. W. Whitley, P.P.G.C.; E. Aikens Davies, P.P.G.S. of W.; H. Müller, P.P.G.D.C.; R. H. Rae, P.P.G.S.D.; T. S. Bayly, P.P.G. Treas.; T. Goodall, and J. Baxter, P.M.'s 954. Among the visitors present at the lodge were Bro. Admiral Glasco, C.B., Captain Thain, Dr. E. B. Thomson, and H. A. Latimer, of Swansea. At the close of the installation the new W.M., (W. Bro. Rev. T. W. Lemon, P.P.G.C.) appointed the following brethren of the lodge as his officers for the year ensuing:—W. Bros. James E. Moon, I.P.M.; George Jackson, S.W.; Colonel H. C. Fitzgerald, J.W.; Rev. Franklin; A. S. Bellamy, Chap.; T. S. Bayly, P.M., P.P.G. Treas.; R. H.

Rae, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., Sec.; Charles Croydon, S.D.; Henry Horton, J.D.; J. G. H. Evans, D.C.; R. E. Holmes, O.; George R. Barrett, I.G.; A. S. Hendrey and George Hawken, Stewards; John Rogers, Tyler. The resignation of the office of Representative for the lodge at the Committee of Petitions having been tendered by W. Bro. T. Waldo Hore, P.M., and accepted, the W. Bro. W. E. Curteis, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., was unanimously elected to that post. In the evening a large party of members of the lodge and visiting brethren sat down to a cold collation at the Royal Hotel, Devonport, under the presidency of the new Master of the lodge, Rev. T. W. Lemon, who was joined at the festive board by the R.W. Bros. L. P. Metham, P.M., P.G.D. (England), D.P.G.M.; J. Head, P.M. 70; Rev. J. Erskine Risk, P.P.G.C.; W. F. Moore, I.G. 156, and others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and drank, and a pleasant evening spent.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The last of the installations for the year 1878, in this district, took place on Wednesday, the 17th inst., and wound up a series of successful and enjoyable gatherings with placing Bro. A. C. Woodley, S.W., and W.M. elect, at the head of the above lodge, in which he has served the whole of the minor offices with care and credit. The lodge was opened at 12 o'clock (noon) precisely, Bro. S. Waters, W.M., presiding, and the minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the ballot was taken for Messrs. A. Reed and J. E. Swanson, and, after approval, these gentlemen were initiated into the Craft. Bro. Malings was then raised to the Sublime Degree, and Bro. T. Butt having taken the chair as Installing Officer, the W.M. elect was presented for installation, and with the usual ceremonies was inducted into the chair and saluted by the brethren. He then proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. N. Warren, S.W.; J. Wilkins, J.W.; T. Butt, P.M., Treas.; C. Norman, P.M., Sec.; C. B. Hobson, S.D.; W. McCoy, J.D.; G. Beaver, I.G.; H. Roberts, D.C.; C. Cooke, Org.; and B. Norman, Tyler. Bro. Butt then gave the charges in fine style, and as this was the second time he had installed Masters of the lodge, it was proposed and carried unanimously that a vote of thanks should be presented to him and inscribed upon the minutes of the lodge recording that fact; and Bro. Butt returned thanks. A Past Master's jewel of the value of ten guineas was then presented to Bro. Waters, and the lodge was closed. The banquet took place at Bro. Hubbard's, the New Falcon Hotel, Gravesend, and was simply perfection; the commendations of all assembled being neither few nor stinted. Among the company were the following Past Masters of the lodge and visitors:—Past Masters J. Rowland, F. Dawson, G. Crawford, S. Gollard, W. Graham, E. Bowles, C. Hobson, T. Ward, W. Ritchie, T. Butt, T. D. Hayes, W.M. 913; A. Manning, W.M. 1472; G. Spinks, P.M. 1536; H. Bickerstaff, P.M. 1329; R. Russell, P.M. 299; W. Hopekirk, P.M. 179; Young, P.M. 704; W. B. Lloyd, S.W. 913; J. Plume, J.W. 1472; G. Barth, 913; W. Rees, 913; F. Lyons, 913; Josh. McCaffery, 1536; James McCaffery, 1536; J. Skully, 706; Saunders, 1539; Tappenden, 700; A. Yates, 948; H. J. Ansell, 1305; G. A. Pilen, 90; E. Farwig, 180; H. Ball, 77; G. R. Nicholls, 700; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). After dining "The Queen and the Craft," "H.B.H. the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," and the rest of the Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Waters then rose, saying the W.M. had lent him the gavel for a time, and most of them knew to what purpose he was about to put it—it was to propose a toast, "The Health of their W.M." It was his province and he should only be doing his duty by saying something complimentary to the W.M., but in that case it was not only a duty but a pleasure for him. The W.M. had by his unwearied assiduity, steady and patient labour, worked his way to the high position he now held, and his election at their hands had been unanimous. That fact alone would prove how worthy he was of the position, and he asked them to drink the toast as it deserved. Bro. Woodley, in reply, said he thanked them very much for the manner in which both the brethren responded to the call of their I.P.M., and him for his kind expressions on his behalf. He had especially to thank the visitors for being present and giving him their support. It was a very great pleasure and honour for him to occupy a position that had been occupied by so many worthy and talented Masters before him, and he trusted, with their support and assistance, so to rule and govern the lodge that none of its past splendour should be dimmed, but rather if it could it should be increased by him. "The Past Masters," of whom there was a large array present, then had their health drank, and Bro. Waters, to whose hands the response was entrusted, suitably replied. "The Initiates" were next the subject of many good wishes, and they responded as usual. "The Visitors" was the next toast, and, as the W.M. said, there is no lodge where visitors were more welcome than at the Nelson. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Hayes, W.M. of the Patison, their sister lodge, and said he should also like to hear from the other visitor. Bro. Hayes then responded in a speech full of eloquence and good feeling, and was followed by Bro. Pilling. Bro. Hopekirk then bore his testimony to the magnificent manner in which Bro. Butt had installed their W.M. Some little time ago he went to Bro. Butt to get a little information from him as to the installation of his (Bro. Hopekirk's) successor, and from that brother he got valuable assistance, but he certainly had not expected to hear him give the ceremony with the impressiveness and eloquence he had that day done. He felt sure if the Nelson Lodge went on as it was going, and kept firmly united, it would be like Nelson himself, invincible. Bro. Bickerstaff said that day twenty years ago he was raised to the Sublime Degree in the Nelson Lodge, and although he had left it in 1865, when he left Woolwich, he had not lost sight of it, and was proud to see his mother lodge so strong and prosperous. Bro. Farwig also well responded. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and Bro. Warren briefly replied, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings.

RUNCORN.—Ellesmere Lodge (No. 758).—The annual meeting of this flourishing lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Wednesday, July 17th, at half-past nine in the morning. There was a large attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. W. R. Wass, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, the W.M. invited Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., Cumberland and Westmorland, to take the chair as Installing Master. Bro. Wass, W.M., assisted by Captain Simner, P.M., P. Dist. G.S.W. British Burmah, presented Bro. Charles Gerrard, S.W. and W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation. The first part of the ceremony being completed, the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when the Installing Master appointed his Wardens and Inner Guard. The Master Masons having retired, the W.M. elect was entrusted and withdrew. W. Bro. Bowes then opened a Board of Installed Masters in ample form, being assisted by twelve Past Masters. The W.M. elect was then re-admitted and placed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. The brethren were then re-admitted according to their respective degrees, and the W.M. saluted, proclaimed, and greeted in the manner usual among Masons. After the investiture of the officers for the ensuing year, the Installing Master delivered the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren. Bro. Captain Simner proposed, and Bro. Wass, I.P.M., seconded, and it was unanimously resolved, that the cordial thanks of the lodge be given in writing to W. Bro. John Bowes, for the very able and impressive manner in which he had discharged the duties of Installing Master that day. Bro. Bowes having acknowledged the compliment and the other business before the lodge being completed, the lodge was closed with prayer. The brethren then left the Hall in conveyances, accompanied by their "wives and sweethearts," to the Castle Hotel, Halton, where they sat down to a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Charles Gerrard, who was supported by nearly seventy brethren and ladies. Grace after meat having been said by the Chaplain, Rev. J. Lockwood, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. The presence of the ladies afforded scope for some divergence from the usual post-prandial proceedings, and many happy allusions were made for the especial benefit of the fairer part of the audience. During the proceedings the W.M. on behalf of the members of the lodge presented Bro. Wass with an elegant Past Master's jewel, on which was the following inscription:—"Ellesmere Lodge, 758. Presented to brother W.R. Wass, P.M., by the members of the Ellesmere Lodge, 758, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his services to the lodge during the 18 months he held the office of Worshipful Master. July, 1878." Several excellent songs were sung by Bro. Dumville, P.M., the leading tenor of the Manchester Cathedral, and Bro. Greenwood, Organist of All Saints' Church, Manchester, the latter gentleman being "a host in himself." The party then adjourned to the grounds of "The Castle," where dancing, bowling, and other out-door amusements were engaged in until six o'clock, when they proceeded to Halton Church, which by the kindness of the Rev. J. Lockwood, the Chaplain of the lodge, was thrown open to them for their inspection. On entering, the party quietly seated themselves, and Bro. Greenwood having taken his place at the organ and played a short voluntary, the Rev. J. Lockwood gave out the Old Hundredth Psalm, which was heartily and devotionally sung by all present. Bro. Greenwood then sang most ably and artistically the aria from Mendelssohn's Elijah, "Oh, rest in the Lord," accompanying himself on the organ, after which Bro. Dumville sang most effectively the tenor solo from the "Messiah," "But thou didn't not leave," being accompanied on the organ by Bro. Greenwood. The party then returned to "The Castle," where they sat down to a sumptuous tea, and after listening to some excellent singing by Bros. Greenwood, Dumville, and Wareing, they again repaired to the grounds, where out-door amusements were engaged in until half-past nine o'clock, when they returned in conveyances to Runcorn, all well pleased with the whole of the day's proceedings.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Lodge (No. 823).—The brethren connected with this lodge, which for vitality and charitableness occupies a chief position in the extensive province of West Lancashire, met at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst., for the purpose of giving countenance and active support to the annual installation proceedings. There was a very large gathering of members and visitors. Bro. John Houlding, W.M., was at his post, and he was supported by Bros. W. Wilson, I.P.M.; T. Shaw, P.M.; W. Cottrell, P.M.; Major G. Turner, P.M., P.G. Treasurer; W. Boulton, P.M. D.C.; J. Holland, P.M.; W. J. Lunt, P.M., Treasurer; H. Ashmore, P.M. 1325, S.W.; J. Cuthbert, J.W.; P. W. Oglesby, Secretary, and others. Bro. H. Ashmore, P.M. 1325, the W.M. elect, was presented to receive the benefits of installation by Bro. Major Turner and Bro. W. J. Lunt (two of the oldest P.M.'s), and the ceremony of installation was most admirably and impressively performed by Bro. John Houlding, the retiring W.M. One of the closing charges was given by Bro. W. Cottrell, P.M. The following officers were invested for the ensuing year:—Bros. John Houlding, I.P.M.; J. S. Cuthbert, S.W.; T. Webster, J.W.; W. J. Lunt, P.M., Treasurer (re-elected); Joseph Boyle, Secretary; T. H. Carefull and J. Bescley, S.D. and J.D.; W. Brassey, I.G.; R. H. Webster, J. M. King, Gotham, and Galley, Stewards; W. Boulton, P.M., D.C.; B. Brough, Organist; and W. H. Ball was re-elected Tyler. A very handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to

Bro. John Houlding, I.P.M., as a token of the high regard in which he was held by the Evertonians, and this gift was further enhanced by the presentation of an elegant album, containing portraits of all the initiates during his year of office in the chair—this presentation being made by Bro. Hudson, the senior initiate, on behalf of the "youngsters" of Bro. Houlding's year. The brethren, after business, adjourned to supper, and during the evening various toasts were given. In proposing "The Worshipful Master" Bro. W. Cottrell, P.M., spoke of the prominence of the position, especially in such a lodge as 823. He was sure Bro. Ashmore would feel proud of filling it; and he might say that, from the steady way in which he had worked his way up hitherto, the lodge might feel proud too. In conclusion, he expressed a hope that they would all join in ensuring their new W.M. a prosperous year of office. The W.M. in replying promised his best efforts to give satisfaction to the brethren, and to emulate the example of their esteemed I.P.M. (Bro. Houlding), and thanked all present. "The Installing Master" was proposed by the W.M., and enthusiastically received. Bro. Houlding, in replying, said he passed one of the happiest years of his life as their W.M. If he had appeared at all over strict in the performance of his duties it was through anxiety to promote the interests of Masonry in general and the Everton Lodge in particular, and he hoped they would pardon him. He concluded by thanking them cordially for the honour they had done him. "The Past Masters," "The Visitors," and others toasts followed, and the brethren separated. On the following day the brethren and their lady friends, to the number of over 250, were conveyed by special train, which left Woodside at 9.45 a.m., to Gresford. The morning was somewhat overcast, but the weatherwise prophesied a fine day, a prediction which was amply justified, as the sun soon shone out gloriously, and the beautiful scenery of Cheshire and Wales was shown to perfection. No vexatious delay occurred, and on arriving at their destination the travellers immediately proceeded to view the fine old church and its surroundings. In the churchyard is a venerable yew tree, said to be eleven hundred years old. At any rate it is unquestionably of great age, measuring thirty-two feet in circumference. The ancient monuments next attracted attention, and the excursionists observed the time-honoured custom with "The Everton" of singing the "Old Hundredth" in the church with fine effect. About noon a substantial cold collation was served up in a spacious tent adjoining the hotel, and as there were many willing and attentive Stewards, the comfort of all was secured. The arrangements were indeed admirable, and reflected great credit on the picnic committee, of which Bro. William Cottrell, P.M., was chairman, and Bro. W. Boulton, P.M., secretary. Bro. Cooley, 1086, carried out the minor details to the satisfaction of all concerned. The excursionists then dispersed for the afternoon, some exploring the lovely walks on the wooded slopes or by the purling Dee; while others, especially the juvenile members, preferred dancing on the green. A refreshing breeze tempered the heat of the weather, and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Tea was served up about five o'clock, and the country air enabled the participants to do ample justice to it. Bro. Henry Ashmore, W.M., presided, as before, and was ably supported by the Past Masters and officers. The party left Gresford at eight p.m., arriving in Liverpool at half-past nine, after one of the most successful picnics ever carried out by the Everton Lodge.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, the 17th inst., when the following brethren were present: Bros. G. Pipes, W.M.; M. H. Bobart, P.P.S.G.W., Treas., as S.W.; W. B. Hextall, J.W.; J. O. Manton, Sec.; S. Steele, S.D.; W. Butterfield as J.D.; T. H. Hepworth as I.G.; S. Pipes, P.M. and P.P.S.G.D.; J. Worsnop, P.M. and P.P.G.P.; and a number of other brethren, including Bro. R. W. Hollon, P.M. 226, P.G.S.B. Eng., Prov. G. Sec. N. and E. Yorkshire, &c., &c. The lodge was opened in the several degrees, there being the usual intermediary business, and Bros. Hefford and Arnoll were raised in ancient form by the W.M. The name of a candidate for the mysteries of Freemasonry was submitted to the lodge, and other business of local import only was then dealt with, and then the lodge was closed in perfect harmony. The brethren afterwards did substantial justice to a substantial banquet.

PORTSMOUTH.—United Service Lodge (No. 1428).—The installation of Bro. James Leggett as Worshipful Master of this lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Highbury-street, on Friday afternoon, in the presence of a very large number of brethren. Among the officers and brethren of the lodges were: Bros. H. Townsend, W.M.; Leggett, S.W.; J. Williams, J.W.; T. Marco, Treas.; H. Woodward, Secretary; Bourke, P.M.; J. Lind, P.M.; J. Johns, S.D.; J. Strick, J.D.; E. May, I.G.; W. Walton, Steward; G. Nelder, Steward; G. Nicholas, T. Burton, Francis Rowley, James Doidge, H. Selby, E.A.; G. Arnold, J. State, T. Wilton, E. Austin, J. Bailey, W. Farnen, P.M.; E. Boorman, T. Lawrence, J. Wilson, P.M.; W. Baker, C. Downs, J. Cable, C. Russell, H. Holmes, P.M.; W. Dart, H. Wickens, H. Allison, C. Travess. Among the visitors were: Bros. T. Palsgrave, S.W. 487; Frank Meredith, 487; G. Lancaster, P.M. 903; J. O'Connor, W.M.; W. Montgomery, 1341; N. Mitchell, J.W. 903; W. R. Bowden, 340, P.G. Purst. (Oxon); L. Hackman, P.M. 342; A. L. Emanuel, P.M. 1069; M. E. Frost, P.M. 487, P.G. Treasurer; H. Threadingham, W.M. 487; W. Payne, W.M. 343; R. Barnes, J.W. 342; G. W. S. Lancaster, P.M. 487, P.P.G.W.; E. G. Holbrook, P.M. 309, P.P.G. Registrar, and others. Bro. Townsend, the retiring W.M., carried out the duties of Installing Master with great ability, delivering the impressive charges and ritual generally with marked effect. The ceremony of installation over, the W.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Townsend, I.P.M.; Williams, S.W.; Johns, J.W.; Mares, Treasurer; Woodward, Secretary; Strick, S.D.; May, J.D.; Wilson, P.M., Dir. of Cer.; Wilton, Organist; Lavery, I.G.; and Nelder and Walton, Stewards. The musical portion of the ceremony was effectively performed by Bro. Wilton, the Organist. The customary votes of thanks were accorded, and a handsome gold Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Townsend, in recognition of his services during the past year. The duties of the lodge being ended, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting hall, where they were joined by several who had been unable to be present during the afternoon. The menu was elaborate, and the manner in which the whole banquet was served reflected the highest credit on Bro. Heath, the caterer. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G.," "The M.W. the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," and "The R.W. the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of Grand Lodge, Present and Past." In proposing "The R.W. the Prov. Grand Master of Hants and the Isle of Wight, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.," he said he had had the pleasure of sitting in Prov. Grand Lodge with him, and he had met him under other circumstances in connection with Masonic matters, and from what he knew and had heard of him he believed that he did all he possibly could to promote the interests of the Craft, and was ever ready to render assistance to any lodge in his extensive province, no matter at what personal inconvenience or expense. The toast was well received. The W.M. next proposed "The V.W. the Deputy Prov. Grand Master (Bro. Hickman) and the Officers of Prov. Grand Lodge, Present and Past." Bro. Mark E. Frost, Prov. Grand Treasurer, responded, and in doing so bore testimony to the untiring interest taken in Masonic matters by Bro. Beach. The province was a very large one, mustering thirty lodges, and the Provincial Grand Master found it exceedingly difficult to distribute his patronage every year in the way of giving office to the brethren, seeing that he only had fifteen or sixteen offices to fill. As far as the provincial officers were concerned, he might say that they all did their duty to the best of their ability. He expressed great gratification at the manner in which the retiring W.M. had performed the installation ceremony that afternoon. He had the honour of installing Bro. Townsend as W.M. last year, and he was glad to find that he had carried out his duties so satisfactorily during the past twelve months. He fully believed that Bro. Leggett would worthily fill the chair during his term of office, and that under his rule the United Service Lodge would continue to prosper. Bro. Townsend, I.P.M., proposed "The Worshipful Master," and in doing so said it had been his pleasing duty that afternoon to instal Bro. Leggett as W.M. of the lodge, of which he was one of the oldest members. He had fairly worked his way up from the door to the chair, and if he fulfilled the duties of his present exalted position as attentively and well as he had fulfilled those of the offices he had already held, the brethren would have no cause whatever to regret having elected him to rule over them. He (Bro. Leggett) had told him on the night of his election that it would be impossible for him to attend to his duties during six or seven months of the year, owing to his duties in connection with the public service. It might be thought by some that it was wrong to elect one who could not devote all his time to the lodge, but it must be remembered that in that lodge the brethren were nearly all connected with either the army or the navy, and the character of their public duties was such as to prevent their regular attendance. Bro. Leggett had attended closely to his duties whenever he possibly could, and it was felt that it would be wrong not to advance him to the highest rank it was in their power to confer upon him, seeing that he had so ably filled all the other positions. He (Bro. Townsend) had now left the service, and had a certain amount of leisure time, which he should be happy to devote towards the furtherance of the interests of Freemasonry, and particularly of the United Service Lodge. He would now repeat the promise he had made on the night of Bro. Leggett's election, namely, that whenever the W.M. was unable to attend he would do his best to carry on the duties. The W.M. on rising to respond was greeted with loud and long continued applause. He heartily thanked the brethren of his lodge for the great honour they had conferred upon him, and the whole of the brethren present, who had done him the honour to attend his installation. It was satisfactory for him to reflect that he had worked his way, step by step, up to his present position, and to feel that his conduct had been such as to meet with the approval of the brethren. He intended to work hard to ensure the continued success of the lodge, and he knew he should be well supported in his endeavours by the officers whom he had appointed. He next proposed "The Installing Master," whom he warmly eulogised for the able manner in which he had conducted the ceremony. Bro. Townsend, who was very warmly received, responded, and in the course of his observations thanked the brethren for the handsome jewel with which they had presented him as a memento of his year of office. With reference to the question of providing a hall of their own, which had recently been discussed in the lodge, he said he trusted that the lodge would soon be strong enough to build a place in which to meet. He hoped in the course of a month or two to be in a position to submit a scheme which he thought would meet with the approval of the brethren. The W.M. proposed "The Worshipful Masters of Neighbouring Lodges," the toast being acknowledged in suitable terms by Bro. O'Connor, of the Phoenix; Bro. Payne, Royal Sussex; Bro. Threadingham, Portsmouth; Bro. Lancaster, Gosport; and Bro. Frost, United Brothers. Bro. Lieut. Bourke, P.M., proposed "The Visitors," which was responded to by Bro. Bowden, of Oxford. The remaining toasts were "The P.M.'s of 1428;" "The Founders of the Lodge;" and "The Officers." During the evening several excellent songs were sung, Bro. Sylvester ably accompanying on the pianoforte. The proceedings of a very successful gathering terminated about midnight.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—The installation meeting of the above lodge took place on Friday, the 12th inst., at Bro. Garbets' fine hall on Anglesra Hill, and was a most successful affair. The room had been prettily decorated for the occasion with flags and choice plants, tastefully and prettily disposed, and the coup d'oeil presented was most effective. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed; Bro. Roxford was then passed to the Second Degree. It was then announced that Bro. Eastes, D.P.G.M. Kent, had arrived, and shortly afterwards that distinguished brother entered the lodge, and was received with the customary honours. Bro. Hay Grieves Picken, the W.M. elect, was then presented to the Installing Officer, Bro. G. Spinks, W.M., and at his hands received the benefit of installation, and was saluted according to ancient custom. He then invested his officers as follows: Bros. H. Shaw, S.W.; D. Deeves, J.W.; G. Kennedy, Sec.; W. Murphy, Treas.; Rev. G. A. Solbe, Chaplain; W. Welding, S.D.; A. Brooks, J.D.; H. Harding, Org.; T. Holleyman, I.G.; C. Buckland, D.C.; Wilkin, A.D.C.; W. A. Watkins, W.S.; T. Sharpe, A.W.S.; and J. Lackland, Tyler. The three charges were then given in a most effective and eloquent manner, and indeed the whole of the ceremony was one great and sustained example of clearness, precision, and eloquence, seldom equalled, and certainly unsurpassed by anything we have ever heard. Genuine and general applause following each recital, and upon its completion Bro. Spinks was highly congratulated on his beautiful working, and it was unanimously resolved that a vote of thanks should be presented him, and as well inscribed on the minutes of the lodge for it. He was then presented with a jewel of the value of ten guineas, and returned thanks for both. A very gratifying tribute of respect was then paid to Bros. Dr. Spurrell, P.M. 615, and Hayes, W.M. 913, in the shape of a unanimous resolution, placing them upon the roll of the lodge as hon. members, and they returned thanks. Bros. Gibson and Sharpe were then thanked for their officiating as Auditors during the past year, and Bros. Saunders and Anderson were accepted as Auditors for the present year. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a well-served and choicely selected banquet. Among the brethren and guests present were Bros. Eastes, D.P.G.M. Kent; C. Coupland, P.P.G.J.W. Kent; Dr. Spurrell, P.P.G.J.W. Kent; W. Blakey, P.M. 20, 184, and 1593, P.P.G.D.C. Kent; T. D. Hayes, W.M. 913; T. H. Field, W.M. 558, and P.M. 1436; A. Penfold, P.M. 913; W. T. Vincent, P.M. 913; L. Etheridge, P.M. 829; J. A. Bates, P.M. 1424; F. Garbett, W.M. 1178; A. Woodley, W.M. elect, 700; W. B. Lloyd, S.W. 913; J. Donnoley, S.W. 706; J. Warren, J.W. 700; Jas. Chapman, J.W. 913; J. Wilkins, S.D. 700; T. F. Davie, 87; T. Harper, 1604; D. C. Capon, 913; J. Grief, 158; A. Hiscock, 13; M. Bentley, 202; E. A. Spinks, 158; F. Lyons, 913, and 700; F. Huggett, 1050; G. F. Fraser, 700; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The W.M. then rose to propose the toast of "Lord Holmesdale, P.G.M. Kent," and said that as their esteemed D.P.G.M., Bro. Eastes, had but little time to stay, he should as well include his name with it. It was the first time Bro. Eastes had paid them the honour of a visit, and he had expressed his pleasure at what he had seen done in the lodge that day. They might be aware from the returns made at the late Boys' School Festival, that Kent was the second upon the list for the amount of subscriptions, and under the able guidance and inspiration of their Prov. G.M. and Bro. Eastes, he hoped next year to see Kent at the head of the list. Bro. Eastes, on rising to reply, was received with great cheering and clapping of hands, said he thought he would rise at once to respond after that burst of Kentish "fire." The first he should address them about would be Lord Holmesdale, their P.G.M., and he was pleased at the opportunity, because he could say more about him in his absence than in his presence. Lord Holmesdale was one of the best G.M.'s in England. No one but those who knew could estimate the amount of work he had to do and how well he did it. It was not in the power of the G.M. to visit the various lodges at such times as their installations, but he had placed that duty in his (Bro. Eastes's) hands, and it was a duty he was proud of, and never had been more pleased at being at an installation, or more proud of his duty than he had been that day. Their lodge was not, however, a total stranger, for before he had an opportunity of seeing it he had read of their excellent work, and great progress in the Freemason, and felt a deep interest in what he there saw of its vigour and intelligence. He had had lately opportunities of seeing several brethren of the lodge, and from what he had seen of them he had every reason to be proud of them. Nothing gave Lord Holmesdale greater pleasure than to have had the opportunity, at their late Grand Lodge meeting of making one of their brethren, Col. King, his G.S.W., and he remembered with pleasure that it was by his recommendation another distinguished brother, their First Master, Bro. Pownall, had received office in the province. There was something in military lodges that always struck him (as a civilian) as being most admirable. It was the ability, discipline, and precision with which even the smallest trifles were carried out in those lodges, that gave him an idea of something different to what he generally saw at other lodges. He must congratulate them upon their Installing Officer, and him upon the admirable manner in which he had carried out the important duties of that position. The W.M. had said that Kent was the second upon the list of subscribers for the Boys' School Fund this year. It was certainly something to be proud of, and he was rather surprised to hear Bro. Binckes say that he was not too satisfied with the handsome sum of £10,000 and upwards, handed in that day. Kent was second upon the list, and he (Bro. Eastes) saw no reason why Kent should not be next year first on the list, if the brethren would as well as paying their four shillings per year through their lodges, give a guinea each from their own pockets. He hoped to see the day when everyone would feel it his duty to support one or other, and all if he could afford it, of those magnificent Institutions, that made the charity of Freemasonry something more than a name. Those who did so would reap their reward in knowing that they were doing that which would help a poor distressed and aged brother in his sorest need, or placing the orphan in a position where its future would be secured through good training and sound education, and their reward would be great. They could see by that that his ideas of Freemasonry were that charity was one of its greatest duties, and the first to prove its sincerity and truth. Bro. Eastes concluded a most eloquent address by hoping it would not be long before he was with them again, and thanked them sincerely for the hearty reception his name had met with at their hands. He then retired amid rounds of cheering, and other manifestations of esteem. Bros. Coupland, Spurrell, and Blackie, severally responded for "The Rest of the Grand Officers." Bro. Spinks then proposed "The Health of the W.M." in choice and appropriate terms, and Bro. Picken replied, thanking them for their kindness to him in the past, and craving their indulgence in the future. "The Visitors" were next toasted, and Bros. Bates, Hayes, Woodley, Etheredge, and Donolly, severally responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Past Masters," paying a distinguished compliment to Bro. Spinks, for the magnificent manner in which he had worked the ceremony of installation, and Bro. Spink's and Weston returned thanks. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and Bro. Shaw suitably replied. "The Masonic Press," coupled with the name of our representative was received with cheers, and Bro. Jolly returned thanks. The worthy host was then specially thanked for his excellent catering, and responded, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings. A military quartette, comprised of Bros. Buckland, Harding, G. Smith, and Taylor, performed a choice selection of vocal and instrumental music during the evening, receiving for it a cordial vote of thanks.

HALLIFORD.—The Thames Valley Lodge (No. 1460).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, on Saturday, the 6th inst., Bro. T. Burdett Yeoman, W.M., in the chair, the remaining officers present being:—Bros. W. Sweetland, S.W.; W. Paas, P.M., Treas. I.G.; Marsh, P.M., P.G.P., Sec.; W. Alcock, S.D.; and the following P.M.'s and brethren: Bros. W. T. Stowe, I.P.M., P.P.G.P., and P.G.P. England; Colonel James Peters, P.M., P.G.J.W.; Geo. Townsend, P.M., P.G.S.; E. F. Thomas, Penniston Dunn, R. Stone, H. H. Burrows, and J. H. Southwood. The lodge unanimously voted five guineas to the Boys' and Girls' School respectively, and five guineas to the "Burdett" Testimonial Fund. We were glad to notice, since the last meeting, this lodge has been particularly favoured by the R.W. the Grand Master on the appointment of Bro. Colonel Peters, P.M., to the chair of G.J.W., and Bro. J. L. Jones, P.M., to P.G.D., also Bro. Geo. Townsend, P.M. to P.G. Stwd. In the course of the business Bros. Albert J. Altman, J.W. 1657, and J. H. Southwood, W.M. 1260, were unanimously elected joining members. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet table, Bro. T. B. Yeoman, W.M., although far from enjoying the good health that we have long been accustomed to meet him in, presiding with his usual ability. The usual Masonic toasts concluded a most agreeable summer meeting. The lodge was honoured by the following visitors: Bros. F. R. Green, P.M. 8; E. P. Barlow, P.M. 15; and T. A. Hussey, 180.

PARKGATE.—Dee Lodge (No. 1576).—The annual meeting of this young and thriving lodge took place on Thursday, 11th inst., in their handsome lodge room at Parkgate. The W.M., Bro. Thomas Chesworth, was in the chair, supported by his officers, Bros. John Jones, S.W. (W.M. elect); J. S. Cuthbert, J.W.; J. Beesley, S.D.; W. Jones, J.D.; A. Richardson, Secretary; J. Pemberton, I.G. There was a numerous gathering of influential brethren from the counties of Chester and Lancashire. After some formal business of the lodge had taken place, the W.M. elect was presented to the Installing Master, Bro. Chesworth, by Bros. Staley, W.M. 605, and J. P. Platt, P.P.G.J.W. of Cheshire. After acknowledging the ancient obligation, all below the rank of Installed Master withdrew. Bro. John Jones was then installed by Bro. Chesworth, the retiring Master, in a very able and Craftsmanlike manner. After the usual obligations had been taken, the brethren were again admitted, when, after saluting the new Master in strict Masonic order and fashion, the following officers were invested for the ensuing year: Bros. Thomas Chesworth, I.P.M. and Treasurer; J. S. Cuthbert, S.W.; Arthur Richardson, J.W.; W. Jones, Secretary; J. Pemberton, S.D.; Hugh Chesworth, J.D.; Henry Thomas, I.G.; Thos. Cottrell and Thomas Munnerley, Stewards; and M. Williamson, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Thomas Acton, the obliging and attentive host of the Union Hotel, Parkgate. Bro. John Jones, the Worshipful Master, presided, doing the honours and duties of the chair with excellent effect. The customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received with the utmost respect, attention, and cordiality, and were ably responded to. After enjoying a most pleasant afternoon and evening, to which no little zest was given by the capital songs sung by several of the brethren, a separation took place at an early hour, with hopes expressed that all might meet again to celebrate a like event. The usual concluding toast was then given, "The Tyler."

RAYLEIGH.—Trinity Lodge (No. 1734).—This young lodge, which was only consecrated last March, is in full working order, the duties of every officer being well and efficiently discharged, held their regular monthly meeting on Friday, the 19th inst., at their lodge room, at the Golden Lion Hotel, Rayleigh. There was a very good attendance of members and visitors. W. Bro. W. Pissey, (P.M. 160, P.P.J.G.W.), W.M., presided, and was assisted by W. Bros. D. B. Grout, (P.M. 160, P.P.S.G.D.), acting as P.M.; John Allen, (P.M. 160, P.P.G.S.B.), S.W.; E. Judd, (P.M. 160, P.P.G.R.), J.W.; Bro. Allen, Secretary; W. Bro. F. J. Wiseman (P.M. 160), S.D.; Bros. W. J. Belcham, jun., acting as J.D.; Rev. A. F. Heaton, I.G., and J. Allen, Tyler. The business of the lodge was confirming the minutes of last meeting, raising Bro. Joseph Webster to the Sublime Degree of M.M., passing Bro. C. T. Witham to the Degree of F.C., the passing and raising being done in a very able manner by the W.M. After some propositions were made the lodge was closed, and a most enjoyable evening was afterwards spent.

Royal Arch.

KENDAL.—Kendal Castle Chapter (No. 129).—It has been the custom for some years past in this chapter to hold the annual festival in the summer, and to go from home to celebrate it. This year the Grange Hotel at Grange-over-Sands, the Torquay of the North, was chosen for the occasion. We most heartily congratulate the M.E.Z. and his officers on their good taste and power of "selection." The locality is extremely beautiful, the hotel charmingly situated, and the appointments perfection. Dinner was put on the tables at four o'clock, and the M.E.Z. E. Comp. Joseph Bintley was supported by E. Comps. John Talbot, H., Prov. G. Assist. S.; George McKay, J., Prov. G.S.E.; John Holme, P.Z.; John Bowes, P.Z., Prov. G.S.N.; W. Kirkbride, P.Z., Prov. G.P.S.; Arnison, P.Z.; Titus Wilson, P.Z., Treas. of 129; and Comps. John Armstrong, P.S. No. 148; W. Cartmel, Banks, Nelson, Taylor, Baron, T. O. Atkinson, and others. The dinner, which was served à la Russe, included every delicacy of the season, and the wines were of the choicest brands. Grace after meat having been said by E. Comp. J., the usual loyal and Masonic toasts received due honour. The M.E.Z. in proposing "The Prov. G. Supt., the Earl of Bective, and the Prov. G. Chapter," referred to the excellent manner in which his Lordship ruled over the province, and made a happy allusion to the proverbial hospitality of Underley. E. Comp. McKay, Prov. G.S.E., responded, and referred to the many advantages that would accrue to Royal Arch Masonry in the province by the formation of the Provincial Chapter. He hoped soon to have the bye-laws ready for distribution, and also to have the bye-laws of individual chapters approved by the Prov. G. Superintendent. E. Comp. Bowes proposed "The M.E.Z., Officers, and Members of the Kendal Castle Chapter, No. 129," and in doing so referred to his long connection with the chapter, having been one of the promoters and the first M.E.H. He complimented the present officers for the zeal they manifested as promoters of the Royal Art, and made an especial reference to the M.E.Z., E. Comp. Joseph Bintley, who had for many years been a "worker" in the good cause. The toast was very warmly received. E. Comp. Bintley in reply thanked all present for the reception they had given to the toast, so kindly proposed by their old and valued friend, Comp. Bowes. He had done something for the good of Masonry, and he hoped to do still more. Their Chapter was in a good position, financially and otherwise, and with such an overseer of the work as Comp. Bowes he did not doubt that they would meet with as much success in the future as they had in the past. "The Visitors" having been proposed, Comps. Kirkbride, Arnison, and Armstrong respectively responded, and expressed their great pleasure in being invited to take part in such enjoyable festivities. Comp. McKay, having obtained permission to propose a toast, said he had the utmost pleasure in proposing "The Health of E. Comp. Bowes." No one present was more indebted to that companion than he was. No matter what work had to be done Comp. Bowes was always equal to the occasion, and not only so, but his services were always most willingly rendered. The whole province was greatly indebted to that companion both in the Craft and the Arch. He proposed his good health with the greatest cordiality. Comp. Bowes in responding said he was conscious of having done something for the good of Masonry in the province, and the fact that his services were acceptable to them was a sufficient reward for the trouble he had taken. He was not tired yet; he loved Masonry now better than ever he did; he hoped for many years to be spared to assist in rendering their beautiful ceremonies in a creditable manner. "The Health of E. Comp. John Holme, P.Z.," having been proposed, that companion made a suitable reply. He had presided on the occasion of three of their annual gatherings, and it always afforded him very great pleasure to meet his brothers and companions for the purpose of promoting those principles which they all professed to admire. During the evening Comps. Kirkbride and Nelson sung some excellent songs, and a most enjoyable day was brought to a close at an early hour.

PORTSEA.—Royal Sussex Chapter (No. 342).—The regular quarterly meeting of this large chapter was held at Freemason's Hall, St. George's-square, on Wednesday, the 3rd inst. There were present Comps. A. Riddell, Z.; G. Green, H.; R. Twiney, J.; and a large number of the officers and members, including J. Craven, I.P.Z.; E. S. Main, P.Z.; and others. After the usual business, which included an exaltation, the ceremony in connection with which was most ably performed, especially the rendering of the comprehensive and interesting lectures peculiar to this degree—also the duty of P.S. was most ably sustained by Comp. James Willmott—a sum of £10 10s. was voted to Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution (Female Fund), thus proving the practical as well as the professed principles of this good working chapter. After the chapter was closed, the companions adjourned to a cold supper, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

TRURO.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 180).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 18th inst. The R.W. Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.W. of England, installed the W. Bro. Charles Truscott, jun., P. Prov. G.S.B. of Cheshire, as W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. Hughan having installed every W.M. since he acted as the first Master of the lodge in 1865. The W.M. (who is much respected as a zealous Mason), appointed and invested his officers for 1878-9: Bros. William Lake, P. Prov. G. Reg., I.P.M.; John Jeffery, S.W.; Dr. William Mason, J.W.; Richard Lean, M.O.; J. Cooper Furness, S.O.; J. T. Tellman, J.O.; William J. Johns, P.M. (P. Prov. G. Secretary), Treasurer; J. C. R. Crewes, P.M. (P. Prov. S. of W.), Secretary; W. Allen, Reg. of Mks.; Henry Toope, S.D.; J. T. Trythall, J.D.; Walter P. Smith, C.E., D.C.; Henry Roberts, I.G.; John Langdon, Tyler. There were also present Bros. W. Middleton, P.M., P. Prov. S.G.D., and W. Rooks, P. Prov. G. Purst., and as visitors Bros. W. F. Newman, P.M. 94, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Michael Little, W.M. 94, P. Prov. G.S.B.; John J. Taylor, S.O. 87; W. D. Rogers, Secretary 94; and G. Brown, P. Prov. J.G.W. Leicestershire, who kindly acted as J.W. The R.W. Bro. J. Hughan exhibited photos from the pages of an old Mark book of Aberdeen, of A.D. 1670.

MARYPORT.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 151). The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 18th inst. There was not a large attendance. Present:—Bros. J. H. Banks, W.M., P.G.A., D.C.; W. Armstrong, S.W.; J. Gardiner, P.M., as J.W., P.G.J.W.; E. G. Mitchell, M.O.; J. W. Robinson, S.O.; J. D. Thompson, J.O.; W. F. Lamonby, Chaplain, P.P.G. A.D.C. (Freemason); Jos. Nicholson, P.M., Treas., as S.D., P.P.G.S.W.; J. Adair, Sec.; W. St. dard, S.D., as I.G.; W. H. Leuthwaite, as J.D.; J. Smith, Org., P.P.G. Org.; R. G. Harris, Tyler; T. Weatherston. The minutes being read and confirmed, ballots were taken for Bros. J. H. Raven and T. Milburn, both of Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371, which were unanimous. Bro. Raven being in attendance, he was duly advanced to the honourable degree in the most perfect manner by the W.M., this being Bro. Banks's first night in the chair. The new Overseers also deserve very creditable mention. Bro. Milburn, the other candidate for advancement, was not present. After certificates had been presented to two or three brethren, Bro. Lamonby moved, and Bro. Mitchell seconded, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Gardiner for the time and trouble he had expended in undertaking the Stewardship of Whitwell Lodge at the recent festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, which resulted in a sum of nearly £20 being raised. Bro. A. Walter, W.M. of Mark Lodge of True Friendship, No. 20, Scotch Constitution, Maryport, was proposed as a candidate for advancement, not as an officiating member be it noted. The lodge was then closed.

Reports of Lodge 1526, Chapters 223, 1423, and 1393, stand over.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Conclave (No. 55).—The annual festival assembly of the knights attached to this conclave of the Masonic Order of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine, situated in the West Lancashire division, was held on the evening of Tuesday, the 9th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Em. Sir Knight J. Capell, M.P.S., was on the throne, and amongst others present were Ill. Sir Knight Dr. J. Kellett Smith, Int. General; Sir Knights Thompson, V.E.; R. Young, Prelate; W. Vines, Recorder; Pyer, Roberts, Callow, J. R. Goepel, P.S.; Joseph Wood, Treasurer (Freemason); H. Burrows, 90; with Em. Sir Knight J. Skeaf, M.P.S. of the Skelmersdale Conclave, No. 55, and Sir Knight R. Reader, as visitors. The throne, after the conclave had been solemnly opened, was taken by Ill. Sir Knight Dr. J. K. Smith, Int. General W.L., who most impressively enthroned Em. Sir Knight Thompson as M.P.S. Sir Knt. R. Young was invested Prelate; Sir Knt. Joseph Wood was unanimously re-elected Treasurer; and Sir Knight Vines again consented to act as Recorder. The appointment to the other offices were left over until the next meeting. The knights subsequently banqueted in the same building.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This cooling Medicine has the happiest effect when the blood is overheated and a tendency to inflammatory action is set up in the system; one Pill taken shortly before dinner, does away with the indigestion, fulness, and flatulency—indications of a weak stomach or disordered liver. A few Pills taken at bedtime act as alteratives and aperients; they not only relieve the bowels, but regulate every organ connected with them, overcome all acrid humours, and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and beget a feeling of comfort in hot climates and high temperatures, which is most desirable for preservation of health.—[ADVT.]

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening last, at Freemason's Hall. The three chairs were occupied by Bros. Joshua Nunn, as President, James Brett, as Senior Vice-President, and S. Rawson, as Junior Vice President. The other brethren present were H. J. Bartlett, P.M. 147; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Chas. Atkins, P.M. 27; C. P. Cobham, P.M. 937; Chas. F. Hogard, P.M. 205; G. P. Britten, W.M. 183; Edwd. Heyde Hewett, W.M. 235; Chas. G. Hill, P.M. 1366; A. Way, W.M. 45; Samuel Poynter, P.M. 902; John White, W.M. 1076; Thomas Good, W.M. 1288; George Darcy, W.M. 901; W. H. Cohen, W.M. 1298; B. H. Malton, P.M. 382; W. Allan, W.M. 1159; and E. C. Massey, W.M. 1297 (Freemason.) Bros. Buss, Pendlebury, and Dodd were also present.

After the Lodge of Benevolence had been opened grants to the amount of £205, recommended at last meeting, were confirmed. There were twenty cases on the new list, two were deferred, and one was found ineligible. The remaining seventeen cases were relieved with a sum of £440, and were made up of two £50 (£100), three £40 (£120), three £30 (£90), four £20 (£80), and five £10 (£50).

THE APPROACHING ROYAL MARRIAGE.

The following resolution was proposed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on Thursday, in Committee of the whole House, on the consideration of her Majesty's most gracious message with regard to the proposed Royal marriage:—

1. That an annual sum of £10,000 be granted to Her Majesty out of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain and Ireland, towards providing for the establishment of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, and H.R.H. the Princess Louise Margaret Alexandra Victoria Agnes of Prussia; the said amount to be settled on his Royal Highness for life in such a manner as Her Majesty shall think proper, and to commence from the day of the marriage of their Royal Highnesses; such annuity to be in addition to the annuity now enjoyed by his Royal Highness under the Act of the 35th year of the reign of Her Majesty.
2. That Her Majesty be enabled to secure to H.R.H. Princess Louise Margaret Alexandra Victoria Agnes, in case she shall survive H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, an annual sum not exceeding £6000 during her life, to support the Royal family.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

"Brief abstract and chronicles of the time." HAMLET.

OLYMPIC.—This most unlucky house has had yet another failure in "Nancy Sikes"—a weird, murderous, blood-thirsty play hatched in America and brought to England for no other purpose than I can see but to be plucked. And why should the play be called Nancy Sikes, I wonder? Nancy was not entitled to Bill's surname. I can only suppose that the author of the piece imagined it would be immoral to indicate on the stage that Bill and Nancy, like many others in their class of life, cohabited without clerical or government authority, and he must evidently have thought that murder is a more respectable crime than fornication. Well, it is a question of ethics, and he may be right, but as a dramatist he is certainly wrong. The play is a very bad one from a dramatic point of view, and it is only from a dramatic point that critics and the public look at any play.

PRINCESS'S.—The drama at this house, entitled "Queen's Evidence," written by Messrs. George Conquest and Pettitt, is without exception the best sensational drama that has been seen in London for a generation. It is rarely indeed one sees a drama written on the orthodox lines, sensational and emotional, that can lay any claims to construction on character-painting, but in "Queen's Evidence" one sees both. The construction is not merely good, it is perfect, not a word, sentiment, incident, nor scene that is not part and parcel of the story, and which does not lead up in the most natural manner to some incident in scenes to follow. The character-painting too, a matter seldom or never regarded by most writers of sensational drama, has in "Queen's Evidence" received due consideration at the hands of the authors, and we get in Kate Medland, Miss Marie Litton, Ada Somers, Miss Fannie Leslie, Gilbert Medland, Mr. Charles Warner, Matthew Thornton, Mr. W. Rignold, and Isaacs, Mr. Harry Jackson: clever yet natural delineations that form a striking group of dramatic characterization. The play is put on the stage in a manner that is above all praise, and altogether I am bound to say that there is no theatre in London where the programme at this season is as attractive as "The Princess's." The plot of "Queen's Evidence" is so excellent that I feel tempted, in spite of the rule I made to give the plot of a play, to tell it for the mere pleasure of telling. But I refrain. In the third act Miss Fanny Leslie sings a sweetly pretty song, by Mr. Clement Scott, in the most charming manner conceivable. She has a rare, sweet and powerful voice. It is hardly necessary for me to say, having mentioned the names of the leading artists in "Queen's Evidence," that the acting was excellent. The names speak for themselves. Isaacs, as rendered by Mr. Jackson is the best Jew I have ever seen. I think Mr. Warner makes a mistake in wearing a light beard and black hair, which he does after the first act.

The London General Omnibus Company's receipts for the past week show an increase of £1,622, as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, R.W.G.M. of Cornwall, proposes holding a Prov. Grand Lodge at the Masonic Hall, Redruth, on Tuesday week August 6th, at 10 o'clock a.m. precisely.

Col. J. Tanner Davy, the P.G.M.M.M. of Devon, will hold a Prov. Grand Lodge on Tuesday next, at the Masonic Hall, Newton Abbott, at 3 p.m., to transact the business of his Prov. Grand Lodge and to consecrate a new Mark lodge—the Devon Lodge, No. 215. Mark Masonry is flourishing in Devon, which has as many, if not more, Mark Lodges than almost any county in England.

R.W. Bro. the Marquis of Hartington, P.G.M. for Derbyshire, distributed on Wednesday, at Eastbourne, the prizes and certificates won at the December examination at that centre in connection with the Cambridge Local Examinations. In his after address he remarked that it appeared to him that the study of the English language and of English literature was a paramount necessity at the present time, and he was glad that the attention of the examiners was turned to it. He need not tell them that knowledge was the most powerful weapon that could be placed in their hands.

Bro. Frederick Cavill was to attempt to swim from Dean's Point, on the extreme south of Kintyre, Scotland, to a point near Fair Head, on the coast of Ireland, on Thursday, but owing to the weather the attempt was postponed.

The Most Hon. the Marquis of Salisbury has received the second of the two vacant Garters, and thus shares with the Prime Minister the honour which was formally conferred upon him by her Majesty on Monday. The vacancies, it will be remembered, were caused by the decease of the Earl of Ailesbury and Earl Russell. The following, which is a complete list of the Knights of the Garter, and for which we are indebted to our able contemporary The Daily Chronicle, will be read with interest. Duke of Abercorn, Emperor of Austria, Earl of Beaconsfield, Duke of Beaufort, Leopold II., King of the Belgians, Emperor of Brazil, Duke of Brunswick, Duke of Buccleuch, Duke of Cambridge, Duke of Cleveland, Duke of Connaught, Earl Cowley, Earl Cooper, Duke of Cumberland, King of Denmark, Duke of Devonshire, Duke of Edinburgh, Earl Fitz-William, Emperor of Germany, Crown Prince of Germany, Earl Granville, King of Greece, Earl Grey, Earl of Harrowby, Grand Duke of Hesse, Prince Christian of Holstein, King of Italy, Earl of Leicester, His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, Duke of Marlborough, Reigning Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Shah of Persia, King of Portugal, Prince William of Prussia, Duke of Richmond and Gordon, Marquis of Ripon, Emperor of Russia, Duke of Rutland, Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, Earl of Shaftesbury, Duke of Somerset, Earl Spencer, Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe, Duke of Sutherland, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Duke of Wellington, and Duke of Westminster.

The Earl of Beaconsfield on Tuesday evening presented a message from the Queen to the House of Lords, which was to the effect that Her Majesty, having agreed to the marriage proposed between the Duke of Connaught, Past Grand Senior Warden, and Princess Louise Margaret Agnes, third daughter of Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, had thought fit to communicate it to the House of Lords; and the numerous proofs which the Queen had received from their lordships of their loyalty and attachment to her person and family left her Majesty no doubt of their readiness to make further provision for His Royal Highness.

EXPEDITIOUS TELEGRAPHING.—The Agent-General for South Australia sent a telegram to Adelaide, at 3 p.m. on Monday, the 22nd inst., from Broad-street, E.C., and a reply to the same was received by him at Westminster at 9.45 a.m. on Tuesday, the 23rd inst.

A joint communication of Eagle and Hardin lodges was held June 25th for the purpose of installing officers. After the business of the meeting was over, Past Grand Master H. W. Rothert, on behalf of Hardin Lodge, in a neat speech, presented R. F. Bower, Esq., retiring Master of the lodge, with a Past Master's pin. Bro. Bower is accustomed to being astonished and surprised in this way, as this was only one of many similar experiences, and, although he has been presented with jewels from higher sources, we venture to say that none were so highly appreciated as this testimonial from the members of his own lodge.—Keokuk Constitution.

CYPRUS.—Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son have received a telegram from the Austrian Lloyd's Steamship Administration, Trieste, informing them that a weekly service of steamers has been arranged to Cyprus, via Alexandria.

The Grosvenor Gallery was visited on Sunday by upwards of 3,000 persons. It will be opened in the same way on Sunday, August 4th.

The "Celebrity at Home" in this week's World is His Grace the Duke of Manchester, R.W.G.M. Norths and Hunts.

A man dressed in sailor costume was brought up in a criminal court the other day upon a charge of stealing a pair of boots. As he had no counsel, the court appointed a young lawyer to take charge of the defence. The lawyer opened the case with a speech in which he alluded to his client as "a child of the sad sea waves, a nursling of the storm, whom the pitiless billows had cast, a forlorn and friendless wail, upon the shores of time, after a life spent in fierce and heroic contest with the raging elements." The evidence revealed that he was cook upon a canal-boat, previous to which he had hawked fish. The "nursling of the storm" is now in gaol for six months.

We understand that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Superintendent of England, has been pleased to appoint Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., J.P., D.L., R.W.P.G.M. for W. Yorks, to be the Prov. Grand Superintendent of the R.A.M.'s of West Yorks, vice the late lamented Comp. Bentley Shaw, and that his installation is to take place at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, at an early date.
